A person who is under no duty to repair a highway or bridge has, as against the owner of the soil, no right to repair it (Campbell Davys v. Lloyd, [1901] 2 Ch. 518; 26 Digest 449, 1649); if he does so without objection being taken, he cannot recover his expenditure from the party liable to do the repairs (Macclesfield Corporation v. G. C. Rail. Co., [1911] 2 K. B. 528; 75 J. P. 369; 26 Digest 581, 2713). Nor, in general, is a member of the public entitled to abate a nuisance in a highway (Dimes v. Petley (1850), 15 Q. B. 276; 26 Digest 448, 1639; Roberts v. Rose (1866), L. R. 1 Ex. 82; 30 J. P. 5; 36 Digest 204, 465). Under the L. G. A., 1894, s. 26, post, p. 4907, it is the duty of every district council to prevent as far as possible the stopping or obstruction of any public right of way. In Bagshaw v. Buxton L. B. (1875), 1 Ch. D. 220; 40 J. P. 197; 26 Digest 449, 1652, the court refused to grant an injunction to restrain a local authority from removing an enclosure of the highway which amounted to a nuisance; but did not decide whether an authority as surveyor of highways could lawfully abate an obstruction before obtaining a judicial determination that it was in fact an obstruction. It has now, however, been expressly decided that an urban district council have power to remove an obstruction without any preliminary conviction, and to recover from the person who placed it on the highway the expenses of removing it (Reynolds v. Presteign U. D. C., [1896] 1 Q. B. 604; 60 J. P. 296; 26 Digest 449, 1654); and it seems clear that a rural council is in the same position (Louth U. D. C. v. West (1896), 60 J. P. 600; 65 L. J. Q. B. 535; 26 Digest 391, 1176; Harris v. Northamptonshire C. C. (1897), 61 J. P. 599; 26 Digest 449, 1656). See the latter case as to the powers of a county council in this behalf. In Gaby v. Palmer (1916), 80 J. P. 212; 14 L. G. R. 491; 38 Digest 209, 436, which was a case decided under a local Act, it was held that an owner of land was liable to remove and otherwise make secure certain unsafe ground abutting upon a highway from which there was an apprehended danger of obstruction to the public using the highway. See also generally, National Telephone Co. v. St. Peter Port (Constables of), [1900] A. C. 317; 42 Digest 896, 63, and Webster v. Bakewell R. D. C. (1916), 80 J. P. 437; 14 L. G. R. 1109; 26 Digest 313, 450. The damage done in the removal must not be excessive (Seaton v. Slama (1932), 77 Sol. Jo. 11; 31 L. G. R. 41; Digest Supp.), and if in a claim by the landowner for damages the defendant claims that he is doing no more than enforce a public right of way, the fiat of the Attorney-General is necessary (ibid.). As to the obstruction of a highway by the loading and unloading of carts, see Att.-Gen. v. Brighton and Hove Co-operative Supply Association, [1900] 1 Ch. 276; 26 Digest 425, 1442; Att.-Gen. v. W. H. Smith & Son (1910), 74 J. P. 313; 26 T. L. R. 482; 26 Digest 425, 1443; Vanderpant v. Mayfair Hotel Co., [1930] 1 Ch. 138; Digest Supp., and cf. also Ruoff v. Long & Co., [1916] 1 K. B. 148; 80 J. P. 158; 36 Digest 33, 186, a case where damage was caused by the interference of third parties with a standing vehicle; and Simpson v. Metropolitan Water Board (1917), 15 L. G. R. 629; 36 Digest 21, 101. As to obstruction by theatre queues, see Lyons, Sons & Co. v. Gulliver, [1914] 1 Ch. 631; 73 J. P. 98; 26 Digest 428, 1475.

rollers.

The plaintiffs, a gas company, laid pipes beneath certain streets, as they were bound by statute to do, for the purpose of supplying gas to light the streets and houses therein. The streets were vested in the defendants by certain statutes which gave them the authority of the surveyor of highways, with the duty to repair, but prescribed no particular mode of repair. The defendants used steam rollers as being a mode of repair most advantageous to both the ratepayers and the public, but such rollers were so heavy as frequently to injure the plaintiffs' pipes, although laid sufficiently deep not to have been injured by the ordinary mode of repair if such rollers had not been used. The plaintiffs were held entitled not only to damages for the injury done, but also to an injunction to restrain the defendants from using steam rollers in such a way as to injure the pipes (Gas Light and Coke Co. v. St. Mary

Att.-Gen.*, Att.-Gen. v. G. N. Rail. Co., and Att.-Gen. for Ireland v. Lagan Navigation Co., post, p. 4372.

With reference to the powers and duties of a district council in stopping up high-ways, reference may be made to United Land Co. v. Tottenham L. B. (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 640; 48 J. P. 726; 26 Digest 476, 1890. It was there held that the charges of a solicitor employed by an urban authority to conduct proceedings at the instance of an individual for the stopping up or diverting of a highway under the Highway Act, 1835, ss. 84, 85 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 97, 99), are not "expenses" within the meaning of s. 84 of that Act so as to be recoverable under s. 101 of this Act (13 Halsbury's Statutes 665). And, semble, all the steps required by s. 85 to be taken for the purpose of obtaining the order of sessions, are ministerial acts which ought to be done by the surveyor of the authority appointed under Part IV. of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 860.

As to the right of a council to receive the income of a charity given for the repair of a road or bridge, see Att.-Gen. v. Day, [1900] 1 Ch. 31; 64 J. P. 88; 26 Digest 372, 980; In re Hall's Charity, Severn Commissioners v. Charity Trustees and Worcestershire C. C. (1911), 76 J. P. 9; 28 T. L. R. 32; 26 Digest 578, 2693.

A local board had not, as surveyors of highways, any authority over turnpike roads (per BRAMWELL, B., in Nutter v. Accrington L. B. (1878), 4 Q. B. D. 375; 26 Digest 335, 660. And see s. 148, post, p. 4369, and Lancashire J.J. v. Rochdale (Mayor of), cited in the notes thereto).

It was held in Taylor v. Meltham L. B. (1878), 47 L. J. C. P. 12, that an action against a local authority as surveyors of highways might be commenced within six months allowed by s. 264 (now repealed), and need not be commenced within the three months prescribed by the Highway Act, 1835, s. 109. And again, where a local board in repairing a road negligently left a heap of stones upon it, whereby injury was caused to the plaintiff, it was held that the board were acting under this Act and not under the Highway Act, and that the period of limitation was, therefore, six and not three months (Kay v. Atherton L. B. (1878), 42 J. P. 792; 38 Digest 124, 916). But where a corporation were surveyors of highways by a local Act, which made them subject to all such liabilities as any surveyors of highways were subject to by virtue of the law for the time being in force, and there was nothing to show that the corporation were acting under this Act, it was held that the period of limitation was three and not six months (Burton v. Corporation of Salford (1883), 11 Q. B. D. 286; 47 J. P. 614; 38 Digest 124, 917). This case was followed in Graham v. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (Mayor, etc. of) (No. 2), [1893] 1 Q. B. 643; 57 J. P. 596; 38 Digest 114, 818, and Taylor v. Meltham L. B. and Kay v. Atherton L. B. were expressly overruled, it being held that an urban authority constituted surveyors of highways by s. 144 of the P. H. A., 1875, were not liable to be sued for negligence in the management of highways unless the action was commenced within three months under s. 109 of the Highway Act, 1835. However, s. 264 of this Act and s. 109 of the Highway Act, 1835, are both now repealed by s. 2 of the Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893, post, p. 4875, by s. 1 of which a period now of twelve months' limitation next after the act, default or neglect complained of, or in the case of a continuance of injury or damage, twelve months next after the ceasing thereof, is made generally applicable.

As to the discretion of a district council as surveyors of highways when it is sought to make a road in their district a public highway, see R. v. Dukinfield (1863), 4 B. & S. 158; 27 J. P. 805; 26 Digest 362, 873.

(d) The chief of these are Highway Acts, 1835, 1841, 1845, 1862, 1864 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 50, 121, 122, 142); Annual Turnpike Acts Continuance Act, 1865 (op. cit. 281); Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878 (op. cit. 166); Highway Rate Assessment and Expenditure Act, 1882 (op. cit. 188); Highways and Bridges Act, 1891, post, p. 4833.

The provisions for making highway rates were contained in ss. 216, 217 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 716).

(e) By the Highway Act, 1835, s. 29 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 64), the consent of four-fifths of the inhabitants of any parish contributing to the highway rate, at a meeting specially called for that purpose, was necessary before such rate might exceed 2s. 6d. in the pound on the whole in any one year. That section was held to be impliedly repealed by the provisions in the text in the case of a highway rate made by an urban authority under this Act (Dyson v. Greetland L. B. (1883), 47 J. P. N. 260; (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 946; 48 J. P. 596).

(f) As to the construction of this paragraph, see United Land Co. v. Tottenham L. B., ante, p. 4365. A district council must appoint a surveyor (L. G. A., 1933, s. 107, ante, p. 884). See also the definition of "surveyor" in s. 4, ante, p. 4334.

145. The inhabitants within any urban district shall not in respect of any property situated therein be liable to the payment of highway rate or other payment, not being a toll, in respect of making or repairing roads or highways without such district: Provided that any person who in any place after the passing of this Act ceases under or by virtue of any provision of this Act, or of any order made thereunder, to be surveyor of highways within such place, may recover any highway rate made in respect of such place, and remaining unpaid at the time of his so ceasing to be such surveyor, as if he had not ceased to be such surveyor; and the money so recovered shall be applied, in the first place, in reimbursing himself any expenses incurred by him as such surveyor, and in discharging any debts legally owing by him on account of the highways within his jurisdiction; and the surplus (if any) shall be paid by him to the treasurer of the urban authority, and carried to the fund or rate applicable to the repair of highways within their district.

This section would appear to be now largely spent. Until rural district councils succeeded to the powers and duties of highway authorities under the L. G. A., 1894, s. 25, post, p. 4905, certain areas outside some urban districts were treated as forming part of such district for highway purposes.

There may be cases in which it is reasonable that ratepayers in an urban district should bear the whole or part of the expense of making or repairing a road in another district, as for example a road which provides a nearer way to a distant town, etc., or is principally required or used as an approach to the authority's cemetery or hospital. The Highways and Bridges Act, 1891, post, p. 4833, provides for agreements in such circumstances.

146. Any urban authority may agree (a) with any person for the making of roads within their district for the public use through the lands and at the expense of such person, and may agree that such roads shall become and the same shall accordingly (b) become on completion (c) highways maintainable and repairable by the inhabitants at large within their district; they may also, with the consent of two-thirds of their number, agree with such person to pay, and may accordingly pay, any portion of the expenses of making such roads (d).

In rural districts and in relation to "county roads" in urban districts this section is applied to county councils with the deletion of the words "with the consent of two-thirds of their number" (Sched. I., Pts. I. and III., L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 975, 977).

Functions under this section are no longer exercisable by rural district councils (L. G. A., 1929, s. 30 (3), Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904) except in the case of delegation by the county council under s. 35, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 910, and in that event the section will apply in its amended form, for the rural district council will only be acting as "agents" for the county council and must act in accordance with the terms of the delegation. Councils of urban districts with a population not exceeding 20,000 are in respect to "county roads" in their district in exactly the same position as rural district councils. Councils of urban districts of a greater population than 20,000 may in relation to "county roads" "claimed" by them under s. 32, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 906, function under this section as if the county road were an ordinary road vested in them.

In relation to all roads in their district other than "county roads" the powers of an urban district council under this section remain unchanged and the amendment above referred to is not operative.

(a) This agreement should be in writing and under seal: cf. Hoare v. Kingsbury U. D. C., in notes to s. 154, post, p. 4425, and Tunbridge Wells Improvement Commissioners v. Southborough L. B., in notes to s. 148, post, p. 4370; but see Bromley L. B. v. Lansbury, in note (c), infra. The section is incorporated from Local Government Act, 1888, s. 39.

The section seems designed to meet the case of the construction of new roads, not the making up of existing roads, though the decision in Bromley L. B. v. Lansbury, infra, has a contrary tendency, and the M. of H. have held that the section is applicable to the case of a district council making a new road upon the site of a private street.

If the street will upon completion become a county road (i.e., in an urban district a classified road) the agreement must, it would seem, be made by the county council or the district council acting as their agents, although the M. of T. will not classify the road until it is made. In the same way an urban district council entitled to claim county roads who have, in fact, claimed all county roads might, it would seem, make the agreement under this section although they cannot claim the road until it is in existence. On the other hand, as the county council would be under the obligation of bearing the expense of maintaining the road even if "claimed," it might be argued that the road was not a "claimed" road and therefore a county road in respect of which the agreement must be made by the county council.

(b) That is, in accordance with the agreement.

(c) See Saunders v. Brading Harbour Improvement Railway and Works Co. (1885), 52 L. T. 426; 42 Digest 524, 883, cited at length in the notes to s. 152, post, p. 4423.

In Bromley L. B. v. Lansbury (1894), Times, Dec. 5th, a new road was laid out in 1878; in 1884, buildings having been erected on each side of it, an arrangement, not under seal, was made between defendant, one of the frontagers, and the plaintiffs, that it should be made up to the satisfaction of the plaintiffs' surveyor, and should be kept in repair by the frontagers for six months, and that the plaintiffs should then adopt it. This arrangement was carried out, but the plaintiffs did not, after the expiration of six months, give the usual notice of adoption under s. 152, post, p. 4423. Subsequently, in consequence of heavy traffic, the road fell into disrepair, and the plaintiffs having paved it under s. 150, post, p. 4388, sought to recover a share of the expense from the defendant in the county court. It was held there, and on appeal by GRANTHAM and LAWRENCE, JJ., that the plaintiffs were bound by the arrangement come to in 1884, having accepted the work then done by defendant.

By an agreement made in 1879 between owners of property and a local authority, it was agreed that a road should be dedicated to the public and accepted by the authority as a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large, subject, nevertheless, to the authority retaining the power of calling upon the frontagers for the time being to make up such parts of it as were not already properly made up, and reserving to the authority all the powers under s. 150, post, p. 4388. The roadway was properly made up at the date of the agreement, but the footway was not paved. At a later date the authority, who had by that time adopted the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4848, proposed to pave the footway under that Act and to charge the expenses against the frontagers. Upon objections to the provisional apportionment by frontagers who had bought from the original owners, it was held that the powers sought to be enforced did not apply to a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large, and that, the road having been accepted as such, the parties to the agreement could not thereby give jurisdiction to proceed under the Act (Mayor, etc. of Folkestone v. Marsh (1906), 70 J. P. 113; 94 L. T. 511; 26 Digest 544, 2420). In a later case arising out of the same agreement, the authority sued a frontager for apportioned expenses. The frontager had taken no objection to the provisional or final apportionments under ss. 7 and 12 of the Act, post, pp. 4853, 4861. Marsh's Case, supra, was apparently not cited; and it was held that if the meaning of the agreement was that the roads were, as between the parties, to be deemed highways repairable by the inhabitants at large, and that—by implication—the corporation undertook not to put into force the Private Street Works Act, 1892 against the frontagers, it was ultra vires. If the deed had no such meaning, it was no bar under the circumstances of the case to proceedings under s. 14 of that Act, post, p. 4864 (Mayor, etc. of Folkestone v. Rook (1907), 71 J. P. 550; 6 L. G. R. 69; 26 Digest 540, 2388).

(d) It will be noted that the first agreement mentioned in the section may be made by the authority, i.e., by a mere majority. But the latter agreement requires the consent of two-thirds of the members. The object is obviously to prevent jobbery in the matter. The provision requiring a two-thirds consent does not, however, apply in the application of the section to county councils and a district council to whom functions under this section have been delegated under s. 32, L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 906, do not in reference to a delegated road require the two-thirds consent though, of course, their powers are limited by the terms of the delegation. The L. G. B. held that s. 146, supra, did not enable a district council to contribute towards the cost of putting a private street (i.e., an existing street) in repair. Contributions are, however, now provided for by s. 15 of the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4865, where a street is made up under that Act, and by s. 81 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V. and 13 Halsbury's Statutes 1152, where the procedure under s. 150, post, p. 4388, is adopted.

of urban authority to construct or adopt public bridges, etc.
over or under canals, etc.

147. Any urban authority may agree (a) with the proprietors of any canal railway or tramway to adopt and maintain any existing or projected bridge viaduct or arch within their district, over or under any such canal railway or tramway, and the approaches thereto, and may accordingly adopt and maintain such bridge viaduct or arch and approaches as parts of public streets or roads maintainable and repairable by the inhabitants at large within their district; or such authority may themselves agree to construct any such bridge viaduct or arch at the expense of such proprietors (b); they may also, with the consent of two-thirds of their number (c), agree to pay, and may accordingly pay, any portion of the expenses of the construction or alteration of any such bridge viaduct or arch (d), or of the purchase of any adjoining lands required for the foundation and support thereof or for the approaches thereto.

As to the effect of this application, see the note to the last section.

See also the Highways and Bridges Act, 1891, s. 3, post, p. 4833, which enables a local authority to agree with any other local authority or county council for the construction, re-construction, alteration, or improvement, or the freeing from tolls of any main road, or other highway, or of any bridge within the jurisdiction of any of the parties; and the Bridges Act, 1929, Vol. V. and 9 Halsbury's Statutes 268, which enables highway authorities and the owners of bridges (including railway bridges) to make agreements with respect to the maintenance, improvement, reconstruction and transfer of such bridges and the roads carried thereby, and empowers the M. of T. in the absence of such agreements to make orders for the same purposes.

(a) The agreement should be under seal, see note (a) to preceding section. This section is re-enacted from Local Government Act, 1858, s. 40. It is not easy to see how the authority can adopt a projected bridge ; but doubtless it means that if the projected bridge be made, the authority may adopt it afterwards. The observations made under note (a) to the last section as to projected streets would seem to be equally applicable to the case of projected bridges. It is, however, probable that in the future the provisions of the Bridges Act, 1929, Vol. V. and 9 Halsbury's Statutes 268, will in practice supersede this section. An agreement should be a permanent one, not one for a limited time.

(b) As to the liability of a railway company to construct bridges, see the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ss. 46 et seq. (14 Halsbury's Statutes 47 et seq.) ; R. v. S. E. Rail. Co. (1853), 4 H. L. Cas. 471 ; 38 Digest 266, 85 ; Dartford R. D. C. v. Bexley Heath Rail. Co., [1898] A. C. 210 ; 62 J. P. 227 ; 38 Digest 266, 83. For decisions as to the obligations of railway and canal companies to maintain, widen, raise or strengthen bridges (with their roadways, approaches and fences) and level crossings, see note (d) to the next section.

(c) Note the same difference as in the last section, note (d), with reference to the entering into these agreements, and observe that the two-third's consent is not necessary in the case of a county council or a district council acting as agents for the county council in pursuance of a delegation of functions under s. 32, L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 906.

(d) The bridge, viaduct, or arch must be one which will be part of a public street or road repairable by the inhabitants at large. Where a district council proposed to make a contribution to a railway company towards the cost of erecting a bridge which the company reserved power to close for one day in each year, or to remove without payment of any compensation to the council, the M. of H. held that such an agreement was not authorised by the section, and declined to sanction a loan.

The M. of H. regard a proposed subway beneath a railway as within this section, but the public right of way must be permanent.

148. Any urban authority may by agreement (a) with the trustees of any turnpike road (b), or with any person liable (c) to repair any street (d) or road, or any part thereof, or with the surveyor of any county bridge (e), take on themselves the maintenance repair cleansing or watering of any such street or road or any part thereof (f), or of any road over any county bridge, and the approaches thereto (e), or of any part of the said streets or roads within their district and may remove any turnpike gates, toll gates, or bars which may be situated within their district, and may erect other turnpike gates, toll gates, or bars in lieu thereof, on such terms as the urban authority and such trustees or person or surveyor as aforesaid may agree on :

Power of urban authority to enter into agreements with persons liable to repair streets as to repair, etc. thereof

Provided—

That where any mortgage debt is charged on the tolls of any such turnpike road, no agreement shall be made for the removal of any of the toll gates or bars thereon, unless with the previous consent in writing of a majority of at least two thirds in value of the mortgagees ; and

That where the terms arranged include any annual or other payments from such urban authority to the trustees of any such turnpike road, then the payments may be secured on any fund or rate applicable by such authority to any of the purposes of this Act in the same manner as other charges on any such fund or rate are authorised by this Act.

Any executors, administrators, guardians, trustees, or committee of the estate of any idiot or lunatic, who are as such for the time being entitled to any money charged or secured on the tolls of any such turnpike road, may consent to any such agreement as aforesaid, as fully as if they respectively were so entitled in their own right, discharged of all trusts in respect thereof ;

Section 148. and all executors, administrators, guardians, trustees, and committees so consenting are hereby severally indemnified for so doing.

The italicised portions of this section were repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1898 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1173), turnpike trusts being now obsolete.

In rural districts this section is applied to county councils with the omission of the words "or with the surveyor of any county bridge," "or of any road over any county bridge and the approaches thereto" and "or surveyor" (Sched. I., Pt. I., L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 975).

A rural district council can, therefore, no longer exercise any functions under this section except as agents for the county council in pursuance of a delegation under s. 35 of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 910. In exercising such delegated functions the section will apply to rural district councils in its amended form subject, of course, to any restrictions or conditions imposed by the terms of the delegation.

The section is not applied to county councils in relation to "county roads" in urban districts, and the section will continue to apply to urban district councils, as it did prior to the passing of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 883.

As to toll bridges and roads, see s. 53, Road Traffic Act, 1930.

(a) The agreement should be under seal (Turnbridge Wells Improvement Commissioners v. Southborough L. B. (1888), 60 L. T. 172; 13 Digest 385, 1129). In that case the plaintiffs had covenanted with an individual to construct and maintain a road (along which he was giving them a right of way) in the district of the defendants. The plaintiffs and defendants subsequently agreed that in consideration of the former assenting to a transfer of area—subsequently sanctioned by Parliament—the latter would "adopt" the road and "dedicate" it as a public highway:—Held, that (apart from the want of seal) the agreement was not authorised by the words of this section.

As to how far an agreement made under this section with respect to the repair of the roadway on a railway bridge continues in force when a tramway company have widened the bridge under special statutory powers, see Teddington U. D. C. v. L. & S. W. Rail. Co. (1910), 74 J. P. 119; 102 L. T. 328; 26 Digest 576, 2679.

(b) An agreement as to turnpike roads made before December 31st, 1870, under the corresponding section of the Act of 1858, ante, p. 4249, was held not to prevent the roads from being still turnpike roads on December 31st, 1870, within the meaning of the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, s. 13 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 172) (West Riding J.J. v. R. (1883), 8 App. Cas. 781; 48 J. P. 228; 26 Digest 266, 69).

Turnpike trusts, after the commencement of this Act, continued in force as to turnpike roads within an urban sanitary district (per Lord BLACKBURN in Lancashire J.J. v. Rochdale (Mayor of) (1883), 8 App. Cas. 497; 48 J. P. 20; 26 Digest 266, 68). In that case the corporation of R. was the highway authority within the borough. Under ss. 47—50 of the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 546, 547), the obligation to repair all public highways within the town was imposed upon the corporation, and the turnpike trustees were forbidden to lay out any money on any road within that area. By a local Act in 1872 the boundaries of the borough were enlarged, and all the provisions of the Act relating to the town were extended to the enlarged area. The effect was that further portions of turnpike roads were for the first time brought within the borough and within the operation of ss. 47—50. It was held that these further portions, being only parts of turnpike roads, had not "ceased to be turnpike roads," and were not to be deemed to be "main roads" within s. 13 of the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 172); and that the county authority were not liable to pay half the expenses of their maintenance.

By a local Act of 1855, incorporating the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, ante, p. 4200 and 13 Halsbury's Statutes 531, the maintenance of all highways within a district, including a turnpike road, became vested in the commissioners. The trustees of the turnpike road thereupon ceased to repair it within the limits of the district. The turnpike trust expired in 1877. The commissioners were the highway authority for the district, which was a highway area within the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, s. 13. It was held that, notwithstanding the special legislation in 1855, providing for the maintenance of part of the road by the commissioners, it only ceased to be a turnpike road within the meaning of s. 13, on the expiration of the turnpike trust in 1877, and must therefore be deemed to be a main road, and that consequently one-half of the expenses of the maintenance of the part within the highway area should be paid to the highway authority by the county authority (Newton-in-Makerfield Improvement Commissioners v. Lancashire J.J. (1884), 15 Q. B. D. 25; 49 J. P. 149).

Agreements
as to turn-

(c) This section enables an authority to agree with a person who is liable ratione tenuræ to repair some highway that, in consideration of a money payment, the authority shall take over in perpetuity the liability for such repair; such an agreement effectually discharges the land from the liability (In re Earl of Stamford and Warrington, Payne v. Grey, [1911] 1 Ch. 648; 75 J. P. 346; 26 Digest 371, 970). The Highway Act, 1835, s. 62 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 79), and the Highway Act, 1862, s. 35 (op. cit. 134), provided a procedure by which highways repairable ratione tenuræ in separate highway parishes and in highway districts respectively could become parish highways. That procedure, however, contains restrictions which are sometimes inconvenient, e.g., in the matter of the application of the compensation money, and in such cases it may be found desirable to proceed under this section. In the case of a settled estate a liability to repair ratione tenuræ is not an "incumbrance" to the redemption of which capital moneys may be applied (In re Hodgson's Settled Estate, [1912] 1 Ch. 784; 40 Digest 751, 2808).

(d) A bridge which is not a "county bridge" (as to which see note (e), infra) is a "street" as defined by s. 4, ante, p. 4336. See also the Bridges Act, 1929, Vol. V. and 9 Halsbury's Statutes 268, as to agreements and the power of the Minister of Transport to make orders in relation to the maintenance, improvement, reconstruction and transfer of bridges.

Where, in order to fulfil their obligation under the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, s. 46 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 47) (see s. 147, note (b), ante, p. 4369), a railway company make a bridge to carry a highway over the railway, they are bound to keep the surface of the highway on the bridge and its approaches in repair as being a necessary part of the bridge (L. & Y. Rail Co. v. Bury (Mayor, etc. of) (1889), 14 App. Cas. 417; 54 J. P. 197; 26 Digest 586, 2776; Caledonian Rail. Co. v. Glasgow Corporation, [1909] A. C. 138; 38 Digest 272, 128). And see Buckley v. L. & N. W. Rail. Co. (1896), Times, June 12th. But this liability does not extend to a bridge over the railway which was not strictly made under s. 46 (L. & N. W. Rail. Co. v. Ogwen R. D. C. (1899), 63 J. P. 295; 80 L. T. 401; 38 Digest 272, 127); nor does it extend to a bridge made to carry an occupation road which has since become a highway (Caledonian Rail. Co. v. Glasgow Corporation, supra). It has been held that when, to comply with s. 46, the railway is carried over a highway the company are not bound to repair the highway under the bridge, even though it has been lowered in order to give headway (L. & N. W. Rail. Co. v. Skerton (1864), 5 B. & S. 559; 28 J. P. 518; 38 Digest 270, 112); but the correctness of this decision has been doubted (Hertfordshire C. C. v. G. E. Rail. Co., [1909] 1 K. B. 368; 73 J. P. 84; [1909] 2 K. B. 403; 73 J. P. 353; 38 Digest 308, 325).

As to a railway company's liability to repair the roadway on a bridge and its approaches when such bridge was made under a special Act prior in date to the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 30), see Att.-Gen. v. Midland Rail. Co. (1909), 73 J. P. 337; 100 L. T. 866; 38 Digest 272, 126, and L. & N. E. Rail. Co. v. North Riding of Yorkshire C. C., [1936] A. C. 365; [1936] 1 All E. R. 692; Digest Supp.

As to their liability where a bridge originally built by them has been widened by a tramway company under special statutory powers, see Teddington U. D. C. v. L. & S. W. Rail. Co. (1910), 74 J. P. 119; 102 L. T. 328; 38 Digest 273, 130; and as to their liability in some cases to widen a bridge in accordance with the Railways Clauses Acts, see Rhondda U. D. C. v. Taff Vale Rail. Co., [1909] A. C. 253; 73 J. P. 257; 38 Digest 271, 115.

A railway company were authorised to cross a highway by means of a level crossing; and, the line being at a higher level than the road, they constructed permanent slopes in order to bring the road gradually to the level of the line, and so cross it. It was held that they were under no obligation to keep in repair the surface of these graded approaches (West Lancashire R. D. C. v. L. & Y. Rail. Co., [1903] 2 K. B. 394; 67 J. P. 410; 38 Digest 280, 178). In a later case, however, under exactly similar circumstances, except that the company's special Act was prior in date to the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, the company was held liable, and the correctness of the earlier decision was questioned (Hertfordshire C. C. v. G. E. Rail. Co., [1909] 1 K. B. 368; 73 J. P. 84; [1909] 2 K. B. 403; 73 J. P. 353; 38 Digest 308, 325).

As to the liability of a canal company under a Canal Act to repair both the fabric of a bridge carrying a road over their canal and also the roadway on such bridge, see Macclesfield Corporation v. G. C. Rail. Co., [1911] 2 K. B. 528; 75 J. P. 369; 26 Digest 581, 2713; as to their liability to repair the approaches to such a bridge, see Nottingham C. C. v. M. S. & L. Rail. Co. (1894), 71 L. T. 430; 26 Digest 586, 2773, and Att.-Gen. v. Oxford Canal Navigation, infra. A statute passed after the Statute of Bridges, 1530-1 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 229) empowered a company to make a cut across a highway, and imposed upon them the obligation of making and maintaining at their own cost a bridge to carry the highway across the cut. It was held that the company was only liable to maintain the bridge and its actual approaches with the roadway thereon, the extent of the approaches being a question of fact; and that their liability did not necessarily extend to a distance of 300 feet from each end of the bridge. The court held that the rule as to 300 feet laid down by the Statute of Bridges, applies to bridges repairable by the county or by prescription, but not to cases where the liability is directly imposed by a later Act (Herts C. C. v. New River Co., [1904] 2 Ch. 513; 68 J. P. 552; 26 Digest 585, 2765). An appeal in this case was dismissed by consent, on July 2nd, 1906. See also an earlier case on the same point, R. v. Staffordshire and Worcestershire Canal Co. (1901), 65 J. P. 505.

By a private Act the defendants were not to be liable "to repair or amend any part of the roads approaching to any bridge or bridges made, or to be made, over the said canal . . . beyond or further than the extremity of the wing-wall" of the bridges, but nothing therein contained was to exonerate them from repairing the bridges and the "wing-walls, ramparts, and side-banks thereof":—Held, that the liability of the defendants to repair was limited to the bridges, and included nothing else; and that they were, therefore, not liable to repair fences by the side of approaches to bridges over their canal (Att.-Gen. v. Oxford Canal Navigation (1903), 67 J. P. 130; 72 L. J. Ch. 285; 26 Digest 374, 999).

A railway company were liable under their special Act to maintain a bridge over a canal at a special height above the towing-path. Subsidence having taken place from causes beyond the control of the company, it was held that it was their duty to raise the bridge to its original height above the path (Rhymney Rail. Co. and Others v. Glamorgan Canal Navigation Co. (1904), 91 L. T. 113; 20 T. L. R. 593; 38 Digest 275, 143). In another case of subsidence, North Staffordshire Rail. Co. v. Hanley Corporation (1909), 73 J. P. 477; 26 T. L. R. 20; 38 Digest 407, 978, it was held that when a bridge over a canal becomes so ruinous that reconstruction is necessary, there is no obligation upon the person who has to reconstruct to do so at such a height as to avoid causing a nuisance to users of the canal. This case was discussed and explained in G. W. R. v. Monmouthshire C. C. (1929), 94 J. P. 6; 27 L. G. R. 569; Digest Supp., in which it was held that a covenant "to maintain" a bridge over a canal under a contract does not entail an obligation to raise it so as to avoid interference with traffic on the canal when its level has been brought down in consequence of a subsidence. In that case, unlike the Hanley Case, the bridge was not in such a condition as to require reconstruction.

For a case in which a canal company, liable to repair a bridge carrying a highway, were held to be only liable to keep the bridge in repair in the condition in which it was made in accordance with the requirements of the Commissioners as originally provided in a private Act of 1791, see Sharpness New Docks, etc. Co. v. Att.-Gen., [1915] A. C. 654; 79 J. P. 305; 26 Digest 581, 2716. The decision in this case was followed and applied in the case of a railway bridge in Att.-Gen. v. G. N. Rail. Co., [1916] 2 A. C. 356; 80 J. P. 337; 26 Digest 582, 2719. In that case it was held that where a public highway is carried over a railway constructed under the provisions of s. 46 of the Railway Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 47) the railway company is liable to maintain the bridge in the condition as to strength in relation to traffic in which it was at the date of completion, and is not liable to improve and strengthen the bridge to make it sufficient to bear the ordinary traffic of the district which may reasonably be expected to pass over it according to the standard of the present day. These decisions were also followed in Att.-Gen. for Ireland v. Lagan Navigation Co., [1924] A. C. 877; 88 J. P. 162; 26 Digest 582, 2717. In that case a provision in a local Act required the company to maintain and keep all bridges made or constructed by them "in good and substantial and serviceable repair, and in an efficient state for all the purposes thereof and of the traffic on the same." It was held that this provision imposed an obligation only to maintain a bridge in a fit state for the ordinary traffic at the date of the passing of the Act.

All these decisions were considered and applied in Manchester Corporation v. Audenshaw U. D. C. and Denton U. D. C., [1928] Ch. 763; 92 J. P. 163; Digest Supp. In that case the plaintiff corporation had under a local Act constructed a road which was "at all times thereafter to be maintained" at the expense of the corporation. The Court of Appeal held that the corporation were liable to maintain the road in the state in which it was at the date of its completion in 1878, and that that liability continued notwithstanding the change in the nature and volume of the traffic upon the road.

In Swan v. Southern Rail. Co., [1939] 2 K. B. 560; [1939] 2 All E. R. 794; Digest Supp., where a passenger was injured owing to the defective state of the road on and the approaches to a bridge over a railway which the railway company had constructed in accordance with the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, s. 46 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 47), it was held (1) that the company had not the exemption of the surveyor of highways at common law and were liable in damages although the injury had resulted from nonfeasance only; (2) that the statutory duty of maintaining the bridge did not make the railway company a public authority within the meaning of the Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893, post, p. 4875; and (3) that the duty of the defendants in respect of the bridge and approaches was to maintain them in a condition suited to such traffic as existed when the road was made in 1856. See also Guilfoyle v. Port of London Authority, [1932] 1 K. B. 336; 95 J. P. 217; Digest Supp.

Reference may be made to In re Woking U. D. C. (Basingstoke Canal) Act, 1911, [1914] 1 Ch. 300; 78 J. P. 81; 40 Digest 305, 2620, for a decision as to liability under a local Act in respect of bridges across an abandoned canal. And see also Att.-Gen. v. N. E. Rail. Co., [1915] 1 Ch. 905; 79 J. P. 500; 38 Digest 306, 316. In that case a swing bridge had to be provided by a Navigation Co. and on the merger of the navigation company with a railway company it was proposed to construct a fixed bridge instead of a swing bridge. It was held that as the swing bridge was clearly for the benefit of the public an injunction would be granted to restrain the alteration.

As to when a bridge has been "taken over" by a local authority so as to relieve an estate owner of liability to repair a bridge under a contract with the canal company over whose canal the bridge had been carried, see Regent's Canal & Docks Co. v. Gibbons, [1925] 1 K. B. 81; 89 J. P. 4; 26 Digest 579, 2696. When a road over a bridge is declared a highway repairable under s. 152, post, p. 4423, the bridge vests in the highway authority unless they can enforce the liability to repair against some one else (Att.-Gen. v. Hornsey B. C., [1927] 1 Ch. 331; 91 J. P. 61; Digest Supp.).

The provisions of this section might apply to the towing-path of a canal. Such Towing a towing-path may be dedicated as a highway (Grand Junction Canal Co. v. Petty paths, (1888), 21 Q. B. D. 273; 53 J. P. 692; 26 Digest 290, 226). The question to be determined when a dedication by a statutory body is alleged is: "Would a dedication of the land have been inconsistent with the enjoyment by the statutory body of the land for the purposes of their undertaking?" This question has been considered in the following cases: North London Rail. Co. v. St. Mary, Islington (Vestry) (1872), 37 J. P. 341; 27 L. T. 672; 26 Digest 276, 138, and Taff Vale Rail. Co. v. Pontypridd U. D. C. (1905), 69 J. P. 351; 93 L. T. 126; 26 Digest 291, 228 (bridges over railways); Stretford U. D. C. v. Manchester South Junction and Altrincham Rail. Co. (1903), 68 J. P. 59; 19 T. L. R. 546; 38 Digest 251, 14 (railway property); Att.-Gen. v. L. & S. W. Rail. Co. (1905), 69 J. P. 110; 21 T. L. R. 220; 26 Digest 292, 239; Arnold v. Morgan, [1911] 2 K. "County bridges" and
thereof.

(e) A bridge may be a "county bridge," whether it be repairable by the inhabitants of the county or by an individual (R. v. Chart and Longbridge (1870), L. R. 1 C. C. R. 237; 34 J. P. 454; 26 Digest 571, 2631). In general, however, a county bridge is repairable by the inhabitants of the county. Where a bridge carrying a public highway was built prior to the Bridges Act, 1803 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 255), the county council can only avoid their common law liability to repair it by pleading and proving that the liability to repair is upon some other person (Att.-Gen. v. West Riding of Yorks C. C. (1903), 67 J. P. 173; 19 T. L. R. 192; 26 Digest 572, 2638; R. v. Norfolk C. C. (1910), 26 T. L. R. 269; 26 Digest 304, 352; R. v. Berks C. C. (1901), Times, June 24th). By the Highway Act, 1835, s. 21 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 58), "if any bridge shall hereafter be built which bridge shall be liable by law to be repaired by and at the expense of any country or part of any county, then and in such case all highways leading to, passing over, and next adjoining to such bridge, shall be from time to time repaired by the parish, person, or body politic or corporate, or trustees of a turnpike road who were by law before the erection of the said bridge bound to repair the said highways: Provided nevertheless that nothing herein contained shall extend to, or be construed to extend to, exonerate or discharge any county or any part of any county from repairing or keeping in repair the walls, banks, or fences of the raised causeways and raised approaches to any such bridge or the land arches thereof." In the case of a bridge repairable by the county but built before the passing of that Act, the roadway over it and the approaches for a distance of 300 feet from each end of such bridge, are repairable by the county. See Statute of Bridges, 1530-1, s. 7 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 232). Where for any reason a bridge in a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large is not considered a county bridge, and no other persons are by usage, prescription, or statute bound to repair it, it is repairable as part of the highway by the inhabitants of the parish. By Annual Turnpike Acts Continuance Act, 1870, s. 12 (op. cit. 282), "where a turnpike road shall have become an ordinary highway all bridges which were previously repaired by the trustees of such turnpike road shall become county bridges, and shall be kept in repair accordingly: Provided that for the purposes of this Act such bridges shall be treated as if they were bridges built subsequently to the passing of the Highway Act, 1835." This section was discussed in R. v. Dorset (Inhabitants of) (1881), 45 L. T. 308; 26 Digest 574, 2660. There a toll bridge was built over a river to connect the back streets of W. with the country districts on the other side. A turnpike road was made in connection with the bridge, both bridge and road being constructed under one Act. There were separate trusts of the bridge and the road, but the trustees of the one were trustees of the other. The bridge was within the borough of W. On the expiration of the trusts the county of D., in which the bridge was situated, repaired the road, but the bridge fell into disrepair. The county was thereupon indicted for its non-repair and was found guilty:—Held, that the county was rightly convicted, for, as there was nothing in the case to cast the liability to repair on the borough, it became on the expiration of the trust a county bridge repairable by the inhabitants of the county. See, for other decisions on the section, R. v. Somerset (1878), 42 J. P. 501; 38 L. T. 452; 26 Digest 574, 2658; R. v. Buckingham County (1878), 43 J. P. 175; 26 Digest 574, 2659. Note to Section 148.

The functions of a county council with respect to the maintenance, repair and improvement of and other dealings with "county bridges" (as defined by s. 134 of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 971), in any district, may be delegated by the county council to the council of that district under s. 35, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 910.

(f) In Nutter v. Accrington L. B. (1878), 4 Q. B. D. 375; 43 J. P. 635; 26 Digest 335, 660, MELLOR, J., thought that these words did not authorise the division of the "Part of a road into longitudinal sections, so that the local board should undertake the charge street." of the footpath, and the turnpike trustees that of the roadway. But COTTON, L.J., thought otherwise.

Regulation of Streets (a) and Buildings.

149. All streets (b), being or which at any time become highways repairable by the inhabitants at large (c) within any urban district (d), and the pavements stones and other materials thereof, and all buildings implements and other things provided for the purposes thereof, shall vest in and be under the control of the urban authority (e). Vesting of streets, etc. in urban authority.

The urban authority shall (f) from time to time cause all such streets to be levelled paved metalled flagged channelled altered and repaired as occasion may require; they may from time to time cause the soil of any such street to be raised lowered or altered as they think fit (g), and may place and keep in repair fences and posts for the safety of foot passengers (h).

Any person who without the consent of the urban authority wilfully displaces or takes up (i) or who injures the pavement stones materials fences or posts of or the trees (k) in any such street shall be liable to a penalty (l) not exceeding five pounds, and to a further penalty not exceeding five shillings for every square foot of pavement stones or other materials so displaced taken up or injured; he shall also be liable in the case of any injury to trees to pay to the local authority such amount of compensation as the court may award.

It is the duty of every urban authority to make a list of all the streets in their district repairable by the inhabitants at large and allow any person to inspect this list without payment (s. 84, P. H. A., 1925; 13 Halsbury's Statutes 1153).

(a) Part II. of the P. H. A., 1907, post, p. 5042, contains several important provisions relating to highways repairable by the inhabitants at large, but they will only be operative when applied to any district by an Order of the M. of H. The provisions in question (for the full text of which see the Act, post, p. 5042), deal with the following subject-matters: Provisions of the P. H. A., 1907.

Crossing for cattle, etc. over footways (s. 18, post, p. 5044);
 Damages to footways by excavations (s. 20, post, p. 5047);
 Deposit of building materials or excavations (s. 29, post, p. 5049);
 Dangerous places to be repaired or enclosed (s. 30, post, p. 5050);
 Fencing lands adjoining streets (s. 31, post, p. 5051);
 Hoards to be securely erected (s. 32, post, p. 5052);
 Exemption of buildings of railway company and others (s. 33, post, p. 5053);
 Reference should also be made to s. 22, post, p. 5048 (buildings at corner of streets), and s. 57 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 180 (entrances to certain courts not to be closed or narrowed).

Further provisions in respect of streets are to be found in the Public Health Act, 1925, Pts. II. and VIII., the Roads Improvement Act, 1925, and the Road Traffic Act, 1930, Pt. III., all of which are set out, Vol. V., post.

Other statutory
to streets.

The Tramways Act, 1870 (ante, p. 4272), contains provisions whereby a district council may be enabled to construct and maintain a tramway within their district. Their consent is also necessary to enable other persons to obtain a Provisional Order under the Act, unless such consent is dispensed with by the Board of Trade. The Act also contains important provisions as to the right of a tramway company to interfere with roads, sewers, etc., for the purchase of the undertaking by the local authority, etc.

See also (ante, p. 4264), the Gas and Water Works Facilities Acts, 1870 and 1873, as to the necessity for the consent of the local authority for a Provisional Order under these Acts, and the Electric Lighting Acts, 1882, 1888 and 1909, post, pp. 4642, 4700, 5096; the Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899, post, p. 4949, and the Electricity Supply Acts, 1919, 1922 and 1926, post, p. 5245 and Vol. V., post, as to interference with streets under those Acts.

For the statutory provisions as to the use of locomotives and motor cars on public roads, see the Locomotive Act, 1861 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 54); the Locomotives Act, 1865 (op. cit. 59); the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 166); the Locomotives on Highways Act, 1896 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 64); the Locomotives Act, 1898 (op. cit. 67); the Motor Car Act, 1903 (op. cit. 75); the Ministry of Transport Act, 1919, post, p. 5195, the Roads Act, 1920, and the Road Traffic Act, 1930, Vol. V., post. The Acts of 1865 and 1903, so far as not repealed, were made permanent by the Expiring Laws Act, 1922 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1178).

(b) See the definition of street in s. 4, ante, p. 4336. See also the notes to s. 144, ante, p. 4350, and note (b) to the next section, post, p. 4390.

(c) For notes as to what are "highways repairable by the inhabitants at large," see notes to s. 25 of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932, ante, pp. 1947-1951. And see further the next section, note (c), post, p. 4393.

Rural
districts.

(d) This section is not applied to county councils by the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 883, and is, therefore, not applicable in rural districts. "County roads" in rural districts (i.e., all highways repairable by the inhabitants at large) are, however, vested in the county council by s. 29 (2) of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903.

Ownership and statutory "vesting" of soil of streets.

(e) The presumption is that any man in possession of a plot of land adjoining a highway is in possession of the soil of the highway usque ad medium filum. See the cases collected in Mappin Brothers v. Liberty, [1903] 1 Ch. 118; 67 J. P. 91; 26 Digest 322, 559 (where, however, the presumption was held to be rebutted), and London City Land Tax Commissioners v. Central London Rail. Co., [1913] A. C. 364; 77 J. P. 289; 26 Digest 321, 540; Maclaren v. Att.-Gen. for Quebec, [1914] A. C. 258; 44 Digest 91, 719 v.

The words in s. 149, shall vest in, are future in signification, but as a similar provision was contained in previous Public Health Acts, the effect of the words in question was merely to continue the state of things which at the time of the passing of the Act existed in districts already constituted. But while the property mentioned in the section passed to the authority, it must be remembered that all outstanding liabilities also passed.

Under s. 29 (2) of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903, "county roads" other than "county roads" in urban districts of a population of more than 20,000 which have been claimed or are deemed to have been claimed by the district council under s. 32, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 906, are vested in the county council. The "county roads" in urban districts consist of all classified roads and roads which were "main roads" and roads which in future become county roads.

As to the meaning of the words "vest in," see the following cases: In Hinde v. Chorlton (1866), L. R. 2 C. P., at p. 116, WILLES, J., referring to the words vest in in a local Act, said: "There is a whole series of authorities in which words which in terms vested the freehold in persons appointed to perform some public duties, such as canal companies and boards of health, have been held satisfied by giving to such persons the control over the soil which was necessary to the carrying out of the objects of the Act without giving them the freehold. In Stracey v. Nelson (1844), 12 M. & W. 535; 8 J. P. 677; 41 Digest 52, 381, it was provided by an Act that certain lands should be vested in the Commissioners of Sewers, and the court held, notwithstanding, that only the control over the land, and not the freehold, passed to them." This decision was followed in a recent case (Nesbitt v. Mablethorpe U. D. C., [1918] 2 K. B. 1; 82 J. P. 161; 41 Digest 53, 383), and the case of West Norfolk Farmers' Manure Co. v. Archdale (1886), 16 Q. B. D. 754; 50 J. P. 500; 41 Digest 53, 382, was distinguished. The Mablethorpe Case was a decision as to the ownership of sandhills and as to the acquisition of title by possession by the exercise of acts of ownership thereon. In Bagshaw v. Buxton L. B. (1875), 1 Ch. D., at p. 222; 26 Digest 449, 1652, JESSEL, M.R., said that by the term vested he meant vested sub modo, as far as a highway can be, not necessarily giving to the local authority the right to the soil. The words vest in do not give the property in the street, but merely the property in the surface of the street, and in such part of the soil as is or can be used for the ordinary purposes of a street (Coverdale v. Charlton (1878), 3 Q. B. D. 376; 4 Q. B. D. 104; 43 J. P. 268; 26 Digest 329, 616). In that case, by an award made under an inclosure Act of 1766, two private roads, E. and H., were set out. About 1818 E. became a public highway. Down to 1863 the surveyor of highways for the parish had from time to time let the pasturage upon E. and H. to various persons. A local board was formed in 1863 for the parish, and the board in 1876 let the pasturage on E. and H. to the plaintiff. He thereupon commenced to depasture the herbage with his cattle. The defendant interfered with the plaintiff's enjoyment of the pasturage. It was held that the property in the soil of E., being a street, so far vested in the local board that they could demise the right of pasturage thereon to the plaintiff, who was entitled to maintain an action. It was held also that the local board having no power to demise H., being a private way, the plaintiff had not sufficient exclusive possession as occupier to enable him to maintain an action. In a subsequent case, JAMES, L.J., explained this decision as to the meaning of the words vest in, as follows: "What that case decided, and all that it was necessary to decide in that case, was that something more than an easement passed to the local board, and that they had some right of property in and on, and in respect of the soil, which would enable them as owners to bring a possessory action against trespassers. Now what was that something more? It is impossible to read any of the three judgments delivered on that occasion without seeing that in the view of the learned judges the soil and freehold in the ordinary sense of the words 'soil and freehold,' that is to say, the soil from the centre of the earth up to an unlimited extent in space, did not pass, and that no stratum or portion of the soil, defined or ascertainable like a vein of coal, or stratum of ironstone, or anything of that kind, passed, but that the board had only the surface, and with the surface such right below the surface as was essential to the maintenance, and occupation, and exclusive possession of the street, and the making and maintaining of the street for the use of the public" (Rolls v. St. George-the-Martyr, Southwark (Vestry of) (1880), 14 Ch. D. 785; 44 J. P. 680; 26 Digest 330, 627). See also Stillwell v. New Windsor Corporation, cited ante, p. 4336.

Where a street was carried across a railway in a cutting by a bridge erected under the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ss. 46—51 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 47—49), it was held that the statutory vesting of streets in the vestry did not give them any property in the bridge or its fences, but merely vested in them the carriage-way and footpaths and the materials of which these were made (G. E. Rail. Co. v. Hackney Board of Works, ante, p. 706). This case was distinguished in Att.-Gen. v. Hornsey B. C., [1927] 1 Ch. 331; 91 J. P. 61; Digest Supp. In that case estate owners in developing an estate constructed streets which were carried over a river by bridges. The streets were subsequently made up and taken over by the local authority under s. 152, post. It was held that having regard to the definition of "street" in s. 4, ante, the local authority were liable under the section in the text to repair the fabric of the bridges as part of the streets. In the earlier case of Regent's Canal & Docks Co. v. Gibbons, [1925] 1 K. B. 81; 89 J. P. 4; 26 Digest 579, 2696, SWIFT, J., had held in similar circumstances that the estate owner was relieved of the liability to repair the bridge "until taken over by the local authority," but declined to determine the point as to whether there was a liability upon the local authority under this section. In Sydney (Municipal Council of) v. Young, [1898] A. C. 457; 26 Digest 329, 616 i, it was held that an authority's statutory property in a street did not entitle them to compensation when part of it was appropriated for the purpose of a street tramway. In Foley's Charity Trustees v. Dudley

Section 149.

Corporation, [1910] 1 K. B. 317; 74 J. P. 41; 26 Digest 324, 581, it was held that an urban authority have a determinable statutory fee simple in such portion of the soil of a road as is vested in them at all, and the defendants were held liable as terre-tenants to pay a rent-charge created (as the court inferred) on the original acquisition of the site of the road by turnpike trustees. In Hertfordshire County Council v. Lea Sand, Ltd. (1933), 98 J. P. 109; 32 L. G. R. 279; Digest Supp., it was held that vesting of a public carriage road, built upon a raised viaduct resting upon open arches and descending to the ground level upon embankments, included (1) the whole masonry and structure of the viaduct together with such soil as it actually occupied; (2) the soil of the embankments; but not (3) the soil lying beneath and between the arches of the viaduct. It was further held that the authority was entitled to a right of access to the latter at all times for the purpose of inspection and maintenance, which right was not forfeited by laches or acquiescence on the part of the authority where it was necessary for the authority to perform its statutory duties.

In Cavan C. C. and Bailieborough R. D. C. v. Kane, [1910] 2 I. R. 644; [1913] 2 I. R. 250; 26 Digest 470, t., it was held that the plaintiff councils suing together could recover as "special damage," in respect of a public nuisance, the cost of repairing a highway cut up by the defendant's traction engine. Cf. Louth U. D. C. v. West, cited on p. 4364, ante; Kilkenny C. C. v. Hayden (1911), 46 Ir. L. T. 95; Donegal C. C. v. Robinson (1914), 48 Ir. L. T. 182; and Glasgow Corporation v. Barclay, Curle & Co. (1923), 87 J. P. 160; 93 L. J. (P. C.) 1; 26 Digest 462, s. In Wednesbury Corporation v. Lodge Holes Colliery Co., Ltd., [1907] 1 K. B. 78; 71 J. P. 73; [1908] A. C. 323; 72 J. P. 417; 26 Digest 331, 630, a highway vested in the plaintiffs subsided in consequence of the working of the defendants' coal mines. The plaintiffs raised the highway to its former level, and sought to recover the expenses of so doing from the defendants, who contended that they were only liable to pay the cost of making the highway as commodious to the public as it was before, without raising it to its former level. It was held by the Court of Appeal that the plaintiffs, acting bona fide in the interests of the public, were entitled to raise the highway to its former level, and to recover the cost of so doing from the defendants. The House of Lords, however, held that they were not necessarily entitled to raise the road to the old level regardless of cost; and that, as in the view of the court they had acted under the mistaken belief that they were bound or at least entitled to so restore it at the colliery company's expense, and, so thinking, had not considered whether it was reasonably necessary to do so in the interests of the public, they were not entitled to recover more than the cost of making the highway as commodious to the public, within reasonable limits, as it was before. See also as to the meaning of the word "vest," Ystradgynog and Pontypridd Main Sewerage Board v. Bensted, [1906] 1 K. B. 294; 70 J. P. 240; [1907] A. C. 264; 71 J. P. 425.

vesting on overhead wires, tunnels,
pipes, etc.

The vesting of the streets in the urban authority under this section does not confer upon them such a property in the streets as to entitle them to maintain an action for an injunction against the erection of a telephone wire across a street, such wire being erected at a great height and causing no appreciable danger to the public or to the traffic in the street (Wandsworth District Board of Works v. United Telephone Co. (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 904; 48 J. P. 676; 26 Digest 328, 607). A road was constructed by turnpike trustees under a local Act of 1826. The site or part of the site of the road where the wires of an electric light company crossed it was in 1828 conveyed to the trustees in fee simple under the Turnpike Roads Act, 1822 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 276). The company carried across the road at a height of thirty-four feet two guide or supporting wires, intended to support a cable carrying a supply of electricity to the house of a customer. The road became vested in an urban sanitary authority under s. 149. It was held that the fact that originally the fee simple was conveyed to the trustees was no evidence that the soil ad inferos and the air ad superos were prior to or at the date of action brought, necessary for "street purposes" and so vested in the authority, and that the extent of the "area of user" is a question of fact; and that, so long as the company did not encroach upon that area, they were entitled to carry their wires across the street (Finchley Electric Light Co. v. Finchley U. D. C., [1903] 1 Ch. 437; 67 J. P. 97; 26 Digest 329, 608). In Postmaster-General v. Hutchings, [1916] 1 K. B. 774; 80 J. P. 246; 42 Digest 892, 38, it was held that the freeholder of land over which highways which had not been taken over by the local authority ran was not entitled to attach a condition requiring payment to his consent for the erection of telegraph wires over such highways. Where an authority contracted with an electric lighting company for the lighting of the district, an injunction was granted to restrain a defendant claiming to own the subsoil of half a road, from interfering with poles erected in the road and electric wires. It was held that the road being a street within the above section, the local board were entitled to more than the surface; they had an area of user necessary for the exercise of their statutory powers, e.g., of lighting the district, and their contractors could justify under them (Fareham L. B. v. Smith (1891), 90 L. T. Jo. 467; and cf. Escott v. Newport Corporation, ante, p. 29). As to the construction by the local authority of a urinal partly below the level of the street, see Tunbridge Wells (Mayor, etc. of) v. Baird, [1896] A. C. 434; 60 J. P. 788; 38 Digest 230, 607, and Westminster Corporation v. L. & N. W. Rail. Co., [1905] A. C. 426; 69 J. P. 425; 26 Digest 516, 2194 (as to the metropolis). It was in the first of these cases held that the section does not vest the subsoil in the urban authority, and consequently that the urban authority could not excavate the soil and construct lavatories below the surface. See now, however, the P. H. A., 1936, s. 87, ante, p. 276. The statutory vesting of a road does not prevent the owner of the subsoil from tunnelling through it, provided that in an urban district the written consent of the local authority is first obtained (see s. 26, ante, p. 4346) (Mayor, etc. of Poplar v. Millwall Dock Co. (1904), 68 J. P. 339; 26 Digest 330, 622; cf. Walker U. D. C. v. Wigham Richardson & Co., Ltd. (1901), 86 J. P. 152; 85 L. T. 579; 26 Digest 328, 603; Cunliffe v. Whalley (1851), 13 Beav. 411; 26 Digest 326, 592; Cattle v. Stockton Waterworks Co. (1875), L. R. 10 Q. B. 453; 39 J. P. 791; Schweder v. Worthing Gas Light and Coke Co., [1912] 1 Ch. 83; 76 J. P. 3; 25 Digest 473, 23); and it has been held that an urban authority could not authorise private persons to lay pipes for trade purposes in a street vested in them, though the pipes were in the macadam or made ground of the street (Salt Union, Ltd. v. Harvey (1897), 61 J. P. 375; 13 T. L. R. 297; 26 Digest 326, 595; and cf. Goodson v. Richardson (1874), 9 Ch. App. 221; 38 J. P. 436; 26 Digest 326, 588; Wood v. Ealing Tenants, Ltd., [1907] 2 K. B. 390; 71 J. P. 456). See also, hereon, Att.-Gen. v. Barker, infra, and Att.-Gen. v. Mayo C. C., [1902] 1 I. R. 13; 26 Digest 451, l. Where an electric lighting company had wrongfully, and without authority, broken the surface of a street, and laid pipes and wires beneath it, it was held that they were not guilty of a continuing trespass against the local authority by allowing the pipes and wires to remain beneath the surface, and a mandatory injunction to compel the removal of the pipes and wires was refused (St. Mary, Battersea (Vestry of) v. County of London and Brush Provincial Electric Lighting Co., [1899] 1 Ch. 474; 26 Digest 328, 602). If a right to open the street for repairing mains is claimed, the local authority may obtain an injunction. See Hyde (Mayor, etc. of) v. Oldham, etc. Electric Tramway Co., Ltd. (1900), 64 J. P. 596; 16 T. L. R. 492. A suit by a telephone company against a local authority to recover damages for cutting down and removing telephone wires stretched across a public street, the claim being based on an alleged statutory right, failed on the ground that the company was not authorised by statute so to place their wires (National Telephone Co. v. St. Peter Port (Constables of), [1900] A. C. 317; 42 Digest 896, 63).

Presumably the "vesting" of a street extends to the entire highway which the public have the right to use, which, prima facie, includes not only the via trita but the entire space between the fences; see as to the width of highways, R. v. United Kingdom Telegraph Co. (1862), 2 B. & S. 647, n.; 26 Digest 313, 452, and cases cited therewith in notes to the L. G. A., 1888, s. 11 (1), post, p. 4726.

An authority who erect in a highway, though vested in them, a stand to view a procession are liable as for a nuisance to a householder whose view is obstructed (Campbell v. Paddington Borough Council, [1911] 1 K. B. 869; 75 J. P. 277; 26 Digest 429, 1483).

As to how much of a "county road" vests in a county council under the L. G. A., Vesting of 1888, s. 11, post, p. 4726, as amended by the L. G. A., 1929, Pt. III., Vol. V. and "county roads." 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903, see Curtis v. Kesteven C. C. (1890), 45 Ch. D. 504; 26 Digest 391, 1174, and Reigate Corporation v. Surrey County Council, [1928] Ch. 359; 92 J. P. 46; Digest Supp. And see Att.-Gen. v. Barker (1900), 83 L. T. 245; 26 Digest 414, 1334, where FARWELL, J., said: "In my opinion Parliament has vested the soil of the roads in them (the county council) qua roads, and simply to the extent necessary for the purpose of preserving and maintaining and using them as roads."

Section 149.

The Irish courts have held that a county council cannot legally sanction the erection of a permanent structure not authorised by the necessities of the public service along or upon a county road (Att.-Gen. v. Mayo C. C., [1902] 1 I. R. 13; 26 Digest 451, l.), and in Att.-Gen. v. Barker (1900), 83 L. T. 245; 26 Digest 414, 1334, it was held that a tramway laid across a county road by persons acting without statutory powers, and found to be a nuisance, was unlawful even though (as was assumed) it had been laid and continued under the licence of the county council. Cf. Matson v. Baird & Co. (1878), 3 App. Cas. 1082; 43 J. P. 90. Notwithstanding the text, a "county road" in an urban district is vested in the county council, unless the urban authority have "claimed" the road under s. 32 of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 906.

Minerals
beneath

By the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, s. 27 (post, p. 4611), notwithstanding anything contained in the P. H. A., 1848, s. 68, or in the P. H. A., 1875, s. 149, all mines and minerals of any description whatsoever under any dis-turptured road or highway which has or shall become vested in an urban sanitary authority by virtue of the said sections, or either of them, shall belong to the person who would be entitled thereto in case such road or highway had not become so vested, and the person entitled to any such mine or minerals shall have the same powers of working and of getting the same or other minerals as if the road or highway had not become vested in the urban sanitary authority, but so nevertheless that in such working and getting no damage shall be done to the road or highway. This section extends to the Isle of Wight and South Wales. As to the rights of the local authority under the latter part of this section, see Att.-Gen. v. Conduit Colliery Co., [1895] 1 Q. B. 301; 59 J. P. 70; 26 Digest 331, 629; Wednesbury Corporation v. Lodge Holes Colliery Co., ante, p. 4378.

Divestment, if highway
or diverted.

A plaintiff having, with leave of the Metropolitan Board of Works, made a new street over his land, on which were two old streets, N. and A., orders were made at quarter sessions for stopping up part of N. street as unnecessary, and for diverting a part of A. street and opening the new street in lieu thereof. The vestry of the parish gave notice to the plaintiff that he must not convert to his own use the stopped up part of N. nor stop up A., or convert any part of the soil of it to his own use until he had purchased the same from the vestry. It was held by the Court of Appeal that under the Metropolis Management Act, 1855, s. 96 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 907), all streets being, for the time being, highways, were vested in the vestry, but only so long as they were highways; and that when they ceased to be highways by being legally stopped up or diverted, the interest of the vestry determined. It was therefore held that the plaintiff was entitled to convert to his own use the stopped up part of N., and the diverted part of A., subject, as to A., to his first obtaining a certificate (under the Highway Act, 1835, s. 91 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 103)) that the substituted street had been completed and put into good condition and repair (Rolls v. St. George-the-Martyr, Southwark, ante, p. 4377). See also the observations of Lord HERSHELL on Coverdale v. Charlton in Tunbridge Wells (Mayor, etc. of) v. Baird, ante, p. 278.

It was held that a rent-charge issuing from lands adjoining certain roads, and granted at a time when such roads were private in return for the use thereof and of a sewer, was not determined by the roads becoming highways repairable by the inhabitants at large and the sewer becoming vested in and discontinued by the local authority; and that it was immaterial that the grantee of the rent-charge had covenanted to keep the roads and sewer in repair (Merrett v. Bridges (1883), 47 J. P. 775; 26 Digest 305, 367).

repair, its
and extent.

(f) This section is imperative as to keeping in repair. S. 299, post, p. 4508, does not apply to default of this character. That section is now, however, repealed, except as regards county boroughs, by the L. G. A., 1929. Under s. 57 (3), Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 923 (now replaced for this purpose by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 322, ante, p. 665), in relation to district councils, action might be taken on the ground that there had been default "in discharging a function relating to public health which it is their duty to discharge"; moreover, as by s. 144, ante, p. 4350, the urban authority are the highway authority within their district, proceedings to compel repairs may be taken under the Highway Acts.

The duty to repair a highway entails as a general rule an obligation to keep it in such repair as to be reasonably passable for the ordinary traffic of the neighbourhood at all seasons of the year (R. v. High Hadden (1859), 1 F. & F. 678; 26 Digest 353, 789, per BLACKBURN, J.; Mildred v. Weaver (1862), 3 F. & F. 30; 26 Digest 299, 293, per ERLE, C.J.; Burgess v. Northwich L. B. (1880), 6 Q. B. D. 264; 45 J. P. 256; 26 Digest 335, 661, per LINDLEY, J.; R. v. Henley (1847), 2 Cox C. C. 334; 26 Digest 352, 786). In Attorney-General and Ormerod Taylor & Son, Ltd. v. Todmorden Corporation, [1937] 4 All E. R. 588; Digest Supp., a highway, vested in the defendant corporation and situated on an incline, was supported by a retaining wall which was extended upwards above the road to the height of about two feet six inches as a fence wall. The whole wall was a dry wall, the stones not being cemented together, but there was evidence of minor collapses in recent years. It was held that the wall was not a public or private nuisance as there was no indication that it was in a dangerous condition, and further that a highway authority's non-liability for non-feasance has not been altered as to main roads by the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 883, their sole duty was to keep the wall in a state of repair sufficient to support the highway and not to reconstruct it in accordance with the best modern engineering practice. An authority ought to alter the standard of a road from time to time as the ordinary traffic upon it increases or alters (Chichester Corporation v. Foster, [1906] 1 K. B. 167; 70 J. P. 73; 26 Digest 431, 1500; Kilkenny C. C. v. Hayden (1911), 46 Ir. L. T. 95; Donegal C. C. v. Robinson (1914), 48 Ir. L. T. 182; Sharpness New Docks, etc. Co. v. Att.-Gen., Att.-Gen. v. G. N. Rail. Co., Att.-Gen. v. Lagan Navigation Co.; and Manchester Corporation v. Audenshaw, U. D. C., p. 4373, ante). But, as against the owner of the soil, the mere common law powers of surveyors of highways do not justify an authority in converting a path into one of a totally different kind (e.g., by making cuttings and bridges), under the guise of repairing it (Rudcliffe v. Marsden U. D. C. (1908), 72 J. P. 475; 26 Digest 353, 794). The mode of repairing within legal limits is in the discretion of the authority (R. v. Claxby (1855), 19 J. P. 295; 24 L. J. Q. B. 223; 26 Digest 352, 788; Att.-Gen. v. Staffordshire C. C., [1905] 1 Ch. 336; 69 J. P. 97; 26 Digest 353, 797; R. v. Wilts and Berks Canal Co., [1912] 3 K. B. 623; 77 J. P. 24; 16 Digest 295, 1082; R. v. Clare C. C., [1904] 2 I. R. 569; 26 Digest 375, q). But their powers under the section must be exercised in a reasonable manner, as in the exercise of all statutory powers (Howard-Flanders v. Maldon Corporation (1926), 90 J. P. 97; 135 L. T. 6; Digest Supp.). The court refused to quash resolutions of a corporation for the payment of money for paving a road with tarmac, the corporation having bonâ fide arrived at the conclusion that the work would improve the highway for use by the inhabitants of, and visitors to, the borough, although the immediate occasion for the work was a projected meeting of the Automobile Club for motor car speed trials (R. v. Brighton Corporation, Ex parte Shoesmith (1907), 71 J. P. 265; 96 L. T. 762; 26 Digest 386, 1148).

The obligation imposed by s. 149 to repair streets repairable by the inhabitants was held not to impliedly repeal a section of a local Act under which an authority might call upon the frontagers of any street (whether so repairable or not) which was not completed to their satisfaction to complete it, and upon default of the frontagers might do the work and recover the expense from them (Ashton-under-Lyne (Corporation of) v. Pugh, and other cases cited therewith, on p. 4394, post).

There is in this Act no section like s. 53 of the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 547), which (where in force) enables an authority to charge on frontagers the cost of making good any public highway, even though repairable by the inhabitants, if it has never previously been made good. See as to it, R. v. G. W. Rail. Co. (1859), 28 L. J. M. C. 246; 26 Digest 519, 2208; Portsmouth Corporation v. Smith (1885), 10 App. Cas. 364; 49 J. P. 676; 26 Digest 519, 2209; Crumph v. Chorley Corporation (1908), 72 J. P. 334; 98 L. T. 805; 26 Digest 520, 2210.

Local authorities have no express statutory authority for the execution of sea defence works. Numerous loans are, however, raised by the councils of coastal works. towns for the purpose with the sanction of the Minister of Health. The view taken is that a local authority are empowered to construct such works wherever necessary for the protection of public highways vested in them or of property belonging to them. An instructive report by one of the Ministry's engineering inspectors was circulated in 1925 which is reproduced in Vol. III., ante, p. 3718. See also notes to s. 11, L. G. A., 1888, post, p. 4726, as to the duty of a local authority as regards the protection of a county road in certain circumstances.

Raising, lowering, or altering streets.

No action lies in respect of authorised works
executed.

(g) Boulton v. Crouther (1824), 2 B. & C. 703 ; 26 Digest 334, 657, established the principle that where a public body have conferred upon them by statute power to execute works for the public good, they are not liable to be sued in respect of damage which they cause to private individuals in the due and careful exercise of those powers. It was decided with reference to the Turnpike Roads Act, 1822, s. 83, which authorised the trustees to divert, shorten, alter, or improve the course or path of any of the roads under their management, and to divert, etc. any roads through or over any private lands, tendering or making satisfaction to the owners thereof and persons interested therein for the damage sustained thereby. It was held that under this clause the trustees were authorised to lower hills and raise hollows, and were not liable to an action for consequential injury resulting from their altering the level of the road opposite the entrance to certain premises. Where a local Act empowered a council to alter the level of any street, it was held that they had not exceeded their powers by erecting a bridge in the line of a street over a canal (Beaver v. Mayor, etc. of Manchester (1857), 8 E. & B. 44 ; 26 Digest 269, 91). In another case where an action was brought against a local board for lowering a highway and thereby obstructing the access to a house, the court held that the plaintiff had no right of action (Bold v. Williams (1857), 21 J. P. N. 84 ; 26 Digest 335, 658). In Wedmore v. Bristol Corporation (1862), 7 L. T. 459 ; 26 Digest 334, 650, an injunction to restrain the raising of a footway was refused though damage was shown, there being statutory power to alter the level of the footpath. See, however, as to compensation, post, p. 4383.

A highway, forming one of the approaches to a bridge, subsidised by reason of pumping operations. The roadway over the bridge was vested in the county council, who resolved to raise the highway to its original level. A frontager sought to restrain the raising of the highway so as to interfere with the access to his premises, but the injunction was refused (Atherton v. Cheshire C. C. (1895), 60 J. P. 6 ; 26 Digest 334, 655).

In Attorney-General and Ormerod Taylor & Son, Ltd. v. Todmorden Corporation, ante, p. 4381, in the course of adapting the road to modern traffic conditions, the corporation had raised the level of its surface, and it was contended that this had increased the pressure on the wall which was an act of misfeasance when the wall had not been strengthened. It was held that it was not an act of misfeasance as no proof had been given that the wall had been weakened in any way and the reduction in height of the fence wall did not amount to such an act.

A district board in the metropolis was held entitled to lower the surface of a street without making a corresponding alteration in the position of water-pipes in the street (Southwark and Vauxhall Water Co. v. Wandsworth District Board, [1898] 2 Ch. 603 ; 62 J. P. 756 ; 26 Digest 488, 1997). And see Ferrar v. London Commissioners of Sewers (1869), L. R. 4 Ex. 227 ; East Freemanle (Mayor of) v. Annois, [1902] A. C. 213 ; 26 Digest 455, 1711 ; Ash v. Great Northern, Piccadilly, etc. Rail. Co. (1903), 67 J. P. 417 ; 19 T. L. R. 639 ; 38 Digest 46, 274.

But an authority would not be permitted to so alter the level of a street as to cause unnecessary damage, for (although there may be a compensation section in a statute) a private individual is not restricted to his right to compensation if the authority exercise their statutory powers unreasonably (Roberts v. Charing Cross, Euston and Hampstead Rail. Co. (1903), 87 L. T. 732 ; 19 T. L. R. 160 ; 42 Digest 723, 1423). A local board in repairing and improving a road raised a footpath by its side a few inches, and the effect was to prevent water which fell upon the space between a warehouse of the plaintiff, in which needles were stored, and the road from draining into the road. On bill filed by the plaintiff, it was held that the board had no right to make improvements in a way calculated to cause unnecessary damage to him, that the evil complained of was one of easy remedy, and that the case was not one for pecuniary compensation ; a mandatory injunction was granted to prevent the board from allowing such water to remain dammed up to the injury of the plaintiff (Milward v. Redditch L. B. (1873), 21 W. R. 429 ; 26 Digest 334, 651). And see Shill v. Gloucestershire C. C., (1893), Times, October 30th, and Rockford v. Essex C. C. (1915), 85 L. J. Ch. 281 ; 14 L. G. R. 33 ; 26 Digest 407, 1288.

Where a local authority under the powers of this section widened a narrow lane, on one side of which was a raised footpath and on the other a wider footpath on the same level as the carriage-way, by entirely removing the raised footpath so as to leave the approach to plaintiff's premises more dangerous and less convenient than before, it was held that the local authority had exercised their powers arbitrarily, carelessly, or oppressively, and that an action lay (Howard-Flanders v. Maldon Corporation (1926), 90 J. P. 97; 135 L. T. 6; Digest Supp.).

Note to
Section 149.

A line of kerbing ran across a street above the plaintiffs' premises and guided surface water flowing out of a cross road to the plaintiffs' side of the street, and so past their premises. The authority substituted a retaining wall for the kerbing. Owing to the wrongful act of third parties on land over which the authority had no control, an unusual flow of water ran down the road and did damage to the plaintiffs' premises. It was held that the authority were not liable; the damage was occasioned by the unexpected flow of water for which they were not responsible, and they were not negligent in not so building the wall that it could not divert towards the plaintiffs' premises a flow which they had no reason to foresee (Ely Brewery Co. v. Pontypridd U. D. C. (1903), 68 J. P. 3; 2 L. G. R. 40; 26 Digest 407, 1287).

S. 308 of this Act, post, p. 4515, provides, however, for the payment of compensation for injuries sustained by persons in consequence of the exercise of the powers conferred by this Act. Therefore, where an authority executed works under s. 150, post, p. 4388, and in so doing altered the level of the street so as to make the access to one of the houses in the street difficult and dangerous, it was held that though the owner of the house was liable to pay his proportion of the expenses, he was nevertheless entitled to compensation under the P. H. A., 1848, s. 144 (corresponding to s. 308, post, p. 4515), for the special damage he had sustained in order that his neighbours and the district generally might be benefited (R. v. Wallasey L. B. (1869), L. R. 4 Q. B. 351; 33 J. P. 677; 26 Digest 335, 659). Abutting upon a highway the plaintiff had land on which an inn and stabling had been erected. These stood back from the highway, and in front of them was an open space forming part of the same land, which had been left open to and on a level with the highway. The defendants in exercise of their powers under this section, placed kerbstones and a raised footpath at the side of the highway, leaving openings so that carriages could still pass at convenient places to and from the plaintiff's premises. It was held that he was not entitled to a mandatory injunction directing the defendants to remove the kerbstones, and that in the absence of any unreasonable conduct his remedy for any injury caused by the kerbstones would be by compensation under s. 308 (Sellers v. Matlock Bath L. B. (1885), 14 Q. B. D. 928; 26 Digest 332, 638).

The footpath of a street which was a highway and also a turnpike road within the district of a local board was altered by them under an agreement with the turnpike trustees (see s. 148, ante, p. 4369), so as to raise the level of the footpath in front of the plaintiff's house and cause him damage. It was held by BRETT and COTTON, L.JJ., reversing the judgment of the Queen's Bench Division (BRAMWELL, L.J., diss.), that a street which was also a turnpike road was not excluded by the definition (see s. 4, ante, p. 4336, from the operation of the P. H. A., 1848, s. 68 (corresponding to this section), and that the plaintiff was therefore entitled to compensation under s. 144 of that Act (Nutter v. Accrington L. B. (1878), 4 Q. B. D. 375; 43 J. P. 635; affirmed in H. L. (1880), 43 L. T. 710; 26 Digest 335, 660; see also as to a turnpike road being a street, Thomas v. Roberts (1878), 43 J. P. 574; 26 Digest 271, 107). In the Accrington Case the majority of the court assumed that the alteration had been done in pursuance of the P. H. A., 1848, s. 68, corresponding to this section. But in the judgment of BRAMWELL, L.J., it was pointed out that had the act complained of been done by the turnpike trustees, no action would have lain against them on the principle established in Boulton v. Crouther, supra. "And," he continued, "usually, a person cannot raise or lower a road in front of another man's park gate, and so leave his park gate high up in the air, or below the level of the road, because any person having the right is not likely to interfere with the level of the road. But supposing that the owner of property adjoining a highway is not the owner of the soil in the highway, I do not think he has any right by the law of the land to have the road continued at a particular level. It may be a great inconvenience to him, no doubt, to have the road altered if he has built with reference to the level of the road; but it may be an inconvenience to the public not to have the road altered, and I do not know that he has any vested right in the road remaining at that level to the inconvenience of all mankind." In every case, therefore, where compensation is claimed it becomes material to consider whether the act causing the injury has been done pursuant to this section, or whether it is such an act as might be justified by the board under their general powers as surveyors of highways. See upon this question, Taylor v. Meltham L. B., and cases cited therewith, on p. 4365, ante; Burgess v. Northwich L. B., and Pearsall v. Brierley Hill L. B., ante, p. 4363; Douglass v. Rhyl U. D. C., [1913] 2 Ch. 407; 77 J. P. 373; 13 Digest 386, 1135, and Rochford v. Essex C. C. (1916), 85 L. J. Ch. 281; 14 L. G. R. 33; 26 Digest 407, 1288.

An authority were empowered by a local Act to acquire a bridge with the approaches thereto, with power to "alter," etc. the bridge and the approaches thereto, and for that purpose to acquire land by agreement under and subject to the provisions of the P. H. A., 1875. The approaches to the bridge were a highway. A was the owner of a house bordering on and having a door giving access to the highway. The authority, without agreeing with A., proceeded to alter the highway and construct other works, so as to block the access to A.'s house and otherwise to interfere with her premises. A. brought an action to restrain the authority from continuing their operations. The authority alleged that A.'s only remedy was compensation under the P. H. A., 1875, s. 308, post, p. 4515. It was held that this was so, and that no action lay (Arnott v. Whitby U. D. C. (1908), 73 J. P. 64; (1909) 73 J. P. 369; 101 L. T. 14; 26 Digest 334, 656, 654).

Decisions
upon points arising under local Acts.

Section 55 of Oldham Police Act, 1826, empowered commissioners to pave in a sufficient manner, on default of the owners or occupiers for six months after notice requiring them to do so, "the public streets, ways, and passages within the said township which are now built upon, but not made, paved, flagged, cleansed, or otherwise put into good order and condition, and all such other streets, etc., which are now making or being built upon or may hereafter be made, laid out, or built upon, or such thereof respectively as may require the same." Section 56 empowered the commissioners, after such streets should have been completed as to paving, etc., and the owners should have paid the expenses, to declare them highways. Section 53 empowered and required the commissioners to cause the present and future streets to be paved, etc., and the ground or soil thereof to be raised, lowered, or altered from time to time in such manner and with such materials as the commissioners should think fit. Section 54 enabled the commissioners to declare new streets to be highways, provided they were of certain width. The Act did not contain a clause giving compensation for damages occasioned by the exercise of the powers conferred by s. 53. It was held that the general powers conferred by s. 53 were to be exercised for the repair only of pavements in old streets and streets declared to be highways under the Act; that they were inconsistent with the specific powers conferred by ss. 55, 56; and that the lowering of the ground or soil of the streets described in ss. 55, 56 was an act of trespass not to be justified under s. 53 (Brown v. Clegg (1851), 16 Q. B. 681; 15 J. P. 609; 26 Digest 549, 2457).

By s. 15 of West Ham Local Board of Health Act, 1867, the local board were directed to cause offensive ditches to be cleansed, covered, or filled up; and s. 16 empowered them to cause the ditches at the sides of or across public roads to be filled up, and to substitute pipe and other drains, and from time to time to amend the same; and the surface of the land gained by filling up such ditches might, if the board thought fit, be thrown into the roads and ways, and be repairable as part thereof. The plaintiff was owner of a close adjoining a public highway, and between the close and the highway was a strip of land averaging nine feet in width. Upon the strip of land ran a ditch, the bank of which, on the plaintiff's side, was three feet in width, and covered with grass, and the bank on the roadside was one foot in width, and covered with grass. At the side of the road were posts and rails above two feet high. The plaintiff and his predecessors had usually repaired the posts and rails, but on two or three occasions the surveyors of the highways and the local board had repaired them without the plaintiff's knowledge. The board having removed the posts and rails, and covered the ditch, it was held that they had no power to do so, the ditch not being "at the side of a public road" within s. 16, and presumably belonging to the plaintiff as owner of the adjoining land (Tutill v. West Ham L. B. (1873), L. R. 8 C. P. 447; 37 J. P. 455; 26 Digest 323, 565. Cf. Chorley Corporation v. Nightingale, [1906] 2 K. B. 612; 70 J. P. 500, Walmsley v. Featherstone U. D. C. (1909), 73 J. P. 322; 7 L. G. R. 806; 26 Digest 310, 439, and Hanscombe v. Bedfordshire C. C., [1938] Ch. 944; [1938] 3 All E. R. 647; 103

J. P. 413; Digest Supp., for decisions as to whether roadside ditches, piped and filled up, formed part of the highway or not).

A public body, with statutory powers to stop up, alter, or use for the purpose of the authorised works, certain specified streets, were restrained by injunction from interfering, in excess of their powers, with the cellar of a house in one of the streets, the roadway in which was being lowered, until the amount of compensation for the whole house should have been ascertained and paid. An inquiry as to the damages sustained by the plaintiff, the owner and the occupier of the house, by reason of the works commenced by the defendants, having been directed by the decree, it was held that the plaintiff was not entitled to be compensated for the indirect injury to his trade resulting from the diversion of traffic caused by the authorised act of lowering the roadway, but only for direct structural injury occasioned by the unauthorised interference with his cellar (Bigg v. Corporation of London (1873), L. R. 15 Eq. 376; 37 J. P. 564; 26 Digest 336, 662).

(h) The owners of land adjoining a highway are not in general bound to fence it from the highway. Where a sewer belonging to the metropolitan commissioners adjoined a highway, it was held that they were not liable for an accident caused by its being unfenced (Cornuall v. Metropolitan Commissioners of Sewers (1855), 10 Exch. 771; 19 J. P. 313; 41 Digest 52, 377). And where a fence has been erected, there is no liability in respect of it, unless it is a nuisance (Gibson v. Plumstead Burial Board (1897), 13 T. L. R. 273; Digest Supp.; Harrold v. Watney, [1898] 2 Q. B. 320; 36 Digest 69, 443; see Barker v. Herbert and Smith v. Keys, on p. 296, ante, as to a defective area railing), and see Horridge v. Makinson and Daniel v. Rickett, Cockerell & Co., Ltd., cited on p. 4361, ante, as to the liability for an opening left in the pavement of a footpath to admit of access to a coal shoot. A duty is, however, cast upon those who in the exercise of statutory powers divert a public footpath, to protect, by fencing or otherwise, reasonably careful passengers from injury through going astray at the point of diversion (Hurst v. Taylor (1885), 14 Q. B. D. 981; 49 J. P. 359; 26 Digest 477, 1897). A local Act provided that, if the corporation were of opinion that danger to the public was likely to ensue by reason of land abutting on streets not being fenced, the owner of any such land should, when required by the corporation, and to their satisfaction, fence off the land from the street, and should afterwards keep such fence in repair. It was held that the Act did not apply to the retaining walls of an old turnpike road, but applied only to new streets where there were no fences, and which, in the opinion of the corporation, were dangerous to the public (Rotherham (Mayor, etc. of) v. Fullerton (1884), 50 L. T. 364; 26 Digest 390, 1169). See, now, as to dangerous places adjoining highways, and as to fencing lands adjoining streets, the P. H. A., 1907, ss. 30, 31, post, pp. 5050, 5051, and see also the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, s. 83, ante, p. 4211.

The provision in s. 149, ante, p. 4375, is permissive, and no compulsion or duty is cast upon the urban authority. Therefore, where a goit ran by the side of an ancient public footpath, it was held that the local board were not bound to fence the path from the goit to prevent accidents (Wilson v. Halifax (Mayor, etc. of) (1868), L. R. 3 Exch. 114; 32 J. P. 230; 7 Digest 293, 200). But if a council pull down a fence placed to protect passengers from falling into a ditch by the side of a road, in order to repair it, and before repairs are executed an accident occurs through want of a fence, they will be liable as for misfeasance (Whyler v. Bingham R. D. C., ante, p. 4356).

Manchester Corporation*, supra, it was held that the taking up of the pavement and digging trenches in the roadway and footway of a public thoroughfare, in order to lay down service pipes for the supply of gas from mains to private houses, are not acts which can be justified at common law as done in the exercise of the right of every occupier of a house to make such a temporary obstruction of the highway as may be necessarily incidental to the enjoyment of his property; and a householder who authorises such acts, and they who do them, having no parliamentary powers for the purpose, are liable to be indicted for a nuisance. No lapse of time is an answer to an indictment for causing a nuisance on a highway (R. v. Cross (1812), 3 Camp. 224; 36 Digest 218, 602; R. v. Edwards (1846), 11 J. P. 602, n.; Harvey v. Truro R. D. C., [1903] 2 Ch. 638; 68 J. P. 51; 26 Digest 313, 454). Nor is the consent of a local authority under this section an answer to an indictment, for the power to consent is limited to works authorised by the Act (Hawkins v. Robinson (1872), 37 J. P. 662; 26 Digest 420, 1396; see also Harvey v. Truro R. D. C., supra; Att.-Gen. v. Mayo C. C., [1902] 1 L. R. 13; 26 Digest 451, 1; Preston (Mayor of) v. Fulwood L. B., infra). The consent of a highway authority to a tramway crossing a highway is of no effect, at any rate if the crossing is a nuisance (Att.-Gen. v. Barker (1900), 83 L. T. 245; 26 Digest 414, 1334), and cf. Matson v. Baird & Co., (1878) 3 App. Cas. 1082; 39 L. T. 304.

The Court of Chancery refused to interfere by injunction where the injury done by the opening of streets was temporary and trivial (Att.-Gen. v. Sheffield Gas Consumers' Co. (1853), 22 L. J. Ch. 811; 26 Digest 450, 1663; Att.-Gen. v. Cambridge Consumers' Gas Co. (1868), 4 Ch. App. 71; 33 J. P. 147; 26 Digest 451, 1664); and see further as to nuisances of a trivial or negligible character, R. v. Lepine (1866), 15 L. T. 158; 26 Digest 446, 1631; R. v. Tindall (1837), 6 Ad. & El. 143; 1 J. P. 139; 36 Digest 162, 41; R. v. Betts (1850), 16 Q. B. 1022; 36 Digest 158, 18; R. v. Russell (1854), 3 E. & B. 942; 18 J. P. 807; 26 Digest 446, 1629; Att.-Gen. v. Mayo C. C., supra; R. v. Bartholomew, [1908] 1 K. B. 554; 72 J. P. 79; 26 Digest 446, 1632 (coffee stall in street); R. v. Richmond, Surrey J.J. (1860), 24 J. P. 422; 26 Digest 457, 1736 (trestles to divert traffic); Wandsworth Board of Works v. L. & S. W. Rail. Co. (1862), 26 J. P. 821; 31 L. J. Ch. 854; 26 Digest 331, 628.

An injunction was, however, granted under the following circumstances: The corporation of P., who had no parliamentary powers for the purpose, supplied water to the adjoining district of F., and claimed the right to enter upon and break up the streets of F., whenever occasion should require, for the purpose of repairing their pipes, relying, as regarded some of the streets, on alleged irrevocable licences granted by the predecessors of the local board of F. (i.e., the surveyors of highways), and as regarded other streets on prescription. It was held (1) that the claim of the corporation was to commit a nuisance; (2) that it was not in the power of the surveyors of highways to grant the alleged licences; (3) that, therefore, as a grant could not be presumed, the corporation could not obtain the right claimed by prescription (Preston (Mayor, etc. of) v. Fulwood L. B. (1885), 50 J. P. 228; 53 L. T. 718; 26 Digest 440, 1573). See this case for an explanation of the decision in Edgware Highway Board v. Harrow District Gas Co. (1874), L. R. 10 Q. B. 92; 38 J. P. 806; 25 Digest 471, 11. There the plaintiffs, a highway board, agreed with the defendants, a gas company, that if the plaintiffs would give the defendants a licence to open a highway in their jurisdiction, the defendants should make good the surface of the road, and pay to the plaintiffs 1s. per yard of the highway so broken up. It was held that the contract was valid, for the agreement of the plaintiffs to allow the defendants to interfere with the surface of the road was a good consideration, and the contract was not illegal, as it did not necessarily contemplate the creation of a nuisance by the defendants. See also on this point Dublin C. C. v. P. M. G., [1914] 2 L. R. 208.

As to the right of a private individual to restrain the laying of pipes in a highway the soil of which belongs to him, see Goodson v. Richardson (1874), 9 Ch. App. 221; 38 J. P. 436; 26 Digest 326, 588, and Salt Union, Ltd. v. Harvey (1897), 61 J. P. 375; 13 T. L. R. 297; 26 Digest 326, 595. The right of a local authority to prevent the laying of pipes, etc. under a street does not enable them to require the taking up of such pipes, etc. once they have been laid, though laid wrongfully (see St. Mary, Battersea (Vestry of) v. County of London and Brush Provincial Electric Lighting Co., Ltd., ante, p. 4379). It would be otherwise if the defendants claimed the right to open the streets from time to time for repairs, etc. (see Hyde (Mayor, etc. of) v. Oldham, etc. Electric Tramway, Ltd. (1900), 64 J. P. 596).

Where a company has a special Act, passed before this Act, the provisions in the text will not affect their powers. In London and Blackwall Rail. Co. v. Limehouse District Board of Works (1856), 20 J. P. 789; 26 L. J. Ch. 164; 26 Digest 507, 2131, the general principle was laid down that when the legislature has vested special powers in a particular body for specified purposes, a subsequent general Act will not override those special powers. Therefore, in that case, a railway company were held empowered to build a station abutting on a street in the metropolis without the consent of the district board, their local Act, which preceded the Metropolis Management Act, empowering them to do so. See also Goldson v. Buck (1812), 15 East. 372; 43 Digest 1071, 93; Att.-Gen. v. Eastern Counties Rail. Co. (1842), 10 M. & W. 263; City and South London Rail. Co. v. London C. C., [1891] 2 Q. B. 664; 43 Digest 1067, 63; Moran v. Marsland, [1909] 1 K. B. 744; 73 J. P. 114; 34 Digest 583, 49; Metropolitan Rail. Co. v. London C. C., [1913] 2 K. B. 249; 77 J. P. 190. For an instance of a power under a special Act to break up pavements to lay gas pipes, see Dover Gas Light Co. v. Mayor, etc. of Dover (1855), 19 J. P. 515; 1 Jur. (n. s.) 812; 25 Digest 471, 12.

As to the power to open streets for the purposes of laying mains or wires for the transmission of electricity, see the Electric Lighting Acts and Montreal (City of) v. Standard Light and Power Co., [1897] A. C. 527; 20 Digest 201, h. As to the power to open streets for the purpose of laying drains, see Att.-Gen. v. Ashby, ante, p. 113. As to crossings over footways, see the P. H. A., 1907, s. 18, post, p. 5044. Reference may also be made to the Tramways Act, 1870, ante, p. 4272.

Under the P. H. A., 1925, s. 80, Vol. V., post, a local authority authorised to supply gas may lay gas pipes in streets which have not been dedicated to the public. See P. H. A., 1936, s. 330, ante, p. 675, and s. 153 of this Act, post, p. 4425, as to certain acts of interference with pipes, etc. authorised by this Act.

(k) The judgment of BRAMWELL, L.J., in Coverdale v. Charlton, ante, p. 4377, Trees in leaves open the question whether a tree in a street vests in a local authority under this section; though they have power by inference to trim and maintain existing trees on highways. In Stillwell v. New Windsor Corpn., cited ante, p. 4336, it was held that trees planted on public highways after their dedication to the public vested in the highway authority under this section. See also Surbiton Improvement Commissioners v. Metcalf (1888), Times, Nov. 14th. In Coverdale's Case reference is made to trees planted by the local board, but it must not be assumed that an authority have power under this section to plant trees in streets. See a conviction for so doing in R. v. Lewes Corporation (1886), 2 T. L. R. 399; 26 Digest 457, 1734. The planting of trees on or near highways was discouraged by the old Highway Acts, but where the P. H. A. A., 1890, post, p. 4801, has been adopted, the authority may plant trees (s. 43, post, p. 4817), and may place in any street refuges and cabmen's shelters; and they may also authorise the erection of statues or monuments (ss. 39, 40, 42, post, pp. 4814, 4815, 4817). See also the Road Traffic Act, 1930, ss. 55, 56, and 58, Vol. V., post.

Power to plant trees is now given to all highway authorities by s. 1 of Roads Improvement Act, 1925, Vol. V. post. The "improvement of roads" in the Development and Road Improvement Funds Act, 1909, post, p. 5105, now includes the planting of trees and shrubs (s. 2, Roads Improvement Act, 1925, Vol. V., post). Where the provisions have been adopted, the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, enables local authorities to place in streets, street bins (s. 13, Vol. V., post), public drinking fountains, watering troughs or seats (s. 14, Vol. V., post), and fire alarms (s. 15, Vol. V., post).

Power to prevent the obstruction of view of users of the highway by trees growing on land adjoining is given by enabling highway authorities to require the removal of trees, hedges, etc., on land at or near a corner by s. 4, Roads Improvement Act, 1925, Vol. V., post, or to lop overhanging trees in districts where s. 23, P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, has been adopted.

As to the liability of highway authorities and owners of lands adjoining highways where injury is caused to passengers by trees growing on adjoining lands falling upon the highway, see Mackie v. W. District of Dumbartonshire C. C. (1927), 91 J. P. 158; and Noble v. Harrison, [1926] 2 K. B. 332; 90 J. P. 188; 36 Digest 189, 316, referred to at p. 4355, ante. See also an article at 98 J. P. Jo. 336.

The liability of the owner of a tree for damage done by an overhanging bough to a passing vehicle was discussed by a county court judge in Thorne v. Roberts (1909), 128 L. T. Jo. 155, and a transport company were held liable to a passenger struck by an overhanging tree in Radley v. London Passenger Transport Board, [1942] 1 All E. R. 433; 106 J. P. 164.

(l) As to the recovery of this penalty, see s. 251, post, p. 4481.

Section 150. 150. Where any street (b) within any urban (a) district (not being a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large) (c) or the carriageway footway or any other part of such street (d) is not sewered levelled paved metalled flagged channelled and made good or is not lighted to the satisfaction (e) of the urban authority, such authority may, by notice addressed to the respective owners or occupiers (f) of the premises fronting adjoining or abutting (g) on such parts thereof as may require to be sewered levelled paved metalled flagged or channelled, or to be lighted, require them to sewer level pave metal flag channel or make good or to provide proper means for lighting (h) the same within a time (hh) to be specified in such notice.

paving, etc.
streets (a).

Before giving such notice the urban authority shall cause plans and sections of any structural works intended to be executed under this section, and an estimate of the probable cost thereof, to be made under the direction of their surveyor, such plans and sections to be on a scale of not less than one inch for eighty-eight feet for a horizontal plan, and on a scale of not less than one inch for ten feet for a vertical section, and, in the case of a sewer, showing the depth of such sewer below the surface of the ground: such plans sections and estimate shall be deposited in the office of the urban authority, and shall be open at all reasonable hours for the inspection of all persons interested therein during the time specified in such notice; and a reference to such plans and sections in such notice shall be sufficient without requiring any copy of such plans and sections to be annexed to such notice (i).

If such notice is not complied with, the urban authority may, if they think fit, execute the works mentioned or referred to therein (ic); and may recover in a summary manner (l) the expenses (ll) incurred by them in so doing from the owners, in default (m), according to the frontage of their respective premises, and in such proportion as is settled by the surveyor of the urban authority (n), or (in case of dispute) by arbitration in manner provided by this Act (o); or the urban authority may by order declare the expenses so incurred to be private improvement expenses (p).

The same proceedings may be taken, and the same powers may be exercised, in respect of any street or road of which a part is or may be a public footpath or repairable by the inhabitants at large as fully as if the whole of such street or road was a highway not repairable by the inhabitants at large (q).

This section will not apply to a district in which the Private Street Works Act, 1892, has been adopted. See that Act, s. 25, post, p. 4869.

Under the P. H. A., 1907, post, p. 5035B, a district council in whose district s. 19 of that Act has been put in force, may, without "making up" the whole street, require owners to execute any repairs necessary to obviate or remove danger to passengers or vehicles. See that section and notes thereto, post, p. 5045.

In connection with the Bill which eventually became the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, the M. of H. had under consideration the desirability of effecting the repeal of ss. 150—152 of the P. H. A., 1875, post, pp. 4388—4425, so that one code only (presumably that contained in the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4848, amended to the necessary extent) should regulate the proceedings of local authorities for making up private streets. They addressed the associations representing the local government authorities to this effect, but there was apparently a want of unanimity on the subject. The Law Committee of the Association of Municipal Associations considered that s. 150 of the P. H. A., 1875, was defective in not requiring a frontager to formulate any objection he might have to the notice served upon him until a late stage of the proceedings with the possible result that the whole cost of the work from which he benefited might be thrown upon the local authority (see in this connection, Bristol Corporation v. Sinnott, post, p. 4405). The Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4848, was also considered to be unsatisfactory in not following the earlier enactment as regards the power of a local authority to deal with a street part of which is a public footpath or repairable by the inhabitants at large; in making a court of summary jurisdiction the tribunal for determining questions; in the requirement as to advertisement of the resolution approving specifications, etc., in the local papers; in the inability of the tribunal to amend apportionments when the expenses exceed the estimate by more than 15 per cent. (see, however, note to s. 12 of the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4861); in not enabling an action to be commenced against an owner without naming him; and in various other respects. The whole matter was under discussion by a committee at the time of the outbreak of war, but in the circumstances it is not possible to forecast when amending legislation may now be expected.

Section 150.

The M. of H. in their annual report for 1924—25 made the following remarks. They are reproduced in full as they are of value to local authorities and because they indicate certain changes of practice:—

“There has been in recent years, owing to the arrears of the war and extensive building developments, much activity on the part of local authorities in making up private streets prior to their being taken over as streets repairable at the cost of the rates. The cost of these, as of other works, is much higher than before the war, but the increase is more felt, inasmuch as it falls not upon the rates but upon the individual who owns premises fronting, adjoining, or abutting on the streets.

“The subject has an obvious bearing upon the development of land for building and the cost of providing houses. The technical advisers of the department have been in consultation recently with the Institution of Municipal and County Engineers with a view to framing a standard specification of private street works which would not be too burdensome to the frontagers on the one hand, and would be fair on the other hand to the ratepayers who have to pay for upkeep once the street is taken over. A standard specification of reasonable requirements in normal circumstances and other urban conditions was agreed with the institution and was published in their journal on June 17th, 1924. Standard specification.

“With a view to easing the burden upon owners the department are now generally willing to sanction a loan to the local authority for a period of ten years to enable them to spread the cost of the work over that period, on the understanding that a similar period is allowed to the frontagers for repayment of the cost to the local authority.” Loans.

See also s. 28 of the P. H. A., 1907, post, p. 5049, as to the removal or use of old materials in streets.

Any local authority who have served notices under this section or under a similar provision in a local Act may at any time if they think fit resolve to contribute a portion of the expenses of the works (s. 81, P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post). Cf. the similar provision in s. 15 of the Private Street Works Act, 1892, and the notes thereto at post, p. 4865.

Where, after September 8th, 1925, notices have been served under this section as respects any street and that street is sewered, paved, flagged, channelled, and made good (all such works being done to the satisfaction of the urban authority), then on the application in writing of the greater part in rateable value of the owners of the houses or land in such street, the urban authority shall, within three months after the time of such application, by notice put up in such street, declare the same to be a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large, and thereupon such street shall become a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large (s. 82, P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post). Cf. the similar provision in s. 20 of the Private Street Works Act, 1892, and the notes thereto at post, p. 4867.

A new street constructed by the local authority under s. 154 is not a private street to which s. 150 applies. See note (a) to s. 154, post, p. 4426.

(a) It will be observed that the section is only applied by the Act to urban districts. Many rural district councils, however, obtained orders under s. 276, post, p. 4502, putting the section in force in their districts. In consequence, however, of the requiring a frontager to formulate any objection he might have to the notice served upon him until a late stage of the proceedings with the possible result that the whole cost of the work from which he benefited might be thrown upon the local authority (see in this connection, Bristol Corporation v. Sinnott, post, p. 4405). The Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4848, was also considered to be unsatisfactory in not following the earlier enactment as regards the power of a local authority to deal with a street part of which is a public footpath or repairable by the inhabitants at large; in making a court of summary jurisdiction the tribunal for determining questions; in the requirement as to advertisement of the resolution approving specifications, etc., in the local papers; in the inability of the tribunal to amend apportionments when the expenses exceed the estimate by more than 15 per cent. Section 150.

Note to Section 150. L. G. A., 1929, s. 30, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904, rural district councils ceased to be the highway authority in their district, and by s. 30 (3), ibid., functions under this section as from April 1st, 1930, ceased to be exercisable by rural district councils. This section was not applied to the county councils who succeeded the rural district councils as highway authority in rural districts, and accordingly only the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4848, is operative in rural districts. As to the authority by whom functions under that Act will be exercisable in rural districts, see the notes to that Act at p. 4848, post.

(b) Street.—In discussing the definition of this term in s. 4, ante, p. 4336, it was pointed out that the word “street,” as used in this section, does not apply only to a street in the ordinary and popular sense, but has the wider meaning assigned to it by the interpretation clause. The decisions have not been uniformly to this effect, and it may be useful to set them out in chronological order. In Maude v. Baildon L. B. (1883), 10 Q. B. D. 394; 47 J. P. 644; 26 Digest 269, 93, the court held that the word “street” in this section was used in its ordinary sense of a road with houses more or less continuous. In Portsmouth (Mayor, etc. of) v. Smith (1883), 13 Q. B. D. 184; 48 J. P. 404; 26 Digest 274, 128, the MASTER OF THE ROLLS questioned that decision, pointing out that it had proceeded upon a mistaken view of R. v. Dayman (1857), 7 E. & B. 672; 22 J. P. 39; 26 Digest 275, 134; and the court decided that the word “street,” as used in the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, s. 53 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 547) (which corresponds to the text), was to be interpreted according to the definition, and, therefore, includes a highway which was not a street in the ordinary sense. In Midland Rail. Co. v. Watton (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 30; 50 J. P. 405; 26 Digest 267, 72, it seems to have been assumed that the word “street” as used in the text means a street as defined by s. 4. But in R. (on the prosecution of Cleckheaton L. B. of Health) v. Burnup (1886), 50 J. P. 598; 26 Digest 534, 2338, the court held that the section applied only to streets in the ordinary and natural meaning of that term; that in summary proceedings under the section, it was for the justices to find as a fact, having regard to the surrounding circumstances, and to whether there was any intention of building along a road so as to convert it into a street, whether such road was a street in the ordinary and popular sense of the term; that it made no difference that the section had been applied, or might apply, to a portion of the road other than that in question; and that where the justices found a road, or a portion of a road, not to be a street in the ordinary and popular sense, they would be right in holding that the section was not applicable to the road or portion. All these cases were reviewed in Jowett v. Idle L. B. (1887), 57 L. T. 928; affirmed (1888), 36 W. R. 530; 26 Digest 270, 101. In that case the plaintiffs were owners of a private alley or court, and the defendants acting under this section sewered the same and paved the roadway thereof. The plaintiffs thereupon sued them for trespass. The alley or court led from a highway to a mill, and the portion sewered and paved by the defendants was bounded on each side by cottages, some twenty in number, and their gardens and yards. It was the only means of access to the cottages and mill; but the owners and occupiers of the adjoining property were the only persons having rights of road over it. The traffic in connection with the mill was very considerable. It was held that the words in the definition of “street” in s. 4 must be read into this section; that the question whether the alley or court was a street or not within the meaning of the section, was a question of law to be decided by the judge, and not a question for the jury; and that, upon the facts, the alley or court in question was a street within the meaning of the section. In Richards v. Kessick (1888), 52 J. P. 756; 57 L. J. M. C. 48; 26 Digest 271, 102, FIELD, J., after quoting the definition of a street in s. 4, said: “On looking at the 150th section, I cannot understand how any doubt can have arisen as to reading this definition into it; but we have not to decide that point now, because in Jowett v. Idle L. B., which is the last case on the point, it was decided that it must be read in.” In the same case WILLS, J., said: “It was argued that s. 4 should not be read with s. 150, and the case of Maude v. Baildon L. B. was cited in support of that contention, and it was said to be followed by R. (on the prosecution of Cleckheaton L. B. of Health) v. Burnup. I always thought that decision of Maude v. Baildon L. B. was wrong . . . and it now appears that it lately has been decided in the Court of Appeal in the case of Jowett v. Idle L. B. that the definition of the word ‘street’ given in the fourth section must be construed along with the 150th section.” Jowett v. Idle L. B. was again followed in Fenwick v. Croydon R. S. A.

[1891] 2 Q. B. 216; 55 J. P. 470; 26 Digest 271, 103. There the appellant was summoned under this section for non-payment of expenses incurred by the authority in sewerage and paving a road on which his premises abutted. An order of the L. G. B. under s. 276, post, p. 4502, had declared this section to be in force as to the road in question, which the order also referred to as "a street." The road ran from a turnpike road to a bridge, where it passed into another parish, and was from that point repaired by the local board of that parish as a highway. It was about 900 feet long. It had on the south side several houses, including the appellant's house, abutting on it; on the north side there were none for 785 feet from the turnpike road. For the rest of its course it was bounded on that side by the authority's sewage farm, on which were two buildings. It was a public highway. There was no evidence of formal dedication of the road, but there was evidence of its use as a highway since 1835, and some evidence before 1835, but none inconsistent with its having been then merely an occupation road or footpath. The justices held that the order of the L. G. B. was conclusive that the road was a street, and further held that, although, in their opinion, it was not a street in the popular acceptance of the word, it was a street within s. 4. On a case stated, it was held that the justices were wrong in holding that the order was conclusive that the road was a street but that by the definition in s. 4 it was a street within the meaning of this section.

A path in Epping Forest was made up as a street under the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4848. The case was decided upon another point; but it was apparently considered that the path was a "street" for the purposes of the Act, though it was necessary that the consent of the Epping Forest Conservators should be given before the work was done, the land being part of the forest and subject to the Forest Act (Woodford U. D. C. v. Henwood (1899), 64 J. P. 148; 26 Digest 543, 2415).

Where a roadway runs over land acquired by a railway company under its compulsory powers, and the application of this section to such roadway would be inconsistent with the appropriation of the land to the objects of the company, the section cannot (semble) be put into operation; secus, where the making and dedication of such roadway, so far from being inconsistent with the company's objects, must have been contemplated by the framers of its special Act (Stretford U. D. C. v. Manchester South Junction and Altrincham Rail. Co. (1903), 68 J. P. 59; 19 T. L. R. 546; 38 Digest 251, 14). See also Glasgow and S. W. Rail. Co. v. Ayr Magistrates, [1912] A. C. 520, as to the site of an existing street acquired by a railway company by agreement.

A railway company built a bridge over their railway in the metropolis, with additions, on which their station was erected. They lighted the bridge with street lamps, and allowed the public for eighteen months to use it as a highway. They had made an agreement with a water company to allow water pipes to be carried over the bridge. It was held that the bridge had become by dedication a street; that the company could not close it so as to prevent the vestry paving it as a "new street"; and that the company as owners were liable to pay paving expenses (North London Rail. Co. v. St. Mary, Islington (Vestry) (1872), 37 J. P. 341; 27 L. T. 672; 26 Digest 276, 138).

This section applies to all present and future streets, except when they are repairable by the inhabitants at large, and whether they have been dedicated to the public or not: per QUAIN, J., in St. Mary, Islington (Vestry) v. Barrett (1874), L. R. 9 Q. B. 278; 38 J. P. 198; 26 Digest 276, 139, following Hull Local Board of Health v. Jones (1856), 1 H. & N. 489; 21 J. P. 37; 26 Digest 520, 2212. In a later case, JESSUP, M.R., said that the word "streets" as here used "clearly extends to places which are in all respects private, and over which the public have no right." And he added, "What is the Act for? It is a Public Health Act. The owners of these private courts and alleys are, of all the people in the world, the most averse to laying out money in sanitary works. It is in these places that the poor live, the very people who suffer most from the want of sewerage and drainage, which are so requisite for public health. Is it to be imagined that the legislature intended to except such places from the operation of the Act? I should say, if the Act were passed for anybody, it must have been to include those owners who, for the sake of gain and acquiring high rents in proportion to the annual value of the wretched tenements they allow the poor to occupy, neglect ordinary and necessary sanitary precautions. If I were to interpret it by what I might think to be the mind of the legislature, I should suppose that the first people to be included would be the owners of these crowded courts and alleys over which the public have no street rights whatever, but which are intended to be used for the dwellings of the poor and are unprovided with what, according to modern science, is known to be absolutely necessary for their well being" (Taylor v. Oldham Corporation (1876), 4 Ch. D. 395; 26 Digest 270, 96). See also Midland Rail. Co. v. Watton (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 30; 50 J. P. 405; 26 Digest 267, 72, where, though the owner of the soil of a road put up bars and took tolls from passengers, it was held that such road might yet be a "street," and Walthamstow U. D. C. v. Sandell (1904), 68 J. P. 569; 2 L. G. R. 835; 26 Digest 271, 105, where a cul-de-sac passage, giving access only to the back premises of five houses, was held to be a "street" within this section. In the latter case, BUCKLEY, J., said: "I have no doubt I have to see what sort of a passage this is, whether it is a private approach to a man's house,—his avenue leading up to his house from the street, or . . . a passageway rightly open to any member of the public who is going along an adjacent highway, and as to which DAVY, J., said, in R. v. Goole L. B., 'there is nothing to show that the public cannot pass along it.'"

D. owned a house, the back premises of which had a door leading into an alley or lane which had been used for fifty years by the tenants of nine houses as an access, but there was no thoroughfare through it. It was held that there was evidence justifying a finding that this was a new street within the meaning of the Metropolis Management Acts, so as to make the owners of the houses abutting on it liable for the expenses of paving it (Dodd v. St. Pancras (Tcestry) (1869), 34 J. P. 517; 26 Digest 494, 2034).

streets.

In Healey v. Bailey Corporation (1875), L. R. 19 Eq. 375; 39 J. P. 423; 26 Digest 283, 153, it was held under the following circumstances that an owner of land in a suburb of a town who allowed the public to pass over his land, could not be compelled to pave and sewer under provisions similar to those contained in the text. He had in 1850 demised the coal under the land for six years to K., the owner of the adjoining land. In the lease was an agreement that a road, to be called Union Street, should within five years be made across the land under which the coal lay and K.'s land; that a sewer should be made under such land; that the lessor and lessee should, at their own cost, construct and repair so much of the said road and sewer as should extend along their respective lands; and that the road should be used as a public road for all purposes for ever thereafter, and should be maintained by each of the parties so far as the same should extend over his land until the same should be adopted by the surveyor of highways. The road and sewer were never made, and there was no dedication of a highway to the public by notice under the Highway Act. A brickfield and afterwards a colliery were opened on K.'s land, and gaps were opened in the fences to give access for carts and foot passengers. In 1869 posts and chains were placed across one of the openings, but after a few months the chains were removed. In 1870 K.'s land was sold, and in 1871 conveyed to the plaintiff in fee. In 1872 the local board called upon him to pave and sewer the alleged "street." It was held that the agreement in the expired lease had been abandoned, and could not be enforced, and that it did not amount to a dedication of a right of way to the public. In this case it will be seen that there never was anything which could be called a street. In another case H., lessee of land under a lease dated 1855, in 1865 laid out a proposed road across part of the land, and built six houses on one side of the road. In 1870 she abandoned her intention of making the road, and in 1874 she demised the remainder of the land, including the site of the abandoned road. In 1880 the urban authority called upon the representatives of H. to pave the road, and on their neglecting to do so entered on the land and began the work. It was held that the laying out of the proposed road was no dedication of a public right of way, and that the intention to use the land as a road having been abandoned, an injunction must go against the authority (Hall v. Boodle Corporation (1881), 44 L. T. 873; 26 Digest 283, 184). In 1907 plans were passed showing an intended new street with a southern outlet into a highway but no northern outlet. The plans showed the land on the east side of the street plotted out for building. The street was constructed, and kerbed and channelled on its eastern side with a footpath, at the cost of the owner to the satisfaction of the authority, who laid a water main in it. A gas main was also laid. By 1910

the owner had disposed of all the plots except the two northernmost, and had granted to his lessees a right of way over the new street, and houses were built. In September, 1910, K. bought the two remaining plots and the north end of the new street so far as it was conterminous with the two plots, with a right of way over the new street up to the two plots, and erected a fence with an opening for gates across the new street in a line with the southern boundary of the two plots, thus enclosing the north end of the new street bought by him. The authority had not taken over the street or expended any public money upon it, but alleged that its entire length had been dedicated to the public, and threatened to pull down the fence. It was held, on the evidence, that the new street had not become a highway:—Held, also, that the byelaws and special Act of the authority dealt only with the width and level, and not with the length, of new streets, and therefore that, in the absence of an order under s. 17 of the P. H. A., 1907, post, p. 5043, the owner was entitled to deviate from the plans and to enclose the dead end of his private road (Kirby v. Paignton U. D. C., [1913] 1 Ch. 337; 77 J. P. 169; 26 Digest 297, 286). See also Sunderland Corporation v. Skinner, on p. 4437, post; Mackett v. Herne Bay Commissioners, on p. 4437, post; Rolls v. St. Mary, Newington (Vestry), W. N. (1873), 168; Tarrant v. Woking U. D. C., [1914] 3 K. B. 796; 79 J. P. 22; 26 Digest 555, 2503, on p. 4436, post, and Urban Housing Co., Ltd. v. Oxford Corporation, [1940] Ch. 70; [1939] 4 All E. R. 211; 104 J. P. 15; Digest Supp.

A burn, having a public footpath on one side, was piped in, with the result that vehicles could be driven (though with difficulty) along its line from one street to another; but it was not intended that there should be any road, and no attempt had been made to form one:—Held, that the strip of land was not a street within somewhat similar provisions in a Scotch Act (Dunfermline Town Council v. Rintoul, [1911] S. C. 737).

R. agreed with an authority that when he used his land for building he would throw a strip eighteen feet wide into a road eighteen feet wide made by an adjoining owner along his boundary. Before he did so the authority called upon him as a frontager to join in sewerage and paving the original road; and, upon the frontager's default, the authority did the work. After apportionment, R., as he had agreed, threw eighteen feet into the road, and (though he was not bound to do so by his agreement) paved and sewered his strip. It was held that the original eighteen foot road was a "street" which the authority had the right to require R. to sewer, pave, etc. (West Hartlepool Corporation v. Robinson (1897), 62 J. P. 35; 77 L. T. 387; 26 Digest 275, 133).

In Camberwell Corporation v. Dixon, [1910] 1 K. B. 424; 74 J. P. 77; 26 Digest 277, 144, it was held that a metropolitan authority are not precluded from paving a street at the cost of the frontagers as a "new street," by the fact that it has been laid out or widened in contravention of some byelaw or statute.

In the case of a street down which the boundary between two districts runs, s. 150 does not seem to be applicable to the making up of the surface as a whole, though each council could probably make up the strip within its district and recover the expenses from frontagers upon its own side. See hereon Mayor, etc. of Hornsey v. Birkbeck Freehold Land Society, and cases cited therewith, on p. 4402, post. The L. G. B. expressed the opinion that there was no provision in the P. H. A., 1875, which would enable two councils to carry out a joint scheme for the making up of a street so situated at the cost of the owners. The boundary may be altered under Part VI of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 920, with the object of getting over the difficulty.

See also Newton v. Lambton Helton and Joicey Collieries, Ltd., [1937] 2 All E. R. 150; Digest Supp., where it was held that a local authority may not make an order taking over a street, after being made up to their satisfaction, if part of the street is outside their area; and the application to take over and the order cannot be severed so as to be valid so far as the street is within the authority's area.

It is a question of fact whether a piece of ground, e.g., a strip of pavement separated from the roadway of a street by posts, is or is not part of the street which may be dealt with under this section (Bell & Sons v. Great Crosby U. D. C. (1912), 77 J. P. 37; 26 Digest 540, 2386).

(c) Repairable by the inhabitants at large.—The words "repairable by the inhabitants at large" were not in the corresponding section (s. 69) of the P. H. A., by the 1848, but were added by First Public Health Supplemental Act, 1852, s. 13. The inhabitants at large.

difficulty which arose in Sunderland v. Herring (1853), 17 J. P. N. 741, is thus obviated. There are, however, local Acts under which frontagers have been held liable for the expense of making up streets repairable by the inhabitants at large: see Ashton-under-Lyme Corporation v. Pugh, [1898] 1 Q. B. 45; 61 J. P. 788; 26 Digest 548, 2454; Ledge v. Huddersfield Corporation, [1898] 1 Q. B. 847, 859; 62 J. P. 357, 515; 26 Digest 549, 2459; Portsmouth Corporation v. Smith (1885), 10 App. Cas. 364; 49 J. P. 676; 26 Digest 519, 2209; Crump v. Chorley Corporation (1905), 72 J. P. 324; 98 L. T. 805; 26 Digest 520, 2210; Stockport Corporation v. Cheetham (1860), 24 J. P. 196; 26 Digest 549, 2462; Rochdale Corporation v. Leach (1910), 74 J. P. 89; 101 L. T. 881; 26 Digest 549, 2463; Birkenhead Improvement Commissioners v. Sansom (1876), 40 J. P. 406; 34 L. T. 175; 26 Digest 552, 2480; Leeds Corporation v. Hauke, Times, July 17th, 1897.

If a street is repairable by the inhabitants at large, there is no jurisdiction under this section. Therefore where a street was shown to have been a highway before 1835 (as to this date and its importance in this respect, see p. 1947, ante), it was held that the frontagers could not be made liable (Rishton v. Haslingden Corporation, [1898] 1 Q. B. 294; 62 J. P. 85; 26 Digest 543, 2416). And in the case of a highway dedicated since 1835, where from long user it was presumed that the requirements of ss. 84—92 of the Highway Act, 1835 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 97—104), had been complied with, the same result followed (Leigh U. D. C. v. King, ante, p. 1951; but see Cababé v. Walton-on-Thames U. D. C., p. 1947, ante).

The words "repairable by the inhabitants at large" appear to be used in contradistinction to highways repairable by individuals or corporate bodies by prescription, ratione tenuræ, ratione clausuræ, or under some statute or statutory award, or highways repairable by no one. In the case of highways repairable by individuals there may, in case of default, be an ultimate liability upon the inhabitants (see Pratt on Highways (18th ed.), pp. 83, 84, and cases there cited as to roads made under turnpike and other local Acts); but it is submitted that for the purposes of this section at any rate such highways cannot be said to be repairable by them: cf. Swansea Improvement and Tramways Co. v. Glamorganshire County Roads Board (1880), 43 J. P. 798; 41 L. T. 583; 26 Digest 358, 835; Gibson v. Preston Corporation (1869), L. R. 5 Q. B. 218; 34 J. P. 342; 26 Digest 357, 834; Austerberry v. Oldham Corporation (1885), 29 Ch. D. 750; 49 J. P. 532; 26 Digest 267, 71; Wallington v. White, ante, p. 1950. As to what roads are repairable by the inhabitants at large, see pp. 1947 et seq., ante; reference may also be made to the cases cited in the notes to s. 25 of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932, ante, pp. 1949 et seq.

Owners of land adjoining a road which a local authority have agreed to take over as a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large, cannot by agreement between them and the authority confer jurisdiction to act under s. 150. See Mayor, etc. of Folkestone v. Marsh, cited on p. 4367, ante; but cf. Mayor, etc. of Folkestone v. Rook, ante, p. 4368.

An application to justices by a local board for the recovery of expenses from an owner under this section was dismissed on the ground that the street was a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large. The board some years later made an application against the same person for the recovery of further expenses subsequently incurred in respect of the same street. It was held by the Court of Appeal, reversing the decision of the Queen's Bench Division, that the adjudication of the justices that the street was a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large on the first application was beyond their jurisdiction, for they had only power to make or refuse an order for the payment of the expenses claimed; that, therefore, such adjudication did not estop the board from claiming the expenses claimed on the second application, and consequently that a magistrate could make an order for their payment (R. v. Hutchings (1881), 6 Q. B. D. 300; 45 J. P. 504; 26 Digest 533, 2326). This decision was followed by a Divisional Court in a case arising under a local Act similar in terms to the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4848 (Wakefield Corporation v. Cooke, [1902] 1 K. B. 188; 66 J. P. 232), and also in a case arising under the Metropolitan Management Acts (Scott v. Lowe (1902), 66 J. P. 520; 26 Digest 497, 2054). The Wakefield Case, was however, appealed; and it was ultimately decided in the House of Lords that the principle of the decision in R. v. Hutchings, supra, was not applicable (Wakefield Corporation v. Cooke, [1904] A. C.

31; 68 J. P. 225; 26 Digest 543, 2419). See the notes to the Private Street Works Act, 1892, s. 7, post, p. 4853. Note to Section 150.

(d) Part of such Street.—It was held with reference to the Metropolis Management Acts, 1855 and 1862 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 889, 965), that, although the district board might have resolved that part only of a road should be repaired, yet as they had resolved that the whole should be repaired, there must be only one apportionment on all the owners along the entire road. Therefore, the surveyor having divided the road into four sections, and apportioned the cost of repairing each section amongst the owners of property in that section, it was held that the apportionments were bad, and unenforceable (Whitchurch v. Fulham Board of Works (1866), L. R. 1 Q. B. 233; 30 J. P. 229; 26 Digest 497, 2055). See also Nash v. Giles (1926), 91 J. P. 19; 43 T. L. R. 121; Digest Supp., decided under s. 19 of P. H. A., 1907, post, p. 5045.

The owners of a field adjoining a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large used it for building, and threw open to the highway a strip of land in front of the new houses. It was held that the houses with the strip of land in front of them formed a street within the meaning of the section, which the authority could compel the frontagers to pave, channel, and kerb, to their satisfaction (Richards v. Kessick (1888), 52 J. P. 756; 57 L. J. M. C. 48; 26 Digest 271, 102). See the observations on this case in White v. Fulham Vestry (1896), 60 J. P. 327; 74 L. T. 425; 26 Digest 276, 142, and Property Exchange, Ltd. v. Wandsworth District Board of Works, [1902] 2 K. B. 61; 66 J. P. 435; 26 Digest 277, 143; and cf. Portsmouth Corporation v. Hall and Escott v. Newport Corporation, post, p. 4419.

A "part of a street" may be such part as is not occupied by tram lines (Standring v. Bezhill Corporation (1909), 73 J. P. 241; 7 L. G. R. 670; 26 Digest 539, 2385).

(e) Sewered, Levelled, etc. to the satisfaction of the Urban Authority.—What works Where an owner had, with the sanction of the Metropolitan Board of Works, laid a sewer in a new street, and the district board afterwards took up this sewer and laid another for the drainage of the neighbourhood, it was held that the owner could not be charged with any portion of the cost of the second sewer (Fulham District Board of Works v. Goodwin (1876), 1 Ex. D. 400; 41 J. P. 134; 41 Digest 30, 223. See also East Barnet U. D. C. v. Stacey, [1939] 2 K. B. 861; [1939] 2 All E. R. 621; 103 J. P. 237; Digest Supp.). Where a sewer had been laid in a street by private persons, and had vested in the urban authority under s. 13 (now repealed) (13 Halsbury's Statutes 631), it was held that the authority could not require the owners to lay a new sewer when a new system of drainage had to be adopted (Bonella v. Twickenham L. B. (1887), 18 Q. B. D. 577; affirmed, 20 Q. B. D. 63; 52 J. P. 356; 41 Digest 19, 151). See observations on those cases in Simmonds v. Fulham Vestry, [1900] 2 Q. B. 188; 64 J. P. 548; 26 Digest 279, 163.

An objection, that the cost of providing new gullies or altering the position of existing gullies and altering levels in streets which had been laid out by an estate developer in accordance with a plan approved by the authority as complying with the byelaws as to widths of streets, etc., should not be charged to the frontagers but should be charged to the ratepayers of the district as the gullies and connecting pipes were and always had been part of the drainage system and formed no part of the carriageways of the streets, was successfully maintained in East Barnet U. D. C. v. Stacey, supra. See also Re Jesty's Avenue, Broadway, Weymouth, [1940] 2 K. B. 68; [1940] 2 All E. R. 634; 104 J. P. 279.

It does not, however, follow because there is in a street a sewer which has become vested in the authority, that the street is sewered "to their satisfaction" so as to prevent their requiring it to be sewered under this section. In Barrow-in-Furness (Mayor, etc. of) v. Dawson (1890), 13 M. C. C. 13, SMITH, J., held that it was a question of fact to be decided on the evidence whether an authority had expressed satisfaction with, or were in fact satisfied with, the sewer as originally constructed; but he accepted the proposition laid down in the Twickenham Case, that "if after the lapse of a reasonable time after the vesting of sewers in a corporation they had done nothing and expressed no view on the subject, it must be taken to be conclusive as a matter of fact that at the time the sewer was originally constructed they were satisfied with it for the purpose for which it was then used." And see Walthamstow L. B. v. Staines, [1891] 2 Ch. 606; 26 Digest 538, 2372. A road having been made by the owners of a building estate about 1859, a 12-inch pipe was laid by them along it from end to end. Houses were built from time to time in the neighbourhood of the road, and some of their owners connected their drains with the 12-inch pipe; but some of the earlier houses had a separate system of drainage into cesspools in a wood at the back of their premises. Drainage into the 12-inch pipe commenced at least as early as 1876. The pipe discharged into a culvert, and thence into a river. The plaintiffs' predecessors, the W. local board, were constituted in 1878, and could in that year have put into operation the provisions of this section (s. 150). There was evidence that in 1882 their surveyor knew of at least one connection of drains with this pipe, and that complaint having been made in 1892 as to the outfall into the river, the plaintiffs proposed a scheme by which the drainage was to be diverted from the 12-inch pipe and carried into septic tanks. It was held on the evidence as a finding of fact that the authority must be taken to have been satisfied with the sewer, and could not now re sewer the road at the cost of the frontagers under s. 150 (Wilmslow U. D. C. v. Sidebottom (1906), 70 J. P. 537; 5 L. G. R. 80; 26 Digest 528, 2265). Semble, on the authority of Bonella v. Twickenham L. B., ante, p. 4395, when a sewer has thus existed for a long period of years, it must be inferred that the sewer has been accepted by the authority as a sewer laid to their satisfaction (ibid.).

In Hornsey L. B. v. Davis, [1893] 1 Q. B. 756; 57 J. P. 612; 26 Digest 528, 2264, the owners of a building estate, predecessors in title of the defendant, deposited plans which were approved by the authority, showing a road to be drained by an intended sewer crossing the New River; and an agreement was made by the New River Company with the owners to divert the New River for the purpose of laying the sewer according to the plans. The sewer was laid as far as the New River, where it stopped, and the New River never was diverted according to the agreement, so that the sewer was never completed and had no outfall; but the work done was from time to time inspected during its progress by a servant of the authority, who authorised the covering in of the various sections, and made reports to the authority, who never expressed any dissatisfaction. The sewer was never used, and in five years became out of repair, whereupon the authority gave notice to the frontagers to construct a new sewer, and in default themselves constructed it. It was held that the authority had power to accept and did accept the original sewer, although it had no outfall and was incapable of being used as a sewer, and that the road having once been sewered to their satisfaction the expenses of constructing the new sewer were not chargeable on the frontagers.

A private street is not necessarily "sewered" within the meaning of this section where the houses in it are served either singly or in groups by private drains or sewers constructed by the several owners of the houses, but not forming one system. Accordingly, the authority may, although these private sewers are vested in them under s. 13 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 631), require the frontagers to sewer the street, unless they have, either expressly or by implication, determined that it is already sewered to their satisfaction, in which case their powers are no longer exercisable, and any new sewers required must be provided at their expense under ss. 15, 18 (op. cit. 632, 634) (Handsworth D. C. v. Derrington, [1897] 2 Ch. 438; 61 J. P. 518; 26 Digest 528, 2268). This decision is in accordance with an earlier one (Handsworth L. B. v. Taylor (1893), [1897] 2 Ch. 442 n; 58 J. P. 9 n), where ROMER, J., said: "The owner of houses wished to exercise his right of draining those houses into the nearest sewer in the district, and what he did was to form a drain for the houses which, for his purposes, should drain them into the nearest sewer, and that he did. That was approved of and sanctioned by the board; but, looking at the circumstances of the case, I am satisfied that it was not intended by the owner or by the board, at the time, that this drain should be regarded as or accepted as a sewer of part of the street in which these houses were. What was done was merely a drainage of the particular houses by one drain instead of several into the nearest sewer. The board, in my opinion, never did approve of the drain as a sewer to their satisfaction for any part of this street." See also observations of CHANNELL, J., in Rishton v. Haslingden Corporation, [1898] 1 Q. B. 294; 62 J. P. 85; 26 Digest 543, 2416, and Hanwell U. D. C. and Smith, In re (1904), 68 J. P. 496; 26 Digest 531, 2300.

Up to 1881 the soil sewage in a private street was drained into cesspools, and the surface water was carried by channels constructed by the owners of the adjoining land into a river. In 1881 the authority made a contract for the construction of soil and surface water sewers in the street, but subsequently decided to omit the surface water sewer. The soil sewer was constructed at the expense of the rates, the surface water continuing to be carried away by the channels. In 1891 the authority resolved to serve notices under s. 150, requiring the frontagers to pave, metal, channel, and make good the street; but before the notices were served they accepted a guarantee from twelve frontagers to put and maintain the road in repair. In 1904 the authority served notices on the frontagers requiring them to provide a surface water sewer, and, on the frontagers making default, themselves provided the sewer. On proceedings to recover the expenses, it was objected that the street had been sewered to the satisfaction of the authority prior to 1904; but the justices found as a fact that it had not. It was held that there was evidence upon which they could arrive at that conclusion (Bloor v. Beckenham Urban District Council, [1908] 2 K. B. 671; 72 J. P. 325; 26 Digest 529, 2269).

In the metropolis, when a new street is paved at the expense of the owners, the Works other authority is bound afterwards to keep it in repair, whether it has become a highway than or not (R. v. Hackney District Board of Works (1873), L. R. 8 Q. B. 528; 26 Digest 490, 2007; St. Giles, Camberwell (Vestry of) v. Hunt (1887), 52 J. P. 132; 56 L. J. M. C. 65; 26 Digest 490, 2008), and in Walhamstow L. B. v. Staines, supra, CHITTY, J., appears to have held generally that the powers conferred by this section (s. 150) are exercisable once only: see also Derby (Mayor, etc. of) v. Grudgings, [1894] 2 Q. B. 496; 58 J. P. 685; 26 Digest 535, 2341, per CHARLES, J., and Smith v. Croydon L. B. (1868), 32 J. P. 709. But in Barry and Cadoxton L. B. v. Parry, [1895] 2 Q. B. 110; 50 J. P. 421; 26 Digest 529, 2274, it was held by Lord RUSSELL, C.J., and CHARLES, J., that an authority may call upon the frontagers to do any of the works (except sewerage, as to which see the cases cited, supra) mentioned in this section from time to time, as occasion may require, unless and until the street has been declared to be a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large, notwithstanding that such work may have been previously done at the expense of the frontagers to the satisfaction of the authority. Where, however, all the works required by the section have been done the local authority may be compelled by the frontagers to declare the road a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large under s. 82, P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V. and 13 Halsbury's Statutes 1153.

Where a local authority had in pursuance of an agreement constructed a road outside their district and subsequently after their district had been extended to include the road served notices upon the frontagers under this section, it was held that the fact that they had themselves constructed the road did not estop them from saying that the road was not sewered, metalled, etc., to their satisfaction (Sunderland Corporation v. Priestman, [1927] 2 Ch. 107; 26 L. G. R. 64; Digest Supp.).

The power to "level" given by this section only attaches where the particular street requires to be levelled, looking at it as an isolated street. Where, therefore, the local board required the owner of a house to level the part of a street upon which his house fronted, so as to make it on a level with other streets, it was held that they could not recover from him the expenses incurred by them in doing the work (Caley or Cary v. Kingston-upon-Hull L. B. (1864), 5 B. & S. 816; 29 J. P. 116; 26 Digest 527, 2261). See, however, in districts where the Private Street Works Act, 1892, is in force, s. 9, thereof, post, p. 4358.

An authority have no power when making up a street under this section to alter the respective widths of the carriageway and footway of the street (Robertson v. Bristol (Mayor, etc. of), [1900] 2 Q. B. 198; 64 J. P. 389; 26 Digest 527, 2259; Wandsworth Borough Council v. Golds, [1911] 1 K. B. 60; 74 J. P. 464; 26 Digest 489, 2001), except in cases where the relative proportions of carriageway and footway have been left undetermined by the owner of the soil (Stretford U. D. C. v. Manchester, etc. Rail. Co., ante, p. 4391: per the VICE-CHANCELLOR of the County Palatine of Lancaster). Where s. 35 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, has been adopted, however, any alteration may be made in the respective widths provided that any extra expense thereby incurred is borne by the urban authority and not charged upon the frontages. This section is as from April 1st, 1930, of universal Alteration of roadway and pavement.

Note to Section 150. application in all rural districts by the county council under Sched. I., Pt. I., of the L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 975. See the notes to the Private Street Works Act, 1892, s. 6, post, p. 4851.

The authority have not the right to make what in fact are physically two streets, separated by a wall built across the junction, into a single street by the removal of the wall, even after taking over both streets (Urban Housing Co., Ltd. v. Oxford Corporation, post, p. 4729).

Widenings. It will be observed that the authority are not empowered to call upon the owners to widen a private street; and notices which contain such a requirement would probably be held to be invalid. As to the circumstances under which the authority could themselves undertake a widening, see notes to s. 154, post, p. 4425.

Maintenance. The L. G. B. held in a case which came before them that notices which required owners to maintain a street for a period after it was made up were of doubtful validity, and called in question the power of the authority to proceed upon default of the owners. The Board pointed out that the owners might have been willing to do all the works which they could be legally required to do under the section.

Lighting. The previous Acts did not mention "lighting." Under this section the frontagers can only be required to provide "means of lighting," which presumably means structural works only, such as pipes or wires, lamps, etc., and does not include a supply of gas, etc. Under s. 161, post, p. 4445, the authority may, at the cost of the general rate, provide such lamps, etc. as they think necessary for lighting the streets in their district. They may therefore provide lamps and other apparatus in private streets instead of using their powers under s. 150. The authority may also, if they think fit, and if the circumstances warrant such a course, defray the cost of lighting private as well as public streets.

The notice to pave, etc. (f) Notice to pave, etc.—Note that the notice may be given to the owner or occupier, but that owners only are responsible for the expenses if recovered summarily. Unless notice has been given to the owner or occupier to do the work, the expenses cannot be recovered from the former (Jarrow L. B. v. Kennedy (1870), L. R. 6 Q. B. 128; 35 J. P. 248; 26 Digest 523, 2241; and see also Pierson v. Altrincham U. D. C. (1917), 81 J. P. 149; 15 L. G. R. 228; 21 Digest 299, 1078).

An authority incurred expenses in paving a street without having served a notice under this section upon the then owners of certain premises. They now claimed in an action against the present owners a declaration that the expenses were a charge on the premises (see s. 257, post, p. 4489). A predecessor in title of the defendants had paid to the authority an instalment of the expenses. It was held that the authority were not entitled to the declaration claimed, inasmuch as service of the notice was a condition precedent to liability on the part of the defendants, and the payment by their predecessors could not operate as a waiver of the omission (Farnworth L. B. v. Compton (1886), 34 W. R. 334; 26 Digest 524, 2243; and see Bacup (Corporation of) v. Smith, ante, p. 709).

In January a local board passed a resolution for the paving and sewerage of a street, and on May 11th notice was served on P. & Co., requiring them to pave, sewer, etc. P. & Co. had been owners of land abutting on the street, but by a conveyance of April 27th had conveyed their estate to the respondent. The board had no notice of this conveyance. In an action by the board to recover the paving expenses from the respondent, it was held that P. & Co. were not at the time of the service of the notice either owners or occupiers of the premises, and that as the proper steps prescribed by the section had not been taken, the respondent was not liable (Wallsend L. B. v. Murphy (1889), 61 L. T. 777; 6 T. L. R. 29; 26 Digest 524, 2247).

According to a dictum of KEKEWICH, J., the notice must be served on every frontager, and, if it is not, the expenses cannot be recovered even from those who have been served (Handsworth U. D. C. v. Derrington, [1897] 2 Ch. 438; 61 J. P. 518; 26 Digest 528, 2268). This dictum was not followed in Sunderland Corporation v. Gray, [1928] Ch. 756; 91 J. P. 52; Digest Supp. In that case notices had been served upon all the frontagers except one, and in proceedings for enforcing a charge on premises in respect of which notice had been served, it was held that there is no condition precedent implied in s. 150 that before a charge can be enforced all the front-agers must have been served with notice. The expense of making up that part of the road fronting upon the premises of the person who was not served cannot, however, be apportioned upon the frontagers who have been served and must be borne by the authority. Cf. Leeds Corporation v. Armitage (1899), 43 Sol. J. 263. In that case notices were given to all the frontagers in a street save one, and the omission was not discovered until the work had been begun. The work was then stopped and notice given to the frontager, who did nothing, and the authority completed the work. It was held that he could not be made liable as he had never had the opportunity of doing the work, as the statute required. In this case it will be observed that the proceedings were against a frontager who had not been served until part of the work had been done.

For definition of owner, see s. 4, ante, p. 4335. As to authentication and service of the notice, see ss. 266, 267, post, pp. 4494—5.

Service of the notice on a person who is de facto in receipt of the rent, is a service on the owner sufficient to satisfy the requirements of this section (Peek v. Waterloo and Seaforth L. B. (1863), 27 J. P. 807; 33 L. J. M. C. 11; 26 Digest 524, 2246; and see St. Helen's (Mayor of) v. Kirkham, where an agent for the collection of rents was held to be an owner within the meaning of this section, and other cases cited therewith on p. 709, ante). Section 267, post, p. 4495, which contains provisions as to service of notices, was intended to aid those who have to serve notices, and was not meant to prevent a notice, otherwise perfectly good, from being good. Therefore, service at an owner's place of business, by delivering and reading it to his clerk, was held a good service (Mason v. Bibby (1864), 28 J. P. 121; 33 L. J. M. C. 105; 38 Digest 176, 182; and see Woodford U. D. C. v. Hemwood (1899), 64 J. P. 148; 26 Digest 543, 2418).

As to what work an authority may require frontagers to do, see preceding note.

As some difficulty had been experienced in framing notices under the corresponding P. H. A., 1848, s. 69 (Mayor of Blackburn v. Parkinson (1858), 23 J. P. 262; 28 L. J. M. C. 7; 26 Digest 551, 2477; Bayley v. Wilkinson (1864), 16 C. B. (n.s.) 161; 26 Digest 525, 2251); Local Government Act, 1858 (Amendment) Act, 1861, s. 17, enacted that the form of notice in Sched. A. to that Act, or one to the like effect, might be used. The form of notice under this Act will be found in Sched. IV., Form G. (13 Halsbury's Statutes 776), although no reference is made to it in the text.

In Acton L. B. v. Lewsey (1886), 11 App. Cas. 93; 50 J. P. 708; 26 Digest 529, 2276, Lord BRAMWELL said: "Upon the point which occurred to me, that the board had no right to order the way in which the work should be done, I still have sufficient doubt to recommend local boards, when they do give orders that work shall be done, not to prescribe the mode in which it shall be done, but to content themselves with saying that, if done in a particular way, it will be satisfactory to them." In that case, however, the provisions of s. 317 and Sched. IV., Form G., post, p. 4524, and 13 Halsbury's Statutes 776, were not brought to the notice of the court, and it is submitted that the dictum of Lord BRAMWELL is of doubtful authority. A notice which is not in the form set out in Sched. IV., post, p. 4524, but merely refers in general terms to the provisions of the section and does not give particulars of the work to be done, or mention that plans and sections are deposited for inspection, is not sufficient (Stourbridge U. D. C. v. Butler and Grove, [1909] 1 Ch. 87; 73 J. P. 3; 26 Digest 525, 2252).

A corporation paved three roads under a local Act and sued the frontagers for the expenses. One road was a "back road" and two were "cross roads" (as defined by the Act), but the notice called them all "back roads":—Held, that the mistake could not have misled the frontagers, and that, therefore, the notice was sufficient (Blackburn Corporation v. Sanderson, [1902] 1 K. B. 794; 66 J. P. 452; 26 Digest 548, 2452).

See Acton L. B. v. Lewsey, Kershaw v. Sheffield Corporation, and Acton U. D. C. v. Watts, p. 4410, post, as to the effect of an authority carrying out work not identical with that specified in their notice.

As to the time allowed by the notice for doing the work, see note (hh), post, p. 4405.

A notice is not bad because it may involve the entering upon the soil of another person to execute the work comprised in it (West Hartlepool Corporation v. Robinson

Note to
Section 150.

Note to Section 150. (1897), 62 J. P. 35; 77 L. T. 387; 26 Digest 275, 133. And see Lancaster v. Barnes U. D. C., [1898] 1 Q. B. 855; 62 J. P. 405; 36 Digest 236, 748).

A notice which is ultra vires as to part, but good as to the residue, may be enforceable in respect of the valid portion. Thus a notice to flag a street, referring to a plan which included a garden not dedicated to the public, was held to be valid so far as it applied to the street and enforceable accordingly (Hall v. Potter (1869), 34 J. P. 515; 39 L. J. M. C. 1; 26 Digest 526, 2255).

Notice was given to the appellant and five others requiring them to sewer, pave, etc. the parts of a street in front of their premises within a specified time. Five of the owners executed the works, but the appellant made default. The board thereupon did the work, and, the surveyor having made an apportionment, gave her notice accordingly. It was held that the board were not bound before executing the work to give the appellant a fresh notice specifying the particular works remaining to be done by her (Simcox v. Handsworth L. B. (1881), 8 Q. B. D. 39; 46 J. P. 260; 26 Digest 524, 2242). In this case it was argued that the notice was not a separate notice to each owner to do the work opposite his own premises, but was a notice to all the owners in respect of the entire work. But CROVE, J., in delivering the judgment of the court, said it was not meant that each owner may be called upon to execute the whole. And see Wakefield Sanitary Authority v. Mander (1880), 5 C. P. D. 248; 44 J. P. 522; 26 Digest 530, 2282, the facts of which are stated in note (n), post, p. 4414; and Macclesfield Corporation v. Macclesfield Grammar School, [1921] 2 Ch. 189; 26 Digest 526, 2254; Sunderland Corporation v. Gray, [1928] Ch. 756; 91 J. P. 52; Digest Supp., in note (hh), post, p. 4405, and Cardiff Corporation v. Cardiff Pure Ice and Cold Storage Co., Ltd. (1930), 95 J. P. 11; 29 L. G. R. 29; Digest Supp. But see, on the other hand, Handsworth U. D. C. v. Derrington, [1897] 2 Ch. 438; 61 J. P. 518; 26 Digest 528, 2268; and Lancaster v. Barnes U. D. C., [1898] 1 Q. B. 855; 62 J. P. 405; 41 Digest 40, 296, where WILLS, J., said: "The notice is a general one: it is a notice to all the owners collectively to make up the street generally. No one ever saw a notice under s. 150 calling upon each owner to make up that part only which was opposite his own house." See also Leeds (Lord Mayor, etc. of) v. Armitage, ante, p. 4399, and Denman v. Finchley U. D. C., p. 4405, post.

No provision is made in this Act for the owners to object to the notice. Such a provision exists in the Private Street Works Act, 1892 (see post, p. 4848), and was to be found also in Public Works (Manufacturing Districts) Act, 1863, s. 10 (see R. v. Livesey (1870), 34 J. P. 645; 22 L. T. 470; 26 Digest 550, 2466, as to the result of not taking objection at the proper time under that section). It is, however, arguable that an appeal will lie to quarter sessions under s. 7 of the P. H. A., 1907, see that section and notes thereto, at p. 5039, post.

Where a local board had duly proceeded under the Act, and had sewered, etc. a new street, and no notice had been given by an owner that he disputed the apportionment, it was held that it was still open to him to dispute his liability, and to show that the street was a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large (Hesketh v. Atherton L. B. (1873), L. R. 9 Q. B. 4; 38 J. P. 149; 26 Digest 533, 2324; and see other cases cited therewith on p. 4408, post).

Premises
mercium.

(g) Premises Fronting, or Adjoining, or Abutting.—As "ownership" is defined (s. 4, ante, p. 4335) by reference to receipt of rack-rent, "where land is incapable of yielding a rack-rent by reason of its being subjected to some public user, the owner is not liable; for instance, where it has been dedicated as a highway, or where a church has been built upon it which has been consecrated according to English law for public worship, or where it has been appropriated by Act of Parliament to some public purpose. But, when the incapacity is created in favour of an individual or of a particular class of persons, then the owner does not escape liability; for instance, where the owner has covenanted not to use the land for any purpose of profit, or where he has voluntarily devoted it to a purpose which is inconsistent with the receiving of rent . . . The reason for the distinction seems to be that, in the one case, nothing short of an Act of Parliament can restore the land to its capacity to yield a rent, whereas, in the other case, the capacity can be restored by the mere act of the parties who for the time being have destroyed it" (per BIGHAM, J., in Hampstead Corporation v. Midland Rail. Co., [1904] 2 K. B. 802; 68 J. P. 574; affirmed, [1905] 1 K. B. 538; 69 J. P. 133; 26 Digest 493, 2026). The premises in question in the following cases were held to fall within the first category : Angell v. Paddington Vestry, ante, p. 705 ; Plumstead Board of Works v. British Land Co., ante, p. 706, and post, p. 4405 ; G. E. Rail. Co. v. Hackney Board of Works, ante, p. 706 ; London C. C. v. Wandsworth Borough Council, ante, p. 708 ; Macey v. Executors of James, ante, p. 706. The premises in question in the following were held to fall within the second category : Bowditch v. Wakefield L. B., ante, p. 708 ; Pound v. Plumstead Board of Works, ante, p. 706, and post, p. 4404 ; Wright v. Ingle, ante, p. 705 ; St. Giles, Camberwell v. Lee Conservancy Board, ante, p. 708 ; Hampstead Corporation v. Midland Rail. Co., ante, p. 707 ; and Herne Bay U. D. C. v. Payne, ante, p. 709. Angell v. Paddington, supra, was a case of a church, and Wright v. Ingle, supra, of a Wesleyan chapel ; but churches and chapels are for the purposes of this section expressly provided for by s. 151, post, p. 4420.

For definition of premises, see s. 4, ante, p. 4335. The term includes land. A Decisions as railway in a metropolitan district was carried across a new street by an arch. On to railway one side of the street the railway was carried forward on arches, and on that side property. a strip of land, left open for the purpose of repairing the arches, abutted for ten feet on the street. On the other side the railway was carried forward on an embankment ; the sloping part of the embankment abutted on the street about thirty feet, and at the foot of the embankment were open spaces also abutting on the street, left for the purpose of allowing for slips of the embankment. It was held that the railway company were liable to contribute to the expenses of paving the street as owners of land abutting on it (Higgins v. Harding (1872), L. R. 8 Q. B. 7 ; 37 J. P. 677 ; 26 Digest 494, 2033). This case may be usefully compared with L. B. and S. C. Rail. Co. v. St. Giles, Camberwell (1879), 4 Ex. D. 239 ; 26 Digest 494, 2031. In that case a line of railway was situate in a deep cutting at a place where a road was carried across it on a bridge. The bridge was supported on stone piers erected on the slopes of the cutting. It was held that neither the railway under the bridge nor the slopes of the cutting could be said to abut on the road. Where a railway ran in a cutting alongside a new street which the vestry were about to pave, being separated from it by a wall, through which there was no communication between the street and the railway, it was held that the railway bounded or abutted upon the street (L. & N. W. Rail. Co. v. St. Pancras (Vestry) (1868), 17 L. T. 654 ; 26 Digest 493, 2030 ; followed in Caledonian Rail. Co. v. Magistrates of Edinburgh (1901), 3 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 645). All these cases as to railway cuttings were discussed and approved by the House of Lords in a case where a railway company carried a road over a deep cutting by means of a bridge. The road having been paved by the board of works as a new street, the company were called upon to contribute to the cost of paving. It was held that the parapets of the bridge, though the property of the company, were not land of which they were "owners" for the purposes of the section ; and that the slopes and bottom of the cutting did not "abut on or bound" the new street (G. E. Rail. Co. v. Hackney District Board of Works (1883), 8 App. Cas. 687 ; 48 J. P. 52 ; reversing 9 Q. B. D. 412 ; 46 J. P. 532 ; 26 Digest 494, 2032). The decision of the House of Lords as to the parapet walls may perhaps be regarded as based on an application of the maxim de minimis non curat lex, for the decision in L. & N. W. Rail. Co. v. St. Pancras, supra, was approved. (See hereon Hackney Corporation v. Lee Conservancy Board, [1904] 2 K. B. 541, per COLLINS, M.R., at p. 552 ; 68 J. P. 485 ; 26 Digest 493, 2025).

The decision in the Great Eastern Case was distinguished in Cameron v. Caledonian Rail. Co. (1904), 6 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 763 ; 26 Digest 550, a. There by a local Act, liability for paving a street was imposed upon all "lands or heritages" in it or fronting or adjoining both sides of the line thereof. A railway company, in order to carry their line under the street at right angles, bought and demolished houses on each side of the street ; they then excavated the ground to form a cutting, and carried the roadway across on a bridge ; this bridge with its parapets and steps leading down to a station in the cutting, was the property of the company. It was held that the company were owners of property "adjoining" the street.

Where the Private Street Works Act, 1892, is in force, see s. 22 thereof, post, p. 4868, for special provisions as to railway property.

Premises outside district.

A local authority sought to recover from certain owners apportioned expenses incurred in the execution of works in a road not repairable by the inhabitants at large. The boundary of the authority's district ran along the kerb of one footpath, the carriageway and the footpath on the south side being within the authority's district, and the footpath on the north side being in the neighbouring urban district. The premises of the owners in question abutted on the footpath on the north side, and were wholly within the neighbouring district. The works were executed on the roadway and on the footpath on the south side; and it was sought to make the owners in question equally liable with the frontagers on the south side for the expense of making up the roadway. It was held that the authority had no power to apportion any part of the cost on frontagers not within their district (Mayor, etc. of Hornsey v. Birkbeck Freehold Land Society, [1906] 1 K. B. 521; 70 J. P. 140; 26 Digest 522, 2229). See also Newton v. Lambton, Fletton and Joicey Collieries, Ltd., cited ante, p. 4393. See R. v. Cheshire J.J. (1909), 73 J. P. 499; 101 L. T. 683; 26 Digest 542, 2403, for a case where part of a street lay in a contributory place to which s. 150 had not been applied by order of the L. G. B. Cf. also R. v. Warner (1858), 27 L. J. M. C. 144; Shoreditch Borough Council v. Wakeham (1905), 69 J. P. 239. The L. G. B. expressed the opinion that there is no provision in the P. H. A., 1875, which would enable two councils to carry out a joint scheme for the making up of a street so situated at the cost of the owners. The boundary may be altered under Part VI. of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 920, with the object of getting over the difficulty.

Premises
"in" or "forming"
a street.

A local Act empowered commissioners to pave streets and recover the expenses by rates from the occupiers of houses, etc., "situated or being within any of the streets" in the district. It was held that houses and buildings in a yard communicating with a street by a covered gateway, which houses and buildings abutted on houses in the street, were situated within the street so as to be liable to the rates (Buddleley v. Gingell (1847), 1 Exch. 319; 11 J. P. 838; 26 Digest 493, 2028). This decision was followed in London School Board v. St. Mary, Islington (Vestry of) (1875), 1 Q. B. D. 65; 40 J. P. 310, 26 Digest 493, 2029. In that case the school board were charged as owners of a school-house which did not immediately front the street, but stood back some seventy feet in a large yard, the whole area being about 29,500 square feet. There was a row of eleven small houses with gardens at the back of them between the yard and the street; but the only access to the school was by a private passage which ran along one side of the last house and garden into the yard, with gates opening from the street in question, the width of the passage being twenty feet and the length about sixty-four feet. It was held that the school-house, though not actually one of the houses "forming" the street, yet practically formed part of it, so as to render the board liable as owners for the paving expenses. The court held that benefit of access to the street was the foundation of the liability. But an opinion was expressed that this principle would not apply to the case of an old-established court, the access of which was common to the public and open to every one who liked to go in. The last-mentioned case was decided under the rather different words of the Metropolis Management Acts. It was held in Altrincham U. D. C. v. O'Brien (1927), 91 J. P. 149; Digest Supp., that the question depends on what is to be considered as the close. In that case a house and grounds facing one road and a field adjoining facing a second road were held to be all one close at the time of the making up of the second road.

At common law and still, subject to the impingement on this right of the Restriction of Ribbon Development Act, 1935, ante, p. 2001, the owner of land adjoining a highway has a legal right of access to it at any point where it adjoins his premises. A., 1907, post, p. 5044.

Note to
Section 150.

There can be no liability under s. 150 if intervening land of a third person precludes possibility of access to the street; but, if there be no intervening strip, the fact that the street is private (and therefore cannot be used as of right unless or until it becomes a highway) appears to afford no defence (Walthamstow U. D. C. v. Sandell, infra; cf. Moubray, Rowan and Hicks v. Drew, [1893] A. C. 295; 26 Digest 518, b).

access.

Paving expenses must be apportioned among all the owners of premises fronting, adjoining, or abutting on the street in proportion to the frontage, without any reference to direct or consequential benefit, which the Act assumes to be proportioned to the frontage. Therefore, a railway and canal company whose premises lay along one side of a street were held liable to pay their proportion of the expenses, although they had no immediate access to the street (R. v. Newport L. B. (1863), 3 B. & S. 341; 26 Digest 530, 2281). So, too, the owner of ground at the end of a street forming a cul-de-sac was held liable under a local Act to pay the expenses of paving, notwithstanding that a wall divided his property from the street, which wall, however, he might at any time have removed wholly or partially so as to open access to the street (Manchester (Mayor, etc. of) v. Chapman (1868), 32 J. P. 582; 37 L. J. M. C. 173; 26 Digest 332, 633; see also Newport Sanitary Authority v. Graham, infra; Dodd v. St. Pancras Vestry (1869), 34 J. P. 517; 26 Digest 494, 2034; Sheffield v. Fulham District Board of Works (1876), 1 Ex. D. 395; 26 Digest 272, 116). In another case, premises facing W. street were divided from D. street by a small stream, but were connected with it by two bridges over the stream. All communication with the street could be closed by gates. One of the bridges had been moved and reinstated by the owner of the premises. It was held that the premises fronted, adjoining, or abutted on D. street (Wakefield L. B. v. Lee (1876), 1 Ex. D. 336; 41 J. P. 54; 26 Digest 522, 2226).

In a Scotch case under a similar Act it was held that the upper flat of a tenement held with a plot of garden fronting A. street on the west, and bounded by B. street on the north, was premises abutting on B. street, although the only entrance was from A. street (Campbell v. Edinburgh Magistrates (1891), 19 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 159).

An owner of premises abutting on a cul-de-sac passage was held liable to pay his apportioned share of the costs incurred in making it up, although he had at the time no door into the passage from his premises (Walthamstow U. D. C. v. Sandell (1904), 68 J. P. 509; 2 L. G. R. 835; 26 Digest 522, 2225).

B. owned a house which had its front and only entrance in F. street, and behind it a garden with a dead wall at the further end. A new street was made parallel to F. street, alongside the dead wall at the end of B.'s garden. It was held that B.'s land abutted on this new street (Paddington (Vestry) v. Bramwell (1880), 44 J. P. 815; 26 Digest 495, 2037). A. owned three houses facing Y. place, and abutting at the rear upon a footpath at the end of a cul-de-sac called St. J. street. The ground at the back of these houses was five feet above the level of St. J. street, and the wall, which was A.'s property, was about 12 feet high on the outside. There was no access from A.'s premises to St. J. street. It was held that his premises adjoining or abutted on St. J. street within this section (Newport Urban Sanitary Authority v. Graham (1882), 9 Q. B. D. 183; 47 J. P. 133; 26 Digest 522, 2224). CAVE, J., said: "If it had been shown that the wall at the end of St. J. street did not belong to the respondent, or that a strip of land intervened between his premises and the street, they would not have been adjoining or abutting."

W. having a strip of land about four inches wide and 265 feet long abutting on the north side of a street, had erected a boundary fence upon the land along its whole extent, under a covenant to erect, and for ever after maintain, such a fence made with his vendor, who was owner of the land adjoining the strip on the north side. It was held that W. was the owner of the strip of land, and, as such, liable

Note to Section 150. for paying expenses (Williams v. Wandsworth Board of Works (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 211; 48 J. P. 439; 26 Digest 495, 2038; followed in Scott v. Investors' Property Corporation (1904), 68 J. P. N. 352; cf. Elsdon v. Hampstead Corporation, [1905] 2 Ch. 633; 69 J. P. 434; 26 Digest 495, 2041; and Hampstead Borough Council v. Western (1907), 71 J. P. 565; 26 Digest 496, 2043; Hall v. Bolsover U. D. C. (1909), 73 J. P. 140; 100 L. T. 372; 26 Digest 545, 2429). The court pointed out in Williams v. Wandsworth Board of Works, supra, that, in the event of the owner of the adjoining property desiring to have access to the street, the strip would command a considerable rent. It was therefore capable of being let at a rack-rent. In Leith Magistrates v. Gibb (1882), 9 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 627; 26 Digest 522, 2227 i, the owner of property, which was separated from a street by a wall which belonged to some one else, was held not to be liable as the owner of property "fronting or abutting" on such street. The LORD PRESIDENT said there must be access, or an undoubted right of access, from the property sought to be charged to the street.

As to boundary walls in joint ownership, see L. & S. W. Rail. Co. v. Blackmore (1870), L. R. 4 H. L. 610, 618; 35 J. P. 324; 11 Digest 284, 2125; Watson v. Gray (1880), 14 Ch. D. 192; 44 J. P. 537; 43 Digest 398, 222.

A. B. owned plots of land, with cottages thereon, separated from a street by a wall five feet high, which belonged, with the land on which it stood, to another person. A public footway ran between the plots of land and through an opening in the wall into the street about its middle. The backs only of the cottages fronted the street, and the only way for vehicles from the cottages to the street was by a small roadway, which, without touching that part of the street which had been paved, came into a highway which joined one end of such street. With the exception of the public footway, this roadway was the only access from the cottages to the street. It was held by the Court of Appeal that A. B. was not the owner of premises "fronting, adjoining, or abutting" on the street within the meaning of this section (Lightbound v. Higher Bebington L. B. (1885), 16 Q. B. D. 577; 50 J. P. 500; 26 Digest 522, 2227).

B. purchased in 1903 two houses which she converted into one house fronting on G. road, and in 1907 purchased further land which was added to the grounds, and in the same year purchased a field fronting on E. road. This field was leased to B.'s husband who lived with her, but the lease expired in 1918. The field and the house with the other land purchased in 1907 had always been separately assessed for rates. When E. road had been made up in 1920, the local authority claimed a charge on the whole of B.'s property. It was held that the house and grounds and the field must be considered as one close and subject to the charge (Altrincham U. D. C. v. O'Brien (1927), 91 J. P. 149; Digest Supp.).

"Abutting," As to the meaning of the words "abutting," see notes to s. 25 of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932, ante, pp. 1946—7. For that of the words "adjoining," etc., see notes to s. 114 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, pp. 352—3.

Benefit of access in the case of premises not fronting, adjoining, or abutting on the street or part of a street to be paved, etc. is especially provided for under the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4848. See s. 10 of that Act, post, p. 4859.

Soil of side streets.

The soil of private roads leading out of a new street was held to be "land bounding or abutting on such street" in Pound and Lord Northbrook v. Plumstead Board of Works (1871), L. R. 7 Q. B. 183; 36 J. P. 468; 26 Digest 278, 152. But in this case Lord N. had determinately reserved the property in the roads to himself. He had not dedicated them to the public, and nothing that he had done was past recall. In a subsequent case, this decision was distinguished. There the defendants, a land company, being owners of certain lands in 1863, laid them out for building purposes and made roads across them, and nearly the whole of the estate was sold in lots to different purchasers. Each lot had a frontage upon one of the roads. The roads had been dedicated to the public, as far as any act of the defendants could do so, but no proceedings were taken to make them repairable by the parish. The plaintiffs, the board of works for the district, from time to time paved the new streets formed by the houses on the estate, and apportioned the cost among the owners of houses forming the streets and the owners of land bounding and abutting on the street. In so doing they charged the defendants in respect of the new streets or roads when these bounded or abutted on the sides or ends of the streets paved, as being lands abutting on those streets. It was held by the Exchequer Chamber that, assuming the property in the soil of the roads to be in the defendants, they were improperly charged, for they were not, in respect of roads which had been irrevocably dedicated to the public, the owners of land within the meaning of the section (Plumstead Board of Works v. British Land Co. (1875), L. R. 10 Q. B. 203; 39 J. P. 376; 26 Digest 495, 2036; reversing L. R. 10 Q. B. 16; 39 J. P. 133; and see Stretford U. D. C. v. Manchester South Junction and Altrincham Rail. Co. (1903), 68 J. P. 50; 19 T. L. R. 546; 26 Digest 523, 2237, per the VICE-CHANCELLOR of the County Palatine of Lancaster). The decision in Plumstead Board of Works v. British Land Co., supra, is illustrative of the principle referred to, ante, at p. 4400, that premises cannot be charged unless they are capable of yielding a rack-rent. It must be observed, however, as to Pound and Lord Northbrook v. Plumstead Board of Works, (1871) L. R. 7 Q. B. 183; 36 J. P. 468; 26 Digest 277, 152, that Metropolis Management Amendment Act, 1862, s. 77 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 986), makes the owners of houses and land in the street liable not only for the work done to the street proper, but for the paving, etc. to the intersections of the streets. This provision is not contained in the text, and it remains to be decided whether in an urban district the owners of the soil of a street (not dedicated to the public) abutting on a street within this section can be charged with a proportion of the expenses of paving, etc. the latter.

lighting.

(hh) On Nov. 17th, 1911, the frontagers of C. street received notices requiring them to make up the street, and, amongst other things, make connections with the sewer, within six weeks. At that time contractors were at work making up another road, to which C. street was the only access; and accordingly the plaintiff, after informing the authority of that fact, and that he proposed, with the consent of the other frontagers, to make up the whole of the road himself, waited until the work in the other road was finished. In March, 1912, such work being finished, he began the work in C. street, but the authority refused to supply the levels, or to co-operate unless he signed an agreement as to the making up of the street which they alleged he had agreed to enter into after the six weeks specified in the notice had run out. On May 1st the work was ready for the connections with the sewers to be made, but upon the plaintiff requesting the authority to make the same, they refused to do so, or to allow him to do so, on the ground that the works were not being done under the notice and that the agreement had not yet been signed. The plaintiff made a connection, which the council cut off. The plaintiff then issued a writ for an injunction, and subsequently an arrangement was come to by which the council made the connections at the plaintiff's expense:—Held, that the council had never intervened after the expiration of the six weeks or given definite notice of their intention to do so; that the plaintiff had bonâ fide endeavoured to comply with the notice; that there had been no unreasonable delay on his part; that he was entitled to have the connections made when he called upon the council to make them; and that the defendants must pay the costs of the action (Denman v. Finchley U. D. C. (1912), 76 J. P. 405; 10 L. G. R. 697; 26 Digest 529, 2280).

Time limit

The time specified in the notice within which the work shall be completed must be a reasonable time and must take into account the nature and extent of the work and the time which ought fairly and reasonably to be allowed for the completion of that work, under all the circumstances. The least time that can fairly and reasonably be allotted for the completion of the work, being ascertained, is the least time to be inserted in the notice; there is a discretion to allow further time for the completion of the work, but not to fix any shorter time (Bristol Corporation v. Sinnott, [1918] 1 Ch. 62; 82 J. P. 9; 26 Digest 525, 2253). In that case a local authority served a notice under this section on frontagers of part of a street 1450 feet long, to sewer, level, pave, etc. the same within one calendar month. The frontagers did not commence the works nor object to the validity of the notice, and after three months the local authority began the works and completed them within four months, and served the frontagers with the usual demand for payment. In an action to recover payment, after an appeal to the L. G. B., which was later withdrawn and no order made by the Board, it was held that the notice was bad in not specifying a reasonable time for the execution of the works, and that the local authority could not recover the expenses from the frontagers. And see also Macclesfield Corporation v. Macclesfield Grammar School, [1921] 2 Ch. 189; 90 L. J. Ch. 477; 26 Digest 526, 2254, and Cardiff Corp'n. v. Cardiff Pure Ice and Cold Storage Co. Ltd. (1930), 96 J. P. 11; 29 L. G. R. 29; Digest Supp., for other decisions on the question of reasonable time in which Bristol Corporation v. Sinnott, [1918] 1 Ch. 62; 82 J. P. 9; 26 Digest 525, 2253, were considered.

In the Macclesfield Case, supra, RUSSELL, J., expressed the view that the work each frontager is required to do is the work upon that portion of the street upon which his property abuts and that, therefore, in considering the reasonableness of the time regard must be had to the particular work each frontager is required to do. This view was approved both by the C. A. in the Cardiff Case, supra, and by CLAUSON, J., in Sunderland Corporation v. Gray, [1928] Ch. 756; 91 J. P. 52; Digest Supp. But in both the earlier cases the court was satisfied on the evidence that the time allowed was adequate even if regard were had to the work upon the whole of the street.

(i) Deposit of Plans.—It has been held that the deposit of these plans is not a condition precedent to the recovery of the expenses from the owners (Cook v. Ipswich L. B. (1871), L. R. 6 Q. B. 451; 35 J. P. 565; 26 Digest 521, 2220 : per BLACKBURN, J.). It should be observed, however, that in this case the plans were in fact deposited, though at the office of an official instead of at that of the authority, and, moreover, they were actually inspected. In Shanklin L. B. v. Millar (1880), 5 C. P. D. 272; 44 J. P. 635; 26 Digest 530, 2286, a county court judge held that paving expenses could not be recovered from a frontager on the ground that the opportunities afforded to him for inspecting the deposited documents were not reasonable, the byelaws of the local board having provided that their office should be open only on Mondays and Thursdays from 10 till 3. The High Court reversed this decision on the ground that the provision as to deposit of plans was directory only, and not a condition precedent to the recovery of the expenses. In a later case, MANISTY, J., expressed the view that the provisions of the section as to deposit of plans were not merely directory (Manchester Corporation v. Hampson (1887), 35 W. R. 334, 591; 26 Digest 526, 2256). It has been held that the omission to follow the plans in every respect does not affect the right to recover so long as the work is substantially the same; see Acton L. B. v. Lewsey and cases cited therewith, post, p. 4410. A notice given under this section must, however, state that the plans are deposited at the offices of the local authority, and that they are open to inspection, unless the notice gives specific and precise details of the works to be done (Stourbridge U. D. C. v. Butler and Grove, [1909] 1 Ch. 87; 73 J. P. 3; 26 Digest 525, 2252).

(k) Execution of Works by Urban Authority.—Owners having made default, the local board of M. contracted with W. to do the work for them, the contractor to be paid for the work when the money was collected from the frontagers. By inadvertence the board had given bad notices, and were, therefore, unable to collect the money. W., having done the work, sued the board for the amount due to him by the contract. It was held that he was entitled to recover, as an undertaking must be implied on the part of the board that they were in a position to collect the money and pay it over to him (Worthington v. Sudlow (1862), 2 B. & S. 508; 26 J. P. 453; 26 Digest 529, 2275). In another case the plaintiff had in 1858 entered into contracts with a local board for the execution of works under this section, to be paid for out of money to be collected from the frontagers. The contracts were duly performed by the plaintiff. The notices given by the board turned out to be bad, and many frontagers refused to pay the sums assessed upon them. This became known to the plaintiff in 1860, and he then demanded payment. The board were in hopes of being able to collect the money, notwithstanding the invalid notices, and by November, 1860, £800 was collected and paid over to the plaintiff, leaving a balance due of more than £3,000. The plaintiff sued for this sum and obtained judgment, and within six months afterwards commenced an action claiming a writ of mandamus commanding the board to levy a rate to satisfy the judgment. It was held that the delay in commencing the original action was reasonable, and that a peremptory writ might be granted (Worthington v. Hulton (1865), L. R. 1 Q. B. 63; 16 Digest 321, 1333).

Before entering into a contract for the execution of work under this section, it was not necessary to obtain an estimate from the surveyor as to future repairs under the former s. 174 (3) (13 Halsbury's Statutes 698), now replaced by standing order (see ante, p. 1129) ; nor was such report as is there mentioned a condition precedent to the right to recover the amounts apportioned on the several owners (Cunningham v. Wolverhampton L. B. (1857), 7 E. & B. 107 ; 21 J. P. 262 ; 33 Digest 37, 201).

As to the power of an authority to agree with one or more owners to execute the works without observing the formalities required by the section, see Hall v. Bailey Corporation, ante, p. 587. That case was decided with reference to s. 23 (now repealed) (13 Halsbury's Statutes 635), but the principle laid down in it appears to be equally applicable to this section. LUSH, J., said : " It is not permitted to them (the authority) arbitrarily to interfere and do the work at the owner's expense without first giving him the opportunity of doing it himself. But if they were to do so he is the only person who could complain. The Act requires that the work shall be done by the one party or the other, and surely the owner may waive the option given him by the Act if he pleases, and agree with the urban authority that the drain shall be made by them as if the preliminaries had been observed." And s. 257, post, p. 4489, evidently contemplates that there are works which may be done by agreement with the owner, so as to make the expenses recoverable from him and a charge on the premises as therein provided. In Lewis v. Cardiff Urban Sanitary Authority (1878), 47 L. J. M. C. 101 ; 26 Digest 534, 2330, an owner, having received notice to pave, indorsed on the notice an authority to the local board to execute the works, and an undertaking to pay the costs on completion. On default of payment after demand, the board proceeded to recover the expenses in a summary manner. It was held that the owner, having by the submission indorsed on the notice admitted the right of the authority to issue such notice, could not require proof before the justices of the fulfilment of the conditions precedent to the existence of such right. It was held, however, that the owner could not by such submission give jurisdiction to the authority if in fact they had none, but that he did thereby waive proof by them of the preliminaries to the notice, and made it incumbent on himself to disprove their original authority if he wished to dispute it. It was, therefore, open to him to show that the street was a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large. See further hereon Mayor, etc. of Folkestone v. Marsh, and Mayor, etc. of Folkestone v. Rook, cited in the notes to s. 146, ante, pp. 4367-8.

It must be noticed that the authority have a discretion as to whether they will execute the works or not. See Denman v. Finchley U. D. C., p. 4405, ante, as to the position where frontagers have begun to do the works required before the authority take any steps in the matter.

See p. 4397, ante, as to altering the respective widths of roadway and footpath, and see p. 4409, post, as to departures from the deposited plans.

See the P. H. A. A. A., 1907, s. 28, post, p. 5049, as to the removal of materials in streets. The section will only be operative where it has been applied by an order of the M. of H.

As to the liability of the authority for any negligence of their contractor in executing the work, see the cases cited in the notes to s. 265, post, p. 4494.

(l) In a Summary Manner.—See s. 251, post, p. 4481. Where a statute provides a Statutory particular method of recovering such expenses, an action will not lie, the remedy is given by the statute being exclusive (St. Pancras (Vestry of) v. Batterbury (1857), 2 C. B. (N.S.) 477 ; 21 J. P. 424 ; 26 Digest 499, 2071. And see Lamplugh v. Norton (1889), 22 Q. B. D. 452, 456 ; 53 J. P. 389 ; Re Boor, Boor v. Hopkins (1889), 40 Ch. D. 572, 576 ; 53 J. P. 467 ; 26 Digest 538, 2376 ; G. W. Rail. Co. v. Sharmman (1892), 61 L. J. Q. B. 600 ; 40 W. R. 643 ; 26 Digest 339, 690). A special Act incorporating the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ante, p. 4156, and the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, ante, p. 4200, provided that certain expenses incurred by commissioners in paving streets, etc. might be recoverable as damages. An action having been brought to recover expenses so incurred, it was held that it was not maintainable, the proper construction of the several Acts being, that the expenses were to be recovered as damages before justices under s. 140 of the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ante, p. 4159 (Blackburn (Mayor of) v. Parkinson (1858), 23 J. P. 262 ; 28 L. J. M. C. 7 ; 26 Digest 551, 2477). But this Act provides for the recovery of amounts below £50 in the county court (s. 261, post, p. 4491), and makes the amount a charge on the premises (s. 257, post, p. 4489).

A local authority need not wait until the six months during which the summary remedy is available have expired before commencing proceedings to enforce the Section 150. L. G. R. 64; Digest Supp.).

This section does not create the relationship of debtor and creditor between an owner and the authority. The only means of recovering the expenses are those provided by the Act. Therefore, a summons for leave to prove in an administration action for the amount awarded was dismissed in West v. Downman (1880), 14 Ch. D. 111; 26 Digest 531, 2302. And see Re Boor, Boor v. Hopkins (1889), 40 Ch. D. 572, 576; 53 J. P. 467; 26 Digest 538, 2376. In Eccles v. Wirral R. S. A. (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 107; 50 J. P. 596; 26 Digest 534, 2336, MATHEW, J., said: "By s. 261, jurisdiction is conferred on the county court in cases of this kind, when the amount is below £50, and although I cannot find any provision which in terms gives the superior court jurisdiction, I should infer that where the amount is above £50, an action would lie in the superior court." But this dictum was delivered without reference to the cases above cited, and there are dicta in later cases that no action lies in the superior court for the recovery of these expenses. See Willesden L. B. and Wright, In re, [1896] 2 Q. B. 412; 60 J. P. 708; 26 Digest 532, 2303; Hanwell U. D. C. and Smith, In re (1904), 68 J. P. 496; 26 Digest 531, 2300. In the case of expenses incurred under the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4848, a right of action in any court of competent jurisdiction is given by s. 14, post, p. 4864.

As to the several methods of enforcing payment of these expenses under this Act, see the notes to s. 257, post, p. 4489, and especially the judgment of BRETT, L.J., in Tottenham L. B. v. Rowell, there quoted at length.

Summary proceedings having been taken against an owner for payment of his proportion of expenses, justices ordered him in default of distress to be imprisoned with hard labour. As they had no power to do so, quarter sessions on appeal quashed the order without going into the merits. Afterwards the authority obtained a new order to pay the same amount. It was held that the justices had jurisdiction to make the new order, the former having been quashed as null and void (Lister v. Hedden L. B. (1878), 42 J. P. 119).

Orders having been obtained by a local board against A. and L., for payment of paving expenses under this section, it was agreed that the order against L. should not be enforced for three months, in order to enable a case to be stated on a point of law. At the same time an understanding was come to that the order against A. should abide the decision in L.'s case. L., instead of taking his case to the Queen's Bench, went before quarter sessions, and the order against him was quashed on a technical ground (see Lister v. Hedden L. B., supra). A. was not informed of the course taken by L., and the three months having expired within which she should have appealed, the local board obtained a distress warrant against her to enforce payment. On motion by A. to restrain the board from enforcing payment until she had had an opportunity of stating a case for the opinion of the Court of Queen's Bench, it was held that the court had power to restrain the board, and on A. undertaking to consent to a case and to pay the money into court, the injunction was granted (Ashworth v. Hedden Bridge L. B. (1877), 47 L. J. Ch. 195; 37 L. T. 496; 28 Digest 470, 790).

Jurisdiction
of court :
defences

The court cannot entertain any question as to whether the work was necessary or proper under the circumstances, that being for the local authority to decide (Bayley v. Wilkinson (1864), 16 C. B. (N. S.) 161; 26 Digest 525, 2251; Cook v. Ipswich L. B. (1871), L. R. 6 Q. B. 451; 35 J. P. 565; 26 Digest 521, 2220. And see Chelsea (Vestry of) v. Evans (1870), 35 J. P. 23; 26 Digest 498, 2060). They may, however, inquire into the original liability of the persons charged; for example, they may and ought to decide whether the street is or is not a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large (Hesketh v. Atherton L. B. (1873), L. R. 9 Q. B. 4; 38 J. P. 149; 26 Digest 533, 2324. And see to the same effect Midland Rail. Co. v. Watton (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 30; 50 J. P. 405; 26 Digest 533, 2325; Eccles v. Wirral R. S. A., supra; R. (on the prosecution of) Cleckheaton L. B. v. Burnup (1886), 50 J. P. 598; 26 Digest 270, 94; Lewis v. Cardiff Urban Sanitary Authority, ante, p. 4407). An objection that a street is a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large may properly be raised in proceedings to enforce payment of the expenses, for it goes to the jurisdiction of the authority to execute the work at the expense of the frontagers (Walthamstow L. B. v. Staines, [1891] 2 Ch. 606; 26 Digest 528, 2372). If, however, there is any ground of liability, and the objection only goes to the extent of that liability and the principle upon which it is to be determined, the justices or other court cannot entertain the objection in proceedings to enforce payment. Thus, in Wake v. Sheffield Corporation (1883), 12 Q. B. D. 142; sub nom. R. v. Recorder of Sheffield, 48 J. P. 197; 26 Digest 538, 2370, a frontager objected that the plans referred to in the notice showed that part of the work was executed upon land belonging to private owners. It was held that as part of the work was executed in a street, the magistrate could only order payment of the apportioned sum, and the frontager's only remedy was by appeal to the L. G. B. under s. 268, post, p. 4495. The decision of the local board in determining to do the work was only erroneous, and not without jurisdiction. See, however, Bell & Sons v. Great Crosby U. D. C., ante, p. 4393, as to how such an objection can be raised under the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4848. Wake's Case, supra, was followed in Derby (Mayor, etc. of) v. Grudgings, [1894] 2 Q. B. 496; 58 J. P. 685; 26 Digest 535, 2341. There the owner of premises fronting on a street having failed to comply with a notice under this section to sewer, etc., the authority did the work, and took proceedings before justices to recover the sum apportioned on him. The owner had given no notice under s. 257, post, p. 4489, disputing the apportionment within the specified time. At the hearing of the complaint it was shown that the carriageway of the street was a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large, but that the footway on which the owner's premises fronted was not. It was held on the authority of Wake's Case that the authority had jurisdiction to give the notice and make the apportionment in respect of the footway, and that the owner having failed to dispute the apportionment under s. 257, it was conclusive against him, and he could not at the hearing before the justices dispute his liability to pay any part of the apportioned sum. In another case the objection taken before the justices was that part of the work (exceeding £50 in value) had been done by a contractor without a sealed contract, and it was urged that a payment under such a contract was illegal. SMITH, J., pointed out that the objection, if valid, could not be raised in this way (Bournemouth Commissioners v. Watts (1884), 14 Q. B. D. 87; 49 J. P. 102; 26 Digest 534, 2340). So it is not open to a frontager to say that, while rightly assessed for certain premises, he has also been assessed for others which do not front or adjoin the street. Such an objection goes merely to the amount of the apportionment, and should be taken by way of objection to the apportionment under s. 257. "It was argued that there was an excess of jurisdiction by the surveyor in respect of part of the sum apportioned. But it seems to me that if he had jurisdiction to make an apportionment against the appellants, which it is admitted he had, then the only possible objection is that he has made such apportionment incorrectly; but that is only an erroneous exercise of jurisdiction, not an excess of jurisdiction. If he had made an apportionment on a person who was not a frontager in respect of any land, there would be an excess of jurisdiction, but that is not the present case" (per Lord Esher, M.R., in Midland Rail. Co. v. Watton (1886), 17 Q. B. D., at p. 41; 50 J. P. at p. 407; 26 Digest 533, 2325). The result of the cases appears to be that an objection may be taken before justices that the defendant is not liable to pay anything, on the ground that he is not a frontager, or that the place is not a street, or that the place is a highway repairable, etc. Objections as to amount are not cognisable by the justices; they may be raised by an appeal to the M. of H. under s. 268, post, p. 4495, and in some cases also (see p. 4416, post) by objection to the apportionment under s. 257, post, p. 4489. See Eccles v. Wirral R. S. A., ante, p. 4408. "There can be no doubt that an apportionment under s. 150 is not conclusive of every defence which can be set up when the frontager is called upon to pay. He may say that the place is not a street, or that he has no premises fronting on the street, or that the place is a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large. He may set up all those defences, and, as it seems to me, any other defence which offers an answer to the whole of his legal liability. But where the question is only as to the amount of his liability, then the apportionment, if not challenged under s. 257, is conclusive" (per CHARLES, J., in Derby (Mayor, etc. of) v. Grudgings, [1894] 2 Q. B., on p. 504; 58 J. P., on p. 687; 26 Digest 535, 2341). These cases must be regarded as superseding the judgment of BACON, V.-C., in West v. Downman (1880), 14 Ch. D. 111; 26 Digest 531, 2302. In Walthamstow L. B. v. Staines, ante, p. 4408, the court seemed to think, and in Harwell U. D. C. and Smith, In re, post, p. 4412, it was expressly decided that the only way of raising an objection to the legality of part of the expenses (such as legal expenses, collection, etc.) was by way of appeal to the L. G. B. (now M. of H.) under s. 268, post, p. 4495. See also hereon Sandgate L. B. v. Keene, and the other cases (including the Hanwell Case), noticed in connection therewith at p. 4416, post.

As to the effect of a decision that a street is a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large, see R. v. Hutchings, the facts of which are set out, ante, p. 4394, and cf. the cases cited therewith, which were, however, decided on other Acts.

The justices cannot inquire into the reasonableness of the expenditure or whether it has been incurred in point of fact. Nor is it a good objection before justices that the notices required the street to be paved in a particular way, that the plans differed from the notice, and the work done from both. These are only matters of appeal to the M. of H. under s. 268, post, p. 4495 (Cook v. Ipswich L. B. (1871), L. R. 6 Q. B. 451; 35 J. P. 565; 26 Digest 521, 2220). It has been held by the House of Lords that the omission strictly to follow the terms of their own notice does not prevent the authority from recovering from the owner his proportion of the expenses incurred (Acton L. B. v. Lewsey (1886), 11 App. Cas. 93; 50 J. P. 708; 26 Digest 529, 2276). In that case the notice required the owner to pave part of a street, specifying the materials and mode, and (inter alia) requiring him to lay down concrete. The owner having made default, the local authority did his work, but, finding that the concrete would be an unnecessary expense, omitted it. But cf. infra.

An authority gave notice to K., an owner of land adjoining a new street, to sewer the road, and lay an eighteen-inch pipe. Whilst carrying out the work upon his default they found a twelve-inch pipe sufficient, and used it, and thus saved expense to K. on the apportionment. It was held that the magistrate was right in holding that the apportioned expenses of the altered work were recoverable, the alteration not being a material matter nor invalidating the notice (Kershaw v. Sheffield (Corporation of) (1887), 51 J. P. 759; 26 Digest 529, 2277). An authority served notices on frontagers requiring them to sewer a street as therein specified. On default the authority carried out more extensive sewage works, but including the work necessary for drainage of the street itself, and apportioned on the frontagers part of the cost of the more extensive works, being the amount which it would have cost to sewer the street in accordance with the notices. It was held that the amount so apportioned was recoverable (Acton U. D. C. v. Watts (1903), 67 J. P. 400; 1 L. G. R. 594; 26 Digest 529, 2279).

In Finney v. Birkenhead Corpn., [1936] 2 All E. R. 590; 80 Sol. Jo. 655; Digest Supp., a road which had been adopted under s. 152, post, p. 4423, was included in the list of roads repairable by the inhabitants at large (prepared under the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post) as being so repairable as to the carriageway but not as to the footway, there being some evidence that in fact it had never been made up. Under a local Act, the authority could apportion the whole cost on the frontagers in the case of a road not repairable, and half in a road repairable, by the inhabitants at large. The authority apportioned the whole on the frontagers, but were held entitled to recover half only. In the same case, the notices required the frontagers to make, flag and complete the road, but in making up the authority did not flag the road but asphalted it; it was held that the work specified in the notice must be carried out, and the use of asphalt in place of flags was not a proper compliance with the notice and the authority could not recover, as the work done was not substantially the same as the work required.

proceedings.

The provisions of the S. J. A., 1848, s. 11 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 278), which limit the time within which proceedings can be taken before justices to a period of six months from the time when the matter of complaint arises, apply to the recovery of these expenses by summary proceedings; and the six months cannot begin to run till after the expiration of the three months during which the apportionment may be disputed under s. 257, post, p. 4489 (Jacomb v. Dodgson (1863), 3 B. & S. 461; 27 J. P. 548; 26 Digest 535, 2345). See also Wilson v. Bolton (Mayor of) (1871), L. R. 7 Q. B. 105; 36 J. P. 405; 26 Digest 535, 2352, per LUSH, J.; and West v. Downman (1880), 14 Ch. D. 111; 26 Digest 531, 2302). Where a notice of apportionment was a nullity, and a second and valid notice was afterwards given, it was held that the time did not begin to run until after the second notice (Sykes v. Huddersfield (Mayor, etc. of) (1871), 35 J. P. 614; 26 Digest 530, 2284). And the same limitation applies also to proceedings in the county court under s. 261, post, p. 4491. Therefore it was held that expenses could not be recovered by a county court action brought more than six months after the expiration of the three months allowed for disputing the apportionment (Tottenham L. B. v. Rowell (1876), 1 Ex. D. 514; 26 Digest 535, 2344, following West Ham L. B. v. Maddams (1876), 1 Ex. D. 516 n; 40 J. P. 470; 26 Digest 535, 2343, and see Metropolitan Water Board v. Burn, [1913] 1 K. B. 134; 77 J. P. 156; affirmed, [1913] 3 K. B. 181; 77 J. P. 353; 38 Digest 119, 860). But it must not be assumed that at the expiration of nine months from the date of the notice of apportionment the expenses cease to be recoverable summarily, or in the county court under s. 261. Before any proceedings can be taken to recover them it is necessary that a demand of payment should be served upon the owner, and the time runs from the date of such demand, and not from that of the notice of apportionment, which is not a sufficient demand (see s. 257, post, p. 4489; Grece v. Hunt (1877), 2 Q. B. D. 389; 41 J. P. 356; 26 Digest 532, 2316). The court pointed out that this decision was not inconsistent with Jacomb v. Dodgson (1863), 3 B. & S. 461; 27 J. P. 548; 26 Digest 535, 2345, for in that case there had been a demand at the expiration of the three months after the notice of apportionment. It may be reconciled with the other cases cited for the like reason. Consequently, there is no limitation of the time within which proceedings, whether summary or in the county court, must be taken unless a demand is made, and the demand may apparently be made at any time after the expiration of three months from the date of the notice of apportionment. Therefore, under the Metropolitan Management Acts, when works were done and the amount apportioned in June, 1876, but no demand was made until December 31st, 1878, it was held that a summons for payment issued on May 14th, 1879, was in time (Marr v. Greenwich Board of Works (1880), 44 J. P. 424; 26 Digest 499, 2074; Wortley v. St. Mary, Islington (Vestry of) (1886), 51 J. P. 166; 26 Digest 499, 2075; Prescott v. Nicholson (1889), 53 J. P. 597; 60 L. T. 563; 26 Digest 500, 2077). See also, as to the necessity for a demand for apportioned expenses in the metropolis, and as to the date upon which the Limitation Act, 1623 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 429), if it runs at all, begins to run, Hampstead Corporation v. Caunt, [1903] 2 K. B. 1; 67 J. P. 344; 26 Digest 499, 2076. See also the notes to Private Street Works Act, 1892, s. 14, post, p. 4864.

The six months' limitation does not apply to the enforcing of the charge on the premises given for such expenses by s. 257, post, p. 4489 (Tottenham L. B. v. Rowell (1880), 15 Ch. D. 378; 26 Digest 536, 2353). Nor need the local authority wait for the expiration of the six months before commencing proceedings to enforce a charge (Sunderland Corporation v. Priestman, [1927] 2 Ch. 107; 26 L. G. R. 64; Digest Supp.). Such a charge may be enforced by proceedings commenced within twelve years after the completion of the works (Hornsey L. B. v. Monarch Investment Building Society (1889), 24 Q. B. D. 1; 54 J. P. 391; 26 Digest 537, 2360).

In West Derby L. B. v. Bell (1878), 42 J. P. 812; 27 Sol. J. 125, work had been done under this section, and notice of apportionment was served on March 29th, 1878. On the same day a demand was served. Proceedings to recover the amount were instituted in the county court on October 7th, 1878, and it then appeared that a second demand had been made on August 6th. The judge held that the first demand was premature and a nullity, as there was no liability to pay until the expiration of the three months after notice of apportionment. The second demand was, therefore, a good one, and the proceedings were in time. This he considered to be the result of Grece v. Hunt, supra. As for Wilson v. Bolton (Mayor of), post, p. 4418, there the notice of apportionment and the demand had been served at the same time, but no objection was taken in argument on that ground, and so far as it was inconsistent with Grece v. Hunt, he considered it to be overruled. The correctness of this decision was established in Simcox v. Handsworth L. B. (1881), 8 Q. B. D. 39; 46 J. P. 260; 26 Digest 524, 2242. It was there held that the notice of apportionment concluding with a demand of payment was not a notice of demand within s. 257, post, p. 4489, and that time did not begin to run from such demand. And in Re Bettsworth and Richer (1888), 37 Ch. D. 535; 52 J. P. 740; 26 Digest 536, 2359, NORTH, J., said: "It is quite true that the owner cannot be compelled to pay till the total costs have been made out and apportioned between the owners, and notice has been served and he has had three months to dispute the apportionment, and at the end of the three months has had written demand served upon him."

If the complaint to recover the expenses is made in time, it is no objection to the validity of a summons that it is issued more than a year after such complaint (Simcox v. Handsworth L. B., supra). Of course, if a valid demand has been made and the Note to Section 150. time has therefore begun to run, it will not be extended by making a second or subsequent demand (see Harpin v. Sykes (1885), 49 J. P. N. 148).

Special case. Upon justices declining to make an order for payment the authority obtained a special case. The respondent took no part in its statement, and did not appear in support of the justices' decision. The court decided in favour of the appellants, and it was held that the respondent might be ordered to pay the costs of the appeal (Wednesbury L. B. v. Stephenson (1864), 33 L. J. M. C. 111; 33 Digest 421, 1318). In a later case it was held that where it is the duty of a public body to take proceedings of a civil nature before justices, and the defendant raises as untenable point which succeeds, then, although he does not appear on the argument of a special case, it was proper that costs should be allowed against him (Usk U. D. C. v. Mortimer (1903), 68 J. P. 38; 33 Digest 404, 1150).

Authority can relieve frontagers of liability.

It was held that when owners were liable for paying expenses under the Metropolis Management Acts, the vestry could not, in their discretion, charge the expenses upon the general rates (Dryden v. Putney (Overseers of) (1876), 1 Ex. D. 223; 40 J. P. 263; 26 Digest 278, 154; and see Taylor v. Oldham (Corporation of) (1876), 4 Ch. D. 395; 26 Digest 270, 96, per JESSEL, M.R.). Accordingly, a district board were ordered to restore to the general rate an amount so expended, and to levy the same upon the owners of the adjoining houses and land according to the Acts (Att.-Gen. v. Wandsworth District Board of Works (1877), 6 Ch. D. 539; 26 Digest 490, 2006). See also Folkestone Corporation v. Rook, ante, p. 4368. But now by s. 81 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, any local authority by whom notices have been served under this section or any provision relating to street works in a local Act may, if they think fit, at any time resolve to contribute the whole or a portion of the expenses of the works. Cf. s. 15 of the Private Street Works Act, 1892, and notes thereto, at post, p. 4365. For a case in which a local board were held to be estopped by the terms of their notice from proceeding summarily, see Gould v. Bacup L. B., at post, p. 4418. As to the right to recover from a local authority sums paid under this section by mistake, see Midland Rail. Co. v. Wihington L. B. (1883), 11 Q. B. D. 788; 47 J. P. 789; 38 Digest 123, 905; Moore v. Fulham Vestry, [1895] 1 Q. B. 399; 59 J. P. 596; 26 Digest 500, 2079; Self v. Hove Commissioners, [1895] 1 Q. B. 685; 59 J. P. 103; 41 Digest 40, 295.

What expenses may be included in apportionment.

(ll) A metropolitan district board were held entitled to recover as costs incidental to paving, etc., the cost of serving apportionments, obtaining names of owners, collection of amounts, advertisement and printing expenses (Poplar Board of Works v. Love (1874), 38 J. P. 246; 29 L. T. 915; 26 Digest 491, 2013). But this decision was given with reference to the Metropolis Management Amendment Act, 1862, s. 77 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 986), which enables the authority to recover incidental costs and charges, and in a recent case the court held that the words "all other incidental costs and charges" included only out-of-pocket expenses and charges (Ballard v. Wandsworth Borough Council (1906), 70 J. P. 331; 95 L. T. 118; 26 Digest 496, 2049). In the text the sum which may be recovered seems to be confined to the expenses of executing the work, and quere whether this includes incidental expenses such as those above mentioned. In Walthamstow L. B. v. Staines, ante, p. 4408, CHITTY, J., thought it was within the power of the authority to charge for preparation of contract and plans, 4 per cent. for incidental expenses and 4 per cent. for cost of collection. The Court of Appeal doubted whether these expenses could be charged, but did not decide the point. In Hanwell U. D. C. and Smith, In re (1904), 68 J. P. 496; 26 Digest 531, 2300, CHANNELL, J., expressed the opinion that an authority were not entitled to make a charge of 5 per cent. to cover office and other incidental expenses. It would appear to follow also from the decision in Ballard v. Wandsworth Borough Council, supra, that an authority will not be justified in including a percentage in respect of their officers' time and labour. See an express provision in the Private Street Works Act, 1892, s. 9, post, p. 4358.

The cost of altering the level of a gas main cannot be charged to the frontagers but must be borne by the council under s. 153, post, p. 4425 (Re Jesty's Avenue, Broadway, Weymouth, post, p. 4425).

Owners in default.

(m) Owners in default.—See notes (f) and (g), ante, pp. 4398, 4400.

Expenses under s. 150 cannot be recovered from one who, though the owner of premises when notice was first given by the authority, has ceased to be owner before the completion of the works (R. v. Swindon L. B. (1879), 4 Q. B. D. 305; 43 J. P.

Section 150.

431; 26 Digest 533, 2319). "I cannot think it was ever intended by the legislature that when the owner has parted with his property, and somebody else is in possession of it, and therefore getting the benefit of the work done, and who ought, therefore, to pay the expenses incurred, it should be competent for the local authority to follow him up wherever he may have gone and hold him personally liable. I think that defect is remedied by s. 257, post, p. 4489, which treats owners upon whom notice was originally served and who are owners at the time the work is completed, and the expenses demanded, as the persons upon whom the local board shall be able to come for the expenses" (per COCKBURN, L.C.J.). These words were explained by NORTH, J., in Re Bettesworth and Richer (1888), 37 Ch. D. 535; 52 J. P. 740; 26 Digest 536, 2359). He pointed out that in R. v. Swindon L. B. the same person was owner, both when the work was completed and when the demand was made. But he held that when there was a change of ownership after the completion of the works and before demand, the liability was upon the person who was owner when the works were completed. In that case leasehold houses in an urban district, abutting partly on a private road, were sold on an open contract. At the date of the sale, works had been done by the local board under this section. The final demand for payment of the sum apportioned in respect of the premises was served after the purchase ought to have been completed. It was held that the apportioned expenses became a charge on the premises at the date of the completion of the works, and as between the vendor and purchaser they were payable by the vendor. Compare with this decision Egg v. Blayney (1888), 21 Q. B. D. 107; 52 J. P. 517; 26 Digest 496, 2047, a case as to the expenses of paving a new street in the metropolis, where such expenses are not a charge on the premises. It was held therefore, that if the owner sells the premises while the expenses are unpaid and conveys as beneficial owner, and the purchaser is compelled to pay the expenses, he cannot recover from the vendor under the implied covenant against incumbrances. See also Re Field, W. N. (1888), p. 36; and the observations on Re Bettesworth and Richer in Hornsey L. B. v. Monarch Investment Building Society (1889), 24 Q. B. D. 1; 54 J. P. 391; 26 Digest 537, 2360. R. v. Swindon L. B. was distinguished in Tottenham L. B. v. Williamson (1893), 57 J. P. 614; 62 L. J. Q. B. 322; 26 Digest 551, 2470, where it was held that under the provisions of a local Act (Tottenham Local Board Act, 1890), the person who received the rack-rent at the date of the estimation and apportionment of the expenses was liable, notwithstanding that he had ceased to be the owner of the premises within the meaning of the local Act and s. 4, ante, p. 4335, of this Act incorporated therewith before the completion of the works. See also Belfast Corporation v. Hill, [1904] 2 I. R. 105. The dictum of COCKBURN, L.C.J., in the Swindon Case, supra, was at length expressly disapproved by the Court of Appeal in Millard v. Balby-with-Hexthorpe U. C., [1905] 1 K. B. 60; 69 J. P. 13; 26 Digest 533, 2322. There the appellant was the owner of certain premises in June, 1899, and as such had served upon him a notice under s. 150. The respondents, upon his default, executed the work, which was completed in December, 1901. Formal notice of the apportionment was served on the appellant in November, 1902, and on May 20th, 1903, a demand for payment was served upon him. In April, 1902, he had ceased to be the owner of the premises. It was held that as he was the owner of the premises when the works were completed, he was liable to pay the amount apportioned in respect thereof. In a later case it was held that a person who was the owner of premises at the date of the completion of the work was liable, although he was not the owner of the premises when the notice requiring the works to be executed was served and although he had ceased to be owner prior to service of notice of apportionment and demand for payment (East Ham U. C. v. Aylett, [1905] 2 K. B. 22; 69 J. P. 205; 26 Digest 533, 2321). In Croydon Corporation v. Oldaker, [1937] 1 K. B. 337; [1936] 3 All E. R. 360; 100 J. P. 519; Digest Supp., a local Act provided that whenever the corporation put into force the provisions of s. 150 of this Act they might, before themselves executing any works, recover summarily the estimated cost from the owners in default. An owner who had been served with a notice under s. 150, conveyed his premises to a third party, and subsequently refused to pay a demand made under the local Act for the estimated cost of the unexecuted works. The justices were of opinion that he was not liable to pay, since there could be no default until the expiration of the time given in the notice to repair and that on the expiration of that time he was no longer the owner. It was, however, held that the owner for purposes of the local Act was the owner at the time of the notice to execute the street works and that if such owner failed to execute the works he became and remained for purposes of that Act the owner in default, notwithstanding the conveyance of the property to a third person. In Re Lewis (1908), 42 Ir. L. T. 210, compensation was allowed to a purchaser in respect of an outstanding sanitary notice not disclosed to him.

The Metropolitan Management Amendment Act, 1862, ss. 77 and 96 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 986, 989), make paving expenses recoverable by action from the present or future owners of the premises, or from any person who then or thereafter occupies the premises. The vestry of B. had recovered a judgment against a former owner of premises in respect of such expenses, which remained unsatisfied. It was held that such judgment was no bar to a subsequent action against the defendant, who occupied the premises as tenant to a succeeding owner (Bermondsey (Vestry of) v. Ramsey (1871), L. R. 6 C. P. 247; 35 J. P. 567; 26 Digest 496, 2044). Under the same Act it was held that the expenses might be recovered from the mortgagee in possession as owner, notwithstanding that another person was owner at the date when the work was resolved upon, and that the amount could be recovered from future owners, although there had been no arrangement to accept payment by instalments (Plumstead District Board of Works v. Ingoldby (1873), L. R. 8 Exch. 63, 174; 37 J. P. 759; 26 Digest 496, 2045). See also Hampstead Corporation v. Caunt, ante, p. 4411, as to the liability of future owners in the metropolis. As to the liability of "successive owners" under a local Act, see Blackburn (Corporation of) v. Micklethwait (1886), 50 J. P. 550; 54 L. T. 539; 26 Digest 551, 2469.

The Crown is not bound by the provisions of this section. Therefore land owned and occupied for Crown purposes is exempt (Hornsey U. D. C. v. Hennell, [1902] 2 K. B. 73; 66 J. P. 613; 26 Digest 522, 2230 (volunteer headquarters); cf. Dellar Bros., Ltd. v. Drury, [1912] 2 K. B. 209; 76 J. P. 239; 34 Digest 585, 67, as to territorial force property). Apportionment: power to amend or substitute new one.

(n) Apportionment.—An apportionment was made and notice given to an owner that his proportion was £20 2s. In answer to a summons for payment, he objected that the apportionment was bad, on the ground that the expenses of two streets had been lumped together, and the aggregate amount divided among the owners in the two streets; and the justices dismissed the complaint on that ground. The surveyor then made a fresh apportionment, and a notice was served on the owner that his proportion was £19 11s. He gave notice that he disputed the apportionment, and the matter came before justices under a section corresponding to s. 181 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 704). On a case stated, it was held that the first apportionment was a nullity, and that the surveyor, not being functus officio, was right in making a fresh apportionment (Cook v. Ipswich L. B. (1871), L. R. 6 Q. B. 451; 35 J. P. 565; 26 Digest 521, 2220); see also Nash v. Giles (1926), 91 J. P. 19; 43 T. L. R. 121; Digest Supp., in the notes to s. 19 of P. H. A. A. A., 1907, post, p. 5045. An apportionment was signed by B., who was not then surveyor, having been superseded previously. The authority on discovering the mistake treated it as a nullity, and issued a fresh apportionment signed by their actual surveyor. It was held that they had acted properly (Sykes v. Huddersfield (Mayor, etc. of) (1871), 35 J. P. 614; 26 Digest 530, 2284). Where a local Act required the proportion in which expenses were to be apportioned to be ascertained and settled by the corporation, it was held that the fact that the apportionment had been corrected by their surveyor after it had been approved by them did not invalidate it (St. Helen's (Corporation of) v. Riley (1883), 47 J. P. 471; 26 Digest 550, 2467). An authority acting under this section served the defendant and other frontagers with notices requiring them to execute works including certain work which could not be legally included in such notices. The notices not being complied with, the authority did the works, and apportioned the expenses among the frontagers. A summons to recover from the defendant £650, the amount charged to him, having been dismissed by the magistrates, the authority made a second apportionment, excluding the expenses of the work which had been wrongly included, the amount charged to the defendant therein being £579. They then brought an action under s. 257, post, p. 4489, to establish a charge on the defendant's premises for £579, or in the alternative for £650 :—Held, that the authority had power to make a second apportionment, and that, notwithstanding the dismissal of the summons, they were entitled to a charge for £579 (Manchester (Mayor of) v. Hampson (1886), 35 W. R. 334, 591; 26 Digest 526, 2256). See also Sunderland Corporation v. Gray, cited at p. 4406, ante. See also as to the jurisdiction to make a second apportionment, Bishop v. Wandsworth District Board (1900), 64 J. P. 630; 69 L. J. Q. B. 632; 26 Digest 499, 2070; Elsdon v. Hampstead Borough Council, [1905] 2 Ch. 633; 69 J. P. 434; 26 Digest 495, 2041. The decision in Cook v. Ipswich L. B. was considered in Shanklin L. B. v. Millar (1880), 5 C. P. D. 272; 44 J. P. 635; 26 Digest 530, 2286. In that case the apportionment was made in respect of five roads. The defendant had taken no steps to dispute the apportionment, and when proceedings against him were instituted in the county court he contended that the apportionment was bad in law. On a case stated, the High Court held that the defendant was liable. DENMAN, J., referring to the former decision, said that it was not intended to decide "that an apportionment which is otherwise good on the face of it, is necessarily a nullity, and may be treated as such in any court before which it may come, because two streets instead of one are included in the apportionment; but the court meant this, viz., that when that is the case, and the parties have come to the conclusion that the apportionment cannot be enforced and the surveyor makes a fresh apportionment, the former one becomes a nullity in the sense that it cannot be enforced, and is useless for particular purposes and cannot stand in the way of a good apportionment. That is, to my mind, the full extent of the decision, and it is not a decision that, if no steps are taken to set aside or dispute the apportionment on the ground that the party charged is not liable, it may be treated as a nullity when it comes before the court." See also Wake v. Sheffield Corporation, and Derby (Mayor, etc. of) v. Grudgings, cited ante, p. 4409, for discussions of Cook v. Ipswich L. B. It appears from these cases that an apportionment, if made in respect of the paving, etc. of more than one street, may be objected to under s. 257, post, p. 4489; but that, if this is not done, the owner is liable for the amount apportioned.

Section 150.

Two or more houses or plots belonging to one owner must not be grouped together in the apportionment; a share of the cost must be apportioned on each separately (Croydon R. D. C. v. Betts, [1914] 1 Ch. 870; 26 Digest 536, 2358).

As to when two or more plots constitute one "close" so as to be chargeable under the Act, see Altrincham U. D. C. v. O'Brien (1927), 91 J. P. 149, at p. 4404, ante.

Premises belonging to the defendants abutting upon a new street which a metropolitan vestry paved for half its breadth only, the side paved being that nearest the defendants' premises. The vestry apportioned the whole cost of paving upon the premises on the defendants' side of the street, omitting those on the other side. It was held that the apportionment was invalid, for the owners on both sides ought to have been charged (Mile End (Vestry of) v. Whitechapel (Guardians of) (1876), 1 Q. B. D. 680; 41 J. P. 20, affirming 40 J. P. 565; 45 L. J. M. C. 75; 26 Digest 497, 2056). But this was a decision under the Metropolis Management Act, 1862, s. 77 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 986), which imposes liability on the owners of houses forming the street, and on the land bounding and abutting on such street. The language used in the text is different; and where an authority paved a footpath on one side of a street, and apportioned the cost among the owners on that side only, it was held that the apportionment was right (Wakefield Urban Sanitary Authority v. Mander (1880), 5 C. P. D. 248; 44 J. P. 522; 26 Digest 530, 2282). See, however, the Private Street Works Act, 1892, s. 10, post, p. 4859, and a case decided thereon (Clacton-on-Sea L. B. v. Young, [1895] 1 Q. B. 395; 59 J. P. 581; 26 Digest 540, 2389). And see now as to the metropolis, the Metropolis Management Amendment Act, 1890 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 1014), and Paddington Vestry v. North Metropolitan Railway and Canal Co., [1894] 1 Q. B. 633; 58 J. P. 413; 26 Digest 498, 2059; White v. Fulham Vestry (1896), 60 J. P. 327; 74 L. T. 425; 26 Digest 276, 142; Property Exchange, Ltd. v. Wandsworth Board of Works, post, p. 4419. See also Evans v. Newport Urban Sanitary Authority and the other cases cited therewith at p. 4418, post, as to the method of apportionment when a strip is added to a road already repairable by the inhabitants at large.

It has been decided under the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4848, that all the premises in a street must be included in the apportionment although some of them are extra commercium and have therefore no "owners" (Herne Bay U. D. C. v. Payne, [1907] 2 K. B. 130; 71 J. P. 282; 26 Digest 544, 2425). This decision has, however, no application to an authority proceeding under s. 150, under which the total expenses should be divided amongst the persons who are statutory "owners," and can be made to contribute. See 71 J. P. N. 337.

Note to
Section 150.

Time for
ment.

There does not appear to be any limit to the time within which an apportionment must be made (Bradley v. Greenwich District Board of Works (1878), 3 Q. B. D. 384; 42 J. P. 725; 26 Digest 497, 2051). But delay in making the apportionment will not extend the time for bringing an action to enforce the charge on the premises under s. 257, post, p. 4489. Such an action must be brought within twelve years after the completion of the works. See Hornsey L. B. v. Monarch Investment Building Society (1889), 24 Q. B. D. 1; 54 J. P. 391; 26 Digest 537, 2360.

dispute.

(o) Arbitration.—Section 257, post, p. 4489, limits the time within which notice of any dispute is to be given. See Hesketh v. Atherton L. B. (1873), L. R. 9 Q. B. 4; 38 J. P. 149; 26 Digest 533, 2324.

If a notice is given disputing the apportionment, no proceedings can be taken to recover the expenses of the works until the dispute has been determined by arbitration (Sandgate L. B. v. Keene, [1892] 1 Q. B. 831; 56 J. P. 484; 26 Digest 530, 2293).

An owner, on receiving notice of apportionment, sent to the authority a letter which appeared to be rather an objection to the prime cost of the work than to the mode in which that prime cost was apportioned; but it was held that as the letter was treated by the authority in letters to the owner and in a resolution, as a good notice disputing the apportionment, it must be regarded as such, and that the authority were bound to go to arbitration before commencing an action to recover the apportioned amount. Another owner disputed the claim of the authority in general terms, and this was held a good notice (Folkestone (Mayor, etc. of) v. Brooks; Same v. Ladd, [1893] 3 Ch. 22; 58 J. P. 53; 26 Digest 531, 2294). Where, however, an owner takes up the position that the authority have no jurisdiction at all to charge him with the expenses of making up a street, there is no dispute which must first go to arbitration (West Hartlepool (Mayor, etc. of) v. Robinson (1897), 62 J. P. 35; 77 L. T. 387; 26 Digest 275, 133).

The arbitration here referred to has reference not to a dispute between the frontagers generally on one side, and the authority on the other, but to one in which the owner of a particular set of premises complains of the apportionment as regards himself personally. There must be as many separate arbitrations as there are disputing owners, for every disputing owner may appoint an arbitrator. Therefore, an award between one of several frontagers called upon to pay the expenses of paving a street and the authority, by which the arbitrator has altered not merely the assessment upon the particular frontage, but the assessment in regard to all the frontages, is not binding upon a frontager not a party to the arbitration, so as to entitle the authority to recover from him the sum which would be due from him on the footing of the altered assessment (Tunbridge Wells L. B. v. Akroyd (1880), 5 Ex. D. 199; 44 J. P. 504; 26 Digest 532, 2304).

The text only authorises an arbitration in respect of the proportion to be borne by a defaulting owner, and not in respect of any question as to the expenses being reasonable or properly incurred by the authority (Bayley v. Wilkinson (1864), 33 L. J. M. C. 161; 10 L. T. 543; 26 Digest 525, 2251); and see also Re Stoker and Morpeth Corporation, [1915] 2 K. B. 511; 79 J. P. 201; 26 Digest 531, 2301. Nor can the arbitrator inquire into details of the total amount certified by the surveyor (Re Causton and Bromley U. D. C. (1900), 64 J. P. 760; 17 T. L. R. 25; 26 Digest 531, 2299). When a dispute as to the apportionment comes before justices as arbitrators under s. 181, post, p. 4467, and equally when the matter comes before them on a complaint to enforce payment, they have no jurisdiction to inquire into the question whether the amount alleged has been actually incurred. If the appellant is aggrieved by the alleged overcharge, his remedy is by appeal to the M. of H. under s. 268, post, p. 4495 (Cook v. Ipswich L. B., ante, p. 4414). In Sandgate L. B. v. Keene, supra, and in Bournemouth Commissioners v. Watts, ante, p. 4409, there are dicta suggesting that an arbitrator may deal with any dispute that may arise, but in a later case the Court of Appeal decided that he has only jurisdiction to fix the amount, and cannot fix the liability (Willesden L. B. and Wright, In re, [1896] 2 Q. B. 412;

26 Digest 532, 2303); and see Hanwell U. D. C. and Smith, In re (1904), 68 J. P. 496; 26 Digest 531, 2300, where CHANNELL, J., decided that the only power which an arbitrator has is to divide up the total sum which the authority have decided to be the cost of the work, and that he has no jurisdiction to entertain objections to the total cost of the work, as given by the surveyor to the authority. See also dicta of the Court of Appeal to the same effect in Wake v. Sheffield Corporation, ante, p. 4409, and Walhamstow L. B. v. Staines, ante, p. 4409. See, on the other hand, Handsworth U. D. C. v. Derrington, [1897] 2 Ch. 438; 61 J. P. 518; 26 Digest 528, 2268, where it was held by KEEWICH, J., that if the proportion of the expenses was referred to arbitration, all objections to the validity of the proceedings of the authority on the ground of insufficient notice, such as neglecting to serve every frontager, or otherwise, must be raised before the arbitrators, and that it is too late to raise them by action or other proceeding on the award. Cf., however, Heskeith v. Atherton L. B. (1873), L. R. 9 Q. B. 4; 38 J. P. 149; 26 Digest 533, 2324, where it was held that the question of highway or no highway could not be raised before an arbitrator. The owner of two properties adjoining each other and abutting on a street, received a notice under s. 150. The notice referred only to one of the two properties. Upon his default the authority executed the works in the street adjoining both properties. The apportionment of the expenses only referred to the one property, though the owner's share of the expenses was calculated on the frontage of both. The owner having disputed the apportionment, the arbitrator held that it was bad, and that the owner's share should be reduced to a sum proportionate to the frontage of the one property to which the notice and the apportionment had referred. It was held that he had jurisdiction so to award (Thomas v. Hendon R. D. C. (1911), 75 J. P. 161; 9 L. G. R. 234; 26 Digest 532, 2312). Under similar provisions in Ireland it has been held that an arbitrator cannot give effect to a frontager's claim that, where no footpath is provided on his side of the street, he ought not to be charged in respect of the opposite footpath, but only in respect of the roadway; in such a case the frontager should appeal to the L. G. B. (now, in England, the M. of H.) (Bangor U. D. C. v. McKee (1914), 48 Ir. L. T. 92; Digest Supp.). If there has been no arbitration an objection may be taken to the sufficiency of a notice on proceedings for the recovery of expenses (Stourbridge U. D. C. v. Butler, [1909] 1 Ch. 87; 73 J. P. 3; 26 Digest 525, 2252). It has been held with reference to the Metropolis Management Acts, 1855 and 1862 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 889, 965), that the principle upon which the expenses have been apportioned cannot be questioned before any tribunal (Nesbitt v. Greenwich District Board of Works (1875), L. R. 10 Q. B. 465; 39 J. P. 582; 26 Digest 498, 2064; Stotesbury v. St. Giles, Camberwell (Vestry of) (1888), 53 J. P. 5; 57 L. J. M. C. 114; 26 Digest 498, 2065; Davis v. Greenwich District Board of Works, [1895] 2 Q. B. 219; 59 J. P. 517; 26 Digest 499, 2067; Metropolitan District Rail. Co. v. Fulham Vestry, [1895] 2 Q. B. 443; 59 J. P. 679; 26 Digest 498, 2066). See, however, R. v. Marsham, [1892] 1 Q. B. 371; 56 J. P. 164; 26 Digest 498, 2061; and Elsdon v. Hampstead Corporation, [1905] 2 Ch. 633; 69 J. P. 434; 26 Digest 495, 2041.

It will be seen, on reference to s. 268, post, p. 4459, that a frontager may, if he pleases, refrain from having recourse to arbitration, and in lieu thereof make complaint to the M. of H. within twenty-one days from the "decision" of the authority. A notice to pave and a notice of apportionment are not, but a demand for payment is, a "decision" within the meaning of that section (R. v. Local Government Board (1882), 9 Q. B. D. 600; 46 J. P. 820; affirmed 10 Q. B. D. 309; 47 J. P. 228; 26 Digest 532, 2318; Wake v. Sheffield Corporation; Bournemouth Commissioners v. Watts, ante, p. 4409).

For the provisions of this Act as to arbitration, see s. 179, post, p. 4461. An award under this section cannot be summarily enforced under the Arbitration Act, 1889, s. 12, post, p. 4791 (Re Willesden L. B. and Wright, [1896] 2 Q. B. 412; 60 J. P. 708; 26 Digest 532, 2303). Nor (semble) can an action be brought upon it (ibid.).

(p) Private Improvement Expenses.—See s. 213, post, p. 4468.

The construction of this clause is not clear, and it has been interpreted in two improvement ways. Some consider that the declaring the expenses to be private improvement expenses should be done in respect of each separate premises; in other words, that an apportionment should be made in any case in order to determine the extent to which each owner is liable according to the frontage of his premises. Upon this being done, the expenses so determined may either be recovered from the owners, Private improvement expenses.

or may be declared to be private improvement expenses in any one or more cases. The amount actually recovered from an owner would thus be the same, whether he had to pay the sum apportioned on him at once, or by means of a private improvement rate. This opinion is based on the ground that the object of the section is to impose a liability according to frontage, and that s. 215, post, p. 4470, which enables any owner to redeem private improvement expenses, implies that the expenses, so far as he is concerned, have been already fixed and determined. It is also argued that s. 257, post, p. 4489, contemplates an apportionment in every case, and that the contrary opinion deprives him of the important rights which the statute confers as to disputing the apportionment. The other view is that the authority have a discretion either to apportion in the ordinary way according to frontages, or to take the total expenses, ascertain the sum payable in each year with the addition of interest, and then make a rate upon the several premises according to their rateable value, frontage as an element in determining liability being rejected altogether. This opinion is supported by the punctuation of the clause, and it is not unworthy of observation that the language of the clause differs from that in the P. H. A., 1848, s. 69. It is by no means easy to decide between the two possible constructions. In the absence of express authority an opinion must be advanced with hesitation; but it is submitted on the whole that the first is the more correct construction. The two following cases, in so far as they bear upon the point, are in favour of this view.

A local board demanded from an owner his proportion of the expenses in January, 1861. This amount not having been paid on August 25th, 1870, the board resolved that it should be declared private improvement expenses; and in September, 1870, they declared it to be payable by annual instalments. It was held that the demand in 1861 amounted to an election to treat the amount due as a debt from the owner, and that they had no power to declare it to be private improvement expenses (Wilson v. Bolton (Mayor, etc. of) (1871), L. R. 7 Q. B. 105; 36 J. P. 405; 26 Digest 535, 2352). An authority gave a notice in the form in Sched. IV., Form G (13 Halsbury's Statutes 776), but added to it words to the effect that if the owner neglected to do the work they would do it, and declare the expenses to be private improvement expenses. It was held that they were estopped by the terms of their notice from taking summary proceedings for the recovery of the expenses (Gould v. Bacup L. B. (1881), 45 J. P. 325; 50 L. J. M. C. 44; 26 Digest 526, 2258).

at large.

(g) Part of Road Repairable by Local Authority.—The meaning of the paragraph was thus explained in Maude v. Baildon L. B. (1883), 10 Q. B. D. 394; 47 J. P. 644; 26 Digest 269, 93, by POLLOCK, B.: "Its effect is not to say that wherever there is a (public) footpath running parallel the rest of the ground is in such a case to be deemed a street. It merely means to say that in all those cases in which the magistrates could properly find the residue to be a street, that power of so finding is not to be taken away in consequence of the fact that there is a public footpath."

In proceedings under this section it appeared that the street was formed by an old footpath and strips of land alongside, which had been recently added to widen it. The old footpath was repairable by the inhabitants at large. The justices found that the road was in part an ancient footpath or highway, but that it had been altered, widened, and added to, and that houses having been built abutting thereon it was a street within the meaning of the section; that the frontagers were liable to contribute to the expenses of improving it; and an order was accordingly made for payment by the frontagers of such expenses. It was held that having regard to the terms of the section, the frontagers were chargeable with the expenses of improving the whole street, and not merely such part of it as had been added to the ancient highway (Evans v. Newport Urban Sanitary Authority (1889), 24 Q. B. D. 264; 54 J. P. 374; 26 Digest 520, 2216). This case was approved by the Court of Appeal in Harrow U. D. C. v. Wreathall (1926), unreported. In 1883, the owners of an estate, through which ran an ancient highway about thirty feet wide, repairable by the inhabitants at large, agreed with the borough council, that as and when the estate should be laid out for building the owners would straighten and lay out the road so as to make it forty feet wide throughout. The agreement recited that it was entered into for the purpose of settling a question which had arisen as to the extent of the public rights over the road. When the whole of the road had been laid out in accordance with the agreement, the council made it up, and sought to recover the expenses from the owners of premises abutting on the road. JOYCE, J., held that the agreement did not constitute a purchase of the land thrown in to widen the road ; and consequently, having regard to the latter part of s. 150, that the frontagers were chargeable with the expenses of improving the whole road and not merely such parts of it as had been added to the ancient highway (Portsmouth Corporation v. Hall (1907), 71 J. P. 299 ; 97 L. T. 43). This decision was reversed on appeal (71 J. P. 564 ; 98 L. T. 513 ; 26 Digest 521, 2219), it being held that the agreement amounted to a purchase by the council under s. 154, post, p. 4425, and that the defendant was not liable for any expenses under s. 150. In connection with these decisions reference should be made to ss. 30 and 31, P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post. Under these sections local authorities may, under certain circumstances, require persons building on land adjoining highways to widen such highways, and the question arises whether such widened highways can, where the original highway was repairable by the inhabitants at large, be made up at the expense of the frontagers under this section and the cases above cited. This question is discussed at length in the notes to these sections in Vol. V., post. A street, sixteen feet wide, in the metropolis, had been a highway from the year 1815, and had become an "old street." On the south side were a number of cottages ; the street was paved on that side, and from time to time substantial repairs were done to it ; the frontagers on the north side took no part in the acts of repair. In 1898 a new strip of land, twenty-four feet wide, was dedicated to the public on the north side, houses were built on that side, and the authority paved the new part of the street and made an apportionment upon the frontagers on the north side only. The magistrate found, and the Divisional Court upheld his view, that the added strip on the north side was itself a separate "new street," with the result that the paving expenses were thrown upon the owners of property abutting on that new street. On appeal, it was held (following Richards v. Kessick, ante, p. 4390, and White v. Fulham Vestry, ante, p. 4395) that the paving expenses were thrown only upon the owners of property abutting on the north side of the new strip, whether under the Metropolis Management Acts or the Public Health Act (Property Exchange, Ltd. v. Wandsworth Board of Works, [1902] 2 K. B. 61 ; 66 J. P. 435 ; 26 Digest 277, 143). See also the argument in Chorley Corporation v. Nightingale, [1906] 2 K. B. 612 ; 70 J. P. 500 (affirmed on appeal on a point not material in this connection, [1907] 2 K. B. 637 ; 71 J. P. 441 ; 26 Digest 315, 472), and a considered judgment of the Leeds stipendiary magistrate (Mr. C. M. Atkinson), at 71 J. P. N. 53.

In Chorley Corporation v. Nightingale, supra, it was held that there is no rule of law that a ditch running alongside a road between the via trita and the fence cannot be dedicated as part of the highway ; that whether it is part of the highway or not is a question of fact ; and that where it is found that such a ditch has been included in the dedication, then upon its being filled up, and made available for passage, the road ought not to be treated as a street which consists partly of an old highway and partly of an added strip, so as to constitute a street of which "only a part" is repairable by the inhabitants at large, and therefore one in respect of which frontagers are liable for paving expenses under this section. From this case it would also appear that in construing the final paragraph of s. 150, the maxim de minimis may be applied.

In Hanscombe v. Bedfordshire C. C., [1938] Ch. 944 ; [1938] 3 All E. R. 647 ; 102 J. P. 443 ; Digest Supp., it was held that there is a presumption that a ditch, which is not being adapted for the passage of the public and is on the road side of a hedge bank, does not form part of the highway though this presumption may be rebutted.

In Chippendale v. Pontefract R. D. C. (1907), 71 J. P. 231 ; 26 Digest 315, 471, a county court judge found as a fact that the ditch there in question did not form part of the highway. Where a highway has been laid out under an award and is exclusive of the ditches, still of the prescribed width, there is no presumption that either ditch forms part of the highway (Simcox v. Yardley R. D. C. (1905), 69 J. P. 66 ; 3 L. G. R. 1350 ; 26 Digest 315, 473). See also Walmsley v. Featherstone U. D. C. (1909), 73 J. P. 322 ; 7 L. G. R. 806 ; 26 Digest 310, 430, where it was held that the site of a ditch piped and filled up nine years before by the council with the owner's consent (to prevent accidents to persons walking on the footpath at night) had not been dedicated to the public.

It is difficult to reconcile with the cases which decide that strips of land added to a highway may be made up at the expense of the frontagers, a statement of Lord ALVERSTONE, C.J., in Escott v. Newport Corporation, [1904] 2 K. B. 369 ; 68 J. P.

Section 150.

135; 26 Digest 327, 597, to the effect that a strip of land added by an adjoining owner to an old highway and paved by him, and which the public had the right to use as a public footpath, was vested in the local authority. The land could only so vest under s. 149, ante, p. 4375, if a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large. This statement was not, however, necessary to the decision: and see a criticism by WARRINGTON, J., and the judgments of the Court of Appeal in Andrews v. Abertillery U. D. C., [1911] 2 Ch. 398; 75 J. P. 449; 20 Digest 201, 19.

The fact that, owing to the proviso to the section, the authority might as to a street, a part whereof is repairable by the inhabitants at large, put into operation their powers under this section, will not prevent them from being indicted under the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, s. 10, post, p. 4603, if the part repairable by the public is allowed to fall into disrepair (R. v. Crompton U. D. C. (1902), 66 J. P. 566; 86 L. T. 762; 26 Digest 377, 1025).

Exemption
from expenses under last section of
church, etc.

151. The incumbent or minister of any church chapel or place appropriated to public religious worship, which is now by law exempt from rates for the relief of the poor (a), shall not be liable to any expenses under the last preceding section, as the owner or occupier of such church chapel or place or of any churchyard or burial ground attached thereto (b), nor shall any such expenses be deemed to be a charge on such church chapel or other place, or on such churchyard or burial ground, or to subject the same to distress, execution or other legal process; and the urban authority may, if they think fit, undertake any works from the expenses of which any such incumbent or minister is hereby exempted (c).

This section does not apply to a district in which the Private Street Works Act 1892, has been adopted. See s. 25 of that Act, post, p. 4869; but a similar exemption is contained in s. 16 thereof, post, p. 4865.

Exemption
of churches, etc., from poor rate.

(a) The statute exempting from poor rate churches and chapels is the Poor Rate Exemption Act, 1833 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 500). By it "no person or persons shall be rated, or shall be liable to be rated, or to pay to any church or poor rates or cesses for or in respect of any churches, district churches, chapels, meeting-houses, or premises, or such part thereof as shall be exclusively appropriated to public religious worship, and which (other than churches, district churches, and episcopal chapels of the Established Church) shall be duly certified for the performance of such religious worship according to the provision of any Act or Acts now in force: Provided always, that no person or persons shall be hereby exempted from any such rates or cesses for or in respect of any parts of such churches, district churches, chapels, meeting-houses, or other premises which are not so exclusively appropriated, and from which parts not so exclusively appropriated such person or persons shall receive any rent or rents, or shall derive profit or advantage" (s. 1, op. cit. 500). "Provided always, that no person or persons shall be liable to any such rates or cesses because the said churches, district churches, chapels, meeting-houses, or other premises, or any vestry rooms belonging thereto, or any part thereof, may be used for Sunday or infant schools, or for the charitable education of the poor" (s. 2, op. cit. 501). See Places of Worship Registration Act, 1855 (6 Halsbury's Statutes 1229), as to the certifying of places of religious worship, and Sunday and Ragged Schools (Exemption from Rating) Act, 1869, s. 2 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 546), for a definition of Sunday school.

Churches were immune from rates prior to the passing of the above statute, and its object was to extend the same immunity to chapels, etc. In Winstanley v. North Manchester Overseers, [1910] A. C. 7; 74 J. P. 49; 38 Digest 452, 189, a churchyard or burial ground had been acquired under the Church Building Acts, at a distance of about 300 yards from the church. It was held (1) that the rector who received fees in respect of such burial ground was the "occupier" of it for rating purposes and was liable to be rated in respect thereof; and (2) that the burial ground was not exempt from rates under the Act of 1833.

the section.

The text only exempts an incumbent or minister; therefore, trustees, other than the incumbent or minister, will be liable. The defendants were the trustees of a chapel consisting of two floors. The upper floor was the chapel itself, and the lower contained a lecture hall and several smaller rooms. The upper floor was exclusively appropriated to public religious worship, and the premises as a whole were registered as a place of religious worship. The lecture hall was used for the purposes of a Sunday school and of an institute, the members of the latter paying a subscription, and lectures and concerts were from time to time given in the hall in connection with the institute, for which tickets were sold to persons who were not members; but the money received did not cover the cost of the entertainments. A bazaar and sale of work had also been held in the lecture hall, when a charge was made for admission. The money realised from the bazaar was handed to the defendant B., and appropriated by him to the chapel building fund, and the proceeds of the sale of work were devoted to the purchase of a piano for the institute. The defendants, who had no beneficial interest in the chapel, having failed to comply with a notice under s. 150 requiring them to pave the street upon which the chapel abutted, the complainants executed the work, and obtained an order of justices for repayment by the defendants of the expenses incurred. It was held that the defendants were the "owners" of the premises; that they were not within the exemption given by this section; and that the order of the justices was, therefore, rightly made (Brewis v. Hornsey L. B. (1890), 55 J. P. 389; 60 L. J. M. C. 48; 26 Digest 522, 2233). Section 16 of the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4865, specially provides for similar cases where that Act is in force.

Certain premises were formerly used as a church. A new church having been built on another site, Sunday services were held only in the new building. The old premises were used on Sunday for a Sunday school, and on week-day evenings for services and class meetings. A debating society met upon the premises once a week free of charge. Once a month a Rechabites society met in the vestry and paid £1 per annum for fuel and lighting. On one occasion a political meeting had been held on the premises, the organisers paying 2s. 6d. for light and heat. There had also been held on the premises an "At Home" in connection with church work, for which there was a charge for admission; and a dramatic entertainment for which there was a charge for admission. On each occasion the premises were open to the public, and the moneys paid for admission were received by the owners and used by them for current expenses, and to liquidate the debt on the new church. The premises had not in fact been rated for the relief of the poor. It was held that the premises were not exclusively appropriated to public religious worship; that they were not by law exempt from poor rate, and, therefore, were not exempt from private street works expenses under s. 16 of the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4865 (Walton-le-Dale U. D. C. v. Greenwood (1911), 75 J. P. 541; 105 L. T. 547; 26 Digest 542, 2405). A catholic church which was divided by a moveable partition into "blessed" and "unblessed" portions, the partition being removed for religious services, but the unblessed portion of which was from time to time used for dances for which charges were made for admission, was held not exclusively appropriated to public religious worship and therefore not exempt from rates (Cardiff Archdiocese Trustees v. Pontypridd Area Assessment Committee, etc. (1930), 94 J. P. 246; 28 L. G. R. 535; Digest Supp.). Under the corresponding Scotch enactment it has been held that church and mission halls sometimes used for temperance meetings and for congregational social meetings are not "exclusively" appropriated to public religious worship, and do not fall within the exemption (Trustees of College Street United Free Church v. Parish Council of Edinburgh (1901), 3 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 414). For a decision under a differently worded Irish Act, see R. v. Belfast (Recorder), [1913] 2 I. R. 439; 38 Digest 463, m.

The words "place" and "premises" as used in the equivalent section of the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4865, refer to buildings only and do not include a piece of vacant land on which it was intended to erect a Sunday school communicating by corridor with a chapel (Ilford Corpn. v. Mallinson (1932), 96 J. P. 185; 147 L. T. 37; Digest Supp.). It was held that there was no evidence on which it could be held that the land was within the curtilage of or formed part of the site of the chapel.

Under a local Act which required the churchwardens or chapelwardens for the time being of any parochial church or chapel to pay the paving rates assessed upon such church or chapel, it was held that a district church erected under New Parishes

Act, 1843 (6 Halsbury's Statutes 123), was not exempt from being rated, and that the churchwardens were liable to pay the rates although they had no parochial funds for that purpose (Mills v. Rydon (1854), 10 Exch. 67; 18 J. P. 633; 19 Digest 291, 829).

There is no such exemption as this in the metropolis. The trustees of a dissenting chapel were held liable under Metropolis Management Act, 1855, s. 105 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 909) (Caiger v. St. Mary, Islington (1881), 45 J. P. 570; 50 L. J. M. C. 59; 26 Digest 491, 2017; Wright v. Ingle (1885), 16 Q. B. D. 379; 50 J. P. 436; 26 Digest 491, 2018). But it was otherwise held with respect to a church which was consecrated and so dedicated to permanent and unalterable uses (Angell v. Paddington (Vestry of) (1868), L. R. 3 Q. B. 714; 32 J. P. 742; 26 Digest 491, 2014). In the case of a cemetery, part of which was consecrated, belonging to a company, such company were held liable (St. Giles, Camberwell (Vestry of) v. London Cemetery Co., [1894] 1 Q. B. 699; 58 J. P. 382; 26 Digest 492, 2021).

Schools.

By the Church Building Act, 1845, s. 13 (6 Halsbury's Statutes 855), the "freehold of the site of every church" of which the commissioners therein mentioned shall accept a conveyance under the Church Building Acts (as to any church not yet consecrated, when the same shall be consecrated), shall vest in the incumbent. Land having been conveyed under the Church Building Acts to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners as a site for a church, a church was afterwards erected on a part of the land, and the church and a part only of the land were consecrated. It was held that upon such consecration the whole of the land so conveyed to the commissioners vested in the incumbent; that the commissioners ceased to be the "owners" of it, and were, therefore, not liable under the Metropolis Management Acts, 1855 and 1862 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 889, 965), to contribute in respect of it towards the cost of paying a new street (Plumstead District Board of Works v. Ecclesiastical Commissioners, [1891] 2 Q. B. 361; 55 J. P. 791; 26 Digest 491, 2015).

It was decided in Bowditch v. Wakefield L. B. (1871), L. R. 6 Q. B. 567; 36 J. P. 197; 26 Digest 523, 2234, that a "national" school was not exempt, and that one of the trustees was liable to pay the proportion of the expenses in respect of such school. This decision was followed in Hornsey U. D. C. v. Smith, [1897] 1 Ch. 843; 76 L. T. 431; 26 Digest 523, 2235; if, however, the school site was conveyed under the School Sites Act, 1841 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 274), difficulty may be experienced in seeking to make effective a charge upon the school (ibid.). A local education authority are also liable in respect of their schools (London School Board v. St. Mary, Islington (Vestry of) (1875), 1 Q. B. D. 65; 40 J. P. 310; 26 Digest 493, 2029). Sunday and Ragged Schools (Exemption from Rating) Act, 1869 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 545), provides that every authority having power to impose or levy any rate upon the occupier of any building used exclusively as a Sunday school or ragged school may exempt such building or part of a building from any rate for any purpose whatever which such authority has power to impose or levy. The exercise of this power is discretionary: see Bell v. Crane (1873), L. R. 8 Q. B. 481; 37 J. P. 711; 38 Digest 470, 318; and quære whether the proportion of expenses under s. 150 is a rate within the meaning of this Act.

By the Education Act, 1921, s. 167 (1) (7 Halsbury's Statutes 211), no person shall be assessed or rated to or for any local rate in respect of any land or buildings used exclusively or mainly for the purposes of the schoolrooms, offices or playground of a public elementary school not provided by the local education authority, except to the extent of any profit derived by the managers of the school from the letting thereof. By sub-s. (2), "local rate" in that section means "a rate the proceeds of which are applicable to public local purposes, and which is leviable on the basis of an assessment in respect of the yearly value of property, and includes any sum which, though obtained in the first instance by a precept, certificate, or other instrument requiring payment from some authority or officer, is or can be ultimately raised out of a local rate as before defined." The apportioned expenses of making up a street clearly do not fall within the definition, and therefore the decisions in Bowditch v. Wakefield L. B., and Hornsey U. D. C. v. Smith, supra, are still law.

(b) A burial ground not "attached to" any church or chapel is not exempt under this section, though partially exempt from local rates under Burial Act, 1855, s. 15 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 223). In Holy Law South Broughton Burial Board v. Failsworth U. D. C., [1928] 1 K. B. 231; 91 J. P. 104; Digest Supp., it was held that a burial ground vested in trustees upon trust to permit it to be used for the members of two synagogues in a city and others, but five miles distant from each of the synagogues is not "attached to" the synagogues or either of them within the meaning of this section. Per LORD HEWART, C.J., "The whole scheme and framework of this section make it plain that what is being considered is physical connection or contiguity. It may well be that that is not enough and that the churchyard or burial grounds in addition to having a physical connection and contiguity with the church, chapel or place appropriated to public religious worship which is exempt from rates must be the churchyard or burial ground of that particular church, chapel or place" (at p. 236).

(c) The previous section requires the authority to give notice to the owner or occupier of the premises to make the street, and in their default empowers them to do the work themselves. This proviso, therefore, deals with the case where, the minister being exempt, there may be no owner liable to do the work, and consequently no default. Under the Private Street Works Act, 1892, s. 16, post, p. 4865, the authority, where that Act is in force, are bound to pay the proportion of expenses in respect of which an exemption under that section is allowed.

152. When any street within any urban district not being a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large (a) has been sewered levelled paved flagged metalled channelled and made good and provided with proper means of lighting to the satisfaction of the urban authority (b), such authority may (c), if they think fit, by notice in writing put up in any part of the street, declare the same to be a highway, and thereupon the same shall become a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large (d); and every such notice shall be entered among the proceedings of the urban authority.

Power to declare private streets when sewered, etc., to be highways.

Provided that no such street shall become a highway so repairable, if within one month after such notice has been put up the proprietor or the majority in number of proprietors (e) of such street, by notice in writing to the urban authority, object thereto, and in ascertaining such majority joint proprietors shall be reckoned as one proprietor (e).

Where the P. H. A., 1890, s. 41, post, p. 4815, is in force by adoption, the above section is repealed, and the provisions of s. 41 are substituted in lieu thereof.

See also the P. H. A., 1907, s. 19, post, p. 5045, and the P. H. A., 1925, s. 82, Vol. V. and 13 Halsbury's Statutes 1153.

(a) As to the meaning of these words, see ante, pp. 1947, 4393 et seq.

(b) Note the use of the copulative. This section is not a complement to s. 150, ante, p. 4388. In order that an authority may declare a street not repairable by the inhabitants at large to be a highway, so that it may become so repairable, it is necessary that each of the works specified in s. 152 shall, at the time of declaration, have been executed upon the street to the satisfaction of the authority. An authority has not, under this section, any discretion as to which of the works mentioned in it they will require to be executed: their discretion is limited to being satisfied with the efficiency of each description of work when done. In Att.-Gen. v. Bidder (1881), 47 J. P. 263; 26 Digest 374, 996, it was suggested, if not decided, that kerbing a road did not answer the requirement of the section that the road must be flagged, this term meaning paved with flagged stones; and that wooden paving did not come within the meaning of any of the requirements of the section. But now, by the P. H. A., 1890, s. 11 (2), post, p. 4806, a street or part of a street which has been asphalted or paved with wood, tar paving, or artificial stone, or other improved paving of any kind, shall be deemed to have been paved within the meaning of the Public Health Acts: Provided that a street shall not be deemed to be paved to the satisfaction of the urban authority, unless it is paved with such kind of paving as the local authority shall consider suitable for the street. Compare the Private Street Works Act, 1892, s. 5, post, p. 4850. And see Allen v. Fulham Vestry (1898), 62 J. P. 548; 79 L. T. 190. Where s. 19 of the Act of 1892, post, p. 4866, is in force, it is not necessary that all the works in the Act mentioned should have been executed before the street is adopted; nor is it necessary where Part III. of the P. H. A., 1890, has been adopted, if the partial works have been executed by the authority.

All the specified works must be done.

Note to
Section 152.

In Saunders v. Bradling Harbour Improvement Railway and Works Co. (1885), 52 L. T. 426; 42 Digest 524, 883, the defendants agreed to construct a road over land of the plaintiff, who was to grant the defendants a right of way over the road when completed, and to permit it to be declared a public highway by the local board. The defendants were to make the road according to a plan and specification already approved by the local board, and to do all things necessary to carry out a resolution passed by the board that the road should six months after completion to their satisfaction be declared by the board a public highway. The specification provided that the pathways should be gravelled, and did not provide for means of lighting. After completion of the road the board were advised that the road did not comply with the requirements of this section, inasmuch as it was not flagged nor provided with means of lighting, and they withheld their sanction to its being declared a public highway. The plaintiff brought an action claiming specific performance by the defendants of the agreement on the ground that they had not done all things necessary to enable the board to declare the road a public highway:—Held, that inasmuch as to compel the defendants to construct the road so as to conform with the provisions of the Act would be to enforce performance of terms at variance with the agreement and entirely outside the contemplation of the parties, specific performance could not be ordered. Whether the plaintiff would have been entitled to damages if any had been shown, quære.

(c) If such a notice has been posted, it cannot subsequently be alleged that the works had not been done to the satisfaction of the authority (Finney v. Birkenhead Corporation, ante, p. 4410). Under the Private Street Works Act, 1892, s. 20, post, p. 4867 (if in force), an authority may be compelled to "take over" a street. See also the P. H. A., 1907, s. 19, post, p. 5045. Where notices have been served under s. 150, ante, since September 8th, 1928, the local authority may be compelled by the frontagers to declare the street a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large if all the works specified in the section have been done to the satisfaction of the local authority (s. 82, P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V. and 13 Halsbury's Statutes 1153).

(d) This is a substitute for the provision in the Highway Act, 1835, s. 23 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 59), relating to the dedication of roads to the public. A landowner in a district under the P. H. A., 1848, gave notice to the local board of his intention to dedicate a certain road as a highway, to which the board replied that they would not adopt the road, as it had not been sewered, levelled, paved, flagged, and channelled to their satisfaction. The landowner, however, obtained and enrolled a certificate of two justices under the Highway Act, 1835, s. 23, and the public then used the road, which was kept in repair by the landowner for twelve months; after which, it being out of repair, an indictment was preferred against the parish. It was held that the inhabitants were not liable, for assuming s. 23 to apply to the case, the road had not been made to the satisfaction of the local board who were the surveyors. WIGHTMAN, J., expressed an opinion that s. 23 was not inconsistent with the P. H. A., 1848, for the board had a discretion as to the amount and kind of repairs to be done to the road, and they might require it to be paved, etc., having regard to the sections of the Act of 1848 corresponding with ss. 150, 152 (R. v. Dukinfield (1863), 4 B. & S. 158; 27 J. P. 805; 26 Digest 362, 873).

No right or liability to repair on the part of a highway authority exists in the case of a road dedicated to the public since August 30th, 1835, unless it has been dedicated or "taken over" in accordance with the Highway Act, 1835, s. 23, this section, one of the other enactments mentioned on p. 1949, or some statutory inclosure award or local Act (Eyre v. New Forest Highway Board (1892), 56 J. P. 517; 26 Digest 260, 5). See Leigh U. D. C. v. King, and Cababé v. Walton-on-Thames U. D. C., p. 1951, ante, as to presuming compliance with statutory formalities; and see generally upon the subject of public liability to repair, pp. 1947 et seq., ante. As to the repair of diverted or substituted roads, see p. 1951, ante.

Where a road carried over a bridge, constructed by the estate owner in laying out the road, is declared a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large under this section, the local authority are liable for the repair of the bridge as part of the highway (Att.-Gen. v. Hornsey B. C., [1927] 1 Ch. 331; 91 J. P. 61; Digest Supp.). See also Regents Canal and Docks Co. v. Gibbons, [1925] 1 K. B. 81; 89 J. P. 4; 26 Digest 579, 2696, where a declaration under this section was held to release a liability under a contract to repair a bridge until "taken over" by the local authority.

Dedication under Highway
Act, 1835,
s. 23.

The fact that a private road has been made up at the cost of the frontagers does not, if it is not declared a highway, give a frontager any right of access to it which he did not already possess (Moubray, Rowan and Hicks v. Drew, [1893] A. C. 295; 26 Digest 518, b). Note to Section 152.

(e) There is no definition of the word proprietor, which is not a legal term having any distinct meaning. See Lister v. Lobley (1837), 7 Ad. & El. 124; 1 J. P. 309, tors' power where it was held, in a clause giving compensation to owners or proprietors, that these words applied not only to the owners in fee simple, but to lessees for terms of years also. In Rossiter v. Miller (1877), 5 Ch. D. 648, JESSEL, M.R., said: "Is there any doubt that, according to ordinary language, the word proprietors means owners, and the word owners, proprietors?" Having regard to this and the preceding sections, the word as used in the text is probably equivalent to owners; and probably it means the owners of the soil of the street and not the frontagers in a case where the latter do not also own the actual street. See Steward v. Metropolitan Electric Tramways, Ltd., in notes to the P. H. A., 1890, s. 41 (2), post, p. 4816.

Where any part of a street belongs to two or more persons as joint tenants, they can give one vote between them; each person who owns a part in severalty can give one vote.

It is presumed that an objection may be withdrawn, and a declaration then made.

153. Where for any purpose of this Act any urban authority deem it necessary (a) to raise sink or otherwise alter the situation of any water or gas pipes mains plugs or other waterworks (b) or gasworks laid in or under any street (b), they may by notice in writing (c) require the owner of the pipes mains plugs or works to raise sink or otherwise alter the situation of the same in such manner and within such reasonable time as is specified in the notice; the expenses of or connected with any such alteration shall be paid by the urban authority; and if such notice is not complied with the urban authority may themselves make the alteration required (d): Power to require gas and water pipes to be moved.

Provided—

That no such alteration shall be required or made which will permanently (e) injure any such pipes mains plugs or works or prevent the water or gas from flowing as freely and conveniently as usual; and

That where under any local Act of Parliament the expenses of or connected with the raising sinking or otherwise altering the situation of any water or gas pipes mains plugs or other waterworks or gasworks, are directed to be borne by the owner of such pipes or works, his liability in that respect shall continue in the same manner and under the same conditions in all respects as if this Act had not been passed.

(a) The power conferred by this section apparently imposes no liability upon an authority, if they cause the level of a street to be lowered under s. 149, ante, p. 4375, to lower to a corresponding extent the pipes in the street (Southwark and Vauxhall Water Co. v. Wandsworth District Board, [1898] 2 Ch. 603; 62 J. P. 756; 26 Digest 488, 1997). If the level of a gas main is altered in executing private street works, the cost of the alteration must be borne under this section and cannot be charged to the frontagers (Re Jesty's Avenue, Broadway, Weymouth, [1940] 2 K. B. 68; [1940] 2 All E. R. 634; 104 J. P. 279; Digest Supp.).

(b) For definitions of waterworks and street, see s. 4, ante, p. 4331, and also ante, p. 716.

(c) See, as to the authentication and service of the notices, ss. 266, 267, post, pp. 4494 et seq.

(d) At their own expense.

(e) In the case of slight or temporary injury compensation may be claimable under s. 308, post, p. 4515. Reference may also be made to L. G. A., 1929, s. 39, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 913.

Section 154.

purchase premises for improvement
of streets.

154. Any urban authority may purchase any premises (a) for the purpose of widening opening enlarging or otherwise improving any street (b), or (with the sanction of the Local Government Board (c)) for the purpose of making any new street (d).

In rural districts and in relation to "county roads" in urban districts (including non-county boroughs) this section is applied to county councils subject to the deletion of the words "with the sanction of the Local Government Board," and as if the word "street" included "county roads" and "county bridges" (Sched. I., Pts. I. and III., L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 975, 977).

Functions under this section are, therefore, no longer exercisable by rural district councils, where an order has been made under s. 276, post, applying the section to the district (s. 30 (3), L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V., post), except in the case of delegation by the county council under s. 35, ibid., and in that event the section will apply in its amended form, for the rural district council will only be acting as "agents" for the county council and must act in accordance with the terms of the delegation.

Councils of urban districts with a population not exceeding 20,000 are in respect to "county roads" in their district in exactly the same position as rural district councils.

Councils of urban districts of a greater population than 20,000 may in relation to "county roads" "claimed" by them under s. 32 of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V., post, function under this section as if the "county road" were an ordinary road vested in them.

In relation to all roads in their district other than county roads the powers of an urban district council under this section remain unchanged and the amendment above referred to is not operative.

Section 176 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 700) was similarly applied to county councils so far as might be required for the purposes of this section. See now s. 160 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 978.

By s. 83 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, "the improvement and development of frontages or of the lands abutting on or adjacent to any street" is to be deemed to be one of the purposes for which premises may be acquired under this section. As a fact, however, for many years prior to 1925 the M. of H. and their predecessors had interpreted s. 154 in this wide sense and had even allowed lands which would not abut upon a widened street to be included in Provisional Orders for compulsory purchase (under s. 176). The correctness of this practice having been questioned when the Bill for the 1925 Act was in preparation, s. 83 was inserted to remove the doubt.

A somewhat similar power as regards the widening of streets is conferred upon urban authorities by s. 160 (2), post, p. 4444. Highway authorities had similar powers under s. 82 of the Highway Act, 1835 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 94), and ss. 47, 48 of the Highway Act, 1864 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 158, 160). Reference may also be made to the Development and Road Improvement Funds Act, 1909, post, p. 5105, under which extended powers of acquiring land for highway purposes are conferred, and to the Public Works Facilities Act, 1930 (Vol. V. and 23 Halsbury's Statutes 769), which provides a speedy machinery for acquiring land.

Under the L. G. A., 1894, s. 8, parish councils have certain powers for the acquisition of rights-of-way, and for the execution of works incidental to the execution of these and other powers. As to the construction of a new road by a parish council under these provisions, see notes to s. 8 of the Act of 1894, post, p. 4896.

land.

(a) The word "purchase" includes "gift." If, therefore, land is given for the purposes of a new street, the sanction of the M. of H. should, in strictness, be obtained. A distinct power to accept gifts, however, now exists under the L. G. A., 1933, s. 268, ante, p. 1148. Under the Crown Lands Act, 1906, the Commissioners of Crown Lands may convey to a local authority land required for the purpose of widening, or improving, any bridge, including the approaches thereto and abutments thereof. See also ss. 10, 11 and 12 of the Crown Lands Act, 1927 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 335, 336).

See the definition of "premises" in s. 4, ante, p. 4335.

See St. Nicholas, Leicester v. Langton, [1899] P. 19; 7 Digest 556, 326; Re St. Anne's, Soho (1900), Times, July 20th; Re Bideford Parish, Ex parte Bideford (Rector, etc.), [1900] P. 314; 64 J. P. 743; 7 Digest 556, 330; Sutton v. Bowden, [1913] 1 Ch. 518; 19 Digest 356, 1737; Re St. Mary Abbot (1914), Times, May 4th; Ex parte Uxbridge U. D. C. (1914), 30 T. L. Note to
Section 154.

In a case arising under the Metropolis Management Acts it was held that a borough council has power to enter into an agreement with a landowner, as part of a scheme for widening a road, to remove a sign-post belonging to him to a position on the edge of the public footpath (Hoare & Co., Ltd. v. Lewisham Borough Council (1903), 67 J. P. 20; 87 L. T. 464; 26 Digest 488, 1998).

For the general power to purchase lands, see now L. G. A., 1933, Part VII., ante, p. 973. Under the corresponding provision in the P. H. A., 1848, s. 73, land could only be purchased by agreement, and the urban authority had no compulsory powers. See Frewen v. Hastings L. B. (1867), 16 L. T. 553. Land may be acquired compulsorily for purposes of this section. Whether land is purchased by agreement or compulsorily it would appear that the vendor is entitled to insist on the council taking a duly executed conveyance of the land (Great Hospital Trustees v. Norwich Corporation, Local Government Chronicle, 1885, p. 860; In re Cary-Elwes' Contract, [1906] 2 Ch. 143; 70 J. P. 345; 17 Digest 232, 470). And, although a purchasing council are entitled generally to say by what description land purchased shall be vested in them, the vendor may require the description to be such as to give effect to the true contract (Monighetti v. Wandsworth Borough Council (1909), 73 J. P. 91; 40 Digest 277, 2414).

The authority must in every case acquire the freehold of the premises or obtain the freeholder's consent to the land being thrown into the street. The M. of H. would not otherwise sanction any loan for the scheme.

In a borough any surplus of the general rate fund (which is now by the R. and V. A., 1925, s. 10, ante, p. 2140, substituted for the borough fund) may, under the L. G. A., 1933, s. 185 (3), ante, p. 1013, be applied for the improvement of the borough.

Though the authority can, under this section, add land to a highway, they cannot take away any land from the highway, even if such land has, by reason of a part added, become unnecessary. A highway cannot, generally speaking, be stopped up or diverted except pursuant to the Highway Act, 1835, ss. 84—91 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 97—103) (R. v. Platts (1880), 44 J. P. 765; 49 L. J. Q. B. 848; 26 Digest 275, 129). Under special circumstances, however, highways may be interfered with under the Church Building Act, 1819 (6 Halsbury's Statutes 729); the Defence Act, 1860 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 488); Inclosure Acts; the Military Lands Act, 1892 (17 Halsbury's Statutes 574); the Military Manœuvres Acts, 1897 and 1911 (17 Halsbury's Statutes 591, 601), and Railway Acts. S. 46 of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1656, provides for the extinguishment of public rights of way over land acquired under Part III. of that Act.

A town council, in connection with a street widening, proposed to exchange land forming part of the existing highway for other land required for the improvement. The L. G. B. pointed out that before the scheme could be carried out an order of justices was necessary under the Highway Act, 1835, ss. 85 et seq. (9 Halsbury's Statutes 99 et seq.). They referred to Coverdale v. Charlton (1878), 4 Q. B. D. 104; 43 J. P. 268; 26 Digest 329, 616, and Rolls v. St. George-the-Martyr, Southwark (1880), 14 Ch. D. 785; 44 J. P. 680; 26 Digest 330, 627, and observed that it was not clear to them, that, even if an order for diversion was made, the council would possess such rights over the soil of the disused part of the highway as would enable them to exchange it for other land. It seemed to the Board that on the present roadway being legally stopped up the adjoining owner would without further action be the owner of the soil discharged of the right of the public to pass over it.

Where an authority acting under this section make a new street it must be kept in repair by them, and they cannot subsequently make it up at the cost of the frontagers (Hull L. B. of Health v. Jones (1856), 21 J. P. 37; 1 H. & N. 489; 26 Digest 520, 2212). So, too, if by purchase, or by an agreement equivalent to purchase, they widen an old street repairable by them, they must keep in repair the added strip. In 1883, the owners of an estate, through which ran an ancient highway about thirty feet wide, repairable by the inhabitants at large, agreed with the local authority that as and when the estate should be laid out for building the owners would straighten and lay out the road so as to make it forty feet wide. The agreement recited that it was entered into for the purpose of settling a question which had arisen as to the width of the road. When the whole of the road had been laid out in accordance with the agreement, the authority made it up and sought to charge the frontagers, under s. 150, with the cost of so doing. It was held that the agreement amounted to a purchase by the authority under s. 154 of the land thrown in to widen the road, and the frontagers were not liable (Portsmouth Corporation v. Hall (1909), 71 J. P. 564; 98 L. T. 513; 26 Digest 521, 2219). A contract by which an owner agrees to throw land into a street and the authority agree to adopt and make up the added strip should be under seal; otherwise the owner cannot obtain specific performance (Hoare v. Kingsbury U. D. C., [1912] 2 Ch. 452; 76 J. P. 401; 13 Digest 384, 1127).

As regards the liability to make up strips of land thrown into a street, reference might also be made to the cases referred to, ante, at pp. 4418—20. See also the notes to ss. 30 and 31, P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post.

For a case where it was alleged that the claim to purchase land for the purpose stated was not bonâ fide, see Marquess of Clanricarde v. Congested Districts Board for Ireland (1914), 79 J. P. 481; 49 Ir. L. T. 42; 11 Digest 118, 116.

(b) See the definition in s. 4, ante, p. 4336. See also note (b) to s. 150, ante, p. 4390. It will be seen that a council are not precluded from incurring expense in acquiring lands for the widening of a street by the fact that the street is not repairable by the inhabitants at large. But, presumably, the public must possess, or be about to obtain, an indefeasible right of way over it. As to the widening and improvement of county roads, see the L. G. A., 1929, Pt. III., and notes thereto, Vol. V., post.

(c) The sanction required is now that of the Ministry of Health (see note (d), infra). Application should be by resolution of the council of which a copy should be forwarded with plans of the proposed improvement. Such applications are usually combined with proposals to borrow money. No sanction is required by a county council or by a district council acting as agents of the county council under a delegation under s. 35, L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 910.

(d) It may be noted that in questions of highway improvement and the formation of new roads the Ministry of Health now act in consultation with the Ministry of Transport. See the Ministry of Transport Act, 1919 (post, p. 5195), and notes thereto.

It is essential that the proposed new street should comply with the byelaws in force in the district as to new streets (see s. 157, post, p. 4432), but the M. of H. has, on occasion, confirmed a special exempting byelaw in order to regularise a street of less than the width required by the local authority's byelaws.

Power to regulate line
of buildings.

155. When any house (a) or building situated in any street (b) in an urban district, or the front thereof (bb), has been taken down (c), in order to be rebuilt or altered, the urban authority may prescribe the line (d) in which any house or building, or the front thereof, to be built or rebuilt in the same situation shall be erected, and such house or building, or the front thereof, shall be erected in accordance therewith (e).

The urban authority shall pay or tender compensation to the owner (f) or other person immediately interested in such house or building for any loss or damage he may sustain in consequence of his house or building being set back or forward, the amount of such compensation, in case of dispute, to be settled by arbitration in manner provided by this Act (g). Section 155.

See the proviso as to railway buildings in s. 157, post, p. 4433.

Neither this section nor the P. H. (Building in Streets) Act, 1888, post, p. 4777, enables a local authority to prescribe a building line in anticipation of future development.

"Building lines" may now, however, be prescribed under s. 5 of the Roads Improvement Act, 1925, Vol. V., post, and "improvement lines" in districts where s. 33 of the P. H. A., 1925, has been adopted. The distinction between "building lines" and "improvement lines" is explained in the notes to s. 33 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post. References may also be made to ss. 30 and 31 of the P. H. A., 1925, under which local authorities may in certain circumstances require highways to be widened by persons building on land adjoining thereto.

(a) See the definition of house in s. 4, ante, p. 4341.

(b) For the definition of a street, see s. 4, ante, p. 4336. See also note (c) under s. 3 of the Public Health (Building in Streets) Act, 1888, post, p. 4778. The word "street" is apparently used here in its ordinary sense of a road with buildings on each side.

(bb) As to what constitutes the "front," see Att.-Gen. v. Price's Tailors (1928) Ltd., [1930] 2 Ch. 316; 94 J. P. 226; Digest Supp.

(c) This means "substantially taken down." See Att.-Gen. v. Hatch, post, Buildings p. 4430. The words "taken down" do not seem applicable to the case of buildings destroyed by fire or other casualty (cf. s. 23 of the London Building Act, 1930 (23 fire, etc. Halsbury's Statutes 213)). If so, then apparently s. 3 of the Public Health (Buildings in Streets) Act, 1888, post, p. 4778, would be applicable, and it may be that no compensation would be payable for setting back.

As to the liability of owners under a local Act, relating to the "taking down to be rebuilt or repaired of part of a front wall," for an alteration not intended by them, and made by builders without their knowledge or instructions, see Yabbicom v. Bristol Brewery, Ltd. (1903), 67 J. P. 261; 1 L. G. R. 477; 26 Digest 565, 2592.

(d) The "line" of a street need not be a strict mathematical line; it means substantially such a line as shall preserve uniformity of appearance (per WILLES, of a building J., in Tear (or Fear, or Sear) v. Freebody (1858), 4 C. B. (n.s.), at p. 262; 22 J. P. 707; line. 26 Digest 501, 2086).

The corporation of F. had power under a local Act to prescribe the line in which any house to be thereafter built or taken down for the purpose of being rebuilt or altered should be erected, on payment of compensation to the owner of any house required to be set back; it was also provided that no new street to be thereafter laid out should be of less width than 40 feet, inclusive of footways, and, in the case of existing streets, houses to be thereafter erected were to be set back so as to allow of a width of 40 feet. A temporary church, fronting a road less than 40 feet wide, having been pulled down with a view to erecting a permanent church, the corporation gave notice to the clergyman in charge of a resolution passed by them that the road must be not less than 40 feet wide; but there was no statement that the additional width was to be gained on the side on which the church abutted, and it appeared that the street might have been widened on the side opposite without removing any buildings. Afterwards, but not until the foundations of the new church had been put in, the corporation prescribed a building line which intersected the church as designed:—Held, that they were too late, and could not restrain the erection of the church in the manner in which it had been commenced (Folkestone Corporation v. Woodward (1872), L. R. 15 Eq. 159; 37 J. P. 324; 26 Digest 564, 2590).

Where a building has been taken down to be rebuilt, a building line may be prescribed under this section for any portion of it which has not been commenced, although other portions of it have been commenced, unless the portion commenced necessarily involves as a matter of construction a projection beyond the line afterwards prescribed. The defendants, being about to pull down a school and erect a new one, submitted plans to the local board. The local board objected to the plans, giving as a reason that they violated a byelaw requiring a person laying out a street to lay it out of a certain width. This byelaw was not applicable, as South Lane, on which the school fronted, was not a new street. The defendants disregarded the objection, commenced their works on January 5th, laid the foundations of the main wall towards South Lane on the 12th, and proceeded rapidly with the erection of it. On January 22nd the local board prescribed a building line which did not interfere with the main wall, but would prevent the erection of certain annexes not then commenced, lying between South Lane and the main wall, which annexes were shown on the plans laid before the board. The defendants had ground enough to allow of the annexes being erected elsewhere. The defendants proceeded with the annexes, and the board brought an action to restrain them from building beyond the line, and to compel them to pull down what they had built beyond it. It was held that the commencement of the main building did not preclude the board from laying down a line which would prevent the erection of the annexes which had not then been commenced. It was held also that as the notice given by the board, though ineffectual for the purpose of empowering them to pull down the erection under s. 158, post, p. 4442, gave the defendants to understand that the board objected on the ground that buildings according to the plan would make the street too narrow, the board had not done anything to induce the defendants to believe that they would not prescribe a building line, and that there was no equity to prevent the board from exercising their power under this section on the ground that they had misled the defendants (Newhaven L. B. v. Newhaven School Board (1885), 30 Ch. D. 350 ; 26 Digest 563, 2579). The principle of this case was approved in Att.-Gen. v. Hatch, [1893] 3 Ch. 36 ; 57 J. P. 825 ; 26 Digest 564, 2580, where, however, the main question was as to the meaning of the words "taken down," which the Court of Appeal decided meant "substantially taken down." In that case the owner of a house took out the front wall of the ground and first floors and removed the first floor in order to convert the two lower storeys into one lofty shop, which was also to be extended behind the house. The second floor was not disturbed, but was shored up with timber, afterwards replaced by iron girders and brick piers. Shortly after the erection of the girders and piers had been completed the authority prescribed a building line, and commenced an action to restrain the owner from building in front of it. It was held by KEKEWICH, J., that the house had been substantially taken down, but that the authority had not prescribed the line in time. The Court of Appeal held that the house had not been substantially taken down, and that the power to fix a building line had, therefore, never arisen.

Two adjoining houses had shops on the ground floor projecting a few feet further into the street than the upper floors. It was proposed to convert them into one shop with a single entrance from the street in a new position, and the authority made it a condition that the ground floor front should be set back to the level of the exterior wall of the upper floors on the ground that the front was being taken down within the meaning of this section. It was held that this was not so because (1) for purposes of this section the front included the exterior walls of the upper floors as well as that of the ground floor, and (2) in any event the alterations to the premises did not amount to taking down the front of the ground floor (Att.-Gen. v. Prices' Tailors (1928), Ltd., [1930] 2 Ch. 316 ; 94 J. P. 226 ; Digest Supp.).

line" cases.

Several decisions have been given by the Court of Session in Scotland upon the provision in the corresponding Scotch Act (General Police and Improvement (Scotland) Act, 1862, s. 162), which is, however, limited to a house or building, "any part of which projects beyond the regular line of the street or beyond the front of the house or building on either side thereof." It was held that this section did not apply where the owner of a house which stood back from the line of the adjoining house proposed to bring it forward, and also that the wall and railing of his front garden (which did project beyond the line of the adjoining house) was not a "building" (Fraser v. Kennedy (1877), 4 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 266 ; affirmed in H. L., 15 Sc. L. R. 765). Pending the appeal the owner brought an action for damages against the commissioners in respect of their having wrongfully prevented him from proceeding with his building operations, and it was held that such an action would lie, although there was no averment of malice and want of probable cause (Kennedy v. Fort William (Police Commissioners of) (1877), 5 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 302 ; 28 Digest 530, q). For decisions as to the meaning of the words "regular line of the street" in the Scotch Act, see Schulze v. Galashiels Corporation, [1895] A. C. 666 ; 26 Digest 565, h; Robertson v. Greenock Police Board (1883), 11 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 304. In the latter case, one division of a long street consisted on one side of public buildings (with a frontage four feet back from the general line of the street) and of two adjoining houses, Nos. 2 and 4, occupied as one tenement, belonging to one proprietor (with a frontage in line with the general line of the street). In 1878 the proprietor applied for a warrant to rebuild the two houses on the same site, whereupon the commissioners served a requisition requiring the new buildings to be rebuilt four feet back, in line with the adjoining public buildings. The owner did nothing, but in 1881 he applied for a warrant to take down and rebuild No. 2, which did not adjoin the public buildings. A second requisition was then made requiring him, as owner of the house, or building numbered 2 and 4, "and which house or building, or a part thereof, is about to be altered or rebuilt, and which house or building projects four feet beyond the line" of the adjoining buildings, and beyond the line of the street from A. to B. (describing the division of the street), to set back the front of the buildings to be erected, to the line of the adjoining public buildings and of the street. In an action by the owner for a declaration that he was entitled to build up to the line of his former frontage, the court held that Nos. 2 and 4 were to be regarded as one building; that the line of the adjoining building was to be taken as the line of the street; and that, therefore, the requisition must receive effect (LORD CRAIGHILL, diss., held that Nos. 2 and 4 were to be regarded as separate buildings, and that the pursuer was entitled to rebuild No. 2 on its former site, as it did not project beyond No. 4, or beyond the general line of street, of which the adjoining public buildings formed a mere fraction).

(e) An erection in violation of this section may be prevented by injunction, or, Enforcement if complete, will subject the builder to an indictment. But where the owner of a of prescribed factory, being desirous of rebuilding it, submitted his plans to the local board, line. and, on the plans being approved, proceeded to pull down the factory and re-erect it according to the plans, it was held that the board could not, under the corresponding provisions of the L. G. A., 1858, s. 35, require him to set back his premises, and they were restrained from interfering (Slee v. Bradford (Corporation of) (1863), 27 J. P. 612; 8 L. T. 491; 26 Digest 563, 2577). In a similar case the owner of a house having, in accordance with a byelaw, left, on October 16th, a plan of an intended new building, the local board passed a resolution that the plan was approved of, and that he should be offered £40 for certain land of his thrown into the street. He refused to accept the £40, but proceeded with his works, and by October 26th had pulled down the front wall of his house. On the 27th, the board passed a resolution abandoning the terms before offered, and requiring him to set his frontage further back, notice being given under the above section. On November 27th the owner proceeded with his building, and on December 21st he was required to pull down his new building. It was held that, the board having approved a plan and having allowed the owner to pull down the front wall of his house, they could not afterwards avail themselves of the powers given by this section (Masters v. Pentypool L. B. (1878), 9 Ch. D. 677; 26 Digest 563, 2578).

In Att.-Gen. v. Parish, [1913] 2 Ch. 444; 77 J. P. 391; 26 Digest 564, 2582, the defendant, the owner of a house in P. Lane, on January 19th, deposited plans for the proposed rebuilding of the house, and its demolition was begun on January 26th. On February 5th at a meeting of the authority a plan was submitted by the surveyor showing a "street line" and "building line" for P. Lane, and a resolution was passed adopting such lines; it was further resolved that the defendant's plans be disapproved as not complying with the building line and certain byelaws. On February 15th the clerk wrote informing the defendant of the latter resolution. On February 24th the defendant's architect informed the clerk that he could not agree to the building line, and on February 26th the foundations of the new house were laid. On the same day the clerk wrote drawing the defendant's attention to the responsibility attaching to building contrary to a prescribed line. On March 12th the surveyor wrote giving the defendant formal notice not to proceed with the building, as the erection did not comply with the prescribed building line. The building was completed on April 27th in conformity with the byelaws, but about four feet in advance of the prescribed building line. At no time did the authority tender or offer to pay compensation to the defendant or give him notice that they had prescribed the building line under s. 155, or were purporting to exercise their powers under that section. In an action by the Attorney-General for a mandatory injunction to remove so much of the building as was in advance of the prescribed building line, it was held that the relators had duly prescribed a building line within s. 155; that there was no necessity for them to give the defendant notice that they were proceeding under that section; that the tender or payment of compensation was not a condition precedent to their taking any steps under the Act; and, the defendant having unsuccessfully challenged their right to do what they had done, that a mandatory injunction to pull down the building ought to be granted. See also Folkestone Corporation v. Woodward and Newhaven L. B. v. Newhaven School Board, ante, pp. 4429, 4430.

In Sutton L. B. v. Hoare (1894), 10 T. L. R. 586, an action brought to restrain the defendant from rebuilding his premises so as to project beyond the line prescribed by the plaintiffs, the defendant alleged that the plaintiffs in prescribing the line had not acted bona fide in the exercise of their powers, because on each side of his premises there were comparatively new houses, and the plaintiffs had not laid down any general line in that part of the street to be enforced under the compulsory powers given by s. 154, ante, p. 4425, for street widening. NORTH, J., granted an injunction as there was no obligation upon the plaintiffs to proceed under s. 154.

Petrol pumps have been held to be "erections" and "obstructions" if erected in front of a building line prescribed by a town planning scheme (Mackenzie v. Abbott (1926), 24 L. G. R. 444; Digest Supp.).

(f) See the definition in s. 4, ante, p. 4335.

(g) See s. 179, post, p. 4461. As to the time for tendering compensation, see Att.-Gen. v. Parish, ante, p. 4431. For a case as to the method of calculating the compensation payable for a portion only of a front plot abutting upon a street about to be widened, but where the back land immediately adjoining is the property of the same vendors, see Re S. E. Rail. Co. and L. C. C., [1915] 2 Ch. 252; 79 J. P. 545; 11 Digest 124, 156.

Buildings not to be brought forward.

156. It shall not be lawful in any urban district, without the written consent of the urban authority, to bring forward any house or building forming part of any street or any part thereof beyond the front wall of the house or building on either side thereof, nor to build any addition thereto beyond the front of the house or building on either side of the same.

Any person offending against this enactment shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings for every day during which the offence is continued after written notice in this behalf from the urban authority.

The section was repealed by the Public Health (Buildings in Streets) Act, 1888, which re-enacts it in an amended form. See the Act and notes thereto, post, p. 4777. A question arose as to whether rural authorities who were invested with the powers of s. 156 before its repeal, acquired the powers of the Act of 1888 without any further order. The L. G. B. considered the point to be a doubtful one and advised an application for a new order.

Power to make byelaws respecting new buildings,
etc.

157. Every urban authority may make byelaws (a) with respect to the following matters; (that is to say),

- (1) With respect to the level width and construction of new streets (b), and the provisions for the sewerage (c) thereof:

* * * * *

And they may further provide for the observance of such byelaws by enacting therein such provisions as they think necessary as to the giving of notices (e), as to the deposit of plans (f) and sections by persons intending to lay out streets . . . (d), as to inspection by the urban authority, and as to the power of such authority (subject to the provisions of this Act) (g) to remove, alter, or pull down any work begun or done in contravention of such byelaws (h): . . . (d). Section 157.

The provisions . . . (d) of the two last preceding sections shall not apply to buildings belonging to any railway company and used for the purposes of such railway under any Act of Parliament (i).

This section was extended and amended by the P. H. A., 1890, s. 23, in places where that section was in force; it was also extended by the P. H. A. A. Act, 1907, s. 24, where that section was in force, and by the P. H. (Smoke Abatement) Act, 1926, s. 5. It now deals only with byelaws relating to new streets and their sewerage (see note (d), post, p. 4438). Further provisions of the P. H. A. A. Acts, 1890 and 1907.

There are certain other provisions of the P. H. A. A., 1907, post, p. 5035, which must be noticed in connection with the subject; but none of them will be in force in any district until applied thereto by order of the M. of H., and an order so applying them may impose conditions or make modifications. The sections in question are: s. 15, Deposit of plan to be of no effect after certain intervals; s. 16, As to plans deposited with local authority; s. 17, Power to vary position or direction and to fix beginning and end of new streets; s. 22, Buildings at corner of streets; and s. 33, Exemption of buildings of railway companies and others.

Certain provisions of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, should also be noticed. These provisions will only be in force when adopted. The sections in question, so far as they are germane to this section, are: s. 21, Prevention of water flowing on footpath; s. 22, For preventing soil, etc., from being washed into streets; s. 28, Erection of bridge forming part of new street; s. 29, Continuation of existing streets; s. 30, Declaration of street as new street; ss. 31 and 32, Width of streets in certain cases.

Section 140 of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1739, empowers the M. of H. to prescribe a code of building byelaws relating to the level, width and construction of the new streets. No such code has been prescribed. If it is, it will take effect only upon adoption by a local authority. Subsection (2) of the section enacts that where a local authority have approved any plans and sections for a new street subject to any conditions imposed or authorized by any byelaws in force in the area of the authority, those conditions may be enforced at any time by the authority against the owner for the time being of the lands to which the conditions relate. This enactment gives effect to a recommendation of the Departmental Committee on Building Byelaws (paragraph 68 of Cd. 9213 of 1918). Provisions of the Housing Act, 1936.

The powers of a rural district council to make byelaws with respect to the level, width and construction of new streets and the provisions for the sewerage thereof under this section are now the same as of an urban authority, since the section was applied to them by the Rural District Councils (Urban Powers) Order, 1931 (S. R. & O., 1931, No. 580). This is not affected by the transfer from such councils to the county council of the functions of highway authority for the district. So far as the powers relate to level, width, and construction, a rural district council must, however, consult with the county council before making such byelaws, and if required by the county council must make such byelaws. If a rural district council do not make such byelaws within six months of the requirement of the county council, the county council may themselves do so (s. 30 (4), L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904). The section in the text is not, however, applied to county councils, and it is only in case of default by a rural district council that they may exercise the power. As the powers to be exercised are those of the rural district council the provisions of s. 184, post, p. 4468, and of Part XII. of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, pp. 1093 et seq., as to the making, confirmation and publication of byelaws will apply to byelaws made by a county council under the subsection.

The M. of H. has issued model byelaws for the guidance of local authorities in making byelaws under s. 157 as modified by later legislation, and also (gratuitously) to local authorities and persons likely to be concerned with byelaws) various memoranda explaining the latest practice.

In circular letters of 1906 and 1912, and a memorandum of 1918 (printed at the end of the Report of the Departmental Committee on Building Byelaws, Cd. 9213), revision of the L. G. B. pointed out the necessity for periodically revising byelaws so as to keep them up to date in view of modern methods of construction, and so as to prevent Note to Section 157. — their restricting building operations by any excessive stringency. The M. of H. again drew attention to this necessity in a circular letter of September 1st, 1922, and the progress achieved in bringing byelaws up to date has been recorded in successive annual reports of the Ministry since that date. In this connection it should be noted that under s. 141 of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1741, the M. of H. can insist upon the revocation of byelaws which he is satisfied are likely to be an unreasonable impediment to building. This enactment follows what the Departmental Committee of 1914—18 (Cd. 9213 of 1918) said was their main recommendation. Section 69 (2) of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 245, is a parallel enactment, which, however, is confined to "building byelaws" as defined in s. 343 of that Act, ante, p. 688. For the history of these enactments, vide notes, ante, pp. 245 et seq.

Making, etc. of byelaws. (a) See as to the making, confirming, and publication of byelaws, Part XII. of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, pp. 1093 et seq.; and as to enforcing them, s. 251, post, p. 4481.

Though a local authority be otherwise empowered to make byelaws on these subjects, they may nevertheless act under this section: see s. 341, post, p. 4522.

Authority cannot dispense with compliance with byelaws. Unless the byelaws themselves, or some enactment, e.g., s. 138 of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1736, or an operative planning scheme (s. 11 (1) (b) of the T. and C. P. Act, 1932, ante, p. 1909) give the authority a dispensing power or discretion, the authority are bound by them and cannot waive their requirements (Baxter v. Bedford Corp. (1885), 1 T. L. R. 424; 38 Digest 166, 119; R. v. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (Mayor, etc., of) (1889), 53 J. P. 788; 60 L. T. 963; 38 Digest 191, 294; In re McIntosh and Pontypridd Improvement Co. (1891), 61 L. J. Q. B. 164; 8 T. L. R. 128; affirmed (1892), 8 T. L. R. 203; 31 Digest 333, 4768; Att.-Gen. v. Folkestone Corporation, p. 4437, post).

The approval of an authority of plans which contravene the byelaws made by that authority is illegal and inoperative (Yabbicom v. King, [1899] 1 Q. B. 444; 63 J. P. 149; 38 Digest 190, 286). Even where a local Act contains in a section repealing previous byelaws a proviso saving approved plans, such saving refers only to plans legally approved (ibid.). This case was followed in Wm. Bean & Sons, Ltd. v. Flaxton R. D. C. (1928), 92 J. P. 121; Digest Supp., where s. 25 of the Housing, Town Planning, &c., Act, 1919 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 959), now spent, seems not to have been mentioned.

Ratepayers issued a writ claiming an injunction (1) to restrain the authority from approving plans deposited for a rival place of amusement and alleged to contravene the byelaws, (2) to restrain the authority from refusing to allow inspection of such plans by the plaintiffs, and (3) to restrain the owners from carrying out the plans. An interim injunction was refused, as to (1), because the plans had in fact been approved while the motion was pending; as to (2), because the injunction asked for was in effect mandatory, and could not be granted on an interlocutory application; and as to (3), because the Attorney-General was not a party, and an amendment would not be allowed for the purposes of an interlocutory motion (Dover Picture Palace, Ltd. v. Dover Corporation and Others (1913), 11 L. G. R. 971; 38 Digest 190, 288).

The fact that byelaws contain no proviso enabling an authority to make an exception in an exceptional case does not render them unreasonable and therefore invalid (Salt v. Scott-Hall, [1903] 2 K. B. 245; 67 J. P. 306; 38 Digest 196, 327; Pomeroy v. Malvern U. D. C. (1903), 67 J. P. 375; 38 Digest 197, 329). The L. G. B. and M. of H. have always opposed byelaws which reserve a discretionary power to the authority or its officers. They state that byelaws in such a form are uncertain in their operation (see cases in notes, ante, p. 1095, as to the necessity for "certainty" in byelaws), and that byelaws should prescribe definite requirements. If a byelaw is found not to be enforceable in practice without the exercise of a discretionary power there is strong prima facie ground for thinking it to be unreasonable, and to need amendment in regular form—although it is not obligatory for a local authority to prosecute for a breach so trivial that the justices would probably take advantage of the provisions of s. 1 of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1907 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 365) (Pomeroy v. Malvern U. D. C., supra; Leyton U. D. C. v. Chew, [1907] 2 K. B. 283; 71 J. P. 355; 26 Digest 555, 2505; and cf. Dunning v. Trainer (1909), 73 J. P. 400; 101 L. T. 421; 33 Digest 364, 740). The whole question of discretionary waiver was examined at length by the departmental committee above mentioned, who after taking evidence from local authorities and others expressed the opinion (paragraph 52 of Cd. 9213 of 1918) that any special exceptions from byelaws to meet particular cases ought to be made by byelaw, after the public notice and local deposit required (now) by s. 250 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1104. Now that s. 25 of H. T. P., &c., Act, 1919 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 959), has been repealed, this method of an excepting or amending byelaw will normally be the only one available in regard to streets, though s. 63 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 218, now provides, in relation to "building byelaws" as defined in that Act, a slightly simpler mode of securing the same result.

(b) See, generally, on the question of construction of new streets, notes, ante, pp. 1953-7, and pp. 4336 et seq., post.

An owner of land gave notice to the authority of his intention to lay out certain new streets, including a certain back street, and deposited plans of such streets. Notice was also given by a builder of his intention to dig and lay out the foundations of four cottages in the back street, and a plan of such street was deposited by him. In the plans deposited by the owner and builder, the back street, in which it was intended to build the cottages, was shown to be only twelve feet wide, whereas the minimum width required by the byelaws was eighteen feet. The authority gave to both the owner and the builder notice of their disapproval of such plans and, on the builder's proceeding to build the cottages according to the disapproved plans, they summoned him for laying out a new street of insufficient width, contrary to the byelaws. It was held that such summons was rightly dismissed, as the owner, and not the builder, was the person who had laid out the street (Sunderland (Mayor of) v. Brown (1880), 44 J. P. 831; 26 Digest 556, 2516). Per HAWKINS, J.: "All that the builder was employed to do was to build certain cottages upon the line of a street already laid out." See also Att.-Gen. v. Gibb, p. 235, ante; Brown v. Edmonton L. B., p. 234, ante, and cases cited therewith; and Welsh v. West Ham Corporation (as to continuing offences), p. 235, ante, and cases cited therewith; cf. also Att.-Gen. v. Ashbourne Recreation Ground Co., [1903] 1 Ch. 101; 67 J. P. 73; 26 Digest 558, 2534.

In certain cases local authorities who have adopted s. 31, P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, can require a "new street" to be laid out of more than the width prescribed by the byelaws.

An authority made the following byelaw: "Every person who constructs a new street shall cause the kerb of each footpath in such street to be put in at such level as may be fixed or approved by the urban sanitary authority. No person shall commence the erection of a new building in a new street unless and until the kerb of each footpath therein shall have been put in pursuant to the preceding requirement. Every person offending against this byelaw shall be liable for each offence to a penalty of forty shillings." It was held that this byelaw was void as being unreasonable (Rudland v. Sunderland Corporation (1884), 49 J. P. 359; 52 L. T. 617; 26 Digest 554, 2494). "If it applied only to the particular piece of the street opposite to that on which a man might be going to build, there might be some ground for arguing that it was reasonable; but it is not so, for if it means anything it means that each owner must wait until the whole kerb is put in": per GROVE, J. "I doubt whether the authority has power to make these provisions with respect to matters which have been specifically provided for by s. 150, ante, p. 4388, since they amount to imposing on landowners an absolute duty to do certain things under pain of incurring a penalty, while that section merely provides that if they decline to do them there shall be no penalty, but the authority shall themselves do them and recover the expenses": per HAWKINS, J. In connection with the latter dictum, reference may be made to Leyton U. D. C. v. Chew, [1907] 2 K. B. 283; 71 J. P. 355; 26 Digest 555, 2505. There, the authority had made a byelaw that in the case of certain classes of streets there should be constructed on each side of the street a proper channel of a given size "either of granite cubes laid on a bed of cement concrete at least six inches in thickness, or otherwise in a suitable manner and with suitable materials." It was held that such byelaw was not bad for being inconsistent with s. 150 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4388, and ss. 6 and 7 of the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4851.

In Baker v. Portsmouth Corporation (1878), 3 Ex. D. 157; 42 J. P. 278; 26 Digest 552, 2488, BRAMWELL, L.J., said that "the words of sub-s. (1) include the construction of the buildings, and the buildings themselves and front gardens, or whatever else is at the side of the roadway," and a byelaw was held to be valid which provided that no building should be erected by the side of any new street, or to which any new street would form the only carriage approach, until such street had been constructed to the approval of the authority; but see Rudland v. Sunderland Corporation, supra, as to the particular requirement, and the Barton Eccles Case, ante, p. 1954. In the last-mentioned case the House of Lords held, reversing the decision of the Court of Appeal, that the word "width" in the section meant width of roadway, and not width between houses on each side of the street.

A local authority has no power to prescribe a building line by a byelaw under s. 157, but building lines may now be prescribed under s. 5, Roads Improvement Act, 1925, Vol. V., post (subject to the elaborate safeguards in the section) in highways repairable by the inhabitants at large, and where byelaws make the setting back of buildings a condition of concession in regard to the street itself (as is now usual, following the model byelaws) the condition will run with the land under sub-s. (2) of s. 140 of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1739.

Byelaws provided: ". . . (4) Every person who shall lay out a new street shall so lay out such street that the width thereof shall be forty feet at least . . . (6) Every person who shall construct a new street shall provide at one end, at least, of such street an entrance of a width equal to the width of such street, and open from the ground upwards"—Held, that the sixth byelaw was intra vires and reasonable, and that it prevented a landowner from constructing a new street upon his land until he had provided an entrance to the new street of the specified width, even though the entrance could only be made upon the land of another person over whom he had no control:—Held, also, that the "construction" of a new street included the building of the houses abutting on it, and, consequently, that the landowner could not, until an adequate entrance had been provided, erect houses abutting on the proposed new street (Hendon L. B. v. Pounce (1889), 42 Ch. D. 602; 26 Digest 554, 2498).

In Bromley L. B. v. Lloyd (1892), 56 J. P. 278; 66 L. T. 462; 26 Digest 554, 2500, a person desired to construct a new street upon his own land. The proposed entrance to it was a public lane of a width varying from twelve to twenty feet upon byelaws similar to those in the last case. KEKEWICH, J., held that the person proposing to construct the new street was under an obligation, before constructing it, to provide an entrance of the width prescribed by the byelaws, and, further, that the fact that the entrance proposed was a public road did not alter such obligation if that road was of less than the prescribed width, and he therefore granted an interim injunction. But when the case was tried before WILLS, J., he gave judgment for the defendant on the ground that the entrance required by the byelaw meant merely a practicable way into the street ((1893), 9 T. L. R. 306). Where byelaws required that the entrance to any new street should be thirty-six feet wide at the least, the local authority were held justified in refusing to pass plans for the construction of a new street showing an entrance of less than thirty-six feet wide, consisting of an existing street outside their district (Barton Regis R. D. C. v. Stevens (1896), 61 J. P. 598; 12 T. L. R. 347; 26 Digest 555, 2501). The L. G. B. since the 1912 issue of the model byelaws, and the M. of H. have, however, been unwilling to confirm byelaws requiring an "entrance," eo nomine, to a new street.

When a new street has once been constructed of the width required by the byelaws, it is not an offence thereunder to subsequently narrow it, e.g., by the erection of gate piers therein; and, semble, a byelaw prohibiting any alteration of the original width would be ultra vires (Tarrant v. Woking U. D. C., [1914] 3 K. B. 796; 79 J. P. 22; 26 Digest 555, 2503). See also Urban Housing Co., Ltd. v. Oxford Corpn., [1940] Ch. 70, at p. 78; [1939] 4 All E. R. 211, at p. 216E; 104 J. P. 75, at p. 80; Digest Supp., where the Court of Appeal considered a modern byelaw as to the ends of streets, and Cowan v. Hendon Borough Council, [1939] 3 All E. R. 366; 103 J. P. 285; Digest Supp., as to the meaning of the word "street."

The byelaws of a local board required that every person laying out a new street should, if it were a principal street, lay it out at least thirty-six feet wide. In 1875 the board approved the plan of an estate showing a street as intended to be laid out thirty-six feet wide. In 1887 the relator built three houses in the street according to plans approved by the board; and in 1895 he sought an injunction to restrain the defendant Bell from building so as to cause the street to be of less width than thirty-six feet. NORTH, J., refused an injunction because there was nothing to show that this was a "principal" street within the meaning of the byelaws (Att.-Gen. v. Pudsey L. B. and Bell (1895), 59 J. P. 329; 39 Sol. J. 315; 26 Digest 558, 2531).

In the town of Goole certain ways existed communicating with the backs of houses, and used by the authority (who did the scavenging of the town) for the purpose of obtaining access to privies and ashpits in order to remove the contents thereof. Plans were submitted for approval showing ways, such as above described, of the width of six feet; but the authority, who had made a byelaw prescribing ten feet as the minimum width of "new streets," refused to approve such plans. It was held, discharging a rule for a mandamus to compel approval, that the ways in question were "passages" within the meaning of s. 4, and, therefore, "streets" within the meaning of that section, and that, therefore, the authority had power by s. 157 (1) to make byelaws with respect to their width and construction, and the byelaw was valid (R. v. Goole L. B., [1891] 2 Q. B. 212; 55 J. P. 535; 26 Digest 553, 2491).

The Manchester Improvement Act, 1845, s. 29, provided that no street should be made of less width than twenty-four feet; and s. 20 provided that it should not be lawful to build within the borough any houses with their fronts facing each other, which should be separated from each other by a space of less than twenty-four feet wide. It was held that these provisions prohibited the erection in a street of two houses at the same time, with their fronts facing each other, within the prescribed distance, but did not affect the erection of buildings not in a street (R. v. Sidebotham (1859), 23 J. P. 342; 28 L. J. M. C. 189).

The F. Improvement Act, 1855, incorporated the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847. By s. 69 of the former Act, it was provided that no new street to be thereafter laid out should be of less width than forty feet, but by the general Act, which came into operation in cases which were not provided for by any special Act, the extreme width of new streets intended for the use of carriages was fixed at thirty feet. A street had some years previously to 1873 been laid out with a roadway of twenty-five feet, but the corporation had given notice that they should enforce the clause providing for a width of forty feet. They subsequently, upon the application of the defendant, waived that notice and approved a carriageway of twenty-five feet. It was held that s. 69 was imperative, and that the corporation could not permit a deviation from the Act. It was also held that, though the road had been laid out previously, the corporation were not bound to interfere until the building operations were actually commenced and the width of the road definitely fixed (Att.-Gen. v. Folkestone (Corporation of), W. N. (1873), p. 127).

In 1830, A. projected the formation of a seaside town to be built on his land, and a plan was prepared showing the sites of various proposed roads, streets, and squares. In 1833 a private Act was passed, whereby the lands described on the plan were made a distinct parish for the purposes of the Act, and commissioners were appointed in whom were vested all roads, streets, and ways, then made and used by the public, or thereafter to be made and adopted by the commissioners under the Act. Before this Act passed, A. had sold to B. several of the plots described on the plan. Before and after the Act numerous houses had been built, and some of the streets shown on the plan had been wholly or partially formed and adopted by the commissioners; but no houses had been erected on the land sold to B., which was still used as agricultural land. In 1868 the commissioners gave to B.'s devisees notice of their intention to take possession of the sites of the proposed streets, etc. on the land sold to B., and in 1871 they proceeded to take such possession. It was held that they had no right to do so, there being no roads actually made for them to adopt, and the sites as such not vesting in them (Mackett v. Herne Bay Commissioners (1877), 37 L. T. 812; 26 Digest 282, 182).

S., having an old farmhouse with a shop front abutting on a lane, and other property near, gave notice to the authority of his intention to lay out a street, and submitted a plan, which was approved, showing the alteration and proposed width of the new street, which involved the setting back of the shop and garden. He did nothing to carry out the plan, and two months later put in a new shop front and rebuilt the garden wall on the old site. It was held that S. had done nothing contrary to the byelaw relating to the width of new streets, for he was entitled to abandon his plan notwithstanding the approval thereof (Sunderland (Mayor, etc. of) v. Skinner (1889), 53 J. P. 660; 26 Digest 556, 2509).

A line of railway situate in a deep cutting was crossed by a bridge carrying a road. A line of houses terminated at the eastern end of the bridge; across the bridge there was but one cottage, and the roadway ceased to be a public thoroughfare, being closed by a private gate. It was held that the road ceased to be a new street within the meaning of the Metropolis Management Amendment Act, 1862 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 965), at the eastern extremity of the bridge (L. B. & S. C. Rail. Co. v. St. Giles, Camberwell (Vestry of) (1879), 4 Ex. D. 239; 26 Digest 494, 2031).

A street which leads out of and afterwards back into a public carriageway "communicates at both ends with a public carriageway" (London C. C. v. Edmundson (1892), 56 J. P. 343; 66 L. T. 200; 26 Digest 512, 2167). Whether a street affords "direct communication between" two streets within s. 9 (4) of the London Building Act, 1894 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 1123), is a question of fact (Woodham v. London C. C., [1898] 1 Q. B. 863; 62 J. P. 342; 26 Digest 512, 2168).

A street sixty feet wide, out of the further end of which leads a lane twenty feet wide, cannot be said to "terminate in a cul-de-sac" (Stevenson v. Lee, [1910] S. C. 14).

Where s. 17 of the P. H. A., 1907, post, p. 5043, has been applied to any district the authority may vary the position or direction and fix the beginning and end of new streets for the purposes and subject to the conditions in the section which (especially sub-s. (4)) should be carefully considered.

S. was convicted for non-compliance with a notice specifying certain irregularities in respect of the "laying out or construction" of a new street. The conviction was quashed on the ground that it was either void for uncertainty or bad as being for two offences (R. v. Slater (1903), 67 J. P. 299; 26 Digest 559, 2537).

See also Woodhill v. Sunderland (Mayor, etc., of) (1887), 52 J. P. 5; 57 L. T. 303; 26 Digest 554, 2495, decided upon the special provision of a local Act.

Byelaws
as to sewerage.

(c) The model byelaws contain no clauses requiring the provision of sewers for the drainage of houses in new streets. "The reason for this is that the conditions which such byelaws must satisfy are, to so great an extent, dependent upon the varying circumstances of different localities" (L. G. B. Circular). The Board did not consider the matter to be one in regard to which byelaws could usefully be made. "It may be doubted," they said, "whether any powers which, under such byelaws, may be lawfully assumed by sanitary authorities, will, as regards extent and efficacy, compare with the powers which they derive from the express provisions of the Public Health Act." Of course under s. 150 of this Act, or under the Private Street Works Act where that Act has been adopted, an urban council can require owners to defray the cost of sewers before a street is taken over as a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large. The position of a rural council in this matter will be seen from the notes to the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4848.

The Board and the M. of H. have not objected, however, to a byelaw which requires a person voluntarily providing such a sewer to construct it in a satisfactory manner, and the model byelaws require a person constructing a new street (not the same as "laying out" a new street: see p. 4435, ante) to provide for the carrying off of surface water. The latter byelaw is regarded by the M. of H. as being "with respect to the construction of new streets," and is therefore confirmed for county councils, if they desire to include it in a series of byelaws made under s. 30 (4) of the L. G. Act, 1929, Vol. V., post, which subsection does not extend to those provisions of the present section which relate to sewerage of new streets.

In the absence of any provisions in byelaws on the subject of sewerage, the authority cannot refuse to approve plans of new streets not showing any system of sewerage, but being in all respects in accordance with the byelaws (R. v. Tynemouth R. D. C., [1896] 2 Q. B. 451; 60 J. P. 804; 26 Digest 554, 2497).

Ditches, etc.,

estates.

A council were empowered to require the owner of land laid out for building on which any watercourse or ditch was situate, or which abutted on any watercourse or ditch, to execute such works as were in their opinion necessary to wholly or partially fill up or cover over such watercourse or ditch before proceeding to build. R. agreed to purchase some land abutting on a watercourse, and submitted plans for a factory which were approved subject to his culverting the watercourse. R. agreed to sell to O. a strip of land abutting on the watercourse, and conveyed it to O. on the same day as the land was conveyed to himself. The council, after the date of the conveyance, gave R. and O. notice to culvert the watercourse, but both ignored the notice and R. erected the factory. The council claimed against both a declaration that they were not entitled to commence, proceed with or maintain the factory without doing the works required by the council, and an injunction:—Held, that R.'s land did not abut on the watercourse, and that O., whose land did abut on it, did not intend to build, and that the action failed (Att.-Gen. v. Rowley Bros. (1910), 75 J. P. 81; 9 L. G. R. 121; 44 Digest 11, 39).

(d) Certain words here were repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346 (1), Sched. III., Pt. I. (1), ante, pp. 720, 728. Byelaws as to buildings and sanitation are now dealt with by s. 61 of that Act, Vol. I., p. 190. Section 156 of the Act of 1875 being already repealed (ante, p. 156) this paragraph now relates to s. 155 alone.

(e) It was held under the L. G. A., 1858, s. 34, that a local board could not make a byelaw that before beginning to dig or lay the foundation of any new building, a written notice of one month at the least should be left with the clerk at one of the monthly meetings of the board, accompanied with the plans and sections. It was also held that if a person gave notice of intention to build, and left plans and sections, he might at once commence the building, subject to the right of the board to pull down or alter it, if not in conformity with the byelaws (Hattersley v. Burr (1866), 30 J. P. 407; 38 Digest 193, 307). This case and the previous one of Young v. Edwards, ante, p. 211, were discussed in Hall v. Nixon (1875), L. R. 10 Q. B. 152; 39 J. P. 341; 38 Digest 196, 320. There a byelaw was held good which required every person intending to erect a new building to give fourteen days' notice, and to deliver plans and sections to the surveyor of the board, and provided that any person erecting a new building without delivering such notice and plans, or without having the plans approved by the board, should be liable to a penalty. Hattersley v. Burr was distinguished on the ground that, under the byelaw in that case, a builder might be delayed two months. The provision for giving notice is not inconsistent with the power to pull down work executed in contravention of the byelaws under a byelaw or under the next section, for the beginning without notice may subject the builder to a penalty, while the work itself may be pulled down (per QUAIN, J., in Hall v. Nixon, supra, and see the next section).

It has been held that penalties for building in contravention of a byelaw, without the approval of the authority, cannot be recovered unless the authority have exercised their power of disapproval within the month prescribed by the next section (Clark v. Bloomfield (1885), 1 T. L. R. 323; 38 Digest 192, 301; but see the cases collected with this case in note (d) under P. H. A., 1936, s. 64 (1), ante, p. 221). With reference to the time within which proceedings under the byelaw must be taken, see the cases cited in the notes to the next section as to continuing offences, post, p. 4443.

A byelaw providing that every person who should intend to erect a building or to rebuild any existing house should give notice in writing of his intention to the authority and should accompany such notice with a plan, was held good (Ballymena (Commissioners of) v. McKay (1886), 17 L. R. Ir. 605).

(f) A byelaw requiring plans of new buildings showing the position of such buildings and of adjoining building was held good in Slee v. Bradford (Mayor of), ante, p. 4431. Byelaws made under this section may require plans of a similar kind. It was held in Gooding v. Ealing L. B. (1884), 1 T. L. R. 62; 38 Digest 193, 304, that a local authority, having supplied a builder with a form of notice (which he had used) on the back of which was printed a so-called "regulation" (which he had seen) to the effect that plans would be retained, were entitled to retain the plans, even though disapproved. On the difficulties to which this case gives rise, see leading article in the Justice of the Peace Newspaper for December 4th, 1926, at p. 691. See now the P. H. A., 1907, s. 16, post, p. 5043, which refers, however, only to approved plans.

When an owner is allowed to deposit a specimen plan and afterwards proceeds to erect houses of the type shown therein, the specimen plan may be regarded as a plan applicable to each house (Balby-with-Hexthorpe U. D. C. v. Millard (1903), 68 J. P. 81; 21 Digest 229, 612).

A builder who executes work substantially departing from his approved plans may be convicted for executing it without having previously deposited plans (Burton v. Acton, James v. Masters, ante, p. 212). The owner of a building estate had deposited a specimen plan, in accordance with the byelaws, of certain types of houses intended to be erected. He deviated from such plan in regard to one of the houses in four respects, and was summoned; but the justices dismissed the summons on the ground that the deviations were not substantial. Subsequently he was summoned for deviation from the deposited plan in regard to two other houses in the same row, on the ground (as found by the justices) of similar deviations. The summons was dismissed on the ground that the matter was res judicata. It was held that the justices were bound to hear the summons on its merits, and that the matter was not res judicata (Balby-with-Hexthorpe U. D. C. v. Millard, supra).

Section 157.

An urban authority had, in 1877, made byelaws, and in 1892 M., an intending builder, submitted plans which were approved thereunder. In 1893 the byelaws were superseded by new ones, which contained a proviso saving the validity of anything duly done or suffered under the old byelaws. In 1896 M. intimated to the authority that he intended to build in accordance with the plans approved under the old byelaws. In an action to restrain him in the County Palatine Court, HALL, V.-C., held that he was entitled to proceed according to the plans approved under the old byelaws (Withington U. D. C. v. Moore (1896), 60 J. P. 408; 38 Digest 191, 290). See now s. 15 of the P. H. A., 1907, post, p. 5042, requiring (where it is in force) re-deposit of plans not carried out within three years of their deposit, if the local authority, after the expiry of that period, declare the deposit to be of no effect. On the application of a similar provision, in a local Act, where one plan covered several buildings which were begun at different dates, see Harrogate Corporation v. Dickinson, [1904] 1 K. B. 468; 68 J. P. 202; 38 Digest 193, 305.

In the year 1897, a "street" plan, showing a street to be called Colchester Terrace was deposited by a landowner, and approved by the authority, and the plan was re-deposited and re-approved in January, 1902. In 1900 a plan for thirty-one houses, part of Colchester Terrace shown in the first plan, was deposited and approved. On April 19th, 1902, notice was given on behalf of the appellant, a builder, of his intention to build twenty houses in Colchester Terrace. On June 6th, 1902, new byelaws with respect to buildings were confirmed, and they imposed fresh conditions as to thickness of walls, etc., but it was therein provided: "From and after the date of the confirmation of these byelaws, the following byelaws and parts of byelaws relating to new streets and buildings, shall be repealed, except as regards any work commenced before the date of the confirmation of this byelaw." On the date of such confirmation, some of the thirty-one houses set out in the plan approved in 1900 had not been commenced; and on August 6th, 1902, the appellant commenced, on some of the vacant sites, work which was in accordance with the old, but not with the new, byelaws. It was held that the plan approved in 1900 was not one plan for the whole of the buildings shown thereon, but in effect a number of separate plans for separate buildings; that if the work on any particular building was not commenced before June 6th, 1902, such approval did not authorise its erection in contravention of the new byelaws; and that it was a question of fact whether in any particular case work on a building had been commenced (White v. Mayor of Sunderland (1903), 88 L. T. 592; 67 J. P. 199; 38 Digest 191, 291).

A local Act provided that an undertaking in writing given by an owner of property on the passing of plans should be binding on his successors; but intending purchasers were entitled upon inquiry of the authority to information as to unfulfilled undertakings. It was held that having regard to the terms of the section, a purchaser could not dispute the validity of such an undertaking (to give up land for street widening) on the ground of "remoteness"; and that, his inquiries having been restricted to the existence of paving charges, and having been truthfully answered, the authority were not estopped from enforcing the undertaking (Crane v. Wallasey U. D. C. (1912), 76 J. P. 326; 107 L. T. 150; 38 Digest 190, 289). Apart from such a provision, a restrictive covenant entered into by an owner with an authority who own no land adjoining, or affected by the covenant, cannot be made to bind his successors (London C. C. v. Allen, [1914] 3 K. B. 642; 78 J. P. 449; 40 Digest 302, 2602, followed in Chambers v. Randall, [1923] 1 Ch. 149; 128 L. T. 507; 40 Digest 303, 2605, and in Re Union of London and Smith's Bank, Ltd.'s Conveyance, Miles v. Easter, [1933] Ch. 611; 149 L. T. 82; Digest Supp.; and cf. Millbourn v. Lyons, [1914] 2 Ch. 231; 111 L. T. 388; 40 Digest 324, 2741).

Where, however, a local authority approve plans of a new street subject to conditions imposed or authorised by the byelaws, such conditions may at any time be enforced by the authority against the owner for the time being of the land to which the conditions relate (s. 140 (2), Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1739).

The deposit and approval of plans does not bind the owner to build or lay out or dedicate the proposed building or street: see Mackett v. Herne Bay Commissioners, and Sunderland Corporation v. Skinner, on p. 4437, ante; Hall v. Boole Corporation; Healey v. Batley Corporation, and Kirby v. Paignton U. D. C., on pp. 4392, 4393, ante.

The following cases turned upon special and peculiar provisions in local Acts as to the deposit and approval of plans and are therefore omitted in this edition:

Pearson v. Kingston-upon-Hull L. B. (1865), 29 J. P. 695, 711; 35 L. J. M. C. 36; Cook v. Hainsworth, [1896] 2 Q. B. 85; 60 J. P. 439; 38 Digest 196, 319. Note to Section 157.

(g) See the next section and the provisions as to expenses contained therein.

(h) Most of the case law on this power is on the question of the power to pull down buildings (not now incorporated in this section). This power was not confined to byelaws relating to structure, but might be extended to and incorporated in byelaws as to the giving of notices and the deposit of plans (see s. 158, post, p. 4442, and cf. Baker v. Portsmouth (Mayor of) (1878), 3 Ex. D. 4, 157; 42 J. P. 278; 26 Digest 552, 2488, decided under the earlier Acts). The model byelaws issued from the M. of H. are, however, so framed as to apply the power to breaches of the substantive byelaws only, it having been stated that the Minister doubts whether the extreme penalty of removing work was really intended by Parliament to apply where the work is itself in accordance with the law, a view to which effect has now been given in relation to building byelaws in s. 65, P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 230. For failure to submit plans a pecuniary penalty is considered appropriate. Where a byelaw provides for the removal of work done in contravention of the byelaws, the authority may cause work so executed to be removed, although no plans of it have been deposited, and the authority have consequently not disapproved plans, the power being thus wider under byelaws than under s. 158 of the Act itself (Fairbrass v. Canterbury Corporation (1902), 67 J. P. 181; 1 L. G. R. 181; Digest Supp.), and in this respect also in conformity with the corresponding power relating to buildings. The right to exercise such power does not fall within the Summary Jurisdiction Acts, and therefore does not cease on the expiration of six months from the completion of the work (ibid.) but the model byelaws provide for its being exercised within twelve months, the same period as is fixed in relation to buildings by s. 65 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 230, except that in that section the period of twelve months is that in which notice to remove may be served and not that in which the actual removal must be done. The period (twice that fixed by the S. J. Acts) is as long as a builder ought to be kept liable to be called on to remove his work without a judicial decision (that is to say, without moving the Attorney-General to apply to the High Court for an injunction that the work be removed: a remedy which is open at any time. See Att.-Gen. v. Ashbourne Recreation Ground Co. and other cases cited therewith, infra).

A byelaw required every person erecting a new building to cause it to be constructed in the manner therein specified. By another byelaw the council were empowered to remove, alter or pull down "work" done in contravention of (inter alia) the first-mentioned byelaw. A man did work on an old railway carriage placed in a field, converting it into a dwelling-house, but leaving untouched the main portion of the shell. It was held that by virtue of s. 159 (now repealed) he had erected a new building; and that, as the whole building was erected in breach of the first byelaw, the council were entitled under the second byelaw to pull down not only the work done in converting the carriage into a dwelling-house, but the whole carriage (Hanrahan v. Leigh-on-Sea U. D. C., cited under other cases on p. 288, ante). Cf. Andrews v. Wirral R. D. C., [1916] 1 K. B. 863; 80 J. P. 257; 38 Digest 183, 233; Rodwell v. Wade (1924), 23 L. G. R. 174; 38 Digest 187, 260; and Keeling v. Wirral R. D. C. (1925), 23 L. G. R. 201; 38 Digest 188, 261.

A byelaw made by an urban authority provided that every new street should be laid out and formed of the width required by the byelaw:—Held, that width in the text and in the byelaw meant width of roadway and not width between houses on each side of the street; and that the authority were not entitled under the above byelaw, or any other of their existing byelaws, to disapprove of and pull down houses in the course of erection in a new street on the ground that the building line was too near the roadway (Robinson v. Barton-Eccles L. B. (1883), 8 App. Cas. 798; 48 J. P. 276; 26 Digest 269, 86).

When the byelaws are contravened, the remedies contained in them are not the only remedies available. The court can enforce compliance with them by an injunction in an action by the Attorney-General (Att.-Gen. v. Ashbourne Recreation Ground Co., [1903] 1 Ch. 101; 67 J. P. 73; 26 Digest 558, 2534; Devonport Corporation v. Tozer, [1903] 1 Ch. 759; 67 J. P. 269; 26 Digest 558, 2523; Att.-Gen. v. Dorin, [1912] 1 Ch. 369; 76 J. P. 181; 26 Digest 556, 2517; Att.-Gen. v. Kerr and Ball (1915), 79 J. P. 51; 12 L. G. R. 1277; 38 Digest 167, 124), and this jurisdiction exists, in the case of a continuing offence, although an offender against the byelaws has been previously convicted and fined (Att.-Gen. v. Wimbledon House Estate Co., [1904] 2 Ch. 34; 68 J. P. 341; 28 Digest 368, 42). The cases just referred to establish, however, that such proceedings are not open to the local authority in the absence of the Attorney-General, and the earlier cases where such proceedings were so brought, but in which the right of the plaintiffs to sue alone was not questioned, can, probably, be no longer relied upon. See e.g., Hendon L. B. v. Pounce, and Bromley L. B. v. Lloyd, cited at p. 4436, ante.

Section 157.

(i) On these words, see notes, ante, p. 679.

As to commencement of works and removal of works made contrary to byelaws.

158. Where a notice, plan, or description of any work is required by any byelaw made by an urban authority (a) to be laid before that authority, the urban authority shall, within one month (b) after the same has been delivered or sent to their surveyor or clerk, signify in writing (c) their approval or disapproval (d) of the intended work to the person proposing to execute the same; and if the work is commenced after such notice of disapproval, or before the expiration of such month without such approval, and is in any respect not in conformity with any byelaw of the urban authority, the urban authority may cause so much of the work as has been executed to be pulled down or removed (e).

Where an urban authority may under this section pull down or remove any work begun or executed in contravention of any byelaw, or where the beginning or the execution of the work is an offence in respect whereof the offender is liable in respect of any byelaw to a penalty, the existence of the work during its continuance in such a form and state as to be in contravention of the byelaw shall be deemed to be a continuing offence (h), but a penalty shall not be incurred in respect thereof after the expiration of one year from the day when the offence was committed or the byelaw was broken.

This section was repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346 (1) and Sched. III., Pt. I (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any Act directed to be construed therewith. To the extent that it still operates, the section is in force in every urban district, and in the district of every rural authority by virtue of the Rural District Councils (Urban Powers) Order, 1931 (S. R. & O. 1931, No. 580). Where, however, a county council make byelaws under the preceding section, upon default by a rural district council (s. 30 (4), L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V., post) they have not the powers of this section, although they may, in virtue of the preceding section, include in the byelaws provisions as to the removal, alteration, or pulling down of work begun or done in contravention of the byelaws.

When work must be begun.

The L. G. B. stated that they did not consider that an urban council could make a byelaw under the P. H. A., 1875, to the effect that their approval of plans of new streets or buildings shall be inoperative unless the works approved of shall be commenced within a stated period. See now, however, s. 15 of the P. H. A., 1907, post, p. 5042, upon this point, and reference to the section in note (f) on s. 157, ante, p. 4440.

Fee for examining plans.

The L. G. B. expressed the opinion that there is no authority for a byelaw under the P. H. A., 1875, requiring fees for the examination of deposited plans, etc. and that no such fees can be legally charged under the general law.

(a) These words are general, and are not limited to byelaws made under this Act, but see the opening sentence of the foregoing general note, as to the partial repeal of the section. Note to Section 158.

(b) This means a calendar month (Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 3 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 993)). The time cannot be extended by the byelaws (Clark v. Bloomfield (1885), 1 T. L. R. 323). It has been stated that the Minister of Health attaches primary importance to this requirement (considering indeed that the statutory period is too long to keep a builder waiting in practice) and that local authorities should so frame their standing orders and arrange their procedure that (at any rate) they can keep within the statutory period.

(c) As to authentication of notice of approval or disapproval, see s. 266, post, p. 4494. Removal

(d) For powers of the authority and remedies of builders if plans are disapproved, of work. cf. notes to s. 64 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 221.

(e) There may be a provision to this effect in the byelaws: see s. 157, ante, p. 4432; and cf. Robinson v. Barton-Eccles L. B., on p. 1954, ante. Notwithstanding the power given by this section, the authority may proceed for a penalty for breach of any byelaw; see Hall v. Nixon, ante, p. 4439, and see Andrews v. Wirral R. D. C., ante, p. 235.

As to other remedies for infraction of byelaws, see note (h) under s. 157, ante, p. 4441.

Notice must be given to the person executing the work, and an opportunity afforded to him of being heard before the authority can legally demolish the same (see ante, p. 235, and Urban Housing Co. v. Oxford Corporation, [1940] Ch. 70; [1939] 4 All E. R. 211; 104 J. P. 15; Digest Supp.).

(f) See s. 251, post, p. 4481. This provision was before 1875 contained in many byelaws, but it does not appear that such a byelaw was legal. Hence the provisions in the text.

As to the time within which these expenses may be recovered, see the note to P. H. A., 1936, s. 296, ante, p. 615.

In R. v. Morris (1883), 31 W. R. 609; 16 Digest 477, 3583, it was held that on a certiorari to quash an order of justices for payment of expenses under this section costs might be granted, as the proceedings were civil, not criminal. This case was not followed in R. v. Parby (2) (1889), 53 J. P. 774; 16 Digest 477, 3584, but it has now been decided by the Court of Appeal that the King's Bench Division and Court of Appeal have power to award costs to a successful applicant for a writ of certiorari (R. v. Woodhouse, [1906] 2 K. B. 501; 70 J. P. 485). The decision on the main point in this case was afterwards reversed (sub nom. Leeds Corporation v. Ryder, [1907] A. C. 420; 71 J. P. 484; 16 Digest 398, 2421), but the decision as to the power to award costs on certiorari was not discussed.

(g) Cf. note (d) to s. 65 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 234.

(h) These words provide a means of meeting the decision in Marshall v. Smith Person (1873), L. R. 8 C. P. 416; 37 J. P. 471; 33 Digest 419, 1304. In that case byelaws causing were made under the P. H. A., 1848, s. 115, and the L. G. A., 1858, s. 34, by one of work to be which (No. 12) all party-walls, except in houses of one storey, were required, under executed. a penalty of 40s., to be nine inches at least in thickness, whilst another (No. 42) Continuing provided that "in case any offence under any of the foregoing byelaws shall continue, offences. the person offending shall be liable to a further penalty of not exceeding 40s. for each day during which such offence may continue after written notice of the offence has been given by the local board to the offender." The appellant having been fined for an offence against byelaw No. 12, in building a party-wall four and a half inches thick, was afterwards convicted upon an information charging him, under byelaw No. 42, with continuing the offence. It was held that suffering the party-wall to remain unaltered was not a continuing offence within byelaw No. 42, or, if it was, that the byelaw was unreasonable, the appropriate remedy being the removal of the structure by the board, as authorised by the L. G. A., 1858, s. 34. The court pointed out that while continuing to build might be a continuing offence, the failure to destroy after the building was completed could not.

160. The provisions of the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, Incorporation with respect to the following matters, that is to say, of certain provisions of

(1) With respect to naming the streets and numbering the houses; 10 & 11 Vict. c. 34.

and

- Section 160. (2) With respect to improving the line of the streets and removing obstructions ; and
 (3) With respect to ruinous or dangerous buildings (a) ; and
 (4) With respect to precautions during the construction and repair of the sewers streets and houses, shall, for the purpose of regulating such matters in urban districts, be incorporated with this Act (b).

Notices for alterations under the sixty-ninth, seventieth, and seventy-first sections, directions under the seventy-third section, and orders under the seventy-fourth section of the said Towns Improvement Clauses Act, may, at the option of the urban authority, be served on owners (c) instead of occupiers, or on owners as well as occupiers, and the cost of works done under any of these sections may, when notices have been so served on owners, be recovered from owners instead of occupiers ; and when such cost is recovered from occupiers so much thereof may be deducted from the rent of the premises where the work is done as is allowed in the case of private improvement rates under this Act (d).

This section is applied by the Act to urban districts only, but the several powers may be applied to rural districts by order of the M. of H. under s. 276, post, p. 4502, and this has been done, in so far as the section incorporates the provisions of ss. 69, 70 of the Act of 1847, by the Rural District Councils (Urban Powers) Order, 1931 (S. R. & O., 1931, No. 580). An application for a further order should set out the precise powers desired, the names of the rural parishes in which such powers are considered to be necessary, and (shortly) the grounds upon which the application is made.

Forms for use under this section will be found in the Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XII., at pp. 590—599.

Further powers with regard to the naming of streets are given by ss. 17—19 of the Public Health Act, 1925, Vol. V., post. Where s. 19 of that Act has been adopted, the words “naming the streets and” in this section will cease to have effect in respect of that district (sub-s. (3), ibid.).

(b) No. (1) includes ss. 64, 65 ; No. (2), ss. 66—74 ; No. (3), ss. 75—78 ; No. (4), ss. 79—83. All these sections with notes thereto are set out ante, pp. 4202 et seq. As to the effect of such an incorporation of a statute, see the cases cited in note (cc) to s. 120 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 370.

With regard to some of these subjects, special provisions will be found in the Act (compare, e.g., s. 154 with s. 67 of the Act of 1847), and it will be important to ascertain whether these provisions in any respect conflict with those in the incorporated Act. Where that may be the case, the present statute should afford the rule to guide, as containing the latest legislation on the particular subject. See as to s. 64 of the Act of 1847, the P. H. A., 1907, s. 21, post, p. 5048 ; as to s. 69 of the Act of 1847, P. H. A., 1925, s. 24, Vol. V., post, ; as to s. 80, the P. H. A., 1890, s. 34, post, p. 4811, and the P. H. A., 1907, s. 32, post, p. 5052 ; as to s. 74, the P. H. A., 1925, s. 21, Vol. V., post ; as to s. 81, the P. H. A., 1907, s. 29, post, p. 5049 ; and as to the fencing of dangerous places in streets, see the P. H. A., 1907, ss. 30, 31, post, pp. 5050—52.

(c) See the definition in s. 4, ante, p. 4335. And as to the authentication and service of notices, see ss. 266, 267, post, pp. 4494—5.

(d) See s. 213, post, p. 4468. As to the effect of special covenants and agreements between lessor and lessee, see s. 226, post, p. 4474, but that section does not apply to the case mentioned in the text.

Lighting Streets, etc.

Section 161.

161. Any urban authority may contract (a) with any person (b) for the supply of gas, or other means of lighting the streets, markets, and public buildings in their district (c), and may provide such lamps, lamp posts, and other materials and apparatus as they may think necessary for lighting the same (d).

Powers
of urban authority for lighting their district.
c. 94, s. 8.

Where there is not any company or person (b) (other than the urban authority) authorised by or in pursuance of any Act of Parliament, or any order confirmed by Parliament (e), to supply gas for public and private purposes, supplying gas (f) within any part of the district of such authority, such authority may (g) themselves undertake to supply gas for such purposes or any of them throughout the whole or any part of their district; and if there is any such company or person so supplying gas, but the limits of supply of such company or person include part only of the district, then the urban authority may themselves undertake to supply gas throughout any part of the district not included within such limits of supply.

Where an urban authority may under this Act themselves undertake to supply gas for the whole or any part of their district, a provisional order (h) authorising a gas undertaking may be obtained by such authority under and subject to the provisions of the Gas and Waterworks Facilities Act, 1870 (i), and any Act amending the same; and in the construction of the said Act the term "the undertakers" shall be deemed to include any such urban authority: Provided that for the purposes of this Act the Local Government Board shall throughout the said Act be deemed to be substituted for the Board of Trade.

This section applies to urban authorities only, but the M. of H. and his predecessors the L. G. B. have issued many orders under s. 276, post, p. 4502, empowering rural authorities to undertake (by contracting for) the lighting of streets and public places in rural parishes (not of course private houses). These powers were not affected by the transfer from rural councils to county councils of the functions of highway authority in rural districts by the L. G. A., 1929 (see s. 11 (11), L. G. A., 1888, as amended, post, p. 4732), but the position is now considerably affected by s. 23 of the Road Traffic Act, 1934 (see notes, infra). An application for an order should be by resolution of the council, of which a copy should be forwarded to the Ministry with a short statement of the grounds upon which the application is made, and explaining the arrangements which are proposed for lighting the particular parish or parishes referred to. The lighting need not necessarily be by gas, but if electric lighting is proposed the council should consult the Electricity Commissioners as an order may be procurable under the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5245, which will dispense with any Order of the M. of H.

As under the Lighting and Watching Act, 1833 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1186), action may also be taken parochially for the lighting of rural parishes, the clerk should state in connection with any application for urban powers whether the lighting provisions of that Act are in force in the area in which the rural council propose to act. In this case the application must extend to s. 163, and it must be explained why it is proposed to supersede the existing lighting authority (Parish Council or Inspectors), and what is their attitude towards the proposal. See below as to the provision made in such orders for expenses.

By s. 23 of the Road Traffic Act, 1934 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 552), notwithstanding the powers conferred upon the councils of non-county boroughs and urban county and rural districts by or in pursuance of ss. 161 and 276 of this Act, or otherwise, and upon parish meetings and parish councils in rural parishes who have, in pursuance of s. 7 of the L. G. A., 1894, post, p. 4895, adopted the provisions of the Lighting and Watching Act, 1833 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1186), the council of a county may, if they consider that any county road or part thereof should be illuminated or better illuminated, enter into and carry into effect an agreement for the supply for that purpose of gas, electricity, or other means of illumination, with the road lighting authority, or with any other authority or person having power in that behalf, and may provide such lamps, lamp posts, and other materials and apparatus as they may think necessary for the purposes of this section: Provided that nothing in the section is to be deemed to be in derogation of the powers conferred as aforesaid upon the councils of non-county boroughs and urban and rural districts or upon parish meetings or councils. Provision is made as to notice and as to payment of expenses.

parishes.

Orders of the M. of H. authorising the lighting of rural parishes by the district council confer only the powers of the first paragraph of s. 161, relating to contracts for the supply of gas or other illuminant for lighting streets, etc. The L. G. B. held that there were practical difficulties which precluded rural councils from carrying on a gas undertaking even if they were invested with power to establish or purchase one. They said that the difficulty arose not in conferring powers under ss. 161 and 162, but from the fact that, in addition to such powers, an urban authority, in ordinary cases, required the powers of a Provisional Order under the Gas and Waterworks Facilities Acts, and in the case of a rural council there was no express statutory authority enabling them to apply for such an order. Now, under s. 10 of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, Vol. V., post, the Board of Trade are enabled to grant by Special Order any powers which could previously have been obtained by Provisional Order under the G. & W. F. Acts, and as there is more than one recent instance in which a rural district council has succeeded in obtaining the requisite urban powers from the M. of H. to enable them to apply for a Special Order it would seem that the absolute disability referred to has disappeared, possibly, however, only as regards the acquisition and carrying on of existing gas undertakings in rural districts. The Board of Trade have also succeeded the M. of H. as the department to issue Provisional Orders to local authorities under the earlier Acts (see Order in Council of November 9th, 1920), but such orders are never made now. Special Orders are a simpler and cheaper procedure. See also the Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1919, post, p. 5245, and 1926 (Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 792).

(a) See notes to L. G. A., 1933, s. 266 (2), ante, pp. 1125 et seq., as to the regulations regarding the contracts. As to the meaning in a contract of the words "actual cost of generating the light," see Bulawayo Municipality v. Bulawayo Waterworks Co. Ltd., [1908] A. C. 241; 20 Digest 208, 51.

Where a contract for street lighting contained no provision for its termination, it was held that the agreement was not a perpetual one but could be determined by either party on notice (Crediton Gas Co. v. Crediton U. D. C., [1928] Ch. 447; 92 J. P. 76; Digest Supp.).

During the war of 1914-19 and because of the restrictions requiring reduced lighting of streets in compliance with orders under the Defence of the Realm Act, full performance of lighting contracts was rendered impossible. The legal position under such contracts was considered by the courts in the following cases: Leiston Gas Co. v. Leiston-cum-Sizewell U. D. C., [1916] 2 K. B. 428; 80 J. P. 385; 25 Digest 478, 49; Wycombe Borough Electric Light and Power Co. v. Chipping Wycombe Corporation (1917), 33 T. L. R. 489; 15 L. G. R. 658; 12 Digest 403, 3252. For a case arising out of the war which began in 1939, see Egham and Staines Electricity Co., Ltd. v. Egham U. D. C., [1942] 2 All E. R. 154; 58 T. L. R. 319.

(b) See the definition in s. 4, ante, p. 4334.

(c) It must be noticed that this power is limited to the district of the authority. A contract extending to any place outside the district would be ultra vires.

By the Metropolis Gas Act, 1860, s. 6 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1242), a certain district was assigned to each metropolitan gas company, and it was provided that no other company or person should "supply gas for sale within the said limits." By s. 14 (op. cit. 1243), the supply of gas to owners or occupiers of premises within or partly within the company's district requiring such supply was made compulsory. A railway company had a station which was partly within the district of the appellants and partly within that of the respondents. The respondents, on being required to do so by the company, provided a meter at a point within their own district, from which they supplied gas which was used for lighting the whole station, including the part which was in the appellants' district, to which it was conducted through pipes laid on the premises of the company. It was held that this was an infringement of s. 6 (Gas Light and Coke Co. v. South Metropolitan Gas Co. (1889), 54 J. P. 373; 62 L. T. 126; 25 Digest 491, 114). See also Att.-Gen. v. West Gloucestershire Water Co., [1909] 2 Ch. 338; 73 J. P. 453; 28 Digest 460, 750, as to the point at which "a supply is given." Cf. the Gas Undertaking Act, 1929, s. 5; Vol. V. and 8 Halsbury's Statutes 1293.

It was held in Fareham L. B. v. Smith (1891), 90 L. T. Jo. 467; 7 T. L. R. 443; 26 Digest 393, 1196, that an urban authority might authorise their contractor to put up posts and wires in streets vested in them, for the purpose of lighting such streets by electricity, and might restrain by injunction the owners of adjoining land who claimed the subsoil of the street from cutting or otherwise interfering with the electric wires and poles.

The streets lighted need not necessarily be highways repairable by the inhabitants at large. See note to s. 150, ante, p. 4398.

The L. G. B., by an order under s. 276, post, p. 4502, declared that the provisions of the first paragraph of s. 161 should be in force within certain portions of a rural sanitary district, and invested the rural sanitary authority with all the powers, rights, capacities, etc. of an urban sanitary authority "under those provisions" within such portions of the district. The rural authority incurred lighting expenses under this order, and treated them as general expenses under s. 229 of this Act, now replaced by s. 190 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1016. A poor rate having been made to defray the expenses, a railway company was assessed in respect of the full rateable value of the property which consisted of land occupied and used as a railway:—Held, that upon the true construction of the order the rural authority was invested only with the power of an urban authority to incur lighting expenses under the provisions of the first paragraph of s. 161, and not with the rating powers applicable to an urban authority; that the expenses were rightly treated as general and not as special expenses under s. 229; and that the company was not entitled to be rated under s. 211 (now replaced by s. 11 of the Act of 1936, ante, p. 15) in the proportion of one-fourth part only of the rateable value (L. & Y. Rail. Co. v. Bolton Union (1890), 15 App. Cas. 323; 54 J. P. 532; 33 Digest 101, 686).

It may be noted, however, that the order referred to was a very exceptional one as nearly all orders putting the first paragraph of the section in force in a rural parish contain a provision that the expenses of the rural council in executing the powers shall be chargeable as special expenses upon the parish. But see now the power of a rural district council to defray any special expenses wholly or partly as general expenses in s. 190 (4), L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1018.

(d) Where trustees of a public road were empowered to place lamps along the road, but failed to do so, it was held that they were not liable in an action to a person injured by reason of the road not being lighted (Harris v. Baker (1815), 4 M. & S. 27; 26 Digest 392, 1187). In a case where a brougham ran against a lamp post at a dangerous point, the court held that the failure to light the lamp was not negligence, there being no statutory obligation to do so (Mellor v. Heywood (Mayor, etc. of) (1884), 48 J. P. N. 148). Harris v. Baker was followed in Cowley v. Neumarket L. B., ante, p. 4352. By the Metropolis Management Act, 1855, s. 130 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 917), the lighting authority have a discretion as to the time during which public street lamps shall continue lighted, and when they have bonâ fide exercised their discretion in that respect they are not liable on the ground of either nonfeasance or misfeasance for any accident, caused through the lights having been turned out at the hour ordered (Young v. St. Mary, Islington (Vestry of) (1896), 60 J. P. 821; 26 Digest 393, 1193). On the other hand, where the defendants, who were both the highway and the lighting authority, had erected a post in the centre of a footpath at its entrance to prevent cattle straying upon it, and had placed a lamp near the post, which they were in the habit of lighting at night, and the plaintiff, passing along the footpath at night, when the lamp was not lighted, came against the post and was injured, it was held that the defendants were liable (Lamley v. East Retford (Mayor, etc. of) (1891), 55 J. P. 133; 26 Digest 390, 1171); see also Knight v. Sheffield Corpn., post, p. 4448. In a Scots case where the local authority were under a duty "to make provision for lighting the streets . . . in such manner as to them shall appear suitable and to provide erect and maintain such a number of lamps . . . as may be necessary for that purpose and to light such lamps," they were held not liable for an accident due to a red lamp on a tramway island not being lit in the absence of negligence on the part of them or their servants (Keogh v. Edinburgh Magistrates, [1926] S. C. 814; [1926] S. L. T. 527; Digest Supp.). In Sheppard v. Glossop Corporation, [1921] 3 K. B. 132; 85 J. P. 205; 26 Digest 393, 1197, a lamp which had been placed on a retaining wall was extinguished every night. The plaintiff whilst the light was extinguished missed his way without negligence, strayed on to private land and fell over the retaining wall into the street and was injured. It was held in an action for negligence against the authority that s. 161 imposes no obligation on a local authority to light the streets in their district, that the defendants, although they had begun, were not bound to continue the lighting of the street and that not having done anything to make the street dangerous they were not bound to give warning of danger. See also Martin v. Blackburn Corporation (1907), 71 J. P. N. 124 (a county court case), McClelland v. Manchester Corporation, and Oldham v. Sheffield Corporation, on pp. 435-5, ante, where street lights were misleading; and see Ryan v. Tipperary C. C. and other cases on p. 435, 3 ante, as to the duty of a highway authority to provide for the safety of the public during any interference with a road.

See also the following cases during the war of 1914-19, of accidents where negligence was alleged arising out of the restrictions in public lighting imposed by order under the Defence of the Realm Acts, *Brown v. to site for

The authority have a discretion where to erect lamp posts, and the proper exercise of their discretion will not be interfered with at the suit of adjoining owners even though they complain of such posts obstructing the access to their premises (*Chaplin v. Companies without
powers.

It will be observed that the section gives no protection to gas companies who are not regulated by parliamentary powers. The L. G. B. once stated, however, that although there was no insuperable difficulty in the way of the issue of a Provisional Order enabling an urban council to set up and maintain gasworks in opposition to an existing company, and without purchasing their undertaking, the Board would not be disposed to issue a Provisional Order for that purpose unless some very exceptional reasons were shown for the application. As already pointed out the Board of Trade, not the M. of H., now exercise the powers formerly vested in the L. G. B. and the provisions of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, must be considered, Vol. V., post.

Companies
not actually supplying.

(f) It will be observed that the statutory company must be actually supplying gas within the district, as well as empowered by their Act or order to do so. In a case in which part of the district of an urban council applying for a Provisional Order was found to be within the gas limits of the council of a neighbouring borough, though gas had never been supplied within the area, the L. G. B. required the observations of the town council upon the subject of the application, and eventually inserted a provision in the order to the effect that the town council's powers should not be prejudiced or affected if at the expiration of five years from the passing of the confirming Act the urban council were not furnishing, or prepared on demand to furnish, a supply of gas in the area.

(g) This is only an enabling power. There is no obligation upon the urban authority to undertake these works, but they are not to set up gasworks to compete with companies or other bodies under statutory powers. But though they may not themselves undertake a supply in opposition to a company, they may apparently contract with a person other than the company for the lighting of streets, etc., under the first paragraph of the section. As to an authority's liability for a nuisance caused by their gasworks, see Wood v. Conway Corporation, [1914] 2 Ch. 47; 78 J. P. 249; 36 Digest 224, 658. Note to Section 161

It would seem that an authority to whom the undertaking of a company supplying gas under statutory powers has been transferred is in the same position as the company for purposes of this section. See Wolverhampton (Corporation of) v. Bilston (Commissioners of), [1891] 1 Ch. 315; 43 Digest 1059, 16.

(h) Now see the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, s. 10, Vol. V., post. It is not absolutely necessary for the urban authority to procure an order to enable them to set up gasworks, but they would have none of the powers which are given by the general gas statutes for carrying on such works unless they procured such an order. Whether, if they acquire the undertaking of a company established under a private Act, they can, without such order, avail themselves of all the powers of such Act, is open to doubt. See Richmond Waterworks Co. v. Richmond Vestry, ante, p. 365. See also notes to s. 162, infra. Gas Orders.

The Board of Trade have made rules dated March 1st, 1922, with respect to applications for special orders under s. 10 of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, which practically supersede those contained in the general order of the L. G. B. dated September 7th, 1891, as to provisional orders under the Acts of 1870 and 1873. Regulations as to Orders.

A Special Order of the Board of Trade may authorise the urban council to supply gas beyond the limits of their district. See s. 10 (2) (e) of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920; Vol. V. and 8 Halsbury's Statutes 1288. Supply outside district.

As to the assessment to income tax of an authority supplying gas for public and private purposes, see Dillon v. Haverfordwest (Corporation of), [1891] 1 Q. B. 575; 55 J. P. 392; 28 Digest 43, 219. Income tax.

(i) Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870, ante, p. 4264, amended by Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870, Amendment Act, 1873, ante, p. 4328. The earlier Act incorporates the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, ante, p. 4163, which was amended by the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1871, ante, p. 4307. The Conspiracy and Protection of Property Act, 1875, s. 4, deals with breaches of contract by persons employed in supply of gas or water and is extended by s. 31, Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, to the supply of electricity. See also s. 6 (4) of the Trade Disputes and Trade Unions Act, 1927; Vol. V. and 19 Halsbury's Statutes 749. See the above Acts, pp. 4543, 5263, and Vol. V., post.

162. For the purpose of supplying gas within their district or any part thereof either for public or private purposes any urban authority may (with the sanction of the Local Government Board) buy, and the directors of any gas company (a), in pursuance, in the case of a company registered under the Companies Act, 1862 (b), of a special resolution of the members passed in manner provided by that Act, and in the case of any other company, of a resolution passed by a majority of three-fourths in number and value of the members present, either personally or by proxy, at a meeting specially convened with notice of the business to be transacted, may sell and transfer to such authority, on such terms as may be agreed on between such authority and the company (c), all the rights powers and privileges and all or any of the lands premises works and other property of the company, but subject to all liabilities attached to the same at the time of such purchase. Power for sale of undertaking of gas company to urban authority.

The powers of the M. of H. (as successors to the L. G. B.) under this section were transferred to the Board of Trade by Order in Council dated November 9th, 1920.

See note to preceding section as to the position of rural councils. Rural districts.

Compulsory powers for the purchase of gas undertakings cannot be obtained otherwise than by special Act of Parliament. Purchase of gas undertakings.

(a) It has been observed that this section is confined to companies. As regards

Note to Section 162. private individuals who may be owners of such works, no provision seems to be requisite. But the section does not in terms apply to public commissioners or trustees holding gasworks. See, however, the extended powers conferred by ss. 1, 2, of the Gas Undertakings Act, 1932; Vol. V. and 25 Halsbury's Statutes 187, 188.

(b) See now the Companies Act, 1929, s. 117; Vol. V. and 2 Halsbury's Statutes 849.

(c) A gas company supplied gas in a district, a portion of which was not within their statutory limits of supply. By an agreement made between the gas company and the urban council of the district outside the limits of supply, it was agreed that the company should sell, and the council should purchase, all and singular the works, pipes, mains, meters, and other gas apparatus, and all other the real and personal property (if any) and all effects of the company of whatsoever kind laid down or situate within the district, freed and discharged (as between the company and the council) from all debts, outgoing, and liabilities and all easements, rights, powers, authorities and privileges (if any) enjoyed or exercisable by the company, at a price to be agreed upon, or, in default of agreement, to be determined by arbitration. The agreement further provided that in the case of arbitration, and in the event of the council not continuing to take a supply of gas in bulk from the company, the arbitrators should take into consideration, in fixing the purchase-money, the value of any mains or pipes laid down by the company outside the district of the council for the purpose of supplying gas within the district of the council, which, by reason of the sale, would be rendered useless to the company. By a second agreement, terminable upon twelve months' notice, it was agreed that the council should take a supply of gas in bulk from the company. It was held that the purchase-money was to be assessed on the basis that the sale was a sale of a part of the gas company's undertaking as a going concern, including goodwill. And, further, that the arbitrator should take into consideration the contingency of the council not continuing to take a supply of gas from the company, and should assess compensation in respect of the mains and pipes outside the district of the council provided by the company for supplying gas within such district upon that basis (In re Hucknall U. D. C. and South Normanton, etc. Gas Co., Ltd. (1905), 69 J. P. 329; 3 L. G. R. 704; 25 Digest 493, 128). See also pp. 355, 356, ante, for other decisions upon the construction of "purchase clauses."

Lighting and Watching
Act, 1833, to be super-
this Act.

163. Where in any place which after the passing of this Act becomes constituted or included in an urban district, or which by virtue of any order of the Local Government Board becomes subject to this enactment (a), the Act passed in the fourth year of the reign of King William the Fourth, intituled "An Act to repeal an Act of the eleventh year of his late Majesty King George the Fourth, for the lighting and watching of parishes in England and Wales, and to make other provisions in lieu thereof," has been adopted, the said Act shall be superseded (b) by this Act; and all lamps lamp posts gas pipes fire engines hose (c) and other property vested in the inspectors for the time being under the said Act shall vest in the authority having under this Act jurisdiction in such place.

(a) This appears to refer to the former s. 272 and to s. 276, post, p. 4502.

(b) This unusual word is introduced from Local Government Act, 1858, s. 46. It is not the same as repealed, and, therefore, so much of the Lighting and Watching Act, 1833 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1186), as relates to watching is not, as it seems, affected by this section. The watching provisions are, however, obsolete.

The Lighting and Watching Act, 1833, enabled the inhabitants of parishes, or defined parts of parishes, to adopt the Act and appoint inspectors for carrying into execution its powers for the lighting of streets and public places. Those powers did not extend to the establishment of gas works or the supply of gas to private consumers. Under the L. G. A., 1894, post, p. 4892, the power of adopting the Act is now vested in the parish meetings of rural parishes, and upon such adoption the parish council, if there is one, becomes the authority for carrying it into execution. If it is desired to limit the incidence of the expenses, as well as the actual lighting, to part only of a rural parish, a parish meeting for the adoption of the Act may be called for that part only. All lighting inspectors who were acting for entire rural parishes having parish councils were, upon the date of operation of the Act of 1894, superseded by such councils, and as regards inspectors who were acting for parts of parishes, provision was made that either the parish meeting, or the inspectors themselves, might transfer the inspectors' powers to the parish council. There are now very few lighting inspectors.

In cases where a rural district council possess urban powers under s. 161 (first paragraph), in regard to a parish, and have exercised those powers, it would seem that that council should carry out any necessary lighting, and that an adoption of the Act of 1833 by the parish meeting would be of no effect. The rural council may, however, delegate their powers to the parish council. If such urban powers, though granted, have not been exercised by a rural council, and the parish meeting desire to adopt the Act of 1833 with a view to the required lighting being regulated under that Act, the parish council should approach the rural council and the M. of H. with a view to the rescission of the urban powers order. Exceptional circumstances should, however, be shown to justify such an Order, as action by a Rural Council has many advantages over the other procedure.

(c) The words in italics were repealed by the Fire Brigades Act, 1938, Sched. III.; 31 Halsbury's Statutes, 585.

PUBLIC PLEASURE GROUNDS, ETC.

164. Any urban authority may purchase (a) or take on lease lay out plant improve (b) and maintain lands for the purpose of being used as public walks or pleasure grounds (c), and may support or contribute to the support of public walks or pleasure grounds provided by any person whomsoever.

Urban authority may provide places of public recreation.

Any urban authority may make byelaws for the regulation of any such public walk or pleasure ground, and may by such byelaws provide for the removal from such public walk or pleasure ground of any person infringing any such byelaw by any officer of the urban authority or constable (d).

This section, it will be observed, applies to urban districts only, but a rural council might apply to the M. of H. for urban powers enabling them to provide public walks or pleasure grounds in a particular parish. A general order to this effect was included in the Rural District Councils (Urban Powers) Order, 1931 (S. R. & O., 1931, No. 580). An alternative method, however, of providing a place for public recreation for the inhabitants of a rural parish is afforded by the L. G. A., 1894, s. 8 (1) (b), post, p. 4896, which enables parish councils to provide recreation grounds. Such councils moreover possess powers as to village greens, open spaces, and public walks which are for the time being under their control, or to the expense of which they have contributed. See ss. 6 (1) (c) (iii) and 8 (1) (d) of the Act of 1894.

See also, as to the powers of a county council in this behalf, the Open Spaces Act, 1906, s. 14, Vol. V., post.

There are wide powers of provision of facilities for recreation in the Physical Training and Recreation Act, 1937, ante, p. 1570.

(a) For the powers of local authorities as to purchase of land, see L. G. A., 1933, Purchase. Pt. VII., ante, p. 973.

On the question of the power of a local authority to provide a pleasure ground outside their district, the L. G. B. expressed the view that, while they were not aware of any legal objection to the purchase by an authority under the P. H. A., 1875, of land outside their district for purposes of a pleasure ground, difficulties might arise in recovering penalties under the byelaws, since under s. 253, post, p. 4482, proceedings could only be taken by a party aggrieved, or by the council of the district in which the ground was situate, except with the consent of the Attorney-General. Full powers now exist under ss. 157 and 159, L. G. A., 1933, ante, pp. 974, 977, for purchasing land outside the council's district.

covenants.

A corporation acquired land by private contract for the purpose of a public park, and covenanted to keep the land as an open space for the enjoyment of the public, "subject to no buildings or erections of any kind being put thereupon except such structures as summer houses, a bandstand or shelters not exceeding twelve feet in height for the accommodation and convenience of the public." The corporation were in the course of erecting shelters which contained places of convenience, such as lavatories and retiring rooms, for the use of the public. Under their local Act the corporation were authorised to erect conveniences in any public park, and under the P. H. A., 1875, they had a general power to erect conveniences, and also to purchase land for public parks. In an action by the vendors on the covenant, it was held (1) that a public convenience was not ejusdem generis with a shelter, and that the covenant had been infringed; (2) that the covenant was not void as imposing a fetter upon the corporation in the exercise of powers conferred upon them by statute for the public benefit (Stourcliffe Estates Co., Ltd. v. Bournemouth Corporation, [1910] 2 Ch. 12; 74 J. P. 289; 13 Digest 366, 991).

For a case arising out of the erection of a bandstand in breach of a covenant, see Palliser v. Dover Corporation (1914), 58 Sol. J. 379; 31 Digest 168, 3014.

When purchasing land for a pleasure ground, a local authority should take care that third parties do not possess rights which will prevent its being used by the public (Deane v. Ramsgate Corporation (1892), 8 T. L. R. 199).

As to the modification and discharge of restrictive covenants, see s. 84 of Law of Property Act, 1925; Vol. V. and 15 Halsbury's Statutes 260.

powers as to "laying out," etc.

(b) Prior to the P. H. A., 1907, post, p. 5035b, the L. G. B. were decidedly liberal in their interpretation of the words "lay out, plant, improve," and they sanctioned loans upon estimates which included such items as greenhouses, reading-rooms, bandstands, gymnastic appliances, shelters, cycle-tracks, bowling-greens and lakes. Questions sometimes arose, however, as to whether a proposed building or appliance could properly be provided as an adjunct to a public pleasure ground, more especially if it was intended to make a charge for its use. See now, however, Part VI. of the P. H. A., 1907, post, p. 5053, which largely extend the powers of a district council when declared in force in their district by order of the M. of H.

These sections are amended and extended by Part VI. of P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, which applies to all districts in which Part VI. of the P. H. A., 1907, is in force.

Subject to any restrictive covenants or conditions affecting the land, an authority in whose district the P. H. A., 1907, s. 76, post, p. 5053, is in force, can apparently set apart a portion of a public park or recreation ground for golf (or any other game). Charges can now be made for the use of the links (or ground) under s. 56 (5), P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post. See also the Physical Training and Recreation Act, 1937, ante, p. 1570, as to a general power of providing grounds for organised games.

Foreshore

It occasionally happens when a local authority become lessees of the seashore, that they are confronted with claims which conflict with their right of control and management. It was held that a prescriptive right to go upon a foreshore which had been leased to a corporation, and to place and let on hire chairs and seats on the sands for profit could not be claimed, as the Prescription Act, 1832 (5 Halsbury's Statutes 823), does not apply to easements in gross (Ramsgate Corporation v. Debling (1906), 70 J. P. 132; 22 T. L. R. 369; 44 Digest 77, 577). As to the rights of the public on the foreshore, see Brinckman v. Mailey, [1904] 2 Ch. 313; 68 J. P. 534; 44 Digest 73, 591; Brighton Corporation v. Packham, p. 4455, post; and cases on pp. 4456 et seq., post, as to byelaws regulating the user of the foreshore; and for a case where a custom to spread nets on land above highwater mark was established, see Mercer v. Denne, [1905] 2 Ch. 538; 70 J. P. 65; 44 Digest 67, 481. See also as to the rights of the public over a promenade made under local Acts, Att.-Gen. v. Blackpool Corporation (1907), 71 J. P. 478; 26 Digest 426, 1452, and Walker v. Murphy, [1915] 1 Ch. 71; 79 J. P. 137; 11 Digest 51, 747, as to a "town moor."

The plaintiff agreed with the defendants to supply a band to perform on the sea front. It was a term of the contract that the defendants should hire out 500 chairs to the plaintiff for a certain period at a fixed rental. The plaintiff was entitled to let these chairs to the public, and was under covenant to repair and redeliver them in good order at the end of the term. The plaintiff alleged that many of the chairs as delivered were unfit for use, and that the defendants had been guilty of a breach of an implied term in the contract by allowing persons to use free seats near the band. In an action for damages, the jury found that some of the chairs as delivered were unfit for use, and that the plaintiff had suffered damage owing to the use of the free seats. It was held that there was an implied warranty that the chairs as delivered should be fit for use, but that it was not a further implied term of the agreement that the defendants should not permit the use of free seats (Dare v. Bognor U. D. C. (1912), 76 J. P. 425; 28 T. L. R. 489; 12 Digest 615, 5088).

Where a council provided deck chairs for use on the foreshore and did not limit their liability by a notice on a board where the chairs were stacked but printed on the back of the ticket given to a hirer the words "The council will not be liable for any accident or damage arising from hire of chair" they were held liable to a person injured as a result of the chair breaking (Chapelton v. Barry U. D. C., [1940] 1 K. B. 532; [1940] 1 All E. R. 356; Digest Supp.).

(c) Where, by Act of Parliament, a corporation was directed to cause a piece of land to be drained and levelled, and kept in proper condition for the purpose of public recreation, the court restrained the corporation from permitting a cattle fair to be held upon it (Att.-Gen. v. Southampton (Mayor of) (1859), 1 Giff. 363; 24 J. P. 131; 36 Digest 252, 42). A local authority were also restrained from letting a recreation ground to a football club, even for one day (Att.-Gen. v. Loughborough L. B., Times, May 31st, 1881). In another case, a municipal corporation purchased a piece of land under the corresponding provisions of the P. H. A., 1848, s. 74. In 1875 the corporation determined to appropriate about a quarter of an acre at one extremity of the land as a site for the erection of town buildings and a museum, public library, school of art, and conservatory. It was held by Bacon, V.-C., that no portion of the land could be appropriated for any of these objects except the museum and conservatory. It was held, on appeal, that the erection of a free library was allowable, as being conducive to the better enjoyment of the public walks and grounds as such (Att.-Gen. v. Sunderland (Corporation of) (1876), 2 Ch. D. 634; 40 J. P. 564; 36 Digest 251, 33). See also Att.-Gen. v. Sunderland Corporation, [1930] 1 Ch. 168; 94 J. P. 57; Digest Supp.; Att.-Gen. v. Poole Corporation, [1938] 1 Ch. 23; [1937] 3 All E. R. 608; Digest Supp.; Att.-Gen. v. Folkestone Corporation, ante, p. 4276; Att.-Gen. v. Leeds Corporation (1880), 24 Sol. J. 509; Att.-Gen. v. Bradford Corporation (1911), 75 J. P. 553; 55 Sol. J. 715; 36 Digest 246, 9; Walker v. Murphy, [1915] 1 Ch. 71; 79 J. P. 137; 11 Digest 51, 747, and other cases collected in notes to s. 163 (1) of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 989, as to the permanent application of land to a purpose other than that for which it was acquired.

Note to
Section 164.

User of pleasure ground:
alienation for different purpose.

When it was proposed by a local authority to appropriate part of a public pleasure ground to some other purpose, the L. G. B. declined under ordinary circumstances to entertain the proposal on the ground that the public has acquired conflicting rights, which, according to Att.-Gen. v. Sunderland, supra, must be respected. It is understood, however, that the M. of H. have considerably modified the view taken by their predecessors in view of s. 95 of the P. H. A., 1907, post, p. 5065.

The P. H. A., 1890, s. 44 (1), post, p. 4818, gives an authority limited powers to close a park or pleasure ground for short periods, and to give the use thereof to societies, etc.; ibid., s. 44 (2), deals with pleasure boats; and ibid., s. 45, enables an authority to contribute to the cost of pleasure grounds provided by individuals.

Where put in force by order of the L. G. B. or M. of H., the P. H. A., 1907, s. 76, post, p. 5053, makes further provision as to such matters as skating, games, music, chairs, pavilions and refreshment-rooms in parks and pleasure grounds. See also ibid., s. 77, as to enforcing byelaws and regulations. The powers of s. 76 of the 1907 Act are considerably extended by s. 56 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, which applies to all districts in which Part VI. of the 1907 Act is in force.

Under the Physical Training and Recreation Act, 1937, ante, p. 1570, local authorities may provide grounds for football, cricket and other games.

A gift, devise, or bequest for the providing of a public park, etc., is, subject as therein mentioned, exempted from the operation of the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888, post, p. 4771, by s. 6 thereof, as extended by the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act Amendment Act, 1892, post, p. 4836. See, however, s. 29 of the Settled Land Act, 1925; 17 Halsbury's Statutes 868. Purchases of land for the purposes of this section are exempt by virtue of the L. G. A., 1933, ss. 31 (2), 32 (2), ante, p. 766.

Town Gardens Protection Act, 1863, s. 1, ante, p. 4254, provides that when in any city or borough any enclosed garden or ornamental ground has been set apart, otherwise than by the revocable permission of the owner thereof, in any public square, etc. for the use or enjoyment of the inhabitants thereof, and when the trustees or other body appointed for the care of the same have neglected to keep in proper order, or when such garden or ground has not been vested or placed in the management of trustees, etc. for the care of the same, and from want of such care or any other cause has been neglected, the corporate authorities shall take charge of the same, putting up a notice to that effect in such garden or ground. A faculty cannot be granted authorising a churchyard to be appropriated as a public garden. But it was held to be in the discretion of the Consistory Court to authorise by a faculty the construction of footpaths in it for the convenience of the parishioners, the removal of high walls which obstruct the free circulation of air, the planting of it with trees and flowers when it is closed for burials, and the erection of gates in order to give the parishioners access to it, and other minor alterations (*R. v. As to the power of urban authorities to repair fences surrounding burial grounds, see Local Government Act, 1858 (Amendment) Act, 1861, s. 21, re-enacted in Sched. V., post, p. 4528.

The statutes which provided for the procuring of public libraries and public museums have all been repealed and consolidated by the Public Libraries Act, 1892, which has been in turn amended by the Public Libraries (Amendment) Act, 1893, the Public Libraries Act, 1901, and the Public Libraries Act, 1919; and see the Libraries Offences Act, 1898. A local authority bought land under s. 164 for the purpose of a public pleasure ground. They were bound by covenants in their conveyance to keep this land open as a recreation and pleasure ground for the use of the public for ever, and they expended an annual sum of £400 in maintenance, at the same time receiving a much smaller sum from such sources as refreshment contractors. It was held that the land could not be regarded as extra commercium, and that the authority as owners of it must bear an apportioned share of the cost of making up the private street upon one side of which it abutted (Herne Bay U. D. C. v. Payne, [1907] 2 K. B. 130; 71 J. P. 282; 36 Digest 247, 15).

(d) As to the making, confirming, and publishing of byelaws, see Part XII. of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1093; and as to the enforcing them, see s. 251, post, p. 4481. The section in the text gives a power not previously enjoyed—namely, one for the removal of persons offending against the byelaws. Model byelaws have been issued under this section. Under the Advertisements Regulation Act, 1907, s. 2, local authorities can make byelaws regulating the exhibition of advertisements which affect injuriously the amenities of public parks, pleasure promenades, and ancient monuments. The power to make byelaws under this Act is extended by the Advertisements Regulation Act, 1925. See the Acts, post, p. 5032 and Vol. V.

In some cases a public pleasure ground vests in the council of a borough in their municipal capacity. Under such circumstances the M. of H. did not consider that it is competent to the council to exercise the power of making byelaws under s. 164, supra, in relation to such a pleasure ground. But the position can be met by the exercise of the powers conferred by ss. 12 and 15 of the Open Spaces Act, 1906, post, pp. 5022—3.

The powers of a district council under s. 164, supra, and s. 44 of the P. H. A., 1890, post, p. 4818, as regards byelaws and otherwise in relation to recreation grounds and public walks, are made applicable to parish councils by the L. G. A., 1894, s. 8(1) (d), post, p. 4896, for the purpose of enabling such councils to regulate recreation grounds, village greens, open spaces, or public walks which are for the time being under their control or to the expense of which they have contributed.

By a scheme made under the Metropolitan Commons Act, 1866 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 567), and confirmed by the Metropolitan Commons Supplemental Act, 1877, it was provided that a common should be dedicated to the use and recreation of the public as an open and unenclosed space for ever; and the Metropolitan Board of Note to Section 164. Works were empowered to frame byelaws and regulations for the prevention of nuisances and the preservation of order on the common. The Board made a byelaw prohibiting the delivery of any public speech, lecture, sermon, or address of any kind, except with the written permission of the Board first obtained, and upon such portions of the common, and at such times as might be directed by such permission and sanctioned by the Board:—Held, that such byelaw was valid. No right of the general public to hold meetings on a common is known to the law (De Morgan v. Metropolitan Board of Works (1880), 5 Q. B. D. 155; 44 J. P. 296; 11 Digest 88, 1077). The decision was followed in Brighton Corporation v. Packham (1908), 72 J. P. 318; 24 T. L. R. 603; 44 Digest 77, 576, where the corporation, owners of the foreshore, obtained an injunction restraining members of a mission from preaching and holding meetings thereon.

A byelaw prohibiting meetings in public parks without the written consent of the local authority was held intra vires the powers conferred by a local Act to make byelaws for the good government and regulation of the public parks, etc. (Aldred v. Miller, [1925] S. C. (J.) 21; 36 Digest 249, o).

A byelaw relating to a common provided that "no person shall shoot or chase game or other birds or animals on the common." The respondent carried a tame pigeon and a falcon, and when on the common let them both go, and ran after them for half a mile, watching the chase:—Held, that this was an offence within the meaning of the byelaw (Harper v. Michell (1879), 44 J. P. 378; 11 Digest 89, 1082).

Under s. 164 (supra) a local board made byelaws for the regulation of a pleasure ground. One byelaw provided that no person should suffer any fowl belonging to him to enter or remain in the pleasure ground. The fine for offending was £5. B.'s six fowls strayed inside, there being no fence sufficient to prevent them:—Held, that the justices were right in refusing to convict, as the byelaw was repugnant to the law of England, and was not warranted by the section (Torquay L. B. v. Bridle (1882), 47 J. P. 183; 36 Digest 249, 29).

Where a local authority sold plots of land adjoining a proposed public park "together with a right of carriage horse and footway" through the park when laid out subject to any byelaws for the control of the park and subsequently (under a local Act which specifically authorised byelaws "for regulating or preventing the admission of horses or vehicles" to the park) made a byelaw prohibiting any motor car or other mechanically drawn vehicle from passing through any part of the park, the byelaw was held reasonable and valid although its effect was to prevent a purchaser of one of the plots from exercising his right of carriageway by motor car (Att.-Gen. v. Hodgson, [1922] 2 Ch. 429; 87 J. P. 121; 36 Digest 250, 30).

Byelaws as to foreshore.

An authority was empowered by a local Act to make byelaws and regulations with reference to the sea beach and foreshore in the district, which were vested in them for the purpose of public walks and pleasure grounds. After the passing of the local Act, a part of the foreshore was converted into an esplanade. The authority made a byelaw prohibiting the sale of any goods on any part of the sea beach, foreshore, or esplanade, except by the direction of the authority:—Held, that the byelaw was not unreasonable or ultra vires (Gray v. Sylvester) (1897), 61 J. P. 807; 46 W. R. 63; 38 Digest 165, 105). See also Llandudno U. D. C. v. Woods, [1899] 2 Ch. 705; 63 J. P. 775; 44 Digest 77, 575.

By a local Act a corporation was empowered to make byelaws for (inter alia) regulating the selling and hawking of any article . . . on the beach and foreshore, and No. 3 of such byelaws provided that "a person shall not on the said beach or foreshore sell or hawk, or offer, or expose for sale any article . . . except in pursuance of an agreement with the corporation . . ." It was held that the byelaw was unreasonable and bad on the ground that it gave the corporation power to make any agreement they chose without regard to the question of its reasonableness or unreasonableness, and that it reserved to them a right to refuse to give a licence to any particular person (Parker v. Bournemouth (Mayor, etc. of) (1902), 66 J. P. 440; 86 L. T. 449; 38 Digest 165, 107). See also Moorman v. Tordoff (1908), 72 J. P. 142; 98 L. T. 416; 38 Digest 160, 72.

The respondents' local Act empowered them to make byelaws for prohibiting or regulating the erection on the foreshore, sands or wastes, of any booth or other erection, which in their opinion might be a cause of danger, obstruction, nuisance, or annoyance, and generally for regulating the user of the foreshore, sands and wastes. They made a byelaw in 1888 forbidding the erection of any booth or other erection on the foreshore, sands or wastes, provided that the prohibition should not apply in any case where the respondents granted permission for the erection, and in 1900 they made an additional byelaw that no person should on any part of the foreshore sell or offer for sale any commodity except on such part of the foreshore as they should by notice appoint for the purpose. The appellant erected without permission a certain structure (a coffee van) which the justices found to be an erection within the byelaw of 1888, and they convicted the appellant. A Divisional Court held (distinguishing the Bournemouth Case, supra) that the byelaw was valid, as the local Act gave power to the respondents to say that any booth or erection was prima facie a cause of danger, obstruction, nuisance or annoyance, and the byelaw was not rendered invalid by the fact that the respondents had reserved to themselves a power to grant permission in particular cases (Williams v. Weston-super-Mare U. D. C. (No. 1) (1907), 72 J. P. 54; 38 Digest 160, 75). The appellant then brought an action against the respondents in the Chancery Division, alleging a customary right exercised for sixty years to sell from a stall or otherwise on the foreshore, and claimed (a) a declaration that the said byelaws were ultra vires and void; (b) a declaration that his coffee van was not an "erection" within the meaning of the byelaw of 1889; and (c) an injunction to restrain the respondents from interfering with his selling from his coffee van on the foreshore. The court followed the decision of the Divisional Court on the points decided by them and also declined (following Grand Junction Waterworks Co. v. Hampton U. D. C., [1898] 2 Ch. 331; 62 J. P. 566; 28 Digest 370, 54) to make a declaratory order under Order XXV., r. 5, with regard to the byelaw of 1900 (Williams v. Weston-super-Mare U. D. C. (No. 2) (1910), 74 J. P. 370; 103 L. T. 9; 38 Digest 160, 76).

Section 164.

Under the Hastings Improvement Act, 1885, the corporation may make byelaws "for the preservation of order and good conduct among persons frequenting the parades, stade, foreshore, and sands," and they accordingly made a byelaw, which was approved by the L. G. B., that no person should deliver an address on any part of the parades, stade, foreshore, or sands, except on such portions thereof as the corporation might by notice appoint for the purpose. The corporation by notice from time to time appointed certain portions of the stade as places at which addresses might be delivered, but these notices were not submitted to the L. G. B. for approval. The appellant, a member of the Salvation Army, conducted a religious service and delivered an address on a portion of the stade which was not one of the places so appointed, and was convicted of contravening the byelaw. It was held, that as the power to fix the places at which addresses might be delivered was set out in the byelaw it was not necessary to submit the notices to the L. G. B. for approval, and that the byelaw was valid, and therefore the conviction must be affirmed (Slee v. Meadows (1911), 75 J. P. 246; 105 L. T. 127; 38 Digest 161, 77).

Under the Ramsgate Corporation Act, 1900, the corporation "may make and enforce byelaws for the prevention of danger obstruction nuisance or annoyance to persons using the seashore . . . for regulating the selling and hawking of any article commodity or thing on the seashore . . .," and they made a byelaw that "where any part or parts of the seashore has, or have, by notices affixed in conspicuous positions on the seashore, been set apart by the corporation for the hawking of such articles commodities or things as may be specified in the notices, no person shall hawk any article, commodity or thing so specified on any other part of the seashore." Notices were put up setting apart a portion of the seashore for the hawking of certain articles and forbidding the hawking of them on any other portion. The corporation had let spaces for the erection of stalls on that portion of the seashore where hawking was prohibited. It was held that the byelaw was valid (Cassell v. Jones (1913), 77 J. P. 197; 108 L. T. 806; 38 Digest 160, 73).

As to byelaws regulating bathing from the foreshore, see McGregor v. Disselduff, p. 1094, ante.

An authority can now obtain powers to make byelaws as to the seashore and also as to promenades by procuring an order from the Home Secretary putting ss. 82, 83 of the P. H. A., 1907, post, pp. 5059—60, in force in their district.

165. Any urban authority may from time to time provide such Urban clocks as they consider necessary, and cause them to be fixed on or authority

Section 165. against any public building, or, with the consent of the owner or occupier, on or against any private building the situation of which may be convenient for that purpose, and may cause the dials thereof to be lighted at night, and may from time to time alter and remove any such clocks to such other like situation as they may consider expedient.

public clocks.

The provision in the text does not empower the urban authority to repair, etc. clocks not provided by themselves and not transferred to them, such as the clock of a parish church. The P. H. A., 1890, s. 46, post, p. 4819 (now of general application), extends this section so as to enable an authority to pay the reasonable cost of repairing, maintaining, winding up, and lighting any public clock within their district though not vested in them.

The provision in the Act of 1890, referred to above, enables an authority to incur expense in repairing, winding, etc. the clock in a church tower. If it is desired to place a new clock in a church tower, a necessary preliminary would seem to be the obtaining of a faculty from an ecclesiastical court.

The M. of H. are willing to sanction loans for the provision of public clocks by authorities, and to allow a term of ten years for repayment.

It will be observed that the section does not authorise the provision of a tower to contain a clock. In a case in which an urban council applied to the L. G. B. for sanction to a loan for the erection of an ornate tower with a clock at the summit, the Board considered that they were precluded from acceding to the application so far as the tower was concerned. It would seem, however, that the word "clock" must be regarded as including a case, and also some sort of support, and the Board raised no objection when the structure proposed was unpretentious and distinctly required for the purposes of the clock. The view of the M. of H. is probably similar. Apart from the powers of s. 165, supra, public clocks are sometimes provided under the Public Libraries Acts, the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, and other Acts as part of a building erected under such Acts.

Under the P. H. A., 1890, s. 42, post, p. 4817 (now of general application), the authority may authorise the erection of a clock tower in any street or public place, and may maintain the same, and may also maintain a tower already erected.

It is not altogether clear that a parish council could legally incur expense in relation to a public clock even if it were transferred to them under the L. G. A., 1894, s. 8 (1) (h), post, p. 4896, or the L. G. A., 1933, s. 268, ante, p. 1148. The L. G. B. generally advised action by the rural district council under s. 165, supra, as extended by s. 46 of the Act of 1890, after obtaining from the Board an order conferring upon them the necessary urban powers. Such orders usually provide that the expenses shall be chargeable as special expenses to the parish concerned, but even so the council may contribute towards such expenses as part of their general expenses under s. 190 (4), L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1018. The actual maintenance of the clock can be delegated to the parish council.

POLICE REGULATIONS.

Incorporation of certain provisions of 10 & 11 Vict.
c. 89.

171. The provisions of the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847 (a), with respect to the following matters, (namely),

- (1) With respect to obstructions and nuisances in the streets (b) ; and
- (2) With respect to fires (c) ; and
- (3) With respect to places of public resort (d) ; and
- (4) With respect to hackney carriages (e) ; and
- (5) With respect to public bathing (f) ;

shall, for the purpose of regulating such matters in urban districts (g), be incorporated with this Act.

The expression in the provisions so incorporated " the superintendent constable," and the expression " any constable or other officer appointed by virtue of this or the special Act," shall, for the purposes of this Act, respectively include any superintendent of police, and any constable or officer of police acting for or in the district of any urban authority (h) ; and the expression "within the prescribed distance" (i) shall for the purposes of this Act mean within any urban district. Section 171.

Notwithstanding anything in the provisions so incorporated (k), a licence granted to the driver of any hackney carriage in pursuance thereof shall be in force for one year only from the date of the licence, or until the next general licensing meeting where a day for such meeting is appointed.

(a) That is, Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, ante, p. 4222. In order to understand the incorporated clauses attention should be paid to other clauses in the Act, and consequently such as appear to be requisite are printed, ante, p. 4222, in addition to the clauses actually incorporated. The sections dealing with the various matters specified in s. 171 are referred to in the following notes. The notes to the several sections, ante, pp. 4222 et seq., should also be referred to.

In R. v. Hastings JJ., Ex parte Mitchell (1925), 89 J. P. N. 86, it was held following R. v. Smith (1873), L. R. 8 Q. B. 146 ; 37 J. P. 214 ; 42 Digest 766, 1925, that the effect of this section was as if the words of the Act of 1847 had been repeated in this Act and accordingly an offence under one of the incorporated provisions was an offence under this Act. Service of a summons for an offence under s. 47 of the Act of 1847, ante, p. 4241, is therefore good if made in compliance with s. 267 of this Act, post, p. 4495 ; see also note (h), post, p. 4460.

(b) See ss. 21—29 of the Act of 1847, ante, pp. 4224—4233. The provisions refer more to police control than to the actual powers of local authorities, and some of the etc. in offences mentioned therein are also dealt with in the Highway Act, 1835, s. 72 streets. (9 Halsbury's Statutes 86). See also the provisions of ss. 3, 79—81 of the P. H. A., 1907, post, pp. 5037, 5055—58.

(c) The original effect of this provision was to incorporate ss. 30—33 of the Act of 1847 (ante, p. 4233, and 13 Halsbury's Statutes 603, 604). But by s. 30 and Sched. III., Pt. I., of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 602, 604), this paragraph is repealed as from July 29th, 1938, in so far as it incorporates s. 32 ; and by ibid., Sched. III., Pt. II., it is repealed as from July 29th, 1940, in so far as it incorporates s. 33. The urban authority derive from this paragraph their powers for the extinction of fires, the establishment of fire brigades, the erection of fire-engine stations, etc. Their duty in connection with the provision of an adequate water supply for fire extinction is now laid down in s. 2 of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 588). As to pensions for professional firemen, see the Fire Brigade Pensions Act, 1925, Vol. V., post. Under s. 13 (4), Finance Act, 1920 (16 Halsbury's Statutes 853), motor fire engines are exempt from licence duties.

The Royal Commission on Fire Brigades and Fire Prevention in their report of July 20th, 1923, discussed the whole subject and made many recommendations. A summary is given in "Local Government, 1924," pp. 150 et seq. The recommendations have largely been incorporated into the Act of 1938.

(d) See ss. 34—36 of the Act of 1847, ante, pp. 4235, 4236. See also s. 164 of the present Act, ante, p. 4451. Places of public resort.

(e) See ss. 37—68 of the Act of 1847, ante, pp. 4236—4246. These provisions have been extended and applied to omnibuses, stage coaches, etc., by Town Police Clauses Act, 1889, which is also set out, post, p. 4784. By s. 2 of that Act, it is to be deemed to be incorporated with the P. H. A., 1875, by the provisions in the text. Hackney carriages.

It will be seen that the incorporated clauses enable byelaws to be made in respect of hackney carriages ; and the M. of H. have model byelaws on this subject. For decisions upon such byelaws, see notes to s. 68 of the Act of 1847, ante, p. 4246. See also note (g), infra.

(f) The words in italics were repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346 (1), Sched. III., Pt. I., ante, pp. 720, 728. See ibid., s. 231, ante, p. 495. Public bathing.

(g) It will be observed that this section applies to urban districts only. If, however, a rural council are of opinion that the provisions, or some of them, should be put in force in their district or certain parishes therein, they may apply to the M. of H. for an order for the purpose under s. 276, post, p. 4502 ; or, the application Rural districts.

may be made by ratepayers whose united hereditaments represent at least one-tenth of the rateable value of the district or parish, by the county council or by a parish council. See the L. G. A., 1894, s. 25 (7), post, p. 4907. A copy of the resolution authorising the application should be forwarded by the clerk, together with a short statement of grounds.

If the application relates to "obstructions, etc., in streets" such as are dealt with in s. 28 of the Act of 1847, ante, p. 4226, the precise paragraphs of that section which are required should be specified, and in this connection the council might ascertain whether the offences in question are not already adequately dealt with by the Highway Act, 1835, s. 72 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 86), which is in force in rural as well as urban districts. See also note (b), above.

If the application relates to "hackney carriages," it should be stated whether it is desired to regulate omnibuses also (see note (e), ante, p. 4459). So long as a rural district is not subject to an urban powers order hackney carriages are apparently not subject to any regulation. It should be noted, however, that a Departmental Committee on the Licensing and Regulation of Public Service Vehicles in their First Interim Report dated May 28th, 1925, recommended that the licensing authorities should be county councils and county borough councils, the councils of those non-county boroughs and urban districts which had a population at the last census of 20,000 or upwards, and of those rural districts which had a similar population and already possess licensing powers. These views now influence the M. of H. in dealing with applications of this character from rural district councils. It is interesting to observe that if full effect were given to the Committee's recommendations the number of licensing authorities outside the Metropolitan Police District would be reduced to 302. The M. of H. would not grant the powers to a rural district council within the Metropolitan Police District however populous.

prosecute.

(h) By s. 28 of the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, ante, p. 4226, everyone who, to the annoyance and danger of the passengers, wantonly throws stones is liable to a penalty. By s. 171, supra, the provisions of the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, with respect to the above, are incorporated "for the purpose of regulating such matters in urban districts." It is provided by s. 253, post, p. 4482, that "proceedings for the recovery of any penalty under this Act shall not, except as in this Act is expressly provided, be had or taken by any person other than a party aggrieved, or by the local authority of the district in which the offence is committed":—Held, that the district superintendent of police could lay an information under s. 28 of the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, although not the party aggrieved nor authorised by the local authority (Jobson v. Henderson (1900), 64 J. P. 425; 82 L. T. 260; 38 Digest 170, 139). That case was not followed in Sheffield Corp'n. v. Kisson, [1929] 2 K. B. 322; 93 J. P. 135; 27 L. G. R. 533; Digest Supp., where it was held that proceedings for plying for hire with an omnibus without a licence can only be instituted in accordance with s. 253, post, and that a director of a rival omnibus company is not a "person aggrieved" within that section. Lord HEWART, C.J., in the Sheffield Case pointed out that the part of the Act of 1847 dealing with the recovery of penalties is not incorporated in this Act and that this part was doubtless omitted because of the provisions of s. 253, post. It would seem, therefore, safer not to rely upon Jobson v. Henderson, supra, but in all cases of offences under the incorporated provisions of the Act of 1847 to institute proceedings in accordance with s. 253, post. See also s. 253 and notes thereto, post, p. 4482.

distance."

(i) The last interpretation removed a difficulty which was often felt in respect of "the prescribed distance," and prevents the inconvenience resulting from the contiguity of local districts.

Drivers'
licences.

(k) This enactment removed an impression which once prevailed, though whether correctly or not may be doubted, that though the owner of a carriage was to be licensed for a year only, a driver when once licensed retained his licence during the rest of his life.

Urban
authority may make byelaws for licensing horses, boats,
etc. for hire.

172. Any urban authority (a) may license (b) the proprietors drivers and conductors of horses ponies mules or asses standing for hire within the district in like manner and with the like incidents and consequences as in the case of proprietors and drivers of hackney carriages (c), and may make byelaws (d) for regulating stands and fixing rates of hire, and as to the qualification of such drivers and conductors, and for securing their good and orderly conduct while in charge. Section 172.

Any urban authority (a) may also license (b) the proprietors of pleasure boats and vessels (c), and the boatmen or other persons in charge thereof, and may make byelaws (e) for regulating the numbering and naming of such boats and vessels, and the number of persons to be carried therein, and the mooring places for the same, and for fixing rates of hire, and the qualification of such boatmen or other persons in charge, and for securing their good and orderly conduct while in charge.

(a) The section now applies to rural authorities also, a general order having been made to that effect (Rural District Councils (Urban Powers) Order, 1931 (S. R. & O., 1931, No. 580)). Rural districts.

(b) Refusal of a licence is appealable to Quarter Sessions: see s. 7 of the P. H. A. A. Act, 1890, post, p. 4804, and R. v. Essex J.J., Ex parte Barking U. D. C., ibid. Licences.

(c) See previous section and note (e) thereto. Having regard to ss. 39 and 46 of the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, ante, pp. 4238, 4240, which is applied to these licences by the provision in the text, it is suggested that for such licences fees may be charged not exceeding the fees authorised by those sections.

(d) As to the making, confirming, and publishing of byelaws, see Pt. XII. of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1093, and as to the enforcing of them, see s. 251, post, p. 4481. Byelaws.
Model byelaws under this section have been issued by the L. G. B. and from the M. of H.

(e) As to boats on lakes or waters in any park or pleasure ground provided by the local authority, see the P. H. A., 1890, s. 44 (2), post, p. 4819. Model byelaws have also been issued with reference to pleasure boats and vessels.

The vessels referred to in the text appear to be vessels used for pleasure, e.g., yachts, and thus a ferry would not ordinarily come under the section, but there seems to be no authoritative decision as to the meaning of the expression "pleasure boats and vessels" as used in this Act.

This section does not authorise the licensing of boats or the making of a byelaw that proprietors of boats (not themselves acting as boatmen) must take out a licence: a byelaw requiring it, therefore, is ultra vires and bad, and an information purporting to be laid under such a byelaw was held to have been rightly dismissed (Byrne v. Brown (1893), 57 J. P. N. 741). A similar decision was arrived at under the words of a local Act in Londonderry Harbour Commissioners v. Londonderry Bridge Commissioners, [1894] 2 I. R. 384. Now, however, as to the licensing of boats, see s. 94 of the P. H. A., 1907, post, p. 5064, which may be put in force in any district by an order of the M. of H. Vessels licensed (more properly, certificated) by the Board of Trade under the Merchant Shipping Acts are excepted from the requirement of a licence under that section, but not apparently from byelaws under this section, if in fact they are also "pleasure boats."

PART V.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

ARBITRATION (a).

179. In case of dispute as to the amount of any compensation (b) to be made under the provisions of this Act (except where the mode of determining the same is specially provided for (c)), and in case of any matter which by this Act is authorised or directed to be settled by arbitration (d), then, unless both parties concur in the appointment of a single arbitrator (e), each party shall appoint an arbitrator to whom the matter shall be referred (f). Mode of reference to arbitration.

This section has been repealed by P. H. A., 1936, s. 346 (1), Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any un-repealed enactment in this Act or any Act directed to be construed herewith.

Regulations
as to arbitration.

(a) The Arbitration Act, 1889, s. 24, provides that that Act—q.v. as amended, post, p. 4793—shall apply to every arbitration under any Act passed before or after its commencement as if the arbitration were pursuant to a submission, except in so far as it is inconsistent with the Act regulating the arbitration or with any rules or procedure authorised or recognised thereby. While, therefore, the Arbitration Act, 1889, will not repeal any of the provisions of this or the following sections, it will apply, in so far as it is not inconsistent, to arbitrations under this Act.

When a dispute as to compensation arises out of the compulsory acquisition of land, i.e. land or water, or any interest in land or water, or any easement or right in, to, or over land or water, the provisions of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, post, p. 5213, must now be consulted. As to the application of this Act to a claim for compensation in respect of the laying of a sewer in private land, see Thurrock Grays and Tilbury Joint Sewerage Board v. Thames Land Co. (1925), 90 J. P. 1; 23 L. G. R. 648; Digest Supp.

(b) It was formerly held that there must be a dispute only as to the amount of compensation and not as to the liability to pay it, and that a mere denial of liability by the authority was enough to suspend the right to proceed by way of arbitration (R. v. Burslem L. B. (1859), 28 L. J. Q. B. 345; Re Bradby & Southampton L. B. (1855), 4 E. & B. 1014; 19 J. P. 644; 38 Digest 174, 167. And see R. v. Metropolitan Commissioners of Sewers (1853), 1 E. & B. 694; 17 J. P. 264). These cases, however, were considered in Brierley Hill L. B. v. Pearsall (1884), 9 App. Cas. 595; 49 J. P. 84; 11 Digest 292, 2209, where it was decided that a person who claims compensation for damage sustained by reason of the exercise of powers given by the Act, is entitled under s. 308, post, p. 4515, to have the amount of compensation determined by arbitration in manner provided by the Act, even though a dispute exists as to the liability of those from whom he seeks to recover compensation; and that the prior determination of that question of liability is not a condition precedent to the claimant's right to go to arbitration in order to obtain an award as to the fact of damage and the amount of compensation. This decision renders it unnecessary to do more than mention Burgess v. Northwich L. B. (1877), 37 L. T. 355; (reported on another point, in (1880), 6 Q. B. D. 284; 45 J. P. 256; 26 Digest 335, 661, and Utiley v. Todmorden L. B. (1874), 39 J. P. 56; 44 L. J. C. P. 19). In the former a motion for a rule nisi to set aside an award on the ground that there was a dispute as to liability was dismissed, and in the latter an action was brought on an award when the liability was disputed.

(c) See, for example, s. 308, post, p. 4515, when the dispute may be referred to a court of summary jurisdiction.

(d) See s. 150, ante, and ss. 308, 328, post, pp. 4515, 4520.

(e) The Arbitration Act, 1889, s. 5, post, p. 4789, enables the court to appoint an arbitrator where a submission provides for reference to a single arbitrator "and all parties do not after differences have arisen concur in the appointment of an arbitrator." A contract between an authority and a contractor provided for the reference of differences to a single arbitrator. A difference having arisen, the contractor made proposals to the authority for the selection of an arbitrator, but they would not proceed with such selection. Thereupon the contractor served the authority with written notice "to concur in the appointment of a sole arbitrator in the matter." It was held that the notice given was a sufficient notice within s. 5 (In re Eyre and Leicester (Corporation of), [1892] 1 Q. B. 136; 56 J. P. 228; 2 Digest 408, 629). It may be stated as a general rule that, where the conditions exist under which the section is applicable, the court or judge has no discretion to refuse to appoint an arbitrator (ibid.).

(f) See, however, s. 181, post, p. 4467, as to referring small claims to a court of summary jurisdiction.

180. With respect to arbitrations under this Act (a), the following regulations shall be observed; (that is to say,)

- (1) Every appointment of an arbitrator under this Act when made on behalf of the local authority shall be under their common seal, and on behalf of any other party under his hand, or if such party be a corporation aggregate under their common seal (b) : Section 180.

- (2) Every such appointment shall be delivered to the arbitrators, and shall be deemed a submission to arbitration by the parties making the same (c) :
- (3) After the making of any such appointment the same shall not be revoked without the consent of both parties, nor shall the death of either party operate as a revocation (d) :
- (4) If for the space of fourteen days after any matter by this Act authorised or directed to be settled by arbitration has arisen, and notice in writing (e) by one party who has duly appointed an arbitrator has been given to the other party, stating the matter to be referred, and accompanied by a copy of such appointment, the party to whom notice is given fails to appoint an arbitrator, the arbitrator appointed by the party giving the notice shall be deemed to be appointed by and shall act on behalf of both parties :
- (5) If before the determination of any matter so referred any arbitrator dies or refuses or becomes incapable to act, the party by whom such arbitrator was appointed may appoint in writing another person in his stead ; and if such party fails so to do for the space of seven days after notice in writing (e) from the other party in that behalf, the remaining arbitrator may proceed ex parte ; and every arbitrator so appointed shall have the same powers and authorities as were vested in the arbitrator in whose stead the appointment is made :
- (6) If a single arbitrator dies or becomes incapable to act before the making of his award, or fails to make his award within twenty-one days after his appointment, or within such extended time, if any, as may have been duly appointed by him for that purpose (f), the matters referred to him shall be again referred to arbitration under the provisions of this Act, as if no former reference had been made :
- (7) Where there is more than one arbitrator, the arbitrators shall, before they enter on the reference, appoint (g) by writing under their hands an umpire, and if the person appointed to be umpire dies or becomes incapable to act, the arbitrators shall forthwith appoint another person in his stead ; and if the arbitrators neglect or refuse to appoint an umpire for seven days after being requested so to do by any party to the arbitration, the Local Government Board shall, on the application of any such party, appoint an umpire (h) :
- (8) If the arbitrators fail to make their award within twenty-one days after the day on which the last of them was appointed, or within such extended time (if any) as may have been duly appointed by them for that purpose, the matters referred shall be determined by the umpire (i) :
- (9) The time for making an award by arbitrators under this Act shall not in any case be extended beyond the period of two months from the date of the submission, and the time for making an award by an umpire under this Act shall not in any case be extended beyond the period of two months from the date of the reference of the matters to him (k) :

- (10) Before any arbitrator or umpire enters on a reference under this Act he shall make and subscribe the following declaration before a justice of the peace ; (that is to say,)

“ I A. B. do solemnly and sincerely declare that I will faithfully and honestly, and to the best of my skill and ability, hear and determine the matters referred to me under the Public Health Act, 1875.

- (11) Such declaration shall be annexed to the award when made ; and any arbitrator or umpire who wilfully acts contrary to such declaration shall be guilty of a misdemeanor (l) :
- (12) Any arbitrator arbitrators or umpire appointed by virtue of this Act may require the production of such documents in the possession or power of either party as they or he may think necessary for determining the matters referred (m), and may examine the parties or their witnesses on oath :
- (13) The costs of and consequent upon the reference shall be in the discretion of the arbitrator or arbitrators, or (in case the matters referred are determined by an umpire) of the umpire (n) :
- (14) Any submission to arbitration under the provisions of this Act may be made a rule of any of the superior courts, on the application of any party thereto (o) :
- (15) The award (p) of arbitrators or of an umpire under this Act shall be final and binding on all parties to the reference (q).

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346 (1), Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any Act directed to be construed herewith.

“ Under this Act.”

(a) When land was taken compulsorily by a council under the powers of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Acts, incorporated by s. 176 (now repealed), and an arbitration took place to determine the amount of compensation to be paid to its owner, the procedure with regard to such arbitration and the right to costs were formerly wholly governed by the provisions of those Acts, and not by this section (Ex parte Rayner (1878), 3 Q. B. D. 446 ; 42 J. P. 807), but see now the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, post, p. 5213. Moreover, some arbitrations which were formerly “ under this Act,” i.e. the P. H. Act, 1875, will now be governed by the above mentioned Act of 1919, e.g., an arbitration to assess the compensation for the laying of a sewer is now governed by the last-mentioned Act (Thurrock Grays and Tilbury Joint Sewerage Board v. Thames Land Co. (1926), 90 J. P. 1 ; 23 L. G. R. 648 ; Digest Supp.).

Appointment of arbitrator.

(b) Where a claimant agreed with a waterworks company that a person nominated by two others should be appointed arbitrator, and such person being so appointed awarded to the claimant a sum exceeding £50, the Court of Exchequer held that the latter was entitled to the costs of the arbitration, although the statutory preliminaries to a reference under the Lands Clauses Consolidation Acts had not in all respects been complied with (Martin v. Leicester Waterworks Co. (1858), 27 L. J. Ex. 432 ; see also Collins v. South Staffordshire Rail. Co. (1851), 7 Exch. 5 ; 13 Digest 393, 1180). But where, in an arbitration under this Act, one arbitrator was appointed by the local authority under their seal and another by the claimant, but not in writing under his hand, and the arbitrators appointed an umpire, who made an award in favour of the claimant, it was held that, the provisions of the statute not having been complied with, the appointment of the arbitrators, and consequently their appointment of the umpire and his award were invalid, and that neither the original submission, nor the appointment of the umpire, nor the award could be made an order of court (Re Gifford and Bury (Town Council of) (1888), 20 Q. B. D. 368; 52 J. P. 119; 38 Digest 174, 164).

(c) See notes to s. 303 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 635.

(d) As one of the parties is a corporate body, the phraseology is not quite happy. Under the P. H. A., 1848, s. 123, the appointment in the case of a local board was signed by five members of the board, and as one of them might die, the legislature provided thus against the presumed consequence of his death. No such contingency can now arise with reference to the local authority.

Revocation of death.

(e) See notes to P. H. A., 1936, s. 303, ante, p. 635, as to when an appointment is deemed to be made; and see ss. 266, 267, post, pp. 4494, 4495, as to the authentication and service of notices.

A frontager disputed an apportionment under s. 150, ante, p. 4388, whereupon the local authority appointed an arbitrator and gave notice of such appointment to the frontager. The frontager, without appointing an arbitrator, withdrew his notice disputing the apportionment within fourteen days, and the authority's arbitrator continued the reference, acting as sole arbitrator. It was held that the award was a nullity, as the arbitrator had no power to act as sole arbitrator. The frontager being entitled to withdraw his notice disputing the apportionment within the fourteen days, and having done so, there was no submission to arbitration (Re Stoker and Morpeth Corporation, [1915] 2 K. B. 511; 79 J. P. 201; 26 Digest 531, 2307).

(f) As to extending the time, see sub-s. (8), and note (i), thereto.

(g) In Holdsworth v. Barsham (1862), 2 B. & S. 480; 31 L. J. Q. B. 145, the arbitrators appointed an umpire before entering on the reference, but after the twenty-one days within which they ought by the P. H. A., 1848, s. 126, to have made their award, and it was held that such appointment was not too late. In the same case in the Exchequer Chamber (sub nom. Holdsworth v. Wilson) (1863), 4 B. & S. 1; 32 L. J. Q. B. 289; 38 Digest 174, 165, it was held that the power to appoint an umpire continued until the expiration of the time within which they might have made their award (in this Act two months: see sub-s. (9)).

Appointment
of umpire.

If the arbitrators cannot agree upon an umpire, there is no objection to their selecting by lot one of two persons, each of whom they both admit to be a fit person (Re Hopper (1867), L. R. 2 Q. B. 367; 31 J. P. 182; 2 Digest 320, 61). They must not, however, toss up to decide which of them shall nominate an umpire, nor must they select by lot one of two persons, each of whom is known only to one of them (Pescod v. Pescod (1887), 58 L. T. 76; 2 Digest 405, 610). The arbitrators ought to meet for the selection of an umpire; but having selected one, they need not sign his appointment in the presence of each other (Re Hopper, supra). His appointment need not be stamped unless it be by deed (Routledge v. Thornton (1812), 4 Taunt. 704; 2 Digest 404, 598).

(h) The Minister of Health must make the appointment; and, though no time is specified, he must do so within a reasonable time. The application must be made by one of the parties, and should be accompanied by copies of the appointments of the arbitrators and of the request to them to appoint an umpire. Some evidence may also be required by the Ministry of the failure of the arbitrators to comply with the request. The Minister refuses to act upon an application from the arbitrators or one of them.

The arbitrators cannot appoint an umpire after the expiration of the seven days mentioned in the sub-section.

It is advisable that the request to them to appoint should be in writing.

Where no request to the arbitrators to appoint an umpire was made within the period (two months from date of submission) during which they could make an award, the L. G. B. held that the arbitrators were not at the time of the request legally in a position to make an appointment, and that no such neglect or refusal to appoint was then possible on their part as would enable the Board to appoint. Under such circumstances proceedings should be begun de novo.

(i) The authority of the umpire commences at the end of the twenty-one days, or of the extended time, in the case of a failure to make the award. This is important, for it has been a common practice for umpires to calculate the time from the date

umpire's award.

of their receiving notice of the fact that the arbitrators have failed to award: see Skerratt v. North Staff. Rail. Co. (1848), 17 L. J. Ch. 161; 11 Digest 191, 708. As to the right of a party to be heard by the umpire, see Re Mairinder (1883), 49 L. T. 535; 2 Digest 440, 903. It is usual to arrange for the umpire to sit with arbitrators to avoid the cost of a rehearing if they fail to agree.

Although no original limit of time is specially mentioned in the text within which an umpire must make his award, yet by analogy to the original limit fixed in the case of arbitrators, an original limit of twenty-one days from the date of the reference to him must be inferred to have been fixed in the case of an umpire, which under sub-s. (9) may not be extended beyond two months. Two arbitrators, appointed under the Act, met on January 3rd and extended the time for making their award till February 20th. On January 10th they appointed an umpire. On February 1st the arbitrators and umpire met and were attended by the parties, but one of the arbitrators retired and refused to proceed any further, and the meeting was adjourned sine die. On April 19th the umpire made his award. It was held that the award was made too late and must be set aside. It was also held that the date from which the twenty-one days must be reckoned was February 1st, when the arbitrators finally disagreed, and not February 20th, when their powers expired (Re Yeadon L. B. and Yeadon Waterworks Co. (1889), 41 Ch. D. 52; 38 Digest 175, 171).

Extension of
time for award.

(k) A reference to arbitration under the Lands Clauses Acts was held to be subject to the provisions of the Common Law Procedure Act, 1854 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 175), with respect to referring back an award to the arbitrator, and to enlarging the time by the court notwithstanding the expiration of the time within which the award should have been made (In re Dare Valley Rail. Co. (1869), 4 Ch. App. 554; 2 Digest 635, 2617; Rhodes v. Airedale Drainage Commissioners (1876), 1 C. P. D. 402; 2 Digest 459, 1061). These cases were followed with reference to an arbitration under this section in Warburton v. Haslingden L. B. (1879), 48 L. J. Q. B. 451; 2 Digest 316, 35, a previous decision in Kellett v. Tranmere L. B. (1864), 34 L. J. Q. B. 87; 28 J. P. N. 742; 38 Digest 175, 170) being dissented from. It would appear, therefore, that, notwithstanding the provisions in the text, the time for making the award may be extended beyond the period of two months, as in Re Ward & Secretary of State for War (1862), 32 L. J. Q. B. 53; 2 Digest 421, 724; even when the award has been made after the two months has elapsed, as in Lord v. Lee (1868), L. R. 3 Q. B. 404; 2 Digest 421, 728; Re Warner and Powell (1866), L. R. 3 Eq. 261; 2 Digest 421, 727; May v. Harcourt (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 688; 2 Digest 421, 725. In Re Mackenzie and the Ascot Gas Company (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 114, it was held that the section could not enlarge the time for making an award under the above section beyond the period of two months; but this case, in which Warburton v. Haslingden L. B. was not cited, has since been overruled in Knowles v. Bolton Corporation, [1900] 2 Q. B. 253; 2 Digest 420, 722, where it was decided by the Court of Appeal that the court has power under the Arbitration Act, 1889, s. 9, post, p. 4790, to enlarge the time for making an award beyond two months from the date of the submission notwithstanding s. 180 (9). So too, under the similar provisions of the Irish Public Health Act it has been held that the court can remit an award to the umpire for his reconsideration, although the two months have expired (In re Hurley and Queenstown U. D. C. (1913), 47 Ir. L. T. 117).

powers.
Costs.

(m) See note as to arbitrator's powers, ante, pp. 635—6.

(n) See Peake v. Finchley L. B., ante, p. 636.

The court has no power to compel an arbitrator to submit his costs—i.e., the fees payable to him—to arbitration. The proper remedy for extortionate charges by an arbitrator was (1) to apply to have his award set aside; or (2) to bring an action for the recovery of a portion of the charge; or (3) to call upon the court to compel him to make his award (Wickington v. Wrexham Waterworks Co. (1884), 32 W. R. 1000; 2 Digest 425, 763). See also In re Gilbert and Wright, ante, p. 636. Upon taxation of the costs of an arbitration as between the parties to the reference, the taxing master disallowed £119 of the sum paid to the arbitrators and umpire for their fees on the taking up of the award. In an action brought to recover from the arbitrators and umpire the amount so disallowed, it was held that in order to succeed the plaintiffs must show that the fees charged were unreasonable and extortionate; and, further, that the certificate of the taxing master was not evidence that the amounts disallowed by him were unreasonably charged (Llandrindod Wells Water Co. v. Hawksley (1904), 68 J. P. 242; 20 T. L. R. 241; 2 Digest 428, 787).

R. 20 Eq. 39; 11 Digest 197, 761). The application to make the submission a rule of court should be made ex parte (Wood v. Birch, [1889] W. N. 126; Re Davey and the Railway Passenger's Assurance Co. (1880), 49 L. J. Ch. 568; 43 L. T. 234).

(g) These words are somewhat more emphatic than those used in the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ss. 25, 27, 37, ante, pp. 4114, 4117, but the effect appears to be the same. For notes on this question generally, see ante, p. 637.

Finality of award.

181. All questions referable to arbitration under this Act may, when the amount in dispute is less than twenty pounds, be determined at the option of either party before a court of summary jurisdiction (a), but the court may, if it thinks fit, require that any work in respect of which the claim of the local authority is made and the particulars of the claim be reported on to them by any competent surveyor, not being the surveyor of the local authority; and the court may determine the amount of costs incurred in that behalf, and by whom such costs or any part of them shall be paid (b).

This section is repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346 (1), Sched. III., Pt. I. (2) ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any un-repealed enactment in this Act or any Act directed to be construed herewith.

(a) See the definition, ante, p. 4345.

(b) Under the Huddersfield Improvement Act, 1871, which incorporated the Lands Clauses Act, power was given to the corporation to lay sewers in lands, making full compensation for any damage; and, where the method of recovering compensation was not provided, two justices might hear and determine the same. It was held that, though nothing was said about costs, full compensation naturally included the costs of applying to the justices (Huddersfield Corporation v. Shaw (1890), 54 J. P. 724).

BYELAWS.

* * * * *

183. Any local authority may, by any byelaws made by them under this Act, impose on offenders against the same such reasonable penalties as they think fit, not exceeding the sum of five pounds for each offence, and in the case of a continuing offence (a) a further penalty not exceeding forty shillings for each day after written notice of the offence from the local authority; but all such byelaws imposing any penalty

Section 183. shall be so framed as to allow of the recovery of any sum less than the full amount of the penalty (b).

Nothing in the provisions of any Act incorporated herewith shall authorise the imposition or recovery under any byelaw made in pursuance of such provisions of any greater penalty than the penalties in this section specified.

This and the three following sections have been applied to byelaws made by a parish council under s. 8 (1) (d) of the L. G. A., 1894, post, p. 4896.

The section is, however, repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346 (1), Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any Act directed to be construed herewith. For general notes, see ante, pp. 1113—15.

Confirmation of byelaws.

184. Byelaws made by a local authority under this Act shall not take effect unless and until they have been submitted to and confirmed by the Local Government Board . . . (a).

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346 (1), Sched. III., Pt. I. As to regulations
of local
authority.

188. The provisions of this Act relating to byelaws shall not apply to any regulations which a local authority is by this Act authorised to make; nevertheless, any local authority may cause any regulations made by them under this Act to be published in such manner as they see fit.

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346 (1), Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any Act directed to be construed herewith. Regulations are not now made under any of the sections of this Act, but are under some of the amending Acts, e.g., the P. H. A., 1890, s. 40, etc., post, p. 4815. Some regulations, however, require the approval of the M. of H. The Departmental Committee on Building Byelaws (see "Local Government, 1917-1918," p. 155), recommended that regulations as distinct from byelaws should be abolished in matters within their terms of reference.

PART VI.

RATING AND BORROWING POWERS, ETC.

* * * * *

Private Improvement Rate (a).

Power to make private improvement
rates.

213. Whenever an urban authority (b) have incurred (c) or become liable to any expenses which by this Act are or by such authority may be declared to be private improvement expenses, such authority may, if they think fit, make and levy on the occupier of the premises in respect of which the expenses have been incurred (d), in addition to all other rates, a rate or rates to be called private improvement rates, of such amount as will be sufficient to discharge such expenses, together with interest thereon at a rate not exceeding five pounds per centum (dd) per annum, in such period not exceeding thirty years as the urban authority may in each case determine (e).

Provided that whenever any premises in respect of which any private improvement rate is made become unoccupied before the expiration of the period for which the rate was made, or before the same is fully paid off, such rate shall become a charge on and be paid by the owner (f) for the time being of the premises so long as the same continue to be unoccupied.

This section is repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

(a) The sections under which expenses may be declared to be private improvement expenses are s. 150 of this Act, some sections of the P. H. A., 1890, and the Private Street Works Act, 1892, s. 12. See s. 240, post, p. 4478, as to rent-charges in respect of advances made for private improvements.

What expenses included.

A rate made under the text is not a rate from which "agricultural land and buildings" are exempted by s. 67 of the L. G. A., 1929, post since it is not a rate within the definition in s. 68 of the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, p. 2229.

(c) Apparently the authority must either pay the expenses out of the funds raised by the general rates (as to which see the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, p. 2113), or borrow the sum required under Pt. IX. of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1023. See notes to s. 150, ante, p. 4389, as to the practice of the M. of H. in regard to borrowing for such purposes. See also s. 240, post, p. 4478, which provides a mode of securing repayment to the lender by means of a rent-charge to issue out of the premises.

How expenses to be paid in first instance.

(d) These words seem to imply that the expenses in question have been ascertained in respect of each separate premises as by apportionment. See the note on the subject, ante, p. 4417.

Expenses must be ascertained.

(dd) The rate of interest payable under this section is to be 5 per cent. or such other rate as the Minister may from time to time by order fix (s. 77, P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post). As from April 1st, 1934, the rate of interest was fixed at 4 per cent. (see M. of H. (Rate of Interest on Private Improvement Expenses) Order, 1934 (S. R. & O., 1934, No. 274).

(f) See note (i) to s. 346 (1) of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, pp. 721 et seq.

214. Where the occupier by whom any private improvement rate is paid holds the premises in respect of which the rate is made at a rent not less than the rack-rent (a), he shall be entitled (b) to deduct three-fourths of the amount paid by him on account of such rate from the rent payable by him to his landlord, and if he hold at a rent less than the rack-rent he shall be entitled to deduct from the rent so payable by him such proportion of three-fourths of the rate as his rent bears to the rack-rent; and if the landlord from whose rent any deduction is so made is himself liable to the payment of rent for the premises in respect of which the deduction is made, and holds the same for a term of which less than twenty years is unexpired (but not otherwise), he may deduct from the rent so payable by him such proportion of the sum

Proportion of private improvement rate may be deducted from rent.

Section 214. deducted from the rent payable to him as the rent payable by him bears to the rent payable to him, and so in succession with respect to every landlord (holding for a term of which less than twenty years is unexpired) of the same premises both receiving and liable to pay rent in respect thereof (c).

Provided that nothing in this section shall be construed to entitle any person to deduct from the rent payable by him more than the whole sum deducted from the rent payable to him (d).

This section is repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

(a) See the definition in s. 4, ante, p. 4335.

Extent of right to deduct.

(b) As to the extent of the right to deduct, see note on pp. 722, 723, ante.

Mesne landlord.

(c) See the definition of "owner" in s. 4, ante, p. 4335. Thus, the rent received by the owner being £100, and the rent paid by him being £20, if the sum deducted by the tenant be £10, the landlord may deduct £2 from the rent paid to the owner in fee.

(d) This might possibly occur if a person who held lands at a certain rent were to grant an underlease at a lower rent for a heavy fine or other consideration.

Redemption of private improvement rates.

215. At any time before the expiration of the period for which any private improvement rate is made, the owner or occupier of the premises assessed thereto may redeem the same, by paying to the urban authority the expenses in respect of which the rate was made (a), or such part thereof as may not have been defrayed by sums already levied in respect of the same :

Provided that money paid in redemption of any private improvement rate shall not be applied by the urban authority otherwise than in defraying expenses incurred by them in works of private improvement or in discharging the principal of any moneys borrowed by them to meet those expenses, whether by means of a sinking fund or otherwise (b).

This section is repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

(a) These words appear to assume that the amount of the expenses has already been ascertained, e.g., by apportionment. See the note on this subject, ante, p. 4417.

(b) Quære, what is to be done with the payment if no further works of private improvement are required, and no money has been borrowed, or if the loan has been discharged ?

General Provisions as to Urban Rates.

Estimate to be prepared before making rates.

218. Every urban authority, before proceeding to make a general district rate or private improvement rate under this Act, shall cause an estimate to be prepared of the money required for the purposes in respect of which the rate is to be made, showing—

The several sums required for each of such purposes ; and

The rateable value of the property assessable ; and

The amount of rate which for those purposes it is necessary to make on each pound of such value ; and the estimate so made shall forthwith, after being approved of by the urban authority, be entered in the rate book, and be kept at their office, open to public inspection during office hours thereat; but it shall not be deemed part of the rate, nor in any respect affect the validity of the same. Section 218.

The words in italics were repealed by s. 69, and Sched. VIII. of the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, pp. 2233, 2265, as from the date of the first new valuation (R. and V. A. (Repeals, etc.) Order, 1927). The section became therefore operative only as regards private improvement rates. It is now repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

Under the R. and V. A., 1925, a duty is cast upon the rating authority to make such rates as will be sufficient to meet the total estimated expenditure for the period of the rate (s. 12, ibid., ante, p. 2151).

A private improvement rate is unlike other rates in that it is not a rate of a certain amount in the pound levied equally upon the rateable value of all premises liable to the rate. Before a private improvement rate can be levied the amount payable in respect of each of the premises to be charged must be ascertained and the amount of the rate leviable in respect of each of these premises will be such amount as will be sufficient to discharge such expenses, together with interest in such period not exceeding thirty years as the authority determines (s. 213, ante, p. 4468). Moreover, any owner or occupier of premises chargeable may redeem the rate at any time by paying the amount remaining due in respect of the premises (s. 215, ante, p. 4470). It is therefore unnecessary for the purpose of levying the rate to consider the rateable value of the premises or the amount in the pound of the rate which may vary as to every one of the separate premises charged. In the case of agricultural lands and buildings which have no rateable value, and in valuation lists subsequent to the first will not be mentioned (s. 67, L. G. A., 1929, post), but which will still be liable to private improvement rates since they are not included in the definition of "rates" in s. 68, R. and V. A., 1925, ante, p. 2229, it is difficult to see how a local authority can comply with the provisions of this section.

It is submitted that since the section now only applies to private improvement rates, the section will be sufficiently complied with by inserting in the estimate those particulars which will enable the persons liable to ascertain the extent and basis of their liability, viz. the premises in respect of which the rate is levied, the total amount payable in respect of each of those premises, and the amount to be assessed upon each of those premises for each period of the rate. It would be desirable that the estimate should also recite the authority under which the expenses were incurred and the resolution of the authority to demand payment by way of a private improvement rate.

The section expressly provides that the estimate shall not affect the validity of the rate.

The proper mode of carrying this provision into effect appears to be to enter the estimate in a page of the book preceding the rate.

Though the estimate will not affect its validity, it must not be considered that a rate will be valid if made for purposes which are illegal, and which may be shown in the estimate. See Smith v. Southampton Corporation, [1902] 2 K. B. 244; 67 J. P. 5; 33 Digest 88, 580.

See R. v. Marris and other cases cited ante, at p. 2154.

219. Any person interested in or assessed to any rate made under this Act may inspect the same, and any estimate (a) made previously thereto, and may take copies of or extracts therefrom without fee or reward; any person who, having the custody of any such estimate or rate, refuses to allow or does not permit such inspection, or such copies or extracts to be taken, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds (b). Rates to be open to inspection.

Section 219.

This section was repealed except in so far as it relates to private improvement rates (s. 69, and Sched. VIII. of the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, pp. 2233, 2265), as from April 1st, 1927 (the R. and V. A. (Repeals, etc.) Order, 1927) and, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith, by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728. As to the inspection of rate books under the R. and V. A., 1925, see s. 60, ibid., ante, p. 2220.

(a) This is an additional inspection to that provided for in the preceding section. On this occasion copies or extracts may be taken, but no such provision is made in respect of the previous inspection. Moreover, refusal of inspection in this case, subjects the officer to a penalty recoverable on summary conviction. No such summary remedy is given in the previous case. Cf. Davies v. Gas Light and Coke Co., [1909] 1 Ch. 708; 13 Digest 304, 364, as to a shareholder's statutory right to copies of certain books of a company.

(b) See s. 251, post, p. 4481, as to the recovery of this penalty.

Description of owner or occupier in
rates.

220. Where the name of any owner or occupier liable to be rated under this Act is not known to the urban authority it shall be sufficient to assess and designate him in the rate as "the owner" or "the occupier" of the premises in respect of which the assessment is made, without further description.

This section was repealed except in so far as it relates to private improvement rates by s. 69 and Sched. VIII. of the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, pp. 2233, 2265, as from April 1st, 1927 (the R. and V. A. (Repeals, etc.) Order, 1927) and, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith, by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728.

It is most desirable that the utmost pains should be taken to ascertain the respective names of the owner or occupier. Much practical difficulty attends all proceedings when the name of the party proceeded against is not stated. Moreover, if it can be shown that the name was known to the authority, it may perhaps be held that the use of the term owner or occupier is not justified. Again, it may well be questioned whether, although these words are used, the assessment will be available against an owner or occupier who may succeed to the premises. See notes to P. H. A., 1936, s. 285, ante, p. 577.

Rates may be amended.

221. An urban authority may from time to time amend any rate made in pursuance of this Act by inserting therein the name of any person claiming and entitled to have his name inserted, or by inserting the name of any person who ought to have been assessed (a), or by striking out the name of any person who ought not to have been assessed, or by raising or reducing the sum at which any person has been assessed, if it appears to the urban authority that he has been under-rated or over-rated (b), or by making any other alteration which will make the rate conformable to the provisions of this Act; and no such amendment shall be held to avoid the rate.

Provided, that any person who may feel himself aggrieved by any such amendment shall have the same right of appeal therefrom as he would have had if the matter of amendment had appeared on the rate originally made (c), and with respect to him an amended rate shall be considered to have been made at the time when he first received notice (d) of the amendment; and an amended rate shall not be payable by any person the amount of whose rate is increased by the amendment, or whose name is thereby newly inserted until seven days (e) after such Section 221. notice has been given to him. —

This section was repealed except in so far as it relates to private improvement rates by s. 69, and Sched. VIII. of the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, pp. 2233, 2265, as from the date of the first new valuation (the R. and V. A. (Repeals, etc.) Order, 1927) and, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or in any Act directed to be construed herewith, by s. 346, and Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, pp. 720, 729.

As to the amendment of rates under the R. and V. A., 1925, see s. 5, ibid., ante, p. 2128, as amended by s. 4 (1) of the R. and V. A., 1928, ante, p. 2269.

(a) E.g. where there has been a change of occupation or ownership.

(b) An under-rating or over-rating may arise out of an error in computation.

(c) See s. 269, post, p. 4499. Doubtless a ratepayer may appeal against the reduction of another person's rate on this amendment, if he can find it out.

(d) As to the authentication and service of this notice, see ss. 266, 267, post, pp. 4494, 4495.

(e) The days will be one inclusive and one exclusive.

222. All rates made or collected under this Act shall be published in the same manner as poor rates (a), and shall commence and be payable at such time or times (b), and shall be made in such manner and form (c), and be collected by such persons, and either together or separately, or with any other rate (d) or tax, as the urban authority may from time to time appoint: Provided that no publication shall be required of any private improvement rate (e). Publication and collection of rates.

This section was repealed except in so far as it relates to private improvement rates by s. 69 and Sched. VIII. of the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, pp. 2233, 2265, as from April 1st, 1927 (the R. and V. A. (Repeals, etc.) Order, 1927) and, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or in any enactment directed to be construed herewith, by s. 346 and Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, pp. 720, 728.

(a) The provision as to publication does not apply to private improvement rates, Publication. see the proviso to the section.

(b) This enables the authority to make a rate payable by instalments. Instalments.

If the council wish that the rate should be collected by instalments, they should give formal directions under s. 222 to that effect and fix the times of payment of the instalments. It is not clear that where a rate is not duly made payable by instalments, the council may in any case in which part payment of a rate is tendered allow the payment of an instalment to be accepted, but there would seem to be no practical objection. The council, of course, would be responsible for securing that the due collection of the rate was not prejudiced by any arrangements made.

If no time is fixed by the authority under the section as the date at which such a rate is payable, it would seem that the rate is payable on demand. See also s. 256, post, p. 4484.

As regards a water rate, reference must be made to the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, s. 70, ante, p. 4198, which prescribes payment at the usual quarter days.

(c) Though the form may be prescribed by the authority, it is submitted that Form. this provision does not authorise the omission of any material part such as the usual heading, as to which see R. v. Wilkinson (1886), 2 T. L. R. 869.

(d) The private improvement rate will usually be collected with the general rate.

As to recovery of rates generally, see s. 256, post, p. 4484.

(e) See s. 213, ante, p. 4468. This rate is merely a reimbursement of expenses incurred for the benefit of a property owner of which he has had ample notice.

223. The production of the books purporting to contain any rate or Evidence assessment made under this Act shall, without any other evidence of rates.

Section 223. whatever, be received as prima facie evidence of the making and validity of the rates mentioned therein.

This section was repealed except in so far as it relates to private improvement rates by s. 60 and Sched. VIII. of the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, pp. 2233, 2265, as from date of the first new valuation (The R. and V. A. (Repeals, etc.) Order, 1927) and, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith, by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346 and Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728.

Section 262, post, p. 4492, provides that no rate shall be vacated for want of form; but if the rate show on the face of it that it is defective in substance (as if there be no estimate, or if it appear to be made for illegal purposes), it is presumed that the objection may nevertheless be taken to it with success. Hence, it is incumbent upon authorities to prepare rates with proper attention and care. The text only makes the production prima facie evidence of the rate's validity.

Power to reduce or remit rates.

225. An urban authority may reduce or remit the payment of any rate on account of the poverty of any person liable to the payment thereof.

This section was repealed except in so far as it relates to private improvement rates by s. 69 and Sched. VIII. of the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, pp. 2233, 2265, as from date of the first new valuation (The R. and V. A. (Repeals, etc.) Order, 1927) and, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith, by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346 and Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728.

A similar power in relation to general and special rates is given by s. 2 (4) of the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, p. 2121.

Saving for existing agreements

226. Nothing in this part of this Act shall alter or affect any lease contract or agreement made or entered into between the landlord and tenant of any premises.

This section was repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346 and Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

Covenants
to pay
rates.

A person who agrees to take a lease at a "net annual rent of £—," cannot object that the lease contains a covenant for him to pay the sewers rates (Bennett v. Womack (1828), 7 B. & C. 627; 31 Digest 116, 2493).

By an agreement marsh lands were demised subject to a condition that the tenant should pay all outgoings, rates, taxes, costs, etc., whether parochial or parliamentary, which were and might be chargeable on the lands. An assessment was made by commissioners of sewers for the permanent benefit of the lands, in certain proportions upon the owners and occupiers. For four years the tenant paid in the first instance both his own share and that of his landlord, and upon each half-year's settlement of account with the landlord's agent, who was ignorant of the terms of the agreement, the sum so paid was allowed towards the rent, and receipts were given for the balance:—Held, in an action brought upon the agreement to recover the sums so allowed as arrears of rent, that the facts supported a plea of payment of the rent (Waller v. Andrews (1838), 3 M. & W. 312; 2 J. P. 84; 31 Digest 304, 4484). If a tenant voluntarily pays taxes which he alleges ought to have been paid by the landlord and afterwards pays rent without deduction, he cannot recover the amount against the landlord (Saunderson v. Hanson (1828), 3 C. & P. 314; 31 Digest 293, 4392; and see Andrew v. Hancock (1819), 1 Brod. & Bing. 37; 3 Moore, C. P. 278; 31 Digest 293, 4390; Fuller v. Abbott (1811), 4 Taunt. 105; 31 Digest 298, 4430, and cases collected in note ante, p. 723). To entitle a tenant to deduct from his rent a payment which he is entitled to deduct under a statute, the money must have been actually paid (Ryan v. Thompson (1868), L. R. 3 C. P. 144; 32 J. P. 135; 31 Digest 306, 4506). In Reigate Corporation v. Wilkinson (1919), 84 J. P. 17; 18 L. G. R. 353; 38 Digest 633, 1524, the tenants had paid the rates to the landlord as part of the rent, and the landlord had requested the authority to send the claims for the rates to him, but the authority had not exercised their option under s. 211 (1) (a) (now repealed, but see s. 11 of the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, p. 2142), to charge the owner direct. It was held that the defendant was liable, as by the correspondence he had agreed to discharge the rates if the authority withheld application to the tenants.

Section 226.

As to the rating of mines, and the right to deduct one-half of the rates under the Rating Act, 1874, s. 8 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 589), see Devonshire (Duke of) v. Barrow Haematite Steel Co. (1877), 2 Q. B. D. 286; 38 Digest 477, 365; Chaloner v. Bolckow (1878), 3 App. Cas. 933; 42 J. P. 756; 38 Digest 477, 366.

A. demised land to B. upon a building lease, at a yearly rent of £60 clear of all rates and assessments, sewers rates and land tax excepted, with the usual covenant for payment of rent. B. by building on the land increased its rateable value to £300 per annum:—Held, that he was only entitled to deduct the sewers rate and land tax upon the original rent, and not upon the improved value (Smith v. Humble (1854), 15 C. B. 321; 18 J. P. 760; 31 Digest 296, 4413; and see Watson v. Atkins (1820), 3 B. & Ald. 647; 31 Digest 296, 4411; Graham v. Wade (1812), 16 East, 29; 31 Digest 296, 4410; Watson v. Home (1827), 7 B. & C. 285; 31 Digest 296, 4412). Watson v. Home, and Smith v. Humble, supra, were followed by the Court of Appeal in Mansfield v. Relf, [1908] 1 K. B. 71; 71 J. P. 556; 31 Digest 296, 4414. See all these three cases distinguished in Salaman v. Holford, [1909] 2 Ch. 602; 31 Digest 296, 4415. When a lessee covenanted that he would pay all taxes, charges, rates, tithes, etc., which then were or should at any time thereafter during that demise be taxed, charged, assessed, or imposed upon the said demised premises:—Held, that the covenant was not confined to rates payable by the landlord, but meant all rates then imposed on the lessee in respect of his occupation, and all future rates which might be imposed on the land itself (Hurst v. Hurst (1849), 4 Exch. 571; 31 Digest 294, 4398); and as to inhabited house duty, see Eastwood v. McNab, [1914] 2 K. B. 361; 31 Digest 298, 4426.

A landlord, liable with others to repair a bridge ratione tenuræ, demised the land, and the lessee covenanted to pay the rent, clear of land tax and all other to bridge taxes and deductions whatsoever, either parliamentary or parochial, taxed or repairs imposed, or to be taxed or imposed, upon the premises, or upon the lessor in respect thereof, property tax excepted. By statute, reciting the liability ratione tenuræ and that part of the bridge was out of repair, it was enacted that the landowners liable as above should repair such part during the continuance of the Act; and on their default road trustees were empowered to do the repairs and recover against the owners. A power of distress under a justices' warrant was given to enforce payment, and for raising the sums required power was given to the landowners to call meetings, and to make rates according to the value of the chargeable lands, such rates to be levied, if necessary, by distress. A subsequent Act, also reciting the liability, made further provision as to holding meetings, and levying rates:—Held, that the original liability for contribution to repairs did not, by these enactments, become a parliamentary tax or deduction within the lessee's covenant, and, therefore (the court finding no clause in the statutes which extended the ultimate liability to lessees and occupiers as well as owners) that the lessee having been compelled, in the lessor's default, to pay a rate made as above and charged upon him as lessee and occupier, might recover the amount from the lessor (Baker v. Greenhill (1842), 3 Q. B. 148; 11 L. J. Q. B. 161; 31 Digest 295, 4407).

A sewer rate is not a "parliamentary tax" within the meaning of a covenant to pay such taxes (Brewster v. Kitchel (1697), 2 Salk. 615; 31 Digest 297, 4421; Palmer v. Earith (1845), 14 M. & W. 428; 9 J. P. 842; 31 Digest 295, 4408). See also Earl of Cork v. Cork C. C., [1903] 2 I. R. 490. Sewer rate.

A tenant from year to year agreed to pay all outgoing. In the course of the Drainage tenancy a new drainage rate was imposed by a local Act, to be paid by the tenant, rate under who might deduct it from the rent in the absence of any agreement to the contrary. local Act. It was held that the tenant could deduct it, for his agreement did not apply to such new rate, but that the current rate could only be deducted from the current rent, and past payments could not be deducted (Vestry of Mile End Old Town v. Whitty (1898), 78 L. T. 80; 31 Digest 304, 4482).

Note to
Section 226.

Water rate.

In a lease of a shop, basement and three rooms on the third floor of a house, the lessor covenanted to pay "all rates and taxes chargeable in respect of the demised premises." Water was supplied separately by a water company to the shop and basement, and was paid for by the tenant. It was held that he was entitled to recover from the lessor the sum so paid, as being a "rate" within the meaning of the covenant (Spanish Telegraph Co., Ltd. v. Shepherd (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 202; 48 J. P. 440; 31 Digest 295, 4402). This decision was discussed in Badcock v. Hunt (1888), 22 Q. B. D. 145; 53 J. P. 340; 31 Digest 303, 4470, where, by a covenant in a lease of a warehouse, the lessor covenanted to pay all rates, taxes, and impositions whatsoever, whether parliamentary, parochial, or imposed by the corporation of London, or otherwise howsoever, which then were or thereafter might be rated, charged, or assessed on the said premises, or any part thereof, or on the said yearly rent, or on the landlord, owner, or tenants of the said premises in respect thereof. Water having been supplied to the premises for domestic purposes by the New River Company under the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, ante, p. 4176, the lessees paid the water rates due therefor and sought to recover them from the lessor:—Held, that such water rates were not rates or impositions imposed on or in respect of the premises within the meaning of the covenant, and that the lessees were not entitled to recover the same from the lessor. It was again discussed, and followed with reluctance by BUCKLEY, J., in a case where in a lease of the whole of the basement and a portion of the ground floor of a block of buildings, the lessors covenanted to pay "all rates and taxes payable in respect of the said demised premises," and water was supplied for domestic purposes by a water board to the whole block by a common pipe (see Bourn and Tant v. Salmon and Gluckstein, Ltd. (1906), 70 J. P. 462, affirmed on appeal ([1907] 1 Ch. 616; 71 J. P. 329; 31 Digest 295, 4404) on the ground of the particular circumstances of the case, and on the ground that the case was indistinguishable from Spanish Telegraph Co., Ltd. v. Shepherd, supra). In Elliott v. Russell, [1902] 2 K. B. 748; 67 J. P. 158; 43 Digest 1065, 52, a Divisional Court held that a rent for water supplied under agreement made under s. 56 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 649) (now replaced by s. 126 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 377), was a "rate made under this Act" within the meaning of s. 256, post, p. 4484. In Northampton Corporation v. Ellen, [1904] 1 K. B. 299; 68 J. P. 197; 43 Digest 1091, 227, the Court of Appeal held that a water rate was not a "rate" within the meaning of an order extending the boundaries of the borough, Article 36 whereof provided that the general district rate to be levied in the added part should not in any one year during a period of ten years exceed such an amount in the pound as, "when added to the poor rate and to the borough rate and any other rate made by the corporation" in the same year, would make up a total rate of 5s. 6d. in the pound.

Cost of water
purposes.

Under a covenant by a lessor to pay all water rates imposed or assessed upon the premises or on the lessor or lessee in respect thereof, the lessor is not bound to pay for water supplied to the lessee for trade purposes (Re Floyd, Floyd v. Lyons & Co., [1897] 1 Ch. 633; 31 Digest 297, 4417); so too a lessor's covenant in the case of a lock-up shop to pay all rates and taxes except gas and electric light was held to include water rate for water supplied for domestic purposes, but not the rate for water supplied for trade purposes (Drieselman v. Winstanley (1909), 53 Sol. J. 631; 31 Digest 295, 4405).

rates to be paid by the universities,
etc.

228. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to alter or interfere with any liability existing at the time of the passing of this Act of the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge respectively to contribute towards the expenses of paving and pitching repairing lighting and cleansing, under the powers of any local Act under which the Oxford and Cambridge commissioners respectively act, the several streets and places within the jurisdiction of such commissioners respectively.

If any difference arises between either of the said universities and the urban authority with respect to the proportion and manner in which the university shall contribute towards any expenses under this Act, and to which the university is not liable under any such local Act, the same shall be settled by arbitration in manner provided by this Act (a). Section 228.

All rates, contributions, and sums of money which may become payable under this Act by the said universities respectively, and their respective halls and colleges, may be recovered from such universities halls and colleges in the same manner in all respects as rates contributions and sums of money may now be recovered from them by virtue of any such local Act.

(a) See s. 179, ante, p. 4461. The Commissioners of Oxford and Cambridge have now been superseded by the respective corporations.

232. Whenever a rural authority have incurred or become liable to any expenses which by this Act are, or by such authority may be declared to be private improvement expenses, such authority may make and levy a private improvement rate in the same manner as private improvement rates may be made and levied by an urban authority; and all the provisions of this Act applicable to private improvement rates leviable by an urban authority shall apply accordingly to any private improvement rate leviable by a rural authority. As to private improvement expenses.

This section is repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

See ss. 213–215, ante, pp. 4468–70. And see also the last paragraph of s. 234, infra. A private improvement rate is not a rate in respect of which “agricultural land and buildings” are exempted by s. 67 of L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury’s Statutes 927, since it is not a “rate” within the definition in s. 68 of the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, p. 2229.

BORROWING POWERS.

234. . . .

Where any urban authority borrow any money for the purpose of defraying private improvement expenses (a), or expenses in respect of which they have determined a part only of the district to be liable (b) it shall be the duty of such authority, as between the ratepayers of the district, to make good, so far as they can (c), the money so borrowed, as occasion requires, either out of private improvement rates, or out of a rate levied in such part of the district as aforesaid. Regulations as to exercise of borrowing powers.

The earlier part of this section was repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. I., ante, pp. 1194, 1273; and the whole section was repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

(a) See s. 213, ante, p. 4468. The text appears to assume that the authority will borrow money and charge it upon their general rate, though it is only required for special application, and this practice is in fact common. Most loans raised for private improvements are in respect of the making up of new streets. The Ministry now expenses.

Note to Section 234. allow a term of ten years for repayment if desired on the understanding that a similar period is allowed to frontagers for repayment of the cost.

(b) See s. 11 (2) of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 16.

(c) This is an indefinite provision. It is doubtful whether any legal obligation can arise out of it.

Rent-charge may be granted in respect of advances made for private improvements.

240. Where any person has advanced money for any expenses which by this Act are, or by the local authority may be declared to be private improvement expenses (a), the local authority, on being satisfied by the report of their surveyor or otherwise that the money advanced by such person has been duly expended, may issue a grant in the form in Schedule IV. to this Act (b) to such person of a yearly rent-charge issuable out of the premises (c), in respect whereof such advance has been made, or out of such part thereof, to be specified in such grant, as the local authority may think proper and sufficient.

Such rent-charge shall be personal estate (d), and shall begin to accrue from the day of completion of the works on which the money advanced has been expended, and shall be payable by equal half-yearly payments during a term not exceeding thirty years (e), in such manner that the whole of the sum advanced, with the costs of preparing the said grant, together with interest thereon respectively, at a rate not exceeding six pounds per centum per annum on the sum from time to time remaining unpaid, shall be repaid at the end of the said term.

The provisions of this Act with respect to deduction from the rent of a proportion of private improvement rates (f), and with respect to redemption of private improvement rates (g), shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to rent-charges granted under this section.

(a) See s. 213, ante, p. 4468.

See note as to rent-charges, ante, p. 613.

A similar provision to this section is contained in the Housing Act, 1936, s. 20, ante, p. 1622.

(b) See Sched. IV., Form K., post, p. 4525. It is not now free from stamp duty; see P. H. A., 1848, s. 151; P. H. A., 1872, s. 42.

(c) See note as to "Premises" in P. H. A., 1936, s. 295, ante, p. 614.

(d) This provision affects the devolution of the property in the case of intestacy. See the observations of the judges in Bligh v. Brent (1837), 2 Y. & C. Ex. 268; per WOOD, V.-C., in Hayter v. Tucker (1858), 4 Kay & J., at p. 248; 23 J. P., at p. 20; Thompson v. Thompson (1844), 1 Coll. 381; Robinson v. Addison (1840), 2 Beav. 515. See also the cases referred to in the notes to s. 310 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 658.

(e) It is somewhat uncertain when the rent is to commence, and the form in the schedule does not help further than to determine when the first payment shall be made.

(f) See s. 214, ante, p. 4469.

(g) See s. 215, ante, p. 4470.

Rent-charges to be registered.

241. Rent-charges issued in pursuance of this Act, and transfers thereof, shall be registered in the same manner respectively as mortgages and transfers are required to be registered under the provisions of this Act.

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

Note to
Section 241.

See s. 207 (2) of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1042, as to the default of registration with reference to other charges, and see In re Wynn Hall Coal Co. (1870), L. R. 10 Eq. 515; 10 Digest 946, 6479. See, however, the provisions of the Land Charges Act, 1925, referred to in note on p. 613, ante.

242. The Public Works Loan Commissioners may, if they see fit, on the application of any local authority, make any loan to such authority for any of the purposes of this Act on the security of any fund or rate applicable to any of the purposes of this Act, without requiring any further or other security.

Power of Public Works
Loan Commissioners to lend to local
authority.

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

This section appears to contain a general power to the commissioners to lend money at such rate of interest as appears to them to be satisfactory. The next section enables them to do so at a specific low rate of interest, but under certain restrictions.

The statutes which now govern the advances by the commissioners are mentioned in note to L. G. A., 1933, s. 195, ante, p. 1024, and are (except in so far as they are repealed or relate only to local matters) set out herein. Attention may be particularly directed to the Public Works Loans Act, 1875, s. 50, ante, p. 4558, under which loans granted under the Public Health Acts are to be deemed loans under the Public Works Loans Acts.

As to the application of balances of loans advanced by the commissioners to purposes other than those originally intended, see the Public Works Loans Act, 1881, s. 9, post, p. 4621. It is the practice of the M. of H., when the final payments have been made by a local authority out of a loan advanced by the commissioners and any balance remains, to request that such balance should, in accordance with the provisions of the Public Works Loans Act, 1878, s. 4, post, p. 4602, be remitted as soon as practicable to the commissioners to be applied by them to the reduction of the debt.

243. The Public Works Loan Commissioners may, on the application of any local authority and on the recommendation of the Local Government Board, make any loan to such authority in pursuance of any powers of borrowing conferred by this Act (a), whether for works already executed (b) or yet to be executed, on the security of any fund or rate (c) applicable to any of the purposes of this Act, and without requiring any further or other security, such loan to be repaid within a period not exceeding fifty years, and to bear interest . . . (d) :

Power of Public Works
Loan Commissioners to lend to local authority on recommendation of Local Government Board.

Provided—

(1) That in determining the time when a loan under this section shall be repayable, the Local Government Board shall have regard to the probable duration and continuing utility of the works in respect of which the same is required (e) :

(2) That this section shall not extend to any loan required for the purpose of defraying expenses incurred by the Local Government Board in the performance of the duty of a defaulting local authority after the passing of the Public Health Act, 1872 (f).

In the case of a loan made before the passing of the Public Health Act, 1872, to any local authority in pursuance of any powers conferred Section 243. by the Sanitary Acts, the Public Works Loan Commissioners may reduce the interest payable thereon to the rate of not less than three and a half per centum per annum (g).

This section is repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any Act directed to be construed herewith.

This section was largely affected by the Public Works Loans Act, 1898 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 299). In a Circular dated October 15th, 1898, explanatory of the Act, the Local Government Board stated as follows:—Section 11 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1875, post, p. 4548, provided that every loan granted by the Public Works Loan Commissioners under that Act should be repaid within a period from the date of the actual advance of such loan not exceeding the period authorised by the special Act relating to the loan, or, if no period was so authorised, not exceeding twenty years. In the latter case, however, the Treasury might, on the recommendation of the commissioners, stating special circumstances, extend the period of repayment. By s. 5 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1898 (op. cit.), thirty years are substituted for twenty in s. 11 of the Act of 1875. Hence, in the case of any sum borrowed by the council from the Public Works Loan Commissioners, the commissioners will be able to lend the money for a period not exceeding thirty years without any action on the part of the Treasury. No recommendation from the Board will be required in any such case; but a recommendation from them under s. 243 of the P. H. A., 1875, will still be necessary where the council propose to borrow from the commissioners for a longer period than thirty years for works executed under the Public Health Acts. Hence a recommendation from the Board will always be requisite, if the council purpose to borrow from the commissioners for these purposes, whatever may be the period within which the loan is to be repaid.

With reference to the italicised words of the circular, supra, note that the limit of "thirty years" has been extended to "fifty years" by the Public Works Loans Act, 1911, s. 4, post, p. 5119. It is understood that the commissioners are unwilling to lend money for the repayment of an existing loan.

The maximum fees chargeable by the Commissioners are fixed by Regulations under s. 41 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1875, post, p. 4557, the last issued being those dated August 30th, 1926, set out ante, p. 3189.

See notes to previous section as to the application of money derived from the Commissioners to purposes other than those originally proposed.

Local Act
loans.

(a) Note that this section does not apply to loans which are authorised by a local Act, though for purposes such as would be provided for by this Act. But the Public Works Loans Act, 1896, s. 2, post, p. 4940, enacts that there shall be added to the works for the purpose of which the Public Works Loan Commissioners may lend in Great Britain under the Public Works Loans Act, 1875, post, p. 4544, the following works, namely (inter alia), any work for which the council of a county, borough, district, or parish are authorised to borrow.

(b) These words are evidently used with reference not to the date of this Act, but to the time when the loan is applied for.

(c) The fund and rate here referred to are the general rate fund and general rate of the authority, and the special rate in the case of a rural authority. See also the next section.

interest.

(d) The provision which here followed as to the rate of interest was repealed by the Public Works Loans Act, 1897, s. 12 (4), post, p. 4943. The rates of interest vary from time to time, and are fixed by notices issued from the Treasury (see p. 3189, ante).

repayment.

(e) See note (i) to L. G. A., 1933, s. 195, ante, p. 1030, and note (c) to ibid., s. 198, ante, p. 1033, as to terms allowed for loans.

Default
expenses.

(f) It was not the practice of the L. G. B., nor is it of the M. of H., to undertake works in default of a local authority. The alternative procedure prescribed by s. 299, post, p. 4508, was adopted. But that section has now been repealed in so far as it applies to district councils and the procedure applicable in the case of defaulting district councils is now contained in s. 57 (3), L. G. A., 1929 (q.v. with notes thereto post, Vol. V.).

(g) The Public Works Loans Act, 1875, s. 33, post, p. 4541, provided that every sum payable in respect of a loan granted by the Loan Commissioners (either before or after the passing of that Act) or under the security for such loan, should be compounded for or released only under the authority of Parliament in each case. The amending Act of the following year, Public Works Loans (Money) Act, 1876, s. 6, post, p. 4562, after reciting that doubts had arisen whether the said enactment would prevent the reduction of interest in accordance with s. 243 of the P. H. A., 1875, provided that the commissioners might, on or before July 31st, 1876, if they thought it expedient, with the consent of the Treasury, reduce the interest payable on any loan made before the commencement of the Public Works Loans Act, 1875, to any rate not less than four per centum per annum: Provided always, that nothing in the Public Works Loans Act, 1875, should be deemed to take away or abridge the power of the commissioners under s. 243 of the P. H. A., 1875, to reduce, if they thought fit, any interest payable on any such loan to a local authority as in that section mentioned.

The Public Works Loans Act, 1875, s. 36, post, p. 4556, required the L. G. B. to satisfy themselves that the money advanced by the commissioners is duly applied to the purpose of the loans—a duty now performed by the M. of H. Ibid., s. 37, post, p. 4556, empowers the Treasury to postpone for periods, not exceeding five years, the payment of the instalments of principal and interest, due on loans from the Public Works Loan Commissioners. See also s. 4 of the Local Authorities (Financial Provisions) Act, 1921 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 1345), as to the postponement for a maximum period of five years of the annual provision for repayment of loans on revenue-producing undertakings.

PART VII.

LEGAL PROCEEDINGS.

Prosecution of Offences and Recovery of Penalties, etc.

251. All offences under this Act, and all penalties forfeitures costs and expenses under this Act directed to be recovered in a summary manner, or the recovery of which is not otherwise provided for (a), may be prosecuted and recovered in manner directed by the Summary Jurisdiction Acts before a court of summary jurisdiction (b). The court of summary jurisdiction, when hearing and determining an information or complaint under this Act, shall be constituted of two or more justices of the peace in petty sessions, sitting at a place appointed for holding petty sessions (c), or of some magistrate or officer for the time being empowered by law to do alone any act authorised to be done by more than one justice of the peace sitting at some court or other place appointed for the administration of justice (d).

Summary proceedings for offences, penalties, etc.

This section is repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or in any Act directed to be construed herewith.

(a) See L. G. A., 1933, s. 120 (3), ante, p. 908, as to proceedings against officers in default, and s. 256, post, p. 4484, as to the recovery of rates made under this Act, i.e., private improvement rates. As to the recovery of general rates, see R. and V. A., 1925, s. 2 (3), ante, p. 2119, and notes thereto.

Note to Section 251.

No action for money recoverable
summarily.

A local authority sued ratepayers for services rendered by a fire brigade on two days. On the first day the brigade were employed in pumping water to prevent a fire. On the second day certain men of the brigade were retained, at the defendants' request, to be on hand during the removal of debris, but it was found as a fact that there was very small, if any, risk of fire breaking out on this day. It was held that the defendants were bound to pay for the employment of the men on the second day, and that the sum due was not a "cost or expense under this Act" but was recoverable by action (Grays U. D. C. v. Grays Chemical Works, Ltd., [1918] 2 K. B. 461; 82 J. P. 207; 38 Digest 226, 575).

(b) See the definition of those terms in s. 4, ante, p. 4345. The Summary Jurisdiction Acts are dealt with in detail in the notes to s. 296 of P. H. A., 1936, ante, pp. 614-621.

As the statute has provided this summary remedy for the recovery of the sums adjudged and penalties, an action for such sums and penalties will not be maintainable. See St. Pancras (Vestry of) v. Batterbury (1857), 2 C. B. (N. S.) 477; 21 J. P. 424; 26 Digest 499, 2071; Blackburn Corporation v. Parkinson (1858), 23 J. P. 262; 28 L. J. M. C. 7; 26 Digest 551, 2477; Lamplugh v. Norton (1889), 22 Q. B. D. 452; 53 J. P. 389; 42 Digest 615, 148; G. W. Rail. Co. v. Sharman (1892), 61 L. J. Q. B. 600; 40 W. R. 643; 42 Digest 749, 1731. In the first of these cases it was laid down that when a pecuniary obligation is created by a statute, and a remedy expressly given for enforcing it, that remedy must be adopted. There is no right to come into the High Court for a declaration that the applicant has a right to recover in a court of summary jurisdiction; he can only proceed in the latter court (Barraclough v. Brown, [1897] A. C. 615; 62 J. P. 275; 42 Digest 748, 1726). Compare, however, Barwick v. S. E. and Chatham Rail. Co., [1921] 1 K. B. 187; 85 J. P. 65; 44 Digest 70, 509, where it was held that in very special circumstances a declaration may be made, and see Simmonds v. Newport Abercarn Black Vein Steam Coal Co., [1921] 1 K. B. 616; 85 J. P. 109; 30 Digest 149, 228. In some cases the remedy in the civil courts is expressly reserved; for example, s. 261, post, p. 4491, gives an alternative remedy in the county courts for demands under £50; and on the application of the Attorney-General the court has jurisdiction to grant an injunction as an additional or alternative remedy (Att.-Gen. v. Sharp, [1931] 1 Ch. 121; 94 J. P. 234; Digest Supp.; Att.-Gen. v. Premier Line, Ltd., [1932] 1 Ch. 303; Digest Supp.).

It may here be mentioned that any information, complaint, warrant, or summons issued for the purpose of the Public Health Acts may contain in the body thereof or in a schedule thereto several sums (cf. P. H. A. Amendment Act, 1890, s. 8, post, p. 4805). See also R. v. Glover, Ex parte Hornsey U. D. C. (1900), 35 L. J. News, 269.

Under the Revenue Act, 1898, s. 8 (16 Halsbury's Statutes 706), receipts given by or on behalf of a clerk to justices or a magistrate for money received in respect of a fine need not be stamped.

(c) Consequently the court will be a petty sessional court, as defined by the S. J. A., 1879, s. 20 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 331). The same section requires the justices to sit in open court.

(d) These words include stipendiary magistrates, who are empowered by statute to do alone whatever is authorised by the Summary Jurisdiction Acts to be done by one or more justices. See Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1848, s. 33 (op. cit. 290); Stipendiary Magistrates Act, 1858 (op. cit. 304); Stipendiary Magistrates Act, 1869 (op. cit. 316).

As to jurisdiction of a county justice, see note, ante, p. 615.

Restriction on recovery of penalties.

253. Proceedings for the recovery of any penalty under this Act shall not, except as in this Act is expressly provided (a), be had or taken by any person other than by a party aggrieved (b), or by the local authority of the district in which the offence is committed, without the consent in writing of the Attorney-General (c): Provided, that such consent shall not be required to proceedings which are by the provisions of this Act relating to nuisances or offensive trades authorised to be taken by a local authority in respect of any act or default committed or taking place without their district, or in respect of any house building manufactory or place situated without their district (d).

This section was repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any Act directed to be construed herewith. Note to Section 253.

(a) In Fletcher v. Hudson (1880), 5 Ex. D. 287; 45 J. P. 5; 38 Digest 170, 137, Express exceptions. BRAMWELL, L.J., said: "I think the words 'except as in this Act expressly provided' must mean 'except when there is an express provision that some person may sue who is neither a party aggrieved, nor a local authority, nor a person acting with the consent in writing of the Attorney-General.' In other words, s. 253 may be read thus: Proceedings may be taken by a party aggrieved; they may be taken by a person who has the consent of the Attorney-General; and, lastly, they may be taken by a person who, not being one of the preceding, is expressly authorised to do so. Now I find in the Act three cases, there may be more, in which such persons are expressly so authorised, namely, ss. 192, 193, and rule 70; in each of these it is provided that the penalty may be recovered by any person." The cases cited by the learned judge are all now repealed, but s. 68, ante, p. 4347, may be referred to as being a case in which proceedings may be taken by persons other than parties aggrieved or persons acting with the consent of the Attorney-General.

The provisions of ss. 116 and 117 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 672, 673) now repealed and replaced by s. 9 of the Food and Drugs Act, 1938, ante, p. 1318), were not express provisions taking proceedings for the possession of unsound meat out of s. 253. Therefore, where a medical officer of health had seized unsound meat, and it had been destroyed by order of a justice, it was held that such proceedings could not be taken by a superintendent of police without the authorisation of the local authority or the consent of the Attorney-General, as the superintendent was not a party aggrieved (Dodd v. Pearson, [1911] 2 K. B. 383; 75 J. P. 343; 25 Digest 112, 355).

In the metropolis it has been held that the Metropolitan Paving Act, 1817, s. 123 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 875), which empowers justices to proceed on the complaint of the persons having the control of the pavements or of any person appointed in writing for the purpose, does not apply to proceedings under s. 65 (op. cit. 855), which enables justices to entertain proceedings for street obstruction on the complaint of one or more credible witnesses; therefore in proceedings under s. 65 the complainant need not be authorised in writing to make the complaint (Keen v. Alexander (1909), 73 J. P. 423; 101 L. T. 430; 26 Digest 459, 1753).

(b) For meaning of the term "party aggrieved," see note, p. 622, ante.

(c) In an action where the Attorney-General's consent is required, it would appear to be necessary to allege in the statement of claim that his consent has been obtained. See Hollis v. Marshall, ante, p. 622. As to the procedure for obtaining the consent of the Attorney-General, see Garrett on Nuisances, 3rd ed., pp. 383 et seq.; Daniel's Chancery Forms, 6th ed., by White, p. 29.

(d) Under the Act there were formerly cases where there can be strictly no person aggrieved, and the authority which would institute the proceedings is not the authority of the district.

254. Where the application of a penalty under this Act is not otherwise provided for, one half thereof shall go the informer, and the remainder to the local authority of the district in which the offence was committed (a): Provided, that if the local authority are the informer they shall be entitled to the whole of the penalty recovered; and all penalties or sums recovered by them on account of any penalty shall be paid over to their treasurer, and shall by him be carried to the account of the fund applicable by such authority to the general purposes of this Act. Application of penalties.

This section was repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be read herewith.

(a) But for this provision penalties would have been payable to the treasurer of the county, borough, etc., under the S. J. A., 1848, s. 31 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 289), and the Justices Clerks Act, 1877, s. 6 (op. cit. 322).

The provisions of section 5 of the Criminal Justice Administration Act, 1914 (op. cit. 373), as to the payment and allocation of fines and fees should be referred to, and also the provisions of s. 34 (6) of the same Act (op. cit. 385) as to accounting for fines by a clerk to justices.

Section 254.

The Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, s. 221 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 647), provides that where by any Act passed or to be passed, any fine, penalty, or forfeiture is made recoverable in a summary manner before any justice or justices, and payable to the Crown or to any borough corporate, or to any person whomsoever, the same if recovered before any justice of a borough having separate court of quarter sessions shall, notwithstanding anything in the Act under which it is recovered, be recovered for and adjudged to be paid to the treasurer of the borough; but this section is not to apply to any fine, penalty, or forfeiture, or part thereof, where the Act under which it is recovered, if passed since the Municipal Corporations Act, 1835, directs that the same shall go in any other manner and not to the borough fund. The present Act is, therefore, within the later part of the section.

The following cases may be referred to for the purpose of elucidating the text: Seamen's Hospital Society v. Liverpool (Mayor of) (1849), 4 Exch. 180; 13 J. P. 588; 33 Digest 459, 1716; *Wray v. Summary proceedings
of rates.

256. If any person assessed to any rate made under this Act (a) by any urban authority fails to pay the same when due and for the space of fourteen days after the same has been lawfully demanded in writing (b), or if any person quits or is about to quit any premises without payment of any such rate then due from him in respect of such premises, and refuses to pay the same after lawful demand thereof in writing (b), any justice may summon the defaulter to appear before a court of summary jurisdiction to show cause why the rate in arrear should not be paid; and if the defaulter fails to appear, or if no sufficient cause for non-payment is shown, the court may make an order for payment of the same, and, in default of compliance with such order, may by warrant cause the same to be levied by distress of the goods and chattels of the defaulter (c).

The costs of the levy of arrears of any rate may be included in the warrant for such levy.

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

(a) Rates made "under this Act" are now limited to private improvement rates. See the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, p. 2113. Under that Act, which substituted a general rate for the general district rate, borough rate and poor rate, proceedings for recovery of the general rate are to be taken in the same way as was formerly appropriate to the poor rate (s. 2 (3), ibid., ante, p. 2119).

It was held that, notwithstanding the incorporation with this Act of the provisions of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847 (see now s. 120, P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 368), as to the recovery of water rates, a water rent accrued due under an agreement for supply of water is a rate "made under this Act" within the meaning of this section, and that the period of limitation applicable to the recovery thereof commences to run on a failure to pay within fourteen days after demand thereof (Elliott v. Russell, [1902] 2 K. B. 748; 67 J. P. 158; 43 Digest 1065, 52).

(b) As to the service of this demand, see s. 267, post, p. 4495. A demand will, it is presumed, be sufficient if made by the collector of the rate. There is no limit of time within which such demand must be made (Keeton v. Sheffield Coal Co., Gill v. Mellor, post, p. 4486).

Note to
Section 256.

(c) In the case of rates made under this Act the text expressly provides for the making of an order by a court of summary jurisdiction, and such rates are civil debts (Southwark and Vauxhall Water Co. v. Hampson U. D. C., [1899] 1 Q. B. 273; 63 J. P. 100; 33 Digest 370, 791). The section makes no provision for imprisonment in default of distress, but that defect is supplied by the S. J. A., 1848, s. 22 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 284), as amended by the S. J. A., 1879, ss. 6, 35 (op. cit. 325, 342), the effect of which is that in default of distress the defendant may be committed, but only upon proof of means given on judgment summons.

Enforcement
of payment.

As to the costs of distress in respect of sewer rates under the Sewers Acts, see R. v. Smith, Ex parte Porter, [1927] 1 K. B. 478; 91 J. P. 14; Digest Supp.

The provisions of this section are different from those contained in the corresponding P. H. A., 1848, s. 103, which provided that in case the defaulter failed to appear according to the exigency of the summons, or no sufficient cause for non-payment were shown, the justice might by warrant cause the rate to be levied by distress of the goods and chattels of the defaulter. With reference to this provision it was held that the section did not confer a discretionary power upon the justice, but that he was bound to act ministerially (R. v. Newman (1860), 29 L. J. M. C. 117; 6 Jur. (n.s.) 293). It was also decided that the justices could not, when required to enforce payment of this rate, entertain any question as to the legal election of the members of the board who made the rate (R. v. Derbyshire J.J. (1855), 19 J. P. 772; 38 Digest 631, 1503); nor as to the purpose to which the rate was to be applied (Luton L. B. v. Davis (1860), 24 J. P. 677; 29 L. J. M. C. 173; 18 Digest 415, 1546; see also Sandgate L. B. v. Pledge, p. 4488, post). In fact, the duties of justices resembled their duties in enforcing a poor rate.

justices.

In Stirk v. Halifax Assessment Committee, [1922] 1 K. B. 264; 86 J. P. 9; 38 Digest 581, 1157, it was held that a valuation list which purported to amend the existing valuation of certain classes of property by an addition of 25 per cent. all round, was bad. But notwithstanding this it was held that the justices on a summons to enforce payment of the poor rate made on such list, had not jurisdiction to refuse to issue their distress warrant (Shillito v. Hinchliffe, [1922] 2 K. B. 236; 86 J. P. 110; 18 Digest 401, 1414). But quære, Whether this applies to proceedings to enforce a rate made under this Act, having regard to the provisions of the above section.

Notwithstanding the alteration in the text the justices, to a great extent at any rate, still act ministerially, and have not unfettered discretion to determine when rates are or are not paid; and it is for the urban authority to remit for poverty. See s. 225, ante, p. 4474. As to whether justices can grant time to a ratepayer or order payment by instalments, see an article at 75 J. P. N. 193. The point appears to be doubtful. Reference should be made to the cases in the preceding paragraph and infra, and on p. 4486, post, for decisions as to what defences are open to a ratepayer before justices: but it may be well to refer here to the language of JAMES, L.J., in Re Neath and Brecon Rail. Co. (1874), 9 Ch. App. 263; 42 Digest 716, 1346: "By the courtesy of Parliament when dealing with courts of justice, the word 'lawful' is used, but when it is said that it shall be lawful for the court to do a certain thing, it means that it shall be done, and it is in fact unlawful to do anything else." In Julius v. Oxford (Bishop of) (1880), 5 App. Cas. 214; 44 J. P. 600; 42 Digest 716, 1351, Lord CAIRNS, L.C., said that "where a power is deposited with a public officer for the purpose of being used for the benefit of persons who are specifically pointed out, and with regard to whom a definition is supplied by the legislature of the conditions upon which they are entitled to call for its exercise, that power ought to be exercised, and the court will require it to be exercised."

As already stated, the "order" here required was a new provision, and was not required by the previous statute (R. v. Tottenham L. B., Ex parte Perry (1860), 24 J. P. 87; 1 L. T. 413). It was therefore held that justices in acting under that statute were not affected by the limitation of time imposed by the S. J. A., 1848, s. 11 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 278) (Sweetman v. Guest (1868), L. R. 3 Q. B. 262; 32 J. P. 212; 18 Digest 430, 1671). The necessity for an order under the present section brings in the limit of time prescribed by the S. J. A., 1848, s. 11. That section takes effect in every case where upon a complaint a justice is authorised by law to make an order, and requires the complaint to be made within six calendar months from the time when the matter of such complaint arose. As (except in cases of "quitting") no ground for making a complaint arises till 14 days after demand, it would appear that complaint for these rates must be laid within a period of six months plus 14 days after they have been demanded, as required by this section (see Elliott v. Russell, on p. 4484, ante). It should be observed that there is no limit of time within which a demand must be made (see Keeton v. Sheffield Coal Co. [1901] 2 K. B. 26; 65 J. P. 341; 38 Digest 627, 1469). In this case, after the rate was demanded, the assessment was reduced, and thereupon an amended demand was made. It was held that the six months ran from the time of the amended, and not of the original, demand. See also Gill v. Mellor, [1924] 1 K. B. 97; 87 J. P. 190; 38 Digest 625, 1454, where demand was not made within the year for which the rate was laid.

In R. v. Hannam (1886), 34 W. R. 355; 18 Digest 415, 1548, the Court of Appeal held that on an application before justices for payment of a rate under this section, the rate being good on the face of it, and the property in respect of which the occupier is rated being within the district of the local authority, the justices' duty is merely ministerial, and they have no jurisdiction to inquire into the validity of the rate. The judgment of BOWEN, L.J., in this case is worthy of careful perusal, as stating in a concise form the chief exceptions to the general rule that justices are bound to enforce a rate good upon the face of it, e.g., non-occupation (R. v. Bradshaw (1880), 2 E. & E. 836; 24 J. P. 727; 18 Digest 401, 1413; R. v. Bagshaw, etc. JJ. (1896), 75 L. T. 513; 18 Digest 400, 1408); and where the property is outside the district of the rating authority (Walker v. G. W. Rail. Co. (1859), 2 E. & E. 325; 24 J. P. 262; 38 Digest 627, 1465; Baglan Bay Tin Plate Co. v. John (1895), 72 L. T. 805; 18 Digest 415, 1545; but see R. v. Jefferson (1884), 48 J. P. 393; 38 Digest 630, 1493); the Lord Justice reserved his opinion whether there would not be another exception in the case of an exemption from rating under a public general statute. As to this last point, see Bates v. Plumstead Overseers (1895), 59 J. P. 118; 64 L. J. M. C. 127; 18 Digest 415, 1549; Rayner v. Drewitt (1900), 64 J. P. 567; 82 L. T. 718; 38 Digest 486, 445; and see also Wixon v. Thomas, [1911] 1 K. B. 43; 75 J. P. 58; 38 Digest 487, 447, where it was held that the fact of premises being in the occupation of the Crown may be accepted by justices as a reason for not enforcing a general rate.

In Whenman v. Clark, [1916] 1 K. B. 94; 80 J. P. 128; 38 Digest 456, 218, it was held that a Court of Summary Jurisdiction (upon an application to them for an order for payment under this section) has jurisdiction to entertain the question whether the occupier by reason of a public Act is exempt from being rated, the facts not being in dispute. And per SWINFEN EADY and PICKFORD, L.J.J.: it is a good working rule, provided there is no dispute as to facts, that justices upon such an application have jurisdiction to entertain a defence that the defendant ought not to have been rated at all, or, if rateable at all, ought not to be rated upon the full rateable value. Reference might be made to an interesting discussion upon the last mentioned decision in Stevenson v. Orr, [1916] 2 I. R. 619; 38 Digest 464, g.

Where there is occupation of part only of the property rated the remedy is by appeal against the rate, and justices must as a rule issue a warrant to enforce payment (Manchester (Overseers of) v. Headlam (1888), 21 Q. B. D. 96; 52 J. P. 517; 18 Digest 401, 1415). The test appears to be whether it is possible to satisfy the description in the rate book without including property not occupied by the defendant (Margate Corporation v. Pettman (1912), 76 J. P. 145; 106 L. T. 104; 38 Digest 469, 312). See also Langford v. Cole (1910), 74 J. P. 229; 102 L. T. 808; 38 Digest 453, 201, and Curzon v. Westminster Corporation (1916), 80 J. P. 468; 14 L. G. R. 1112; 38 Digest 448, 163, in both of which cases, the ratepayer not being in occupation of the whole of the property rated, it was held that a distress warrant ought not to have been issued.

In cases arising out of "passive resistance," it has been held that where a ratepayer tenders a portion of a poor rate which is refused, and the amount tendered is again tendered before the justices and again refused by the overseers, the justices have a discretion whether they will issue a distress warrant for the whole rate or require the overseers to accept the sum tendered, and issue a warrant for the balance (R. v. Gillespie, Ex parte West Ham Overseers, [1904] 1 K. B. 174; 68 J. P. 11; 18 Digest 405, 1453; Re Wyles (1903), 68 J. P. 13; 73 L. J. K. B. 112, n.; 18 Digest 405, 1454).

In Sheffield Waterworks Co. v. Mayor, etc. of Sheffield (1885), 50 J. P. 6; 55 L. J. M. C. 40; 38 Digest 626, 1462, the respondents summoned the appellants to recover payment of a general district rate on certain property of the appellants. The rate was made, as regards some of the appellants' property on the basis of a supplemental valuation list, and as regards the remainder on the basis of the valuations on which the previous rates had been made. After the rate had been demanded and before the summons was issued, the assessment committee reduced the net rateable value of the hereditaments and premises occupied by the appellants:—Held, that sufficient cause was shown for non-payment of the rate within the meaning of this section. The court distinguished Sandgate L. B. v. Pledge, post, p. 4488, on the ground that in that case the validity of the rate was sought to be impeached, while here only a wrong amount had been demanded. It is obvious, therefore, that in similar cases an authority ought to amend their rates under s. 221, ante, p. 4472, and proceed only for the reduced amount.

It would seem that an owner might have shown cause if summoned for rates as an owner under s. 211 ((13 Halsbury's Statutes 714) now s. 11 of the Act of 1925, Vol. V., post) by proving that the rated premises were assessed at a sum greater than the prescribed amount, and that therefore the occupier was rateable (Norwood (Overseers of) v. Salter, [1892] 2 Q. B. 118; 56 J. P. 535; 38 Digest 514, 675).

The fact that the property rated was at a distance of three miles from any of the paving, lighting, or drainage for which the rate was made, was held to be no sufficient cause for non-payment (Newport (Mayor, etc. of) v. Lang (1892), 57 J. P. 199; 38 Digest 619, 1435).

After a poor rate and a district rate had been made, a ratepayer gave notice to the assessment committee of an objection to his assessment. After hearing the objection the committee raised his assessment, and amended demands were served claiming rates upon such increased assessment. The ratepayer paid the amounts originally named in the rates and originally demanded. It was held that the committee had no power to increase the assessment, and that a distress warrant for the balance was properly refused (Hudson v. Rhodes, [1909] 1 K. B. 85; 73 J. P. 66; 38 Digest 583, 1163).

In Rochdale Building Society v. Mayor, etc. of Rochdale (1886), 51 J. P. 134; 18 Digest 420, 1591, commissioners made a rate in 1876 on P., an owner, for improvement expenses, and he paid part thereof and died. At the date of the rate P. had executed a mortgage to B., who entered into possession in 1882. In 1885 the justices issued a distress warrant against B. for the unpaid rate made on P.:—Held, that the justices had no power to issue a distress warrant against B., who was not named in the rate.

In January, 1907, upon an appeal against a general district rate made by the Thornton U. D. C., the Court of Appeal held that the B. & F. Tramway Co. were rateable in respect of their tramroad upon one-fourth only of its value, and this decision was subsequently affirmed. In June, 1907, a neighbouring urban council made a district rate in which they rated another portion of the same tramroad at its full value and demanded payment. On a summons to enforce payment the company contended that they were liable to pay on one-fourth part only of the net annual value of the tramroad, and that a distress warrant should not be granted for the full amount. The justices held that the company had shown sufficient cause for non-payment of the full amount, and they reduced the rate and made an order for the reduced amount, which was demanded and paid. The council obtained a special case but withdrew it owing to failure to comply with the C. O. rules. A rule nisi was then obtained calling upon the justices to show cause why they should not hear and determine an application for the issue of a distress warrant for the full amount of the rate. It was held that, whether the justices were or were not entitled to make an order for a less amount than that appearing on the face of the rate, the court would not in the circumstances issue a mandamus to them to issue a distress warrant for the full amount (R. v. Shuttleworth and Others (1908), 72 J. P. 329; 38 Digest 631, 1505). In June, 1908, the same council made another rate, rating the tramroad at one-fourth only. On a summons to enforce payment of this rate (£447), it was proved that whilst the company's original appeal (begun in 1904) against the Thornton U. D. C. claiming to be rated as a railway was pending, the council now concerned made rates in 1905 and 1906, in which the company were rated in full for the tramroad, and not at one-fourth, which would have reduced their liability from £1,056 to £596. It was also proved that in August, 1905, the council undertook to refund to the company the difference, if they were successful in their appeal. The company consequently paid the full amount of £1,056, and had thus made an over-payment of £460. It was held, that they had shown sufficient cause for non-payment of the rate dated June, 1908 (Blackpool and Fleetwood Tramroad Co., Ltd. v. Bispham-with-Norbreck U. D. C., [1910] 1 K. B. 592; 74 J. P. 141; 38 Digest 626, 1464). In July, 1907, a third urban council made general and special improvement rates in which they rated another portion of the same tramroad at the full value instead of at one-fourth. The company, relying on the decision in the Thornton U. D. C. Case, claimed to pay only one-fourth; and it was held that sufficient cause had been shown to justify the bench in refusing a distress warrant for the full amount (Dixon v. Blackpool & Fleetwood Tramroad Co., [1909] 1 K. B. 860; 73 J. P. 219; 18 Digest 421, 1592).

As to the recovery of a number of local rates of different kinds in the same summons, see the Poor Rates Recovery Act, 1862 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 531).

For a case where damages were recovered for wrongful distress put in after payment in pursuance of an order, see Mutton v. Hornsey U. D. C., Times, April 15th, 1899; and see Atkins v. Hutton (1910), 74 J. P. 329; 18 Digest 416, 1555, as to the civil liability of a landlord who, having agreed with his tenant to pay the rates, fails to do so, with the result that the tenant is imprisoned. See also on this point Reigate Corporation v. Wilkinson (1919), 84 J. P. 17; 38 Digest 633, 1524.

It would seem that an appeal to quarter sessions against the order lies under s. 269, post, p. 4499.

A special case may be stated by justices under the S. J. A., 1879, s. 33 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 341), upon an application to enforce payment of a rate under this section. Where, however, a rate is good upon the face of it, the justices may not refuse to make an order for payment on the ground that there is a concurrent rate made for the same purpose (Sandgate L. B. v. Pledge (1885), 14 Q. B. D. 730; 49 J. P. 342; 18 Digest 415, 1547).

An application to a court of summary jurisdiction for an order to enforce payment of a rate under the text is not a criminal cause or matter, and therefore an appeal lies to the Court of Appeal from the judgment of the High Court upon a case stated by the court of summary jurisdiction (Southwark and Vauxhall Water Co. v. Hampton U. D. C., [1899] 1 Q. B. 273; 63 J. P. 100; 18 Digest 422, 1605).

By s. 33 of the Criminal Justice Administration Act, 1914 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 384), the provisions of the Summary Jurisdiction Acts, relating to the backing of warrants, and of s. 41 of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879 (op. cit. 345), relating to the proof of service of documents, and of the handwriting and seal on documents, shall apply to the proceedings in respect of the non-payment of any rate.

By the Bills of Sale Act (1878) Amendment Act, 1882, s. 14 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 106), a bill of sale is no protection against the seizure of goods for poor and parochial rates. But the general district rate of an urban authority was held not to be a tax or poor or other parochial rate within the meaning of that section (Richards v. Kidderminster Overseers, [1896] 2 Ch. 212; 7 Digest 151, 820). It had previously been held that the section did not apply where proceedings had been taken in the county court under s. 261, post, p. 4491 (Wimbledon L. B. v. Underwood, [1892] 1 Q. B. 836; 56 J. P. 633; 7 Digest 151, 819). For a case where, upon a distress for rates, it was held that there had been a bona fide sale of chattels, and that a document was not a bill of sale, see Prudential Mortgage Co., Ltd. v. Marylebone Borough Council (1909), 8 L. G. R. 901; 7 Digest 10, 40. As to the recovery of rates in case of bankruptcy or liquidation, see Bankruptcy Act, 1914, s. 33, post, p. 5144, and the Companies Act, 1929; Vol. V. and 2 Halsbury's Statutes 775.

Rates payable in respect of property disclaimed by a trustee in bankruptcy can be recovered from the trustee (In re Lister, [1926] Ch. 149; 90 J. P. 33; Digest Supp.).

An assistant overseer had no authority to accept payment of poor rates in the form of bills of exchange accepted by the ratepayer; and a ratepayer could not plead payment if the assistant overseer applied such bills to his own purposes (Smith v. Barkham (1887), 51 J. P. 581; 38 Digest 625, 1457). By fraudulently representing that a rate had been made, an assistant overseer obtained from the respondents payment of the amount of the imaginary rate. He paid the amount into his banking account, and then out of it transferred to the overseers, in payment of prior rates previously collected from other ratepayers, but not accounted for, a sum nearly as large as the sum paid to him by the respondents. A rate for the period in respect of which the respondents had made the payment was subsequently made, the amount due from the respondents being the same as that already paid by them. On an application by the overseers against the respondents for a distress warrant on the ground of non-payment of the rate, the justices found that the overseers had received the proceeds or the greater part of the proceeds of the payment made by the respondents, and refused to issue a distress warrant. It was held, that there was no evidence that the respondents had paid the rate in question, and that the justices were not, on the ground of payment, entitled to refuse to issue a warrant (Hornchurch Overseers v. L. T. and S. Rail. Co. (1912), 76 J. P. 385; 107 L. T. 293; 38 Digest 625, 1458).

Section 256.

Where a person was induced, by a false statement that rates had been made and were due, to pay money to a rate collector by cheque crossed generally and marked not negotiable, and the collector cashed such cheque at a bank where he had been in the habit of cashing cheques for rates, but where he had no account, it was held that the bank was not protected by the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, s. 82 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 35), and were liable for the amount of the cheque to the person defrauded (G. W. Rail. Co. v. London and County Banking Co., [1901] A. C. 414; 3 Digest 239, 673). See further as to this point the notes to L. G. A., 1933, s. 120, p. 906, ante.

257. Where any local authority have incurred expenses for the repayment whereof the owner of the premises for or in respect of which the same are incurred is made liable under this Act (a) or by any agreement with the local authority, such expenses may be recovered, together with interest at a rate (b) not exceeding five pounds per centum per annum, from the date of service of a demand for the same (c) till payment thereof, from any person who is the owner (d) of such premises when the works are completed for which such expenses have been incurred, and until recovery of such expenses and interest the same shall be a charge on the premises in respect of which they were incurred (e). In all summary proceedings by a local authority for the recovery of expenses incurred by them in works of private improvement, the time within which such proceedings may be taken shall be reckoned from the date of the service of notice of demand (f).

Recovery of expenses by local authority
from owners.

Where such expenses have been settled and apportioned by the surveyor of the local authority as payable by such owner, such apportionment shall be binding and conclusive on such owner, unless within three months from service of notice on him by the local authority or their surveyor of the amount settled by the surveyor to be due from such owner, he shall by written notice dispute the same (g).

The local authority may, by order (h), declare any such expenses to be payable by annual instalments within a period not exceeding thirty years, with interest at a rate (hh) not exceeding five pounds per centum per annum; until the whole amount is paid; and any such instalments and interest, or any part thereof, may be recovered in a summary manner (i) from the owner or occupier for the time being of such premises, and may be deducted from the rent of such premises, in the same proportions as are allowed in the case of private improvement rates under this Act (k).

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), Note to Section 257. ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

(a) See ss. 150, 158, ante, pp. 4388, 4442. See also various sections of subsequent Acts which are to be read with this Act, e.g., the P. H. Acts Amendment Act, 1890, s. 35, post, p. 4812; the Private Street Works Act, 1892, s. 13, post, p. 4862, etc. "Expenses" in this section does not include special expenses. Where, therefore, special expenses in respect of sewerage works were charged upon a contributory place under that section, it was held that premises in that contributory place were not subject to a charge under this section in respect of those expenses (Calder's Yeast Co. v. Stockdale (1926), 90 J. P. 206; 24 L. G. R. 569; 38 Digest 576, 1123).

(b) It was not clear who was to settle the amount of this rate. Probably the justices or the court. As regards expenses incurred after September 2nd, 1926, the rate is to be 5 per cent. or such other rate as the Minister of Health may from time to time fix and different rates may be fixed for different purposes and in different cases (s. 77, P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post); as from April 1st, 1934, the rate is 4 per cent. (Ministry of Health (Rate of Interest on Private Improvement Expenses) Order, 1934 (S. R. & O., 1934, No. 274)). The Minister has made a number of orders of local application. The owner cannot claim to deduct income tax from the interest (Gateshead Corporation v. Lumsden, [1914] 2 K. B. 883; 78 J. P. 283; 26 Digest 552, 2484).

(c) This supplies an omission in previous legislation, which was referred to in Wallington v. Willes (1864), 16 C. B. (N. S.) 797; 33 L. J. M. C. 233; 38 Digest 155, 46, as to the commencement of the interest. As to what is a sufficient demand, see Wilson v. Bolton Corporation (1871), L. R. 7 Q. B. 105; 36 J. P. 405; 26 Digest 535, 2352.

(d) See the definition of owner in s. 4, ante, p. 4335. And see R. v. Swindon L. B., and other cases cited therewith on pp. 4412, 4413.

As to summary proceedings for the recovery of paving expenses under s. 150, see that section and the notes thereunder, ante, pp. 4388 et seq.

(e) See note (l) to P. H. A., 1936, s. 291, ante, pp. 603, 607.

Time limit.

(f) As to the limitation of time for summary proceedings, see note (l) to s. 150, ante, p. 4407. But there is no limitation of the time within which a demand must be made (Wortley v. St. Mary, Islington (Vestry of) (1886), 51 J. P. 166; 26 Digest 499, 2075; Hampstead Corporation v. Carant, [1903] 2 K. B. 1; 67 J. P. 344; 26 Digest 499, 2076).

It is only upon this notice that the board can recover summarily, and that appeal lies to the M. of H. under s. 268, post, p. 4495. See per BRETT, L.J., in R. v. Local Government Board, Ex parte Thorp, in notes to s. 268, post, p. 4496.

Conclusive-ness of
ment.

This dispute is to be settled by arbitration. See s. 150, note (o), ante, p. 4416, as to arbitrations arising under that section.

In Re Stoker and Morpeth Corporation, [1915] 2 K. B. 511; 79 J. P. 201; 26 Digest 531, 2301, an apportionment had been made under s. 150, ante, p. 4388, to which a frontager gave notice of objection whereupon the local authority appointed an arbitrator. The frontager did not appoint an arbitrator within fourteen days as required by s. 180, ante, p. 4462, but within that time withdrew his objection disputing the apportionment. The arbitration then proceeded ex parte and upon an action to set aside the award it was held that a frontager who had not appointed an arbitrator to act for him was entitled to withdraw his notice disputing the apportionment within fourteen days. The arbitrator had therefore no power to act and the award was a nullity.

Note to Section 257.

Where no apportionment is necessary, e.g., where expenses have been incurred by an authority under the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, s. 75, ante, p. 4207, in erecting a hoarding in front of a dangerous building, the second paragraph of s. 257 as to the time for disputing apportionments has no application (Usk U. D. C. v. Mortimer (1903), 68 J. P. 38; 90 L. T. 25; 33 Digest 404, 1150. See also Bower v. Caistor R. D. C. (1911), 75 J. P. 186; 38 Digest 229, 603).

Non-applicability of paragraph if no apportionment necessary.

(h) This is an alternative provision to that in s. 213, ante, p. 4468, which deals with private improvement rates. That section enables an authority to make a rate on the occupier for these expenses. This section enables the authority to make an order on the owner for the same, and to charge the amount on the premises, the amount to be payable by annual instalments, and the rate of interest to be settled by themselves. It would seem that the authority must in the first instance decide which course they will adopt (see Wilson v. Bolton (Mayor of), ante, p. 4418), but their decision will not affect their right to enforce the charge on the premises created by the first paragraph of the section, at any rate in respect of payments due and in arrear: see the judgment of BRETT, L.J., in Tottenham L. B. v. Rowell and Payne v. Cardiff R. D. C. cited in note (l), ante, p. 603.

An urban authority, after giving notice to N. to pave, etc., a new street, did the work at a cost of £4,758, to defray which they borrowed, with the sanction of the L. G. B., money at 4 per cent. The sum apportioned on N. was £2,412, and the authority duly resolved to make the sum payable by instalments during twenty years with interest at £5 per cent. On non-payment of an instalment by N.:—Held, the justices were right in enforcing payment, and were not bound to allow the objection that the authority charged higher interest than they themselves paid (N. B. Rail. Co. v. Holme Cultram L. B. (1889), 54 J. P. 86; 26 Digest 536, 2356).

(hh) As regards expenses incurred after September 2nd, 1926, the rate is to 5 per cent. or such other rate as the M. of H. may from time to time fix, and different rates may be fixed for different purposes and in different cases (s. 77, P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post). The Minister has made a number of orders of local application.

(i) See s. 251, ante, p. 4481.

There must apparently be a fresh demand for each instalment, and the six months' limitation will run from such demand. See Prescott v. Nicholson (1889), 53 J. P. 597; 26 Digest 500, 2077. As to enforcing the charge on the premises in respect of unpaid instalments, see Tottenham L. B. v. Rowell, ante, p. 603, and Payne v. Cardiff R. D. C., ante, p. 604.

Recovery of instalments.

(k) See s. 214, ante, p. 4469.

Deduction from rent.

258. No justice of the peace shall be deemed incapable of acting in cases arising under this Act by reason of his being a member of any local authority, or by reason of his being as one of several ratepayers, or as one of any other class of persons liable in common with the others to contribute to, or to be benefited by any rate or fund, out of which any expenses incurred by such authority are under this Act to be defrayed.

Justices may act though members of local authority or liable to contribute.

This section was repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

See notes to P. H. A., 1936, s. 304, ante, pp. 638 et seq.

* * * * *

261. Proceedings for the recovery of demands below fifty pounds (a), which local authorities are empowered to recover in a summary manner (b), may, at the option of the local authority, be taken in the county court as if such demands were debts within the cognizance of such courts (c).

Demands below £50 may be recovered in county court.

Note to
Section 261.

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

(a) This is an increase of the limit in Local Government Act (1858) Amendment Act, 1861, s. 24.

(b) See s. 251, ante, p. 4481. This section applies, therefore, only to sums which can be recovered summarily—not to those which can be recovered in other ways.

Limitation of time in county court.

(c) The six months' limitation for summary proceedings is also applicable to the proceedings taken in the county court (Tottenham L. B. v. Rowell (1876), 1 Ex. D. 514; 26 Digest 535, 2344; following West Ham L. B. v. Maddams (1876), 1 Ex. D. 516 n.; 40 J. P. 470; 26 Digest 535, 2343). The principle of these cases as applied to this particular Act has been since accepted; but they were distinguished in Leeds Corporation v. Robshaw (1887), 51 J. P. 441; 26 Digest 552, 2478. See that case and other cases cited ante, at p. 611.

See also notes on p. 587, ante.

In Eccles v. Wirral Sanitary Authority, ante, p. 4408, MATHEW, J., says: "By s. 261 jurisdiction is conferred on the county court in cases of this kind (i.e., to recover expenses due under s. 150), and although I cannot find any provision which in terms gives the superior court jurisdiction, I should infer that where the amount is above £50 an action would lie in the superior court." But this dictum appears to be contrary to the rule that where a debt is created by a statute which expressly provides for its recovery, the remedy so provided must be followed, and an action will not lie: see St. Pancras Vestry v. Batterbury, and other cases cited at p. 4407, ante. And there are dicta in later cases that no action will lie in a superior court for the recovery of such expenses: see In re Willesden L. B. and Wright, [1896] 2 Q. B. 412; 60 J. P. 708; 33 Digest 369, 786; In re Hanwell U. D. C. and Smith (1904), 68 J. P. 496; 26 Digest 531, 2300. Under the Private Street Works Act, 1892, s. 14, post, p. 4864, actions may be brought in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Proceedings
not to be quashed for want of form.

262. No rate order conviction or thing made or done or relating to the execution of this Act shall be vacated quashed or set aside for want of form, or (unless otherwise expressly provided by this Act) be removed or removable by certiorari or any other writ or process whatsoever into any of the superior courts (a): Provided that nothing in this section shall prevent the removal of any case stated for the opinion of a superior court, or of any rate order conviction or thing to which such special case relates (b).

When

(a) The Act does not contain any definition of the term "superior court," but the text evidently refers to the High Court of Justice. Apart from this provision, certiorari does not lie to remove other than judicial acts. See R. v. Watermen's Co., [1897] 1 Q. B. 659; 61 J. P. 388; 44 Digest 117, 936; R. v. Sharman, [1898] 1 Q. B. 578; 62 J. P. 296; 16 Digest 414, 2729; R. v. Bowman, [1898] 1 Q. B. 663; 62 J. P. 374; 30 Digest 34, 267. The phrase "judicial act" must, however, be taken in a very wide sense, including many acts that would not ordinarily be termed "judicial." The true view of the limitation appears to be that the term "judicial act" is used in contrast with purely ministerial acts. See Leeds Corporation v. Ryder, ante, p. 642, when in the Court of Appeal (sub nom., R. v. Woodhouse, [1906] 2 K. B. 501; 70 J. P. 485; 16 Digest 398, 2421), in which case R. v. Sharman, supra, on this point, was not followed. See also R. v. Dublin Corporation (1878), 2 L. R. Ir. 371; 38 Digest 599, e, where MAY, C.J., said: "It is established that the writ of certiorari does not lie to remove an order merely ministerial, such as a warrant, but it lies to remove and adjudicate upon the validity of acts judicial. In this connection the term 'judicial' does not necessarily mean acts of a judge, or legal tribunal sitting for the determination of matters of law, but for the purpose of this question, a judicial act seems to be an act done by competent authority, upon consideration of facts and circumstances, and imposing liability or affecting the rights of others." This passage was cited with approval by PALLES, C.B., in R. v. Kerry C. C., [1905] 2 I. R., at p. 303, and by Lord ATKINSON in Frome United Breweries Co. v. Bath JJ., [1926] A. C. at p. 602; 90 J. P., at p. 124; Digest Supp., and was adopted by the Irish Court of Appeal in R. v. Local Government Board for Ireland, [1902] 2 I. R. 349, where the difference between "judicial" and "ministerial" acts was elaborately discussed. See also R. v. Electricity Commissioners, [1924] 1 K. B. 171; 88 J. P. 13; Digest Supp. See also R. v. Dublin Corporation, [1911] 2 I. R. 245, and R. v. Doherty (1910), 74 J. P. 304; 26 T. L. R. 502; 16 Digest 415, 2736, where a warrant of commitment was quashed. The point was raised but not decided in Ex parte Stott, [1916] 1 K. B. 7; 80 J. P. 169; 16 Digest 459, 3341, as to whether a notice prohibiting the exhibition of a film was a proper subject-matter for a certiorari.

Notwithstanding this provision, a writ of certiorari may be granted where the proceedings show on the face of them a want of jurisdiction (R. v. Gosse (1860), 3 E. & E. 277; 30 L. J. M. C. 41; 16 Digest 440, 3050; Re Broughton L. B. (1865) 12 L. T. 310; R. v. Staffordshire JJ. (1867), 16 L. T. 430; 16 Digest 437, 3021; R. v. Wood (or Rose), ante, p. 1093; R. v. Slater (1903), 67 J. P. 299; Colonial Bank of Australasia v. Willan (1874), L. R. 5 P. C. 417; 16 Digest 440, 3060). In the case last mentioned it was laid down that when a certiorari is said to be taken away by statute, the superior court is not absolutely deprived of the power to issue the writ; but its action as to the writ is controlled and limited, and it cannot quash the order removed by certiorari except upon the ground either of a manifest defect of jurisdiction in the tribunal that made the order, or a manifest fraud in the party procuring it. Matters on which the defect of jurisdiction depends may be apparent on the face of the proceedings, or may be brought before the superior court by affidavit, but they must be intrinsic to the adjudication impeached. Objections on the ground of defect of jurisdiction may be founded on the character and constitution of an inferior court, the nature of the subject-matter of the inquiry, or the absence of some preliminary proceeding which was necessary to give jurisdiction to the court. The objection of defect of jurisdiction cannot be entertained if it rests solely on the ground that the judge has erroneously found a fact which was essential to the validity of his order, but which he was competent to try (ibid.). And see Ex parte Bradlaugh (1878), 3 Q. B. D. 509; 42 J. P. 583; 16 Digest 441, 3070; R. v. Bradford, [1908] 1 K. B. 365; 72 J. P. 61; 16 Digest 423, 2834; R. v. Queen's County JJ., [1908] 2 I. R. 285; 26 Digest 356, b; Ex parte Stott, [1916] 1 K. B. 7; 80 J. P. 169; 16 Digest 459, 3341; cases cited in Paley on Convictions, 7th ed., at p. 364, and Short and Mellor's Crown Office Practice, 2nd ed., p. 43. See generally as to the effect of a clause taking away certiorari, R. (Martin) v. Mahony, [1910] 2 I. R. 695; 25 Digest 451, g.

Where both parties agreed to waive a similar provision, and a recorder stated a case for the opinion of the court, the fact that the corresponding section in the Municipal Corporations Act, 1835, had taken away the certiorari was held not to prevent the court from determining the question (R. v. Dickenson (1857), 7 E. & B. 831; 22 J. P. 243; 16 Digest 443, 3090). Waiver of objection.

As to the practice relating to the removal of convictions, etc. by certiorari, see Practice. Paley on Convictions, 7th ed., Chap. V., sect. 2. See also the Crown Office Rules, 1906, Nos. 20—31. It was held that the six days' notice to the justice, under the old rules, as a preliminary to the grant of a writ of certiorari, must precede the motion for a rule nisi, and not merely the motion for the rule absolute (Ex parte Roberts (1886), 50 J. P. 567). But it appears now from r. 21 of the new rules that the notice need only be given six days before the return day. An application for certiorari to the King's Bench Division does not lie after conviction and judgment in the superior court (Nally v. R. (1884), 16 L. R. Ir. 1; 16 Digest 445, o).

The time limitation in r. 21 of the Crown Office Rules does not apply to the issue of a writ of certiorari at the instance of the Attorney-General on behalf of the Crown (R. v. Amendt, [1915] 2 K. B. 276; 79 J. P. 324; 16 Digest 461, 3356).

Certiorari will not issue to quash a conviction by justices pending an appeal to quarter sessions (R. v. Barnes (1910), 74 J. P. 231; 102 L. T. 860; 16 Digest 446, 3126).

Note to
Section 262.

Note to Section 262.

Object of proviso.

(b) This proviso was inserted to meet the difficulties which arose in cases such as R. v. Fielding (1853), 17 J. P. 343; 16 Digest 480, 3624; R. v. Staffordshire JJ. (1867), 16 L. T. 430; 16 Digest 437, 3021; R. v. Chantrell (1875), L. R. 10 Q. B. 587; 39 J. P. 472; 16 Digest 444, 3091. It is now rendered unnecessary, so far as regards cases stated by quarter sessions, for the S. J. A., 1879, s. 40, provides that a writ of certiorari or other writ shall not be required for the removal of any conviction, order, or other determination for the purpose of obtaining the judgment of a superior court. In Clark v. Alderbury Union (1880), 45 J. P. 358; 29 W. R. 334; 16 Digest 434, 2969, it was held that the provision rendered a certiorari unnecessary to bring up a case stated by sessions on a rating appeal, and that the clerk of the peace, on receiving notice from the solicitor of the party requiring it, should send up the case to the Crown Office. As to the recognizances in such a case, see the Crown Office Rules, 1906, Nos. 24—26.

Protection of local authority and their officers from personal liability.

265. No matter or thing done, and no contract entered into by any local authority or joint board or port sanitary authority, and no matter or thing done by any member of any such authority or by any officer of such authority or other person whomsoever acting under the direction of such authority, shall, if the matter or thing were done or the contract were entered into bonâ fide for the purpose of executing this Act, subject them or any of them personally to any action liability claim or demand whatsoever; and any expense incurred by any such authority member officer or other person acting as last aforesaid shall be borne and repaid out of the fund or rate applicable by such authority to the general purposes of this Act.

Provided that nothing in this section shall exempt any member of any such authority from liability to be surcharged with the amount of any payment which may be disallowed by the auditor in the accounts of such authority, and which such member authorised or joined in authorising.

See notes on pp. 643—653, ante.

Notices.

Notices, etc. may be printed or written.

266. Notices orders and other such documents under this Act may be in writing or print, or partly in writing and partly in print; and if the same require authentication by the local authority the signature thereof by the clerk of the local authority or their surveyor or inspector of nuisances shall be sufficient authentication.

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

It is presumed that this should be read reddendo singula singulis, so that the notices referred to must be such as each officer by virtue of his office can properly sign.

Sanitary Law Amendment Act, 1874, s. 40, rendered the notice sufficient if it purported to be signed by the officer; but as these words are omitted, the signature must be proved in any proceedings where the notice is of importance, unless it be admitted by the opposite party.

The provision in the text was of importance under the P. H. A., 1848, in respect of non-corporate districts, where a certain number of members were required to sign special documents. But as there are now no such districts, all being incorporated, and there is no requisition as to signature by members, the section seems to be one of extreme caution.

Note to Section 266.

See also note (d) to P. H. A., 1936, s. 284 (2), ante, pp. 575, 576.

267. Notices orders and any other documents (a) required or authorised to be served under this Act may be served by delivering the same to or at the residence (b) of the person to whom they are respectively addressed, or where addressed to the owner (c) or occupier of premises (c) by delivering the same or a true copy thereof to some person on the premises, or if there is no person on the premises who can be so served by fixing the same on some conspicuous part of the premises (d); they may also be served by post (e) by a prepaid letter, and if served by post shall be deemed to have been served at the time when the letter containing the same would be delivered in the ordinary course of post, and in proving such service it shall be sufficient to prove that the notice order or other document was properly addressed and put into the post.

Service of notices.

Any notice by this Act required to be given to the owner or occupier of any premises may be addressed by the description of the "owner" or "occupier" of the premises (naming them) in respect of which the notice is given, without further name or description (f).

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

(a) See note (a) to P. H. A., 1936, s. 285, ante, p. 576.

(b) See note (f) to P. H. A., 1936, s. 285, ante, p. 577. Except when a notice is addressed to the owner or occupier of premises and is served on someone on, or is affixed to, the premises to which it relates, such notice must, in the case of a limited company, apparently be left at or posted to the registered office of the company; see the Companies Act, 1929, ss. 370, 380, and Pearks, Gunston and Tee, Ltd. v. Richardson, [1902] 1 K. B. 91; 66 J. P. 119; 25 Digest 105, 289.

(e) The P. H. A., 1848, s. 150, allowed service by post only when the owner's place of abode was not within the district: there is no such distinction in the text. Prepayment of the letter must be proved in order to prove service (Walthamstow U. D. C. v. Hemwood, [1897] 1 Ch. 41; 61 J. P. 23; 22 Digest 370, 3785). In a case decided under the Valuation (Metropolis) Act, 1869, where the wording of s. 65 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 580) is very similar to this section, it was held that the presumption that a notice had been received when properly addressed, prepaid and delivered to the post office is not merely a presumption of fact unless the contrary be shown, but is a presumption of law whether in fact the notice was received by the addressee or not (R. v. Westminster Union, Ex parte Woodward & Sons, [1917] 1 K. B. 832; 81 J. P. 93; 22 Digest 370, 3784). See also Watts v. Vickers, Ltd. (1916), 86 L. J. K. B. 177; 33 T. L. R. 137; 22 Digest 370, 3783.

Appeal.

268. Where any person deems himself aggrieved by the decision of the local authority in any case in which the local authority are empowered to recover in a summary manner any expenses incurred by them, or to declare such expenses to be private improvement expenses, Appeal in certain cases to Local Government Board.

Section 268. he may, within twenty-one days (a) after notice of such decision (b), address a memorial to the Local Government Board, stating the grounds of his complaint, and shall deliver a copy thereof to the local authority (c); the Local Government Board may make such Order in the matter as to the said Board may seem equitable, and the Order so made shall be binding and conclusive on all parties (d).

Any proceedings that may have been commenced for the recovery of such expenses by the local authority shall, on the delivery to them of such copy as aforesaid, be stayed; and the Local Government Board may, if it thinks fit, by its Order (e), direct the local authority to pay to the person so proceeded against such sum as the said Board may consider to be a just compensation for the loss damage or grievance thereby sustained by him.

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to the construed herewith.

(a) See next note as to the decision the notice of which gives a right of appeal. Such appeal is now to the Ministry of Health and the memorial of appeal must be received by them on or before the twenty-first day after the receipt of the notice of such decision. See also note (c), post, p. 4498.

Appeals can be made against "decisions" of local authorities in proceedings under s. 150 of the Act, ante, p. 4388.

What is a "decision."

(b) Notice of apportionment of expenses under s. 150 having been served upon an owner, and demand of payment having been made after three months had expired (see s. 257, ante, p. 4489), the owner deeming himself aggrieved by the decision of the authority, addressed a memorial, by way of appeal, to the L. G. B., stating the grounds of his complaint. On a rule for prohibition to the Board, the Court of Appeal held that an appeal lay to the Board, and that no prohibition ought to be granted. The court held that the demand of payment was the first decision from which an appeal would lie under the section. With regard to the power of the Board on such appeal, BAGGALLAY, L.J., said: "That while they might properly refuse to travel beyond the grounds of complaint alleged in the memorial, yet that they had jurisdiction to inquire into the whole matter, and to inquire whether the aggregate amount of the expenses was unreasonable or unnecessary, as well as whether the proportion assessed upon the appellant was right." And BRETT, L.J., said: "It seems to me obvious from the construction of the Act, that the Board have power to inquire into every circumstance, however remote, which could reasonably determine the question whether it was equitable or not that a particular sum should be paid" (R. (or Penarth) v. Local Government Board (1882), 10 Q. B. D. 309; 47 J. P. 228; 26 Digest 532, 2318). In the same case BRETT, L.J., also expressed an opinion that the decision of the Board was judicial, and that it was their duty to hear the parties presenting the memorial, though not necessarily by hearing oral evidence. It was their duty, however, to allow the appellant to know the answer of the authority to his memorial, so as to let him reply to it. The decision in the Penarth Case was applied by the Divisional Court in R. v. L. G. B., Ex parte Thorp (1914), 79 J. P. 248; 13 L. G. R. 402; 38 Digest 154, 43, to a decision of a local authority to substitute water-closets in lieu of privies under s. 36 (now repealed) (13 Halsbury's Statutes 640). It was held that the decision referred to in s. 268 is a decision of the local authority that the expenses incurred by them should be recovered in a summary manner or that they shall be declared to be private improvement expenses, and is not any decision of the local authority in a case in which the expenses may ultimately be recovered summarily or be declared to be private improvement expenses. As to this see further notes (c), (d), post, p. 4498, and comments on this case in 78 J. P. N. 367.

Upon the hearing of a complaint to recover expenses under s. 150, ante, p. 4388, the defendant objected that the plans referred to in the notice showed that part of the work had been executed upon land belonging to private owners. The magistrate found as a fact that the land did not belong to private owners, but formed part of the street when the notice was given, and made an order for payment of the amount apportioned. On application for certiorari upon affidavits which satisfied the court that the magistrate's finding was contrary to the fact, it was held, assuming that the magistrate had jurisdiction to inquire whether the case was within the statute, that the matter was at least partly within the statute, so as to give the magistrate jurisdiction, and that the remedy was not by certiorari. See s. 262, ante, p. 4492. It was further held that the proper remedy was by appeal under this section against the decision of the authority (Wake v. Sheffield Corporation (1883), 12 Q. B. D. 142; 48 J. P. 197; 26 Digest 638, 2370. See also Derby (Mayor, etc. of) v. Grudgings, ante, p. 4409).

Section 268.

In Wake v. Sheffield Corporation, supra, the ground of the decision was that as part of the work was executed upon a street, there was some jurisdiction to make the apportionment. "The complaint," said BRETT, M.R., "is, that although the local authority might properly have determined to pave the street, and might properly have fixed the amount to be expended thereon, yet the sum expended was not on the street only, but was partly on the street and partly on private land and that therefore the decision of the local authority was wrong; that is to say, that it fixed a wrong sum to lay before the surveyor to apportion, because it had not confined the sum to that which had been expended on the street, but had extended it to a larger sum, part of which had been expended elsewhere than on the street. The complaint, therefore, if anything, is, that the appellant is aggrieved by the decision of the local authority, and consequently it comes within the exact terms of s. 268, which has pointed out the remedy the appellant has, namely, that in respect of that grievance he is to appeal to the Local Government Board. That is the particular remedy pointed out by the statute, and it being one for a grievance in respect of a new liability, it is the only remedy which can be taken. If, therefore, the case was within the statute, the magistrate, upon the summons before him for an order for payment, could not determine whether the decision of the local authority was right or wrong; but could only inquire whether the proper notice had been given, and if it had, he could only make the order of payment. It was then said that the magistrate was bound to inquire whether the case was within the statute at all, and that if the local authority had assumed to cast a liability on a person to do that which was not within the Act, as to contribute to the expenditure of paving that which was not a street, and the magistrate found that that was so, and that it was not within the Act at all, then he had no jurisdiction to make the order. But, on the other side, it was said that if the magistrate had jurisdiction to make that inquiry he had jurisdiction in the matter, and if he came to a wrong conclusion there was an appeal to the quarter sessions, but that there it must end, and there was no appeal from the sessions. Now, it may be that the magistrate has power to inquire whether the case is within the Act at all, and if so, and he finds that it is not within the Act, it may be that he has no jurisdiction to make any further order. It may be that he is bound to make that inquiry, and that the only appeal from the conclusion he may come to is to the quarter sessions, or it may be that he has no power to make such inquiry at all. It seems to me to be unnecessary to decide that matter, for even if the magistrate had jurisdiction to inquire whether the case was or was not within the statute at all, and if supposing it was not, he had no jurisdiction to make any further order, I have come to the conclusion that this matter was not wholly without the statute. It would be without the statute if no order at all could have been made by the local authority, but if any part of the expenditure had been made in respect of a street within the meaning of the statute it is obvious that as to that part the local authority might fix the proper sum to be apportioned by the surveyor. Here it cannot be denied that a part of the expenditure was in respect of that which was a street within the meaning of the statute and that the appellant was a frontager on that street, and it therefore follows that an order might be made upon him which would be an order within the meaning of the statute, and all that could be said against it would be that although it might lawfully be made it was a wrong order." And see Bournemouth Commissioners v. Watts (1884), 14 Q. B. D. 87; 49 J. P. 102; 26 Digest 534, 2340. In that case an action was brought by a local authority to recover paving expenses under s. 150, ante, p. 4388. It appeared that part of the work, exceeding £50, had been done by contractors employed by the authority, but that no written contract under the authority's seal had been executed as was then required by s. 174 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 698). It was assumed by SMITH, J., that the objection, if valid, would have been an objection to the apportionment which could have been raised in the time and manner provided by s. 257, ante, p. 4489. But according to the above cases the point might have been raised by appeal under this section. See also Midland Rail. Co. v. Watton (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 30; 50 J. P. 405; 26 Digest 267, 72. The assumption of SMITH, J., supra, is also opposed to Waltham-stow L. B. v. Staines, [1891] 2 Ch. 606; 26 Digest 538, 2372, where the court held that an objection to the legality of certain charges for legal and other expenses included in an apportionment under s. 150 could only be raised by way of appeal under this section; and the decision in this case was followed by STIRLING, J., with regard to a similar section in a local Act in West Hartlepool (Mayor, etc. of) v. Robinson (1897), 61 J. P. 200; 75 L. T. 677; affirmed 62 J. P. 35; 77 L. T. 387; 26 Digest 547, 2448. See also In re Hanwell U. D. C. and Smith, and the cases cited therewith, at p. 4417, ante.

In Eccles v. Wirral Rural Sanitary Authority (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 107; 50 J. P. 596; 26 Digest 534, 2336, MATHEW, J., referring to the judgment of the MASTER OF THE ROLLS in the Penarth Case, ante, p. 4496, said: "I should have thought that there was much weight in the argument that the Local Government Board could not be treated as a court having exclusive jurisdiction in a case of this kind. It may be that if a party chooses to resort to that tribunal, he should be bound by what it does. But that it should otherwise be conclusive, is opposed to all principle. It is not a court. No procedure is pointed out, and the idea is that the Board are to pronounce what judgment they choose, though opposed to law and principles of equity, so long as they think it equity. That question is well deserving of very careful consideration, and far more elaborate argument than it was necessary to address to us in this case." The court (MATHEW and SMITH, JJ.) left it undecided whether, on a question whether a street was a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large, a frontager could appeal to the L. G. B. under this section; but an appeal on this ground against a demand for payment would certainly be entertained.

An appeal lies under this section in respect of an objection to an apportionment under the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4488, which is not admissible under s. 7 of that Act, post, p. 4853 (e.g. failure to apportion according to degree of benefit) (R. v. Minister of Health, Ex parte Aldridge, [1925] 2 K. B. 363; 89 J. P. 114; 26 Digest 545, 2433).

It will be observed from s. 257, ante, p. 4489, that, where expenses have to be apportioned, an authority are not in a position to serve a notice of demand until the expiration of three months from the service of the notice of apportionment, or if the apportionment is disputed, until such dispute has been settled by arbitration or withdrawn. In cases where a premature demand has been served by an authority and an owner has appealed against it to the M. of H. the Ministry have pointed out that, as the demand was invalid, there was no statutory notice of decision against which any appeal could be made.

An appeal will apparently lie to the Ministry even if an owner has paid the amount claimed in compliance with a demand for same, but the appeal must of course be within twenty-one days of the demand.

complaint.

(c) The memorial should be to the Minister of Health, and should be forwarded to the Secretary, Whitehall, S.W.1. It should be signed by the party aggrieved, and should state his case clearly, but as concisely as possible. The Ministry will require to be furnished with all the original notices served upon the appellant endorsed with dates of their receipt. The appellant must not omit to send a copy of his memorial to the authority, and it would be well for him to state in his memorial that he has done so. A failure to comply with this requirement within the twenty-one days will probably result in the Minister's refusing to entertain the appeal. When documents required by the Ministry have been mislaid or destroyed, copies should be obtained from the clerk to the authority. The usual practice of the Ministry is to obtain the observations of the authority upon the memorial (of which they should be in possession of a copy), and then, unless the questions in dispute are of such a character that they can be decided otherwise, to direct one of their inspectors to hold a local inquiry, at which both the authority and appellant can be present or represented. Upon consideration of the inspector's report an order is issued.

Section 268.

In Local Government Board v. Arlidge, [1915] A. C. 120; 79 J. P. 97; 38 Digest 97, 708, the House of Lords held (reversing sub nom. R. v. Local Government Board, Ex parte Arlidge, [1914] 1 K. B. 160; 78 J. P. 25), that the Board, on an appeal to them under the Housing, Town Planning, etc., Act, 1909 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 846), might act upon written evidence, and need neither hear the appellant orally, nor disclose to him the reports and documents placed before them, and further, that the appellant is not entitled to know the name of the official whose decision the Board's order represents. And see hereon R. v. Housing Tribunal of Appeal, [1920] 3 K. B. 334; 84 J. P. 252; 38 Digest 97, 709; and Wilson v. Esquimalt and Nanaimo Rly. Co., [1922] 1 A. C. 202; 126 L. T. 451.

(d) As to the powers and duties of the Minister on such appeal, see R. v. Local Government Board, ante, p. 4496. See also Cook v. Ipswich L. B., ante, p. 4410. Where on a demand for payment of paving expenses under s. 150, ante, p. 4388, a frontager addressed a memorial stating the grounds of his complaint to be that the works were unnecessary, and were executed improperly and at too high a price, and that it was inequitable to charge him with the whole expenses, and the L. G. B., after a local inquiry confirmed the demand, it was held that on summary proceedings to enforce the payment the frontager might take the objection that the street was a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large (Seabrooke v. Grays Thurrock L. B. (1891), 8 T. L. R. 19).

In Bristol Corporation v. Sinnott, [1918] 1 Ch. 62; 82 J. P. 9; 26 Digest 525, 2253 (see ante, p. 4405), frontagers objecting to a notice under s. 150 presented a memorial to the L. G. B. under this section appealing against a demand for payment on the ground that the time allowed them to carry out the works was unreasonable. The Board after an inquiry intimated that they were prepared to confirm the demand, but the Board made no order, whereupon with the sanction of the Board the appeal was withdrawn. It was held that as no order had been made and the withdrawal of the appeal had been with the Board's sanction the proceedings before the Board did not estop the frontagers from raising the point as to the validity of the notice in an action to recover the amount of the private streets works charges.

It is not the usual practice of the Ministry to furnish either to local authorities or appellants detailed reasons for the Minister's decisions.

(e) It is a question how this Order can be enforced. It is not an Order to which s. 294, post, p. 4505, applies. But according to R. v. Walker (1875), L. R. 10 Q. B. 355; 40 J. P. 230; 14 Digest 203, 1824, the local authority might perhaps be indicted for a misdemeanor if they disobeyed it; and probably obedience might be compelled by mandamus; cf. R. v. Fulham Guardians, [1909] 2 K. B. 504; 73 J. P. 397.

Section 295, post, p. 4505, provides for the publication of the Order if the Minister should require it to be published.

269. Where any person deems himself aggrieved (a), by any rate made under the provisions of this Act (b), or by any order conviction judgment or determination of or by any matter or thing done by any court of summary jurisdiction (c), such person may appeal therefrom, subject to the conditions and regulations following (d):

- (1) The appeal shall be made to the next court of quarter sessions (e) for the county division or place in which the cause of appeal has arisen, holden not less than twenty-one days after the demand of the rate or the decision of the court from which the appeal is made:
- (2) The appellant shall, within fourteen days after the cause of appeal has arisen, give notice to the other party and to the authority or court of summary jurisdiction by whose act he deems himself aggrieved, of his intention to appeal, and of the ground thereof:

Section 269.

- (3) The appellant shall, immediately after such notice, enter into a recognizance before a justice of the peace, with two sufficient sureties, conditioned personally to try such appeal, and to abide the judgment of the court thereon, and to pay such costs as may be awarded by the court, or give such other security by deposit of money or otherwise as the justice may allow :
- (4) Where the appellant is in custody the justice may, on the appellant entering into such recognizance or giving such other security as aforesaid, release him from custody :
- (5) On appeals under this Act against any rate the court of appeal shall have the same power to amend or quash any rate or assessment (f), and to award costs between the parties to the appeal, as is or may by law be vested in any court of quarter sessions with respect to amending or quashing any rate or assessment, or awarding costs, on appeals with respect to rates for the relief of the poor (g) ; and the costs awarded by the said court under this Act may be recovered in the same manner in all respects as costs awarded on the last-mentioned appeals (h) : Provided that, notwithstanding the quashing of any rate appealed against, all moneys charged by such rate shall, if the court of appeal think fit so to order, be levied as if no appeal had been made, and such moneys, when paid, shall be taken as payment on account of the next effective rate for the purposes in respect of which the quashed rate was made (i) :
- (6) In the case of other appeals the court of appeal may if it thinks fit adjourn the appeal, and on the hearing thereof may confirm reverse or modify the decision of the court of summary jurisdiction, or remit the matter to the court of summary jurisdiction with the opinion of the court of appeal thereon, or make such other order in the matter as the court thinks just. The court of appeal may also make such order as to costs to be paid by either party as the court thinks just (k) :
- (7) The decision of the court of appeal shall be binding on all parties (l), Provided that the court of appeal may, if such court thinks fit, state the facts specially for the determination of a superior court (m).

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2) ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

(a) See note (b) to P. H. A., 1936, s. 301, ante, p. 626.

What objections competent.

(b) The only rates now made under this Act are private improvement rates. As to appeals against rates made under the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, p. 2113, on grounds not connected with questions of assessments, see s. 14, ante, p. 2157. On questions of assessment, the appeal under that Act must be from the decision of the assessment committee (see ss. 31—36 and Sched. V., ante, pp. 2185—2193, 2254). A question was raised in Ricardo v. Maidenhead L. B. (1857), 2 H. & N. 257 ; 21 J. P. 359 ; 18 Digest 415, 1553, whether an appeal lay against an order of justices ordering payment of a rate which had not itself been appealed against. The court did not decide the question. But the case was decided under the P. H. A., 1848, s. 103 of which enabled justices to enforce a rate by warrant without order. Under the present Act an order is necessary (see s. 256, ante, p. 4484), and there seems to be no reason why an appeal should not lie. It may still be doubted, however, whether on such appeal an objection could be taken which goes to the validity of the rate as distinguished from the jurisdiction of justices to enforce it. In the case of the poor rate, an appeal did not lie against a warrant to enforce payment until the distress thereunder had been levied (R. v. Lincolnshire JJ., [1912] 2 K. B. 413; 76 J. P. 311; 18 Digest 422, 1604). It has been said that on such an appeal an appellant could not avail himself of objections which he might have urged against the rate itself on an appeal against it (R. v. Kent JJ., Ex parte Roots (1867), 16 L. T. 672; 18 Digest 422, 1601). The report of this case is very meagre, and semble the decision must be taken with some qualification, for it would certainly seem that an objection that a party rated is not an occupier would be open on both appeals. The objections which could be taken before justices when proceedings were taken before them to enforce payment of a poor rate are discussed at 77 J. P. N. 301, 315; and see R. v. Hannam; Bates v. Plumstead (Overseers of), and other cases cited therewith at p. 4486, ante.

(c) For the definition of "court of summary jurisdiction," see ante, p. 4345.

There is no appeal against an acquittal; see ante, p. 626.

(d) As to procedure on appeal, see note (d) to s. 301 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 627.

(e) Where an adjourned sessions intervened, it was held that the time must be calculated with reference to the first day of the next quarter sessions, and not with reference to the first day of the adjourned sessions (R. v. Lancashire JJ. (1876), 40 J. P. 438; 34 L. T. 124; 38 Digest 614, 1392). And see Rawnsley v. Hutchinson (1871), L. R. 6 Q. B. 305; 35 J. P. 501; 33 Digest 386, 971. The Criminal Justice Act, 1925, s. 31 now repealed; 11 Halsbury's Statutes 413, avoided these decisions, and see now the Summary Jurisdiction (Appeals) Act, 1933, s. 1, set out at ante, p. 627.

The phrase "next sessions" means the next sessions at which an effectual trial can be had after the proper notices have been given. Therefore, where a rate was made on March 20th, and the notices for the next quarter sessions, held on April 6th, must have been given on March 22nd, it was held that the appeal might be brought at the July quarter sessions without being entered and respite at the April sessions (R. v. Surrey JJ. (1880), 6 Q. B. D. 100; 45 J. P. 93; 38 Digest 613, 1386). See also R. v. Pawlett, cited ante, p. 630.

(f) Therefore, it was held that sessions might quash a rate which showed by the Powers of estimate prefixed to it that it was made for illegal purposes (R. v. Workop L. B. court on (1857), 21 J. P. 451); see also Smith v. Southampton Corporation, [1902] 2 K. B. 244; appeal. 67 J. P. 5.

(g) As to costs, see ante, pp. 630—631.

(h) As to recovery of costs, see ante, p. 631.

(i) This provision is the same as that in Poor Rate Act, 1801, s. 1 (14 Halsbury's Levy of rate Statutes 491), respecting the poor rate. Under that section it was held that where notwithstanding a rate was reduced on appeal and the person rated had during the appeal paid on standing the unreduced assessment, the overseers might, in subsequent rates, credit him for appeal. the excess paid without an order of sessions (R. v. Parker (1857), 7 E. & B. 155; 21 J. P. 549; 38 Digest 607, 1341). And see also as to the construction of the section, R. v. Kingston JJ. (1858), E. B. & E. 256; 23 J. P. 5; 18 Digest 399, 1399. See also s. 36, R. and V. Act, 1925, ante, p. 2193.

(k) This sub-section and the next are repealed so far as relates to an appeal against an order or conviction of a court of summary jurisdiction by the S. J. A., 1884, s. 6 provisions. (11 Halsbury's Statutes 356), of which substitutes the corresponding provisions of the Summary Jurisdiction Acts.

See hereon R. v. Goodall, and other cases cited, ante, pp. 630, 631.

(l) The procedure at the hearing of the appeal is regulated by "Baines' Act," now called the Quarter Sessions Act, 1849, as to which see ante, p. 631.

(m) A certiorari is not now necessary to bring up the case (S. J. A., 1879, s. 40; 11 Halsbury's Statutes 345).

As to the practice as to a case stated by sessions, see ante, pp. 631—634.

authority.

276. The Local Government Board may, on the application (a) of the authority of any rural district, or of persons rated to the relief of the poor, the assessment of whose hereditaments amounts at the least to one-tenth of the net rateable value (b) of such district, or of any contributory place therein, by Order to be published in the London Gazette, or in such other manner as the Local Government Board may direct, declare any provisions of this Act in force in urban districts to be in force in such rural district or contributory place, and may invest such authority with all or any (c) of the powers rights duties capacities liabilities and obligations of an urban authority under this Act; and such investment may be made either unconditionally or subject to any conditions to be specified by the Board as to the time, portion of the district, or manner during at and in which such powers rights duties liabilities capacities and obligations are to be exercised and attach: Provided that an Order of the Local Government Board made on the application of one-tenth of the persons rated to the relief of the poor in any contributory place shall not invest the rural authority with any new powers beyond the limits of such contributory place.

See further as to investing a rural authority with urban powers, the P. H. A. Amendment Act, 1890, s. 5, post, p. 4803, and the P. H. A., 1925, s. 4 (2), Vol. V., post, and see also the L. G. A., 1894, s. 25 (7), post, p. 4907, which provides that the powers of the L. G. B. under s. 276, supra, or under any enactment applying that section, may be exercised on the application of a county council, or with respect to any parish or part of a parish, on the application of the parish council of that parish. M. of H. must of course now be read for L. G. B.

A wide general order under the powers of s. 276 and of the L. G. A., 1894, s. 25, post, p. 4905, was made by the Minister to take effect as from September 1st, 1931 (Rural District Councils (Urban Powers) Order, 1931; S. R. & O., 1931, No. 580). See ante, p. 3287. Under this Order, subject to certain provisos, rural district councils were to have the powers, duties, and liabilities of urban authorities under a large number of sections of this Act and of the P. H. A. Amendment Act, 1890, post, p. 4801. In many instances the former provisions are now repealed and re-enacted in the P. H. A., 1936, ante, pp. 4 et seq., or elsewhere, but the order is still the authority for a rural district council to exercise the powers of an urban authority under the following sections: s. 26, ante, p. 4346 (penalty on unauthorised building under carriage-way of a street); s. 157, ante, p. 4432 (byelaws with respect to new streets); s. 158, ante, p. 4442 (commencement of works subject to byelaws and removal of works constructed contrary to byelaws); s. 160, ante, p. 4443, in so far as it incorporates with this Act the provisions of ss. 69, 70, of the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, ante, pp. 4204, 4206 (removal of future or existing obstructions, projections, etc., obstructing passage along street); s. 164, ante, p. 4451 (provision, etc., of public walks and pleasure grounds and their regulation by byelaws); s. 165, ante, p. 4457 (provision, etc., of public clocks); and s. 172, ante, p. 4460 (licensing of proprietors, drivers and conductors of horses, etc., standing for hire : byelaws ; licensing of proprietors and persons in charge of pleasure boats and vessels : byelaws). As regards the Act of 1890, post, p. 4801, the Order is still the authority for the exercise of powers under the following sections : s. 34, post, p. 4811 (erection of hoards, etc., during building operations) ; s. 35, post, p. 4812 (repair of cellars, etc., under streets) ; s. 38, post, p. 4813 (byelaws for prevention of danger from steam whirligigs and swings and from shooting ranges and galleries) ; s. 39 post, p. 4814 (provision, etc., of street refuges, etc.) ; s. 40, post, p. 4815 (cabmen's shelters) ; s. 42, post, p. 4817 (statues and monuments in streets and public places) ; s. 43, post, p. 4817 (planting, etc., by local authority of trees in highways) ; ss. 44, 45, post, pp. 4818, 4819 (extension of powers as to public parks, walks, and pleasure grounds) ; and s. 46, post, p. 4819 (repair, winding, etc., of public clocks).

The powers under this section were saved by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 272 (2), ante, p. 1153, but were excluded by the Road Traffic Act, 1934, s. 23 ; Vol. V. and 27 Halsbury's Statutes 552.

(a) As to how an application for an order should be made, see note (b) to s. 13 (1) of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 19.

(b) The poor rate is now absorbed in the "general rate," and this provision must be construed as having reference to the "net annual value" as determined under the R. and V. A., 1925 (s. 69 (2), ibid., ante, p. 2233). The valuation list will be in the custody of the rural district council as rating authority.

(c) See note (f) to s. 13 (1) of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 20.

Union of Districts.

* * * * *

285. Any local authority may, with the consent of the local authority of any adjoining district, execute and do in such adjoining (a) district all or any of such works and things as they may execute and do within their own district, and on such terms as to payment or otherwise as may be agreed on between them and the local authority of the adjoining district ; moreover two or more local authorities may combine together (b) for the purpose of executing and maintaining any works that may be for the benefit of their respective districts or any part thereof. All moneys which any local authority may agree to contribute for defraying expenses incurred under this section shall be deemed to be expenses incurred by them in the execution of works within their district.

Power to execute works in adjoining district, and to combine for execution of works.

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

(a) In a colonial case the word "adjacent" was contrasted with the word "adjoining," and was held to include places close to or near, and was not confined to places adjoining (Wellington (Mayor of) v. Lower Hutt (Mayor of), [1904] A. C. 773 ; 44 Digest 148, 158). See also as to the meaning of the word "adjoining," p. 352, ante.

The L. G. B. expressed the opinion that in the case of a combination of authorities under s. 285 for the execution of sewerage works of common benefit no sanction on their part was necessary under s. 28 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 638 ; now s. 28 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 84) to the communication of sewers, nor were notices under ss. 32, 54 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 639, 649) necessary, unless the proposed work would lie outside the area of the combining authorities.

This section did not apply to the powers conferred by s. 131 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 678) (now s. 181 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 446) so as to require for their exercise in an adjoining district the consent of the local authority of such district (Withington L. B. v. Manchester (Mayor, etc. of), [1893] 2 Ch. 19 ; 57 J. P. 340 ;

Note to Section 285.

38 Digest 199, 346). "The object of s. 285 is to enable the local authority acting under it to do certain things as within their powers which, but for the section, would have been outside their powers. They can do certain things in an adjoining district without the imputation of acting ultra vires if they have got the consent of the local authority. But, in my opinion, that has not the effect of making the adjoining district or that portion of it their own district for all the purposes of s. 16 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 633); or, in other words, it does not dispense with the necessity, as between themselves and owners of land or other persons, of observing the requirements that have to be observed with respect to sewers where sewers are made outside the district of the board that is making them" (per NORTH, J., in Jones v. Conway and Colwyn Bay Joint Water Supply Board, [1893] 2 Ch. 603, at p. 609; 43 Digest 1061, 28), and see note (a), ante, p. 27.

(b) As to the union of districts, see P. H. A., 1936, s. 6, ante, p. 10, and as to joint committees, s. 9 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 854.

Advantages of joint board over joint committee.

When works of magnitude are required for the joint benefit of two or more districts the M. of H. favour the constitution of a joint board under s. 6 of the 1936 Act, rather than a combination under s. 285. A committee have no power of themselves to borrow money or to hold property or to sue or be sued. A joint board, however, is free from these disadvantages, and executes powers independently of the local authorities comprised within the united district. By s. 10 of the 1936 Act, ante, p. 15, they are enabled to borrow money, and under ibid., s. 6 (2), ante, p. 11, they are a body corporate with power to hold lands for the purposes for which they are constituted. They are also empowered to issue precepts to the local authorities within the united district for the sums to be contributed by such authorities towards the expenses of the joint board, and in case of default to raise sums precepted for under s. 13 of the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, p. 2156.

Where a corporation and a district council combined under ss. 131, 285 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 678 and supra) to provide a joint hospital, it was held that the salaried clerk of the joint hospital committee held a paid office "under the district council," and was therefore disqualified for membership thereof (Greville-Smith v. Tomlin, [1911] 2 K. B. 9; 75 J. P. 314; 33 Digest 10, 14).

Two authorities liable to repair a length of a road in strips agreed to each repair the whole width for half the length:—Held, that one of them could not plead this agreement as a defence to an action for not performing its duty on a portion legally repairable by it, but informally transferred to the other (Gray v. St. Andrews and Cupar District Committees, [1911] S. C. 266; 26 Digest 386, i).

PART IX.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD.

Inquiries by Board.

Power of Board to direct inquiries.

293. The Local Government Board may from time to time cause to be made such inquiries as are directed by this Act, and such inquiries as they see fit in relation to any matters concerning the public health in any place, or any matters with respect to which their sanction approval or consent is required by this Act.

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be necessary for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

These powers in relation to the public health were assigned to the Privy Council by P. H. A., 1858, s. 3, and transferred to the L. G. B. by Local Government Board Act, 1871, ante, p. 4319. This passage, therefore, only repeated earlier provisions. It will be seen that certain inquiries are directed by the Act; as to these the M. of H. (successors of the Board) has no discretion. See s. 234, ante, p. 4477, and s. 297, post, p. 4507. They have, however, a discretion as to other inquiries for the purposes of the Act. See, generally, notes to L. G. A., 1933, s. 290, ante, pp. 1170 et seq.

Section 293.

294. The Local Government Board may make Orders as to the costs of inquiries or proceedings instituted by, or of appeals to the said Board under this Act, and as to the parties by whom or the rates out of which such costs shall be borne; and every such Order may be made a rule of one of the superior courts of law on the application of any person named therein.

Orders as to costs of inquiries.

The words in italics were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. I., ante, pp. 1194, 1273, and the whole section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

See notes to L. G. A., 1933, s. 290 (5), ante, p. 1173.

295. All Orders made by the Local Government Board in pursuance of this Act shall be binding and conclusive in respect of the matters to which they refer, and shall be published in such manner as that Board may direct.

Orders of Board under
this Act.

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

Questions of some difficulty have arisen as to the effect of Orders which are alleged to exceed the powers given by this Act, or with respect to which the preliminaries prescribed by this Act have not been strictly complied with. The confirmatory Acts formerly only confirmed the Orders so far as they were authorised by the Acts. In such cases it became important to determine how far the requisite preliminaries were conditions precedent to the validity of the Order although confirmed by statute. The following cases illustrate these remarks. The General Board of Health made a Provisional Order extending the P. H. A., 1848, to T., a district within which were parts of turnpike roads made under local turnpike Acts. A local sanitary Act also applied to the district, which was altered by this Order, and it was directed that after confirmation of the Order by Parliament, s. 50 of the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, which forbids trustees of any turnpike road from levying toll within the limits of the special Act, should be incorporated with the sanitary Act. This Provisional Order was confirmed by the statute so far as authorised by the above Act. It was held that this part of the Provisional Order was not authorised, and consequently was void. The court considered that toll on the turnpike road was not a matter which came within the scope of the Public Health Act (Clayton v. Fernwick (1856), 6 E. & B. 114; 20 J. P. 180; 38 Digest 150, 8). An Order of the General Board of Health rendering the same Act applicable to the borough of T., but excepting the operation of so much of s. 88 as provided for the rating of pasture lands, railways, etc., at a reduced rate, was held to be invalid in respect of this exception (N. E. Rail. Co. v. Tynemouth (Mayor, etc., of) (1868), L. R. 3 Q. B. 723; 32 J. P. 822; 38 Digest 151, 17). But where an Order, confirmed by statute, repealed a local Act which created a district rate, but exempted certain property from such rate, and the clause containing the exemption was preserved by such Order, the court held that the Order had no operation with regard to rates imposed by the Public Health Act, for the rating clause of the Act having been repealed, there was nothing to which the exception could apply (Turner v. Halifax (Mayor of) (1868), 9 B. & S. 623, n.; 38 Digest 151, 16).

Section 295.

In Att.-Gen. v. Hamwell U. D. C., [1900] 1 Ch., at p. 56; 63 J. P., at p. 825, in dealing with an argument that this section was conclusive as to the jurisdiction of the L. G. B. to make an Order under s. 175 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 699), directing land to be applied to purposes inconsistent with the purpose for which it was originally acquired, KEKEWICH, J., after citing this section, said: "But that does not prevent the court from considering the question of jurisdiction. It cannot be intended that an Order of the L. G. B. made without jurisdiction is to be held conclusive in a court of justice. It must be the duty of the court to inquire whether the Order could properly be made. If it could properly be made, it would be conclusive under s. 295, though there might be some irregularities about it, and though perhaps it ought not to have been made." On appeal, this part of the judgment was not questioned, and the decision on the main point was affirmed ([1900] 2 Ch. 377; 33 Digest 8, 1). See also Baroness Wenlock v. River Dee Co. (1888), 38 Ch. D. 534.

In R. v. Robinson (1851), 17 Q. B. 466; 15 J. P. 402; 37 Digest 202, 7, it was held that an order of the Poor Law Commissioners (whose powers are now vested in the Minister of Health) might be quashed in part on certiorari if the parts were sufficiently divisible. But see s. 262, ante, p. 4492.

See a discussion on the conclusiveness of orders of the L. G. B. made under s. 33 of the L. G. A., 1894 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 798; now repealed), and as to the right to make an amending Order (Jones v. Lewis, [1919] 1 K. B. 328; 83 J. P. 61; 21 Digest 161, 219).

As to the force and effect of departmental orders which affect the rights of property, see Frewin v. Lewis (1837), 9 Sim. 66; Foster v. Dodd (1866), L. R. 1 Q. B. 475; (1867), L. R. 3 Q. B. 67; 32 J. P. 20; 7 Digest 558, 338. In Att.-Gen. v. Manchester (Bishop of) (1867), L. R. 3 Eq. 436, at p. 455; 31 J. P. 516; 19 Digest 458, 3048, STUART, V.-C., quoted the following passage from the judgment of COTENHAM, L.C., in Frewin v. Lewis, supra, as laying down the rule of law: "I apprehend that the limits within which the court interferes with the acts of public functionaries constituted like the Poor Law Commissioners are perfectly clear and unambiguous. So long as those functionaries strictly confine themselves within the exercise of those duties which are confided to them by the law, this court will not interfere to see whether any alteration or regulation which they may direct is good or bad; but if they are departing from that power which the law has vested in them—if they are assuming to themselves a power over property which the law does not give them—this court no longer considers them as acting under the authority of their commission, but treats them, whether they be a corporation or individuals, merely as persons dealing with property without legal authority." See also Woodford Land and Building Co., Ltd. v. Woodford U. D. C. (1921), 19 L. G. R. 559; 42 Digest 5, 17.

For a case where an award of partition was disregarded as being made without jurisdiction notwithstanding s. 105 of the Inclosure Act, 1845 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 490), see Jacomb v. Turner, [1892] 1 Q. B. 47; 22 Digest 277, 2638.

Where a statute authorised the making of rules and orders, and declared that they should have effect as if enacted in the Act, but should be laid before Parliament, and if either House so resolved within 60 days should be annulled, it was held that a court could not consider whether Orders so made and not annulled were ultra vires (Patent Agents' Institute v. Lockwood, [1894] A. C. 347; 42 Digest 613, 139); and see Re London and General Bank (1894), 38 Sol. Jo. 682. The decision in the Patent Agents' Institute case was distinguished in Waterford Corporation v. Murphy, [1920] 2 I. R. 165, which dealt with byelaws whose scope was limited, and it was held that the limit had been exceeded. See also per YOUNGER, L.J., in R. v. Electricity Commissioners, [1924] 1 K. B. 171, at p. 212; 88 J. P. at p. 19; Digest Supp.; R. v. Minister of Health, Ex parte Yaffe, [1930] 2 K. B. 98; 94 J. P. 98.

Where an Act declares that an Order made under it shall be final and have effect as if enacted in the Act, and that confirmation by the L. G. B. or M. of H. shall be conclusive evidence that the requirements of the Act have been complied with, and that the Order has been duly made and is within the powers of the Act, the courts cannot interfere if some requirement has not been complied with (Ex parte Ringer (1909), 73 J. P. 436; 25 T. L. R. 718; 42 Digest 2, 1; R. (Eustace) v. Local Government Board (1910), 44 Ir. L. T. 176, not following R. (Whyte) v. Local Government Board (1909), 43 Ir. L. T. 216); and see R. v. L. G. B. for Ireland, [1917] 2 I. R. 454. Where a resolution of the local authority did not require the confirmation of the department and the Act provided that the effect should be as if the order had been confirmed so that the resolution was to have effect as if enacted in the Act and to be deemed to be duly made and within the powers of the Act, the court refused to give any decision on the law and relied on the facts of the case (Woodford Land and Building Co., Ltd. v. Woodford U. D. C. (1921), 19 L. G. R. 559; 42 Digest 5, 17).

Section 295.

An Order of the L. G. B. made under s. 276, ante, p. 4502, declared s. 150 of the Act, ante, p. 4388, to be in force as to a particular road, which road the Order purported to declare to be a "street." It was held that the matter to which it referred was, first, the application of s. 150 (among other sections) to the so-called street; and, secondly, the investing of the rural authority with the powers of an urban authority, so far as regards the so-called street, but that the mere description of the road as a street in the Order could not make it one if it was not one in fact (Fenwick v. Croydon Union Rural Sanitary Authority, [1891] 2 Q. B. 216; 55 J. P. 470; 38 Digest 150, 10). See also Att.-Gen. v. Hanwell U. D. C., ante, p. 4506.

Besides other modes of enforcing such Orders, they may be enforced under certain circumstances by mandamus, and perhaps by indictment. See R. v. Walker (1875), L. R. 10 Q. B. 355; 40 J. P. 230; 14 Digest 203, 182*A*.

With regard to defaulting authorities, see s. 299, post, p. 4508, and notes thereto.

Provisional Orders by Board.

297. With respect to Provisional Orders authorised to be made by the Local Government Board under this Act, the following enactments shall be made :

As to Provisional Orders made by Local Government
Board.

- (1) The Local Government Board shall not make any Provisional Order under this Act unless public notice of the purport of the proposed Order has been previously given by advertisement in two successive weeks in some local newspaper circulating in the district to which such Provisional Order relates :
- (2) Before making any such Provisional Order, the Local Government Board shall consider any objections which may be made thereto by any persons affected thereby, and in cases where the subject matter is one to which a local inquiry is applicable, shall cause to be made a local inquiry, of which public notice shall be given in manner aforesaid, and at which all persons interested shall be permitted to attend and make objections :
- (3) The Local Government Board may submit to Parliament for confirmation any Provisional Order made by it in pursuance of this Act, but any such Order shall be of no force whatever unless and until it is confirmed by Parliament :
- (4) If while the Bill confirming any such Order is pending in either House of Parliament, a petition is presented against any Order comprised therein, the Bill, so far as it relates to such Order, may be referred to a Select Committee, and the petitioner shall be allowed to appear and oppose as in the case of private Bills :
- (5) Any Act confirming any Provisional Order made in pursuance of any of the Sanitary Acts or of this Act, and any Order in Council made in pursuance of any of the Sanitary Acts, may be repealed altered or amended by any Provisional Order made by the Local Government Board and confirmed by Parliament :

- Section 297. (6) The Local Government Board may revoke, either wholly or partially, any Provisional Order made by them before the same is confirmed by Parliament, but such revocation shall not be made whilst the Bill confirming the Order is pending in either House of Parliament :
- (7) The making of a Provisional Order shall be prima facie evidence that all the requirements of this Act in respect of proceedings required to be taken previously to the making of such Provisional Order have been complied with :
- (8) Every Act confirming any such provisional Order shall be deemed to be a public general Act.

For notes on this section, see notes to s. 285 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, pp. 1165 et seq.

Costs of Provisional
Orders.

298. The reasonable costs of any local authority in respect of Provisional Orders made in pursuance of this Act, and of the inquiry preliminary thereto, as sanctioned by the Local Government Board, whether in promoting or opposing the same, shall be deemed to be expenses properly incurred for purposes of this Act, by the local authority interested in or affected by such Provisional Orders, and such costs shall be paid accordingly; and if thought expedient by the Local Government Board, the local authority may contract a loan for the purpose of defraying such costs.

For notes on this section, see notes to s. 285 (2) of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, pp. 1167, 1168.

Power of Board to enforce Performance of Duty by Defaulting Local Authority.

Proceedings on complaint to Board of default of local authority.

299. Where complaint (a) is made to the Local Government Board that a local authority has made default in providing their district (b) with sufficient sewers, or in the maintenance of existing sewers (c), or in providing their district with a supply of water, in cases where danger arises to the health of the inhabitants from the insufficiency or unwholesomeness of the existing supply of water, and a proper supply can be got at a reasonable cost (d), or that a local authority has made default in enforcing any provisions of this Act which it is their duty to enforce (e), the Local Government Board, if satisfied, after due inquiry (a), that the authority has been guilty of the alleged default, shall make an Order (f), limiting a time for the performance of their duty in the matter of such complaint. If such duty is not performed by the time limited in the Order, such Order may be enforced by writ of mandamus (g), or the Local Government Board may appoint some person to perform such duty (h), and shall by Order direct that the expenses of performing the same, together with a reasonable remuneration to the person appointed for superintending such performance, and amounting to a sum specified in the Order, together with the costs of the proceedings, shall be paid by the authority in default; and any Order made for the payment of such expenses and costs may be removed into the Court of Queen's Bench (i), and be enforced in the same manner as if the same were an order of such court (k).

Any person appointed under this section to perform the duty of a Section 299. defaulting local authority shall, in the performance and for the purposes of such duty, be invested with all the powers of such authority other than (save as hereinafter provided) the powers of levying rates; and the Local Government Board may from time to time by Order change any person so appointed (h).

This section has been repealed for a number of purposes. In so far as it relates to district (including non-county borough) councils it was repealed by the L. G. A., 1929, s. 57 (4), and Sched. XII., Pt. IV.; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 923, 1016, and s. 57 (3) of that Act contained provisions for enforcing the performance of a function in respect of which a district council is in default. The new subsection was wider in its scope than the provision in the text since it dealt with any default "in providing their district or any part thereof with a sewerage system or sewage disposal works or an adequate supply of water, or in discharging any other function relating to public health which it is their duty to discharge." Where the Minister was satisfied under that sub-section that such default had been made he might by order require the function to be performed within a time specified in the order, and in default of compliance with the order transfer the function by order to the county council. Reference should be made to the subsection and notes thereto, post, but s. 57 (3) of the L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 923, has in its turn been repealed (1) as regards functions relating to public health which are functions under the P. H. A., 1936 (see ibid., s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. V., ante, pp. 720, 732), and (2) so far as regards functions relating to public health which are functions under the Food and Drugs Act, 1938 (see ibid., s. 101, Sched. IV., Pt. I., ante, pp. 1451, 1457).

This section has also been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as is material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

The section in the text now applies only to county boroughs, to which s. 57 (3) of the L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 923, does not apply, and only to the limited extent now remaining.

(a) As to the complaint, see note (a) to s. 322 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 666.

(b) The complaint need not relate to the district as a whole, though the Minister Meaning of will not make an Order unless an appreciable part of the district is concerned. In "district." the case of the city of Rochester, in which both the complaint and Order referred to "the village of Borstal," it was held by the court that the portion of the city thus described was sufficiently defined and well known, and that the Order should be enforced by mandamus (Times, November 22nd, 1892).

Under s. 57 (3) of L. G. A., 1929, an order may be made if any part of the district is not supplied with the services referred to therein.

(c) The duty of a local authority to provide and maintain sewers is not now a function under this Act. It will be seen that a complaint cannot be sustained under s. 299 that a local authority have failed to provide sewers for the purpose of carrying off liquid trade refuse. It will be observed also that no reference is made to works of sewage disposal. Therefore, mere failure to provide proper works for the purification of sewage cannot be the subject of complaint under this section. Procedure under the Rivers Pollution Prevention Acts is usually appropriate in such cases. Section 57 (3) of the L. G. A., 1929, does refer specifically to sewage disposal works, but, as pointed out above, that subsection has no application to county boroughs.

(d) As to complaints in regard to water supply, see note, ante, p. 666.

(e) See note, ante, p. 666.

(f) This order is in itself binding and conclusive: see s. 295, ante, p. 628. It The Order. must be directed to and served upon the defaulting authority. The obtaining of such an order does not prevent the person, who has obtained it for the purpose of putting an end to a nuisance, from proceeding by action for an injunction to restrain the continuance thereof (Whitefield v. Newquay L. B. (1882), 72 L. T. Jo., p. 349).

It was formerly held that a refusal by the department to make an order might be considered by the court sufficient to justify their refusing a mandamus if a com-

Note to Section 299. — plainant applied directly for the writ (R. v. Tottenham L. B. (1893), 9 T. L. R. 414; 41 Digest 23, 181); but according to the decision of the House of Lords in Pasmore v. Oswaldtwistle U. D. C., ante, p. 667, a complainant cannot go to the court at all.

Mandamus.

(g) In several cases a writ of mandamus was obtained by the L. G. B. Upon an application for a writ, the court do not inquire whether there has been a due inquiry under this section. The court is bound to grant the writ at the request of the department, unless there has been some legal error or some omission to apply the ordinary legal procedure (R. v. Staines Union, R. v. Staines L. B. (1893), 58 J. P. 182; 62 L. J. Q. B. 540; 38 Digest 153, 36). The writ against the Staines local board was afterwards made peremptory, notwithstanding a return that the local board required time to prepare a scheme and estimate for obtaining the necessary funds (R. v. Staines L. B., Times, February 27th, 1894). A fresh mandamus was asked for after the passing of the L. G. A., 1894, post, p. 4892, against the successors of the local board, and the rule was eventually made absolute (R. v. Sunbury-on-Thames U. D. C., Times, June 4th and July 20th, 1896).

Upon application of the L. G. B. a peremptory writ of mandamus issued to the W. corporation requiring the execution of certain sewerage works. The writ being disobeyed, writs of attachment against certain members of the council were ordered to issue, but to lie in the office for a specified period, which was extended from time to time. The corporation afterwards asked that, having satisfied the L. G. B. that the works were in process of execution with due diligence, the time should be still further extended. The court, being satisfied that the work was being diligently carried on, ordered the writs to remain in the office for an unspecified period, the matter to stand over generally with liberty to apply (R. v. Worcester Corporation (1905), 69 J. P. 296; 3 L. G. R. 468; 16 Digest 346, 1728).

(h) The alternative procedure open to the Minister of Health under the section—of appointing some person to perform the duty—is never adopted by him, and was not favoured by the L. G. B.

(i) Now the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice.

(k) Under the corresponding enactment in Sanitary Act, 1866, s. 49, an order was made that "the said authority do its duty, and begin to set about the works for the purpose within one month from the date of this order, and proceed therewith until completion." After the month, the authority having done nothing, a second order was made appointing J. B. to perform the said duty of the authority as he should be directed. It was held that the two orders were justified by the section (R. v. Cockerell (1871), L. R. 6 Q. B. 252; 35 J. P. 693; 38 Digest 153, 30). It was also held that it was not necessary to provide for the expenses in the latter order.

As to the enforcing of the Order, see Judgments Act, 1838, s. 18 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 23), and the R. S. C., Order XLII., r. 31, which enables an order against a corporation to be enforced by sequestration or attachment. See also the next section.

Further provision for recovery of expenses.

300. Any sum specified in an Order of the Local Government Board for payment of the expenses of performing the duty of a defaulting local authority, together with the costs of the proceedings, shall be deemed to be expenses properly incurred by such authority, and to be a debt due from such authority, and payable out of any moneys in the hands of such authority or of their officers, or out of any rate applicable to the payment of any expenses properly incurred by such authority, which rate is in this part of this Act referred to as "the local rate." If the defaulting authority refuses to pay any such sum, with costs, as aforesaid, for a period of fourteen days after demand, the Local Government Board may by Order empower any person to levy, by and out of the local rate, such sum (the amount to be specified in the Order) as may, in the opinion of the Local Government Board, be sufficient to defray

Any person or persons so empowered shall have the same powers of levying the local rate, and requiring all officers of the defaulting authority to pay over any moneys in their hands, as the defaulting authority would have in the case of expenses legally payable out of a local rate to be raised by such authority; and the said person or persons, after repaying all sums of money so due in respect of the Order, shall pay the surplus, if any, (the amount to be ascertained by the Local Government Board), to or to the order of the defaulting authority.

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 729, except so far as may be material for the purpose of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith. It was previously repealed in so far as it applied to district (including non-county borough) councils (s. 57 (4) and Sched. XII., Pt. IV., L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 923, 1016). It therefore only now applies to county borough councils and is practically inoperative. See note (h) to s. 299, ante, p. 4510. As to rates see now the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, p. 2113.

301. The Local Government Board may from time to time certify the amount of expenses that have been incurred, or an estimate of the expenses about to be incurred, by any person appointed by the said Board under this Act to perform the duty of a defaulting local authority; also, the amount of any loan required to be raised for the purpose of defraying any expenses that have been so incurred, or are estimated as about to be incurred; and the certificate of the said Board shall be conclusive as to all matters to which it relates.

Power of Board to borrow to defray expenses of performing duty of defaulting authority.

Whenever the Local Government Board so certifies a loan to be required, the Public Works Loan Commissioners may advance to the Local Government Board, or to any person appointed as aforesaid, the amount of the loan so certified to be required on the security of the local rate, without requiring any other security; and the Local Government Board, or the person so appointed, may, by any instrument duly executed, charge the local rate with the repayment of the principal and interest due in respect of such loan, and every such charge shall have the same effect as if the defaulting local authority were empowered to raise such loan on the security of the local rate, and had duly executed an instrument charging the same on the local rate.

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 729, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith. It was previously repealed in so far as it applied to district (including non-county borough) councils (s. 57 (4) and Sched. XII., Pt. IV., L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 923, 1016). It therefore only now applies to county borough councils and is practically inoperative. See note (h) to s. 299, ante, p. 4510. The local rate is now the general rate, see the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, p. 2113.

302. Any principal money or interest for the time being due in respect of any loan under this Act made for payment of the expenses incurred or to be incurred in the performance of the duty of a defaulting local authority shall be taken to be a debt due from such authority, Recovery of principal and interest.

Section 302. and, in addition to any other remedies, may be recovered in the manner in which a debt due from a defaulting authority may be recovered in pursuance of the provisions of this part of this Act.

The surplus (if any) of any such loan, after payment of the expenses aforesaid, shall, on the amount thereof being certified by the Local Government Board, be paid to or to the order of the defaulting authority.

"Expenses," for the purposes of the provisions of this part of this Act relating to defaulting local authorities, shall include all sums payable under those provisions by or by the Order of the Local Government Board, or the person appointed by that Board.

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 729, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith. It was previously repealed in so far as it related to district (including non-county borough) councils (s. 57 (4) and Sched. XII., Pt. IV., L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 923, 1016). It now therefore only applies to county borough councils and is practically inoperative. See note (h) to s. 299, ante, p. 4510.

Powers of Board in relation to Local Acts, etc.

Power to repeal and alter local
Acts.

303. The Local Government Board may, on the application of the local authority of any district, by Provisional Order, wholly or partially repeal alter or amend any local Act, other than an Act for the conservancy of rivers, which is in force in any area comprising the whole or part of any such district, and not conferring powers or privileges on any persons or person for their or his own pecuniary benefit, which relates to the same subject-matters as this Act.

Any such Provisional Order may provide for the extension of the provisions of the local Act referred to therein beyond the district or districts within the limits of such Act, or for the exclusion of the whole or a portion of any such district from the application of such Act; and may provide what local authority shall have jurisdiction for the purposes of this Act in any area which is by such Order included in or excluded from such district.

This section was applied with amendments by s. 317 of the P. H. A., 1936. For notes to that section, ante, pp. 662—3.

Settlement of differences arising out of transfer of powers or property to local authority.

304. On the application of any authority from whom or to whom any powers rights duties capacities liabilities obligations and property, or any of them, are at any time transferred or alleged or claimed to be transferred in pursuance of this Act, or any Provisional Order made thereunder, or on the application of any person (a) affected by such transfer, the Local Government Board may by Order (b) settle any doubt or difference, and adjust any accounts arising out of or incidental to such powers rights duties capacities liabilities obligations or property, or to the transfer thereof, and direct the parties by whom and to whom any moneys found to be due are to be paid, and the mode of raising such moneys; and any provisions contained in any Order so made shall be deemed to have been made in pursuance of and to be within the powers conferred by this section, subject to this proviso, that where any such Order directs any rate to be made, or other act or thing to be done, which the party required to make or do would not, apart from the provisions of this Act, have been enabled to make or do by law, such Order shall be provisional only until it has been confirmed by Parliament (c). Section 304.

Any settlement or adjustment under this section may be included in any Provisional Order which gives rise to the same.

As alterations of boundary are not now made under the powers of this Act, the present section may be regarded as superseded as regards urban and rural districts. Joint Boards still come under the section.

(a) The L. G. B. declined to entertain questions of disputed liabilities or disputed accounts between local authorities and contractors, considering that such disputes and questions should be settled by arbitration or in a court of law. It is to be observed that this section did not constitute the Board the sole tribunal for any of the disputes to which the section refers. In this respect it differs from the local Act in question in Bexley L. B. v. West Kent Sewerage Board (1882), 9 Q. B. D. 518; 46 J. P. 519; 2 Digest 460, 1063. In that case the sewerage board was incorporated by a local Act (West Kent Main Sewerage Act, 1875), of which s. 93 enacted that if any difference should arise between the board on the one hand and any constituted authority on the other hand, or between any two or more constituted authorities, or between any constituted authority and any parish or person, respecting any assessment of a main sewer rate, or any determination of the board, or any controversy or other matter under the Act, the same should by virtue of the Act stand referred for decision to the L. G. B., whose decision thereon and with reference to the cost of the reference was to be final and binding. A dispute having arisen between the sewerage board and the Bexley L. B. respecting a claim made by the latter for compensation for damage done to the highways, etc., of the district, the disputants, with the consent of the L. G. B., stated a case for the opinion of the Queen's Bench Division. It was held that it was not competent for them to do so, the L. G. B. being by s. 93 constituted the tribunal, whose decision on the matter was to be final and binding, and the statement of the case not being a submission to arbitration within the meaning of the Common Law Procedure Act, 1854, s. 5 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 176), which applied only to compulsory references under the Act, or to references by consent of parties where the submission was or might be made a rule of court.

PART X.

MISCELLANEOUS AND TEMPORARY PROVISIONS.

Miscellaneous.

305. Whenever it becomes necessary for a local authority or any of their officers to enter examine or lay open any lands or premises for the purpose (a) of making plans surveying measuring taking levels making keeping in repair or examining works, ascertaining the course of sewers or drains, or ascertaining or fixing boundaries (b), and the owner or occupier of such lands or premises refuses to permit the lands for purposes of

Act.

Section 305. same to be entered upon examined or laid open for the purposes aforesaid or any of them, the local authority may, after written notice (c) to such owner or occupier, apply to a court of summary jurisdiction (d) for an order authorising the local authority to enter examine and lay open the said lands and premises for the purposes aforesaid or any of them.

If no sufficient cause is shown against the application the court may make an order accordingly (e), and on such order being made the local authority or any of their officers (f) may, at all reasonable times between the hours of nine in the forenoon and six in the afternoon, enter examine or lay open the lands or premises mentioned in such order, for such of the said purposes as are therein specified, without being subject to any action or molestation for so doing: Provided that, except in case of emergency (g), no entry shall be made or works commenced under this section unless at least twenty-four hours' notice of the intended entry, and of the object thereof, be given to the occupier of the premises intended to be entered.

Purposes of entry.

(a) Care must be taken not to claim an entrance for any purpose not specified here. An entrance for the purpose of examining drains and privies, as to nuisances, and as to unsound meat, etc., can be obtained under other Acts. See also the power of entry given by the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, s. 84, ante, p. 4135, which may be incorporated herewith by Provisional Order; and the provision in the next section for the admission of owners by occupiers to execute works.

Semble this section does not enable an authority to obtain an order in the case of an owner's refusal to permit an entry for purposes connected with the laying of a sewer (Lamacraft v. St. Thomas R. S. A. (1880), 44 J. P. 441; 42 L. T. 365; 41 Digest 23, 175). See what is said hereon at p. 28, ante, and see also Diss Urban Sanitary Authority v. Aldrich, ante, p. 581. In Wheatcroft v. Matlock L. B. (1885), 52 L. T. 356; 38 Digest 117, 840, DENMAN, J., thought that the section would not apply where a landowner has refused to permit an authority to enter his land for the purpose of covering in or otherwise improving a sewer under ss. 18 and 19 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 634; now ss. 22, 31 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, pp. 67, 102). In Robinson v. Sunderland Corporation, ante, p. 581, CHANNELL, J., expressed the opinion that the words "for the purpose of doing works which they have statutory authority to do" may be read into s. 305, but the attention of the court was not called to Wheatcroft v. Matlock L. B., or Lamacraft v. St. Thomas R. S. A., supra.

Fixing and ascertaining boundaries.

(b) It does not appear that the local authority have any power to fix boundaries, but the power to enter to ascertain boundaries may perhaps be exercised for the purposes of Part VI. of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, pp. 920 et seq.

Notice.

(c) As to the authentication and service of this notice, see ss. 266, 267, ante, p. 4494.

(d) See the definition, ante, p. 4345.

Authority for officer.

(e) On the question what is "sufficient cause," see note, ante, p. 581.

(f) The officer should be provided with some authority from the council.

Case of emergency.

(g) The person who enters must determine at his peril whether the case be one of emergency. Therefore, it will be safest to give notice, unless the emergency is obvious.

Penalty on obstructing execution of Act.

306. Any person who wilfully obstructs (a) any member of the local authority, or any person duly employed in the execution of this Act, . . . shall, . . . be liable for every such offence to a penalty not exceeding five pounds (b).

Where the occupier of any premises prevents the owner thereof from obeying or carrying into effect any provisions of this Act, any justice to whom application is made in this behalf shall, by order in writing (c), require such occupier to permit the execution of any works required to be executed, provided that the same appear to such justice to be necessary for the purpose of obeying or carrying into effect the provisions of this Act; and if within twenty-four hours after the making (d) of the order such occupier fails to comply therewith, he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds for every day during the continuance of such non-compliance (e).

If the occupier of any premises, when requested by or on behalf of the local authority to state the name of the owner of the premises occupied by him, refuses or wilfully omits to disclose or wilfully mis-states the same, he shall (unless he shows cause to the satisfaction of the court for his refusal) be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds (e).

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 729, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith. Certain words in the first paragraph were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. I., ante, pp. 1194, 1273.

(a) As to what amounts to "obstruction," see note (a) to s. 288 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 582.

(b) As to the recovery of this penalty, see s. 251, ante, p. 4481. It is not necessary that the justices should be acting for the petty sessional division in which the matter of complaint arises. See R. v. Brodhurst (1863), 27 J. P. 580; 33 Digest 308, 276. See also note (d) under s. 251, ante, p. 4482.

The defendant is not necessarily entitled to have the case dismissed because the obstruction took place in assertion of a claim of right, nor are the justices for that reason alone justified in refusing as frivolous an application for a special case (R. v. Pollard (1866), 14 L. T. 599; 38 Digest 173, 161).

(c) See the Form E. in Sched. IV., post, p. 4523, which recites the issue of a summons to the party complained of, and his failure to show sufficient cause against the order.

(d) In Nuisances Removal Act, 1855, s. 37, service was substituted for making in P. H. A., 1848, s. 16. It is, perhaps, to be regretted that there has been this change. The order may be made in the absence of the occupier or without his knowledge, and the time may run from an act of which he knows nothing, whereas he could not have pleaded ignorance of the service.

(e) See as to the recovery of this penalty, s. 251, ante, p. 4481.

308. Where any person sustains any damage (a) by reason of the exercise of any of the powers of this Act (b), in relation to any matter as to which he is not himself in default (c), full compensation shall be made to such person by the local authority exercising such powers (d); and any dispute as to the fact of damage or amount of compensation (e) shall be settled by arbitration in manner provided by this Act (f), or if the compensation claimed does not exceed the sum of twenty pounds, the same may, at the option of either party (g), be ascertained by and recovered before a court of summary jurisdiction (h).

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 729, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith. Previously it had been superseded to some extent by the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, post, p. 5213, e.g., the laying of a sewer in private land was held in Thurrock Grays and Tilbury Joint Sewerage Board v. Thames Land Co., Ltd. (1925), 90 J. P. 1; 23 L. G. R. 648; Digest Supp., to be a compulsory acquisition of "land" because by s. 12 (2) of that Act, post, p. 5220, "land" includes any interest in land and any easement or right in, to, or over land, and accordingly compensation had to be assessed under the Act of 1919.

Note to
Section 308.

The section is applied to county councils by s. 39 of the L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 913, in cases in which a public utility undertaking suffers damage by reason of the exercise of functions by a county council in relation to a road vested in them by Part III. of the L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903, which before the road became so vested were only exercisable in relation thereto by a district council under this Act.

(a) As to what damage is included, see note (e) to s. 278 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, pp. 558—562.

(b) As to what amounts to the exercise of the powers of the Act, see note (f) to s. 278 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, pp. 562—565.

(c) See note (g) to s. 278 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 565.

(d) For notes as to what is "full" compensation, see note (c) to s. 278 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, pp. 557, 558.

(e) For notes as to the jurisdiction of the arbitrator, see notes to P. H. A., 1936, s. 278 (2), ante, p. 566.

Arbitration.

(f) See s. 179, ante, p. 4461. But in cases where that Act applies, see now the provisions of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, post, p. 5213.

Option for
process.

(g) This statement of the option was new. It is not quite clear how it is to be determined. The authority do not seek to recover any amount, and if the claimant decline to go before the justices, it is difficult to see how he can be compelled to do so; but, if he select that court, the authority must follow. This option will not be open in any case which comes within the above-mentioned Act of 1919.

Court of summary
jurisdiction.

(h) See s. 251, ante, p. 4481. The justices may add to the compensation the costs of the application to them (Huddersfield Corporation v. Shaw (1890), 54 J. P. 724).

Compensation in certain cases
to officers.

309. If any officer of any trustees commissioners or other body of persons entrusted with the execution of any local Act, whether acting exclusively under the local Act, or partly under the local Act and partly under the Local Government Acts (a), or any officer of any sanitary authority under the Sanitary Acts (b) by this Act repealed, or of any local authority under this Act, is, by or in pursuance of the Public Health Act, 1872, or of this Act, or of any Provisional Order made in pursuance of either of those Acts (c), removed from his office, or deprived of the whole or part of the emoluments (d) of his office, and does not afterwards receive remuneration to an equal amount in respect of some office or employment under or by the authority of any district under this Act, the Local Government Board may (e) by order award to such officer such compensation as the said Board may think just (f); and such compensation may be by way of annuity or otherwise, and shall be paid by the local authority of the district in which such officer held his office out of any rates applicable to the general purposes of this Act within that district.

Local Government Acts.

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 729, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith. It had previously been practically superseded by the L. G. A., 1888, s. 120, and the L. G. A., 1894, s. 81 (7), post, p. 4923.

Note to
Section 309.

(a) See the definition in Sched. V., Part 1, post, p. 4526.

(b) See the definition in s. 4, ante, p. 4344.

(c) See s. 303, ante, p. 4512.

(d) As to what are "emoluments," and who is an "officer" within the meaning of the section, see the cases collected under definitions in L. G. A., 1933, s. 305, ante, pp. 1185, 1191.

Sanitary
Acts.

Provisional
Orders.

Emoluments.

(e) But semble the section "entitled" the officer to compensation (R. v. Local Government Board (1874), L. R. 9 Q. B. 148; 38 J. P. 165; 38 Digest 139, 1036).

(f) Prior to 1909 it was usual for the Board in fixing compensation to follow the Treasury "practice"—as to which see notes to the L. G. A., 1894, s. 81 (7).

Awards of compensation.

Most of the officers appointed under this Act held office at the discretion of the local authority, nevertheless the Board considered them, as a general rule, officers entitled to compensation for a reasonable term. See R. v. Norwich Corpn. (1838), 8 Ad. & El. 633; R. v. Poor Law Board (1871), L. R. 6 Q. B. 785; 36 J. P. 327; 38 Digest 140, 1046.

313. Where in any Act, or Order made by one of Her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State or by the Local Government Board and in force at the time of the passing of this Act, or in any document, any provisions of any of the Sanitary Acts (a) which are repealed by this Act are mentioned or referred to, such Act Order or document shall be read as if the provisions of this Act applicable to purposes the same as or similar to those of the repealed provisions were therein mentioned or referred to instead of such repealed provisions and were substituted for the same; nevertheless those substituted provisions shall have effect subject to any modification or restriction in such Act Order or document expressed in relation to the repealed provisions therein mentioned or referred to.

Substitution in other Acts of provisions of this Act for provisions of repealed
Acts.

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 729, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any Act directed to be construed herewith.

(a) See the definition in s. 4, ante, p. 4344.

The question was raised whether by virtue of an Order of the L. G. B. prior to 1875, which invested a rural sanitary authority with urban powers under the Local Government Act, 1858, with reference to such a matter as byelaws, a rural district council possessed the additional powers given by this Act in relation to the same kind of byelaws. The answer was in the affirmative.

* * * * *

316. In the construction of the provisions of any Act incorporated with this Act the term (a) "the special Act" includes this Act, and, in the case of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Acts, 1845, 1860, and 1869, any Order (b) confirmed by Parliament and authorising the purchase of lands otherwise than by agreement under this Act; the term "the limits of the special Act" means the limits of the district; and the urban or rural authority shall be deemed to be "the promoters of the undertaking," "the commissioners," or "the undertakers," as the case may be.

As to construction of incorporated
Acts.

All penalties incurred under the provisions of any Act incorporated with this Act shall be recovered and applied in the same way as penalties incurred under this Act (c).

Note to Section 316. This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 729, except so far as may be material for purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

(a) These terms are found in such incorporated Acts as the Lands Clauses Act, the Waterworks Clauses Act, etc. All the incorporated statutes will be found ante.

(b) It would have been more correct to say any Act confirming an Order.

(c) See ss. 251—254, ante, pp. 4481—4484.

This provision creates some difficulty. It will be remembered that s. 253, ante, p. 4482, provides that no proceedings are to be taken to recover penalties except by a party aggrieved, by the local authority, or by a person having the consent of the Attorney-General. In some cases arising under incorporated Acts the police are authorised by such Acts to arrest offenders and take them before justices. See, for example, the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, s. 28, ante, p. 4226, and Jobson v. Henderson, ante, p. 624. See, however, the comments on this case in Sheffield Corporation v. Kitson, [1929] 2 K. B. 322; 93 J. P. 135; Digest Supp. (ibid.).

Construction of Schedules. 317. The Schedules to this Act shall be read and have effect as part of this Act.

The forms contained in Schedule IV. to this Act, or forms to the like effect, varied as circumstances may require, may be used and shall be sufficient for all purposes.

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 729, except so far as may be material for purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

As to the construction and effect of Schedules to an Act see Att.-Gen. v. Lamplough (1878), 3 Ex. D. 214; 42 J. P. 356; 42 Digest 607, 84; Dean v. Green (1882), 8 P. D. 79; 46 J. P. 742; 42 Digest 608, 89; Woodward v. Sarsons (1875), L. R. 10 C. P. 733; 39 J. P. 776; 42 Digest 711, 1279.

The forms in Sched. IV., post, p. 4523, need not be followed precisely, but they indicate what the forms used by a local authority shall contain (Stourbridge U. D. C. v. Butler and Grove, [1909] 1 Ch. 87; 73 J. P. 3; 26 Digest 525, 2252); and see also R. v. Baines (1840), 12 Ad. & El. 210; 5 J. P. 94; 42 Digest 607, 86; Bartlett v. Gibbs (1843), 5 Man. & G. 81; 42 Digest 608, 90; Rayner v. Stepney Corporation, [1911] 2 Ch. 312; 75 J. P. 468; 38 Digest 212, 471.

Certain orders made by a court of summary jurisdiction for the abatement of a nuisance under the former s. 96 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 664) were signed and sealed by one only of the justices who were present. Form C. in Sched. 4 (op. cit. 774) purports to be under the hands and seals of two justices. It was held that the orders were bad, notwithstanding that the general forms prescribed by the S. J. Rules, 1886, showed a place for the signature of one justice only (Wing v. Epsom U. D. C., [1904] 1 K. B. 798; 68 J. P. 259; 36 Digest 237, 766). But quære whether this decision now applies in view of the new S. J. Rules made under s. 40 of the Criminal Justice Administration Act, 1914 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 387), and see as to the power of the court to amend on appeal or certiorari, R. v. Tabrum (1907), 71 J. P. 325; 97 L. T. 551; 33 Digest 357, 668.

In Ireland it has been held that a majority of the court should authenticate an order (R. v. Londonderry J.J., [1910] 2 I. R. 458).

PART XI.

SAVING CLAUSES AND REPEAL OF ACTS.

Saving Clauses.

* * * * *

327. Nothing in this Act (a) shall be construed to authorise any local authority—

Saving for works and property of certain authorities, and for navigation and water rights, etc.

- (1) To use injure or interfere with any sluices floodgates sewers groynes or sea defences or other works, already or hereafter made under the authority of any commissioners of sewers appointed by the Crown (b), or any sewers or other works already or hereafter made and used by any body of persons or person for the purpose of draining preserving or improving land under any local or private Act of Parliament, or for the purpose of irrigating land (c) ; or,
- (2) To disturb or interfere with any lands or other property vested in the Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom or the Commissioners for executing the office of the Lord High Admiral for the time being or in her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the War Department for the time being ; or,
- (3) To interfere with any river canal dock harbour lock reservoir or basin, so as to injuriously affect the navigation thereon, or the use thereof, or to interfere with any towing-path so as to interrupt the traffic thereof (d), in cases where any body of persons or person are or is by virtue of any Act of Parliament entitled to navigate on or use such river canal dock harbour lock reservoir or basin, or to receive any tolls or dues in respect of the navigation thereon or use thereof ; or,
- (4) To interfere with any watercourse in such manner as to injuriously affect the supply of water to any river canal dock harbour reservoir or basin, in cases where any such body of persons or person as last aforesaid would, if this Act had not passed, have been entitled by law to prevent or be relieved against such interference (e) ; or,
- (5) To interfere with any bridges crossing any river canal dock harbour or basin, in cases where any body of persons or person are or is authorised by virtue of any Act of Parliament to navigate or use such river canal dock harbour or basin, or to demand any tolls or dues in respect of the navigation thereon or use thereof ; or,
- (6) To execute any works in through or under any wharves quays docks harbours or basins, to the exclusive use of which any body of persons or person are or is entitled by virtue of any Act of Parliament, or for the use of which any body of persons or person are or is entitled by virtue of any Act of Parliament to demand any tolls or dues,—

Section 327. Without the consent in every case of such Lord High Admiral or Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral, Secretary of State, commissioners, body of persons or person as are hereinbefore in that behalf respectively mentioned, such consent to be expressed in writing (f) in the case of a corporation under their common seal, and in the case of any body of persons not being a corporation under the hand of their clerk or other duly authorised officer or agent (g). And nothing in this Act shall prejudice or affect the rights privileges powers or authorities given or reserved to any person under such local or private Acts for draining preserving or improving land as are in this section mentioned.

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 729, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

Reference to arbitration in case of works not within preceding
section.

328. Where any matters or things proposed to be done by any local authority, and not being within the prohibition aforesaid (a), interfere with the improvement of any river canal dock harbour lock reservoir basin or towing-path which any body of persons or person are or is entitled by virtue of any Act of Parliament to navigate on or use, or in respect of the navigation whereon or use whereof to demand any tolls or dues, or interfere with any works belonging to such river canal dock harbour or basin, or with any land necessary for the enjoyment or improvement thereof, the local authority shall give to such body of persons or person a notice (b) specifying the particulars of the matters and things so intended to be done. If the parties on whom such notice is served do not consent to the requisitions thereof, the matter in difference shall be referred to arbitration; and the following questions shall be decided by such arbitration (c); (that is to say,)

- (1) Whether the matters or things proposed to be done by the local authority will cause any injury to such river canal dock harbour basin towing-path works or land, or to the enjoyment or improvement of such river canal dock harbour or basin as aforesaid:
- (2) Whether any injury that may be caused by such matters or things, or any of them, is or is not of a nature to admit of being fully compensated by money (d).

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 729, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

(a) It is not easy to say what are the matters or things referred to, for the previous section appears to prohibit almost all acts without consent; but it is contemplated that there may be some acts which do not come within the prohibition, and then this section provides for dealing with them.

Note to
Section 328.

It will be seen that the section refers to companies or persons authorised to act by some Act of Parliament, but such Act need not be a private or local statute.

(b) See ss. 266, 267, ante, pp. 4494—5, as to authentication and service of notices.

(c) See s. 179, ante, p. 4461.

(d) Note the object of this inquiry, namely full compensation. That may be obtained by a money payment, or it may be that such payment will not be adequate; it may be necessary that some work should be executed, and the arbitrator is to determine this question.

This section does not contemplate that the arbitrator shall ascertain the amount of compensation for the injury, if any be experienced, but the next section does.

329. The result of any such arbitration shall be final, and the local authority shall do as follows (a); (that is to say.) Effect of arbitration.

- (1) If the arbitrators (b) are of opinion that no injury will be caused, the local authority may forthwith proceed to do the proposed matters and things:
- (2) If the arbitrators are of opinion that injury will be caused, but that such injury is of a nature to admit of being fully compensated by money, they shall proceed to assess such compensation (c); and on payment of the amount so assessed, but not before, the local authority may proceed to do the proposed matters and things:
- (3) If the arbitrators are of opinion that injury will be caused, and that it is not of a nature to admit of being fully compensated by money, the local authority shall not proceed to do any matter or thing in respect of which such opinion may be given (d).

(a) This section and the preceding section are expressed with some little inaccuracy. First, it is stated in s. 328, ante, p. 4520, that two questions are to be submitted to the arbitrators, and then in this section it is shown that another question may be submitted to and decided by them. Again, this section states that the authority shall do as follows, and having required the arbitrators in a certain event to do a particular act, it empowers the authority to proceed; then afterwards, upon a decision of the arbitrators to a certain effect, it prohibits the authority from acting.

(b) It is presumed that the word arbitrators includes umpires. See s. 180 (7), ante, p. 4463.

(c) It would have been better to provide for compensation after the works have been completed and the amount of the damage actually ascertained, inasmuch as the estimate of the arbitrators may prove too high or too low; it is clear, however, that the payment is here made a condition precedent to the execution of the works.

(d) This will not prevent the local authority from negotiating with the party referred to for the execution of such works as will remove the objection which cannot be fully compensated with money.

* * * * *

340. Where within the district of a local authority any local Act is in force, providing for purposes the same as or similar to the purposes of this Act, proceedings may be instituted (a) at the discretion of the authority or person instituting the same, either under the local Act or this Act, or under both, subject to these qualifications: Saving for proceedings under local Acts.

- Section 340. (1) That no person shall be punished for the same offence both under a local Act and this Act ; and
- (2) That the local authority shall not, by reason of any local Act in force within their district, be exempted from the performance of any duty or obligation to which they may be subject under this Act (b).

(a) See notes to P. H. A., 1936, s. 328, ante, p. 673.

Act to be cumulative.

341. All powers given by this Act shall be deemed to be in addition to and not in derogation of any other powers conferred by Act of Parliament law or custom, and such other powers may be exercised in the same manner as if this Act had not passed ; and nothing in this Act shall exempt any person from any penalty to which he would have been subject if this Act had not passed.

Provided that no person who has been adjudged to pay any penalty in pursuance of this Act shall for the same offence be liable to a penalty under any other Act.

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 729, except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any enactment directed to be construed herewith.

See notes to P. H. A., 1936, s. 328, ante, pp. 673, 674.

Repeal of Acts.

Repeal of Acts in Schedule V.

343. The Acts specified in the first and second parts of Schedule V. to this Act are hereby repealed to the extent in the third column in the said parts of that schedule mentioned, with the following qualification ; (that is to say,)

That so much of the said Acts as is set forth in the third part of that schedule shall be re-enacted in manner therein appearing, and shall be in force as if enacted in the body of this Act.

Provided also, that this repeal shall not affect (a)—

- (a) Anything duly done or suffered under any enactment hereby repealed (b) ; or
- (b) Any right or liability (c) acquired accrued or incurred under any enactment hereby repealed ; or
- (c) Any security given under any enactment hereby repealed ; or
- (d) Any penalty forfeiture or punishment incurred in respect of any offence committed against any enactment hereby repealed ; or
- (e) Any investigation legal proceeding or remedy in respect of any such right liability security penalty forfeiture or punishment as aforesaid ; and any such investigation legal proceeding and remedy may be carried on as if this Act had not been passed.

The italicised words were repealed by the S. L. R. (No. 2) A., 1893 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1014).

Note to
Section 343.

(a) See the similar provision in the Interpretation Act, 1889 (op. cit. 992).

(b) The P. H. A., 1848, s. 72, required certain notices to be given to the local board before laying out, making, or building upon any new street. This provision was repealed by Local Government Act, 1858, except (s. 9) as to "proceedings, matters, and things respectively begun or made" under any section of the former Act:—Held, that where the proper notices had been given and plans lodged, this was a matter or thing begun or made within the last-mentioned section, although little or nothing appeared to have been done towards the formation of the streets of which notice had been given (Felkin v. Berridge (1863), 15 C. B. (N. S.) 257; 27 J. P. 776; 38 Digest 176, 189). The same view was taken in regard to similar clauses in byelaws in Withington U. D. C. v. Moore (1896), 60 J. P. 408; 38 Digest 191, 290, by HALL, V.-C., in the Lancaster Palatine Court. See, however, White v. Sunderland Corporation and Harrogate Corporation v. Dickinson, cited at p. 4440, ante.

A notice was given by a local board of intention to make a rate under the sanitary Acts, and the estimate was deposited, but before the notice expired this Act was passed. The local board, not being aware of the repeal, made a rate purporting to be made under the repealed Act. It was held that the notice was a thing done within this proviso, and that the reference to the repealed Act was immaterial (R. v. West Riding J.J. (1876), 1 Q. B. D. 220; 40 J. P. 820).

(c) Where justices had made an order to abate a smoke nuisance, and prohibited its continuance under Nuisances Removal Act, 1855, before the passing of this Act, it was held that the defendant thereby incurred a liability which was continued by this section, so as to be subject to a penalty for allowing the smoke to continue after the passing of this Act (Barnes v. Eddleston (1876), 1 Ex. D. 102; 40 J. P. 663; 36 Digest 238, 772).

But where under the repealed enactment a liability has been incurred for penalties, proceedings to recover such penalties cannot be brought after the time limited by the S. J. A., 1848, s. 11, in cases to which that enactment applies (R. v. Chur (1897), 67 L. J. Q. B. 36; 77 L. T. 439; 34 Digest 538, 34).

Schedule 5.

SCHEDULE V.

Part 1.

PART I. (a).

Enactments which have been already repealed are in a few instances included in this repeal, in order to avoid the necessity of reference to previous statutes.

Session and Chapter.	Title or Short Title.	Extent of Repeal.
11 & 12 Vict. c. 63 -	The Public Health Act, 1848 -	The whole Act.
14 & 15 Vict. c. 28 -	The Common Lodging Houses Act, 1851.	The whole Act, except so far as relates to the Metropolitan Police District.
16 & 17 Vict. c. 41 -	The Common Lodging Houses Act, 1853.	The whole Act, except so far as relates to the Metropolitan Police District.
18 & 19 Vict. c. 116 -	The Diseases Prevention Act, 1855.	The whole Act, except so far as relates to the Metropolis.
18 & 19 Vict. c. 121 -	The Nuisances Removal Act for England, 1855.	The whole Act, except so far as relates to the Metropolis.
21 & 22 Vict. c. 98 -	The Local Government Act, 1858.	The whole Act.
23 & 24 Vict. c. 77 -	An Act to amend the Acts for the Removal of Nuisances and the Prevention of Diseases.	The whole Act, except so far as relates to the Metropolis.
24 & 25 Vict. c. 61 -	The Local Government Act (1858) Amendment Act, 1861.	The whole Act.
26 & 27 Vict. c. 17 -	The Local Government Act Amendment Act, 1863.	The whole Act.
26 & 27 Vict. c. 117 -	The Nuisances Removal Act for England (Amendment) Act, 1863.	The whole Act, except so far as relates to the Metropolis.
28 & 29 Vict. c. 75 -	The Sewage Utilization Act, 1865.	The whole Act, except so far as relates to Scotland and Ireland.
29 & 30 Vict. c. 41 -	The Nuisances Removal (No. 1) Act, 1866	The whole Act, except so far as relates to the Metropolis.
29 & 30 Vict. c. 90 -	The Sanitary Act, 1866 - -	Parts I., II., and III., except so far as relates to the Metropolis or to Scotland or Ireland.
30 & 31 Vict. c. 113 -	The Sewage Utilization Act, 1867.	The whole Act, except so far as relates to Scotland or Ireland.
31 & 32 Vict. c. 115 -	The Sanitary Act, 1868 - -	The whole Act, except so far as relates to the Metropolis.
32 & 33 Vict. c. 100 -	The Sanitary Loans Act, 1869 -	The whole Act, except so far as relates to the Metropolis.
33 & 34 Vict. c. 53 -	The Sanitary Act, 1870 - -	The whole Act, except so far as relates to the Metropolis.
35 & 36 Vict. c. 79 -	The Public Health Act, 1872 -	The whole Act, except so far as relates to the Metropolis.
37 & 38 Vict. c. 89 -	The Sanitary Law Amendment Act, 1874.	The whole Act, except so far as relates to the Metropolis or the Metropolitan Police District.

(a) This Part was repealed by the S. L. R. (No. 2) A., 1893 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1014).

Of the above Acts, the following, (namely,) "The Public Health Act, 1848," and "The Local Government Act, 1858," and "The Local Government Act (1858) Amendment Act, 1861," and "The Local Government Act Amendment Act, 1863," are in this Act referred to as "The Local Government Acts" (a).

(a) This definition ought more properly to have been inserted in s. 4, ante, p. 4331. It will be observed that the Sanitary Law Amendment Act, 1874 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 1006), is not included in this definition, apparently through inadvertence.

All the above Acts, so far as they relate to the metropolis, were repealed and consolidated by the P. H. (London) A., 1891 (op. cit. 1025).

Schedule 5.
Part 1.

PART II. (a).

Session and Chapter.	Title or Short Title.	Extent of Repeal.
12 & 13 Vict. c. 94 -	The Public Health Supplemental Act, 1849.	The whole Act, except—Section 1 (Confirmation of certain provisional orders of the General Board of Health), and section 12 (short title of Act), and the schedule.
13 & 14 Vict. c. 90 -	The Public Health Supplemental Act, 1850 (No. 2).	The whole Act, except—Section 1 (certain provisional orders of General Board of Health confirmed), and section 7 (short title of Act), and the schedule.
15 & 16 Vict. c. 42 -	The First Public Health Supplemental Act, 1852.	Sections 6 to 12, both inclusive (first election or first selection and election of certain local boards, and section 13 (11 & 12 Vict. c. 63, ss. 68, 69, as to repair of highways), and section 14 (interpretation of year), and section 15 (Act incorporated with Public Health Act).

(a) This Part was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1883 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 936).

11 & 12 Vict. c. 63, s. 83.

No vault or grave shall be constructed or made within the walls of or underneath any church or other place of public worship built in any urban district after the thirty-first day of August one thousand eight hundred and forty-eight; and whosoever shall bury, or cause, permit, or suffer to be buried, any corpse or coffin in any vault or grave constructed or made contrary to this enactment (b), shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty pounds (c), which may be recovered by any person (d), with full costs of suit, in an action of debt (e).

(a) In order to form a proper consolidation of the law, it was deemed necessary entirely to repeal all the statutes applicable to the general subject of sanitary law. But in some of these statutes were found certain provisions which could not be

As to interments within churches.

Schedule 5. introduced into the body of the Act, but which required to be kept in force. Accordingly those provisions are re-enacted in this Part of the Schedule.

Part 3.

(b) The judge of the Consistory Court of London has held that these words do not extend to the placing of a sealed urn containing the cremated ashes of a deceased person in the wall of a church (In re Kerr, [1894] P. 284; 7 Digest 528, 87).

(c) See, as to the recovery of this penalty, s. 251, ante, p. 4481.

(d) That is, by any person, without the consent of the Attorney-General under s. 253. See the notes to that section, ante, p. 4482, and Fletcher v. Hudson, there cited.

(e) The form of action here referred to is now abolished, but the right of action is not affected by more recent legislation relating to procedure.

21 & 22 Vict. c. 98, s. 49 (a).

Local board to be burial board in certain cases.

When a vestry of any parish comprised in a local government district resolves to appoint a burial board, the local board may at the option of the vestry be the burial board for such parish, and all expenses incurred by such burial board shall be defrayed out of a rate to be levied in such parish in the same manner as a general district rate (b).

Provided, that if such parish has been declared a ward for the election of members of the local board, such members shall form the burial board for the parish, and shall be deemed to be a burial board elected under the Burial Acts for the time being in force.

(a) See also Sanitary Act, 1866, s. 44, and the Burial Acts, ante, pp. 4247, 4252.

(b) Under the Burial Acts the poor rate was chargeable. This amount will in future be levied as part of the general rate under the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, pp. 2113 et seq.

As to the liability of a burial board to be assessed to income tax in respect of surplus income, see Paddington Burial Board v. Commissioners of Inland Revenue (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 9; 48 J. P. 311; 7 Digest 542, 223; Edinburgh Southern Cemetery Co. v. Inland Revenue (1889), 17 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 154; 28 Digest 8, r; Paisley Cemetery Co., Ltd. v. Reith (1898), 63 J. P. 806; 25 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 1080; 7 Digest 564, 386 i; and cf. Sugden v. Leeds Corporation, [1914] A. C. 483; 77 J. P. 225; 28 Digest 74, 397; Garston Overseers v. Carlisle, [1915] 3 K. B. 381; 28 Digest 83, 478.

24 & 25 Vict. c. 61, s. 21.

Urban authorities may repair fences surrounding
grounds.

Any urban authority constituted a burial board may from time to time repair and uphold the fences surrounding any burial ground which has been discontinued as such within their jurisdiction, or take down such fences and substitute others in lieu thereof, and shall from time to time take the necessary steps for preventing the desecration of such burial ground and placing it in a proper sanitary condition; and they may from time to time pass byelaws (subject to the provisions of this Act) for the preservation and regulation of all burial grounds within their jurisdiction; and the expense of carrying this section into execution may be defrayed out of any rates authorised to be levied by any urban authority constituted a burial board.

26 & 27 Vict. c. 17, s. 6.

Local government districts to be within highway districts for purpose of highway
meetings.

Where any local government district or any other place is surrounded by or adjoins a highway district constituted under the Highway Acts, such first-mentioned district or other place shall, for the purpose of any meeting of the highway board, be deemed to be within such highway district.

This enactment is now obsolete.

29 & 30 Vict. c. 90, s. 44.

Schedule 5.

When the district of a burial board is included in or conterminous with the district of an urban authority, the burial board may, by resolution of the vestry, and by agreement of the burial board and urban authority, transfer to the urban authority all their estate property rights powers duties and liabilities, and from and after such transfer, the urban authority shall have all such estate property rights powers duties and liabilities as if they had been duly appointed a burial board under the Burial Acts for the time being in force.

Part 3.

Power to burial boards in certain cases to transfer their powers to urban authority.

Burial Act, 1871, s. 2 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 241), enacted that "This Act shall be construed as one with the Acts mentioned in the Schedule to this Act, and those Acts and this Act may be cited together as the Burial Acts, 1852 to 1871, and each of them may be cited as the Burial Act of the year in which it was passed." The Schedule set forth the following Acts and their titles: 15 & 16 Vict. c. 85; 16 & 17 Vict. c. 134; 17 & 18 Vict. c. 87; 18 & 19 Vict. c. 128; 20 & 21 Vict. c. 81; 22 Vict. c. 1; 23 & 24 Vict. c. 64; 25 & 26 Vict. c. 100 (op. cit. 190, 210, 214, 218, 227, 238, 239, 240). The Short Titles Act, 1892, s. 1 (2), provides that the foregoing Acts, together with 34 & 35 Vict. c. 33; 43 & 44 Vict. c. 41 (op. cit. 241, 242); 44 & 45 Vict. c. 2; 48 & 49 Vict. c. 21 (op. cit. 247), may be cited by the collective title of the Burial Acts, 1852 to 1885; and part of s. 2 of the Burial Act, 1871, together with the Schedule, was accordingly repealed by the S. L. R. (No. 2) A., 1893 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1014). In addition to the Acts above mentioned, see also the Burial Act, 1900, post, p. 4990. It is impossible to include all these Acts in the present volume, but some of the provisions more directly affecting sanitary authorities will be found, ante, pp. 4247, 4252. As to the powers of urban district councils to act as burial boards under local Acts, see the Burial Act, 1855, ss. 19, 20 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 225). On the subject of the Burial Acts, reference should be made to Brooke Little's "Law of Burials."

[Here followed Sanitary Act, 1866, ss. 51 and 52, which are now repealed by the Public Health Act, 1896, ss. 6 and 7.]

35 & 36 Vict. c. 79, s. 35.

The powers and duties of the Board of Trade under the Alkali Act, 1863, and any Act amending the same (a), and under the Metropolis Water Acts, 1852 and 1871 (b), shall be exercisable and performed by the Local Government Board, and "the Local Government Board" shall be deemed to be substituted for "the Board of Trade" wherever the latter expression occurs in the said Acts.

This provision is extended to London by Public Health (London) Act, 1891, s. 142 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 1100).

(a) The Alkali Act, 1863, and the Acts amending the same (Alkali Act Perpetuation Act, 1868; Alkali Act, 1874) were repealed by the Alkali, etc. Works Regulation Act, 1881. The last mentioned Act and the Alkali, etc. Works Regulation Act, 1892, have now been replaced by the Alkali, etc. Works Regulation Act, 1906, post, p. 5003, which imposes upon sanitary authorities important duties with respect to, alkali works. This Act was amended by s. 4 of the P. H. (Smoke Abatement) A., 1926; Vol. V. and 13 Halsbury's Statutes 1157. These powers are now exercised by the M. of H.

35 & 36 Vict. c. 79, s. 36.

All powers, duties, and acts vested in, imposed on, or required to be done by or to one of her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State by the several Acts of Parliament relating to highways in England and Wales, and to turnpike roads and trusts and bridges in England and Transfer to Local Government Board of powers and duties of Schedule 5. Wales, shall be imposed on and be done by or to the Local Government Board, subject to the conditions, liabilities, and incidents to which such powers, duties, and acts were respectively subject immediately before the passing of the Public Health Act, 1872, or as near thereto as circumstances admit.

Part 3.
Secretary of State under Highway and Turnpike
Acts.

This provision is extended to London by Public Health (London) Act, 1891, s. 142 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 1100). These powers are now exercised by the Minister of Transport (see Ministry of Transport Act, 1919, post, p. 5195).

35 & 36 Vict. c. 79, s. 37.

Transfer of officers to Local Government
Board.

All inspectors, clerks, and other officers who are by virtue of section thirty-seven of the Public Health Act, 1872 (a), attached to and under the control of the Local Government Board, shall hold their offices and places upon the same terms and conditions, and shall have the same powers, privileges, and immunities with respect to the performance of their duties, as if this Act had not passed.

The Local Government Board may by Order distribute the business to be performed under the Local Government Board amongst such officers and persons in such manner as the Local Government Board may think expedient.

(a) Local Government Board Act, 1871, ante, p. 4319, transferred certain powers to the L. G. B. and at the same time placed the officers of departments previously engaged therein under the control of the new board. P. H. A., 1872, transferred other powers, and in s. 37 made a similar provision as to the officers engaged therein. Local Government Board Act, 1871, remains unrepealed (see the Act, ante, p. 4319); but as P. H. A., 1872, is wholly repealed, s. 37 is here re-enacted. These officers, etc., were transferred to the Ministry of Health by Ministry of Health Act, 1919, s. 6, post, p. 5192.

35 & 36 Vict. c. 79, s. 38.

Salary of medical officer of Local Government Board.

Notwithstanding anything contained in any Act of Parliament now in force, there shall be paid out of moneys to be provided by Parliament to the medical officer of the Local Government Board such salary as the Treasury may from time to time determine.

See, as to the appointment of this officer, P. H. A., 1858, s. 4, ante, p. 4250; but note that that section is repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1875 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 981), so far as relates to his salary.

(38 & 39 VICT. c. 83) (a).

An Act to amend the Law relating to Securities for Loans contracted by Local Authorities. [13th August, 1875.]

(1) PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited for all purposes as "The Local Loans Act, 1875."

(a) This Act is amended by the Local Loans Sinking Funds Act, 1835, post, p. 4696. The preamble and clause of enactment and s. 3 of this Act were repealed by the S. L. R. (No. 2) A., 1893 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1014).

2. This Act shall not extend to Scotland or Ireland.

Section 2.

3. [Commencement of Act.]

Extent of Act.

4. A local authority (a) shall be deemed to borrow, subject to the provisions of this Act, whenever it raises a loan by the issue of debentures (b) or debenture stock (c) or annuity certificates (b), purporting to be created under its powers, or partly in one way, and partly in another; subject to this proviso, that where a loan is directed to be raised by debentures or debenture stock or annuity certificates under this Act, the prescribed mode only shall be adopted (d).

Definition of borrowing under Act.

(a) See the definition of local authority in s. 34, post, p. 4541. The term includes sanitary authorities. As to stamp duty on loan capital, see the Finance Act, 1899, s. 8, set out in notes to s. 204 (2) of L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1039, as amended by the Finance Act, 1907, s. 10, post, p. 5031.

(b) The power to raise loans by debentures or annuity certificates under this Act is saved by L. G. A., 1933, s. 196 (1) (c), ante, p. 1031.

(c) This Act itself does not give power to issue debenture stock. See s. 6, infra. The L. G. B. stated that they had been advised by the law officers of the Crown that a local authority could not exercise a borrowing power by the issue of debenture stock under this Act unless they had power independently of the Act to raise the loan by the issue of debenture stock. The Board, however, thought that it was competent to a local authority to avail themselves of the Act for the exercise of borrowing powers under Acts passed subsequently to this Act so far as regards the issue of securities other than debenture stock.

(d) As to what is the prescribed mode, see s. 34, post, p. 4541.

(2) DEBENTURES (a).

5. A debenture under this Act shall be an instrument taking effect as a deed, and charging the local rate (b) or property in such debenture specified with payment, as in the debenture mentioned, of the principal sum and interest therein specified.

Regulations as to debenture stock.

Where a debenture under this Act charges property other than the local rate, and it is intended that in default of payment of the principal sum due on such debenture, or of the interest thereon, the property is to be sold, a statement to that effect shall be inserted in the debenture.

The principal sum may be made payable to the bearer of the debenture, or to a person to be named therein, his executors, administrators, or assigns.

A debenture in which the principal sum is made payable to the bearer shall be transferable by delivery.

A debenture in which the principal sum is made payable to a person named therein, his executors, administrators, or assigns, is in this Act referred to as a nominal debenture, and shall be transferable by writing in manner directed by the local authority.

There may be attached to a debenture under this Act, or be thereafter issued in respect thereof, or partly in one way and partly in the other, coupons making the interest as therein mentioned payable to the bearer of each coupon, or to the person named in each coupon or his order, or the interest on a debenture may be made payable to the owner for the time being of such debenture, or may be otherwise made payable in such manner as in the said debenture mentioned.

A coupon making the interest therein mentioned payable to the person named therein or his order is in this Act referred to as a coupon payable to order.

A debenture under this Act shall not be issued for a less sum than the prescribed sum, or, where no sum is prescribed, than twenty pounds.

(a) As to stamp duty, see Stamp Act, 1891, ss. 82 (1), 85 (1), (2), 122, and Schedule I, title "Marketable Security" (16 Halsbury's Statutes 641, 655, 675). And as to composition for stamp duty, see s. 115 of the same Act (op. cit. 654).

(b) See the definition in s. 34, post, p. 4542.

Section 6.

(3) DEBENTURE STOCK (a).

Regulations as to debenture stock.

6. A debenture stock may be created and issued by a local authority having power to raise a loan or any part thereof by the issue of debenture stock (b). Such debenture stock shall be of a nominal amount, not exceeding the amount of money authorised to be raised by such stock, and shall, unless otherwise provided by the conditions of issue, be redeemable at par at the option of the local authority at such times and upon such conditions as the local authority may declare at the time of the issue thereof (c).

The title of any person to any share in debenture stock shall be evidenced by the entry in the register as in this Act mentioned of the name of such person as owner of such share.

Debenture stock shall bear such rate of interest, to be payable at such times as the local authority may declare at the time of issue of the stock.

Debenture stock and the interest thereon shall be a charge on the local rate or property specified at the time of issue thereof, in the same manner as if it were a principal sum and interest charged thereon by deed.

Where debenture stock and the interest thereon is a charge on property other than the local rate, and it is intended that in default of the payment of the interest thereon, or for the purpose of raising the money required for the redemption of the stock, the property is to be sold, a declaration to that effect shall be made by the local authority at the time of the issue of the stock, and shall be deemed to form one of the conditions of such issue.

Debenture stock shall have all the incidents of personal estate, and shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be transferable by writing in manner directed by the local authority.

The interest on any share of debenture stock shall be recoverable by the owner of such share in the same manner in all respects as if such interest were an annuity of like amount secured to him by an annuity certificate under this Act.

The owner of any share in debenture stock shall not be entitled to require payment of the nominal amount of stock held by him, except at the time and upon the conditions declared by the local authority at the time of the issue of such stock.

The conditions of issue of debenture stock shall be declared by the local authority at the time of such issue, and a printed copy of such conditions shall be supplied to every owner of debenture stock requiring the same, and shall be entered in the register of such stock.

The local authority may, if it thinks fit, on the application of the owner of any share in debenture stock, grant to him a certificate of title to his share in such stock, or any part of such share, with coupons attached entitling the bearer of the coupons to the interest on the share or part of a share specified in such certificate.

A certificate of title to a share in debenture stock under this section (in this Act called a stock certificate to bearer) shall entitle the bearer to the stock therein described, and to the interest thereon, and shall be transferable by delivery.

Any share in stock in respect of which a stock certificate to bearer has been issued, shall, so long as such certificate is outstanding, cease to be dealt with through the medium of the register.

Debenture stock, in respect of which a stock certificate to bearer has not been issued, is in this Act referred to as nominal debenture stock.

(a) As to stamp duty, see the Stamp Act, 1891, ss. 108, 109, and Schedule I., title "Share Warrants, etc." (16 Halsbury's Statutes 650, 681). As to composition for stamp duty, see s. 115 of the same Act (op. cit. 653). As to corporation duty under the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1885, s. 11 (op. cit., 560), payable on income of a sinking fund vested in trustees, see Att.-Gen. v. London (City) Corporation, [1913] 2 K. B. 497; 21 Digest 66, 442.

(b) Therefore there must be power under a special Act to issue debenture stock. See note (c) to s. 4, ante, p. 4531. A local authority who are authorised to borrow money may do so by issuing stock, but only with the consent of the Minister (see L. G. A., 1933, s. 196 (1) (b), ante, p. 1031). See also s. 122 of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1726, which give to certain local authorities power to raise money by the issue of securities and bonds.

(c) A corporation were empowered by a local Act to create and issue corporation stock "to bear any rate of dividend which the corporation may fix, and all stock of such class shall be redeemable at the option of the corporation at one and the same period to be fixed by the corporation but not exceeding sixty years from the first issue of such stock." The corporation created and issued stock, the certificates for which stated that the holders were the proprietors of a certain amount of "Edinburgh 2½ per cent. stock subject to the Acts of Parliament relating thereto . . . redeemable at par after Whitsunday, 1927." It was held that the corporation had an option to redeem the stock at par after Whitsunday, 1927, but that they were not bound to do so (Edinburgh Corporation v. British Linen Bank, [1913] A. C. 133; 33 Digest 89, 587).

(4) ANNUITY CERTIFICATES.

7. An annuity certificate under this Act shall be an instrument taking effect as a deed, and charging the local rate or property in such certificate specified with payment, as in the certificate mentioned, of the annual sum therein specified. Regulations as to annuity certificates.

Where an annuity certificate under this Act charges property other than the local rate, and it is intended that in default of payment of the annual sum secured by such annuity certificate, or of some part thereof, the property is to be sold, a statement to that effect shall be inserted in the annuity certificate.

The annual sum may be made payable to the bearer of the certificate or to a person to be named therein, his executors, administrators, or assigns.

An annuity certificate in which the annual sum is made payable to the bearer shall be transferable by delivery.

An annuity certificate in which the annual sum is made payable to a person named therein, his executors, administrators, or assigns, is in this Act referred to as a nominal annuity certificate, and shall be transferable by writing in manner directed by the local authority.

An annuity certificate under this Act shall not be issued for a less annual sum than the prescribed sum, or, where no sum is prescribed, than three pounds.

(5) PRIORITY OF LOANS.

8. . . . (a).

Where any sum of money is authorised to be borrowed in manner provided by this Act, such sum may, unless it is otherwise prescribed, be raised under this Act as one loan or several loans, as may be deemed most convenient by the borrowing authority, so that the aggregate amount authorised to be borrowed be not exceeded. Priority of loans.

The date of each loan shall, with a view to . . . the period within which such loan is to be discharged, and for the other purposes of this Act, so far as relates to that period, be fixed by the local authority, and may be so fixed irrespectively of the dates of the particular securities issued in respect of such loan, so that the period within which the loan is required to be discharged be not exceeded.

(a) This section is printed as amended by the L. G. A., 1933, Sched. XI, Pt. IV., ante, p. 1281.

Section 9.

(6) NOTICE OF TRUSTS.

Notice of trust
not receivable.

9. No notice of any trust, expressed implied or constructive, shall by received by the local authority, or by any registrar or officer of the local authority, in relation to any security issued by such authority under this Act (a).

(a) The object of this section is (a) to relieve the local authority from taking notice of equitable interests in securities, and (b) to preclude persons claiming under equitable titles from converting the local authority into a trustee for them.

Owners of securities not responsible for act of local authority.

10. A person advancing any money to a local authority and receiving in consideration of such advance any security under this Act, shall not be bound to inquire into the application of the money advanced, or be in any way responsible for the non-application or misapplication thereof.

Cf. s. 203, L. G. A., 1923, and notes thereto, ante, p. 1037.

(7) REMEDY FOR NON-PAYMENT.

Remedy by mandamus for non-payment
of money.

11. The local authority shall pay or raise all sums for the time being due or authorised to be raised on or in respect of any security issued by them under this Act, and if default is made in payment of any sum so due, such sum shall be deemed to be a specialty debt due to the person entitled thereto from the local authority of such a nature that a mandamus will be granted to enforce the payment thereof; and an action may be brought accordingly, in which a mandamus may be claimed (a).

(a) See R. S. C., 1883, Order LIII.

Remedy by appointment of receiver for non-payment
of money.

12. Where a local authority makes default for a period of twenty-one days in paying an amount of not less than five hundred pounds (whether in one sum or separate sums) for the time being due on or in respect of any security issued under this Act, the persons entitled to the said amount, or any of such persons, may, instead of or in addition to bringing an action or actions, apply to the county court for the appointment of a receiver (a); and any receiver so appointed (subject to any direction which may be given by the court) shall from time to time raise as hereinafter mentioned, by or out of the local rate or property charged, sufficient money to pay the amount the payment of which is so in default, and all sums due while he is receiver on or in respect of any such security, together with all costs, charges, and expenses incurred in or about the appointment of such receiver and the execution of his duties under this section, including a proper remuneration for his trouble, and shall render to the defaulting authority the balance, if any, remaining in his hands after making the said payments.

Where the amount so due or authorised to be raised is charged on the local rate, the receiver may raise the money he is authorised to raise under this section by means of the local rate, and for that purpose shall have the same power as the defaulting authority of levying the local rate, and the receiver shall have such access to and use of the documents of the defaulting authority relative to the local rate as he may require.

Where the amount so due or authorised to be raised is charged on any property, other than the local rate, the receiver may raise the sum which he is authorised to raise under this section by the receipt of the rents and profits of the property, and if the security involves a power of sale, as in this Act mentioned (b), by sale of the property in such manner and subject to such conditions of sale and otherwise as the court may direct. Section 12.

A county court may appoint a receiver under this section with respect to any local rate levied, or any property situate wholly or partly within the jurisdiction of such court, and may remove such receiver and appoint another in his stead, and so from time to time; and may make such orders and give such directions as to the powers and duties of the receiver, and otherwise as to the disposal of the moneys received by him, as may be thought fit for carrying this section into effect.

(b) See ss. 5, 6, ante, p. 4531.

(8) DISCHARGE OF LOAN.

13. Every loan borrowed in manner provided by this Act shall be discharged within the prescribed period (a) from the date thereof, and if no period is prescribed, within the period of twenty years from the date thereof, which period of twenty years shall for the purposes of this Act be included under the term "prescribed period," and such discharge shall be secured by one or more of the following methods; that is to say,

Loan borrowed to be discharged within prescribed period.

By the issue of annuity certificates limited to expire within the prescribed period; or

By the issue of debentures made payable in such a manner that in each year such number of debentures will become due and be paid off as will secure the repayment of the whole sum secured by such debentures by equal annual instalments, extending over the whole of the prescribed period, or over a less time than the prescribed period; or

By the annual appropriation, as in this Act mentioned, of a fixed sum to the discharge of a certain portion of such loan; or

Where a sinking fund is prescribed, but not otherwise (b), by the establishment of a sinking fund and the application thereof in manner in this Act mentioned.

(a) As to the prescribed period, see s. 34, post, p. 4541; cf. L. G. A., 1933, s. 198, Sched. VIII., ante, pp. 1033, 1265.

(b) It is provided by the Local Loans Sinking Funds Act, 1885, post, p. 4696, that, notwithstanding anything contained in the above Act, every loan borrowed in manner provided by the above Act, may be discharged by the establishment of a sinking fund as therein mentioned, notwithstanding that a sinking fund may not have been prescribed by the special Act authorising the loan.

14. Where a fixed annual sum is appropriated to the discharge of a loan, or part of a loan, the local authority shall raise in every year an equal sum of money of such amount as will, at or before the expiration of the prescribed period, pay off the whole of such loan or part of a loan, and the interest thereon. The local authority shall in each year pay out of such fixed sum the interest due on the loan or part of a loan during the current year, and appropriate the residue of such sum, in the case of money borrowed on debentures, to the payment off of a corresponding amount of the principal sum secured by such debentures, and in the case of money borrowed by the issue of debenture stock to the redemption of a corresponding amount of such stock.

Discharge of loan by appropriation of annual sum

The debentures or portion of debenture stock to be paid off in every year shall be ascertained in such manner as may have been fixed at the time of Section 14. the issue of the debentures or debenture stock, or may thereafter have been arranged. Where the debentures or portion of debenture stock to be paid off are or is to be determined by lot, the lots shall be drawn in the presence of the local authority, and any owners of debenture (a) or debenture stock who choose to be present; the local authority shall cause not less than one month's previous notice of the time and place at which lots are to be drawn to be given by advertisement, published once at the least in each of four successive weeks in some newspaper circulating in the district within which the local authority has jurisdiction.

Any fractional sum remaining of such residue as aforesaid, after payment of the debentures or debenture stock, payable as aforesaid, shall be carried to the credit of the annual sum to be raised in the ensuing year. All expenses incurred by the local authority in respect of any drawings by lot or otherwise in respect of the discharge of a loan shall be paid out of the current revenue of the local authority.

(a) Sic in statute. It should read "debentures."

Discharge of loan by sinking fund.

15. Where a sinking fund is prescribed (a) for any loan or part of a loan, the local authority shall create a sinking fund as hereinafter mentioned; that is to say,

- (1) Such equal yearly or half-yearly sums shall be paid into the sinking fund in each year as, being accumulated at compound interest at the prescribed rate, or if no rate is prescribed, at such rate as in the opinion of the local authority, (regard being had to the securities in which they are authorised to make investments), will at the expiration of some period not longer than the prescribed period, be sufficient, after payment of all expenses, to discharge such loan or part of a loan; and
- (2) The first of such payments shall be made within one year from the date of the loan; and
- (3) All sums paid into the sinking fund shall be, as soon as may be, invested by the local authority in the prescribed manner, and if no manner is prescribed, or if a manner having been prescribed, the Local Government Board (b) shall assent, in securities in which trustees are by law for the time being authorised to invest, or in debentures, debenture stock, or annuity certificates issued under this Act; and any such investments may be from time to time varied or transposed; and all dividends and other annual sums received in respect of such investments shall, as soon as may be after they are received, be paid into the sinking fund and invested by the local authority in like manner; and
- (4) The local authority may from time to time apply the sinking fund, or any part thereof, in or towards the discharge of the loan or part of a loan for which it was created, and until such loan or part is wholly discharged shall not apply the same for any other purpose;
- (5) The debentures or portion of debenture stock, to the payment of which such sinking fund is for the time being applicable, shall be ascertained in such manner as may have been fixed at the time of the issue of the debentures or debenture stock, or may thereafter have been arranged. Where the debentures or portion of debenture stock to be paid off are or is to be determined by lot, the lots shall be drawn and notice shall be given in manner hereinbefore in this Act mentioned:

- (6) Any surplus of the sinking fund remaining after the discharge of the loan or part of a loan for the discharge of which it was created shall be paid into some other sinking fund under the control of the local authority ; or if there is no such fund shall be applied to any purpose to which such loan is applicable, or otherwise, as the local authority may, with the assent of the Local Government Board (b), think expedient : Section 15.
- (7) Where any part of the sinking fund is invested in any securities of the local authority, or is applied in paying off any part of the loan before the prescribed period, the interest which would otherwise be payable on such securities or on such part of the loan shall be paid into the sinking fund and invested in manner provided by this Act :
- (8) If the annual income of the sinking fund is not less than the annual interest payable on so much of the loan or part of the loan in respect of which it was created as remains undischarged, the equal annual sums required by this section to be paid into the sinking fund may cease to be so paid.

(a) See note (b) to s. 13, ante, p. 4535.

(b) The L. G. B. has now been superseded by the Minister of Health.

16. [This section was repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. IV., ante, pp. 1194, 1281. As to returns to the Minister, see now s. 199 of that Act, ante, p. 1034.]

SUPPLEMENTAL PROVISIONS.

(1) AS TO COUPONS.

17. Coupons in respect of any debenture or stock certificate to bearer under this Act may be issued comprising the interest payable during the whole period of years for which the debenture or stock certificate is in force, or any less period, and at the expiration of any such less period fresh coupons may be issued in respect of the debenture or stock certificate, or such debenture or stock certificate may be exchanged for another debenture or stock certificate with coupons for a further period (a). Temporary issue of coupons.

(a) For power of local authority to make rules as to issue of coupons, see s. 30, post, p. 4540.

18. A coupon payable to order which when presented for payment purports to be endorsed by the person named therein, shall be a sufficient authority to the person paying the money to pay the amount due in respect of such coupon to the bearer thereof, and it shall not be incumbent on the person paying such coupon to prove that such endorsement or any subsequent endorsement was made by or under the direction or authority of the person who is named in the coupon, or to whom the coupon was made payable by any endorser. Endorsement and crossing of coupons.

Where the coupon bears across its face an addition in written, printed, or stamped letters of the name of any banker or the words of "and company" in full or abbreviated, between two transverse lines, such addition shall be deemed to be a material part of the coupon, and have the force of a direction to the person by whom such coupon is to be paid that the same is to be paid only to or through the banker named, or if none is so named, to or through some banker, and the same shall be payable only to or through the banker named, or some banker (a).

Note to
Section 18.

(a) As to crossed coupons, see s. 32, post, p. 4541. Also Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, ss. 76—82 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 74—76), and Revenue Act, 1883, s. 17 (16 Halsbury's Statutes 547).

Coupons issued exempt from stamp duty.

19. Any coupons issued in respect of any debenture or stock certificate to bearer under this Act shall for the purpose of the Acts relating to stamp duties be deemed to have been attached to and issued with such security.

(2) AS TO STOCK CERTIFICATES.

Conversion into nominal debenture stock of stock certificate to bearer.

20. The bearer of a stock certificate to bearer may, on delivery to the local authority of his certificate and of all unpaid coupons belonging thereto, require the local authority to enter him in the register of the local authority as an owner of the share of stock described in the stock certificate to bearer, and thereupon that stock shall become nominal debenture stock and the interest thereon shall be payable as if no stock certificate to bearer had been issued in respect of that share of stock.

21. [Trustee not to apply for stock certificate to bearer] (a).

(a) This section was repealed by s. 51 of the Trustee Act, 1893. See now s. 7 of the Trustee Act, 1925; Vol. V. and 20 Halsbury's Statutes 101.

(3) AS TO EXECUTION AND SUPPLY OF SECURITIES.

Execution and supply of securities.

22. Every debenture, stock certificate to bearer, and annuity certificate under this Act shall be deemed to be well executed if under the common seal of the local authority, where that authority is a body corporate, and if signed by two or more members of the local authority, where the local authority is not a body corporate, or if otherwise executed in such manner as the Local Government Board (a) may direct on the application of any local authority, whether corporate or unincorporate.

(a) Now the M. of H. (see Ministry of Health Act, 1919, post, p. 5189).

The Commissioners of Inland Revenue may, when required by the local authority, and on payment of such sum as may, with the sanction of the Treasury, be agreed upon, supply such authority with debentures, stock certificates to bearer, coupons, and annuity certificates under this Act in such form and of such materials as the local authority may direct.

(4) AS TO REGISTER OF NOMINAL SECURITIES.

Register of nominal
securities.

23. A local authority issuing nominal debentures, nominal debenture stock, or nominal annuity certificates under this Act, shall cause a register (a) of such securities to be kept in one or more book or books, and there shall be entered in such register—

- (1) The names and addresses and the descriptions of the owners for the time being of every such security, with a statement of the securities held by each person registered; and,
- (2) The date at which the name of any person was entered in the register in respect of any such security.

The register under this section shall be evidence of any matters by this Act directed or authorised to be inserted therein.

(a) For power of local authority to make rules as to registry, see s. 30, post, p. 4540.

24. Any person may inspect the register at any reasonable time upon payment of such fee not exceeding one shilling as may be fixed by the local authority, and shall be entitled to obtain from the registrar, copies or extracts certified by him to be true copies or extracts of such register, upon payment of such fee not exceeding two shillings and sixpence, and twopence for every folio of seventy-two words, as the local authority may from time to time fix, and any copy or extract so certified shall be admissible in evidence. Section 24.
Inspection of register.

25. If the name of any person is without sufficient cause entered in or omitted from the register, or if default is made or unnecessary delay takes place in making any entry in such register, the person aggrieved or the local authority may apply to the court for an order that the register may be rectified. Rectification of register.

The court may either refuse the application with or without costs to be paid by the applicant, or may, if satisfied of the justice of the case, whether there has or has not been any default on the part of the registrar, make an order for the rectification of the register, and make such order as to the payment of the costs of the application or of damages to the person aggrieved as to the court may seem just.

The court may, in any proceeding under this section, decide any question relating to the title of any party to such proceeding to have his name entered in or omitted from the register, and generally any question which it may be necessary or expedient to decide for the rectification of the register.

The court for the purposes of this section means any of her Majesty's superior courts of law or equity, or any court to which the jurisdiction of such courts may be transferred; and where the value of any security or securities to which the application relates does not exceed fifty pounds shall include a county court (a); and the jurisdiction by this Act given to a superior court may be exercised in a summary manner by any judge or judges of such court sitting in chambers or otherwise.

(a) See County Court Rules, Order XLIII., rr. 2, 3.

(5) AS TO LOANS UNDER OFFICIAL SANCTION.

26. Any local authority about to raise a loan by the issue of any securities under this Act may apply to the Local Government Board (a) to authorise the issue of such securities under official sanction. Permissive issue of securities under official sanction.

The Local Government Board, (a) before granting their official sanction to such issue, shall require the local authority to furnish in such form, and with such particulars, and supported by such evidence as the Local Government Board (a) may require, such returns of the financial condition of such authority and borrowing powers of such authority and of the indebtedness of such authority, whether incurred before or after the passing of this Act, and such other particulars as will enable the Local Government Board (a) to ascertain the facts required by this section to be stated in relation to such issue; and the Local Government Board (a) may make such examination or inquiries for ascertaining the said matters and the accuracy of such returns as they may think expedient; and they shall not give their sanction unless they are satisfied with the information given and the result of the inquiries made.

The issue of any securities under official sanction shall be authenticated by an official stamp on such securities or otherwise as the Local Government Board (a) may from time to time direct.

The sanction of the Local Government Board (a) given in respect of any securities shall be conclusive evidence that the local authority by whom such securities may be issued had power to issue the same, and that the same have been duly issued, and are as to form and otherwise in conformity with this Act.

Section 26. The owner of any security issued under official sanction shall on request made by him to the Local Government Board (a) be furnished with a statement of the following particulars; that is to say,

Where a security is charged on a rate, of the rateable value. at the date of the issue of such security, of the property subject to the rate, and where the security is a charge on property, of the estimated value of such property; also of

The relative priority of the loan, in respect of which such security is issued. and of the other loans (if any) of the borrowing authority; and such statement shall be evidence of the particulars therein stated.

(a) The L. G. B. has now been superseded by the Minister of Health.

(6) AS TO INVESTMENTS ON LOANS UNDER ACT.

27. [Power for trustees to invest in loans under Act] (a).

(a) This section was repealed by s. 51 of the Trustee Act, 1893. See now s. 5 (4) of the Trustee Act, 1925, Vol. V., post, enacting that a trustee having power to invest money in debentures or debenture stock, of any railway, or other company may invest in any nominal debentures or nominal debenture stock issued under the Local Loans Act, 1875. But if the power of investment in railway stock is limited by the express terms of the instrument, it would seem that the limitation applies also to investment in stock under this Act (Re Maberly (1886), 33 Ch. D. 455; 40 Digest 749, 2792).

The power given by the Act of 1893, s. 5 (3) (now s. 5 (4) of the 1925 Act, Vol. V., post), is limited to trustees having power by the express terms of the instrument creating the trust to invest in railway debentures or debenture stock. Trustees only having power under s. 1 (g) of the Act of 1893 (now s. 1 (1) (g) of the 1925 Act, Vol. V., post), to invest in railway debentures or debenture stock, have not the additional power conferred by s. 5 (3) of investing in local loans debentures or debenture stock (Re Tattersall, Topham v. Armitage, [1906] 2 Ch. 399; 70 J. P. 537; 43 Digest 934, 3715).

See also s. 1 (1) (p) of the Trustee Act, 1925, Vol. V., post, as to mortgages of rates, etc., being trustee securities.

Power for Public Works Loan Commissioners to take securities under Act.

28. When the Public Works Loan Commissioners are authorised to grant any loan to a local authority under any Act, passed either before or after the passing of this Act, and are satisfied with the sufficiency of the rates or other property on which such loan is charged to defray the loan, they may, notwithstanding anything contained in any other Act of Parliament, take debentures, debenture stock, or annuity certificates under this Act as a security for such loan.

(7) AS TO GENERAL RULES.

Application of rules in Schedule.

29. The general rules in the Schedule to this Act with respect to the transfer and transmission of nominal securities shall have the same force as if they were enacted in the body of this Act.

Power to make general rules.

30. The local authority may from time to time, with the consent of the Local Government Board (a), make, and, when made, add to, rescind, or alter, such rules as they think fit with respect to the following matters:

- (1) The issue of coupons, the registry of securities, the mode of transferring securities not transferable by delivery, the fees, if any, to be charged in respect of registry and otherwise in respect of any security issued by them under this Act; and
- (2) With respect to any matter or thing required for the purposes of carrying into effect this Act, and not inconsistent therewith.

The local authority may also by such rules as aforesaid add to, rescind, or alter any of the rules in the Schedule hereto.

Any general rules made by the local authority in pursuance of this section shall, so far as they are consistent with this Act, have the same force as if they were enacted therein. Section 30.

Provided, that any rules made, added to, rescinded, or altered in pursuance of this section shall not affect any securities issued in respect of any loan the date of which is prior to the date of such making, addition, rescission, or alteration.

(a) The L. G. B. has now been superseded by the Minister of Health.

(8) AS TO BORROWING.

31. Any local authority, notwithstanding any provision in any other Act of Parliament passed before the passing of this Act, may, if it thinks fit, borrow in manner provided by this Act any loan which it is authorised to borrow (a). Borrowing and re-borrowing by local authorities.

Any local authority may from time to time in like manner re-borrow money for the purpose of discharging any loan lawfully contracted by them either before or after the passing of this Act: Provided that the time for repayment of any money so borrowed shall not be extended beyond the unexpired portion of the term for which the original loan was contracted, unless with the sanction of the Local Government Board (b), and in no case shall be extended beyond the prescribed period.

(a) It is to be observed that this Act regulates the mode of borrowing and the securities to be given, but it does not itself authorise borrowing in any particular case or cases.

(b) The L. G. B. has now been superseded by the Minister of Health.

(9) AS TO FORGERY AND LOSS OF SECURITIES.

32. For the purposes of the Forgery Act, 1861, debenture stock under this Act shall be deemed to be capital stock of a body corporate, and any other security issued in pursuance of this Act shall be considered to be a writing obligatory, and any coupon bearing across its face an addition in written, printed, or stamped letters of the name of any banker, or of the words "and company" in full or abbreviated, between two transverse lines, shall be deemed to be a cheque or draft on a banker (a). Forgery of securities. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 98.

(a) As to crossed coupons, see note (a) to s. 18, ante, p. 4538. And see the Forged Transfers Acts, 1891 and 1892, post, pp. 4831, 4839.

33. If any security issued under this Act is lost mislaid or destroyed, the local authority shall, on such indemnity being given as they may require, and on payment of the expenses of the issue, issue a fresh security in the place of the security so lost mislaid or destroyed. Loss of securities.

(10) DEFINITIONS.

34. For the purposes of this Act—

"Prescribed" means prescribed by any Act passed either before or after the passing of this Act authorising a local authority to borrow money: Definitions.

"Local authority" means the justices of any county, liberty, riding, parts, or division of a county in general or quarter sessions assembled, the council of any municipal borough, also any authority whatsoever having power to levy a rate, as in this Act defined, also any prescribed authority:

"Municipal borough" means any borough for the time being subject to the Municipal Corporations Act, 1835, and any Acts amending the same (a): 5 & 6 Will. 4. c. 76.

Section 34.

A "rate" means a rate the proceeds of which are applicable to public local purposes and leviable on the basis of an assessment in respect of property, and includes any sum which, though obtained in the first instance by a precept, certificate, or other document requiring payment from some authority or officer, is or can be ultimately raised out of a rate; and the levy of a rate includes the issue and enforcement of any such precept, certificate, or document as aforesaid; and expressions relating to the levy and the assessment and making of a rate shall be construed accordingly:

"Local rate" means any rate as before defined which a local authority have power to levy or charge by way of mortgage or otherwise:

"Security" means any debenture, debenture stock, annuity certificate, coupon, or stock certificate to bearer issued under this Act:

"Person" includes a body of persons corporate or unincorporate:

"Executors and administrators" includes successors.

(a) Now the boroughs mentioned in L. G. A., 1933, Sched. I., Pts. II., III., ante, pp. 1197—1200, or subsequently raised to that status.

(11) REPEAL AND CONSEQUENTIAL ENACTMENT.

35. [Repeal of County Debentures Act, 1873 (a).]

(a) Repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1883 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 986).

36. [Incorporation of justices] (a).

(a) This section was repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, Sched. XI., Pt. IV., ante, p. 1281.

SCHEDULE.

GENERAL RULES.

[Sect. 29.]

Transfer of Nominal Securities.

(1) A number of persons, not exceeding such number as may from time to time be directed by the local authority, may be registered as joint owners of the same nominal security, with right of survivorship between them (a).

(2) Unless otherwise directed by a general rule of the local authority, the instrument of transfer of any nominal security issued by local authority shall be executed both by the transferor and transferee, and the transferor shall be deemed to remain owner of such security until the name of the transferee is entered in the register in respect thereof.

(3) The transfer books of nominal securities may be closed at such times, not exceeding twice in each year, and not exceeding fourteen days at each time of closing, as the local authority may direct.

Transmission of Nominal Securities.

(4) The executors or administrators of a deceased owner of a nominal security shall be the only persons recognised by the local authority as having any title to such security.

(5) Any person becoming entitled to a nominal security in consequence of the death or bankruptcy of any owner, or in consequence of the marriage of any female owner, may be registered as owner upon such evidence being produced as may from time to time be required by the local authority.

Schedule.

(6) Unless otherwise directed by a rule of the local authority, any person who has become entitled to a nominal security in consequence of the death or bankruptcy of any owner, or in consequence of the marriage of any female owner, may, instead of being registered himself, elect to have some person to be named by him registered as a transferee of such security.

(7) The person so becoming entitled shall testify such election by executing to his nominee an instrument of transfer of such security.

(8) The instrument of transfer shall be presented to the local authority, accompanied with such evidence as the local authority may require to prove the title of the transferor, and thereupon the local authority shall register the transferee as owner.

(9) In the construction of this schedule the term "nominal security" means any nominal debenture, nominal debenture stock, or nominal annuity certificate.

(a) See also the Law of Property Act, 1925, s. 111; Vol. V. and 15 Halsbury's Statutes 293.

THE CONSPIRACY, AND PROTECTION OF PROPERTY ACT, 1875 (a).

(38 & 39 VICT. c. 86.)

An Act for amending the Law relating to Conspiracy, and to the Protection of Property, and for other purposes. [13th August, 1875.]

1. This Act may be cited as "The Conspiracy, and Protection of Property Act, 1875." Short title.

(a) This Act is amended by the Trade Disputes and Trade Unions Act, 1927. Section 6 of that Act which relates to local authorities is set out in Vol. V. and 3 Halsbury's Statutes 333.

* * * * *

4. Where a person employed by a municipal authority or by any company or contractor upon whom is imposed by Act of Parliament the duty, or who have otherwise assumed the duty of supplying any city, borough, town, or place, or any part thereof, with gas or water, wilfully and maliciously (a) breaks a contract of service with that authority or company or contractor, knowing or having reasonable cause to believe that the probable consequences of his so doing, either alone or in combination with others, will be to deprive the inhabitants of that city, borough, town, place, or part, wholly or to a great extent of their supply of gas or water, he shall on conviction thereof by a court of summary jurisdiction or on indictment as herein-after mentioned, be liable either to pay a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds or to be imprisoned for a term not exceeding three months, with or without hard labour.

Breach of contract by persons employed in supply of gas or water.

Every such municipal authority, company, or contractor as is mentioned in this section shall cause to be posted up, at the gasworks or waterworks, as the case may be, belonging to such authority or company or contractor, a printed copy of this section in some conspicuous place where the same may be conveniently read by the persons employed, and as often as such copy becomes defaced, obliterated, or destroyed, shall cause it to be renewed with all reasonable despatch.

If any municipal authority or company or contractor make default in complying with the provisions of this section in relation to such notice as aforesaid, they or he shall incur on summary conviction a penalty not exceeding five pounds for every day during which such default continues, and every Section 4. person who unlawfully injures, defaces, or covers up any notice so posted up as aforesaid in pursuance of this Act, shall be liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings (b).

(a) As to the meaning of this word, see s. 15, infra. As to the right to claim trial by jury, see R. v. Mitchell, [1913] 1 K. B. 561; 77 J. P. 148; 33 Digest 318, 332.

(b) This section has been extended to persons employed by a joint electricity authority or by any authorised undertakers, see s. 31 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5261.

Definitions of "municipal authority" and "public

14. The expression "municipal authority" in this Act means any of the following authorities, that is to say, the Metropolitan Board of Works, the Common Council of the city of London, the Commissioners of Sewers of the city of London, the town council of any borough for the time being subject to the Act of the session of the fifth and sixth years of the reign of King William the Fourth, chapter seventy-six, intituled "An Act to provide for the Regulation of Municipal Corporations in England and Wales," and any Act amending the same, any commissioners, trustees, or other persons invested by any local Act of Parliament with powers of improving, cleansing, lighting, or paving any town, and any local board.

Any municipal authority or company or contractor who has obtained authority by or in pursuance of any general or local Act of Parliament to supply the streets of any city, borough, town, or place, or of any part thereof, with gas, or which is required by or in pursuance of any general or local Act of Parliament to supply water on demand to the inhabitants of any city, borough, town, or place, or any part thereof, shall for the purposes of this Act be deemed to be a municipal authority or company or contractor upon whom is imposed by Act of Parliament the duty of supplying such city, borough, town, or place, or part thereof, with gas or water.

"Maliciously"
in this Act construed as in Malicious Injuries to Property Act.

15. The word "maliciously" used in reference to any offence under this Act shall be construed in the same manner as it is required by the fifty-eighth section of the Act relating to malicious injuries to property, that is to say, the Act of the session of the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth years of the reign of Her present Majesty, chapter ninety-seven, to be construed in reference to any offence committed under such last-mentioned Act.

2. [Commencement of Act.]

3. This Act shall extend to the Isle of Man.

Extent of Act.

PUBLIC WORKS LOAN COMMISSIONERS.

4. For the purpose of loans out of moneys issued in pursuance of this Act, and for the purpose of the execution of this Act and of any enactment passed or hereafter to be passed authorising or referring to such loans, there shall be a body of commissioners (in this Act referred to as the Loan Commissioners), who may be styled the Public Works Loan Commissioners. Constitution,
etc. of Public Works Loan
Commissioners.

Every person who may from time to time be appointed by Act of Parliament a Public Works Loan Commissioner shall, on signing the declaration in the Second Schedule to this Act, be deemed to be one of the Public Works Loan Commissioners under this Act (a).

The Public Works Loan Commissioners shall hold office during such period as may be authorised by any Act appointing them, and if no period is so authorised, during the period of five years after the passing of such Act, and, if at the expiration of such period successors have not been appointed, may continue to hold office until successors be appointed, subject to this qualification, that they shall not grant any new loan after the expiration of such period.

Whenever any vacancy among the Commissioners occurs by any Commissioner dying or declining to act, or declining further to act, the remaining Commissioners or a majority of them may by writing under their hands and seals, with the concurrence of the Treasury, appoint such person to fill the vacancy as seems fit, and the person so appointed shall, on signing the declaration in the Second Schedule to this Act, be deemed to be one of the Public Works Loan Commissioners under this Act, and shall hold office for the period during which the Commissioner in whose place he is appointed would have held office.

A Public Works Loan Commissioner shall not receive any salary, fee, or emolument in respect of his services as such Commissioner.

(a) The names of the present Commissioners will be found in the Public Works Loans Act, 1930, s. 1 (23 Halsbury's Statutes 392).

5. With respect to the Loan Commissioners the following provisions shall have effect: Powers, etc. of Commissioners.

- (1) The Loan Commissioners may sue and be sued in the name of their secretary for the time being; and no action or suit in law or equity brought or commenced by or against the said Commissioners in the name of their secretary for the time being shall abate or be discontinued by the death or removal of such secretary, or by the act of such secretary without the consent of the said Commissioners; but the secretary to the said Commissioners for the time being shall always be deemed the plaintiff or defendant in such action or suit as the case may be; and

Section 5.

(2) The Commissioners may examine any persons willing to be examined on any matters connected with the execution of this Act, and may for that purpose, or otherwise for the purpose of the execution of this Act, administer an oath, and take any affidavits or declaration ; and

(3) The Loan Commissioners shall annually cause to be made out up to the end of every financial year a report of their transactions under this Act during the year, and such report shall contain or have annexed thereto the prescribed particulars respecting moneys issued to and loans granted by the Commissioners either before or after the passing of this Act, and the execution of the duties of the Loan Commissioners, and such other particulars as the Loan Commissioners may from time to time think fit :

Such particulars shall include a statement of any difference that may have arisen between the Loan Commissioners and any public department respecting the grant of any loan or the construction of any Act relating to loans by the Loan Commissioners :

Such report shall be transmitted to the Treasury within two (a) months after the date up to which it is required to be made, and shall be forthwith laid by the Treasury before both Houses of Parliament if Parliament be then sitting, or if not, within one month after the then next sitting of Parliament ; and

(4) Any minute made of proceedings at meetings of the Commissioners if signed by any person purporting to be the chairman, either of the meeting of the Commissioners at which such proceedings took place, or of the next ensuing meeting of the Commissioners, shall be receivable in evidence in all legal proceedings without further proof, and until the contrary is proved every meeting of the Commissioners, in respect of the proceedings of which minutes have been so made, shall be deemed to have been duly convened and held, and all the members thereof to have been duly qualified to act ; and

(5) An act or proceeding of the Commissioners shall not be questioned on account of any vacancy or vacancies in their body.

(a) Three. See the Public Works Loans Act, 1899, s. 6 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 299).

Officers and their salaries and expenses.

6. The Loan Commissioners may from time to time appoint or employ a secretary, solicitor, civil engineer, surveyor, and such number of officers, clerks, messengers, and other persons as they may, with the consent of the Treasury, deem necessary, and may remove any person so appointed or employed.

The Loan Commissioners may from time to time assign to any person so appointed or employed by them such salary or remuneration as they may, with the sanction of the Treasury, think proper.

A person appointed or employed by the Loan Commissioners, in pursuance of this section, shall not receive any remuneration in respect of such appointment or employment or otherwise in respect of the execution of his duties under this Act, except such as may be assigned to him in pursuance of this section.

Every such salary or remuneration, and all expenses incurred by the Loan Commissioners in the execution of this Act, shall be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament.

7. Where under this or any other Act or any conveyance obligation, or security, any real or personal property, or any estate or interest therein, or any chose in action, has been or may be vested in, conveyed, made payable, or secured to the secretary of the Loan Commissioners for the time being as such secretary, and in respect of his office, all such real and personal property, estate and interest, and chose in action whatsoever, upon the death, removal, or resignation of any such secretary from time to time, and as often as the same happens and the appointment of a successor takes place, shall (subject to the same trusts, and equities, if any, as the same were before respectively subject to) vest in such succeeding secretary, by force of this Act and without any act or deed whatever to be done by the secretary dying, resigning or removed, or by the heirs, executors, or administrators of such secretary, or by any person or persons claiming under him, them, or any of them, and notwithstanding the same may have been expressed to be vested in, conveyed, made payable to or secured to such secretary, his heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, or any of them; and shall be proceeded upon in the name of any succeeding secretary, by any action or suit in law or equity, or in any other manner as the same might have been proceeded upon by or in the name or names of such secretary dying, resigning, or removed.

Section 7.

Securities given to and property vested in secretary to vest in his successor.

Where the secretary of the Loan Commissioners is a party to any action, suit, or other legal proceeding, such secretary acting under the direction of the Commissioners shall be deemed to represent the Crown, so far as regards the interest of the Crown in any loan granted under this Act or any money due under a security for any such loan, and it shall not be necessary to make the Crown or any other person on behalf of the Crown, a party to such action, suit, or proceeding, in respect of such interest as aforesaid.

8. All conveyances, leases, mortgages, releases, arrangements, and things which the Loan Commissioners are authorised by this Act to grant, execute, make, or concur in, and all powers, acts, and things which the Loan Commissioners are authorised by this Act to exercise, do, or concur in, in relation to any mortgaged property or rate, may be granted, executed, made, concurred in, exercised, and done by their secretary for the time being under their direction, and when so granted, executed, made, concurred in, exercised, and done by such secretary, shall be deemed to have been granted, executed, made, concurred in, exercised, and done by him under the direction of the Commissioners, unless the contrary is shown by some person interested in contesting the validity thereof.

Execution of conveyances, leases, etc. by secretary on behalf of Commissioners.

Any property, chose in action, estate, interest, powers, authorities, and privileges vested in or exercisable by the secretary of the Commissioners in pursuance of this Act shall be dealt with and exercised by him under the direction of the Commissioners and not otherwise.

OBJECTS, TERMS, AND DURATION OF LOAN.

9. The Loan Commissioners may, if they think it expedient, from time to time, in manner mentioned in this Act, make loans for the purpose of any of the works mentioned in the First Schedule to this Act, to any person having power under an Act of Parliament or otherwise to borrow for such purpose (a).

Loans for public works.

The Loan Commissioners in considering the propriety of granting a loan shall have regard to the sufficiency of the security for its repayment, and, subject to the provisions of any special Act, shall determine whether the work [or purchase of land (b)] for which the loan is asked would be such a benefit to the public as to justify a loan out of public money, having regard to the amount of money placed at their disposal by Parliament (c).

Note to
Section 9.

(a) The schedule includes all, or nearly all, the purposes for which a sanitary authority may borrow money. By the Public Works Loans Act, 1896, s. 2, post, p. 4940, there shall be added to the works for which the Commissioners may lend, any work for which the council of a county, borough, district, or parish are authorised to borrow. By the Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899, s. 9 (7), ante, p. 1805, the Commissioners may lend money to a local authority for the purposes of that Act. Separate accounts must be kept by a local authority of all loans from the Commissioners on the security of the rates. See the Public Works Loans Act, 1882, s. 8, post, p. 4663.

(b) Words in square brackets added by the Public Works Loans (No. 2) Act, 1937, s. 3 (1); Vol. V. and 30 Halsbury's Statutes 681.

(c) See the notes to s. 243 of the P. H. A., 1875 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 726).

Interest on loan.

24 & 25 Vict.
c. 47.

10. Every loan granted under this Act shall bear interest at a rate not less than the rate authorised by a special Act relating to such loan (a), or if no rate be so authorised, not less than five per cent. per annum: Provided that when the aggregate amount of principal moneys due by any harbour authority to the Commissioners under the Harbours and Passing Tolls, etc. Act, 1861, exceeds one hundred thousand pounds, the rate of interest on such excess shall be three-and-a-half per cent., or such higher rate, not exceeding five per cent., as may in the judgment of the Treasury be necessary to enable the loan to be made without loss to the Exchequer.

(a) See the P. H. A., 1936, s. 311, ante, p. 659, and the notes thereto. See also the Housing Act, 1936, s. 123, ante, p. 1727, and Public Works Loans Act, 1897, s. 1, and notes thereto, post, p. 4943. In the application of the above sections to loans granted after June 28th, 1892, 4 per cent. is to be read instead of 5 per cent. See the Public Works Loans Act, 1892, s. 2 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 293).

Term of years
of loan.

11. Every loan granted under this Act shall be made repayable by instalments (in the form of an annuity or otherwise) within a period from the date of the actual advance of such loan, not exceeding the period authorised by a special Act relating to such loan, or if no period be so authorised not exceeding twenty (a) years.

Where a loan has been granted repayable within a period less than the full period allowed by the foregoing provisions of this section, the Loan Commissioners, if the repayment of the loan with interest is in their opinion sufficiently secured by such security as is required by this Act, and if they think fit, may extend the period for the repayment of such loan to a period not exceeding the said full period from the date of the advance of such loan.

Where no period is authorised by a special Act relating to the loan, the Treasury, on the recommendation of the Loan Commissioners, stating special circumstances, may either before or after the grant of the loan, extend the period within which the loan is to be repaid to such period as may be recommended by the Loan Commissioners (b).

The Loan Commissioners in considering whether the period for the repayment of a loan should or should not be the said full period, and the Loan Commissioners and the Treasury in considering whether the period should be extended as aforesaid, shall have regard to the durability of the work for the purpose of which the loan is granted, and to the expediency of the cost of the work being paid by the generation of persons who will immediately benefit by such work.

The first instalment for the repayment of every loan shall be made payable within a period not exceeding five years from the date of the advance of such loan.

(a) This maximum period is now fifty years: see Public Works Loans Act, 1911, s. 4, post, p. 5119; it had previously been raised to thirty by the Public Works Loans Act, 1898, s. 5 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 299).

(b) See note (a) to s. 10, supra.

12. The Loan Commissioners before advancing any money on account of a loan shall take security for the repayment of the loan with the interest, consisting of the security authorised by the special Act relating to the loan, or if none is so authorised, of a mortgage of property or of a rate, or of both property and a rate, and (save as hereinafter mentioned) of personal security. Section 12.
Security for loans.

The Loan Commissioners may, if they think fit, dispense with personal security in any case in which in their opinion the mortgaged property or rate is sufficient security for the payment of the principal and interest of the loan within the stipulated period.

FUNDS FOR LOANS.

13. [Annual estimates of amounts required] (a).

(a) This section is repealed by the Public Works Loans Act, 1882—see note (b) to s. 8 of that Act, post, p. 4664.

14. [Treasury to issue sums required for loans] (a).

(a) This section and part of s. 15 were repealed by the National Debt and Local Loans Act, 1887, s. 21. By that Act the National Debt Commissioners were required to issue to the Public Works Loan Commissioners the amount authorised by Parliament for advances to be made by the Loan Commissioners, and these advances are in the Act included under the expression 'local loans.' For this purpose the Act further established the Local Loans Fund under the control of the National Debt Commissioners, and out of this fund all advances are now made for the purpose of local loans.

15. . . . The annuities created in pursuance of this section, and the principal moneys borrowed in pursuance of this section (otherwise than by the issue of Exchequer bonds) and all interest from time to time due thereon, or on Exchequer bonds issued under this section (not exceeding the rate of five per cent. per annum) shall be charged upon and be payable out of the Consolidated Fund, or out of the growing produce thereof, at such times in each year as may be fixed by the Treasury. Borrowing for raising money.

The principal of any Exchequer bonds issued under this section shall be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament.

The said annuities shall, in manner directed by the warrant, be consolidated in the said books, if terminable, with annuities payable at the same date, and, if permanent, with annuities at the same rate of interest, and payable at the same date, and shall be transferable in the said books in like manner as the annuities with which they are consolidated, and shall be subject to the enactments relating to those annuities so far as is consistent with the tenor of those enactments.

16. [Money issued by Treasury to be issued to National Debt Commissioners] (a).

(a) Sections 16 and 17 were repealed by the National Debt and Local Loans Act, 1887, s. 21.

17. [Sums repaid to be paid into the Exchequer] (a).

(a) See note (a) to s. 16, supra.

RECOVERY OF LOANS.

18. Where a loan is granted by the Loan Commissioners on the security of a mortgage of any property (whether with or without any other security), the property from and after the date of the mortgage shall be charged with the payment to the use of her Majesty of the loan with interest as in the mortgage mentioned, in priority, save so far as otherwise specified in the mort- Charge on property and priority of loan by the Commissioners

Section 18. gage, over every other debt, mortgage, or charge whatsoever affecting the property, except any loan due to any creditor not assenting to such priority which has been advanced in good faith before the loan advanced by the Commissioners and secured by a mortgage of the property executed to a person who is entitled as a bonâ fide creditor to the repayment thereof with interest.

Provided that if there is more than one such creditor and not less than four-fifths in value of such creditors consent in writing that the said charge shall have priority over the loans and mortgages of such creditors, in such case the loans and mortgages of all such creditors, as well those who have not agreed as those who have agreed, shall be postponed to the loan granted by the Commissioners and to the said charge thereof, and to the security for the same.

Nothing in any special Act (a), and no rule of law or custom, shall affect the priority given by this section, except so far as the special Act negative such priority in terms expressly referring to this Act.

(a) The special Act includes any Act relating to any person having power to borrow from the Commissioners. See the Public Works Loans (Money) Act, 1876, s. 7, post, p. 4562.

Charges on rate of loan and loan not to be repudiated by locality having had the benefit of it.

19. Where a loan is granted by the Loan Commissioners on the security of a mortgage of any rate (whether with or without any other security) such rate from and after the date of the mortgage shall be charged with the payment to the use of her Majesty of the loan with interest as in the mortgage mentioned.

Where the loan has been granted to any borrower who appeared to the Commissioners to have power to levy and mortgage such rate and has been expended upon the work in respect of which or in or for the benefit of the locality in which such rate or any part thereof is levied, the mortgage of the rate for securing the repayment of the loan with interest shall be valid, and may be enforced in pursuance of this Act, notwithstanding any defect in the power or title of the borrower by whom the mortgage purports to be granted; and in particular the Commissioners may, although such borrower was not legally constituted or is dissolved, or is otherwise incapable and always was incapable of making, levying, or mortgaging such rate, have the same power of making and levying and enforcing the making or levying the said rate for the purpose of repaying such loan and interest, and all other sums due under the mortgage, as if such borrower had been duly constituted, and was not dissolved, and had had full power to make, levy, and mortgage such rate.

Securities to be taken in name of secretary.

20. All securities for any loan granted by the Loan Commissioners in pursuance of this Act may be given to the secretary of the Commissioners on their behalf. Every such security is in this Act referred to as a security given to the Commissioners.

Taking possession by Commissioners of property on default of payment.

21. Where a mortgage of property has been given to secure any loan granted by the Loan Commissioners, and default is made in making payment according to the terms of such mortgage, then at any time after such default and without any consent on the part of any person interested in the equity of redemption of the mortgaged property, the Commissioners, without prejudice to any other remedy, shall have power to do all or any of the following things; namely,—

- (1) Take possession of the mortgaged property, or any part thereof; and
- (2) Grant any lease of the mortgaged property, or any part thereof, for such term and upon such reasonable conditions as they may think expedient, and that either for a premium or rent, or both; and Section 21.

- (3) Sell or mortgage the mortgaged property or any part thereof.

22. The Loan Commissioners, when authorised to take possession of any mortgaged property, may take possession either by themselves or by any person appointed by them (whether such person is interested in the mortgaged property or not), and upon possession of any mortgaged property being so taken,— Powers of Commissioners when in possession.

- (1) All the estate, right, interest, powers, authorities, and privileges, of what nature or kind soever, which were at the time of the making of the mortgage or may for the time being be vested in or exerciseable by the mortgagor or any person claiming through or under the mortgagor, either in relation to the property or necessary for carrying on and managing the same, shall become vested in the secretary of the Commissioners; and
- (2) The Commissioners may by themselves or any person appointed as aforesaid manage and carry on the property, and receive the revenue arising therefrom, or in any way receivable in respect thereof, or otherwise, in pursuance of the mortgage, and exercise all or any of the powers and authorities vested in the secretary by this Act; and
- (3) The Commissioners or their secretary or such person as aforesaid shall not be liable for the repairs or maintenance of the mortgaged property, but may apply any moneys received in respect thereof or raised from any rate towards such repairs or maintenance to such extent as the Commissioners may think expedient; and
- (4) The Commissioners may, with the consent of the Treasury, advance out of moneys at their disposal under this Act sums for the completion, repair, improvement, or security of the mortgaged property, and every such sum shall be deemed and shall be a loan secured on the property and repayable with the like interest (a) from the time of the advance, and by the like person, and shall have the like priority and be recoverable in the like manner as if it were part of the original loan secured by the said mortgage; and
- (5) If the revenue received from or in respect of the property is insufficient to keep down the current expenses of working, maintaining, and repairing the same, together with the instalments of principal and the interest for the time being due on the mortgage, and no rate or no sufficient rate can be levied to meet the deficiency, the Commissioners may, with the consent of the Treasury, destroy or cause to be destroyed, or (if they sell the same) authorise the purchaser with the like consent to destroy the same, and sell or authorise the purchaser to sell the materials thereof and other the articles, goods, and effects belonging thereto, and neither the Commissioners, nor their secretary, nor the purchaser so authorised, nor his representatives, shall be liable in damages or otherwise to any person whomsoever for such destruction; and the provisions of this Act with respect to the sale of any mortgaged property shall apply to any sale under this section; and
- (6) Possession under this Act may be relinquished at such time and in such manner and upon such terms and conditions as the Commissioners think fit, and upon such relinquishment all powers, authorities, and privileges which on the taking of possession become vested in the secretary of the Commissioners shall, so far as they are not reserved, revert to and become vested in the person in whom the same would have been vested if possession had not been taken, but the Commissioners may, if they think fit, on the relinquishment of possession, reserve any of the said powers, authorities, and privileges, with a view to the payment of any sum due to them :

- (7) Every such relinquishment of possession of any mortgaged property shall be without prejudice to the power of again taking possession thereof under the provisions of this Act.

(a) Not less than 5 per cent. See the Public Works Loans Act, 1881, s. 7, post, p. 4621.

Powers in relation to rate where default made.

23. Where a loan made by the Commissioners is secured by the mortgage of a rate (whether with or without any other security), and the Commissioners might, if such loan were secured upon a mortgage of property, take possession of such property, the Commissioners may, without prejudice to any other remedy, by notice in writing served at the office or last known place of address of the mortgagor, or where from any cause the same cannot be so served by notice in writing published in the prescribed manner, declare their intention to exercise the powers conferred by this Act, and thereupon the Commissioners shall have and may exercise the same power as the mortgagor of making and levying the rate mortgaged, and for that purpose the Commissioners or their secretary with their concurrence may appoint an officer who, subject to the direction of the Commissioners, shall have and may exercise the same powers, authorities, and duties as if he had been appointed by the mortgagor.

The Commissioners, in making an estimate of the rate to be levied for the purpose of paying any sum due, may add such sum as they think sufficient for defraying and may defray thereout all costs, charges, and expenses, including remuneration to any officer or other person employed, incurred by the Commissioners in the execution of their powers under this section or otherwise by reason of the default in payment.

Any balance remaining in the hands of the Commissioners shall be paid by them to the mortgagor.

The Commissioners may, by a like notice, declare their intention to relinquish the powers conferred by this section, and that either absolutely or with reservations and conditions, and thereupon all such powers shall revert in the mortgagor, subject to the said reservations and conditions.

Liability of Commissioners after taking possession or in default of payment.

24. When the Loan Commissioners have taken possession of any property under this Act, or exercised the powers conferred by this Act in relation to any rate, neither they nor their secretary, nor any person appointed by them in that behalf, shall be liable to account to any person interested in the equity of redemption in such property or rate for any moneys which, but for their wilful neglect or default, they or he might have received when so in possession or exercising such powers, or for any moneys other than those which have actually come to their or his hands.

Sale and mortgage by Commissioners of mortgaged premises.

25. Where the Loan Commissioners have power to sell or mortgage, they shall have power to sell or mortgage either together or in parcels, by public auction or private contract, and subject to such conditions as to title or evidence of title or otherwise as the Commissioners may think proper.

They may also buy in at any auction and rescind any contract for sale or mortgage, and resell or remortgage, without being responsible for any loss occasioned thereby.

Where a sale cannot be made in the ordinary way for a sum equal to the amount remaining due under the mortgage, the Loan Commissioners may, if they think fit, sell in such manner and subject to such conditions, stipulations, and agreements as they may think expedient for the purpose of ensuring the completion or carrying on of the work comprised in such mortgage by the purchaser thereof, with a view to the public good or general benefit, or for any other purpose, notwithstanding such conditions, stipulations, and agreements may be prejudicial to the sale, or may not be beneficial to the persons interested in the equity of redemption in the property. Section 25.

The Loan Commissioners may for the purpose of any sale or mortgage execute all such agreements, conveyances, and instruments as they may think fit.

26. Every sale or mortgage made by the Commissioners or their secretary, and purporting to be made in pursuance of this Act, shall, so far as regards the interest of the purchaser and mortgagee, be deemed to be valid, and the purchaser or mortgagee shall not be bound to see or inquire whether the sale or mortgage is authorised, nor in the case of a mortgage whether the money raised is required to be raised, nor as to the necessity or expediency of or authority for making the conditions, stipulations, or agreements subject to which the sale or mortgage was made, nor otherwise as to the propriety or regularity of such sale or mortgage, nor be affected by express notice as to any matters into which he is not bound to see or inquire. Purchaser not liable to see to the validity of sale or application of money.

The receipt in writing of the Bank of England, or one of their cashiers or other proper officer for the purpose of the Bank of England, or other prescribed receipt, shall be a full discharge for the money paid on the sale or mortgage, and the person paying the same shall not be bound to see to the application of such money, or be liable or in any manner accountable for the misapplication or non-application thereof.

27. Any lease, mortgage, conveyance (a), or other disposition made by the secretary of the Commissioners under this Act of any mortgaged property may be in the prescribed form, and shall convey to the person in whose favour such lease, mortgage, conveyance, or other disposition is made, and according to the terms thereof, all or any part of the estate, right, interest, powers, authorities, and privileges, which under the mortgage and this Act are vested in or capable of being exercised by the Loan Commissioners, or their secretary, either before or after possession taken, and the same shall thereupon be vested in and may be exercised and put in force by such person accordingly. Terms of lease, sale, or mortgage.

Nothing in this Act shall operate to invalidate or affect the rights of any person entitled bonâ fide to any debt, estate, or interest, having priority over or ranking pari passu with the loan granted by the Commissioners, or the security for such loan, or the rights of any lessee under any lease made either prior to such security or with the concurrence of the Commissioners.

28. Any money arising from the taking possession, lease, sale, mortgage, or other disposition under this Act by or under the direction of the Loan Commissioners of any mortgaged property shall be applied first in discharge of all costs, charges, and expenses incurred by or under the direction of the Commissioners in respect thereof, or otherwise by reason of the default in payment, and secondly in discharge of the whole of the principal of the loan secured by the mortgage and for the time being unpaid (notwithstanding that the same or any instalment thereof may not have become actually due), and in discharge of all interest accrued due on such principal, and of all other sums (if any) due under the mortgage. Application of money arising on taking possession, sale, mortgage, etc. by Commissioners.

Section 28. The surplus (if any) of such money either shall be paid to the mortgagor or other person or persons entitled thereto, or, if the Commissioners think fit, shall be paid by the secretary of the Commissioners into the Court of Chancery in England in like manner as if he were a trustee of such money for the persons entitled thereto, and the court may make such orders for the payment and distribution of such money to or among those persons as may from time to time seem to the court just.

Payment of loan before it is due, and transfer of security for all or part of loan.

29. The Loan Commissioners may, if they think fit, at any time accept payment of the whole or any part of the principal and interest of any loan or other moneys secured by any mortgage under this Act before the time when the same is due, and may release or convey the mortgaged property or rate to the person paying the same or as he may direct, upon such terms and conditions and in such manner and form as the Commissioners may think expedient.

The person in whose favour any conveyance of the mortgaged property or rate under this section is made shall, subject to any limitations inserted therein, be entitled to the like priorities, powers, and authorities as the Commissioners or their secretary were entitled to, either subject to or with priority over or concurrently with any priorities, powers, and authorities reserved to the Commissioners by the conveyance.

The Commissioners shall have full power to enter into and concur in all such arrangements as they may deem expedient for the purposes of carrying into effect a release or conveyance under this section.

Discharge of security and revesting of property on repayment of loan.

30. Upon all money due under a mortgage under this Act being fully paid the Commissioners shall, when required, give in the prescribed manner to the person liable to the payment thereof a receipt in writing for the same, and such further sufficient discharge (if any) as may seem to the Commissioners to be necessary, and upon such receipt being given the mortgaged rate shall be released from the charge and the mortgaged property, or the part thereof not sold or disposed of under this Act, shall (unless the Commissioners, on the request and at the expense of the person paying the said money, make any other disposition thereof), revert in the person who would have been entitled thereto if the mortgage had not been made, subject nevertheless to any lease, mortgage, or other act previously made or done by or under the direction of the Commissioners.

Bankruptcy debtor.

31. Where an individual liable to pay as principal or surety the principal or interest of any loan under this Act becomes bankrupt or insolvent, or enters into any composition or arrangement with his creditors, or has his affairs liquidated by arrangement, or takes the benefit of, or becomes subject to the provisions of any Act passed for the relief of persons in debt, or for enabling the property of such persons to be distributed among their creditors, or where any company liable to pay as principal or surety the principal or interest of any loan under this Act becomes bankrupt or is wound up, the whole of such loan shall become due immediately, notwithstanding that the date for the payment thereof or part thereof has not arrived, unless in the case of a surety the Commissioners think fit to accept some other surety.

Form of mortgage.

32. Every security given under this Act may be in such form as may be prescribed (a), and the fact of the secretary of the Loan Commissioners being a party thereto shall be conclusive evidence that the same is in the prescribed form, and every such security shall be valid and effectual to pass all the estate, right, and interest purporting to be passed thereunder by the parties executing the same, subject to the provisions of this Act (b). Section 32.

(a) See the definition in s. 51, post, p. 4559.

(b) By s. 205 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1041, mortgages, in the case of loans by the Public Works Loan Commissioners, are to be in the form prescribed by the Public Works Loans Acts, 1875 to 1882, and not in that prescribed by the Regulations of 1934 (see ante, p. 1041).

33. Every sum payable under any security made in pursuance of this Act shall be made payable to the use of her Majesty, and may be recovered as a specialty debt due to the Crown, in like manner as if the security had been made in the form provided by the Act of the thirty-third year of the reign of Henry the Eighth, chapter thirty-nine; but no person shall be liable for any larger sum than that which he is expressed to be bound to pay. Recovery of debt on personal security.

Every sum payable in respect of a loan granted by the Loan Commissioners (either before or after the passing of this Act) or under the security for such loan, shall be compounded for or released only under the authority of Parliament in each case (a).

The Loan Commissioners may issue a warrant to the proper officer forthwith to enforce payment of such debt to the Crown as aforesaid, and if necessary to enter satisfaction therefor, and shall have the control over any proceedings taken to enforce such debt, and such proceedings shall not be discontinued, quashed, or abated without the written authority of the Loan Commissioners.

The Court of Exchequer, or other competent court, or any judge thereof, may, upon the production of the said warrant, direct an immediate writ of extent, or of diem clausit extremum, to issue without any writ of scire facias or any affidavit or other proof of the cause of the proceeding.

Nothing in this Act shall render it the duty of the Loan Commissioners to issue such warrant or to register such writ or debt, unless they are of opinion that it is necessary for the purpose of securing the payment of the debt, or that otherwise under the particular circumstances it is expedient so to do.

(a) The Commissioners may reduce the interest on any loan made before this Act to any rate not less than 4 per cent., but this provision is not to take away or abridge the power of the Commissioners to reduce the interest on any loan under the P. H. A., 1875, s. 243 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 726; now replaced by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 311, ante, p. 659). See the Public Works Loans (Money) Act, 1876, s. 6, post, p. 4562.

34. The expiration of the period within which a loan under this Act is made repayable (whether such period is the full period allowed by this or the special Act or a shorter period) shall not in any way affect any power of the Loan Commissioners of recovering or enforcing payment of any sum due in respect of such loan (a). Recovery of loan after the expiration of term for repayment.

(a) This provision appears to meet a difficulty such as occurred in R. v. Wigan, ante p. 1033.

SUPPLEMENTAL PROVISIONS AS TO LOANS AND SECURITIES.

35. Where the Commissioners grant a loan in aid of any work which is either partly completed or not commenced, they may, by a bond to her Majesty or otherwise, take such security for the application of the loan to the work, and for the due completion of the work (including the raising of sufficient funds for that purpose), as they may think sufficient for securing the interest to the public. Security for completion of works partly finished or not commenced.

Section 36.

Examination as to proper application of moneys lent.

36. Where the Loan Commissioners advance any loan for any purpose on the security of a rate, it shall be the duty of the Local Government Board to satisfy themselves that the loan is applied to such purpose; they may from time to time make such examination as they may think necessary with a view to ascertain that such loan has been so applied.

The Local Government Board may appoint any officer to conduct on their behalf any examination under this section, and such officer shall have the same powers to require the attendance of persons and the production of accounts and other documents, so far as such attendance or production is required for the purpose of such examination, as an inspector of the Local Government Board has under the Acts relating to the relief of the poor (a).

(a) This section is amended by the Public Works Loans Act, 1878, s. 4 (giving power to the Commissioners to enforce the proper application of the loans by mandamus), post, p. 4602, and by the Public Works Loans Act, 1881, ss. 8, 9 (giving power to make and enforce orders as to expenses of inquiries into the application of loans and providing for the application of unapplied balances), post, p. 4621. For the powers of a poor law inspector, see the Poor Law Act, 1930, s. 160 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 1045).

payment of principal and interest.

37. The Treasury may, on the recommendation of the Loan Commissioners, postpone for any time not exceeding five years the payment of the instalments of principal and interest, or either, due or to become due in respect of a loan granted by the Commissioners for the purpose of any work, and that upon such terms and conditions for the completion and improvement of such work, and the ultimate payment of such principal and interest, as the Treasury may on the said recommendation authorise.

Change of security.

38. The Loan Commissioners may, subject to the prescribed regulations if under the circumstances of the case they think fit, accept any security in lieu of any security previously given to them, or of any part of such security, and that subject to such terms and conditions as they direct; so, however, that the substituted security shall be of the character which the Commissioners might take if the loan were originally granted at the time of such substitution, and that no change of security under this section shall extend the period for the repayment of the loan.

Concurrence by Commissioners
in leases, sales,
etc. of mortgaged property.

39. The Loan Commissioners may concur in any lease, conveyance, release, or other disposition of any property mortgaged under this Act, or any part thereof, and in the arrangements relative thereto, upon such terms and conditions as they may think fit, and either with or without consideration, so that in their opinion the payment, with interest, of the loan charged on the mortgaged property is sufficiently secured or is not thereby made less secure.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS AS TO BORROWERS.

Power to various authorities to mortgage and levy
rates.

40. The justices for any county, or any riding, division, parts, or liberty of a county, in general or quarter sessions assembled, may (if they resolve by a majority of not less than five justices so to do) borrow money from the Loan Commissioners for the purpose of building, rebuilding, enlarging, repairing, improving, and fitting up any police station and justices room, and offices connected therewith, or any of such purposes, and may levy a rate or any increase of a county rate for the purpose of paying the principal and interest of such loan, and may mortgage such rate or the county rate to the Loan Commissioners in accordance with this Act (a).

The council of any borough may borrow money from the Loan Commissioners for the purpose of building, rebuilding, enlarging, repairing, improving, and fitting up any police station and justices room, and offices connected therewith, or any of such purposes, and may levy a rate or an increase of the borough rate for the purpose of paying the principal and interest of such loan, and may mortgage such rate or the borough rate to the Loan Commissioners in accordance with this Act (b). Section 40.

The said justices and council respectively (b) shall have power to give the mortgage in such manner and form as the Loan Commissioners may direct.

(a) County loans are now raised by the county council under Part IX. of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1023, and securities for loans previously raised by the justices were discharged by the county council under s. 122 (1) of the L. G. A., 1888.

(b) This paragraph and the words "and council respectively," are repealed as to boroughs within the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882 (see Sched. I., Part 2, of that Act; 10 Halsbury's Statutes 659, now repealed), because other provision was made, which is now Part IX. of the L. G. A., 1933.

MISCELLANEOUS.

41. The Loan Commissioners may from time to time make regulations for carrying into effect this Act, and in particular with respect to the quorum and proceedings of the Commissioners and the authentication of documents made or issued or directions given or acts done by them, and with respect to loans under this Act and application therefor, and annual and quarterly statements of the amounts required to be borrowed, and the information to be given and conditions to be complied with by the applicants, and with respect to the forms to be used, including the forms of the securities, and with respect to any fees or sums to be paid by the applicants or by other persons dealing with such Commissioners, and with respect to the relations between such Commissioners and the National Debt Commissioners and the Bank of England. Regulations by Commissioners (a).

Every such regulation shall be submitted for the approval of the Treasury, and as approved by them with such modifications and additions as they think fit, shall be published in the London Gazette, and when so published shall have effect as if it was enacted in this Act.

Every such regulation shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament as soon as may be after the making thereof if Parliament be then sitting, or if Parliament be not then sitting, within one month after the then next meeting of Parliament. Every regulation, purporting to be made in pursuance of this section, shall after the expiration of six months after its publication in the London Gazette be deemed to have been duly made and to have been within the powers of this Act.

Regulations made under this section may be from time to time rescinded, altered, and added to in like manner as the original regulations.

(a) Regulations have been made under this section, and will be found set out, ante, p. 3186.

42. [Payment of fees and other sums into the Exchequer] (a).

43. The Loan Commissioners shall keep at the Bank of England such account, and under such title as the Treasury may from time to time direct, and every such account shall be deemed to be a public account.

Such accounts as the Treasury may from time to time direct of all moneys issued from or payable to the Consolidated Fund in pursuance of this Act

Section 43. during every financial year, and of all transactions under this Act during that year, including all sums due for the time being from any person in respect of any loan granted by the Loan Commissioners either before or after the passing of this Act, shall be kept by the National Debt Commissioners and the Loan Commissioners respectively, and such other persons (if any), and be audited by the Comptroller and Auditor-General in such manner as the Treasury may from time to time direct.

Perjury. 44. Any person who, . . . (a) for the purpose of obtaining a loan under this Act, wilfully gives information to such Commissioners which is false in any material particular, shall be guilty of perjury.

(a) Some words here repealed by the Perjury Act, 1911 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 772).

Authority, and laying before Parliament
Treasury warrants.

45. The warrant of the Treasury issued under the authority of this Act shall be a sufficient authority to the Bank of England for doing the things thereby directed to be done for the purposes of this Act, and copies of any such warrant relating to the borrowing of money shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament, within one month of the date thereof, if Parliament be then sitting, and if not within one month after the then next meeting of Parliament.

Receipt for money payable on account of loan, etc.

46. The receipt in writing of the Bank of England, or one of their cashiers or other the proper officer for the purpose of the Bank of England, and any other prescribed receipt for any money paid in discharge of the principal or interest of any loan granted under this Act, or of any sum due under any security made under this Act or otherwise payable to or by the direction of the Loan Commissioners or their secretary, shall be a complete discharge to the person paying the same.

Notices may be served by post.

47. Notices, directions, orders, and documents required by this Act, or by any regulation made under this Act, to be served or sent may, unless otherwise expressly provided, be served and sent by post, and, until the contrary is proved, shall be deemed to have been served and received respectively at the time when the letter containing the same would be delivered in the ordinary course of post; and in proving such service or sending it shall be sufficient to prove that the letter containing the notice, direction, order, or document was prepaid, and properly addressed, and put into the post.

Notices to and by Commissioners.

48. Notices, and documents required by this Act, or by any regulation made under this Act, to be served on the Loan Commissioners, may be so served by serving the same on their secretary, or by sending the same addressed to or delivering the same at the office of the Commissioners.

Notices and documents required for the purposes of this Act or of any regulation made thereunder, to be served by or on the Loan Commissioners, or to be made or issued by the Loan Commissioners, shall be in writing or in print, or partly in writing and partly in print.

Effect of schedules.

49. The Schedules to this Act shall be construed and have effect as part of this Act.

Application of Act to loans under special
Acts.

50. Except so far as a special Act, by express reference to some part of this Act, alters that part, every loan made by the Loan Commissioners shall, notwithstanding any provision in such special Act (a) and any rule of law or custom, be made in accordance with and under the powers of this Act, and be repayable in manner provided by this Act, and by the security for the same granted under this Act; and every such loan, together with the security for the same, shall have the priority and be subject to the powers, authorities, and remedies mentioned in this Act; and although made in pursuance of a special Act, shall be deemed for all purposes to be a loan under this Act. Section 50.

(a) As to the meaning of this term, see s. 18, note (a), ante, p. 4550.

51. In this Act, if not inconsistent with the context—

Definitions.

The expression “person” includes a body of persons, whether corporate or unincorporate (a):

The expression “financial year” means the year ending the thirty-first day of March:

The expression “prescribed” means prescribed by the regulations made under this Act with the approval of the Treasury:

The expression “special Act” means any Act passed before the passing of this Act which authorises the Loan Commissioners to lend money for the purposes of any work mentioned in the First Schedule to this Act and any Act passed after the passing of this Act, which authorises the Loan Commissioners to lend money for any purpose (b):

The expression “security” includes a mortgage:

The expression “mortgage” includes a charge and any instrument in the nature of a mortgage or charge, and in Scotland any heritable security:

The expression “conveyance” includes any grant, assignment, transfer, or other disposition or assurance; and the expression “convey” shall be construed accordingly:

The expression “rate” means a rate, cess, or assessment the proceeds of which are applicable to public local purposes and leviable on the basis of a valuation of property, and includes any sum which, though obtained in the first instance by a precept, certificate, or other instrument requiring payment from some authority or officer, is or can be ultimately raised out of a rate, as before defined, and the making and levying of a rate includes the issue and enforcement of any such precept, certificate, or instrument as aforesaid, and expressions relating to the making and levy of a rate shall be construed accordingly:

Any toll, due, rent, imposition, and other sum not being a rate as above defined shall be deemed to be property for the purposes of this Act.

All references to a mortgagor or borrower shall, if need be, be deemed to include a reference to the successors heirs executors administrators and assigns of, or other persons claiming through or under such mortgagor or borrower.

(a) Definitions of “the Treasury,” “National Debt Commissioners,” and “Bank of England,” are here repealed by the S. L. R. (No. 2) A., 1893 (18 Halsbury’s Statutes 1014), their places being now supplied by the definitions enacted by the Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 12 (op. cit. 994).

(b) See note (a) to s. 18, ante, p. 4550.

Temporary Provisions and Repeal.

52. [First commissioners] (a).

(a) Repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1883 (op. cit. 986).

53. [Existing officers of commissioners] (a).

Section 54. 54. [Sending of statements, etc., before commencement of Act] (a).

(a) Repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1883.

Reference in Act to repealed
Acts.

55. A reference in any Act to any enactment hereby repealed, or to the commissioners for the execution of any Act hereby repealed, shall, so far as is consistent with the tenor thereof, be deemed to refer to the corresponding enactment in this Act and to the Public Works Loan Commissioners under this Act.

Saving for loans and transactions under repealed Acts.

56. Save as otherwise provided by this Act this Act shall apply only to loans granted and securities made after the commencement of this Act.

The Loan Commissioners shall have the same power of making further advances on any mortgages made before the commencement of this Act and intended to secure more than the sum which has actually been advanced thereon as they would have had under the Acts repealed by this Act if they had not been repealed, but such advances shall be made out of money issued under this Act.

The Loan Commissioners, on granting any new loan to persons by whom a loan granted before the commencement of this Act is still owing, may make it a condition of the grant of such new loan that the old loan shall be deemed to have been granted in pursuance of this Act, and on such condition being accepted the old loan shall be deemed to be a loan under this Act.

For the purpose of any loans granted and securities made before the commencement of this Act, the Loan Commissioners under this Act and their secretary and other officers for the time being shall be deemed to be the same commissioners, secretary, and officers as the commissioners, secretary, and officers under the Acts in pursuance of which such loan was granted and securities made; and all securities and documents relating to such commissioners, secretary and officers shall be construed accordingly.

Repeal of Acts.

57. (a) . . . so much of any . . . enactment as authorises any loan by the Public Works Loan Commissioners for the purpose of any work other than a work mentioned in the First Schedule to this Act, or as is otherwise inconsistent with this Act, is hereby repealed . . .

Provided that—

(1) The repeal of an enactment by this Act shall not affect—

(b) Any power to make or levy rates, or any other power capable of being exercised for the purpose of enabling or compelling the repayment of any money due on account of any loan granted by the Public Works Loan Commissioners before the commencement of this Act, whether the same or any part thereof has been actually advanced before or after such commencement.

THE PUBLIC WORKS LOANS (MONEY) ACT, 1876.

(39 & 40 VICT. c. 31) (a).

An Act to grant Money for the purpose of Loans by the Public Works Loan Commissioners, and to amend the Public Works Loans Act, 1875.

[24th July, 1876.]

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited as the Public Works Loans (Money) Act, 1876.

(a) The preamble to this Act was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1894, and by s. 4 of that Act (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1020) it was enacted that in any revised edition of the Statutes published by authority, the clause of enactment may be omitted. It is accordingly omitted here and in every subsequent Act in this work.

As to the subject of this Act, see also the Acts mentioned in note (a) to the Public Works Loans Act, 1875, ante, p. 4544.

2. [Commencement of Act] (a).

(a) Sections 2, 4, 5, and parts of ss. 6 and 7, here omitted, were repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1894 (op. cit. 1019). In s. 6, certain words relating to Scotland only are also omitted.

3. [Issue of money for loans] (a).

AMENDMENT TO PUBLIC WORKS LOANS ACT, 1875.

4. [Application of Public Works Loans Act, 1875, s. 56, ante, p. 4560] (a).

(a) See note (a) to s. 2, supra.

5. [Removal of doubt as to Harbour of Colombo Loan Act, 1874] (a).

(a) See note (a) to s. 2, supra.

Explanation of
38 & 39 Vict.
c. 89, s. 33, as to reduction of interest on loans to sanitary authorities.

6 (a). . . . Nothing in the Public Works Loans Act, 1875, shall be deemed to take away or abridge the power of the Loan Commissioners under section two hundred and forty-three of the Public Health Act, 1875, . . . to reduce, if they think fit, any interest payable on any such loan to a local authority as is in those sections mentioned.

(a) See note (a) to s. 2, supra.

Explanation of ss. 18, 50 of 38 & 39 Vict.
c. 89.

7 (a). . . . Sections eighteen and fifty of the Public Works Loans Act, 1875 (b), shall be construed as if "special Act" in those sections included any Act relating to any person having power to borrow money from the Public Works Loan Commissioners.

(a) See note (a) to s. 2, supra.

(b) See the sections referred to, ante, pp. 4549, 4558.

8. [Issue for adjustment of accounts prior to 1st April, 1876] (a).

THE COMMONS ACT, 1876.

(39 & 40 VICT. c. 56) (a).

An Act for facilitating the Regulation and Improvement of Commons, and for amending the Acts relating to the Inclosure of Commons.

[11th August, 1876.]

1. This Act may be cited for all purposes as the Commons Act, 1876. Short title.

(a) The preamble to this Act reciting the Inclosure Acts, 1845 to 1868 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 443, 575), was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1894 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1019). The powers and duties of the Inclosure Commissioners were by the Settled Land Act, 1882, s. 48, transferred to the Land Commissioners, and by the Board of Agriculture Act, 1889, s. 2 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 401), the powers and duties of the latter were transferred to the Board of Agriculture, now the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries (see Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries Act, 1919; op. cit. 451). Throughout this Act, therefore, it is necessary to substitute the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries for the Inclosure Commissioners.

This Act confers on urban sanitary authorities important powers and duties with respect to suburban commons, which are extended to rural district councils in certain cases under s. 26 (2) of the L. G. A., 1894, post, p. 4908. See also the Commons Act, 1899, post, p. 4982, and reference should be made to the Law of Property Act, 1925, ss. 193 and 194, post, Vol. V.

PART I.

LAW AS TO THE REGULATION AND INCLOSURE OF COMMONS.

Applications in relation to Commons.

2. The Inclosure Commissioners (a) may entertain an application made in manner in this Act mentioned for a Provisional Order— Alternative Provisional Order for regulation or inclosure of commons.

(1) For the regulation of a common; or

(2) For the inclosure of a common or parts of a common.

Further, an application may be made as respects the same common for the regulation of part of such common, specifying the part to be regulated, and for the inclosure of the residue, and in such case the application shall be dealt with as respects such parts as if they were separate commons, with this exception, that the boundaries as proposed in the application of the part to be regulated and the part to be inclosed may be modified by the Provisional Order.

The Commissioners shall not proceed to carry any application under this Act into effect until it is made to appear to them that the persons making the application represent at least one-third in value (b) of such interests in the common as are proposed to be affected by the Provisional Order.

(a) Now the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. See note (a) to s. 1, supra. The consent of the Minister is also necessary to an inclosure or approvement under the Statute of Merton and the Statute of Westminster the Second, or either of such statutes. See the Law of Commons Amendment Act, 1893, s. 1 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 606). Nothing in the Copyhold Act, 1894, authorises a lord to enclose any common or waste land (s. 95; 3 Halsbury's Statutes 629).

A much less cumbrous and expensive method than that afforded by this Act of providing for the regulation of a common is now given by the Commons Act, 1899, post, p. 4982. See s. 194 of the Law of Property Act, 1925, Vol. V., post, for a restriction on the inclosure of commons.

(b) As to the method of arriving at the value, see Hunter on Open Spaces, 2nd ed., pp. 136—138.

3. A Provisional Order for the regulation of a common may provide, "Regulation of common" generally or otherwise, for the adjustment of rights in respect of such common, includes and for the improvement of such common, or for either of such purposes, adjustment of rights and or for any of the things by this Act comprised under the expression "adjust-improvement."

Section 3. ment of rights" or "improvement of a common," or may state that all or any of such subjects are to be provided for in the proceedings subsequent to the confirmation of the Provisional Order by Parliament.

Explanation of adjustment of rights.

4. The adjustment of rights (a) in respect of a common comprises for the purposes of this Act all or any of the following things :

- (1) As respects rights of common of pasture in a common, being waste land of a manor,—the determination of the persons by whom, the stock by which, and the times at which such common of pasture is to be exercised (b) ;
- (2) As respects rights of common of turbary, or taking of estovers (a), or taking gravel, stone (c), or otherwise interfering with the soil of the common, being waste land of a manor,—the determination of the persons by whom, and the mode and place or places in which, and the times at which such rights are to be exercised, also on compensation made to any person aggrieved, either by grant of a right of equal value, or with his consent in writing, in money,—the restriction modification or abolition of all or any of such rights which may permanently injure the common (d) ;
- (3) As respects rights of common in land which is not waste land of a manor,—the stinting or other determination of such rights, and the persons by whom, and the mode in which, and the times at which such rights are to be exercised, as also on compensation made to any person aggrieved, either by grant of a right of equal value, or with his consent in writing, in money,—the restriction modification or abolition of all or any of such rights which may be injurious to the general body of the commoners or to the proper cultivation of the land ;
- (4) As respects any common whether it is or is not waste land of a manor,—the determination of the rights and obligations of the lord of the manor, severalty owners or other person or persons entitled to the soil of such common, as also on compensation made to any person aggrieved, either by grant of a right of equal value, or with his consent in writing, in money,—the restriction modification or abolition of all or any of such rights, and in particular in the case of severalty owners of all or any of such rights which may be injurious to the general body of the severalty owners or to the proper cultivation of the land ; and
- (5) Generally as respects any common, whether it is or is not waste land of a manor,—the determination of any rights and settlement of any disputes relating to boundaries, rights in the soil or in the produce of the soil, or otherwise, whether arising between the commoners themselves, or between the commoners in relation to the lords of the manors, severalty owners, or other person or persons entitled to the soil of the common, which, settlement may be conducive to the interests of all or any class of persons interested in the common.

(a) The destruction of an ancient house to which rights of common were appurtenant does not necessarily operate as an abandonment of those rights (Att.-Gen. v. Reynolds, [1911] 2 K. B. 888 ; 11 Digest 16, 175).

(b) As to commonable animals straying from unenclosed common land into an adjacent close and the obligation to provide fences on the part of the owner of such close, see Coaker v. Willcocks, [1911] 2 K. B. 124 ; 7 Digest 295, 209. See also Holgate v. Bleazard [1917] 1 K. B. 443 ; 33 T. L. R. 116 ; 2 Digest 225, 178.

(c) See Malvern Hill Conservators v. Whitmore (1909), 73 J. P. 329 ; 100 L. T. 841 11 Digest 42, 578.

(d) Where under an Inclosure Act, 1802, s. 13, part of a waste was allotted to the lord in trust for the cottagers as a turf common, and subsequently a railway company took part of this turf common, it was held that the lord was entitled to so much of the fund in court as represented the value of the soil (Att.-Gen. v. Meyrick, [1893] A. C. 1; 75 J. P. 212; 11 Digest 29, 366).

Note to
Section 4.

5. The improvement of a common comprises for the purposes of this Act all or any of the following things; that is to say, Explanation of improvement.

- (1) The draining, manuring, or levelling the common; and
- (2) The planting trees on parts of such common, or in any other way improving or adding to the beauty of the common; and
- (3) The making or causing to be made byelaws (a) and regulations for the prevention of or protection from nuisances or for keeping order on the common; and
- (4) The general management of such common;
- (5) The appointment from time to time of conservators of the common for the purposes aforesaid.

(a) See ss. 16, 17, post, p. 4574.

6. A Provisional Order for the inclosure of a common means a Provisional Order for inclosing the common, as provided by the Inclosure Acts, 1845 to 1868, as amended by this Act. Meaning of Provisional Order for inclosure.

7. In any Provisional Order in relation to a common, the Inclosure Commissioners (a) shall, in considering the expediency of the application, take into consideration (b) the question whether such application will be for the benefit of the neighbourhood (c), and shall, with a view to such benefit, insert in any such Order such of the following terms and conditions (in this Act referred to as statutory provisions for the benefit of the neighbourhood (d)) as are applicable to the case; that is to say. Provisions for the benefit of a neighbourhood.

- (1) That free access is to be secured to any particular points of view; and
- (2) That particular trees or objects of historical interest are to be preserved; and
- (3) That there is to be reserved, where a recreation ground is not set out, a privilege of playing games or of enjoying other species of recreation at such times in such manner and on such parts of the common as may be thought suitable, care being taken to cause the least possible injury to the persons interested in the common (e); and
- (4) That carriage roads, bridle paths, and footpaths over such common are to be set out in such directions as may appear most commodious; and
- (5) That any other specified thing is to be done which may be thought equitable and expedient, regard being had to the benefit of the neighbourhood.

(a) Now the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4563.

(b) The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries is required to have regard to the same considerations in giving his consent to an inclosure or approvement under the Statute of Merton and the Statute of Westminster the Second, or either of those statutes (The Law of Commons Amendment Act, 1893, s. 3; 2 Halsbury's Statutes 606).

(c) This expression by the preamble to the Act was explained to include "the health, comfort, and convenience of the inhabitants of any cities, towns, villages, or populous places in or near any parish in which the land proposed to be inclosed or any part thereof might be situate." See s. 193 of the Law of Property Act, 1925, and the Access to Mountains Act, 1939; Vol. V. and 32 Halsbury's Statutes 511, for rights which are available to the public over waste lands, commons, mountains and moorlands.

(d) Any of these statutory provisions for the benefit of the neighbourhood may be included in a scheme made by an urban or rural district council under the Commons Act, 1899, s. 1, post, p. 4982.

Note to

Suburban Commons (a).

Sanitary authorities to be represented in the case of commons in the neighbourhood
of towns.

8. Notice of any application under this Act in relation to a common which is situate either wholly or partly in any town or towns, or within six miles (b) of any town or towns (which common so situate is in this Act referred to as a suburban common) shall be served as soon as may be on the urban sanitary authority or authorities having jurisdiction over such town or towns, and it shall be lawful for the urban sanitary authority of any such town to appear before the assistant commissioner on the occasion of his holding a local inquiry as in this Act mentioned, and also to appear before the Inclosure Commissioners (c), and to make to him or them, at any time during the proceedings in relation to obtaining a Provisional Order under this Act, such representations as they may think fit with respect to the expediency or in expediency of such application, regard being had to the health comfort and convenience of the inhabitants of the town over which such authority has jurisdiction, and to propose to him or them such provisions as may appear to such urban sanitary authority to be proper, regard being had as aforesaid.

Any urban sanitary authority entitled to receive notice of an application in relation to a suburban common may, with the sanction of the Inclosure Commissioners (c), enter into an undertaking to contribute out of their funds for or towards the maintenance of recreation grounds, or of paths or roads, or the doing any other matter or thing for the benefit of their town in relation to the common to which such application relates.

They may also, in relation to any such common, and with such sanction as aforesaid, enter into an undertaking to pay compensation in respect to the rights of commoners, for the purpose of securing greater privileges for the benefit of their town.

An urban sanitary authority may acquire by gift and hold without licence in mortmain on trust for the benefit of their town any suburban common in respect of which they would be entitled to receive notice of any application made to the Inclosure Commissioners (c) in pursuance of this Act, and any rights in such a common (d).

They may also in the case of any such suburban common purchase (e) and hold as aforesaid, with a view to prevent the extinction of the rights of common (f), any saleable rights in (g) common or any tenement of a commoner having annexed thereto rights of common.

They may also, with the consent of persons representing at least one-third in value of such interests in a suburban common as aforesaid as are proposed to be affected by the Provisional Order, make an application to the Inclosure Commissioners for the regulation of such common with a view to the benefit of their town and the improvement of such common.

Where an urban sanitary authority makes an application under this Act with such consent as aforesaid in respect of the regulation of a common, or undertakes to make any contribution or to pay any compensation or make any other payment out of its funds in respect of a common, such urban sanitary authority may, if the Inclosure Commissioners deem it advisable, having regard to the benefit of the neighbourhood as well as to private interests, be invested with such powers of management or other powers as may be expedient.

. . . (h).

Section 8.

A town for the purposes of this section means any municipal borough, or Improvement Act district, or Local Government district, having a population of not less than five thousand inhabitants.

The population of any town for the purposes of this Act shall be reckoned according to the last published census for the time being, and distances shall be measured in a direct line from the town hall, or if there shall be no town hall, then from the cathedral or church, if there shall be only one church, or if there be more churches than one, then from the principal market place of such town to the nearest point of the suburban common. When part only of a common is situate within the aforesaid distance from a town, such part shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to be a common separate and distinct from the part situated without and beyond such distance.

(a) By s. 26 (2) of the L. G. A., 1894, post, p. 4908, any district council may, with the consent of the county council for the county within which any common land is situate, exercise in relation to any common within their district all such powers as may, under s. 8 of this Act, be exercised by an urban sanitary authority in relation to any common referred to in that section; and notice of any application to the Minister of Agriculture (and Fisheries, as he is now called) in relation to any common within their district shall be served upon the district council, and by s. 26 (3) a district council may for the purpose of carrying into effect this section institute or defend any legal proceedings, and generally take such steps as they deem expedient.

(b) Measured in a straight line on a horizontal plane. See Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 34 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1004).

(c) Now the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4563.

(d) The words "any rights in such a common" probably refer to limited interests in the soil, such as that of a tenant for life. It is thought they would enable a local authority to take a lease of a common (Hunter on Open Spaces, 2nd ed., p. 106). This Act, except s. 20, post, p. 4575, did not apply to metropolitan commons (see s. 35, post, p. 4580), but the power conferred under this section was extended to the Metropolitan Board of Works by the Metropolitan Commons Act, 1878 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 602), and the powers of that Board are now transferred to the London C. C. by the L. G. A., 1888, s. 40.

(e) Alternatively an urban district council might purchase or lease the common under s. 164 of the P. H. A., 1875 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 693).

(f) But purchase of rights to products such as wood, turf, or gravel in soil which cannot in the ordinary course of nature produce any more wood, turf, or gravel, will not prevent inclosure. See Peardon v. Underhill (1850), 16 Q. B. 120; 15 J. P. 705; 11 Digest 17, 186.

(g) Sic in Parliament Roll. Probably a misprint for "of."

(h) Certain words here were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. IV., ante, pp. 1194, 1282; they dealt with expenses, as to which see now ibid., ss. 185, 188, ante, pp. 1013, 1015.

Procedure.

9. The Inclosure Commissioners (a) shall from time to time, upon application made by the persons interested in any common (b), issue in such form as they may deem expedient information and directions as to the mode in which applications for the regulation or inclosure of commons under the Inclosure Acts, 1845 to 1863, as amended by this Act are to be made to the Commissioners, with such explanations as they may think fit with respect to the law for the regulation and inclosure of commons, and the persons so interested may apply accordingly in manner directed by the Inclosure Commissioners (a).

Issue of forms by Commissioners.

(a) Now the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4563.

(b) Application may now also be made by parish councils. See the L. G. A., 1894, s. 8 (1) (c), post, p. 4896. And that section also provides that notice of any application to the Board (now Minister) of Agriculture and Fisheries in relation to a common shall be served upon the council of every parish in which any part of the common to which the application relates is situate (The L. G. A., 1894, s. 8 (4), post, p. 4898).

10. The following rules shall be observed with respect to an application to the Inclosure Commissioners (a) for a Provisional Order for the regulation or inclosure of a common; that is to say,

Rules as to application to Commissioners

Section 10.

Publication of notices of application.

- (1) The applicants previously to making their application shall publish, in such manner as the Inclosure Commissioners (a) may from time to time, by general or special order, direct, an advertisement giving notice of their intention to apply for such Provisional Order, and shall also serve a like notice on any urban sanitary authority entitled under this Act to receive such notice: Provided, that such advertisement as aforesaid shall always be inserted in at least one paper circulating in the neighbourhood of the common to which the application relates:

application.

- (2) The application shall be in writing, accompanied with a map of the common, or part thereof, and, if for the regulation of a common, shall express whether the applicants propose that all or certain specified provisions only of this Act for the adjustment of rights or improvement of commons should be put in force in relation to such common, and whether to apply to the whole or part of such common, but, subject as aforesaid, an application for the regulation or inclosure of a common shall be in such form and be made in such manner as the Inclosure Commissioners (a) may from time to time direct:

Evidence to be furnished in support of application.

- (3) On making their application in respect of any common, the applicants shall furnish the Inclosure Commissioners (a), in answer to questions previously submitted or otherwise in such manner as the said Commissioners may from time to time direct, with information bearing on the expediency of the application considered in relation to the benefit of the neighbourhood as well as to private interests:

Evidence in
benefit of neighbourhood.

- (4) The information to be furnished as bearing on the expediency of the application, considered in relation to the benefit of the neighbourhood, shall comprise statements as to the particulars following; that is to say, as to the number and occupation of the inhabitants of the parish or place in which the common is situate; as to the population of the neighbourhood, and the distance of the common from any neighbouring towns and villages; as to the intention of the applicants to propose the adoption of all or any of the statutory provisions as defined by this Act for the benefit of the neighbourhood; as to the circumstance of any ground other than the common to which the application relates being available for the recreation of the neighbourhood; and in the case of a common being waste land of a manor, as to the site extent and suitability of the allotments, if any, proposed to be made for recreation grounds and field gardens, or for either of such purposes; and as to any other matter which in the judgment of the Inclosure Commissioners (a) may assist them in forming an opinion as to whether such application ought to be acceded to, having regard to the benefit of the neighbourhood, and if acceded to, as to what statutory provisions as defined by this Act ought to be inserted in the Provisional Order for the benefit of the neighbourhood:

The Inclosure Commissioners (a) shall also require, in the case of an application for inclosure, special information as to the advantages the applicants anticipate to be derivable from the inclosure of a common as compared with the regulation of a common, also the reasons why an inclosure is expedient when viewed in relation to the benefit of the neighbourhood:

relation to private interests.

- (5) The information to be furnished as bearing on the expediency of the application considered in relation to private interests shall comprise statements as to the several particulars following; that is to say, as to the extent and nature of the common to which the application relates ; as to the mines minerals or valuable strata (if any) under the same ; as to the questions of boundary (if any) concerning such common, or such mines minerals or strata ; as to the parties interested in such common, and the numbers and proportion in value of interest who have consented to or dissented from the application ; as to the nature of the rights requiring the intervention of the Inclosure Commissioners (a) or the interference of Parliament ; as to the supposed advantages of the application being acceded to ; as to (in cases where the interest of any lord of the manor in the soil of a common or in mineral or other rights may be affected by the Provisional Order applied for) the allotment (if any) or compensation agreed on or proposed to be made to such lord of the manor in respect of his interest so affected ; and as to any other matter which in the judgment of the Inclosure Commissioners (a) may assist them in forming an opinion as to whether such application ought to be acceded to, having regard to private interests, and if acceded to as to what provisions ought to be inserted in the Provisional Order for the protection of private interests :

- (6) The Inclosure Commissioners (a) shall take into consideration any application made to them as in this Act provided, and if satisfied by the information furnished to them as aforesaid, or by any further inquiries made by themselves or an Assistant Commissioner, that a prima facie case has been made out, and that, regard being had to the benefit of the neighbourhood as well as to private interests, it is expedient to proceed further in the matter, they shall order a local inquiry to be held by an Assistant Commissioner.

Duty of Commissioners on application.

(a) Now the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4563.

11. The following rules shall be observed with respect to a local inquiry held by order of the Inclosure Commissioners (a) :

Rules as to local inquiry.

- (1) The Assistant Commissioner appointed to hold such inquiry shall inspect the common to which the application relates, and shall convene one or more public meetings at a suitable time and place for securing the attendance of the neighbouring inhabitants, and of all persons claiming interest in the common : Provided always, that one at least of such public meetings shall be held in the evening between the hours of seven and ten of the clock (b).
- (2) The Assistant Commissioner shall give not less than twenty-one days notice of his intention to hold the first of such meetings.
- (3) The notice shall, in such form as the Inclosure Commissioners from time to time direct, state the nature of the application made, the objects of the meeting, that the meeting is a public one and held for the purpose of enabling the Assistant Commissioner to hear all persons desirous of being heard on the subject-matter of the application, whether considered in relation to the benefit of the neighbourhood or to private interests, and the desirability of the attendance of all persons interested in the subject-matter of the inquiry.
- (4) The notice shall be given—
 - (a) By affixing a copy thereof on the principal door of the church of the parish in which the common to which the application relates, or the greater part thereof is situate ; and
 - (b) By posting copies of the same on or near the common to which it relates at the post office or post offices of the parish or district in which the common to which the application relates is situate, at any town hall, or vestry hall, or other building or room the expense of maintaining which is payable out of any local rate, situate in the parish or district, and at all places therein where notices are usually posted; and

Inspection and public meeting.

Publication of notice.

Section 11.

- (c) By advertising in such manner as the Inclosure Commissioners (a) may direct, or otherwise giving notice of the meetings in such manner as they think best calculated to ensure publicity in the locality.

meeting.

- (5) The Assistant Commissioner shall preside and regulate the proceedings at such meetings, and shall hear all persons desirous of being heard in relation to the subject-matter of the inquiry. He may adjourn any such meeting from time to time, or from place to place, on giving such notice of adjournment as he thinks best calculated to ensure publicity.

Personal inquiries by Assistant
Commissioner.

- (6) The Assistant Commissioner shall also make any inquiries and do any other acts which he may be instructed by the Inclosure Commissioners (c) or may think it advisable to do, for the purpose of enabling the Commissioners to judge as to the expediency of making the Provisional Order applied for, also as to the nature of the provisions to be inserted in any such Provisional Order if made.

Report of Assistant Commissioner to Inclosure
Commissioners.

- (7) The Assistant Commissioner shall report in writing to the Inclosure Commissioners (a) the result of the local inquiry, and of the public meeting or meetings held by him (in such form and with such details as the Inclosure Commissioners (a) may from time to time direct), and specially shall report to the Inclosure Commissioners (a) the information obtained by him as to the several particulars in respect of which the applicants for a Provisional Order are by this Act required to furnish information to the Inclosure Commissioners (a).

He shall also report the number of persons who attended the meetings held by him, the objections (if any) made to the application, and the suggestions (if any) made in relation to the provisions to be inserted in the Provisional Order for the benefit of the neighbourhood or for the protection of private interests, and any other circumstances which he may think expedient, with a view to enable the Inclosure Commissioners (a) to judge of the expediency of making the Provisional Order, having regard as aforesaid, and also, if the Order be made, of the provisions to be inserted therein.

report.

- (8) The report shall be accompanied by an outline or other map on such scale and of such a description as may be directed by the Inclosure Commissioners (a), with a sketch in the case of an inclosure of a common being waste of land of a manor, of the allotments (if any) proposed to be made for recreation grounds and field gardens, or for either of such purposes.

(a) Now the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4563.

(b) It is the practice of the Minister to hold two meetings—one in the morning and the other in the evening.

Rules as to Provisional
Orders.
Draft Provisional Order to be framed.

12. The following rules shall be observed with respect to Provisional Orders to be made by the Inclosure Commissioners (a); that is to say (b),

- (1) The Inclosure Commissioners (a), if satisfied by the report of the Assistant Commissioner or by further inquiries to be made by themselves or an Assistant Commissioner, that, having regard to the benefit of the neighbourhood as well as to private interests, it is expedient to proceed further in the matter, shall frame in such form and with such provisions as they, having regard as aforesaid, may think expedient, and as are consistent with law and the description of Provisional Order applied for, a draft Provisional Order for the consideration of the persons interested in the common, specifying, if such application is for the regulation of a common, whether all or any one or more of the provisions of this Act for the adjustment of rights and the improvement of a common are to be put in force :

Section 12.

- (2) With respect to provisions for the benefit of the neighbourhood, there shall be inserted in such draft Provisional Order all such of the statutory provisions as defined by this Act for the benefit of the neighbourhood as are applicable to the case ; also, if the order is an inclosure order in the case of a common being waste land of a manor, the quantity and situation of the allotments (if any) to be made for recreation grounds and field gardens : Provisions for benefit of neighbourhood.
- (3) With respect to private interests, there shall be inserted in such draft Provisional Order, (1) where the interest of any lord of the manor in the soil of a common or in mineral or other rights may be affected by the order, a statement of the allotment (if any) or other compensation to be allotted or made to the lord of such manor in respect of his interest so affected ; and (2) where there is any mineral property or other rights in relation thereto belonging to persons other than the lord of the manor which may be affected by the order, such provisions and reservations as are required to be inserted by the Inclosure Acts, 1845 to 1868, or as may appear to the Inclosure Commissioners (a) proper to be inserted ; also, if there are any other rights which appear to the Commissioners proper to be specially provided for or to be excepted from the operation of the order, there shall be specified the provisions or exceptions to be made in that behalf : Provisions for protection of private interests.
- (4) As soon as may be after making their draft Provisional Order, the Inclosure Commissioners (a) shall cause a copy thereof to be deposited in the parish or parishes in which the common is situate to which such order relates, in order that the same may be considered by the parties interested therein, and they shall give notice, in such manner as they think best calculated to secure publicity, of such deposit having been made, and of their intention to certify the expediency of such order if the necessary consents are obtained thereto : Deposit of draft order for consideration of parties interested.
- (5) The Inclosure Commissioners (a) shall not certify the expediency of a draft Provisional Order unless they are satisfied that persons representing at least two-thirds in value of such interests in the common as are affected by the order consent thereto ; and when the common to which the order relates is the waste land of any manor, or land within any manor to the soil of which the lord of such manor is entitled in right of his manor, then, unless there is more than one person interested in such manor according to the definition of the Inclosure Act, 1845, the Commissioners shall not certify the expediency of the same, unless the person interested in the common in right of such manor, or his substitute under the said Inclosure Act, 1845, consent to such order ; and where there is more than one person interested in such manor the Commissioners shall not certify the expediency of the order, in case such persons or the majority of such persons in respect of interest signify their dissent within a time to be limited by the Commissioners (c) : Consents before Provisional Order certified to be expedient.
- (6) Where the freemen, burgesses, or inhabitant householders of any city borough or town are entitled to rights of common or other interest in the common to which the draft Provisional Order relates, the Reservation in favour of freemen interested in common.

8 & 9 Vict. c. 113.

Section 12.

Inclosure Commissioners (a) shall not certify the expediency of such Order unless it appears to the Commissioners that two-thirds in number of such of the freemen and burgesses so entitled as may be resident in such city borough or town, or within seven miles thereof, or of such inhabitant householders, as the case may be, have consented to the Order; and in case two-thirds in number of such resident freemen and burgesses, or of such inhabitant householders have so consented, such consent shall be deemed the consent of the class of freemen, burgesses, or inhabitant householders, as the case may be, so entitled:

obtaining consents.

- (7) The Inclosure Commissioners (a) may cause a meeting or meetings to be held by an Assistant Commissioner for the purpose of obtaining the necessary consents, or of ascertaining the interests of consenting or dissenting parties, or they may cause such consents or dissents to be ascertained in such other manner as they may think fit:

Power to modify Provisional Order before ex-
certified.

- (8) The Inclosure Commissioners (a) may, at any time before certifying the expediency of a draft Provisional Order, modify the same, of their own mere notion, or on the suggestion of any parties interested, but such modifications shall not be of any validity unless they are consented to in the same manner as if they formed part of the draft Provisional Order originally deposited by the Commissioners:

Certificate of expediency of Provisional
Order.

- (9) When the necessary consents have been obtained to any draft Provisional Order as originally deposited, or as modified in pursuance of this Act, such Order shall be deemed to be final; and the Inclosure Commissioners (a) shall in a report or reports to be made from time to time, as respects each Provisional Order which has become final as aforesaid, certify that it is expedient that such Provisional Order should be confirmed by Parliament, together with their reasons for certifying such expediency, and specially, as respects each Provisional Order, they shall, in such manner as they think best adapted to enable Parliament to judge of the expediency of such Order, state the information furnished to them as to the several particulars in respect of which the applicants for a Provisional Order are by this Act required to furnish information to the Commissioners; also the result of the local inquiry, and of the number and description of the persons who attended the meetings held during such inquiry, and the nature of the objections (if any) made to the application, and the suggestions (if any) made in relation to the provisions to be inserted for the benefit of the neighbourhood or for the protection of private interests by the persons so attending, and any other circumstances which the Commissioners may think it expedient to state for such purposes as aforesaid:

Confirmation of Provisional
Order.

- (10) Every report made by the Inclosure Commissioners (a) certifying the expediency of any Provisional Order under this Act shall be presented to Parliament, and if at any time thereafter it is enacted by Act of Parliament that any Order for the regulation or inclosure of a common, the expediency of which has been so certified by the Commissioners, shall be confirmed, the regulation or inclosure of any common to which any such Order relates shall be proceeded with and completed according to the terms of the Provisional Order relating to such common, and to the provisions of the Inclosure Acts, 1845 to 1868, as amended by this Act, and any Act of Parliament containing such enactments as aforesaid shall be deemed to be a public general Act, but a Provisional Order, until such Act of Parliament as aforesaid has been passed in relation thereto, shall not be of any validity whatever: Section 12.

- (11) If, after the presentation to Parliament of a report made by the Inclosure Commissioners (a) certifying the expediency of any Provisional Order for the regulation or inclosure of a common, and before a Bill has been brought in for the confirmation of such Order, such report is referred to a committee of either House of Parliament for consideration, and such committee recommend that such Provisional Order should not be confirmed by Parliament except subject to certain modifications, the Inclosure Commissioners may modify the Provisional Order accordingly, but such modifications shall not be of any validity unless they are consented to in the same manner as if they had formed part of the draft Provisional Order originally deposited by the Commissioners:

Supplemental power to modify Provisional Order after expediency certified.

And it shall be the duty of the Commissioners (a) to take the necessary steps for ascertaining whether such consent as aforesaid can be obtained or not, and if such consent be obtained, the Commissioners shall make a special report to the effect that the Order has been modified as aforesaid and such consent duly obtained, and such report shall be presented to Parliament; and thereupon the Order so modified shall be deemed to be in the same position in all respects as if it were an Order in respect of which a report had been made by the Commissioners certifying the expediency thereof, and such report had been presented to Parliament.

(a) Now the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4563.

(b) In addition to these provisions, the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries may insert in the Order a provision for the raising and payment of expenses of and incidental to the regulation of the common, either wholly or partly, by a sale of a portion of the common, specifying the situation and maximum quantity sold; the expenses to be raised and paid in manner provided by the Inclosure Acts, 1845 to 1868 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 443, 575) (see the Commons (Expenses) Act, 1878, s. 2; op. cit. 601). He may also specify in any Provisional Order for the regulation of a common, as one of the terms and conditions of the regulation, the appropriation of an allotment for the neighbouring poor, in which case the provisions of the Inclosure Acts, 1845 to 1876 (op. cit. 443, 579), as to allotments made on enclosure of a common, are to apply (Commons (Expenses) Act, 1878, s. 4 (op. cit. 601)).

13. The Inclosure Commissioners (a) may insert in any Provisional Order for the regulation of a common any provisions they may deem necessary for the purpose of carrying such Order into effect; but, subject as aforesaid, when an Act of Parliament has been passed as aforesaid, enacting that the regulation of a common shall be proceeded with, the subsequent proceedings for carrying into effect the regulation of such common shall be the same, so far as is practicable, as they would be in case such common were to be inclosed instead of being regulated, and the provisions of the Inclosure Acts, 1845 to 1868, as amended by this Act, shall apply accordingly.

Partial application of procedure under Inclosure Acts.

(a) Now the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4563.

14. A Provisional Order for the regulation of a common may provide for the raising from time to time by such persons interested in the common, and for such amounts as the Commissioners (a) think fit, of money to be applied towards the improvement or protection of such common, either by means of rates to be levied on the persons and in respect of the property who and Power to raise money for improvement of common.

Section 14. which respectively will be benefited or principally benefited by such improvement or regulation, or by means of the sale of any outlying or other small portion not exceeding in the whole one-fortieth part of the total area of such common (b).

(a) Now the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4563.

(b) The Provisional Order must specify the situation and maximum quantity so sold. The Order may provide for the sale of part of the common in order to raise the expenses necessary for the regulation of the portion retained (Commons (Expenses) Act, 1878, s. 2; 2 Halsbury's Statutes 601). The proceeds may, if the Order so provides, be invested, and the income applied towards the improvement or protection of the common; and the Order may also provide for the sale of all or part of the investment and the application of the proceeds for the like purpose (ibid., s. 3; op. cit.).

Supplemental Provisions.

Owners may make byelaws.
8 & 9 Vict. c.
118.

15. The majority in value of the owners of skirts (a) or rights of pasture in any regulated pasture created under the provisions of the General Inclosure Act, 1845 (b), in addition to the powers they now possess are hereby authorised at any annual meeting for the election of field reeves (c) to make byelaws and regulations for the prevention of or protection from nuisances or for keeping order on the regulated pasture, and for general management (d), occupation, and enjoyment of the regulated pasture, provided the consent of the lord of the manor is given to such byelaws.

(a) Sic. An obvious misprint for "stints." Stints or cattlegaits are rights of pasture for a stinted or limited number of beasts in a common close. See Fitzherbert's Extenta Manerii, 12, 13; Elton on Commons, ed. 1868, pp. 34, 35.

(c) See Inclosure Act, 1845, s. 117, as to the election of field reeves.

(d) The Commons Act, 1908 (op. cit. 614), enables regulations to be made as to turning out entire animals on commons.

Provision as to byelaws.

16. Any byelaw made in pursuance of this Act, and any alteration made therein, and any revocation of a byelaw, shall not be of any validity until it has been confirmed by one of her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State.

Pecuniary penalties (to be recovered summarily before any two justices) may be imposed by any such byelaws on persons breaking the same, provided that no penalty exceeds for any one offence the sum of forty shillings (a).

(a) M. had premises adjoining a common regulated by byelaws under this Act, and at such premises she let ponies for hire. M. at her premises let ponies to be used by two persons on the common, and they used them there:—Held, that this was no offence against a byelaw which forbade the letting for hire of ponies on the common (Marcy v. Morris (1888), 52 J. P. 168; 11 Digest 88, 1075). Where a local improvement Act authorised conservators of a common to make byelaws for the prevention of and protection from nuisances and for keeping order, N. was charged with placing a boat-van for pleasure on the common contrary to the byelaw without a licence and without payment of the prescribed fee:—Held, that the byelaw was not ultra vires merely because it prohibited vans being brought on the common without leave without expressly confining such prohibition to cases amounting to nuisances (Nash v. Manning (1894), 58 J. P. 718; 11 Digest 88, 1073). In Scott v. Baring (1895), 11 T. L. R. 175; 11 Digest 89, 1084, a person was convicted of a contravention of a byelaw against digging loam, etc., made by the conservators of a common under the provisions of a local Act. He set up a claim of right under the authority of the lord of the manor, but it was contended that the question had been already decided in Robertson v. Hartopp (1889), 43 Ch. D. 484; 11 Digest 42, 530, that the lord of the manor had no right to dig loam on the common, and that, therefore, the claim of right was unreasonable:—Held, on appeal, that the conviction was wrong on the ground that the justices could not decide the question without going into the question of right.

application for confirmation of
byelaws.

17. No such confirmation shall take place unless notice of the intention to apply therefor, stating the effect of this section, has been published by the conservators one month at least before the application.

During one month at least before the application a copy of every byelaw, the making, alteration, or revocation of which is submitted for confirmation, shall be kept at the office of the person or body of persons making, altering, or revoking such byelaw open for inspection by persons interested, and such person or body of persons shall furnish a printed copy thereof to every person applying for the same on payment of a sum not exceeding one shilling for each copy.

Section 17.

18. Subject to the terms of the Provisional Order the amount of any compensation to be paid for any restriction modification or abolition of rights in pursuance of an Order for the regulation of a common shall be deemed to be expenses of and incidental to the regulation of the common, and may be defrayed accordingly.

Provision as to certain expenses under order for regulation of a common.

19. Whereas by several awards made under the authority of Inclosure Acts prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and forty-five, fuel allotments for the poor have been set out and awarded, and vested in divers persons and bodies of persons as trustees of such allotments :

Definition of power of Charity Commissioners in certain cases.

And whereas under the provisions of the Inclosure Acts, 1845 to 1868, and the several Acts of Parliament and awards made thereunder, allotments for recreation grounds and field gardens have been set out and awarded to the churchwardens and overseers of parishes and other persons :

And whereas power exists or is claimed under divers Acts of Parliament, to divert such allotments from the uses declared by Parliament respecting the same : Be it enacted, that notwithstanding anything in any other Act contained, it shall not be lawful (save as hereinafter mentioned) to authorise the use of or to use any such allotment, or any part thereof, for any other purpose than those declared concerning the same by the Act of Parliament and award, or either of them, under which the same has been set out : Provided, that it shall be lawful for the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales in the exercise of their ordinary jurisdiction under the Charitable Trusts Acts, upon the application of the trustees of any fuel allotment, to authorise the use of such fuel allotment as a recreation ground and field gardens, or for either of those purposes, and to make an order under the provisions of the Charitable Trusts Act, 1860, for the establishment of a scheme for the administration of such fuel allotment accordingly ; and provided that it shall be lawful for the said Charity Commissioners, on such application as aforesaid, to authorise the exchange of any fuel allotment, or any part thereof, for land of equal value situate within the parish or district for the benefit of the poor of which such allotment was set out, if the Commissioners are of opinion that by means of such exchange land better suited for the purpose for which such allotment was set out will be obtained.

23 & 24 Vict. c. 136.

20. Where any common is regulated pursuant to this Act by a Provisional Order of the Inclosure Commissioners (a) confirmed by Parliament, or is the subject of a scheme confirmed by Parliament under the provisions of the Metropolitan Commons Act, 1866, or the Metropolitan Commons Amendment Act, 1869, or (being situate within the metropolitan police district) is the subject of any private or local Act of Parliament having for its object the preservation of such common as an open space, no surveyor of highways or highway board constituted in pursuance of the Highway Acts (b), . . . shall search for, dig, get, or carry away gravel sand stone or other materials in or from any part of such common which has not been set apart for that purpose with the sanction of Parliament, without the consent of the person or persons having the regulation or management of the same, or in default of such consent, without an order of two or more justices in petty sessions

(a) Now the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4563.

(b) Some words are here repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1898 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1173).

(c) This section is applied to any common regulated by scheme under Part I. of the Commons Act, 1899, post, p. 4982, by s. 8 of that Act.

The justices have an absolute discretion to make or to refuse to make an order under this section (Hayes Common Conservators v. Bromley R. D. C., [1897] 1 Q. B. 321; 61 J. P. 104; 11 Digest 87, 1061).

PART II.

AMENDMENT OF THE INCLOSURE ACTS.

Field Gardens and Recreation Grounds.

Expenses of clearing, draining, and fencing field gardens.

21. Whereas it is expedient that the expenses of clearing any allotments made for field gardens may be included in the expenses of an inclosure: Be it enacted that the valuer shall, unless the Inclosure Commissioners (a) otherwise direct, cause every allotment made for a field garden to be cleared drained fenced levelled and otherwise made fit for immediate use and occupation; and the expenses incurred by the valuer under this section shall be paid as part of the general expenses of the inclosure.

(a) Now the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4563.

Substituted allotments for recreation grounds and field gardens.

22. The provisions (a) of the Inclosure Acts, 1845 to 1868, which authorise the Inclosure Commissioners (b) to allow an equal quantity of the land proposed to be inclosed to be allotted for the purpose of a recreation ground or field garden, or for any other public purpose, in lieu of that directed to be allotted by any Provisional Order, shall extend to authorise them to allow the allotment of land of equal value although it may not be of equal quantity.

(a) See Inclosure Act, 1845, ss. 30, 73; Inclosure Act, 1846, s. 4 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 452, 474, 519).

(b) Now the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4563.

Situation of allotments for recreation grounds and field gardens.

23. Every allotment made for the purpose of a recreation ground or field garden shall be in such part of the land proposed to be inclosed as is best suited for the purpose for which it is appropriated; and where any land proposed to be inclosed consists partly of common being waste land of a manor (in this section referred to as the first-mentioned land), and partly of common not being waste land of a manor (in this section referred to as the second-mentioned land), and the Commissioners are satisfied that it would be advantageous that the allotment for a recreation ground or a field garden, or any part thereof, should be made out of the second-mentioned land instead of out of the first-mentioned land, the Commissioners may, in the Provisional Order relating to such land, specify as one of the terms and conditions of the inclosure thereof that the said allotments or the said part thereof shall be made accordingly out of the second-mentioned land, and shall out of the first-mentioned land allot land of equal value by way of exchange to the persons interested in the second-mentioned land.

Field gardens to be free of rent-charge.

24. There shall be repealed so much (a) of the Inclosure Acts, 1845 to 1868, as relates to the charging of an allotment made for the purpose of a field garden with a rent-charge; and every such allotment made after the passing of this Act shall be made free of any such rent-charge.

(a) See Inclosure Act, 1845, ss. 31, 73, 75, 78; Inclosure Act, 1852, s. 18 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 453, 474, 475, 544).

25. [Allotments for recreation grounds to be vested in churchwardens and overseers] (a). Section 25.

(a) Repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1894 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1019). As to the holding and management of allotments whether for recreation grounds or for gardens or otherwise for the benefit of the inhabitants by the parish council, see s. 6 (1) (c) (iii) of the L. G. A., 1894, post, p. 4893.

26. (a) . . . Allotment wardens, if they are unable to let the allotments under their management, or any portion thereof, to the poor inhabitants of the parish in gardens not exceeding a quarter of an acre, may let the same, or any unlet portion thereof, in gardens not exceeding an acre each to such inhabitants as aforesaid; Further, it shall be the duty of allotment wardens to offer the gardens under their management to the poor inhabitants of the parish at a fair agricultural rent, if from time to time sufficient to satisfy all rates taxes tithes tithe rent-charge and the rent-charge charged on the said allotments under the provisions of the General Inclosure Act, 1845, but not otherwise, instead of at such rent as is required by the said Act. Moreover, if in any parish the allotment wardens are unable to let the allotments under their management, or any portion thereof, to the poor inhabitants of the parish in such quantities and at such rents as aforesaid, they may let the same, or such portion as may be unlet to any person whatever at the best annual rent which can be obtained for the same, without any premium or fine, and on such terms as may enable the allotment wardens to resume possession thereof within a period not exceeding twelve months, if it should at any time be required for such poor inhabitants as aforesaid.

Amendment of law as to letting field gardens.

s. 9 Vict. c. 118.

This section shall apply to all land allotted to the poor for the purpose of cultivation under any Inclosure Act whatever, whether public or private, whether under the management of allotment wardens, feoffees, trustees, rector, or vicar and churchwardens, overseers (b), managers, or any other person or persons whatever, and whether at present cultivated or uncultivated, so that all such persons as aforesaid shall have like powers and duties as are hereinbefore given to and imposed upon allotment wardens (c).

(a) The recital of s. 109 of the Inclosure Act, 1845 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 492), at the commencement of this section, and of s. 73 of that Act (op. cit. 474) at the commencement of s. 27, with certain consequential parts of s. 27, were repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1894 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1019).

(b) Overseers were abolished by the R. and V. Act, 1925, s. 62, ante, p. 2222. As to the transfer of property formerly held by overseers, see Arts. 4, 6 and 7 of the Overseers Order, 1927, at p. 3595, ante.

(c) In parishes where there is a parish council, the powers and duties of allotment wardens are now exercised and performed by the parish council (Local Government Act, 1894, s. 6 (1) (c) (iii), post, p. 4893).

27. (a) . . . The surplus rents arising from recreation grounds shall be applied to all or any of the following purposes, and to no other purpose; that is to say, in improving the recreation grounds or any or them in the same parish or neighbourhood, or maintaining the drainage and fencing thereof, or in hiring or purchasing additional land for recreation grounds in the same parish or neighbourhood (b); and the surplus rents arising from field gardens shall be applied to all or any of the following purposes, and to no other purpose (c); that is to say, in improving the field gardens or any of them in the same parish or neighbourhood, or maintaining the drainage and fencing thereof, or in hiring or purchasing additional land for field gardens in the same parish or neighbourhood.

Application of surplus rents of recreation grounds and field gardens.

The trustees of any recreation ground and the allotment wardens of any field gardens may, with the approval of the Inclosure Commissioners (d), sell all or any part of the allotment vested in them, and out of the proceeds of Section 27. such sale purchase any fit and suitable land in the same parish or neighbourhood: Provided that the land so purchased shall be held in trust for the purposes for which the allotment so sold as aforesaid was allotted, and for no others; and provided that the Inclosure Commissioners (d) shall not sanction any such sale as aforesaid unless and until it shall be proved to their satisfaction that land more suitable for the purposes for which the allotment proposed to be sold was allotted may and will be forthwith purchased; and the proceeds of any such sale shall be paid to the Inclosure Commissioners (d), and shall remain in their hands until such purchase of other land as aforesaid.

(a) See note (a) to s. 26, ante, p. 4577.

(b) And also in the improving of any of the field gardens to which this section applies in the same parish or neighbourhood, or maintaining the drainage and fencing thereof (Commons Act, 1879, s. 2; 2 Halsbury's Statutes 603).

(c) But they may also be applied for any of the purposes for which surplus rents arising from recreation grounds may be applied (Commons Act, 1899, s. 16, post, p. 4985). And under the same section surplus rents arising from any field garden or recreation ground may be applied towards the redemption of any land tax, tithe rent-charge, or other charge on the garden or ground.

(d) Now the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4563.

Reports by managers of recreation grounds and field gardens.

28. The trustees of recreation grounds, where such trustees are the overseers (a) or churchwardens of a parish, and the allotment wardens of field gardens (b) shall, from time to time, and at such intervals of not less than three years nor more than five years, as the Inclosure Commissioners (c) direct, make such reports to the said Commissioners in respect of the recreation grounds and field gardens under their management, with such particulars of the rents received by them, as the Commissioners may require.

(a) See note (b) to s. 26, ante, p. 4577.

(b) See note (c) to s. 26, ante, p. 4577.

(c) Now the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4563.

Town and village greens.

29. (a) . . . An encroachment on or inclosure of a town or village green, also any erection thereon or disturbance or interference with or occupation of the soil thereof which is made otherwise than with a view to the better enjoyment of such town or village green or recreation ground, shall be deemed to be a public nuisance, and if any person does any act in respect of which he is liable to pay damages or a penalty under section twelve of the Inclosure Act, 1857, he may be summarily convicted thereof upon the information of any inhabitant of the parish in which such town or village green or recreation ground situate, as well as upon the information of such persons as in the said section mentioned (b).

This section shall apply only in cases where a town or village green or recreation ground has a known and defined boundary.

(a) The recital of s. 12 of the Inclosure Act, 1857 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 560), as to town and village greens was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1894 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1019). Town or village greens cannot be taken for light railways without the consent of the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. They are also "commons" within the meaning of the Commons Act, 1899, post, p. 4982, though apparently not "commons" within the meaning of this Act. As to parish councils, see s. 8 of the L. G. A., 1894, post, p. 4896.

(b) The Inclosure Act, 1857, s. 12, provides a summary remedy for injury or damage to the fences of or for other nuisances to a town or village green. The penalty for each offence is forty shillings, which with the damage is recoverable summarily before justices. Under that section, however, the proceedings could only be instituted by a churchwarden or overseer, or the person in whom the soil was vested.

Jurisdiction of county court in respect of illegal inclosures.

30. (a) A county court within whose jurisdiction any common or part of a common is situate shall have jurisdiction to hear any case relating to any illegal inclosure or encroachment of or upon such common or part of a common respectively made after the passing of this Act, or to any nuisance impeding the exercise of any right of common arising after the passing of this Act, and to grant an injunction against such inclosure encroachment or nuisance, or to make an order for the removal or abatement of such inclosure encroachment or nuisance. Section 30.

Any person aggrieved by any injunction granted or order made or refusal to grant an injunction or make an order by a county court in pursuance of this section may, on giving security for costs to the satisfaction of the county court, appeal to the [Court of Appeal (b)] in a summary manner, or by special case or otherwise, as may be prescribed by rules of court to be made by the Supreme Court of Judicature in manner provided by the seventeenth section of the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1875. 38 & 39 Vict.
c. 77.

The appellate court may on hearing the appeal reverse modify or confirm the injunction or order complained of, or remit the case to the county court from which the appeal lay, with instructions to deal with the case according to the directions given by the appellate court.

Where an appeal is lodged against the order of a county court directing the removal or abatement of any inclosure encroachment or nuisance, such order shall be suspended during such time as such appeal is pending.

Nothing in this Act contained shall abridge or interfere with any existing right of abating or otherwise preventing any illegal inclosure of or encroachment of any common, or any nuisance interfering with any right of common.

Until rules of court are made for the purposes of this section, an appeal may be had from the decision of any county court under this section in the same manner in which an appeal from the decision of a county court may be had in a case within its ordinary jurisdiction.

(a) Sections 30 and 31 are extended to metropolitan commons by the Metropolitan Commons Act, 1878, s. 3 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 602). For procedure in the county court, see County Court Rules, Order L., r. 9. No special procedure as to appeals is prescribed by the Rules of the Supreme Court, therefore the usual practice under s. 120 of the County Courts Act, 1888 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 882), is applicable in such appeals. See R. S. C., Order LIX., rr. 10, 18. See also the jurisdiction given to county courts as regards the restriction of inclosure of commons given by s. 194 of the Law of Property Act, 1925, Vol. V., post.

(b) Substituted for the High Court of Justice by the Administration of Justice (Appeals) Act, 1934, s. 2 (1), Sched., Pt. I. (27 Halsbury's Statutes 459, 460). See also County Courts Act, 1934, s. 105 (op. cit., 141), under which rules for the purpose may be made.

31. Any person intending to inclose or approve a common or part of a common otherwise than under the provisions of this Act shall give notice to all persons claiming any legal right in such common or part of a common, by publishing, at least three months beforehand, a statement of his intention to make such inclosure, for three successive times, and in two or more of the principal local newspapers in the county, town, or district in which the common or part of a common proposed to be inclosed is situate; but the provisions of this section shall not apply to any commons or waste lands whereon the rights of common are vested solely in the lord of the manor (a).

Three months' notice of claim to inclose to be given in the local papers

A production of a newspaper containing such advertisement as aforesaid shall be evidence of the same having been issued, and the inclosure shall, until the contrary is proved, be deemed to have taken place at the time specified in such advertisement.

(a) This exception is hardly worded with due legal accuracy. Where all rights of common are released or conveyed to the lord of the manor, the land formerly common becomes freed from them and ceases to be common at all. A person inclosing a common without advertising his intention as required by this section might be indicted for misdemeanor in disobeying the statute, or be restrained by injunction from continuing his confirmed by Commissioners.

32. An appointment of a valuer shall not be valid until it has been confirmed by the Commissioners (a). The Commissioners (a) may disapprove of a valuer on the ground of his incompetency, interest, want of impartiality, or any reasonable cause, and where they so disapprove of a valuer may call a meeting, and a meeting may be held to appoint, and another person appointed (subject to the approval of the Commissioners (a)) to be valuer in like manner as if no previous meeting had been held and no valuer had been previously appointed, and so on until a valuer approved by the Commissioners is appointed.

(a) Now the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4563.

General Amendment.

As to exchanges and partitions,
8 & 9 Vict. c.
118, s. 105.

33. The provisions of section one hundred and five of the Inclosure Act, 1845, relating to the validity after confirmation of an award of inclosure of the exchanges, and partitions set forth in such award, shall apply to orders of exchange partition and division of intermixed lands carried into effect in pursuance of the Inclosure Acts, 1845 to 1868, by separate orders, and not included in an award of inclosure.

PART III.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Amendment of law as to reports.

34. There shall be repealed so much of section thirty of the Inclosure Act, 1845, as prescribes a limit to the quantity of land to be allotted to recreation grounds; also the twenty-fourth, twenty-fifth, twenty-sixth, and twenty-seventh sections of the Inclosure Act, 1845, and (a) the Inclosure Commissioners (b) shall not be required to repeat, in their general annual report, any of the particulars in relation to the regulation or inclosure of commons which they may have stated in any other reports made by them in pursuance of this Act, in relation to such commons, but they may refer to such other reports, or give a summary thereof, or otherwise deal with the same as may be thought expedient.

(a) This section was repealed down to this point by the S. L. R. A., 1883 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 986).

(b) Now the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4563.

Metropolitan commons.
29 & 30 Vict.
c. 122.
32 & 33 Vict.
c. 107.

35. This Act, save as herein expressly provided (c), shall not apply to any metropolitan common within the meaning of the Metropolitan Commons Acts, 1866 and 1869.

(a) See s. 20, ante, p. 4575; note (d) to s. 8, ante, p. 4567; and note (a) to s. 30, ante, p. 4579.

A common regulated under Act not to be inclosed without sanction of Parliament.

36. Where an Act of Parliament has been passed confirming a Provisional Order under this Act for the regulation of a common, then, subject to and without prejudice to the provisions of that Order, such common shall not, nor shall any part thereof, be inclosed without the sanction of Parliament subsequently obtained.

Definitions.

Definitions.

37. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires,—

“A common” means any land subject to be inclosed under the Inclosure Acts, 1845 to 1868 (a):

“Waste land of a manor” means and includes any land consisting of waste land of any manor on which the tenants of such manor have rights of common, or of any land subject to any rights of common which may be exercised at all times of the year for cattle levant and couchant, or to any rights of common which may be exercised at all times of the year, and are not limited by number or stints : Section 37.

“Person” includes a body corporate (b) :

“Municipal borough” means any place for the time being subject to the Municipal Corporations Act, 1835, and the Acts amending the same (c) ;

“Improvement Act district” means any area subject to the jurisdiction of any commissioners, trustees, or other persons invested by any local Act of Parliament with powers of improving, cleansing, lighting, or paving any town :

“Local government district” has the same meaning as it has in the Public Health Act, 1875 (d). 38 & 39 Vict.
c. 55.

(a) See s. 4, ante, p. 4566.

(b) The definition of “Inclosure Acts, 1845 to 1868” (2 Halsbury’s Statutes 443, 575), and the schedule to this Act to which that definition referred, are repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1894 (18 Halsbury’s Statutes 1019). See now the Short Titles Act, 1896 (op. cit. 1021).

(c) Now the boroughs included in Sched. I., Pts. II. and III., of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, pp. 1197, 1198.

(d) I.e., any area subject to the jurisdiction of a local board constituted in pursuance of the L. G. Acts before 11th August, 1875, or in pursuance of the P. H. A., 1875 (13 Halsbury’s Statutes 623). It is now synonymous with “county district.”

THE RIVERS POLLUTION PREVENTION ACT, 1876.

(39 & 40 VICT. C. 75.)

An Act for making further Provision for the Prevention of the Pollution of rivers.
[15th August 1876.]

1. This Act may be cited for all purposes as the Rivers Pollution Prevention Act, 1876. Short title.

See also the Rivers Pollution Prevention Act, 1893, and the Rivers Pollution Prevention (Border Councils) Act, 1898, post, pp. 4872, 4947, and the Salmon and Freshwater Fisheries Act, 1923, ss. 8 and 55 (8 Halsbury’s Statutes 783, 812). By the last mentioned section the operation of the Act in the text and its amending Acts may for the purpose of protecting fisheries be extended to the sea and tidal waters to such extent as may be determined by an order of the Minister of Health, after a local inquiry by two persons appointed respectively by the Ministers of Health and of Agriculture and Fisheries. The order will be provisional only until confirmed by Parliament if, and only if, it is objected to by any local authority or joint board affected by the order. Where an order is operative the definition of “stream” in s. 20, post, p. 4597, will be extended in the area covered by the order to include such part of the sea or tidal waters as is specified in the order. No proceedings in respect of the pollution of any part of the sea or tidal waters specified in an order is to be instituted without the consent of the Minister of Health.

The provisions of the Act exceed its title, inasmuch as they not only provide against the pollution of rivers, but also against their obstruction by the placing of solid matters therein. The preamble to this Act was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1894. See also s. 4 of that Act (18 Halsbury’s Statutes 1020) as to the omission of the clause of enactment.

Section 2

PART I.

LAW AS TO SOLID MATTERS.

Prohibition as to putting solid matters into streams.

2. Every person (a) who puts or causes to be put or to fall or knowingly permits (b) to be put or to fall or to be carried into any stream (c), so as either singly or in combination (d) with other similar acts of the same or any other person to interfere with its due (e) flow, or to pollute (f) its waters, the solid refuse of any manufactory, manufacturing process or quarry (g), or any rubbish or cinders, or any other waste (h) or any putrid solid matter (i), shall be deemed to have committed an offence (k) against this Act (l).

In proving interference with the due flow of any stream, or in proving the pollution of any stream, evidence may be given of repeated acts which together cause such interference or pollution, although each act taken by itself may not be sufficient for that purpose (m).

(a) Note that the definition in s. 20, post, p. 4597, extends this word to any body of persons corporate or unincorporate. Hence associations, or companies, or partners may be answerable as well as individuals.

(b) In Hipkins v. Birmingham and Staffordshire Gas Light Co. (1860), 6 H. & N. 250; 24 J. P. 438; 38 Digest 31, 175, the word "suffer," which has much the same signification as permit, was held to apply to involuntary omission to prevent. Here there is a limitation, as, by this section, the permission must be with knowledge which implies will, but see now the Rivers Pollution Prevention Act, 1893, post, p. 4872. The predecessors of the appellants had made an agreement with the owner of a margarine factory, that he should be entitled, subject to certain conditions, to discharge the effluent from the factory into their sewers. Owing to a breach of this agreement, the soil of a sewage farm, the property of the appellants, became clogged, and consequently offensive matter found its way into the river Brent:—Held, that it was the appellants who "caused or suffered to flow or pass" sewage or other injurious matter into the river within s. 13 of the Middlesex County Council Act, 1898 (Southall and Norwood U. D. C. v. Middlesex C. C. (1901), 65 J. P. 215; 83 L. T. 742; 44 Digest 43, 309). In 1863 some vacant land adjacent to a river was laid out by the owner for the purpose of erecting woollen mills. A main sewer was constructed which emptied into the river. Six mills were subsequently erected on the land and large quantities of liquid were carried away from them through the sewer. Water-closets for the use of employees had been added to the mills between 1863 and 1913 and were also connected with the sewer; and it was not disputed that noxious and polluting liquid was proceeding from the mills and falling or flowing into the river within the meaning of s. 4 of this Act, post, p. 4586. There was no evidence that the landowner had laid out the land as an ordinary building estate, and no dwelling-houses were shown to be connected with the sewer save one which had acquired such a right by special agreement in 1864 for a payment of 5s. a year. In 1891 the local authority by agreement with the owners of the sewer, took a licence to use it, and gave consideration for using it, and agreed that their user was to be postponed to the user of the mill-owners. Held, that the sewer had been made by the landowner "for his own profit" within the meaning of s. 13 (1) of the P. H. A., 1875 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 631), and did not vest in the local authority of the district, the primary and main object of the sewer being to obtain increased value from the land by giving a facility for its use for manufacturing purposes and not for sanitation; and held, further, that by entering into the agreement of 1891 the local authority had not permitted the unlawful user of the sewer; namely, the user of it for polluting the river contrary to s. 4 (West Riding of Yorks Rivers Board v. Linthwaite U. D. C. (No. 2), (1915), 79 J. P. 433; 13 L. G. R. 772; 41 Digest 17, 134). See as to the meaning of the word "caused" used in the Salmon Fishery Act, 1861, Moses v. Midland Rail. Co. (1915), 79 J. P. 367; 25 Digest 48, 437.

(d) It is not intended by this word to imply any conspiracy or joint action. It is apparently intended to refer to simultaneous action, so that if one manufacturer cast his refuse into the stream with little effect, yet if at the same time other manufacturers cast their refuse therein, the mischief would arise and each would be responsible. See Blair v. Deakin, post, p. 4583.

(e) These words require attention. The flow of a stream raises two considerations: first, as to the velocity of the stream; secondly, as to its course or channel. The velocity and the channel must not be impeded. That is, the stream must not be made to run slower, neither must it be diverted from its proper channel. The word "due" signifies its natural flow. In the case of a pure undisturbed stream, the natural flow would be ascertained easily, but the case will be different where a stream has long been the subject of impediment. Does the statute contemplate the existing state of things, prohibiting any further impediment, or does it refer back to the original state of the stream, and require the original flow to be restored and kept up? This latter alternative will generally be so impracticable that the former seems the preferable construction.

(f) See in s. 20, post, p. 4597; as to what is not polluting. It will be remembered that s. 68 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4347, provides for the pollution of water by gas washings. It appears from the cases of Filbey v. Combe (1837), 2 M. & W. 677; 1 J. P. 188; 38 Digest 236, 654, and Law v. Dodd (1848), 1 Exch. 845; 12 J. P. 677; 38 Digest 236, 655, that the refuse of a manufactory is that which the manufacturer himself contemplates as rubbish.

(g) Section 4, post, p. 4586, provides for mines.

(h) Does this word waste apply to the following word matter? Apparently not.

(i) See in s. 20, post, p. 4597, the limitation to be put upon the words "solid matter." A putrid effluent of 97.6 per cent. water and only 2.4 per cent. solids is not "putrid solid matter" (River Ribble Joint Committee v. Halliwell, [1899] 2 Q. B. 385; 63 J. P. 708; 44 Digest 41, 296, followed in West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board v. Rawson (1903), 67 J. P. 407; 89 L. T. 363; 44 Digest 44, 310). See as to the construction of a section of a local Act prohibiting the throwing or emptying into any dock of any "ballast, rubbish, dust, ashes, shingle, stones, or other refuse or things or the doing of any other act to prejudice the works of the board," Gray v. Heathcote (1918), 82 J. P. 211; 41 Digest 970, 8614.

(k) Although this section creates this offence, the statute does not make the commission criminal so as to render the party subject to any penalty. It is provided merely that the county court may restrain the continuance of the offence, and make an order, and if such order be disobeyed the offender will be liable to a penalty.

Where a statute prohibits an act and provides no penalty, the person who commits the act is liable to be indicted for a common law misdemeanor, but the rule cannot be held to apply here, as the statute contains a remedy.

The acts mentioned in the section when committed in navigable rivers will generally be such nuisances as will subject the person committing them to prosecutions for nuisances, and such prosecutions may still be instituted though they afford but indifferent remedies, and are generally very costly.

(l) Reference must be made to s. 17, post, p. 4596, which prevents the Act from applying to the lawful exercise of any rights of impounding or diverting water.

Thus, in Smith v. Barnham (1876), 1 Ex. D. 419; 40 J. P. 710; 44 Digest 43, 306, a local Act having prohibited persons from wilfully throwing rubbish into a stream, the Court of Appeal were disposed to hold that where a person exercised a right claimed by many years' enjoyment to cast the refuse of a tannery into the stream, he was not to be considered to be wilfully casting rubbish therein within the operation of the clause. The point was not, however, distinctly decided.

(m) This would be lawful in prosecutions for nuisances. The principle that the acts of several persons may, together, constitute a nuisance which may be restrained by injunction, though the damage occasioned by the act of any one of such persons, taken by itself, would be inappreciable, was laid down in Thorpe v. Brumfitt (1873), 8 Ch. App. 650; 37 J. P. 742; 36 Digest 215, 576, and recognised in Lambton v. Mellish, [1894] 3 Ch. 163; 58 J. P. 835; 36 Digest 215, 579. So where several manufacturers had their works upon a stream and caused a nuisance to a riparian owner below them by discharging offensive matter into the stream, it was held no answer to an action for nuisance brought against one of them by such owner to say that the share the defendant contributed to the nuisance was infinitesimal (Blair v. Deakin (1887), 52 J. P. 327; 57 L. T. 522; 44 Digest 38, 271).

PART II.

LAW AS TO SEWAGE POLLUTIONS.

3. Every person (a) who causes to fall or flow or knowingly permits (b) Prohibition as to drainage into streams of sewers. to fall or flow or to be carried into any stream (c) any solid or liquid sewage matter (d), shall (subject as in this Act mentioned) (e) be deemed to have committed an offence against this Act (f).

Where any sewage matter falls or flows or is carried into any stream along a channel used, constructed, or in process of construction at the date of the passing of this Act for the purpose of conveying such sewage matter, the person (a) causing or knowingly permitting the sewage matter so to fall or

Section 3. flow or to be carried shall not be deemed to have committed an offence against this Act if he shows to the satisfaction of the court having cognizance of the case (g) that he is using the best practicable and available means to render harmless the sewage matter so falling or flowing or carried into the stream (h).

Where the Local Government Board are satisfied after local inquiry that further time ought to be granted to any sanitary authority, which at the date of the passing of this Act is discharging sewage matter into any stream, or permitting it to be so discharged, by any such channel as aforesaid, for the purpose of enabling such authority to adopt the best practicable and available means for rendering harmless such sewage matter, the Local Government Board may by order declare that this section shall not, so far as regards the discharge of sewage matter by such channel, be in operation until the expiration of a period to be limited in the order.

Any order made under this section may be from time to time renewed by the Local Government Board, subject to such conditions, if any, as they may see fit (i).

A person other than a sanitary authority shall not be guilty of an offence under this section in respect of the passing of sewage matter into a stream (k) along a drain (l) communicating with any sewer belonging to or under the control of any sanitary authority, provided he has the sanction of the sanitary authority for so doing (m).

(a) See the definition in s. 20, post, p. 4597. A sanitary authority may be brought within the operation of this section.

(b) See note (b) to s. 2, ante, p. 4582. And note that now by the Rivers Pollution Prevention Act, 1893, post, p. 4872, it is enacted that where any sewage matter falls or flows or is carried into any stream after passing through or along a channel which is vested in a sanitary authority, the sanitary authority shall, for the purposes of s. 3 of the Rivers Pollution Prevention Act, 1876, be deemed to knowingly permit the sewage matter so to fall, flow, or be carried.

Two local sanitary authorities appointed a joint drainage committee consisting of members from each board, and gave to such joint committee the exclusive control and management of the sewage and sewage works, and henceforward the disposal and treatment of the sewage of both districts were carried out under the control of the said committee. The sewage works continued to remain the property of the local board to which the said works belonged prior to the appointment of the said joint committee. Sewage or other offensive or injurious matter was allowed to flow from the said sewage works into an adjoining river, thereby polluting it. The conservancy board thereupon served a notice in writing upon the local board to which the sewage works belonged to discontinue the flow of sewage matter into the river. The local board having failed to comply with the terms of the notice, were summoned before the magistrates to compel them to discontinue the nuisance, or to render them liable to the penalty for not doing so:—Held, that the local board were not liable as they had ceased to have control over the sewers, and so could not have “caused” or “suffered” the outflow into the river (Lea Conservancy Board v. Tottenham L. B. (1891), 55 J. P. 343; 64 L. T. 198; 44 Digest 56, 399).

The plaintiffs, under s. 10 of this Act, post, p. 4592, applied to a county court for and obtained an order to restrain the defendants from causing the sewage to flow into a stream. On appeal against this order it appeared to the court that, upon the facts of the case, the plaintiffs were themselves in default in not having made any provision for dealing with the sewage in these sewers, as required by the P. H. A., 1875 (13 Halsbury’s Statutes 623):—Held, that the making of the order was discretionary, and although the defendants had offended against this Act, as a matter of discretion, under the circumstances of the case, an order ought not to be made against them at the instance of the plaintiffs, who were themselves offenders against this Act, and were seeking to avoid performance of their duty under the P. H. A., 1875:—Held, also, that an appeal on the above-mentioned ground was correctly brought by way of motion (Kirkheaton District L. B. v. Ainley, Sons & Co., [1892] 2 Q. B. 274; 57 J. P. 36; 44 Digest 55, 395).

The conservators of the river T. having indicted the local board of S., as the urban sanitary authority, for having in contravention of s. 63 of the Thames Navigation Act, 1866, “caused, or, without lawful excuse, suffered,” sewage matter to flow into the river T. within their district, in connection with which certain points of law were necessarily involved, it was held that the proper course to follow was to take a special verdict, prepared by both sides, from the jury, after formal evidence of the matters alleged in the special verdict had been given, and that the points of law arising thereon should be subsequently discussed in the Court for Crown Cases Reserved (R. v. Staines L. B. (1888), 52 J. P. 215).

A local board under the P. H. A., 1875, have only a qualified property in the sewers within their district, and cannot prevent persons who had acquired a prescriptive right to use them from so doing, unless they provide other sewers equally effectual. Where a local board have not themselves constructed sewers which are a nuisance, but have only permitted them to be used by inhabitants who have acquired a prescriptive right to use them, the local board do not "cause or suffer" sewage to flow into the Thames within the meaning of s. 64 of the Thames Navigation Act, 1866, and cannot be convicted of a misdemeanor under that Act (R. v. Staines L. B. (1888), 53 J. P. 358; 60 L. T. 261; 44 Digest 44, 315). The predecessors of a local sanitary authority had made an agreement with the owner of a margarine factory that he should be entitled, subject to certain conditions, to discharge the effluent from the factory into their sewers. Owing to a breach of this agreement, the soil of a sewage farm, the property of the local authority, became clogged, and consequently offensive matter found its way into the river Brent. It was held that the local authority "caused or suffered to flow or pass" sewage or other injurious matter into the river within the meaning of s. 13 of the Middlesex County Council Act, 1898 (Souhall and Norwood U. D. C. v. Middlesex C. C. (1901), 65 J. P. 215; 83 L. T. 742; 44 Digest 43, 309). And see Brown v. Dunstable Corporation, [1899] 2 Ch. 378; 63 J. P. 519; 38 Digest 54, 311. The case of R. v. Staines L. B. (1888), supra, was followed in two subsequent cases. In Thames Conservators v. Gravesend Corporation, [1910] 1 K. B. 442; 73 J. P. 381; 44 Digest 44, 316, sewage passed from the premises of private persons and from premises belonging to the corporation into a sewer which was vested in the corporation, and thence flowed into the river Thames. It was held that as regards the sewage which came from their own premises, the corporation has "caused or suffered" the sewage to flow into the river within the meaning of s. 94 of the Thames Conservancy Act, 1894, but as regards the sewage coming from the premises of private persons, they had not done so. In Walham Holy Cross U. D. C. v. Lea Conservancy Board (1910), 74 J. P. 253; 103 L. T. 192; 44 Digest 47, 329, it was held that where a person has acquired the right to send sewage into the sewers of a local authority, and that sewage passes into a river, the local authority cannot be convicted of causing or suffering the sewage to pass into the river. See, however, Rochford R. C. v. Port of London Authority, [1914] 2 K. B. 916; 78 J. P. 329; 44 Digest 45, 318, where the above cases are distinguished if not overruled as being inconsistent with the decisions of the C. A. in Kirkheaton District L. B. v. Ainley, [1892] 2 Q. B. 274; 57 J. P. 36; 13 Digest 527, 786, and West Riding of Yorkshire Council v. Holmfirth U. S. A., p. 4586, post. See as to the meaning of the word "caused" used in the Salmon Fishery Act, 1861, Moses v. Midland Rail. Co. (1915), 79 J. P. 367; 25 Digest 48, 437.

(c) See the definition in s. 20, post, p. 4597, where it will be seen how far sewers draining into the sea or tidal waters are affected by those enactments.

(d) There is no definition of "sewage matter" in this Act nor in the P. H. A., 1875, nor elsewhere. It appears to be properly the matter which is contained in a sewer. In Sutton v. Norwich Corporation (1858), 22 J. P. 353; 27 L. J. Ch. 739; 41 Digest 3, 1, KINDERSLEY, V.-C., observed that "in the common sense of the term a sewer means a large and generally underground passage for fluid and feculent matter from a house or houses to some other locality." Hence sewage matter appears to be feculent matter, and this is supported by s. 17 of the P. H. A., 1875 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 633), which used the words "sewage or filthy water," and the P. H. A., 1936, s. 30, ante, p. 87, which uses the words "foul water." See also Durrant v. Branksome U. D. C., ante, p. 87.

It will be observed that it is not necessary to prove that any injurious effect has followed from the act referred to.

The occupier of any premises will be answerable for the acts of his household if he knowingly permits the sewage to fall into the stream, and this knowledge will be readily presumed from the state of the premises.

(e) The saving in s. 17, post, p. 4596, can have no operation upon the section. Hence no prescriptive right or licence under grant will be available against this statutory prohibition (Lanark C. C. v. Airdrie Magistrates; Lanark C. C. v. Coatbridge Magistrates (1906), 8 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 802, in H. of L., [1910] A. C. 286; 44 Digest 42, 299; Midlothian C. C. v. Oakbank Oil Co. (1904), 6 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 387; George Legge & Son, Ltd. v. Wenlock Corporation, [1938] A. C. 204; [1938] 1 All E. R. 37; 102 J. P. 93; Digest Supp.). The words "subject as in the Act mentioned" in this section and in s. 4, post, p. 4586, refer to the latter part of each section and do not qualify the first part of the section by introducing into it the provisions of the Act relating to legal proceedings and make the offence incomplete unless and until an order has been made against the offender to abstain from the commission of the offence (Hulley v. Silversprings Bleaching Co., [1922] 2 Ch. 268

Section 3.

86 J. P. 30; 44 Digest 42, 302; see also Neaverson v. Peterborough R. D. Co., [1902] 1 Ch. 557; 66 J. P. 404; 19 Digest 63, 360.

At common law a person cannot gain a prescriptive right to pollute the water of a river to such an extent and under such circumstances as to create a public nuisance (R. v. Cross (1812), 3 Camp. 224). But apart from this Act a riparian owner may, under s. 2 of the Prescription Act, 1832 (5 Halsbury's Statutes 824), obtain, as against other riparian owners, a right to discharge polluting matter into a river (Wright v. Williams (1836), 1 M. & W. 77; 1 Gale 410; 19 Digest 73, 430; Carlyon v. Lovering (1857), 1 H. & N. 784; 26 L. J. Ex. 251; 44 Digest 39, 280). The burden, however, cannot be increased (Crossley v. Lightowler (1867), 2 Ch. App. 478; 44 Digest 56, 401; Hulley v. Silversprings Bleaching Co., Ltd., [1922] 2 Ch. 268; 86 J. P. 30; 44 Digest 42, 302), and if an increase cannot be separated from the legal user, there may be a total prohibition (Blackburne v. Somers (1879), 5 L. R. Ir. 1; 44 Digest 40, 289 i; Frechette v. Compagnie Manufacturière de St. Hyacinthe (1883), 9 App. Cas. 170; 44 Digest 13, 49). But a mere variation in the process of manufacture which alters the constituents of washings discharged without increasing the burden does not give a cause of action (Bazendale v. McMurray (1867), 2 Ch. App. 790; 31 J. P. 821; 19 Digest 158, 1087), although the substitution of a totally different class of business might do so (Clarke v. Somersetshire Drainage Commissioners (1888), 57 L. J. M. C. 96; 59 L. T. 670; 44 Digest 43, 305).

(f) Here also no penalty is imposed, but the application must be made to the county court to prevent the continuance of the offence. It must be noticed, however, that the person who thus acts may be liable to prosecution under the P. H. A., 1936, s. 92, ante, p. 293, and thereby rendered liable to a fine.

(g) He cannot have the benefit of this provision until he is taken before the court, but he will be entitled to notice of the intended proceedings under s. 13, post, p. 4595.

(h) The county court judge must consider whether this is the fact or not, and it is not sufficient to hold merely that nothing has been done to aggravate the nuisance (West Riding of Yorkshire Council v. Holmfirth U. S. A., [1894] 2 Q. B. 842; 59 J. P. 213; 44 Digest 46, 327). A certificate from the inspector, under s. 12, post, p. 4594, will prove this fact. In an appeal under this Act, the case stated that a sanitary authority was and had been, for a long period before the passing of the Act, sending a large quantity of sewage into a watercourse which joined a larger stream, the water in which above the junction was available for most primary purposes, and that the combined stream fell into the sea three miles below the junction. The effect of this flow of sewage was, that in the summer months the greater part of the contents of the combined stream was foully polluted. The case, while it contained the statement that the combined stream had been for more than forty years carrying more or less polluted matter into the sea, also stated that the pollution had been largely increased within the last twenty years:—Held, that although the tributary stream was, at the date of the Act, "mainly used as a sewer" (see s. 20, post, p. 4597), and was therefore exempted from the operation of the Act, the stream, into which it flowed was not so used, and that therefore the pollution of the latter must be prevented (Portobello Magistrates v. Edinburgh Magistrates (1882), 10 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 130).

(i) Many orders were made during the years succeeding the Act. The section is now, however, spent.

(k) See the definition of this term in s. 20, post, p. 4597.

(l) See the definition of a drain in the P. H. A., 1875, s. 4, ante, p. 4343.

(m) It is presumed that these words have a retrospective operation and apply to the sanction given tacitly or actually to communications made before the Act, as well as to cases where drains are made hereafter to communicate with sewers. The sanitary authority will be responsible for the sewer itself (Ferrand v. Hallas Land and Building Co., ante p. 61). See also note (b), ante, p. 4584, and the Rivers Pollution Prevention Act, 1893, post, p. 4872, and cf. the case of Leeds and District Worsted Dyers and Finishers Association v. West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board (1906), 70 J. P. 480; 5 L. G. R. 72; 44 Digest 55, 396.

It will be remembered that the communication of the drain with the sewer has often been the result of compulsion authorised by the statutes.

PART III.

LAW AS TO MANUFACTURING AND MINING POLLUTIONS.

Prohibition as to drainage into streams from manufactories.

4. Every person (a) who causes to fall or flow or knowingly permits (b) to fall or flow or to be carried into any stream (c) any poisonous, noxious, or polluting (d) liquid proceeding from any factory or manufacturing process shall (subject as in this Act mentioned (e)) be deemed to have committed an offence against this Act (f).

Note to Section 4.

Where any such poisonous, noxious, or polluting liquid as aforesaid falls or flows or is carried into any stream along a channel used, constructed, or in process of construction at the date of the passing of this Act, or any new channel constructed (g) in substitution thereof, and having its outfall at the same spot, for the purpose of conveying such liquid, the person causing or knowingly permitting the poisonous, noxious, or polluting liquid so to fall or flow or to be carried shall not be deemed to have committed an offence against this Act if he shows (h) to the satisfaction of the court having cognizance of the case that he is using the best practicable and reasonably (i) available means to render harmless the poisonous, noxious, or polluting liquid so falling or flowing or carried into the stream.

(a) See the definition in s. 20, post, p. 4597, which includes bodies of persons as well as individuals.

(b) See note (b) to s. 2, ante, p. 4582. Proceedings can be taken against a local authority under this section for causing or permitting polluting liquid proceeding from a factory or manufacturing process to fall or flow or be carried into a stream (West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board v. Linthwaite U. D. C., [1915] 2 K. B. 436; 79 J. P. 280; 44 Digest 43, 303).

(c) See the definition in s. 20, post, p. 4597. A stream does not become a sewer within the meaning of the P. H. A., 1875 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 623), by reason of the discharge of manufacturing effluent into it in contravention of this section (West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board v. Gaunt (1902), 67 J. P. 183; 1 L. G. R. 133; 41 Digest 9, 57). In proceedings taken under s. 3, ante, p. 4583, a county court judge found that the beck in question was a "stream" within the meaning of s. 20, post, p. 4587, but did not expressly find that it was not a "sewer." The Divisional Court held that the question was in fact raised before the judge and was in terms decided by him (West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board v. Yorkshire Indigo Scarlet and Colour Dyers, Ltd. (1902), 67 J. P. 80). The case of West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board v. Gaunt, supra, was considered in West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board v. Preston (1904), 69 J. P. 1; 92 L. T. 24; 41 Digest 8, 51, the facts of which were as follows:—The defendants sent polluting liquids from their factory into a channel. This channel was said to have originally carried down water from a well above the factory, but the defendants diverted this water supply above their factory, took it into their mill and discharged it in a polluted state into the channel close to their factory. The channel ran from the factory past certain cottages, then joining a stream, fell with the stream into a river. Fifty or sixty cottages emptied their sewage into the channel below the factory till 1892, when a sewerage scheme was put into operation for the district. Two cottages still discharged slop water into the channel, and two or three small watercourses fell into it below the factory. A county court judge held that the channel was a stream within the meaning of s. 20, and that the defendants had committed an offence under this section. The Divisional Court held that a stream within the meaning of the Act may be either a natural or an artificial one; and that the court was not prepared to differ from the conclusion of the county court judge that the channel was a stream, since (apart from the existing watercourses below) pure water would still flow along the course but for the acts of the defendants. It has since been held that the discharge of sewage into the channel of an intermittent stream may have the effect of converting it into a sewer although the natural flow of the pure water is not cut off, and that no rule to the contrary is established by West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board v. Gaunt, supra, or West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board v. Preston, supra (Att.-Gen. v. Lewes Corporation, [1911] 2 Ch. 495; 76 J. P. 1; 44 Digest 52, 367). A county council applied for an order under this Act to restrain the appellants "from causing to fall or flow or to be carried into" certain streams "any solid or liquid sewage matter." The appellants alleged that the streams in question were not streams within the meaning of the Act in respect that at the date of the passing of the Act they were mainly used as sewers. There was a definite finding of fact that the appellants discharged all their sewage into the streams in question. It was held that the streams were "streams" and not "watercourses mainly used as sewers" within the meaning of the Act. In the course of his judgment Lord HALSBURY said, "I wish to add that Gaunt's Case," supra, "appears to me to have been perfectly rightly decided" (Airdrie Magistrates v. Lanark C. C., Coalbridge Magistrates v. Lanark C. C., [1910] A. C. 286; 41 Digest 8, 52). See also George Legge & Son, Ltd. v. Wenlock Corporation, [1938] A. C. 204; [1938] 1 All E. R. 37; 102 J. P. 93; Digest Supp., where it was held impossible in law for the status of a natural stream to be changed to that of a sewer by the discharge into it of sewage after the coming into operation of this Act. The previous cases were distinguished on the ground that in them the discharge was not illegal.

Section 4.

(d) These three words must have separate meanings: "poisonous" implies destruction of life, human or animal; "noxious" is lower in degree, and signifies some injury, but not of necessity immediately dangerous to life; "polluting" will include both the other qualities and also what is foul and offensive to the senses, except innocuous discoloration, as to which see s. 20, post, p. 4597.

This section applies to a liquid only, as there is no reference here to the obstruction of the stream. See as to throwing cinders, etc., into streams, the P. H. A., 1936, s. 259 (2), ante, p. 521. See, also, as to the choking or silting up of watercourses, ibid., s. 259 (1), ante, p. 520.

(e) See note (e) to s. 3, ante, p. 4585.

(f) See note (b) to s. 2, ante, p. 4582. Manufacturers caused polluting liquid to flow into a sewer which discharged into a stream. The sewer existed at the date of this Act, and was vested in and under the control of the local sanitary authority. The manufacturers used no means to render the polluting liquid harmless. It was held that, even assuming that there was a prescriptive right to discharge their polluting liquid into the sewer, the manufacturers had committed an offence under the section by discharging into a sewer through which the liquid found its way into the stream (Butterworth v. West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board, [1909] A. C. 45; 73 J. P. 89; 44 Digest 42, 301).

Proceedings cannot be commenced under this section until the consent of the Minister of Health has been obtained under s. 6, post, p. 4589, and due notice given under s. 13, post, p. 4595, and that consent must be obtained before the notice required under s. 13 can be given (West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board v. Robinson, [1907] 1 K. B. 431; 71 J. P. 137; 44 Digest 50, 357).

(g) This channel may be constructed at any time hereafter; but it must be carefully noticed that the new channel must be a substituted one. No exemption is given to any other new channel (Midlothian C. C. v. Pumpherson Oil Co. (1904), 6 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 387; 44 Digest 42, a).

(h) See note (g) to s. 3, ante, p. 4586.

(i) This word is not in s. 3. There is so much difficulty in dealing with these subjects that the manufacturer is not required to guarantee the absolute success of the means which he has adopted. He will be protected if he uses means which, in the judgment of skilled persons, may reasonably be expected to remove the mischief although they in fact do not do so. Cf. also note (e) to s. 10, post, p. 4593.

Prohibition as to drainage into streams from mines.

5. Every person (a) who causes to fall or flow or knowingly permits (b) to fall or flow or to be carried into any stream (a) any solid matter (a) from any mine in such quantities as to prejudicially (c) interfere with its due flow, or any poisonous, noxious, or polluting (d) solid or liquid matter proceeding from any mine (e), other than water in the same condition as that in which it has been drained or raised from such mine (f), shall be deemed to have committed an offence against this Act, unless in the case of poisonous, noxious, or polluting matter he shows (g) to the satisfaction of the court having cognizance of the case that he is using the best practicable and reasonably (h) available means to render harmless the poisonous, noxious, or polluting matter so falling or flowing or carried into the stream (i).

(b) See note (b) to s. 2, ante, p. 4582, and note (b) to s. 4, ante, p. 4587.

(d) See note (d) to s. 4, supra, with reference to these words, and the limitation as to polluting in s. 20, post, p. 4597.

In s. 20 it is provided that solid matter shall not include particles of matter in suspension, but such matters would appear to fall under the term liquid matters, and, if so, they would be within the provision of this section. See United Alkali Co., Ltd. v. Simpson, [1894] 2 Q. B. 116; 58 J. P. 607; 44 Digest 122, 985.

(e) It must be noticed that s. 2, ante, p. 4582, applies to quarries. And the term mine applies to some underground work. This was the meaning given to the word in the decisions of the court upon the rating of mines.

(f) It will be immaterial how poisonous or polluted this water may be, so long as its original condition remains unchanged. If it come into contact with other substances in the mine which may affect its condition, the exemption will cease, and if in an altered state it flows into any stream with the knowledge and permission of the mine-owner an offence will be committed.

(g) See note (g) to s. 3, ante, p. 4586.

(h) See note (i) to s. 4, ante, p. 4588.

(i) Reference should be made to the saving in s. 17, post, p. 4596.

Note to
Section 5.

6. Unless and until Parliament otherwise provides (a) the following enactments shall take effect: Proceedings shall not be taken against any person under this Part of this Act (b) save by a sanitary authority (c), nor shall any such proceedings be taken without the consent of the Local Government Board (d): Provided always, that if the sanitary authority, on the application of any person interested (e) alleging an offence to have been committed, shall refuse to take proceedings or apply for the consent by this section provided, the person so interested may apply to the Local Government Board (f), and if that Board on inquiry (g) is of opinion that the sanitary authority should (h) take proceedings, they may direct the sanitary authority accordingly, who shall thereupon commence proceedings.

Restriction on
proceedings under this Part of the Act.

The said Board in giving or withholding their consent shall have regard to the industrial interests involved in the case and to the circumstances and requirements of the locality (i).

The said Board shall not give their consent to proceedings by the sanitary authority of any district which is the seat of any manufacturing industry (k), unless they are satisfied, after due inquiry, that means for rendering harmless the poisonous, noxious, or polluting liquids proceeding from the processes of such manufactures are reasonably (l) practicable and available under all the circumstances of the case, and that no material injury will be inflicted by such proceedings on the interests of such industry (m).

Any person (n) within such district as aforesaid (o), against whom proceedings are proposed to be taken under this Part of this Act, shall, notwithstanding any consent of the Local Government Board, be at liberty to object before the sanitary authority to such proceedings being taken, and such authority shall, if required in writing by such person, afford him an opportunity of being heard against such proceedings being taken, so far as the same relate to his works or manufacturing processes (p). The sanitary authority shall thereupon allow such person to be heard by himself, agents, and witnesses (q), and after inquiry such authority shall determine, having regard to all the considerations to which the Local Government Board are by this section directed to have regard, whether such proceedings as aforesaid shall or shall not be taken; and where any such sanitary authority has taken proceedings under this Act, it shall not be competent to other sanitary authorities (r) to take proceedings under this Act till the party against whom such proceedings are intended shall have failed in reasonable time to carry out the order of any competent court under this Act.

(a) These words indicate that this provision is of a tentative character, because future legislation could, of course, prevent the continuance of this enactment, and the words have in themselves no definite legal operation.

(b) It must be noticed that this section is limited to the cases of manufacturing pollutions and mining obstructions and pollutions.

(c) See the definition in s. 20, post, p. 4597. A fishery board is by the Salmon and Freshwater Fisheries Act, 1923, s. 55 (1) (8 Halsbury's Statutes 812), granted the powers of a sanitary authority under this Act to institute proceedings or may aid any person or local authority in instituting proceedings. See also the powers of a fishery board under ibid., s. 8 (op cit. 783).

Note to
Section 6.

(d) The Minister of Health has now superseded the L. G. B. If proceedings are dropped, this consent must be obtained every time fresh proceedings are taken, although in respect of a continuance of the same pollution (Ex parte Mersey and Irwell Joint Committee (1895), 59 J. P. N. 756).

(e) What will constitute an interest is a question of some nicety. A riparian owner or occupier will be interested, so also will an inhabitant who draws water from the polluted stream; and it seems that if the stream be polluted within the district, the complainant need not be an inhabitant, or a ratepayer within it. But is an inhabitant of the district, as such, a person interested? Seeing the effect of polluted streams upon the general health of a district, it will probably be held that he is.

If the object of the complainant is to obtain only a settlement of a disputed private right, the Minister of Health will doubtless refuse to interfere.

(f) Now the Minister of Health. This application should be made on folio foolscap paper, addressed to the Minister under cover addressed to the Secretary. It should set forth the circumstances of the case, the applicant's interest, his complaint to the sanitary authority, and their refusal. It should also communicate reasonable means of proving the alleged offence.

(g) The P. H. A., 1975, Part IX., ante, p. 4504, provides for inquiries by the Minister of Health.

(h) This implies that an offence has been committed, and that there is sufficient means of proving it. The sanitary authority are compellable to commence proceedings, but if they should refuse to do so, alleging and showing that they have not adequate means of prosecuting them with success, the High Court of Justice would probably refuse to enforce this direction.

The following part of this section shows that, notwithstanding the direction of the Minister, the sanitary authority may, under certain circumstances, abstain from taking proceedings.

The consent of the Minister must, however, be obtained before the notice that proceedings will be taken has been given to the party against whom they will be taken, in order to give him the opportunity of being heard against the proceedings being taken (West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board v. Robinson Brothers, [1907] 1 K. B. 431; 71 J. P. 137; 44 Digest 50, 357, overruling West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board v. Scarr End Mill Co. (1901), 65 J. P. 776; 44 Digest 50, 356, and following Midlothian C. C. v. Oakbank Oil Co., Ltd. (1903), 67 J. P. 412; 5 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 700).

(i) This is only a guide to the Minister, pointing out how he is to exercise his discretion, but the direction is very vague. See also note (k), infra.

(k) These words also are vague. What is the definition of a "manufacturing industry"? Though only manufacturing industry is mentioned, doubtless mining industry falls within the meaning of this part of the section. Would one very large works or mine constitute a "seat"? It might be reasonable to hold that it did. A further defect in the section is that it contemplates that proceedings will always be proposed by the sanitary authority of the district where the pollution takes place, whereas the injury may conceivably be to a district into which the river flows. The special protection intended to be given to a seat of industry may amount to very little in practice, for in any case the department is required to have regard to the industrial interests involved and to the circumstances of the locality.

(l) It will be noticed that this adverb is placed before "practicable," and, therefore, governs both adjectives, but probably the effect will be the same as in the last section, upon which see note (i) to s. 4, ante, p. 4588.

(m) This consideration may be expected to cause embarrassment to the Minister, as the materiality of the injury will be difficult to measure. It seems to be intended that if material injury would be inflicted by the proceedings they are not to be allowed under any circumstances. See also note (k), supra.

(n) See the definition in s. 20, post, p. 4597.

(o) This district must be one which is the seat of a manufacturing industry.

(p) See note (k), supra.

(q) No power is given to the sanitary authority to examine these witnesses on oath; but see the Evidence Act, 1851, s. 16 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 214), which may possibly confer the power of administering oaths to witnesses upon an inquiry such as this.

(r) This prohibition does not apply to persons aggrieved, because they cannot take proceedings under this Part of the Act. See, however, s. 13, post, p. 4595.

PART IV.

Section 7.

ADMINISTRATION OF LAW.

7. [Repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. V., ante, pp. 720, 730.]

8. Every sanitary authority (a) shall, subject to the restrictions in this Act contained (b), have power to enforce the provisions of this Act in relation to any stream (a) being within or passing through or by any part of their district, and for that purpose to institute proceedings in respect of any offence against this Act which causes interference with the due flow within their district of any such stream, or the pollution within their district of any such stream, against any other sanitary authority or person, whether such offence is committed within or without the district of the first-named sanitary authority (c).

sanitary authority to enforce
Act.

. . . (d).

Proceedings may also, subject to the restrictions in this Act contained (e), be instituted in respect of any offence against this Act by any person aggrieved (f) by the commission of such offence.

(a) See the definition in s. 20, post, p. 4597, and the restriction as to the authority in the next section.

(b) See s. 13, post, p. 4595. See the L. G. A., 1888, s. 14, post, p. 4736, under which the county councils and joint committees constituted by Provisional Order under that section have also power to enforce the provisions of this Act. And see also Rivers Pollution Prevention (Border Councils) Act, 1898, s. 1, post, p. 4947, as regards Border councils, and Salmon and Freshwater Fisheries Act, 1923, s. 55 (1) (8 Halsbury's Statutes 812), as to fishery boards.

(c) There may be an obstruction or pollution out of the district which will produce mischief within the district, and there may be the same within the district which may produce mischief without the district. In both of these cases the sanitary authority of the district in which the mischief is produced, subject to the proviso in s. 6, ante, p. 4589, which prevents contemporaneous action by separate authorities, may take proceedings.

(d) Certain words here, dealing with expenses, were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. IV., ante, pp. 1194, 1282.

(e) See s. 6, ante, p. 4589, which restricts proceedings with reference to offences under Part III. to sanitary authorities, and see the other restrictions contained in s. 13, post, p. 4595. It does not appear that the consent of the M. of H. is required to the proceedings to be taken by any person aggrieved.

(f) Who will be a person aggrieved? In s. 6, ante, p. 4589, there is a provision for a person interested. Persons living near a steam-engine, and affected by the smoke, were held to be persons aggrieved within the meaning of Certiorari, 1694, s. 3 (R. v. Dewsnap (1812), 16 East, 194; 36 Digest 242, 805); so also a person annoyed by offensive smells, and vapours (R. v. Williams (1844), 6 Q. B. 273; 15 L. J. Q. B. 98 n).

It seems that these proceedings may be taken in addition to those taken by the sanitary authority because the person aggrieved may require some special provision for his benefit. At the same time such person is not prevented from resorting to the remedies which the law otherwise provides. See s. 16, post, p. 4595.

9. The Conservancy Board constituted under the Lee Conservancy Act, 1868, shall within the area of their jurisdiction, have, to the exclusion of any other authority, the powers for enforcing the provisions of this Act which sanitary authorities have under this Act.

Power of Lee Conservancy
Board to enforce
Act.
31 & 32 Vict.
c. div.

The said Conservancy Board may also enforce the provisions of the Lee Conservancy Act, 1868, under the head or division "Protection of Water," by application to the county court having jurisdiction in the place in which any offence is committed against those provisions, and such court may by summary order require any person to abstain from the commission of any such offence, and the provisions of this Act with respect to summary orders of county courts and appeal therefrom shall apply accordingly.

Section 10.

LEGAL PROCEEDINGS. SAVING CLAUSES. DEFINITIONS.

(1) Legal Proceedings:

Offences to be restrained by summary order of county court.

10. The county court having jurisdiction in the place (a) where any offence against this Act is committed may by summary order (b) require any person to abstain from the commission of such offence, and where such offence consists in default to perform a duty under this Act (c) may require him to perform such duty in manner in the said order specified; the court may insert in any order such conditions as to time or mode of action as it may think just, and may suspend or rescind any order on such undertaking being given or condition being performed as it may think just, and generally may give such directions for carrying into effect any order as to the court seems meet. Previous to granting such order the court may if it think fit, remit to skilled parties (d) to report on the "best practicable and available means" and the nature and cost of the works and apparatus required, who shall in all cases take into consideration the reasonableness of the expense involved in their report (e).

Any person making default in complying with any requirement of an order of a county court made in pursuance of this section (f) shall pay to the person complaining, or such other person as the court may direct, such sum, not exceeding fifty pounds a day for every day during which he is in default, as the court may order; and such penalty shall be enforced in the same manner as any debt adjudged to be due by the court; moreover, if any person so in default persists in disobeying any requirement of any such order for a period of not less than a month (g) or such other period less than a month as may be prescribed by such order, the court may in addition to any penalty it may impose appoint any person or persons to carry into effect such order; and all expenses incurred by any such person or persons to such amount as may be allowed by the county court shall be deemed to be a debt due from the person in default to the person or persons executing such order, and may be recovered accordingly in the county court (h).

(a) It may become necessary in some cases to determine this place where there are separate jurisdictions. Thus, the act of putting something in the stream may cause the obstruction in a different district, and in a different jurisdiction. All the liquid cast into the stream may be innocuous until it reaches a spot in a different jurisdiction. It seems, however, that reference must be made to the place where the act was done. See, upon this point, R. v. Cotton (1858), 1 E. & E. 203; 23 J. P. 532; 36 Digest 235, 739; Brown v. Bussell, Francomb v. Freeman (1868), L. R. 3 Q. B. 251; 32 J. P. 196; 36 Digest 229, 699.

(b) Although these words point to an injunction only, it appears from the rest of the clause that the order may be something more. The order is in the nature of an injunction, and is in the discretion of the court (Kirkheaton District L. B. v. Ainley & Co., ante, p. 4585). And see Butterworth v. West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board, ante, p. 4588. The order is equivalent to a judgment for the purposes of estoppel, and the defendants against whom it is made cannot in further proceedings for the enforcement of the order dispute the commission of the offence, or contend that the order, so far as it applies to the locus in quo, was made without jurisdiction (River Ribble Joint Committee v. Croston U. D. C., [1897] 1 Q. B. 251; 30 Digest 121, 3).

The county court is not justified in the exercise of its judicial discretion under this section in refusing to make an order restraining the discharge of sewage into a stream in contravention of s. 3, ante, p. 4583, where the discharge would appreciably pollute the stream were it otherwise pure, merely because the pollution of the stream from other sources prevents the pollution due to the particular discharge from being appreciable (Staffordshire C. C. v. Seisdon R. D. C. (1907), 71 J. P. 185; 96 L. T. 328; 44 Digest 42, 300. See also Hainesworth v. West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board (1902), 5 L. G. R. 356 n).

A summary order was made in the county court under this section requiring the offender to abstain from the commission of an offence against this Act. On an application for penalties for making default in complying with a requirement of the order, it was held that two months' written notice, under s. 13, post, p. 4595, of the intention to take proceedings need not be given to the offender (West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board v. Heckmondwike U. D. C. (1914), 78 J. P. 190; 44 Digest 50, 353).

As to costs, see County Court Rules, Order LIII., rr. 8, 45; and Bates v. Gordon Hotels, Ltd., [1913] 1 K. B. 631; 13 Digest 523, 732.

(c) No part of this Act assigns any duty to be performed. But the provision of the section contemplates that the judge of the county court will not always absolutely prohibit the act complained of, but may, in some cases, make an order prescribing that the works may be carried on in such manner as will prevent the recurrence of the evil. He may give a limited time during which the defendant may provide for the removal of his works, or adopt such means as will, according to the judgment of the court, remove the nuisance.

(d) I.e., to special referees, such as chemists, engineers, or other scientific persons. This remission is optional with the court, and as the section makes no provision for the costs of this report, which will be usually for the benefit of the defendant, the court, before the matter is remitted, may probably require the defendant to undertake to pay those expenses.

(e) The precise meaning of these words is, perhaps, not altogether obvious, but it appears to be intended that the referees shall report that the expenses will be such that the defendant might reasonably be called upon to incur them, or that they would be such that it would be unreasonable that he should be required to undertake them. Indeed, the expenses might in some cases render it impossible for the manufacturer to continue his business.

It must be noticed that the word "reasonably" introduced in s. 4, ante, p. 4587, before "available," and in s. 5, ante, p. 4588, before "practicable," is omitted here, but doubtless the referees will be guided by a consideration of what is reasonable in regard to the works.

(f) This will occur where the judge of the county court either makes an order directing an absolute abstinence from the continuance of the offence, or makes an order specifying certain works to be executed.

This part of this section sets out the means of prohibiting the offences which have been described in the former Parts of the Act. The penalty is incurred when an order of the court is disobeyed.

(g) This means calendar month. See the Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 3 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 993).

(h) This amount will in many cases far exceed the amount imposed as the limit of the jurisdiction of the county court; nevertheless the action may be brought therein. See B. v. Harden (1853), 2 E. & B. 188; 17 J. P. 614; 36 Digest 239, 781; Hertford Union Guardians v. Kimpton (1855), 11 Exch. 295; 19 J. P. 678; 36 Digest 240, 783.

11. If either party in any proceedings before the county court under this Act feels aggrieved by the decision of the court in point of law or on the merits (a), or in respect of the admission or rejection of any evidence, he may appeal from that decision to the [Court of Appeal (b)].

The appeal shall be in the form of a special case to be agreed upon by both parties or their attorneys (c), and, if they cannot agree, to be settled by the judge of the county court upon the application of the parties or their attorneys.

The court of appeal may draw any inferences from the facts stated in the case that a jury might draw from facts stated by witnesses.

Subject to the provisions of this section, all the enactments rules and orders relating to proceedings in actions in county courts (d), and to enforcing judgments in county courts and appeals from decisions of the county court judges, and to the conditions of such appeals, and to the power of the superior courts on such appeals, shall apply to all proceedings under this Act, and to an appeal from such action, in the same manner as if such action and appeal related to a matter within the ordinary jurisdiction of the court.

Any plaint (e) entered in a county court under this Act may be removed into the High Court of Justice by leave of any judge of the said High Court (f), if it appears to such judge desirable in the interests of justice (g) that such case should be tried in the first instance in the High Court of Justice and not in a county court, and on such terms as to security for and payment of costs, and such other terms (if any) as such judge may think fit.

Note to Section 10.

Appeal from county court, and removal of case into High Court.

Note to
Section 11.

(a) These words appear to apply to the facts of the case as shown by the evidence, and probably also to the requirement made by the judge of the county court. It may be contended before the High Court that the facts proved did not justify the finding of the judge, or if he shall have made an order requiring anything to be done, that such order would not be reasonable or practicable.

Again, the complaining party may urge that their complaint has been improperly dismissed.

(b) The words in square brackets were substituted by the Administration of Justice (Appeals) Act, 1934, s. 2 (1), Schedule, Pt. I. (27 Halsbury's Statutes 459, 460). See also County Courts Act, 1934, ss. 105, 108 (1) (op. cit. 141, 142).

(c) This alternative appears to be given, because in the county court the parties may appear in person, and the provision is copied from Coinage (Sydney Branch Mint) Act, 1863, s. 14, but it is not likely that the parties will often appear in these proceedings in person. Indeed, the sanitary authorities cannot do so.

(d) A proceeding under s. 10, ante, p. 4592, for a summary order is civil, not criminal, and therefore discovery and interrogatories may be allowed (Derby Corporation v. Derbyshire C. C., [1897] A. C. 550; 62 J. P. 4; 44 Digest 50, 359).

(e) This word explains how the proceedings are to be taken in the county court.

(f) Apparently one of the parties only make the application to the judge, though the other party must be summoned to appear at the hearing.

(g) These are rather indefinite words. They seem to imply that by reason of prejudice or undue interest in the court, either on the part of the judge or the jury, the case cannot be fairly tried in the county court. But it is presumed that the judge would also be moved by the gravity of the question at issue, or its difficulty.

The section does not proceed to declare what can be done by the High Court, but doubtless it will be the same as can be done by the county court.

In West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board v. Ravensthorpe U. D. C. (1907), 71 J. P. 209; 44 Digest 51, 361, an application for transfer was refused on the ground of expense and because a local investigation would be precluded by acceding to it.

Certificate of inspector of [Minister of Health] as to best practicable means.

12. A certificate granted by an inspector of proper qualifications (a) appointed for the purposes of this Act by the Local Government Board to the effect that the means used for rendering harmless any sewage matter or poisonous, noxious, or polluting solid or liquid matter falling or flowing or carried into any stream, are the best or only practicable and available means under the circumstances of the particular case, shall in all courts and in all proceedings under this Act be conclusive evidence of the fact (b); such certificate shall continue in force for a period to be named therein, not exceeding two years, and at the expiration of that period may be renewed for the like or any less period (c).

All expenses incurred in or about obtaining a certificate under this section shall be paid by the applicant for the same.

Any person aggrieved by the grant or the withholding of a certificate under this section may appeal (d) to the Local Government Board against the decision of the inspector; and the Board (e) may either confirm, reverse, or modify his decision, and may make such order as to the party or parties by whom the costs of the appeal are to be borne as to the said Board may appear just.

(a) The Minister of Health has now superseded the L. G. B. The inspector must be specially appointed by him; few such certificates have been granted.

This certificate would be available under ss. 3—5, ante, pp. 4583—9.

(b) It must be carefully noted that the certificate will only have this effect in proceedings under this Act, though it is to be available to some extent in other proceedings. See s. 16, post, p. 4595.

(c) It does not appear that it can be revoked or recalled before the expiration of the period.

(d) The Minister of Health has now superseded the L. G. B. This appeal should be made in writing upon folio foolscap paper addressed to the Minister or Secretary of the Ministry. No special form has been prescribed.

If the local authority appeal, the same may be made under their common seal or under the hand of their clerk.

No time is prescribed for the appeal, but it should be made promptly after the decision.

(e) No precise rule of action is prescribed, and the Minister will follow his usual practice of receiving the appeal in writing, communicating it to the other party, and having received an answer, and also communicated with the inspector, will give his decision. There is no need of an order for this decision, though there must be one for the costs if awarded. It is presumed that the costs here referred to are those of the parties. As to the recovery of such costs, see s. 14, infra.

Note to
Section 12.

13. Proceedings shall not be taken under this Act against any person for any offence against the provisions of Parts II. and III. of this Act until the expiration of twelve months after the passing of this Act (a); nor shall proceedings in any case be taken under this Act for any offence against this Act until the expiration of two months after written notice (b) of the intention to take such proceedings has been given to the offender, nor shall proceedings under this Act be taken for any offence against this Act while other proceedings in relation to such offence are pending (c).

Restriction on proceedings for offences.

(a) This paragraph being temporary in its application was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1883 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 986).

(b) In the case of proceedings under Part III. of this Act this notice cannot be given until the consent of the M. of H. under s. 6, ante, p. 4589, has first been obtained. See West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board v. Robinson, ante, p. 4590. Care must be taken to secure the proper service of this notice, as the statute does not supply any statement of what shall be sufficient service. In general the notice should be signed by the clerk of the sanitary authority proposing to proceed where such authority proceeds. In the case of a proceeding by a person aggrieved the notice will be sufficient if given by his solicitor or agent.

(c) See West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board v. Heckmondwike U. D. C. (1914), 78 J. P. 190; 44 Digest 50, 358. This prohibition is in addition to that in s. 6, ante, p. 4589, which refers to proceedings under this Act, and the object of this enactment is to prevent the party from being oppressed by a variety of proceedings. But quære, what proceedings are referred to?

14. . . Every order for the payment of costs made by the said Board under section twelve of this Act may be made a rule of her Majesty's High Court of Justice.

Orders as to costs of inquiries.

The Minister of Health has now superseded the L. G. B. See the P. H. A., 1875, s. 294, ante, p. 4505. Certain words in this section were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. IV., ante, pp. 1194, 1282.

This and the following section are applied by s. 55 (5) of the Salmon and Freshwater Fisheries Act, 1923 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 813), to local inquiries held by persons appointed by the Ministers of Health and of Agriculture and Fisheries with regard to the application of this Act and the amending Acts to tidal waters and the sea for the protection of fisheries.

15. [Repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. IV., ante, pp. 1194, 1282.]

(2) Saving Clauses.

16. The powers given by this Act shall not be deemed to prejudice or affect any other rights or powers now existing or vested in any person or persons by Act of Parliament, law, or custom, and such other rights or powers may be exercised in the same manner as if this Act had not passed (a); and nothing in this Act shall legalise any act or default which would but for this Act be deemed to be a nuisance or otherwise contrary to law: Provided nevertheless, that in any proceedings for enforcing against any person such rights or powers the court before which such proceedings are pending shall take into consideration any certificate granted to such person under this Act (b).

Powers of Act
cumulative.

(a) Hence persons specially aggrieved by any acts which would of themselves constitute the offences herein described may pursue the remedies which the law provides for them as by injunction or indictment. In many cases also such offences are the subject of specific provisions in local Acts. The Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, ss. 61—67, ante,

Note to
Section 16.

pp. 4193—4195, relating to waterworks, incorporated with the P. H. A., 1936, by s. 120 ante, p. 368, also contains provisions prohibitory of some of them, and the customs of certain ancient courts and of the Commissioners of Sewers also apply to them. All these provisions are preserved. See also the provisions of the P. H. A., 1875, s. 69, ante, p. 4349, which enables local authorities to take proceedings to prevent the pollution of streams, and P. H. A., 1936, s. 100, ante, p. 320, which enables them to bring actions in respect of nuisances.

Whether the pursuit of these remedies will prevent the adoption of the remedies given by this Act will depend upon the construction of the last proviso in s. 13, ante, p. 4595.

This section only saves rights to prevent pollution and not rights to pollute as against other riparian owners (Midlothian C. C. v. Oakbank Oil Co. (1904), 6 F. 387).

(b) See s. 12, ante, p. 4594. Although this certificate is to be thus considered, the court are not bound to give any particular weight to it. Probably without this enactment it could have been brought under the notice of the court by affidavit or otherwise. However, it cannot now be rejected as irrelevant.

Saving of rights of impounding and diverting water.

17. This Act shall not apply to or affect the lawful exercise of any rights of impounding or diverting water.

This is an important section, and prevents the operation of the prohibitory clauses of the Act to the extent which the generality of the language would have effected. If the general terms of those sections were considered it might have been found that rights relating to water would be improperly and unnecessarily interfered with.

Thus, a miller or other person may throw rubbish or waste into a stream to divert the course where he has a right to such diversion, or where he desires to impound the water, and if the act be done with any such object this section appears to exempt him from the provisions of the Act. The right to impound implies the right to return the water after impounding, although it may have become putrid by the impounding (River Ribble Joint Committee v. Halliwell, [1899] 2 Q. B. 385; 63 J. P. 708; 44 Digest 41, 296).

It is, however, to be carefully noticed that it is only where there is the right described that this exception takes effect; and further, that no excessive deposit nor any negligence or unnecessary action in this respect will be excused.

Saving of certain Conservancy Acts.

18. Nothing in or done under this Act shall extend to interfere with, take away, abridge, or prejudicially affect any right, power, authority, jurisdiction, or privilege given by the Thames Conservancy Acts, 1857 and 1864, or by the Thames Navigation Act, 1866 (a), or by the Lee Conservancy Act, 1868 (b), or any Act or Acts extending or amending the said Acts or either of them, or affect any outfall or other works of the Metropolitan Board of Works (although beyond the metropolis) executed under the Metropolis Management Act, 1855 (c), and the Acts amending or extending the same, or take away abridge or prejudicially affect any right power authority jurisdiction or privilege of the Metropolitan Board of Works.

(a) The Thames Conservancy Acts, 1857 and 1864; and the Thames Navigation Act 1866, were wholly repealed and replaced by the Thames Conservancy Act, 1894, which has in its turn been repealed and replaced by the Thames Conservancy Act, 1932 (22 & 23 Geo. 5, c. xxxvii). The Port of London Authority are the Conservators of the river Thames within the limits of the Port as defined by the Port of London (Consolidation) Act, 1920, Sched. I. (18 Halsbury's Statutes 745), as amended by the Port of London (Various Powers) Act, 1932, s. 22 (25 Halsbury's Statutes 791), viz. roughly from the boundary between Teddington and Twickenham down to Havengore Creek, Essex, and the Isle of Sheppey, Kent, but excluding the Medway, Swale, Lee or Lee Bow Creek so far as under the jurisdiction of conservators, and excluding the Grand Junction Canal, and claim the benefit of all savings on behalf of the Thames Conservators.

(b) See now also 37 & 38 Vict. c. xcvi., 49 & 50 Vict. c. cix., 55 & 56 Vict. c. cli., and Lee Conservancy Act, 1900.

(c) (11 Halsbury's Statutes 889). The powers and duties of the Metropolitan Board of Works were transferred to the London C. C. by Local Government Act, 1888, s. 40 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 718).

Saving of works of certain local authorities.

19. Where any local authority or any urban or rural sanitary authority has been empowered or required by any Act of Parliament to carry any sewage into the sea or any tidal waters, nothing done by such authority, in pursuance of such enactment, shall be deemed to be an offence against Section 19.

this Act.

It is presumed that the Act referred to has made due provision for the prevention of the pollutions herein dealt with; but, independently of this section, this Act would not have applied to these, unless the L. G. B. or their successor the Minister of Health acted under the next section, or under s. 55 of the Salmon and Freshwater Fisheries Act, 1923 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 812), which would hardly have occurred against a statutory licence. And see Somersetshire Drainage Commissioners v. Bridgwater Corporation (1899), 81 L. T. 729; 44 Digest 43, 308.

(3) Definitions.

20. In this Act, if not inconsistent with the context, the following terms have the meanings hereinafter respectively assigned to them; that is to say, Definitions.

"Person" includes (a) any body of persons, whether corporate or unincorporate (b):

"Stream" includes (c) the sea to such extent, and tidal waters to such point, as may, after local inquiry and on sanitary grounds (d), be determined by the Local Government Board, by order published in the London Gazette. Save as aforesaid, it includes rivers streams canals lakes and watercourses, other than watercourses at the passing of this Act mainly used as sewers (e), and emptying directly into the sea or tidal waters which have not been (f) determined to be streams within the meaning of this Act by such order as aforesaid:

"Solid matter" shall not include particles of matter in suspension in water (g):

"Polluting" shall not include innocuous discoloration:

"Sanitary authority" means—

In the metropolis as defined by the Metropolis Management Act, 1855, any local authority acting in the execution of the Nuisances Removal for England Act, 1855, and the Acts amending the same (h):
Elsewhere in England, any urban or rural sanitary authority acting in the execution of the Public Health Act, 1875 (i).

13 & 19 Vict.
c. 120.
18 & 19 Vict.
c. 121.

38 & 39 Vict.
c. 55.

* * * * *

(a) This word has an extending meaning, and does not exclude the other significations of the term defined (R. v. Kershaw (1856), 6 E. & B. 1007; Doe v. Benham (1845), 7 Q. B. 979).

(b) Hence partnerships and associations are included.

(c) This is not so much a definition as an enactment that the Minister of Health shall determine how much of the sea and of tidal waters shall be brought within the operation of this Act. See also next note.

Tidal waters appear to signify those parts of rivers in which the tide ebbs and flows, as estuaries are covered by the term sea. It would seem that the expression tidal waters is not confined to those waters where there is a horizontal ebb and flow only, but may include waters in which there is only a vertical rise (West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board v. Tadeaster R. D. C. (1907), 71 J. P. 429; 97 L. T. 436; 44 Digest 86, 671). Cf. Reece v. Miller (1882), 8 Q. B. D. 626; 47 J. P. 37; 44 Digest 85, 669. As to depositing solid matter in harbours, etc., see United Alkali Co., Ltd. v. Simpson, ante, p. 4588.

As to the rights of riparian owners in tidal rivers, see Lyon v. Fishmongers' Co. (1876) 1 App. Cas. 662; 44 Digest 107, 356.

Water percolating through the ground in no defined or visible channel is not a stream (McNab v. Robertson, [1897] A. C. 129; 61 J. P. 468; 19 Digest 146, 1001).

(d) By these words it is probably intended that the Minister of Health is not to have any consideration of the Customs, Admiralty, or other regulations, except so far as they coincide with the sanitary necessities of the districts. The following are instances of orders made by the L. G. B. under the section dealing with tidal portions of rivers, viz.: in 1902, Willington Gut, Willington Burn, and Wallsend Burn; in 1897, parts of the rivers Avon and Stour (Hants); in 1890, part of the Medway. By s. 55 of the Salmon and Freshwater Fisheries Act, 1923 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 812), an order may be made extending the operation of this Act and its amending Acts to the sea and tidal waters "for the purpose of the protection of fisheries." The procedure to be followed in making such an order is prescribed by the section and is referred to in the note to s. 1, ante, p. 4581.

Section 20.

It will be well to refer to the provisions respecting port health districts in the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 5.

(e) See Portobello Magistrates v. Edinburgh Magistrates, ante, p. 4586. As to when a stream may become a sewer, see Falconar v. South Shields Corporation (1895), 11 T. L. R. 223; West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board v. Gaunt, ante, p. 4587; West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board v. Preston, ante, p. 4587; West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board v. Yorkshire Indigo, Scarlet and Colour Dyers, Ltd., ante, p. 4587; Glasgow, Yoker and Clydebank Rail. Co. v. Macindoe (1896), 24 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 160; Airdrie Magistrates v. Lanark C. C., Coatbridge Magistrates v. Lanark C. C., [1910] A. C. 286; 41 Digest 8, 52; Att.-Gen. v. Lewes Corporation, ante, p. 4587; Shepherd v. Croft, [1911] 1 Ch. 521; 41 Digest 8, 54; George Legge & Son, Ltd. v. Wenlock Corpn., [1938] A. C. 204; [1938] 1 All E. R. 37; Digest Supp.

(f) Or rather "which shall not be."

(g) It is believed that these words have a technical meaning in chemistry. However, disintegrated matters which do not sink, but float in water, such as the fibres of the pulp of paper, appear to fall within this definition. But if they coagulate in water and cease to be particles, they will lose the exemption. And see River Ribble Joint Committee v. Halliwell, ante, p. 4583.

(h) These Acts are all repealed and re-enacted by the P. H. (London) A., 1936 (30 Halsbury's Statutes 437).

(i) See the L. G. A., 1933, s. 1, ante, p. 736. Parts V. and VI. of this Act, relating only to the application of the Act to Scotland and Ireland, are here omitted.

THE LIMITED OWNERS RESERVOIRS AND WATER SUPPLY FURTHER FACILITIES ACT, 1877.

(40 & 41 VICT. c. 31) (a).

An Act to give further facilities to Landowners of limited interests in England and Wales and Ireland to charge their estates with the expenses of constructing Reservoirs for the Storage of water, and other similar purposes.

[2nd August, 1877.]

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited as the Limited Owners Reservoirs and Water Supply Further Facilities Act, 1877.

(a) The preamble to this Act has been repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1894. See also s. 4 of that Act (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1020) as to the omission of the clause of enactment. The effect of this Act and its bearing upon the subject of public health have already been stated in the notes to s. 116 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 356. It has been thought advisable to set out here the full text of the Act. See also District Councils (Water Supply Facilities) Act, 1897, post, p. 4940.

Extent.

2. This Act shall not extend to Scotland (a).

(a) But see now Improvement of Land Act, 1899, s. 2.

Construction.
27 & 28 Vict.
c. 114.

3. This Act shall be incorporated with the Improvement of Land Act, 1864, and the two Acts shall be read together as one Act.

Certain
provisions of
26 & 27 Vict.
c. 93, incorporated.

27 & 28 Vict.
c. 114.

4. The provisions of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1863, with respect to the security of the reservoirs constructed by the undertakers (a) are incorporated with this Act; and in that Act, as incorporated with this Act, the expression "the special Act" shall mean and include the Improvement of Land Act, 1864, and this Act; and the expression "the undertakers" shall mean any person who constructs or erects any reservoir or dam under the authority of either of the last-mentioned Acts.

(a) See Waterworks Clauses Act, 1863, ss. 3—10, ante, pp. 4257, 4258.

5. The construction or erection of reservoirs or other works of a permanent character for the supply of water to persons residing or engaged in labour on the lands on which such works are situate, or on any other lands settled to the same uses, or for the more convenient or profitable user of such lands, or for the supply of water to any sanitary or other local authority or water company, or to any manufacturer or other person, or for any one or more of such purposes, shall be deemed to be an improvement of land within the meaning of the ninth section of the Improvement of Land Act, 1864, and shall be sanctioned by the Commissioners (a), if it can be shown to their satisfaction that such reservoirs or works for the supply of water will for any purpose effect a permanent yearly increase in the value of the lands on which they are situate, or any other lands settled to the same uses, or will be permanently productive of a yearly revenue to the owner of such lands exceeding the yearly amount proposed to be charged thereon (b); and the construction of any such works shall be deemed to include the purchase by the landowner of any water right or other easement which might otherwise interfere with or prevent the construction of the same or any such supply of water as aforesaid.

In calculating whether the improvement is likely to effect a permanent increase of the yearly value of the land, or be productive of a yearly revenue to the landowner exceeding the yearly amount proposed to be charged thereon, it shall be lawful for the Commissioners (a) to take into account the value of any contract, the terms of which have been agreed upon between the landowner and any sanitary or other local authority, or water company, or manufacturer or other persons, for the purpose of supplying such authority company person or persons with water, as well as the effect on such value or revenue of any sum expended by the landowner in the construction of the works over and above the sum proposed to be charged upon the land.

When the improvement will afford a supply of water to persons residing or engaged in labour on the lands on which the proposed works will be situate, or on any other lands settled to the same uses, the Commissioners (a) may, if they think fit, sanction the improvement, although it may not be shown that the same will effect a direct yearly increase in the value of the lands, or be productive of a yearly revenue to the owner of the lands exceeding the yearly amount proposed to be charged thereon (c).

(a) Now the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. See note (a) to s. 10, post, p. 4600.

(b) As to charging estates with the cost of improvements, see the Improvement of Land Acts, 1864 and 1899 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 127, 166). Reference may also be made here to s. 83 and Sched. 6. Any landowner charging or proposing to charge (a) his estate with the cost of the construction of reservoirs or other works for the supply of water under this Act may enter into any agreement for the supply of water to any sanitary or other local authority, water company, manufacturer, or other person, for any term not exceeding the number of years during which the cost of the improvement, or any part of it, is made a charge upon the estate: Provided that every such agreement be approved by the Commissioners (b), and that no premium or benefit in the nature of a premium be reserved thereby by the landowner.

rights.

9. Nothing in this Act shall be construed to authorise any landowner, or any water company, local authority, person or persons authorised by any landowner, to injuriously affect any reservoir canal river stream or navigation, or the feeders thereof, or the supply quality or fall of water contained in any reservoir canal river stream or navigation, or in the feeders thereof, or any other water rights or easements in cases where any body of persons or person would, if this Act had not passed, have been entitled by law to prevent or be relieved against the injuriously affecting such reservoir canal river stream navigation feeders, or such supply quality or fall of water, or other water rights or easements, unless the landowner, water company, local authority, person, or persons first obtain the consent in writing of the body of persons or person so entitled as aforesaid (a).

(a) Compare the Improvement of Land Act, 1864, s. 46 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 141).

Definitions.

10. In this Act the following words and expressions shall have the following meanings; that is to say,

"The Commissioners" means the Inclosure Commissioners of England and Wales . . . (a):

"Works for the supply of water" includes wells, pumps, reservoirs, cisterns, ponds, tanks, aqueducts, cuts, sluices, mains, pipes, culverts, machinery, and things for supplying or used in supplying water:

"Water company" means any person or body of persons, corporate or unincorporate supplying or who may hereafter supply water for his or their own profit:

"Local authority" means any authority having jurisdiction for any public local purpose:

The several words and expressions to which by the Improvement of Land Act, 1864, meanings are assigned, shall in this Act have the same respective meanings as in that Act.

(a) Words relating to Ireland only are here omitted. The Inclosure Commissioners became, under the Settled Land Act, 1882, s. 48, the Land Commissioners for England and the powers and duties of the Land Commissioners for England under this Act were together with their other powers and duties transferred to the Board of Agriculture by the Board of Agriculture Act, 1889, s. 2 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 401), and now to the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. See Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries Act, 1919 (op. cit. 451).

THE HIGHWAYS AND LOCOMOTIVES (AMENDMENT) ACT, 1878.

(41 & 42 VICT. c. 77).

An Act to amend the Law relating to Highways in England and the Acts relating to Locomotives on Roads; and for other purposes. [16th August 1878.]

The several statutes relating to highways are not included in this Work. This Act, however, contains the provisions as to "county roads" which are referred to in the L. G. A., 1888, s. 11, post, p. 4726, and the L. G. A., 1929, Pt. III.; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903. By s. 29 (1), ibid., references in any Act to "main roads" are to have effect as if the words "county road" were substituted. Accordingly, throughout this Act, "county road" has been substituted for "main road." The expression "county road" now includes not only what were formerly "main roads" and roads which may be declared "county roads" under this Act or become "county roads" by reason of their construction under s. 10 (2) of the Development and Road Improvement Funds Act, 1909, post, p. 5105, but all roads transferred to the county council by the L. G. A., 1929, i.e. all roads in rural districts (s. 30, ibid.) and "classified roads" in urban districts (s. 31, ibid.). See also the Locomotives on Highways Act, 1896 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 64), and the Locomotives Act, 1898, post, p. 4944. The preamble to this Act is repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1894. See also s. 4 of that Act (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1020) as to the omission of the clause of enactment.

PRELIMINARY.

Section 1.

1. This Act may be cited as "The Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878."

Short title.

2. This Act shall not apply to Scotland or Ireland; and, save as is by this Act expressly provided, Part I. of this Act shall not apply . . . (a) to any part of the metropolis . . . (b).

Extent.

(a) Words excluding the Isle of Wight were here repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1898 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1173), having been rendered unnecessary by the L. G. A., 1888, s. 12, post, p. 4734.

(b) The remainder of this section, which excluded highways in South Wales from its operation, was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1898, having been rendered obsolete by the L. G. A., 1888, s. 13, post, p. 4735.

PART I.

AMENDMENT OF HIGHWAY LAW.

Highway Districts.

Sections 3—9 inclusive of this Act (9 Halsbury's Statutes 167—169), which dealt with the formation and expenses of highway districts, became inoperative by reason of the provisions of s. 25 of the L. G. A., 1894, post, p. 4905, by which the rural district councils were made the highway authorities in their districts. The functions of rural district councils as highway authorities are now by L. G. A., 1929, s. 30, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904, transferred to county councils. This transfer does not revive the operation of the sections referred to and they have accordingly been omitted in the text.

10. Where complaint is made to the county authority (a) that the highway authority of any highway area within their jurisdiction has made default in maintaining or repairing all or any of the highways within their jurisdiction, the county authority (a), if satisfied after due inquiry and report by their surveyor that the authority has been guilty of the alleged default, shall make an order limiting a time for the performance of the duty of the highway authority in the matter of such complaint (b).

Power of county authority to enforce performance of duty by defaulting highway authority.

If such duty is not performed by the time limited in the order, and the highway authority fail to show to the county authority (a) sufficient cause why the order has not been complied with, the county authority may appoint some person to perform such duty, and shall by order direct that the expenditure of performing the same, together with the reasonable remuneration of the person appointed for superintending such performance, shall be paid by the authority in default, and any order made for payment of such expenses and costs may be removed into the High Court of Justice, and be enforced in the same manner as if the same were an order of such court.

Any person appointed under this section to perform the duty of a defaulting highway authority shall, in the performance and for the purpose of such duty, be invested with all the powers of such authority other than the powers of making rates or levying contributions by precept, and the county authority (a) may from time to time, by order, change any person so appointed.

Where an order has been made by a county authority (a) for the repair of a highway on a highway authority alleged to be in default, if such authority, within ten days after service on them of the order of the county authority (a), give notice to the clerk of the peace that they decline to comply with the requisitions of such order until their liability to repair the highway in respect to which they are alleged to have made default has been determined by a jury, it shall be the duty of the county authority either to satisfy the defaulting authority by cancelling or modifying in such manner as the authority may desire the order of the county authority, or else to submit to a jury the question of the liability of the defaulting authority to repair the highway (c).

Section 10. If the county authority (a) decide to submit the question to a jury they shall direct a bill of indictment to be preferred to the next practicable assizes to be holden in and for their county, with a view to try the liability of the defaulting authority to repair the highway (d). Until the trial of the indictment is concluded the order of the county authority (a) shall be suspended. On the conclusion of the trial, if the jury find the defendants guilty, the order of the county authority (a) shall forthwith be deemed to come into force; but if the jury acquit the defendants the order of the county authority (a) shall forthwith become void.

The costs of the indictment, and of the proceedings consequent thereon, shall be paid by such parties to the proceedings as the court before whom the case is tried may direct. Any costs directed to be paid by the county authority (a) shall be deemed to be expenses properly incurred by such authority, and shall be paid accordingly out of the county rate; and any costs directed to be paid by the highway authority shall be deemed to be expenses properly incurred by such authority in maintenance of the roads within their jurisdiction, and shall be paid out of the funds applicable to the maintenance of such roads.

Forms for use under this section will be found in Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. VII., pp. 223, 224.

The M. of H. has power under s. 57 (3) of the L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 923, to enforce the performance by a district council of any of its functions relating to public health which it is under a duty to perform. As the duties of an urban authority in relation to highways are contained in the P. H. A., 1875 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 623), it appears that the Minister might take action under the subsection referred to, but it is doubtful if he would do so as roads are now within the jurisdiction of the Minister of Transport.

Under the L. G. A., 1929, Pt. III.; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903, rural district councils cease to be highway authorities (s. 30, ibid.), and "classified roads" in urban districts are taken out of the jurisdiction of the district council and vested in the county council upon whom the functions in respect of such roads are conferred (s. 31, ibid.; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 905).

A county council may delegate its functions in respect of "county roads" to a district council (s. 35, ibid.), but where such delegation takes place the section in the text will not apply since the county council and not the district council are the "highway authority" in respect of such roads. Provision is made by s. 36 (1), ibid., for dealing with default by a district council in such cases.

Under s. 32, ibid., the councils of urban districts of a population exceeding 20,000 may claim to retain the county roads in their area, and in respect of such "retained county roads" are "to have the same functions as if they were as respects that road the highway authority." The section in the text might, therefore, be invoked by a county council to enforce the duties of an urban council in respect of roads "retained" under that section of the L. G. A., 1929, and of unclassified roads.

(a) The county authority are now the county council. See note (c) to s. 38, post, p. 4614. There is a similar provision in s. 16 of the L. G. A., 1894 (post, p. 4902), which enables a parish council to prefer a complaint.

(b) This order may be made notwithstanding a bonâ fide dispute as to whether the road in question is a highway at all (R. v. Cheshire JJ. (1883), 48 J. P. 262; 50 L. T. 483; 26 Digest 385, 1137). But the county authority are not bound to make the order if they are satisfied that the road is not a highway (Ex parte Johnson (1886), 50 J. P. N. 313; 2 T. L. R. 619; 26 Digest 385, 1138). The procedure to compel the county council to make an order is by rule nisi for a mandamus (R. v. Dorset C. C. (1902), 67 J. P. 19). See also R. v. West Sussex C. C. (1921), 85 J. P. 162; 26 Digest 293, 247.

(c) If the county authority do not cancel or modify their order they are bound to order an indictment, though the fact that the road is a highway as well as the liability to repair is in dispute. See R. v. Cheshire JJ., supra; and R. v. Bedfordshire C. C., Times, February 4th, 1895, where a rule for mandamus to the county authority to prefer an indictment was made absolute without opposition in a case where the county authority refused to cancel or modify their order after notice from the highway authority that they declined to comply with such order until their liability had been determined by a jury, whereupon the county council had resolved not to direct an indictment to be preferred.

(d) Although a highway authority cannot be indicted at common law for non-repair of a highway (R. v. Poole Corporation (1887), 19 Q. B. D. 602; 52 J. P. 84; 26 Digest 376 1016), yet they may be indicted if proceedings are taken under this section (R. v. Wake-

11. [Duration of office of waywarden].

Section 11 became inoperative by the passing of s. 25 of the L. G. A., 1894, post, p. 4905, and s. 12 is repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1883 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 986).

12. [Repeal of part of Highway Act, 1862, s. 7.]

[COUNTY] ROADS.

The word "county" has been substituted for "main" by reason of s. 29 (1), L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903. See headnote to the Act in the text, ante, p. 4602. Although "county roads" has a wider meaning than "main road," roads may still become "county roads" in consequence of a declaration made under s. 15 of this Act, post, p. 4606, as amended by the L. G. A., 1929, s. 37.

As to the functions of a county council in respect of county roads, see s. 11, L. G. A., 1888, post, p. 4726, and s. 29, L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 912.

Councils of urban districts of a population exceeding 20,000 may claim to retain "county roads" (s. 32, L. G. A., 1929).

A county council may delegate functions in respect of "county roads" to district councils, urban or rural (s. 35, ibid.).

13. For the purposes of this Act, and subject to its provisions, any road which has, within the period between the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and seventy (a) and the date of the passing of this Act, ceased to be a turnpike road (b), and any road which, being at the time of the passing of this Act a turnpike road, may afterwards cease to be such, shall be deemed to be a county road. . . . (d).

Disturnpiked roads to become [county] roads.

(a) A provision in the Turnpike Acts coming into operation before December 31st, 1870, that turnpike trustees should not spend money or levy toll upon certain portions of turnpike roads did not prevent such portions of the roads from being still turnpike roads on December 31st, 1870, within the meaning of s. 13 of the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, supra. So held as to an agreement under the L. G. A., 1858, s. 41, made on December 31st, 1870, between turnpike trustees and a corporation, under which the turnpikes upon certain portions of turnpike roads were removed, and the repair of such portions was undertaken by the corporation (West Riding JJ. v. R. (1883), 8 App. Cas. 781; 48 J. P. 228; 26 Digest 266, 69).

(b) The corporation of the borough of Rochdale was the highway authority of the Rochdale highway area. Under ss. 47—50 of the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 546, 547), the obligation to repair all public highways within a "town" was imposed upon the corporation, and the trustees of certain turnpike roads were forbidden to collect any toll or lay out any money on any road within that area. By a local Act of 1872 the boundaries of the borough were enlarged, and all the provisions of the Acts relating to the "town" were made applicable to the enlarged area of the borough. The effect was that further portions of turnpike roads were for the first time brought within the area of the borough, and within the operation of the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847 (op. cit., 531):—Held, reversing the decision of the Court of Appeal, that these further portions being only parts of turnpike roads, had not "ceased to be turnpike roads" and were not to be deemed to be "main roads" within the above section (Lancashire JJ. v. Rochdale Corporation (1883), 8 App. Cas. 494; 48 J. P. 20; 26 Digest 266, 68). In 1855 a portion of a turnpike road was included in an improvement district under a local Act incorporating the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847. Thereupon, by virtue of ss. 47—51 of the latter Act the maintenance of this portion of the road became vested in the improvement commissioners, and the turnpike trustees ceased to have power to collect toll or lay out money upon it. In 1877 the turnpike trust expired. The commissioners were the highway authority for the district, and the district was a highway area within the meaning of the above section:—Held, that notwithstanding the operation of ss. 47—51 of the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, the road only ceased to be a turnpike road and became a main road within the above section upon the expiration of the turnpike trust (Lancaster County JJ. v. Newton-in-Makerfield Improvement Commissioners (1886), 11 App. Cas. 416; 51 J. P. 68; 26 Digest 267, 70).

(c) "County" is substituted for "main" by reason of s. 29 (1), L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903. See headnote to this Act, ante, p. 4602.

Description of highway areas.

14. The following areas shall be deemed to be highway areas for the purposes of this Act; (that is to say),

(1) Urban sanitary districts (a):

(2) Highway districts:

(3) Highway parishes not included within any highway district or any urban sanitary district (b).

(a) The expression as defined by s. 38, post, p. 4613, did not include quarter sessions boroughs. But these boroughs are now included by virtue of the L. G. A., 1888, s. 35 (4), post, p. 4748, and s. 38 (3), post, p. 4751.

Where the quarter sessions had for many years paid half the expenses of maintaining a road under the belief that it was a main road for which they were liable, and it was afterwards discovered that they were not liable by reason of the road being within a borough, it was held that an action would not lie in the name of the justices to recover the sums so paid to the highway authority (Kent JJ. v. Sandgate L. B. (1891), 7 T. L. R. 571).

(b) Highway districts and highway parishes are now obsolete. In all areas not within an urban district the county council are the highway authority (s. 30, L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904). The county council are also the highway authority in respect of certain roads in urban districts (ss. 31 and 32, ibid.).

Power to declare ordinary highway to be a [county] road.

15. Where it appears to any highway authority that any highway within their district ought to become a [county] (a) road by reason of its being a medium of communication between great towns, or a thoroughfare to a railway station, or otherwise (b), such highway authority may apply to the county authority (c) for an order declaring such road, as to such parts as aforesaid, to be a [county] (a) road; and the county authority (c), if of opinion that there is probable cause for the application, shall cause the road to be inspected, and, if satisfied that it ought to be a [county] (a) road, shall make an order accordingly (d).

A copy of the order so made shall be forthwith deposited at the office of the clerk of the peace of the county, and shall be open to the inspection of persons interested at all reasonable hours; and the order so made shall not be of any validity unless and until it is confirmed by a further order of the county authority (c) made within a period of not more than six months after the making of the first-mentioned order ().

Forms for use under this section will be found in Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. VII., p. 230.

(a) "County" is substituted for "main" by reason of s. 29 (1), L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903. See headnote to this Act, ante, p. 4602.

(b) An application may now be made for an order under this section on the ground that the road is a road situate in a part of an urban district which is of a rural character (s. 37 (1), L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 912). This additional ground is added because by the combined operation of ss. 29 (1) and 30, ibid., all roads in rural districts become "county roads." A county council may by agreement with an urban district council undertake the repair of any unclassified road in the district (s. 34, ibid.). If, however, a county council refuse to enter into such an agreement and the road is situate in a rural part of the district an application may be made under this section as amended, and if the county council refuse to make a declaration an appeal will lie to the M. of T. See note (d), infra.

(c) The county council are now the county authority (see note (c) to s. 38, post, p. 4614).

(d) If a county council refuse to make the order or fail for six months after the date of the application to make the order, an appeal will lie to the Minister of Transport who may, after considering any representations made by the county council and if required by them holding a local inquiry, himself make an order declaring the highway to be a county road (s. 37 (2), L. G. A., 1929). An order made by the Minister is to have effect as if it were an order made and confirmed by the county council under this section and will come into operation on a date to be fixed by the order (s. 37 (3), ibid.). An order made by the Minister on an appeal against a refusal to make an order will not, therefore, require confirmation by the county council, nor will it require to be deposited with the clerk of the peace.

Note to
Section 15.

(e) If an order made by a county council is not confirmed by the county council within six months of the making of the order an appeal will lie to the Minister of Transport, and the Minister may himself make an order after considering any representations made to him by the county council and if required by them holding a local inquiry (s. 37 (2), L. G. A., 1929). An order made by the Minister is to have effect as if it were an order made and confirmed by the county council under this section and will come into operation on a date to be fixed by the order (s. 37 (3), ibid.).

16. . . . where it appears to a county authority (a) that any road within the county which has become a [county] road in pursuance of this Act (b) ought to cease to be a [county] road and become an ordinary highway, such authority may apply to the Local Government Board for a Provisional Order declaring that such road has ceased to be a [county] road and become an ordinary highway (c).

Power to reduce [county] road to status of ordinary highway.

The Local Government Board, if of opinion that there is probable cause for an application under this section, shall cause the road to be inspected, and if satisfied that it . . . ought to cease to be a [county] road and become an ordinary highway shall make a Provisional Order accordingly to be confirmed as hereinafter mentioned.

All expenses incurred in or incidental to the making or confirmation of any Order under this section shall be defrayed by the county authority (a) applying for such Order.

Parts of this section were repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1894 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1019), and are here omitted. The remainder of the section is amended by s. 4 of the Highways and Bridges Act, 1891, post, p. 4833, whereby it is provided that s. 16 of the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, shall apply to any part of a county road in any county, and so much of that section as requires that any order made thereunder shall be provisional, and shall be confirmed as in the said Act mentioned, shall be repealed. No such order is to be made in respect of any county road within a municipal borough until any representation by the borough council has been considered and, if the council so require, a local inquiry has been held (L. G. A., 1929, s. 31 (4); Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 905). "Main road" in the text is to be read as "county road" (s. 29 (1), L. G. A., 1929).

An order under this section cannot be made in respect of a "classified road" (s. 31 (3), L. G. A., 1929).

(a) The county council are now the county authority. See note (c) to s. 38, post, p. 4614.

(b) The words in italics are repealed by Sched. XII, Pt. III., of the L. G. A., 1929. The expression "county roads" not only includes roads which have or may become "county roads" under this Act but also all roads transferred to the county council under the L. G. A., 1929 (see s. 29 (1), ibid., Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903). An application may therefore now be made by the county council in respect of any "county road" within the definition in that subsection. In view of the redistribution of highway functions made by the L. G. A., 1929, it is improbable that applications will be made under this section except where a road has been declared a "county road" under s. 15, ante, p. 4606, as amended on the ground that it is in a rural part of an urban district and a change takes place in the character of the part of the district, or where an order constituting a rural district part of an urban district has provided that the unclassified roads shall continue to be "county roads" under s. 31 (6) of the L. G. A., 1929.

(c) The L. G. B. was superseded by the Ministry of Health, but the powers of the department relating to highways are now vested in the Ministry of Transport. See Ministry of Transport Act, 1919, post, p. 5195, and the Ministry of Transport (Ministry of Health) (Exception of Powers) Order, 1919. A road which ceased to be a turnpike within the period specified by the first paragraph of this section, and had become a main road, as no application for a Provisional Order was made before February 1st, 1879, was not excluded from the operation of this paragraph, and the L. G. B. were therefore held to have jurisdiction to make an Order declaring such road an ordinary highway upon an application made subsequently to February 1st, 1879 (R. v. L. G. B. (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 70; 49 J. P. 580; 28 Digest 268, 75).

The Minister cannot make an order under this section in respect of a road which is for the time being a "classified road" as defined by s. 134, L. G. A., 1929 (s. 31 (3), ibid.).

Note to
Section 16.

In response to a proposal of a county council that an order should be issued disclaiming all the roads in a county, the L. G. B. stated that they were not prepared to entertain an application of such comprehensive scope. The Board pointed out that the section required that before taking action to reduce a main road to the status of an ordinary highway they must be satisfied that the road ought to cease to be a main road, and that they were of opinion that it was intended that in coming to a decision in such a case they should have regard to the special circumstances of the particular road proposed to be disclaimed. For the Board to decide that all the roads in a county should be disclaimed on the sole ground that the county council considered the system introduced by the L. G. A., 1888, post, p. 4722, as regards the maintenance, etc. of main roads to be open to objection, would, in their opinion, be in direct opposition to the evident intention of the Acts bearing on the question, even if it could be shown that all the highway authorities concerned concurred in the scheme. The M. of T. would, no doubt, take a similar view if a county council made a similar application with regard to all county roads in the county other than classified roads.

17. [Turnpike road in several counties].

Section 17 is now repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1898 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1173), as obsolete since the extinction of all turnpike trusts.

Accounts of expenses of maintenance of [county] roads.

18. Every highway authority shall keep, in such form as may be directed by the county authority (a), a separate account of the expenses of the maintenance of the [county] roads within their jurisdiction, and shall forward copies thereof to the county authority (a) at such time or times in every year as may be required by the county authority (a), . . . (b).

If any highway authority makes default in complying with the provisions of this section, or with any directions given in pursuance thereof by the county authority (a), the county authority may withhold all or any part of the contribution payable by them under this Act towards the expenses of the maintenance of [county] roads by such highway authority for the year in which such default occurs (c).

(a) The county authority are now the county council. See note (c) to s. 38, post, p. 4614.

(b) Certain words here, relating to the audit of accounts, were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. IV., ante, pp. 1194, 1282.

(c) This section is not repealed by the L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 883. But as the only highway authorities maintaining "county roads" other than the county council are urban district councils who claim to retain "county roads" under s. 32 of the L. G. A., 1929, the section will only apply to such councils. Provisions as to the estimates to be submitted by such councils to the county councils and the payments to be made by county councils in respect of such retained county roads are contained in s. 33, ibid.; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 908.

Where a county council has delegated functions to a district council in respect of county roads under s. 35, ibid., the section in the text will not apply since the district councils are not "highway authorities" in respect of county roads.

Highway district situate in more than one county.

19. Where a highway district is situate in more than one county, the provisions of this Act, with respect to the expenses of the maintenance of [county] roads, shall apply as if the portion of such district situate in each county were a separate highway district in that county.

20. Notwithstanding the provisions of this Act, in the case of any county in which certain of the bridges within the county are repairable by the county at large, and others are repairable by the several hundreds within the county in which they are situate, it shall be lawful for the county authority from time to time, by order, to declare any main road or part of a main road within their district to be repairable to the extent only and in manner provided by section thirteen of this Act, either by the county or by the hundred in which such main road or part is situate, as they think fit; and where a main road or part thereof is declared to be repairable by a hundred, the expense of repairing the same shall, to the extent to which but for this section the expense or any contribution towards the expense of repairing the same would be repayable out of the county rate, be repayable out of a separate rate which shall be raised and charged in the like manner as the expenses of repairing the hundred bridges in the same hundred would have been raised and charged. Section 20.

This section is repealed by Sched. XII., Part III., of the L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 1016.

Bridges.

21. Any bridge erected before the passing of this Act in any county without such superintendence as is provided in section five of the Bridges Act, 1803, and which is certified by the county surveyor or other person appointed in that behalf by the county authority to be in good repair and condition, shall, if the county authority see fit so to order, become and be deemed to be a bridge which the inhabitants of the county shall be liable to maintain and repair. Certain existing bridges may be accepted by county authority.
43 Geo. 3, c. 59.

By s. 6 of the L. G. A., 1888, post, p. 4725, the county council, who are now the "county authority," have power to purchase, or take over on terms to be agreed upon, existing bridges not being at present county bridges, and to erect new bridges, and to maintain, repair, and improve any bridges so purchased, taken over, or erected. See also the Highways and Bridges Act, 1891, post, p. 4833, the Bridges Act, 1929; Vol. V. and 9 Halsbury's Statutes 268, and s. 6 of the Crown Lands Act, 1906 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 328), enabling the Commissioner of Crown Lands to convey bridges to local authorities.

22. The county authority may make such contribution as it sees fit out of the county rates towards the cost of any bridge to be hereafter erected, after the same has been certified in accordance with the provisions of section five of the Bridges Act, 1803, as a proper bridge to be maintained by the inhabitants of the county; so always that such contribution shall not exceed one-half the cost of erecting such bridge. Contribution out of county rates towards erecting bridges.
43 Geo. 3, c. 59

The county authority, i.e. the county council, may for this purpose borrow on mortgage of the county rate under County Bridges Act, 1841. See the County Bridges Loans Extension Act, 1880 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 267).

Extraordinary Traffic.

23. [This section has been repealed by the Road Traffic Act, 1930, s. 122, Sched. V. (Vol. V. and 23 Halsbury's Statutes 687, 695). See now s. 54 of that Act (Vol. V. and op. cit. 649).]

Discontinuance of unnecessary Highways.

24. If any authority liable to keep any highway in repair is of opinion that so much of such highway as lies within any parish situate in a petty sessional division is unnecessary for public use, and therefore ought not to be maintained at the public expense, such authority (in this section referred to "as the applicant authority") may apply to the court of summary jurisdiction of such petty sessional division to view by two or more justices, being members of the court, the highway to which such application relates, and on such view being had, if the court of summary jurisdiction is of opinion that the application ought to be proceeded with, it shall by notice in writing to the owners or reputed owners and occupiers of all lands abutting upon such highway, and upon public notice, appoint a time and place not earlier than one month from the date of such notice, at which it will be prepared to hear all persons objecting to such highway being declared unnecessary for public use, and not repairable at the expense of the public. Unnecessary highways may be declared not repairable at the public expense.

On the day and at the place appointed, the court shall hear any person objecting to an order being made by the court that such highway is unnecessary for public use and ought not to be repairable at the public expense, and shall make an order either dismissing the application or declaring such highway unnecessary for public use, and that it ought not to be repaired at the public expense.

Section 24. If the court make such last-mentioned order as aforesaid, the expenses of repairing such highway shall cease to be defrayed out of any public rate. Public notice of the time and place appointed for hearing a case under this section shall be given by the applicant authority as follows; (that is to say,)

- (1) By advertising a notice of the time and place appointed for the hearing and the object of the hearing, with a description of the highway to which it refers, in some local newspaper circulating in the district in which such highway is situate once at least in each of the four weeks preceding the hearing; and
- (2) By causing a copy of such notice to be affixed, at least fourteen days before the hearing, to the principal doors of every church and chapel in the parish in which such highway is situate, or in some conspicuous position near such highway.

And the application shall not be entertained by the court until the fact of such public notice having been given is proved to its satisfaction.

If at any time after an order has been made by a court of summary jurisdiction under this section, upon application of any person interested in the maintenance of the highway in respect of which such order has been made, after one month's previous notice in writing thereof to the applicant authority, it appears to the court of quarter sessions that from any change of circumstances since the time of the making of any such order as aforesaid such highway has become of public use, and ought to be maintained at the public expense, the court of quarter sessions may direct that the liability of such highway to be maintained at the public expense shall revive from and after such day as they may name in their order, and such highway shall thenceforth be maintained out of the rate applicable to payment of the expenses of repairing other highways repairable by the applicant authority; and the said court of quarter sessions may by their order direct the expenses of and incident to such application to be paid as they may see fit.

Any order of a court of summary jurisdiction under this section shall be deemed to be an order from which an appeal lies to a court of quarter sessions (a).

This appeal will still be open to quarter sessions, for the L. G. A., 1888, s. 3 (viii), post, p. 4722, only transferred to the county council the powers of quarter sessions as the county authority. See also s. 78 (2) of that Act, post, p. 4759.

Appointment of Surveyors in certain Parishes.

25. [Removal of doubt as to appointment of surveyors in certain parishes].

This section became inoperative by reason of s. 25 of the L. G. A., 1894, post, p. 4905, by which rural district councils were made the highway authorities in their districts. Their functions are now, however, transferred to the county council by L. G. A., 1929, s. 30; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904. The section was finally repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. IV., ante, pp. 1194, 1282.

Byelaws by County Authority.

Power of county authority to make byelaws.

26. A county authority may from time to time make, with respect to all or any [county] roads or other highways within any highway area in their county, and when made alter or repeal, byelaws for all or any of the purposes following; (that is to say,)

- (1) For prohibiting or regulating the use of any waggon wain cart or carriage drawn by animal power and having wheels of which the fellys or tires are not of such width in proportion to the weight carried by, or to the size of, or to the number of wheels of such waggon wain cart or carriage as may be specified in such byelaws; and

(2) For prohibiting or regulating the use of any waggon wain cart or other carriage drawn by animal power not having the nails on its wheels counter-sunk in such manner as may be specified in such byelaws, or having on its wheels bars or other projections forbidden by such byelaws; and

(3) For prohibiting or regulating the locking of the wheel of any waggon wain cart or carriage drawn by animal power when descending a hill, unless there is placed at the bottom of such wheel during the whole time of its being locked a skidpan slipper or shoe in such manner as to prevent the road from being destroyed or injured by the locking of such wheel; and

(4) For prohibiting or regulating the erection of gates across highways, and prohibiting gates opening outwards on highways; and

(5) [For regulating the use of bicycles] (a).

Fines to be recovered summarily may be imposed by any such byelaws on persons breaking any byelaw made under this section, provided that no fine exceeds for any one offence the sum of two pounds, and that the byelaws are so framed as to allow of the recovery of any sum less than the full amount of the fine.

The county council are now the county authority. As to the confirmation of these byelaws, see s. 35, post, p. 4612.

(a) The provisions of this sub-section were repealed by s. 85 of the L. G. A., 1888, post, p. 4762. That section contains general regulations for bicycles, tricycles, etc.

Saving for Materials.

27. Notwithstanding anything contained in section sixty-eight of the Public Health Act, 1848, or in section one hundred and forty-nine of the Public Health Act, 1875 (a), all mines and minerals of any description whatsoever under any disturnpiked road or highway which has or shall become vested in an urban sanitary authority by virtue of the said sections, or either of them, shall belong to the person who would be entitled thereto in case such road or highway had not become so vested, and the person entitled to any such mine or minerals shall have the same powers of working and of getting the same or other minerals as if the road or highway had not become vested in the urban sanitary authority; but so nevertheless that in such working and getting no damage shall be done to the road or highway.

To whom

disturnpiked
roads to belong
11 & 12 Vict.
c. 63.
38 & 39 Vict.
c. 55.

This provision seems to have been inserted ex abundanti cauteld. See per CORTON, L.J., in Rolls v. St. George-the-Martyr, Southwark, Vestry (1880), 14 Ch. D. 785, at p. 799; 44 J. P. 680; 26 Digest 330, 627. A railway company constructed a railway on the level across a highway in the district of which the relators were the urban sanitary authority. Subsequently the defendants worked coal mines in a proper and usual manner beneath the highway, with the result that a gradual and uniform subsidence of the highway, railway, and surrounding land to the extent of about ten feet vertically took place. No actual damage was done to the highway thereby, nor was it rendered less convenient, but the railway company placed ballast under their line so as to maintain it at its original level, thus forming an embankment obstructing the use of the highway:—Held, in an action against the defendants, that upon the facts there was no case for an injunction or for substantial damages; but per COLLINS, J., that, assuming the highway to be vested in the relators under s. 149 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4375, they were entitled to judgment with nominal damages for the injury to their proprietary right (Att.-Gen. v. Conduit Colliery Co., [1895] 1 Q. B. 301; 59-J. P. 70; 26 Digest 331, 629). See also Lodge Holes Colliery Co., Ltd. v. Wednesbury Corporation, [1908] A. C. 323; 72 J. P. 417; 26 Digest 331, 630. The remainder of this section extending it to the Isle of Wight and to South Wales is repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1898 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1173), as having been rendered unnecessary by the L. G. A., 1888, ss. 12, 13, post, pp. 4734–5.

(a) See this section at p. 4375, ante.

Section 34.

PART II.

AMENDMENT OF LOCOMOTIVE ACTS, 1861 AND 1865.

The whole of this Part of the Act in so far as it remained unrepealed (viz., ss. 28, 30, and 33; 9 Halsbury's Statutes 182—184), was repealed by the Road Traffic Act, 1930. See now ibid., s. 30 (Vol. V. and 23 Halsbury's Statutes 633), and notes thereto.

PART III.

PROCEDURE AND DEFINITIONS.

Confirmation of Provisional
Order.

34. It shall be lawful for the Local Government Board to submit any Provisional Order made by them under this Act to Parliament for confirmation, and without such confirmation a Provisional Order shall not be of any validity.

The L. G. B. is now superseded here by the Minister of Transport. The necessity for a confirming Act is no longer required in the case of orders under s. 16. See the note to that section, ante, p. 4607.

Confirmation of
byelaws.

35. A byelaw made under this Act, and any alteration made therein and any repeal of a byelaw, shall not be of any validity until it has been submitted to and confirmed by the Local Government Board.

A byelaw made under this Act shall not, nor shall any alteration therein or addition thereto or repeal thereof, be confirmed until the expiration of one month after notice of the intention to apply for confirmation of the same has been given by the authority making the same in one or more local newspapers circulating in their county or district.

The L. G. B. is now superseded here by the Minister of Transport.

Recovery of penalties and expenses.

36. All offences fines and expenses under this Act, or any byelaw made in pursuance of this Act, may be prosecuted, enforced, and recovered before a court of summary jurisdiction in manner provided by the Summary Jurisdiction Acts (a).

The expression "court of summary jurisdiction" means and includes any justice or justices of the peace, metropolitan police magistrates, stipendiary or other magistrate, or officer, by whatever name called, to whom jurisdiction is given by the Summary Jurisdiction Acts: Provided that the court, when hearing and determining an information or complaint under this Act, shall be constituted either of two or more justices of the peace in petty sessions, sitting at a place appointed for holding petty session or of some magistrate or officer sitting alone or with others at some court or other place appointed for the administration of justice, and for the time being empowered by law to do alone any act authorised to be done by more than one justice of the peace.

(a) The definition of this expression here following is repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1894 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1019). See now the Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 13 (10) (op. cit., 997).

With regard to the liability of servants to penalties and the exoneration of the owner in certain cases, see the Locomotives Act, 1898, s. 13.

Form of appeal to quarter sessions.

37. If any party thinks himself aggrieved by any conviction or order made by a court of summary jurisdiction on determining any information or complaint under this Act, the party so aggrieved may appeal therefrom . . . to the next practicable court of quarter sessions

The remainder of this section is repealed by the S. J. A., 1884 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 355).

38. In this Act—

Section 38.

“County” has the same meaning as it has in the Highway Acts, 1862 and 1864 (a), except that every liberty (b) not being assessable to the county rate of the county or counties within which it is locally situate shall, for the purposes of this Act other than those relating to the formation and alteration of highway districts, and the transfer of the powers of a highway board, be deemed to be a separate county:

Interpretation.
25 & 26 Vict.
c. 61.
27 & 28 Vict.
c. 101.

“County authority” means the justices of a county in general or quarter sessions assembled (c):

“Borough” means any place for the time being subject to the Municipal Corporations Act, 1835, and the Acts amending the same (d):

“Highway district” (e) means a district constituted in pursuance of the Highway Act, 1862, and the Highway Act, 1864, or one of such Acts:

25 & 26 Vict.
c. 61.
27 & 28 Vict.
c. 101.

“Highway board” means the highway board having jurisdiction within a highway district:

“Highway parish” means a parish or place included or capable of being included in a highway district in pursuance of the Highway Acts, 1862 and 1864, or one of such Acts:

25 & 26 Vict.
c. 61.
27 & 28 Vict.
c. 101.

“Highway authority” means as respects an urban sanitary district the urban sanitary authority, and as respects a highway district the highway board, and as respects a highway parish the surveyor or surveyors or other officers performing similar duties (f):

“Rural sanitary district” and “rural sanitary authority” mean respectively the districts and authorities declared to be rural sanitary districts and authorities by the Public Health Act, 1875 (g):

38 & 39 Vict.
c. 55.

“Urban sanitary district” (h) and “urban sanitary authority” mean respectively the districts and authorities declared to be urban sanitary districts and authorities by the Public Health Act, 1875 (i), except that for the purposes of this Act no borough having a separate court of quarter sessions, and no part of any such borough, shall be deemed to be or to be included in any such district; and where part of a parish is included in such district for the purpose only of the repairs of the highways such part shall be deemed to be included in the district for the purposes of this Act:

38 & 39 Vict.
c. 55.

The metropolis” means the parishes and places mentioned in the Schedules A., B., and C., annexed to the Metropolis Management Act, 1855, and any parish to which such Act may be extended by Order in Council in manner in the said Act provided; also the city of London and the liberties of the said city:

18 & 19 Vict.
c. 120.

“Quarter sessions” includes general sessions:

“Petty sessional division” means any division for the holding a special sessions formed or to be formed under the provisions of the Division of Counties Act, 1828, or any Act amending the same; also any division of a county, or of a riding, division, parts, or liberty of a county, having a separate commission of the peace, in and for which petty sessions or special sessions are usually held, whether in one or more place or places, in accordance with any custom, or otherwise than under the said last-mentioned Act; but does not include any city, borough, town corporate or district constituted a petty sessional division by the Petty Sessions Act, 1849:

9 Geo. 4. c. 43.

12 & 13 Vict.
c. 18.

“Locomotive” means a locomotive propelled by steam or by other than animal power (k):

“Person” includes a body of persons corporate or unincorporate.

(a) Although for the purposes of the Highway Act, 1862 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 122), boroughs are not to be considered parts of counties, yet for the purposes of s. 13, ante,

Note to
Section 38.

p. 4605, it was held that the word "county" was used geographically, and so, therefore, as to include a borough within the county (Over Darwen Corporation v. Lancashire JJ. (1884), 48 J. P. 437; affirmed, 15 Q. B. D. 20; 26 Digest 395, 1221).

(b) The recorder of such a liberty is a county authority so as to be able to hear an application under s. 15, ante, p. 4606, to have certain roads declared main roads (R. v. Dover Recorder (1884), 49 J. P. 86; 32 W. R. 876; 26 Digest 267, 73).

(c) The powers and duties of the quarter sessions as the county authority are now transferred to the county council by the L. G. A., 1888, s. 3 (viii), post, p. 4722.

(d) Now the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882. See s. 242 of that Act, post, p. 4640.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH (INTERMENTS) ACT, 1879.

(42 & 43 VICT. c. 31.)

An Act to amend the Public Health Act, 1875, as to Interments.

[21st July 1879.]

Short title
and construction.
38 & 39 Vict.
c. 55.

1. This Act may be cited as the Public Health (Interments) Act, 1879, and shall be construed as one with the Public Health Act, 1875, in this Act called the principal Act.

The provisions of 38 & 39 Vict.
c. 55,
extended to cemeteries.

2.—(1) The provisions of the principal Act, as to a place for the reception of the dead before interment, in the principal Act called a mortuary, shall extend to a place for the interment of the dead, in this Act called a cemetery; and the purposes of the principal Act shall include the acquisition, construction, and maintenance of a cemetery.

38 & 39 Vict
c. 55, ss. 32—
34.

(2) A local authority may acquire, construct, and maintain a cemetery either wholly or partly within or without their district, subject as to works without their district for the purpose of a cemetery to the provisions of the principal Act as to sewage works by a local authority without their district.

(3) A local authority may accept a donation of land for the purpose of a cemetery, and a donation of money or other property for enabling them to acquire, construct, or maintain a cemetery.

The provisions of the principal Act here referred to were ss. 141—143 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 682, 683) (now repealed and replaced by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 198, ante, p. 466). The text, therefore, enables the local authority to provide and fit up a cemetery, and they must do so if the L. G. B. (now the Minister of Health) so require. They may also make byelaws with respect to its management and charges for the use thereof.

On August 19th, 1879, the L. G. B. issued a circular letter in which the duties and powers of local authorities are clearly set forth: and the following are extracts from such letter (with added references to the provisions of the Burial Act, 1900, the text of which with notes is set out, post, p. 4990, and other Acts):

Note to
Section 2.

"The legislature has not specified the cases in which it is incumbent upon the sanitary authority to give effect to the provisions of the new statute; but, seeing that it is incorporated with the Public Health Act, there can be no doubt that wherever, in the interests of the public health, it is necessary that a cemetery should be provided in any locality, the legislature contemplated that the local authority would exercise the important powers now conferred upon them. Circumstances under which cemetery should be provided.

"The following may be referred to as circumstances under which it will be incumbent upon the sanitary authority to take action:

- "1. Where in any burial ground which remains in use there is not proper space for burial, and no other suitable burial ground has been provided;
- "2. Where the continuance in use of any burial ground (notwithstanding there may be such space) is by reason of its situation in relation to the water supply of the locality, or by reason of any circumstances whatsoever, injurious to the public health;
- "3. Where, for the protection of the public health, it is expedient to discontinue burials in a particular town, village, or place, or within certain limits.

"There are other circumstances which might render it necessary or expedient that a cemetery should be provided, such as inconvenience of access from the populous parts of the district to the existing burial ground, or the nature of the site, or the character of the subsoil; and instances may exist where, in deference to the wishes of the inhabitants, it may be expedient to provide, in accordance with the policy of the Burial Acts, a cemetery in which persons of different creeds may be buried with their own religious rites. On all or any of the foregoing grounds the authority of the Local Government Board may be invoked, and if the application should prove well founded, a compulsory order would necessarily follow."

[In both urban and rural districts the expenses would now be met out of the general rate. If, however, in a rural district the expenses were charged on a contributory place only they would be met out of a special rate. See the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, p. 2113. See, however, s. 190 (4) of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1018, which enables a rural district council to defray any special expenses in whole or in part as part of their general expenses. The paragraph of the circular dealing with cost is therefore printed in italics.]

"In the case of an urban sanitary authority the rate liable for this cost will be the general district rate, or other rate applicable to the general purposes of the Public Health Act within the district. In the case of a rural sanitary authority the amount would come under the head of general expenses, and be defrayed out of the rate applicable to the payment of such expenses. Incidence of cost.

"If, however, the cemetery were provided for a separate contributory place, by which is meant a parish or special drainage district, or so much of a parish as is not within an urban sanitary district [now see the L. G. A., 1894, s. 36 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 800)], or a special drainage district, it would be competent for the Local Government Board to order the amount to be special expenses, in which event the charge would be borne by the particular contributory place, but with this distinction in the incidence of the rate, that whereas in the case of general expenses the amount is either paid out of the poor rate or levied by a rate of an equal sum in the pound, in the case of special expenses the amount is raised by a separate rate to which lands are assessable at only one-fourth. It may be useful to add here that the rates referred to would in like manner be applicable to the maintenance of the cemetery after it is established, and also that a rural sanitary authority may depute to a parochial committee [and to a parish council (see L. G. A., 1894, s. 15 (op. cit. 787))] the exercise of their powers in connection with the management of any cemetery which may be required for any contributory place.

"With regard to the regulation of the cemetery after it has been established, I am to state that the application to a cemetery of s. 141 of the Public Health Act, 1875, will enable the sanitary authority to make byelaws with respect to the management and charges for the use of any cemetery established by them, and in this manner to provide for the orderly conduct of all persons within its limits, for the regulation of graves, and for the payment of reasonable fees for interments therein. Regulation of cemetery.

Note to
Section 2.

[As to fees, however, reference should now be made to s. 3 of the Burial Act, 1900 post, p. 4991.]

"It should be borne in mind, however, that such byelaws must be made in conformity with the Public Health Act, and be confirmed by the central authority; and the President contemplates that the department should hereafter frame a series of model byelaws to be recommended for adoption.

"In order to make further provision for the due maintenance and management of a cemetery, the recent statute incorporates the Cemeteries Clauses Act, 1847, ante, p. 4211.

"That Act forms one of a series of statutes passed in 1847, the object being in each case to comprise in one general Act the provisions usually contained in Acts of Parliament relating to matters of local improvement or administration. Several of these Acts, as well as other Consolidation Acts, were incorporated, either wholly or partly with the Public Health Act, 1875, ante, p. 4331, and the particular Act referred to has previously been incorporated with some general and several local improvement Acts. Its provisions will now form part of the Public Health Act, 1875, and will apply, subject to the necessary qualifications, to all cemeteries acquired, constructed, or maintained by a sanitary authority under the new Act.

"The President, therefore, thinks it right to direct the attention of the sanitary authority to the following obligations and powers imposed upon and exercisable by them under the incorporated enactments.

"With respect to the Making of the Cemetery.

"The cemetery is not to be constructed nearer to any dwelling-house than 200 yards, except with the consent of the owner and occupier. [Reduced to 100 yards by the Burial Act, 1906; post, p. 5029.]

"The sanitary authority may build such chapels in the cemetery for the performance of burial services as they may think fit, and lay out and embellish the grounds of the cemetery. [As to chapels, special provision is further made by the Burial Act, 1900, s. 2; post, p. 4990.]

"The cemetery must be enclosed by substantial walls, or iron railings, of the height of eight feet at least. [But the application of this provision to cemeteries provided under the Public Health (Interments) Act, 1879, is now repealed by the Burial Act, 1900, s. 10; post, p. 4994.]

"The sanitary authority must keep the cemetery, and the buildings and fences thereof, in complete repair and in good order and condition.

"With respect to Burials.

"The sanitary authority may set apart a portion of the cemetery for burials according to the rights of the Established Church, and the bishop of the diocese may, on the application of the sanitary authority, consecrate the portion so set apart. [See also s. 1 of the Burial Act, 1900; post, p. 4990.]

"A chapel, to be approved by the Bishop, must be built on the consecrated part for the performance of the burial service of the Established Church. [See also as to other chapels, s. 2 of the Burial Act, 1900; post, p. 4990.]

"A salaried chaplain is to be appointed to officiate in the consecrated part of the cemetery, the appointment and salary to be subject to the approval of the bishop.

"The sanitary authority may set apart the whole or a portion of the unconsecrated part of the cemetery as a place of burial for persons not being members of the Established Church [see also the Burial Act, 1900, ss. 6 and 9; post, pp. 4993, 4994], and may allow in any chapel built in such unconsecrated part a burial service to be performed according to the rites of any church or congregation other than the Established Church. [See also the Burial Act, 1900, s. 2; post, p. 4990.]

"With respect to exclusive rights of Burial and Monumental Inscriptions.

"The sanitary authority may set apart portions of the cemetery for the purpose of granting exclusive rights of burial therein, and may sell the exclusive right of burial in such portions, and the right of placing any monument or gravestone in the cemetery or any tablet or monumental inscription on the walls of any chapel or other building in the cemetery.

"It should be observed that the Act under consideration does not extend to the metropolis, and it is scarcely necessary to point out that in other parts of the country where suitable cemeteries are in existence there can rarely be need for resorting to its provisions.

"The President trusts, however, that in other localities the sanitary authorities will not hesitate to avail themselves of the important powers conferred by the Act, having regard to their serious obligations in the interest of the public health and to the responsibilities imposed upon them by the legislature."

A memorandum as to the sanitary requirements of cemeteries was issued by the L. G. B. The M. of H. should be consulted as to these requirements.

When the L. G. B. (now the Ministry of Health) are asked to sanction a loan for the provision of a cemetery under this Act, the following documents and particulars seem to be required :

Loans for cemeteries :
Practice of the M. of H.

(1) A copy of a resolution of the local authority authorising application to be made for sanction to a loan.

(2) A plan of the site, drawn to scale, having the position of the trial holes marked upon it.

(3) A key plan showing the locality of the site, its situation with regard to adjoining properties and the points of the compass, and the means of access to the ground and the position of any sources of domestic water supply near the site.

(4) Plans, sections and detailed estimates of the cost of all the proposed works.

(5) Financial particulars of the district (in a form supplied).

(6) A report by the medical officer of health on the suitability of the proposed site. The question of the freedom from risk of contaminating sources of domestic water supply, and of nuisance from the disposal of drainage water should receive consideration in this report.

(7) The area and precise locality of the proposed ground.

(8) Whether any part of the proposed burial ground is outside the district, and, if so, the names of the civil parish and sanitary district. Proofs similar to those required by the Board in the case of sewage works beyond district (see note to the P. H. A., 1936, s. 16, ante, p. 35), should also be supplied of the due observance of the requirements of s. 2 (2) of this Act, ante, p. 4614.

(9) The average annual number of burials in the district for ten years.

(10) Whether an Order in Council has been issued prohibiting the opening of a new burial ground in the parish in which the site is situate without the consent of the Secretary of State or the Board (now the Minister of Health). If so, a reference to it. [A local authority are frequently unable to answer this question, and the department is willing to direct a search of the records.]

(11) The distance of the site from—

(a) the nearest inhabited part of the district ;

(b) the remotest part of such district ;

(c) the most densely populated part of the district.

(12)—(a) Whether there are any, and if so, how many, dwellings within 100 yards of the site.

(b) Whether the consents in writing of the owners, lessees and occupiers of such dwellings have been obtained.

(13) Whether there are any sources of domestic water supply near the site. If so, a description of these sources and a statement of the distance in each case from the site.

(14) The nature of the soil as ascertained by trial holes at least eight feet deep. (The holes should preferably be sunk near each corner and the centre, and in other parts of the ground.)

(15) Whether the soil is free from water to a depth of eight feet.

If not—

(a) the depth at which water is met with ;

(b) what means are available for the drainage of the subsoil to the depth of eight feet and for the disposal of the resulting water.

Note to
Section 2.

(16) Whether an agreement (subject to the approval of the Ministry being obtained) has been entered into for the purchase of the site.

(17) The price to be paid for the land.

The terms now allowed by the Minister of Health for the repayment of loans for cemetery purposes are:—

	Maximum
For land	60 years
„ building and drainage works	30 „
„ laying out and planting	20 „
„ fencing and gates	15—20 „

the Ministry.

It will be seen that the Ministry must be approached upon the subject of the provision or extension of a cemetery under the Act (a) if a loan is proposed, (b) if compulsory powers of purchase are required, (c) if the cemetery is to be situate beyond the district, and a statutory objection has been made, or (d) if there is an Order in Council in force prohibiting the opening of a new burial ground in the parish without the previous approval of the central department. If none of these conditions apply to the proposals of a local authority, they are at liberty to proceed without consulting the Ministry. A rural district council providing a cemetery for one or more parishes in their district should obtain a special expenses order under the L. G. A., 1933, s. 190 (3), ante, p. 1017, even if no loan is proposed. But they may defray such expenses in whole or in part as part of their general expenses (s. 190 (4), L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1018).

Advantages of proceeding under this
Act.

Inquiry was made of the L. G. B. as to the provision of a new burial ground for an ecclesiastical parish consisting of two rural parishes, one of which had not a parish council. The Board stated that if it were desired to provide and maintain a joint burial ground under the Burial Acts for the two civil parishes, the appointment of a joint committee under the L. G. A., 1933, s. 91, ante, p. 854, would be necessary, and that before this could be done the parish meeting of the parish without a council would have to obtain from the county council an order investing them with the requisite powers of a parish council. Other formalities would be involved by procedure under the Burial Acts. There would first have to be resolutions of the parish council and of the parish meeting of the respective parishes under the Burial Act, 1852, s. 23 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 197), expressing concurrence and agreement in providing a joint burial ground and apportioning the expenses. Following this, resolutions of the parish meeting of each parish under s. 19 of that Act (op. cit., 195), authorising the expenditure, would be necessary; and, after the joint committee had been formed, further resolutions of the parish meetings of the respective parishes under s. 26 of the same Act (op. cit., 198) would have to be passed approving of the contract for the acquisition of the site. As, therefore, procedure under the Burial Acts would involve considerable delay and trouble, the Board suggested that probably the preferable course would be for the rural district council to provide a cemetery for the parishes under the present Act. The Board observed that if proceedings were taken under this Act, the involved procedure under the Burial Acts would be avoided, and there would be no necessity for conferring upon the parish meeting parish council powers, the rural district council having, in fact, all the necessary powers for providing a cemetery for the joint use of any group of parishes within their district. Again, if a loan were required, the only consent necessary under this Act as regards the loan, would be that of the central department; whereas a loan for a burial ground provided under the Burial Acts would require the consent of the parish meeting of each parish, of the county council, and of the department. In conclusion, the Board suggested that the matter should be brought before the rural district council with a view to action by them under this Act.

An urban district council may provide a cemetery under this Act even if they are a burial authority under the Burial Acts, and, as in the case of rural areas (see note above), there are certain advantages in their doing so. Thus, under this Act, a term of sixty years is obtainable for the repayment of a loan for the purchase of land, thirty years being (see "Local Government," 1910, p. 97), the maximum under the Burial Acts; compulsory powers also are obtainable; and the consent of the vestry to the proposed expenditure and site is dispensed with. It may be added that an urban council may effect an extension of a burial ground vested in them under the Burial Acts by proceeding under the Act of 1879, though the two grounds will strictly be separate burial grounds subject to different statutes.

Note to
Section 2.

If an urban council proceeding under this Act wish to limit the incidence of expense^s to part of the district, they may do so under the P. H. A., 1936, s. 11 (2), ante, p. 16

Model byelaws for cemeteries have been issued, with a prefatory memorandum (too long for insertion here), dealing with various practical matters.

Model
byelaws.

By the Cremation Act, 1902, s. 2, post, p. 4999, the expression "burial authority" in that Act "shall mean . . . any local authority maintaining a cemetery under the Public Health (Interments) Act, 1879 . . ." By s. 4, post, p. 4999, the powers of a burial authority to provide and maintain cemeteries, or anything essential, ancillary, or incidental thereto, shall be deemed to extend to and include the provision and maintenance of crematoria. See the Act, post, p. 4999.

3. The Cemeteries Clauses Act, 1847, shall be incorporated with this Act.

10 & 11 Vict.
c. 65, incorporated with
this Act.

This Act is set out, ante, p. 4211.

THE PUBLIC WORKS LOANS ACT, 1879.

(42 & 43 VICT. c. 77) (a).

An Act to amend the Acts relating to the Public Works Loan Commissioners and the Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland, and to grant money for the purpose of Loans by the said Commissioners; and for other purposes in relation thereto. [15th August, 1879.]

1. This Act may be cited as "The Public Works Loans Act, 1879."

Short title.

(a) See the Public Works Loans Act, 1875, ante, p. 4544. The preamble to this Act was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1894 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1019). As to the omission of the clause of enactment, see s. 4 of that Act (op. cit. 1020).

PART I.

AMENDMENT OF ACTS.

2. Where a loan is granted by the Public Works Loan Commissioners, or by the Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland, and the rate of interest for such loan, fixed by the special Act which authorises the Commissioners to grant the loan, is a special rate less than five per cent., such loan shall, notwithstanding anything in the special Act, bear interest at a rate not less than the rate in the special Act, and such other rate as may be necessary, in the judgment of the Treasury, in order to enable the loans to be made without loss to the Exchequer (a).

Minimum rate of interest for loans.

(a) In the application of this Act to loans granted after June 28th, 1892, the above section is to have effect as if 4 per cent. were therein substituted for 5 per cent. See the Public Works Loans Act, 1892, s. 2, post, p. 4871.

3. [Restrictions on amount of loan to one borrower] (a).

(a) This section is repealed by the Public Works Loans Act, 1897, ss. 3, 12 (4), and Sched. II., post, p. 4944.

4. Nothing in this Act shall apply to any loan granted before the passing of this Act, nor to any instalments subsequently advanced in respect of such loan . . . (a).

Act not to apply to old loans.

THE PUBLIC WORKS LOANS ACT, 1881.

Section 4. Provided, that where though a loan has not been actually granted before the passing of this Act, negotiations for the same have proceeded so far as to make it in the opinion of the Treasury inequitable for such loan to be subject to the provisions of this Act or any of them, such loan shall, for the purposes of those provisions, be deemed to be a loan granted before the passing of this Act.

(a) The remainder of this paragraph relating to local matters or Irish matters only is here omitted.

5. [Power to lend to Peabody Trustees] (a).

(a) This section is now repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1894 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1019).

6. [Power to lend to labourers' dwellings companies] (a).

(a) This section was repealed by the Housing of the Working Classes Act, 1890, s. 102. See now s. 123 of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1727.

7. [Regulations as to advances by National Debt Commissioners to the Public Works Loan Commissioners] (a).

(a) These sections were repealed by the National Debt and Local Loans Act, 1887 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 282), as from the date when an Act passed in the year 1887, authorising the advance of money for local loans (the Public Works Loans Act, 1887, post, p. 4700), came into operation, and without prejudice to any charge on the Consolidated Fund of any advance until the security for such advance should be exchanged in pursuance of the repealing Act. Section 9 had merely a local application, and is now repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1894 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1019). Section 10 (relating to the provision of money for the purpose of loans), s. 11 (relating to Ireland only), and the Schedule (containing certain repealed enactments), are also repealed by the same Act.

8. [Application of Public Works Loans Act, 1875, ante, p. 4544, to money advanced by National Debt Commissioner] (a).

(a) See note (a) to s. 7, supra.

THE PUBLIC WORKS LOANS ACT, 1881.

(44 & 45 VICT. c. 38) (a).

An Act to grant money for the purposes of Loans by the Public Works Loan Commissioners and the Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland; and for other purposes relating to Loans by those Commissioners.

[22nd August, 1881.]

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited as "The Public Works Loans Act, 1881."

(a) See the Public Works Loans Act, 1875, ante, p. 4544. The preamble to this Act was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1894 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1019). See also s. 4 of that Act (op. cit., 1020) as to the omission of the clause of enactment.

PART I.

Grants of Money for Public Works Loan Commissioners during the period ending 30th June, 1882.

PART II.

Grant of Money for Public Works Commissioners, Ireland, during the period ending 30th June, 1882.

PART III.

Section 7.

Remission, etc. of Loans in various cases.

* * * * *

AMENDMENT OF ACTS.

7. Where the Public Works Loan Commissioners have, either before or after the passing of this Act, in pursuance of the Public Works Loans Act, 1875 (a), or of any enactment repealed by that Act, taken possession of any mortgaged property, and after the passing of this Act advance any sum for the completion, repair, improvement or security of that property, the rate of interest on such sum shall, notwithstanding anything in section twenty-two of the Public Works Loans Act, 1875, or any like enactment repealed by that Act, be not less than five per cent. per annum.

Amendment of 38 & 39 Vict. c. 89, s. 22, as to rate of interest for loan.

(a) See s. 22, ante, p. 4551.

8. The Local Government Board (a) may make orders as to the expenses incurred by them or by any officer appointed by them in making or conducting any examination in pursuance of section thirty-six (b) of the Public Works Loans Act, 1875, for the purpose of ascertaining that any loan or part of a loan advanced by the Public Works Loan Commissioners either before or after the passing of this Act, on the security of a rate, has been applied to the purpose for which the same was advanced.

Expenses of ascertaining (under 38 & 39 Vict. c. 89, s. 36) that loans advanced by the Public Works Loan Commissioners have been properly applied.

Any such order may contain directions as to the parties by whom, and the rates out of which such expenses shall be borne, and on the application of the Local Government Board may be made a rule of the High Court of Justice in England, or of High Court of Session in either division of the Inner House thereof in Scotland.

(a) The L. G. B. has now been superseded by the Ministry of Health.

(b) See the section, ante, p. 4556.

9. The unapplied balance of any loan advanced by the Public Works Loan Commissioners, either before or after the passing of this Act, on the security of a rate, may, with the consent of the said commissioners, and of the central authority or department, if any, with whose sanction or consent such loan was authorised to be raised, be applied to any purpose to which moneys borrowed on the security of such rate are properly applicable; and in construing section thirty-six (a) of the Public Works Loans Act, 1875, and section four (b) of the Public Works Loans Act, 1878, the purpose to which any such unapplied balance as aforesaid is so applied, shall be deemed to be the purpose for which that portion of the loan was advanced (c).

Application of surplus balances of loans made by the Public Works Loan Commissioners.

41 Vict. c. 18.

(a) See the section, ante, p. 4556.

(b) See this section, ante, p. 4602.

(c) It will be observed that the present section applies only to unapplied balances of loans advanced by the Public Works Loan Commissioners. If, therefore, a loan sanction issued by the L. G. B. or Ministry of Health has been only partially acted upon, the section will not facilitate an advance of the balance by the Commissioners for the purposes of works not at first contemplated.

The necessity of obtaining consent under this section in requisite cases, is not dispensed with by L. G. A., 1933, s. 202, ante, p. 1037.

Section 10 relates to local matters only; and the remaining sections of the Act apply only to Ireland.

Section 1.

THE COMMONABLE RIGHTS COMPENSATION ACT, 1882.

(45 & 46 VICT. c. 15) (a).

An Act to provide for the better application of moneys paid by way of Compensation for the compulsory acquisition of Common Lands and extinguishment of Rights of Common. [19th June, 1882.]

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited as the Commonable Rights Compensation Act 1882.

(a) This Act is included in this work by reason of the provision which it contains in s. 2 (5), post, p. 4623, vesting recreation grounds in urban sanitary authorities when these are purchased out of moneys paid for the extinction of commonable rights under the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ante, p. 4104, and special Acts which authorise the taking or interfering with common lands. The preamble is repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1898 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1173).

Application of compensation money for common lands.

2.—(1) With respect to any money which has been or hereafter may be paid by any railway or other public company or corporate body or otherwise under the provisions of the Lands Clauses Act (a) and any Act incorporated therewith, or of any other Act of Parliament to a committee of commoners (b) as compensation for the extinguishment of commonable or other rights or for lands being common lands or in the nature thereof the right to the soil of which may belong to the commoners, the committee (or a majority in number thereof) or, after the expiration of twelve months from the payment of such money to the committee, any three of the persons claiming to be interested in such money may make application in writing to the Commissioners (c) to call a meeting of the persons interested in such money to consider the application thereof, and the Commissioners shall call a meeting accordingly, and at such meeting the majority in number and the majority in respect of interest of the persons present may decide by resolution that such money shall be applied and laid out in one or more of the following ways :

8 & 9 Vict. c.
113, etc.

- (a) In the improvement of the remainder of the common land in respect of a portion of which such money has been paid ;
- (b) In defraying the expense of any proceedings under the Metropolitan Commons Acts or under the Inclosure Acts, 1845 to 1878, with reference to a scheme for the local management, or a Provisional Order for the regulation, of such common land, or of any application to Parliament for a private Bill or otherwise for the preservation and management of such common land as an open space ;
- (c) In defraying the expense of any legal proceedings for the protection of such common land, or the commoners' rights over the same ;
- (d) In the purchase of additional land to be used as common land ;
- (e) In the purchase of land to be used as a recreation ground for the neighbourhood (d) ;

and any such resolution shall bind the minority and all absent parties, and the Commissioners (c) shall make an order under their seal for the payment to them of any expenses incurred by them in relation to the matter, and (subject to such payment) for the application of the money according to such resolution, and the committee or the persons in whose names such money stands or is invested, or the survivors or survivor in account of such persons or the legal personal representative of such survivor, shall, upon service of any such order of the Commissioners (c) as aforesaid upon them or any of them or any person on their behalf as the Commissioners (c) may direct, pay and apply the said money or realise any security in which the same is invested, and pay and apply the proceeds thereof in manner directed by the said order.

(2) Any land so purchased as aforesaid for use as common land shall be conveyed to and vest in trustees upon trusts for the persons interested, such trustees to be appointed, and such trusts, and the powers and duties of the trustees, and provisions for the appointment of new trustees from time to time to be declared and provided by an order under the seal of the Commissioners (c), pursuant to resolutions to be passed at a special meeting of the persons interested, convened by the said Commissioners (c) by such majorities as aforesaid. Section 2.

(3) Every appointment of a new trustee or of new trustees, in pursuance of this Act, shall be subject to confirmation by the Commissioners (c) under their seal, and upon such confirmation the land shall vest in the remaining and the newly-appointed trustees without any conveyance.

(4) The Commissioners (c) shall publish such notice of any meeting held under this Act, and frame such rules and give such directions for the conduct of such meetings and the service of orders made by them under this Act as they may deem fit, and may, if they think fit, direct an assistant commissioner appointed by them to preside at any such meeting, and any such meeting may be adjourned from time to time.

(5) Any land so purchased as aforesaid for use as recreation ground shall be conveyed to and vest in the local authority as specified in the Schedule to this Act (e) for the district within which such land is situate, and shall be held and managed by such local authority, subject to and in accordance with the provisions relating to recreation grounds respectively contained in the Inclosure Acts, 1845 to 1878 (f).

(a) See ss. 99—107 inclusive of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ante, pp. 4141—4143.

(b) As to this Committee, see the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, s. 103, ante, p. 4142, and the case of Salmon v. Edwards, [1910] 1 Ch. 552; 74 J. P. 177; 11 Digest 40, 556, there set out. Before 1802 the occupiers of certain cottages were accustomed to cut turf on large tracts of commonable and waste lands of a manor. In that year an Inclosure Act was passed by which commissioners were empowered to allot lands in severalty to the lord and other persons interested, and to allot to the lord in trust for the occupiers of the cottages portions of the waste for a turf common, to be managed as the lord and the churchwardens and overseers should order, and not to be depastured. The commissioners by their award, made in 1806, allotted to the lord of the manor, in trust for the occupiers for the time being of the cottages, 425 acres of waste for a turf common for the use of the cottagers. The commissioners also allotted to the lord and other persons interested portions of the enclosed lands in severalty in lieu of their rights and interests. A railway company took for the purposes of their undertaking part of the land allotted as a turf common, and the purchase money was paid into court. On a petition by the freeholder of the cottages for the distribution of the fund, it was held that the owners of the cottages had no claim on the fund; and that the lord of the manor was entitled to such part of the fund as represented the value of the soil in the land taken by the company. It was also held that the remainder of the fund was to be held as a charitable trust for the benefit of the occupiers of the cottages (Att.-Gen. v. Meyrick, [1893] A. C. 1; 57 J. P. 212; 11 Digest 29, 366). See this case commented on in Simcoe v. Pethick, [1898] 2 Q. B. 555; 11 Digest 75, 975. Where the relative values of commonable rights could not be strictly ascertained by reason of the land being built over, a fund was ordered to be divided equally among the commoners (Weatherley v. Layton, [1892] W. N. 165).

(c) See note (a) to s. 1 of the Commons Act, 1876, ante, p. 4563.

(d) It is only in this case that the urban district council have any interest. See sub-s. (5).

(e) In urban districts this local authority is the urban district council. See the Schedule post, p. 4624.

(f) Inclosure Act, 1845, ss. 34, 72—74, 92 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 454, 473—475, 482); Inclosure Act, 1846, s. 4 (op. cit. 519); Inclosure Act, 1852, s. 14 (op. cit. 543); Inclosure Act, 1857, ss. 12, 13 (op. cit. 560, 561); Commons Act, 1879 (op. cit. 602). Provision for cases where money paid by way of compensation has already been applied in the manner authorised by
this Act.

4. In any case where money paid by way of compensation as aforesaid has, before the passing of this Act, been applied in any one or more of the ways authorised by this Act, a resolution may be passed, at any meeting of the persons interested, called by the Commissioners in manner provided by this Act (a), by such majorities as aforesaid approving of such application, and such application shall, upon the allowance of such resolution by the Commissioners under their seal, be deemed to have been lawfully made under the provisions of this Act; and the committee or other persons by whom such money has been so applied shall thereupon be discharged from all liability in respect of such money so applied. And the provisions in this Act contained with respect to the declaration of trusts, and the powers and duties of trustees, and the appointment of new trustees, from time to time, shall apply in every case in which such money has, before the passing of this Act, been laid out in the purchase of land.

(a) The Act does not provide any method of calling a meeting. See s. 2, ante, p. 4623.

Deposit of orders.

5. Copies of all orders made by the Commissioners under this Act shall be deposited and kept in like manner as copies of an award are by the Inclosure Act, 1845, directed to be deposited and kept (a).

(a) See Inclosure Act, 1845, s. 146 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 506); Inclosure Act, 1852, s. 27 (op. cit. 547).

Exception of the New Forest.

6. This Act shall not extend to the New Forest (a).

(a) See Inclosure Act, 1845, s. 13 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 446).

THE MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS ACT, 1882.

Section 1.

(45 & 46 VICT. c. 50)(a).

An Act for consolidating, with amendments, enactments relating to Municipal Corporations in England and Wales. [18th August, 1882.]

(a) The only surviving sections of this Act which are of importance for purposes of this work consist of Part IV., and of certain supplementary sections set out hereunder.

PART I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be cited as the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882.

Short title.

2. This Act is divided into Parts, as follows :

Division of A into Part.

- Part I.—Preliminary.
- Part II.—Constitution and government of borough.
- Part III.—Preparations for and procedure at elections.
- Part IV.—Corrupt practices and election petitions.
- Part V.—Corporate property and liabilities.
- Part VI.—Charitable and other trusts and powers.
- Part VII.—Borough fund: borough rate: county rate.
- Part VIII.—Administration of justice.
- Part IX.—Police.
- Part X.—Freemen.
- Part XI.—Grant of charters.
- Part XII.—Legal proceedings.
- Part XIII.—General.

3. This Act shall not extend to Scotland or Ireland.

Extent.

4. [Commencement, 31st December, 1882.]

5. [Repeals.]

6. This Act shall apply to every city and town to which the Municipal Corporations Act, 1835, applies at the commencement of this Act, and to any town, district, or place whereof the inhabitants are incorporated after the commencement of this Act, and whereto the provisions of the Municipal Corporations Acts are . . . (a) extended by charter, but to no other place.

(a) The words "under this Act" which were formerly inserted here, were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 735.

7.—(1) In this Act—

Interpretation and construction

"Municipal corporation" means the body corporate constituted by the incorporation of the inhabitants of a borough :

"Municipal Corporations Act, 1835," means the recited Act of King William the Fourth, the date of the passing whereof is the ninth of September one thousand eight hundred and thirty-five :

"Municipal Corporations Acts" means this Act and any Act to be passed amending this Act :

"Burgess" includes citizen :

"Corporate seal" means the common seal of a municipal corporation :

"Corporate office" means the office of mayor, alderman, councillor, elective auditor . . . (a) :

"Corporate land" means land belonging to or held in trust for a municipal corporation :

Section 7.

"Municipal election" means an election to a corporate office:

"Parliamentary borough" means any borough, city, county of a city, county of a town, place, or combination of places, returning a member to serve in Parliament, and not being a county at large, or a riding, parts, or division of a county at large:

"Parliamentary election" means an election of a member to serve in Parliament:

* * * * * * (b)

"County" does not include a county of a city or county of a town, but includes a riding, parts, division, or liberty of a county:

"Trustees" means trustees, commissioners, or directors, or the persons charged with the execution of a trust or public duty, however designated:

"Justice" means one of her Majesty's justices of the peace:

"Borough civil court" means an inferior court of record for the trial of civil actions which by charter, custom, or otherwise, is or ought to be holden in a borough, but does not include a county court:

"Schedule" means Schedule to this Act, and "Part" means Part of this Act:

(2) Words in this Act referring to a borough, municipal corporation, authority, officer, or office, shall be construed distributively as referring to each borough, corporation, authority, officer, or office to which or to whom the provision is applicable.

(3) Words in this Act referring to a parish shall be construed, unless a contrary intention appears, as referring to every parish situate wholly or in part in a borough.

(4) The Schedules shall be read and have effect as if they were part of this Act.

(a) Revising assessors, who were also here originally included, were abolished by County Electors Act, 1888, s. 4.

(b) Definitions of "parish" and of "overseers" have been omitted as repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 735.

PART IV. (a).

CORRUPT PRACTICES AND ELECTION PETITIONS.

Corrupt Practices.

Definitions.

77. In this Part—

"Bribery," "treating," "undue influence," and "personation" include respectively anything done before, at, after, or with respect to a municipal election, which if done before, at, after, or with respect to a parliamentary election would make the person doing the same liable to any penalty, punishment, or disqualification for bribery, treating, undue influence, or personation, as the case may be, under any Act for the time being in force with respect to parliamentary elections (b):

"Candidate" means a person elected, or having been nominated (c), or having declared himself a candidate for election, to a corporate office:

"Voter" means a burgess or a person who votes or claims to vote at a municipal election:

"Election court" means a court constituted under this Part for the trial of an election petition: Section 77.

"Municipal election petition" or "election petition" means a petition under this Part complaining of an undue municipal election.

"Parliamentary election petition" means a petition under the Parliamentary Elections Act, 1868: 31 & 32 Vict. c. 125.

"Prescribed" means prescribed by general rules made under this Part:

"Borough" and "election" when used with reference to a petition mean the borough and election to which the petition relates (d).

(a) It is necessary to include this Part in the present Work, as by rules made by virtue of s. 40 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 774, it now applies to elections of urban district councillors and of rural district councillors. The rules made under this Act are set out, ante, p. 2524.

(b) See the definition of these offences, in the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884, Sched. III., post, p. 4690.

(c) Although in fact disqualified for election (Harford v. Lynskey, [1899] 1 Q. B. 852; 63 J. P. 263; 33 Digest 67, 414). A person for whom a vote is given in an election of aldermen is not thereby "nominated" (Cambridge C. C. Election Petition, Fordham v. Webber, [1925] 2 K. B. 740; 89 J. P. 181; Digest Supp.).

(d) For the application of these definitions to elections of urban district councillors and of rural district councillors, see the Urban District Councillors Election Rules, ante, p. 2538, and the Rural District Councillors Election Rules, ante, p. 2558.

* * * * *

81. A municipal election shall be wholly avoided by such general corruption, bribery, treating, or intimidation at the election as would by the common law of Parliament avoid a parliamentary election. Avoidance of election for general corruption.

* * * * *

85. The votes of persons in respect of whom any corrupt practice is proved to have been committed at a municipal election shall be struck off on a scrutiny (a). Striking off votes.

(a) As to the striking off of the votes of persons guilty of illegal practices or payments, see the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884, s. 22, post, p. 4682.

86. . . . (a).

Personation.

(a) This section has been repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI, Pt. II., and replaced by ibid., s. 82 (1), ante, pp. 1194, 1274, 840.

Election Petitions.

87.—(1) A municipal election may be questioned by an election petition on the ground— Power to question municipal election by petition.

(a) That the election was as to the borough or ward wholly avoided by general bribery (a), treating (b), undue influence, or personation; or

(b) That the election was avoided by corrupt practices or offences against this Part committed at the election; or

(c) That the person whose election is questioned was at the time of the election disqualified (c); or

(d) That he was not duly elected by a majority of lawful votes (d).

(2) A municipal election shall not be questioned on any of those grounds except by an election petition (e).

(a) A single case of bribery avoids an election (Norwich Case, Birkbeck v. Bullard (1886), 54 L. T. 625; 20 Digest 87, 671). To offer a voter his travelling expenses if he will come and vote for a particular candidate is bribery (Ipswich Case, Packard v. Collings (1886), 54 L. T. 619; 20 Digest 78, 573).

(b) "Treating" is not the entertainment of equals by equals, but of an inferior by a superior with the object of securing the goodwill of the inferior (Norwich Case, Birkbeck v. Bullard, supra).

Note to
Section 87.

(c) At an election of councillors in a borough the returning officer does not decide upon the qualification of the candidate; that can only be done by petition under this section (Pritchard v. Bangor Corporation (1888), 13 App. Cas. 241; 52 J. P. 564; 20 Digest 123, 999). The disqualification here mentioned is one which existed at the time of the election. If a person becomes disqualified after election the proper remedy was formerly by quo warranto (Howes v. Turner (1876), 1 C. P. D. 670; 40 J. P. 680; see also R. v. Beer, [1903] 2 K. B. 693; 67 J. P. 326; 4 Digest 177, 1647); but see now L. G. A., 1933, s. 84, ante, p. 842.

(d) An election may also be questioned for illegal practices. See the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884, s. 25, post, p. 4683. A petition may be presented under this section against some only of the persons returned, though the ground of the petition is one affecting the validity of the election as a whole; and the court can in such petition declare the persons so petitioned against not to have been duly elected (Line v. Warren (1885), 14 Q. B. D. 548; 49 J. P. 516; 20 Digest 184, 1597).

A petition presented under sub-s. (1) (d) involves a scrutiny. Where a returning officer improperly allowed an objection to a nomination, it was held that a petition would lie under this head for, if the nomination had not been rejected, the votes might have been differently given (Budge v. Andrews (1878), 3 C. P. D. 510; 20 Digest 126, 1011). And a writ of prohibition or mandamus does not lie for the purpose of determining whether a returning officer has wrongly and illegally rejected the nomination paper of a candidate for a municipal election. The proper mode of determining this question is by petition (R. (O'Lehane) v. Dublin Town Clerk (1909), 43 Ir. L. T. 169). If an elector having notice or knowledge of the disqualification of a candidate wilfully votes for him, his vote is thrown away, but knowledge of the fact which creates a legal disqualification does not involve knowledge that the candidate is legally disqualified. In the case of Beresford-Hope v. Lady Sandhurst (1889), 23 Q. B. D. 79; 53 J. P. 805; 20 Digest 132, 1057, it was held that votes given for a woman at a county council election prior to the passing of the Sex Disqualification (Removal) Act, 1919 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 79), were thrown away. Votes given in favour of a candidate before the voters have notice of any facts disqualifying him for election cannot be treated by the returning officer as thrown away, and unless notice of disqualification has been given the candidate who obtains the minority cannot on petition claim the seat (Hobbs v. Morey, [1904] 1 K. B. 74; 68 J. P. 132; 20 Digest 125, 1004). In Boyce v. White (1905), 92 L. T. 240; 53 W. R. 430; 20 Digest 125, 1006, the petitioner and respondent were the only candidates for the office of town councillor. Both were nominated, but the respondent at the time of his nomination was absent from the United Kingdom, and no written consent by him to such nomination given one month before such nomination was ever produced. The petitioner was not aware of this fact till the day of the poll, when it was too late to print and circulate in the constituency a notice of the objection to the respondent's nomination. The respondent was declared elected. On petition it was held that the court could only declare the election void and not that the petitioner was elected.

(e) Where this section applies there was no remedy by quo warranto even before s. 84 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 842 (R. v. Morton, [1892] 1 Q. B. 39; 56 J. P. 105; 20 Digest 138, 1129; and see R. v. Miles, Ex parte Cole (1895), 59 J. P. 407; 64 L. J. Q. B. 420; 20 Digest 182, 1589).

Presentation of petition.

88.—(1) An election petition may be presented either by four or more persons who voted or had a right to vote at the election or by a person alleging himself to have been a candidate at the election (a).

(2) Any person whose election is questioned by the petition, and any returning officer of whose conduct a petition complains, may be made a respondent to the petition (b).

(3) The petition shall be in the prescribed form and shall be signed by the petitioner, and shall be presented in the prescribed manner to the High Court in the Queen's Bench Division, and the prescribed officer(c) shall send a copy thereof to the town clerk, who shall forthwith publish it in the borough.

(4) It shall be presented within twenty-one days after the day on which the election was held(d), except that if it complains of the election on the ground of corrupt practices(e), and specifically alleges that a payment of money or other reward has been made or promised since the election by a person elected at the election, or on his account or with his privity, in pursuance or furtherance of such corrupt practices, it may be presented at any time within twenty-eight days after the date of the alleged payment or promise, whether or not any other petition against that person has been previously presented or tried.

Note to
Section 88.

(a) If duly nominated a person may petition although in fact disqualified for election and nomination (Harford v. Linskey, ante, p. 4627).

(b) An unsuccessful candidate at an election cannot be made a respondent to a petition, although he coalesced for the purposes of the election with two successful candidates, so as to be responsible equally with them for any acts done by any of the three in furtherance of the common purpose (Maidenhead Case, Lovering v. Dawson (1875), L. R. 10 C. P. 726).

At a municipal election A. and B. were candidates for the office of councillor. A. obtained a majority of votes over B., and was declared elected, but refused to serve B. thereupon claimed to have been elected, and having made the necessary declaration acted on several occasions as councillor. A petition was presented against both A. and B., and both of them gave notice of their intention not to oppose the petition. No notice of A.'s disqualification was given to the electors. On an application by B. to the court that his name might be struck out of the petition, the court refused the application, holding that he was properly made a respondent (Yates v. Leach (1874), L. R. 9 C. P. 605; 38 J. P. 552; 20 Digest 183, 1594). As to making the returning officer a respondent, see Harmon v. Park (1880), 6 Q. B. D. 323; 45 J. P. 436; 20 Digest 183, 1596; Wilson v. Ingham (1895), 59 J. P. 614; 64 L. J. Q. B. 775; 20 Digest 139, 1140; Cirencester Case (1893), Day, 3.

(c) Prescribed here means prescribed by general rules made under this Part (s. 77, ante, p. 4626; s. 100, post, p. 4636); and see the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884, s. 34, post, p. 4688.

(d) The premature presentation of a petition does not nullify the petition, but is an irregularity which is capable of being waived by the person raising the objection (Re Grangemellon Election Petition, [1909] 2 I. R. 90; 20 Digest 184, g).

(e) For the corresponding provision as to illegal practices, see the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884, s. 25, post, p. 4683. That section also provides that any election petition presented within the time limited by the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, may, for the purpose of complaining of the election upon an allegation of an illegal practice, be amended with the leave of the High Court, within the time within which a petition complaining of the election on the ground of that illegal practice can, under that section, be presented. The court cannot after the period of twenty-one days here mentioned allow an amendment which would practically amount to a new petition, as by adding a charge of treating (Clark v. Lowley (1883), 47 J. P. 551; 52 L. J. Q. B. 321; 20 Digest 185, 1604).

89.—(1) At the time of presenting an election petition or within three days afterwards, the petitioner shall give security for all costs, charges, and expenses which may become payable by him to any witness summoned on his behalf, or to any respondent (a). Security for costs.

(2) The security shall be to such amount, not exceeding five hundred pounds, as the High Court, or a judge thereof, on summons, directs, and shall be given in the prescribed manner (b), either by a deposit of money, or by recognizance entered into by not more than four sureties, or partly in one way and partly in the other.

(3) Within five days after the presentation of the petition the petitioner shall in the prescribed manner (b) serve on the respondent a notice of the presentation of the petition, and of the nature of the proposed security, and a copy of the petition.

(4) Within five days after service of the notice the respondent may object in writing to any recognizance on the ground that any surety is insufficient or is dead, or cannot be found or ascertained for want of a sufficient description in the recognizance, or that a person named in the recognizance has not duly acknowledged the same.

(5) An objection to a recognizance shall be decided in the prescribed manner (c).

(6) If the objection is allowed, the petitioner may, within a further prescribed time not exceeding five days, remove it by a deposit in the prescribed manner of such sum of money as will, in the opinion of the court or officer having cognizance of the matter, make the security sufficient.

(7) If no security is given, as prescribed, or any objection is allowed and is not removed, as aforesaid, no further proceedings shall be had on the petition.

Note to
Section 89.

(a) The provisions of this section requiring security are imperative and absolute and apply equally whether the petitioner has or has not been admitted to take proceedings as a poor person under Order XVI., r. 22. R. S. C. (Everett v. Griffiths (No. 2), [1923] 1 K. B. 130; 87 J. P. 49; 20 Digest 184, 1599). As to appeal, see Everett v. Griffiths (No. 3), [1923] 1 K. B. 138; 87 J. P. 57; 20 Digest 186, 1620.

(b) See now (c) to s. 88, ante, p. 4629, and r. 26 of the rules made under s. 100, post, p. 4636, and set out, ante, p. 2528. Security need not be given for more than £500, although there are several respondents (Pease v. Norwood, Hull Case (1869), L. R. 4 C. P. 235; 33 J. P. 343; 20 Digest 155, 1284). By r. 36, ibid., ante, p. 2529, the petitioner or his agent must file an affidavit of the time and manner of the service immediately after such service. The observance of these provisions as to service of the petition is a condition precedent to the trial of the petition (Williams v. Tenby Corporation (1879), 5 C. P. D. 135; 44 J. P. 348; 20 Digest 184, 1598).

(c) See note (c) to s. 88, ante, p. 4629. See also rr. 27—35 of the rules made under s. 100, post, p. 4636, and set out, ante, p. 2528.

Petition at issue.

90. On the expiration of the time limited for making objections, or, after objection made, on the objection being disallowed or removed, whichever last happens, the petition shall be at issue.

Municipal election list.

91.—(1) The prescribed officer (a) shall as soon as may be make a list, in this Act referred to as the municipal election list, of all petitions at issue, placing them in the order in which they were presented, and shall keep at his office a copy of this list, open to inspection in the prescribed manner (b).

(2) The petitions shall, as far as conveniently may be, be tried in the order in which they stand in the list.

(3) Two or more candidates may be made respondents to the same petition, and their cases may be tried at the same time, but for the purpose of this Part the petition shall be deemed to be a separate petition against each respondent (c).

(4) Where more petitions than one are presented relating to the same election, or to elections held at the same time for different wards of the same borough, they shall be bracketed together in the list as one petition, but shall, unless the High Court otherwise directs, stand in the list in the place where the last of them would have stood if it had been the only petition relating to that election.

(a) See note (c) to s. 88, ante, p. 4629. As to inspection, see r. 39 of the rules made under s. 100, post, p. 4636, and set out, ante, p. 2529.

(b) See Line v. Warren, ante, p. 4628.

Constitution of election court.

92.—(1) An election petition shall be tried by an election court consisting of a barrister qualified and appointed as in this section provided, without a jury.

(2) A barrister shall not be qualified to constitute an election court if he is of less than fifteen years standing, or is a member of the Commons House of Parliament, or holds any office or place of profit under the Crown, other than that of recorder.

(3) A barrister shall not be qualified to constitute an election court for trial of an election petition relating to any borough for which he is recorder, or in which he resides, or which is included in a circuit of her Majesty's judges on which he practices as a barrister.

(4) As soon as may be after a municipal election list is made out the prescribed officer shall send a copy thereof to each of the judges for the time being on the rota for the trial of parliamentary election petitions . . . (a).

(5) If a commissioner to whom the trial of a petition is assigned, dies, or declines or becomes incapable to act, the said judges or two of them may assign the trial to be conducted or continued by any other of the commissioners appointed under this section.

(6) The election court shall for the purposes of the trial have the same powers and privileges as a judge on the trial of a parliamentary election petition, except that any fine or order of committal by the court may on motion by the person aggrieved be discharged or varied by the High Court, or in vacation by a judge thereof, on such terms, if any, as the High Court or judge thinks fit (b). Section 92.

(a) See the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884, s. 36 (2), post, p. 4689.

(b) The election court is a court of record. See R. v. Maidenhead Corporation, post, p. 4637—8. Orders under the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884, s. 28, post, p. 4685, cannot be varied under this sub-section. See sub-s. (7) of that section.

93.—(1) An election petition shall be tried in open court, and notice of the time and place of trial shall be given in the prescribed manner not less than seven days before the day of trial (a). Trial of election petitions.

(2) The place of trial shall be within the borough (b), except that the High Court may, on being satisfied that special circumstances exist rendering it desirable that the petition should be tried elsewhere, appoint some other convenient place for the trial.

(3) The election court may in its discretion adjourn the trial from time to time (c), and from any one place to any other place within the borough or place where it is held.

(4) At the conclusion of the trial the election court shall determine whether the person whose election is complained of, or any and what other person, was duly elected, or whether the election was void, and shall forthwith certify in writing the determination to the High Court, and the determination so certified shall be final to all intents as to the matters at issue on the petition.

(5) Where a charge is made in a petition of any corrupt practice or offence against this Part having been committed at the election the court shall, in addition to the certificate, and at the same time, report in writing to the High Court as follows :

- (a) Whether any corrupt practice or offence against this Part has or has not been proved to have been committed by or with the knowledge and consent of any candidate at the election, and the nature of the corrupt practice or offence ;
- (b) The names of all persons (if any) proved at the trial to have been guilty of any corrupt practice or offence against this Part ;
- (c) Whether any corrupt practices have, or whether there is reason to believe that any corrupt practices have, extensively prevailed at the election in the borough or in any ward thereof (c).

(6) The election court may at the same time make a special report to the High Court as to any matters arising in the course of the trial, an account of which ought, in the judgment of the election court, to be submitted to the High Court.

(7) If, on the application of any party to a petition made in the prescribed manner to the High Court, it appears to the High Court that the case raised by the petition can be conveniently stated as a special case, the High Court may direct the same to be stated accordingly, and any such special case shall be heard before the High Court, and the decision of the High Court shall be final (e).

(8) If it appears to the election court on the trial of a petition that any question of law as to the admissibility of evidence, or otherwise, requires further consideration by the High Court, the election court may postpone the granting of a certificate until the question has been determined by the Section 93. High Court, and for this purpose may reserve any such question, as questions may be reserved by a judge on a trial at nisi prius (f).

(9) On the trial of a petition, unless the election court otherwise directs, any charge of a corrupt practice or offence against this Part may be gone into, and evidence in relation thereto received before any proof has been given of agency on behalf of any candidate in respect of the corrupt practice or offence.

(10) On the trial of a petition complaining of an undue election and claiming the office for some person, the respondent may give evidence to prove that that person was not duly elected, in the same manner as if he had presented a petition against the election of that person (g).

(11) The trial of a petition shall be proceeded with notwithstanding that the respondent has ceased to hold the office his election to which is questioned by the petition.

(12) A copy of any certificate or report made to the High Court on the trial of a petition, and, in the case of a decision by the High Court on a special case, a statement of the decision, shall be sent by the High Court to the Secretary of State.

(13) A copy of any such certificate and a statement of any such decision shall also be certified by the High Court, under the hands of two or more judges thereof, to the town clerk of the borough.

(a) See rr. 40—43 of the rules made under s. 100, post, p. 4636, and set out, ante, p. 2529.

(b) That is, the urban district not being a borough, or the rural district. Where the allegations of fact in a petition are not in dispute, but are specifically admitted by the respondent, so as to render it unnecessary at the trial to call witnesses from the district in which the election took place, the court may order the petition to be tried in London, on the ground that special circumstances exist which render it desirable that the petition should be tried elsewhere than in the county or division where the election took place (Arch v. Bentinck (1887), 18 Q. B. D. 548; 20 Digest 163, 1353). The facts that a scrutiny is the only question to be tried, or that it would be less expensive to try elsewhere, are not "special circumstances" (Cirencester Case, Lawson v. Chester-Master, [1893] 1 Q. B. 245; 57 J. P. 806; 20 Digest 163, 1352; see also Teukesbury Case, Collins v. Price (1880), 5 C. P. D. 544; 20 Digest 162, 1350).

(c) See, however, the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884, s. 27, post, p. 4684.

A formal adjournment is not necessary. See r. 45 of the rules made under s. 100, post, p. 4636, and set out, ante, p. 2529.

(d) The court must further report as to illegal practices in manner prescribed by the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884, s. 8 (2), post, p. 4674. As to the form of the report, see Grant v. Pagham Overseers (1877), 3 C. P. D. 80; 42 J. P. 88; 20 Digest 10, 37; and as to its exclusive effect, see cases cited in the note to Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883, s. 38, post, p. 4693.

(e) As to the mode of application, see r. 48 of the rules made under s. 100, post, p. 4636, and set out, ante, p. 2530. Notwithstanding this sub-section, appeal, if leave be given, lies from a judgment of the King's Bench Division to the Court of Appeal (Line v. Warren, ante, p. 4628; and see Beresford-Hope v. Lady Sandhurst, ante, p. 4628) followed in Everett v. Griffiths (No. 3), [1923] 1 K. B. 138; 87 J. P. 57; 20 Digest 186, 1620). If no leave be given no appeal lies (Unwin v. McMullen, [1891] 1 Q. B. 694; 55 J. P. 582; 20 Digest 186, 1619; Pontefract Case, Shaw v. Reckitt, [1893] 2 Q. B. 59; 57 J. P. 805; 20 Digest 157, 1294; Everett v. Griffiths (No. 3), supra).

If leave to appeal be refused by the High Court, possibly it may be given by the Court of Appeal under Judicature Acts, 1873—1925 (13, 8, 4, 12, 4, 8, 9, 13 Halsbury's Statutes 205, 301, 127, 509, 146, 367, 391, 209).

(f) See Stepney Case, Isaacson v. Durant (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 54; 4 O'M. & H. 34; Digest Supp.; Thornbury Division, Gloucestershire Case, Ackers v. Howard (1886), 4 O'M. & H. 65, on appeal 16 Q. B. D. 739; 50 J. P. 519; Digest Supp.; Londonderry Case (1886), 4 O'M. & H. 96, at p. 103; Pembroke Election Petition, [1908] 2 I. R. 433; 20 Digest 115, 915 vii.

(g) In this case the respondent must deliver to the Master six days before the day appointed for trial, a list of the objections to the election upon which he intends to rely, and the Master is to allow inspection and office copies of such list to all parties concerned; and no evidence is to be given by the respondent of any objection not specified in the list, except by leave of the High Court. See r. 8 of the rules made under s. 100, post, p. 4636, and set out, ante, p. 2526

Section 93.

94.—(1) Witnesses at the trial of an election petition shall be summoned and sworn in the same manner, as nearly as circumstances admit, as witnesses at a trial à nisi prius, and . . . (a). Witnesses.

(2) On the trial the election court may, by order in writing, require any person who appears to the court to have been concerned in the election to attend as a witness, and any person refusing to obey the order shall be guilty of contempt of court.

(3) The court may examine any person so required to attend or being in court although he is not called and examined by any party to the petition.

(4) A witness may, after his examination by the court, be cross-examined by or on behalf of the petitioner and respondent or either of them (b).

(9) The reasonable expenses incurred by any person in appearing to give evidence at the trial of an election petition, according to the scale allowed to witnesses on the trial of civil actions at the assizes, may be allowed to him by a certificate of the election court or of the prescribed officer, and if the witness was called and examined by the court, shall be deemed part of the expenses of providing a court, but otherwise shall be deemed costs of the petition.

(a) See also r. 54 of the rules made under s. 100, post, p. 4636, and set out, ante, p. 2530. The concluding words of the sub-section were repealed by the Perjury Act, 1911 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 772).

(b) Sub-sections (5)—(8), inclusive, of this section were repealed by the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884, s. 38.

95.—(1) A petitioner shall not withdraw an election petition without the leave of the election court or High Court on special application, made in the prescribed manner, and at the prescribed time and place (a). Withdrawal of petition.

(2) The application shall not be made until the prescribed notice of the intention to make it has been given in the borough.

(3) On the hearing of the application any person who might have been a petitioner in respect of the election may apply to the court to be substituted as a petitioner, and the court may, if it thinks fit, substitute him accordingly.

(4) If the proposed withdrawal is in the opinion of the court induced by any corrupt bargain or consideration, the court may by order direct that the security given on behalf of the original petitioner shall remain as security for any costs that may be incurred by the substituted petitioner, and that to the extent of the sum named in the security, the original petitioner and his sureties shall be liable to pay the costs of the substituted petitioner.

(5) If the court does not so direct, then security to the same amount as would be required in the case of a new petition, and subject to the like conditions, shall be given on behalf of the substituted petitioner before he proceeds with his petition and within the prescribed time after the order of substitution.

(6) Subject as aforesaid, a substituted petitioner shall, as nearly as may be, stand in the same position and be subject to the same liabilities as the original petitioner.

(7) If a petition is withdrawn, the petitioner shall be liable to pay the costs of the respondent.

(8) Where there are more petitioners than one, an application to withdraw a petition shall not be made except with the consent of all the petitioners.

(a) See further as to the withdrawal of a petition, the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884, s. 26, post, p. 4684.

Note to
Section 95.

The form of notice of application to withdraw a petition is prescribed by r. 58 of the rules made under s. 100, post, p. 4636, and set out, ante, p. 2531. The notice of application is to be left at the Master's office, and copies are to be served on the respondent and on the town clerk or clerk of the council, as the case may be, and published in the county or borough to which the petition relates. See rr. 59, 60, of the rules made under s. 100, post, p. 4636, and set out, ante, p. 2531.

The petitioners, who had presented a petition and subsequently found out their agent's report upon which the petition was based was untrustworthy, were allowed by the court to withdraw the petition, the Treasury having ascertained by special inquiry that there was no reliable evidence to support it, and having received from the petitioners copies of the reports and details of the subsequent inquiries. On a motion for leave to withdraw a petition, the court has a discretion as to the costs of the parties, and may order them to be paid by the petitioners on the higher scale, and taxed as between solicitor and client. They cannot give costs to the Public Prosecutor (Devonport Case, Pascoe v. Puleston (1886), 50 J. P. 134; 54 L. T. 733; 20 Digest 174, 1492).

After a municipal election a petition was presented by an unsuccessful candidate, claiming that he was returned by a majority of lawful votes. The mayor, to save expense, induced the petitioner and the returned candidate to submit the question to the arbitration of the town clerk, who was to recount the votes. On the award being against the petitioner, he asked leave to withdraw the petition, and the court allowed him to do so on payment of the costs, the Public Prosecutor not opposing (Hythe (Borough) Municipal Election, Re, Mallam v. Bean (1887), 51 J. P. 231; 3 T. L. R. 516; 20 Digest 187, 1621). See also Lichfield Case (1892), 9 T. L. R. 92; and Halifax Case, Arnold v. Shaw (1893), 9 T. L. R. 563.

of petition.

96.—(1) An election petition shall be abated by the death of a sole petitioner or of the survivor of several petitioners.

(2) The abatement of a petition shall not affect the liability of the petitioner or of any other person to the payment of costs previously incurred.

(3) On the abatement of a petition the prescribed notice thereof shall be given in the borough, and, within the prescribed time after the notice is given, any person who might have been a petitioner in respect of the election may apply to the election court or High Court in the prescribed manner and at the prescribed time and place to be substituted as a petitioner; and the court may, if it thinks fit, substitute him accordingly (a).

(4) Security shall be given on behalf of a petitioner so substituted, as in the case of a new petition (b).

(a) As to the notice, see rr. 63, 64 of the rules made under s. 100, post, p. 4636, and set out, ante, p. 2532.

(b) See s. 89, ante, p. 4629.

Withdrawal and substitution of respondents.

97.—(1) If before the trial of an election petition a respondent other than a returning officer—

(a) Dies, resigns, or otherwise ceases to hold the office to which the petition relates; or

(b) Gives the prescribed notice that he does not intend to oppose the petition;

the prescribed notice thereof shall be given in the borough, and within the prescribed time after the notice is given any person who might have been a petitioner in respect of the election may apply to the election court or High Court to be admitted as a respondent to oppose the petition, and shall be admitted accordingly, except that the number of persons so admitted shall not exceed three (a).

(2) A respondent who has given the prescribed notice that he does not intend to oppose the petition shall not be allowed to appear or act as a party against the petition in any proceedings thereon.

(a) See rr. 64—67 of the rules made under s. 100, post, p. 4636, and set out, ante p. 2532, relating to the prescribed notice, time, etc. The returning officer may be a respondent if the petition complains of his conduct.

A respondent may cease to hold office through disqualification. The name of a respondent will not be struck out of a petition merely because he has given the prescribed notice under this section. See Yates v. Leach, ante, p. 4629.

Note to
Section 97.

98.—(1) All costs, charges, and expenses of and incidental to the presentation of an election petition, and the proceedings consequent thereon, except such as are by this Act otherwise provided for, shall be defrayed by the parties to the petition in such manner and proportions as the election court determines; and in particular any costs, charges, or expenses which in the opinion of the court have been caused by vexatious conduct, unfounded allegations, or unfounded objections on the part of either of the petitioner or of the respondent, and any needless expense incurred or caused on the part of petitioner or respondent, may be ordered to be defrayed by the parties by whom it has been incurred or caused, whether they are or not on the whole successful (a). Costs on election petitions.

(2) The costs may be taxed in the prescribed manner but according to the same principles as costs between solicitor and client in an action in the High Court, and may be recovered as the costs of such an action, or as otherwise prescribed (b).

(3) If a petitioner neglects or refuses for three months after demand to pay to any person summoned as a witness on his behalf, or to the respondent, any sum certified to be due to him for his costs, charges, and expenses, and the neglect or refusal is, within one year after the demand, proved to the satisfaction of the High Court, every person who has under this Act entered into a recognizance relating to the petition shall be held to have made default in the recognizance, and the prescribed officer shall thereon certify the recognizance to be forfeited, and it shall be dealt with as a forfeited recognizance relating to a parliamentary election petition (c).

(a) An overloaded petition will be visited with costs, even if it is successful (Norwich Case, Birkbeck v. Bullard (1886), 54 L. T. 625; 20 Digest 87, 671). When a petition is wholly unfounded the court may order the petitioner to pay the costs of the Public Prosecutor (Lambeth, Kennington Division Case, Crossman v. Davis (1886), 54 L. T. 628; 20 Digest 117, 944). In certain cases the parties may be ordered to pay the expenses of the election court. See s. 101, post, p. 4637.

The barrister appointed to try the petition has an absolute discretion over the costs. In a case where the petitioners had improperly made an unsuccessful candidate a respondent, it was held that they could not object that he was not a party to the petition so as to deprive the barrister of jurisdiction to make an order upon them for his costs (Maidenhead Case, Lovering v. Dawson (1875), L. R. 10 C. P. 726).

As to the costs on withdrawal of a petition, see Devonport Case, Pascoe v. Puleston, ante, p. 4634.

A mistake occurred in the counting of votes in a parish council election in which there were nineteen candidates of whom nine were declared to be duly elected. Two of the defeated presented a petition against the return of two of the successful candidates, and the returning officer and his deputy were joined as respondents to the petition. The petition was not opposed. By order, a recount was held and a special case stated for the decision of the High Court. The Court made a declaration that the petitioners were duly elected and ordered the deputy returning officer to pay £10 towards the cost of the petition and the subsequent proceedings (Rainham Parish Council Case (1919), 83 J. P. 267; 20 Digest 187, 1635).

(b) So much of this sub-section as relates to the principles of taxation was repealed by the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884, Sched. II. See now s. 29 (3) of that Act, post, p. 4687. As to the mode of taxation and recovery of the cost, see r. 68 of the rules made under s. 100, post, p. 4636, and set out, ante, p. 2532, and Pare v. Hartshorne (1875), 31 L. T. 486; 23 W. R. 138.

(c) The prescribed officer is the Master. See r. 1 of the rules made under s. 100, post, p. 4636, and set out ante, p. 2524. A forfeited recognizance relating to a parliamentary election petition is dealt with in manner provided by the Parliamentary Elections Act, 1868, s. 42 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 421).

99.—(1) The town clerk (a) shall provide proper accommodation for holding the election court; and any expenses incurred by him for the purposes of this section shall be paid out of the borough fund or borough rate. Reception of and attendance on the election court.

Section 99.

(2) All chief and head constables, superintendents of police, head-boroughs, gaolers, constables, and bailiffs shall give their assistance to the election court in the execution of its duties, and if any gaoler or officer of a prison makes default in receiving or detaining a prisoner committed thereto in pursuance of this Part, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds for every day during which the default continues.

(3) The election court may employ officers and clerks as prescribed.

(4) A shorthand writer (b) shall attend at the trial of an election petition, and shall be sworn by the election court faithfully and truly to take down the evidence given at the trial. He shall take down the evidence at length. A transcript of the notes of the evidence taken by him shall, if the election court so directs, accompany the certificate of the election court. His expenses, according to a prescribed scale, shall be treated as part of the expenses incurred in receiving the court.

(a) That is, the clerk to the urban district council, or the clerk to the rural district council. See ante, pp. 2539—40, 2559—60.

(b) See r. 52 of the rules made under s. 100, infra, and set out, ante, p. 2530.

Rules of procedure and jurisdiction.

100.—(1) The judges for the time being on the rota for the trial of parliamentary election petitions may from time to time make, revoke, and alter general rules for the effectual execution of this Part, and of the intention and object thereof, and the regulation of the practice, procedure, and costs of municipal election petitions, and the trial thereof, and the certifying and reporting thereon (a).

(2) All such rules shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament within three weeks after they are made if Parliament is then sitting, and if not, within three weeks after the beginning of the then next session of Parliament, and shall, while in force, have effect as if enacted in this Act.

(3) Subject to the provisions of this Act, and of the rules made under it, the principles, practice, and rules for the time being observed in the case of parliamentary election petitions, and in particular the principles and rules with regard to agency and evidence, and to a scrutiny, and to the declaring any person elected in the room of any other person declared to have been not duly elected, shall be observed, as far as may be, in the case of a municipal election petition.

(4) The High Court shall, subject to this Act, have the same powers, jurisdiction, and authority with respect to a municipal election petition and the proceedings thereon as if the petition were an ordinary action within its jurisdiction (b).

(5) The duties to be performed by the prescribed officer under this Part shall be performed by the prescribed officer of the High Court.

(6) The general rules in force at the commencement of this Act with respect to matters within this Part shall, until superseded by rules made under this section, and subject to any amendment thereof by rules so made, have effect, with the necessary modifications, as if made under this section.

(a) And see also Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884, s. 30, post, p. 4687. The rules now in force are set out, ante, at pp. 2524 et seq.

(b) The High Court has no power to entertain an appeal against the decision of a commissioner appointed to inquire into alleged corrupt or illegal practices at an election except on points of law reserved for its decision by way of a case stated by the commissioner (Ex parte Ayres (1886), 54 L. T. 296). A petition against the election of members of a local board alleged undue influence by the respondents and their agents, and that corrupt and illegal practices extensively prevailed. The commissioner reported to the High Court that no corrupt practice had been proved against the respondents or otherwise, that illegal practices extensively prevailed, and that the respondents had been guilty of illegal practices; and he certified that the respondents had not been duly elected. On a motion for a new trial or a prohibition, on the ground that the commissioner had exceeded his jurisdiction, it was held that the report was not in excess of the jurisdiction. Quære, whether the court has jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from a commissioner. Per STEPHEN, J.: The jurisdiction, if any, ought only to be exercised under extraordinary circumstances, and when necessary that justice should be done (Goole Election Petition, Marsland v. Hickman (1886), 2 T. L. R. 398; 20 Digest 182, 1591). See also Preece v. Harding, post, p. 4693; Pontefract Case, Shaw v. Reckitt, ante, p. 4632; Pembroke Election Petition, [1908] 2 I. R. 433; 20 Digest 182, q.

Note to
Section 100.

101.—(1) The remuneration and allowances to be paid to a commissioner for his services in respect of the trial of an election petition, and to any officers, clerks, or shorthand writers employed under this Part, shall be fixed by a scale made and varied by the election judges on the rota for the trial of parliamentary election petitions, with the approval of the Treasury. The remuneration and allowances shall be paid in the first instance by the Treasury, and shall be repaid to the Treasury, on their certificate, out of the borough fund or borough rate (a). Expenses of
election court.

(2) But the election court may in its discretion order that such remuneration and allowances, or the expenses incurred by a town clerk (b) for receiving the election court, shall be repaid, wholly or in part, to the Treasury or the town clerk, as the case may be, in the cases, by the persons, and in the manner following (namely):

- (a) When in the opinion of the election court a petition is frivolous and vexatious by the petitioner;
- (b) When in the opinion of the election court a respondent has been personally guilty of corrupt practices at the election, by that respondent.

(3) An order so made for the repayment of any sum by a petitioner or respondent may be enforced as an order for payment of costs; but a deposit made or security given under this Part shall not be applied for any such repayment until all costs and expenses payable by the petitioner or respondent to any party to the petition have been satisfied (c).

(a) The expenses will be now paid out of the general rate or general rate fund in cases of petitions against the election of a member of a borough council or of an urban district council or of a rural district council (L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 735. See ante, pp. 2539—40, 2559—60.

(b) See note (a) to s. 99, ante, p. 4636.

(c) Upon the trial of a petition against the return of a borough councillor under the Corrupt Practices (Municipal Elections) Act, 1872, the barrister in delivering judgment said that he found the councillor guilty of personal bribery, and that all the costs of the inquiry were to be borne by him, and made an order in writing for the payment by the councillor of certain costs under s. 19 of that Act. The written order made no provision for the remuneration and allowances to the barrister and other persons under s. 22 (corresponding to the text). The Treasury paid the amount of such remuneration and allowances, and certified the payment to the borough treasurer, and required him to repay them the amount out of the borough fund. A rate was accordingly made and levied. The Treasury afterwards, on receiving from the barrister a letter that he had always intended to visit all the costs upon the councillor, and had said so in giving judgment, cancelled their certificate, and the borough corporation abandoned the rate and returned the sums levied to the ratepayers. Afterwards the Treasury, finding that the barrister had made no written order for the payment of remuneration and allowances, issued a fresh certificate requiring the borough treasurer to pay them the amount out of the borough fund or rates. These facts being found upon a return to a mandamus commanding the treasurer to repay the Treasury, it was held that no valid order had been made by the barrister for the payment of the remuneration and allowances by the councillor; that the election court was a court of record, and that neither the High Court nor the Court of Appeal on the return could amend the order so as to make it include such payment; that the act of the Treasury in certifying was not a judicial act, and that they had the power to make a second certificate, and were entitled to a peremptory mandamus compelling the treasurer to repay to them the amount of such remuneration and allowances out of the borough fund or rates, and compelling the Note to Section 101. corporation to order such amount to be levied by a borough rate (R. v. Maidenhead Corporation (1882), 9 Q. B. D. 494; 46 J. P. 724; 20 Digest 181, 1586).

Acts done pending a petition not invalidated.

102. Where a candidate who has been elected to a corporate office is, by a certificate of an election court or a decision of the High Court, declared not to have been duly elected, acts done by him in execution of the office, before the time when the certificate or decision is certified to the town clerk, shall not be invalidated by reason of that declaration.

Provisions as to elections in the room of persons unseated on petition.

103. Where on an election petition the election of any person to a corporate office has been declared void, and no other person has been declared elected in his room, a new election shall be held to supply the vacancy in the same manner as on a casual vacancy (a); and for the purposes of the election any duties to be performed by a mayor, alderman, or other officer, shall, if he has been declared not elected, be performed by a deputy, or other person who might have acted for him if he had been incapacitated by illness.

(a) In the case of urban district councils or of rural district councils there must be a new election. See ante, pp. 2539, 2559.

104. [This section has been repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. II., and replaced by ibid., Sched. II., Pt. III., para. 53, ante, pp. 1194, 1274, 1226.]

Borough Bridges.

Borough Bridges.

Maintenance of borough
bridges.

119(a).—(1) Every bridge which is either wholly or in part in a borough and which the borough and not the county wherein the borough is situate is legally bound to maintain or repair shall, as to the whole of the bridge if it is wholly in the borough, or as to such part only as is in the borough, be maintained, altered, widened, repaired, improved, or rebuilt under the sole management and control of the council (b).

(2) For that purpose the council shall have all the powers which the justices of a county have with respect to a county bridge (c), but the notices required in the case of a county bridge shall not be required in the case of a borough bridge.

(3) . . . (d).

(a) This section ceased to have effect as from April 1st, 1930, as respects any bridge which carries a county road (s. 29 (4), L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903). As to what are county roads, see s. 29 (1), ibid., and notes thereto, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903. Bridges carrying county roads are within the definition of "county roads" in that Act and are therefore maintainable by the county council unless "claimed" under s. 32, ibid., Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 906.

(b) Such a bridge was a street within the definition contained in s. 4 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4336, and is, a fortiori, a street within the definition in the P. H. A., 1936, s. 343 (1), ante, p. 713.

(c) Transferred to county councils by s. 3 (viii) of the L. G. A., 1888, post, p. 4722, and see the Highways and Bridges Act, 1891, post, p. 4833.

(d) Sub-ss. (3) and (4) were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. II., and replaced by ibid., s. 185, ante, pp. 1194, 1274, 1013.

PART VI.

Section 136.

CHARITABLE AND OTHER TRUSTS AND POWERS.

* * * * *

Local Acts.Local Acts.

136.—(1) The trustees appointed or acting by or under any local Act of Parliament for the time being in force, for paving, lighting, supplying with water or gas, cleansing, watching, regulating, or improving, a borough, or any part thereof, or for providing or maintaining a cemetery or market in or for a borough, or any part thereof, whether in any such case their powers under the local Act do or do not extend beyond the borough, may, if they think fit, at a meeting called for this purpose, transfer to the municipal corporation of the borough, with the consent of the council but not otherwise, all the rights, powers, estates, property, and liabilities for the time being vested in or imposed on the trustees under the local Act.

Transfer of powers of local authorities to municipal corporations.

(2) The transfer shall be made in writing under the common seal of the trustees if they are a corporation, and if not, then by deed executed by the trustees, or by any two of them acting by their authority and on their behalf.

(3) On the transfer being made, the municipal corporation shall become and be the trustees for executing by the council the powers and provisions of the local Act; and all the rights, powers, estates, and property vested in the transferring trustees shall vest in the corporation; and all the liabilities and obligations of the transferring trustees shall be transferred to and borne by the corporation, and the transferring trustees shall be discharged therefrom (a).

(a) See also s. 132 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 924.

137.—(1) Where at the passing of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1835, there was a local Act of Parliament for lighting part of a borough then incorporated, the council may, if they think fit, make an order that any specified part of the borough not within the provisions of any such local Act shall, after a day fixed in the order, be within those provisions; and after that day the part so specified shall be within those provisions, as far as relates to lighting, or to any rate authorised to be levied for lighting.

Power for council to extend local lighting Act.

(2) But the part so specified shall be lighted in like manner as those parts of the borough which before the making of the order were within those provisions; and any rate raised for the purpose of defraying the expenses of lighting the part so specified shall not exceed the average expense in the pound of lighting the other parts of the borough (a).

(a) See ss. 161—163 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4445—4451.

138. Everything provided under any local Act of Parliament in force on the twentieth of August, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-six, to be done exclusively by a particular or limited number, class, or description of the members of any body corporate named in the Schedules to the Municipal Corporations Act, 1835, the continuance of which was not inconsistent with the provisions of that Act, and everything provided in any such local Act to be done by the justices, or by some particular class or description, or members of such body corporate, being justices, at a court of quarter sessions, which did not relate to the business of a court of criminal or civil judicature (a), if the same respectively has been lawfully continued to be done up to the commencement of this Act by the council, or a committee thereof, shall be

Time.

Computation of time.

Time.

230.—(1) Where by this Act any limited time from or after any date or event is appointed or allowed for the doing of any act or the taking of any proceeding, then in the computation of that limited time the same shall be taken as exclusive of the day of that date or of the happening of that event, and as commencing at the beginning of the next following day ; and the act or proceeding shall be done or taken at the latest on the last day of the limited time as so computed, unless the last day is a Sunday, Christmas Day, Good Friday, or Monday or Tuesday in Easter week, or a day appointed for public fast, humiliation, or thanksgiving, in which case any act or proceeding shall be considered as done or taken in due time if it is done or taken on the next day afterwards, not being one of the days in this section specified.

(2) Where by this Act any act or proceeding is directed or allowed to be done or taken on a certain day, then if that day happens to be one of the days in this section specified, the act or proceeding shall be considered as done or taken in due time if it is done or taken on the next day afterwards, not being one of the days in this section specified.

(3) Where by this Act any act or proceeding is directed or allowed to be done or taken within any time not exceeding seven days, the days in this section specified shall not be reckoned in the computation of such time (a).

Substitution in former Acts.

242.—(1) In the several enactments described in Part I. of the Ninth Schedule, a reference to this Act shall be deemed to be substituted for a reference to the Municipal Corporations Act, 1835, and any Act amending it.

(2) In each of the enactments described in Part II. of the Ninth Schedule, there shall be substituted for the respective provisions of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1835, in that part mentioned in connection therewith, such provision of this Act as is also mentioned in connection therewith.

(3) Where any Act passed before this Act, and not specified in the First Section 242. or in the Ninth Schedule, refers to the Municipal Corporations Act, 1835, or any Act amending it, or to boroughs or corporations subject to that Act or any Act amending it, the reference shall be deemed to be to this Act or to the corresponding provision of this Act, or to boroughs or corporations subject to this Act (as the case may require).

(4) All enactments to which this section relates shall, except as in this section provided, continue to operate as if this Act had not been passed.

THE ELECTRIC LIGHTING ACT, 1882.

(45 & 46 VICT. c. 56) (a).

An Act to facilitate and regulate the supply of Electricity for Lighting and other purposes in Great Britain and Ireland. [18th August, 1882.]

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited for all purposes as "The Electric Lighting Act, 1882."

Note to
Section 1.

(a) This Act is included in this Appendix, as it confers important powers upon urban and rural district councils. It and two amending Acts of 1888, post, p. 4700, and 1909, post, p. 5096, constitute "The Electric Lighting Acts, 1888 to 1909"; they are supplemented by the Electric Lighting Clauses Act, 1899, post, p. 4949. Important amendments in the law as to the supply of electricity have been made by the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5243; the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1922, Vol. V., post; the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, Vol. V., post; the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1928, Vol. V., post; the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1933, Vol. V., post; the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1935, Vol. V. and 28 Halsbury's Statutes 51; and the Electricity Supply (Meters) Act, 1936, Vol. V. and 29 Halsbury's Statutes 133.

By s. 39 of the 1919 Act, post, p. 5265, and the Ministry of Transport (Electricity Supply) Order, 1920, all the powers and duties of the Board of Trade under the said Act of 1919 or the Electric Lighting Acts, or the orders and regulations made thereunder, or any local Act relating to the supply of electricity, or any enactment relating to matters incidental to such supply have been transferred to the Minister of Transport. By s. 1 of that Act, post, p. 5243, provision was made for the appointment of Electricity Commissioners for promoting, regulating, and supervising the supply of electricity. Power was given to the Electricity Commissioners to provisionally determine that separate electricity districts shall be formed, and to approve or make schemes for the improvement of the existing organisation for the supply of electricity in such districts and the establishment of joint electricity authorities, but in effect these objects could only be fulfilled upon the agreement of the parties concerned. By the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 792, a Central Electricity Board is set up and invested with the direction of the generation of energy and responsibility for a network of main transmission lines interconnecting the large generating stations from which the whole supply of the country is ultimately to be produced. All energy produced will eventually belong to the Board who will arrange for its distribution in the most economical manner. The probable result of the Act will be that no more orders will be made authorising the establishment of further undertakings except in accordance with the provisions of the Act or schemes made thereunder. Important amendments of the Electric Lighting Acts are also made. An endeavour has been made to draw attention to all these alterations in the law in the notes to the various sections of the existing Acts, the provisions of which are affected by such alterations.

By s. 40 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5265, the Electric Lighting Acts, 1882 to 1909, and the Act of 1919, may be cited together as the Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1882 to 1919, and those Acts and the Supply Acts of 1922, Vol. V., post, 1926 and 1928, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 792, 826, are to be construed together as one Act and may be cited as the Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1882 to 1928 (s. 2, Electricity (Supply) Act, 1928). Special orders under the Electricity (Supply) Acts may be granted to statutory gas companies by the Electricity Commissioners (Statutory Gas Companies) (Electricity Supply Powers) Act, 1925, Vol. V., post), or by the Minister of Transport (s. 49, Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 821).

2. The provisions of this Act shall apply to every local authority (a), Application of Act. company, or person who may by this Act or any licence or Provisional Order (b) granted under this Act, or by any special Act to be hereafter passed, be authorised to supply electricity within any area (in this Act referred to as "the undertakers") and to every undertaking so authorised, except so far as may be expressly provided by any such special Act; and every such licence, Provisional Order, and special Act, is in this Act included in the expression "licence, Order, or special Act."

(a) See the definition of this term in s. 31, post, p. 4658. It includes urban and rural sanitary authorities. Licences are practically obsolete. It became usual to apply for a Provisional Order under s. 4, post, p. 4645, but see now the next note.

(b) Anything which could be effected by a Provisional Order may now be effected by a Special Order or (in the case of a joint electricity authority) by an order, and references in this Act to provisional orders now include references to such a special order or order except as regards paragraphs (1) to (4) of s. 4 (see s. 26 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5260).

3. The Board of Trade (a) may from time to time license any local authority as defined by this Act (b), or any company or person, to supply electricity under this Act for any public or private purposes (c) within any area (d), subject to the following provisions: Granting of licences authorising the supply of electricity.

Section 3.

- (1) The consent of every local authority (b) having jurisdiction within the area or any part of the area within which a supply is licensed to be furnished shall be required to the application for a licence, which consent such local authority is hereby authorised to give, with such conditions (if any) as, subject to the approval of the Board of Trade (a), the local authority may prescribe :
- (2) A licence shall be for any period not exceeding seven years, but may, at or after the expiration of such licence, be renewed from time to time for a like period with such consent as above mentioned upon such terms and conditions as the Board of Trade (a) may determine :
- (3) "Public purposes" shall mean lighting any street or any place belonging to or subject to the control of the local authority, or any church or registered place of public worship, or any hall or building belonging to or subject to the control of any public authority, or any public theatre, but shall not include any other purpose to which electricity may be applied :
- (4) "Private purposes" shall include any purposes whatever to which electricity may for the time being be applicable, not being public purposes, except the transmission of any telegram (e) :
- (5) Every local authority, company, or person applying for a licence shall publish notice of their application by public advertisement in such manner and including such particulars as the Board of Trade (a) may from time to time direct or approve (f) ; and such licence shall not be granted by the Board of Trade (a) . . . (g) until opportunity has been given to all parties interested to make representations or objections to the Board of Trade (a) with reference to the application :
- (6) No application for a licence shall be made by any local authority except in pursuance of a resolution to be passed at a special meeting of the local authority, and such special meeting shall only be held after one month's previous notice of the same and of the purpose thereof has been given in the manner in which notices of meetings of such local authority are usually given (h) :
- (7) A licence may, subject to the provisions of this Act, be granted to a local authority authorising them to supply electricity within any area although the same or some part thereof may not be included within their own district :
- (8) The licence may make such regulations as to the limits within which and the conditions under which a supply of electricity is to be compulsory or permissive, and for enforcing the performance by the licensees of their duties in relation to such supply, and for the revocation of the licence where the licensees fail to perform such duties, and generally may contain such regulations and conditions as the Board of Trade (a) may think expedient : (i)
- (9) Where in any area or part of an area in which any undertakers are authorised to supply electricity under any licence the undertakers are not themselves the local authority, the licence may contain any provisions and restrictions for enabling the local authority within whose jurisdiction such area or part of an area may be to exercise any of the powers of the undertakers under this Act with respect to the breaking up of any street repairable by such local authority within such area or part of an area (k), and the alteration of the position of any pipes or wires being under such street (l), and not being the pipes or wires of the undertakers, on behalf and at the expense of the undertakers, and for limiting the powers and liabilities of the undertakers in relation thereto, which the Board of Trade (a) may think expedient (m). Section 3.

4. The Board of Trade (a) may, from time to time, by Provisional Order (b) Granting of Provisional Orders authorising the supply of electricity. authorise any local authority (c), company, or person to supply electricity (d) for any public or private purposes (e) within any area (f) without requiring such consents as are required to the granting a licence under this Act (g), and for such period, whether limited or unlimited, as the Board of Trade (a) may think proper, but in all other respects subject to the like provisions as in the last section contained with respect to licences, and subject also to the following provisions:

- (1) No Provisional Order (b) shall authorise the supply of electricity by any undertakers within the district of any local authority (not being themselves the undertakers), unless notice that such Provisional Order (b) has been or is intended to be applied for has been given to such local authority by the applicants in such manner as the Board of Trade (a) may direct or approve on or before the first day of July in the year in which such application is made (h);
- (2) The Board of Trade (a) may submit to Parliament for confirmation any Provisional Order (b) granted by it in pursuance of this Act, but any such Order shall be of no force unless and until it is confirmed by Act of Parliament:
- (3) If, while the Bill confirming any such Order is pending in either House of Parliament, a petition is presented against any Order comprised therein, the Bill, so far as it relates to such Order, may be referred to a Select Committee, and the petitioner shall be allowed to appear and oppose as in the case of private Bills:
- (4) Any Act confirming any Provisional Order (b) granted in pursuance of this Act may, on the application of the undertakers thereby authorised to supply electricity, be repealed, altered, or amended by any subsequent Provisional Order (b) granted by the Board of Trade (a) and confirmed by Parliament.

- (a) See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4643.
 (b) See note (b) to s. 2, ante, p. 4643.
 (c) Two or more authorities may be empowered to supply jointly in certain cases: see s. 8 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 510'. And see now the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5243, under which joint electricity authorities may be set up. See also s. 19 of the last-mentioned Act as to the power of authorised undertakers to render mutual assistance to one another.

Note to
Section 4.

(d) This does not include the supply of lamps and fittings (Leicester Corporation v. Hill (1898), 62 J. P. 232, and see also Att.-Gen. v. Ilford U. D. C. (1915), 13 L. G. R. 441; 20 Digest 199, 8). But some special Acts do authorise the supply of lamps and fittings. (See Attorney-General v. Liverpool Corporation, [1922] 1 Ch. 211; 20 Digest 199, 11). And see now s. 23 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5259. Under s. 48, Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 819, local authorities authorised by special Act or Order to supply electricity may sell and instal lines, fittings and appliances. See also note (b) to s. 10, post, p. 4648.

(e) See definition in s. 3, ante, p. 4644. As to authority to supply electricity in bulk, see s. 4 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 5097.

(f) The usual prohibition contained in Provisional Orders against the undertakers supplying electrical energy or erecting or laying down any lines or works beyond their statutory areas of supply was of universal application so that they could be restrained by injunction from carrying on business and supplying energy in any other place whatsoever however far removed from the statutory area of supply, and although such business be carried on and supply furnished quite independently of any special statutory powers (Att.-Gen. v. Metropolitan Electric Supply Co., [1905] 1 Ch. 757; 69 J. P. 169; 20 Digest 206, 41). But see ss. 4, 5, 6 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 5097, authorising in certain cases a supply outside the area; and see now the power which a joint electricity authority may obtain under s. 12 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5248.

Undertakings authorised since 1909 are protected from competition by unauthorised undertakers by s. 23 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 5103. See also Newcastle-upon-Tyne Electric Supply Co., Ltd. v. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (1910) 75 J. P. 97; 9 L. G. R. 161; 20 Digest 216, 100; but see now s. 25 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1922, Vol. V., post, giving to persons not being undertakers a power in some cases to supply electricity.

(g) These words were practically repealed by the Electric Lighting Act, 1888, s. 1, post, p. 4700, which provided that the consent of the local authority should be required save as therein provided, but reference should now be made to s. 12 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5248.

(h) But see now as to these "July notices," s. 9 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 5100, which in some cases dispenses with the necessity for giving them.

Making of rules as to application,
etc. under Act.

5. The Board of Trade (a) may from time to time make, and when made may rescind, alter, or repeal rules in relation to the applications for licences or Provisional Orders, and to the payments to be made in respect thereof, and to the publication of notices and advertisements, and the manner in which and the time within which representations or objections with reference to any application are to be made, and to the holding of local inquiries in such cases as they may think it advisable, and to any other matters arising under this Act.

Any rules made in pursuance of this section shall be deemed to be within the powers conferred by this Act, and shall be of the same force as if enacted in this Act, and shall be judicially noticed.

Any rules made in pursuance of this section shall be laid before Parliament within three weeks after they are made if Parliament be then sitting, and if Parliament be not then sitting, within three weeks after the beginning of the next session of Parliament (b).

(a) See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4643.

(b) The rules must provide for (inter alia) the notices required by s. 1 (3) of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 5096. For the current Rules of the Electricity Commissioners, see ante, p. 2696.

Regulations to be inserted in licences, etc.

6. The undertakers shall be subject to such regulations and conditions as may be inserted in any licence, Order, or special Act (a) affecting their undertaking with regard to the following matters:

- (a) The limits within which and the conditions under which a supply of electricity is to be compulsory or permissive;
- (b) The securing a regular and efficient supply of electricity;
- (c) The securing the safety of the public from personal injury, or from fire or otherwise.
- (d) The limitation of the prices to be charged in respect of the supply of electricity;

- (e) The authorising inspection and inquiry from time to time by the Board of Trade (b) and the local authority ;
- (f) The enforcement of the due performance of the duties of the undertakers in relation to the supply of electricity by the imposition of penalties (c) or otherwise, and the revocation of the licence, Order, or special Act where the undertakers have, in the opinion of the Board of Trade (b), practically failed to carry the powers granted to them into effect within a reasonable time, or discontinued the exercise of such powers ; and
- (g) Generally with regard to any other matters in connection with the undertakings.

Section 6.

Provided always, that the Board of Trade (b) may, from time to time, make such regulations as they may think expedient for securing the safety of the public from personal injury or from fire or otherwise (d), and may from time to time amend or repeal any regulations which may be contained in any such licence, Order, or special Act in relation thereto ; and any regulations so made or amended by the Board of Trade (b) shall, from and after the date thereof, have the like effect in every respect as though they had been originally inserted in the licence, Order, or special Act authorising the undertaking, and every regulation so repealed shall, from and after the date thereof, be repealed accordingly, but such repeal shall not affect any liability or penalty incurred in respect thereof prior to the date of such repeal or any proceeding or remedy which might have been had in relation thereto.

Any local authority within any part of whose district electricity is authorised to be supplied under any licence, Order, or special Act, may, in addition to any regulations which may be made under the preceding provisions of this section for securing the safety of the public, from time to time make, rescind, alter, or repeal byelaws (e) for further securing such safety ; and there may be annexed to any breach of such byelaws such penalties to be recovered in a summary manner as they may think necessary : Provided always, that no such byelaws shall have any force or effect unless and until they have been confirmed by the Board of Trade (b) and published in such manner as the Board of Trade (b) may direct.

(a) The usual regulations and conditions on these matters formerly inserted at length are now collectively incorporated by the Electric Lighting Clauses Act, 1899, post, p. 4949, in every Provisional Order and special Act made or passed on or since October 1st, 1899 except so far as expressly varied or excepted thereby.

(b) See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4643.

(c) By a local Act, a corporation were empowered to make agreements with regard to a supply of electrical energy to consumers and were liable to a penalty for default in supplying energy to any owner or occupier of premises to whom they might be and were required to supply energy under the Act. The plaintiffs, who were not entitled to require a supply under the Act, made an agreement with the corporation for the supply of electrical energy. It was held that an action would lie at the suit of the plaintiffs against the corporation to recover damages for an alleged breach of the agreement, there being no clear words in the statute confining the remedy of the plaintiffs to proceedings to recover the penalty under the section which rendered the corporation liable to such penalty (Morris and Bastert, Ltd. v. Loughborough Corporation, [1908] 1 K. B. 206; 71 J. P. 521 ; 20 Digest 204, 37).

(d) See these regulations, ante, p. 2669.

(e) These byelaws will not be subject to the provisions of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4467, as to byelaws. Byelaws made under Part II., ss. 13 et seq., of the P. H. A., 1890, post, p. 4807, do not apply to the posts, wires, etc., of electrical undertakings. See s. 15 of that Act, ante, p. 4810, and s. 26, P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, dealing with wires in connection with wireless installations.

7. Any expenses incurred by a local authority under this Act (a), and not otherwise provided for (b), including any expenses incurred in connection with the obtaining by them, or any opposition to the obtaining by any other local authority, company, or person, of any licence, Order, or special Act

Expenses of local authority.

Section 7. under this Act, . . . (c) where such local authority is a rural sanitary authority . . . (c) shall be deemed to be special expenses within the meaning of the Public Health Act, 1875 (d).

38 & 39 Vict.
c. 55.

(a) Expenses incurred by a local authority under an agreement with a joint electricity authority are deemed to be expenses incurred under the Electric Lighting Acts, and this and the next section are to apply accordingly (s. 32 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5261). See also the borrowing power conferred by s. 5 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1922, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 780.

(b) See the P. H. A., 1875, s. 298, ante, p. 4508, and notes.

(c) Certain words here were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933; as to expenses, see Pt. VIII. of that Act, ante, pp. 1007 et seq.

(d) See s. 229 of that Act (13 Halsbury's Statutes 720), and s. 190 of the L. G. A. 1933, ante, p. 1016.

Power of local authority to borrow money.

8. A local authority authorised to supply electricity by any licence, Order, or special Act may from time to time borrow (a) money. . . .

(a) See note (a) to s. 7, supra. Money borrowed under the Electricity Supply Acts was not to be reckoned as part of the authority's total debt for the purpose of any limitation on borrowing powers: see s. 21 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, now repealed, and s. 5 (2) of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1922, Vol. V., post, but by s. 74 of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 931, all limitations on borrowing powers were removed. As to suspension of sinking fund payments in respect of new works, see s. 2 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1922, Vol. V., post. The borrowing powers conferred by this section are extended to cover agreements entered into with the Central Electricity Board by s. 16 of the 1926 Act, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 805, and in the case of local authorities for the sale, etc., of fittings under s. 48, ibid., Vol. V. and op. cit. 819.

Accounts.

9. The undertakers shall on or before the twenty-fifth day of March (a) in every year fill up an annual statement of accounts of the undertaking made up to the thirty-first day of December (a) then next preceding; and such statement shall be in such form and shall contain such particulars and shall be published in such manner as may from time to time be prescribed in that behalf by the Board of Trade (b).

The undertakers shall keep copies of such annual statement at their office, and sell the same to any applicant at a price not exceeding one shilling a copy.

In case the undertakers make default in complying with the provisions of this section, they shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings for each day during which such default continues.

(a) In the case of local authorities these dates are varied by s. 12 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 5100, but see next note.

(b) The Board of Trade has now, for most of the purposes of this Act, been superseded by the Ministry of Transport, see note (a) to s. 1 on ante, p. 4643, but by s. 27 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5260, it is provided that (inter alia) authorised undertakers under the Act in the text shall furnish to the Electricity Commissioners at such times and in such form and manner as the Commissioners may direct such accounts, statistics, and returns as they may require for the purposes of their powers and duties under that Act.

General powers of undertakers under licence or Provisional Order.

10. The undertakers may, subject to and in accordance with the provisions and restrictions of this Act, and of any rules made by the Board of Trade (a) in pursuance of this Act and of any licence, Order, or special Act authorising or affecting their undertaking, and for the purpose of supplying (b) electricity acquire such lands (c) by agreement (d), construct such works (e), acquire such licences for the use of any patented or protected processes, inventions, machinery, apparatus, methods, materials, or other things, enter into such contracts, and generally do all such acts and things as may be necessary and incidental to such supply (f).

(a) See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4643.

(b) A municipal corporation were the undertakers for the supply of electricity within their area, and purporting to exercise their statutory powers, supplied every description of electrical fittings and apparatus to consumers of electricity. It was held that the statutory powers of the undertakers ceased with the delivery of electricity at the terminals, i.e., the meter, on the consumers' premises, and were complete at that point, and that the general power to do "all such acts and things as were necessary and incidental to such supply" was limited to the generation and delivery of such supply; that the analogy of the supply of gas under the Gasworks Clauses Acts did not apply to the supply of electricity under the Electric Lighting Acts; and that the supply of electrical fittings and apparatus for the use of consumers was ultra vires the corporation (Att.-Gen. v. Leicester Corporation, [1910] 2 Ch. 359; 74 J. P. 385; 20 Digest 198, 5); followed in A.-G. v. County of London Electric Supply Co., Ltd., [1926] Ch. 542; Digest Supp.; and cf. Deuchar v. Gas Light and Coke Co., [1925] A. C. 691; 89 J. P. 177; 25 Digest 471, 10). In a case of a municipal corporation alleged to have in excess of their powers under the Electric Lighting Acts and a confirmed Provisional Order installed and repaired electric light fittings and wires within and without their area of supply on the consumers' sides of the terminals and also electric bell fittings and wires, the facts were held to have been brought within the judgment in Att.-Gen. v. Leicester Corporation, supra, where an injunction was granted, and that this would be followed unless the defendants (1) had power as a chartered corporation to carry on the business complained of, or (2) were so empowered by a private Act enabling them to supply mains but not manufacture things for cooking, heating, ventilating and motive power, and also to repair such things. It was held that the first point, not having been raised until the trial, was not open to the defendants, and that if it were, the impugned acts were continuous acts partly intra vires and partly ultra vires the corporate powers, and could not be dissected, and could not, therefore, be justified; also that the further powers under the Act were confined to the area of supply and to electric motors and apparatus used as sources of power for the specified purposes and did not extend to the objects to which the power was transmitted (Att.-Gen. v. Sheffield Corporation (1912), 76 J. P. 185; 106 L. T. 367; 20 Digest 199, 10). See also Att.-Gen. v. Ilford U. D. C. (1915), 13 L. G. R. 441; 20 Digest 199, 8. But see now s. 23 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5259, and Att.-Gen. v. Liverpool Corporation, [1922] 1 Ch. 211; 20 L. G. R. 547; 20 Digest 199, 11; and s. 48, Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 819, which expressly authorises local authorities to sell, install, etc., fittings and appliances.

Note to

(c) As to purchase by local authority, see the Electric Lighting Clauses Act, 1899, Sched., clause 8, post, p. 4953; and see now also ss. 6, 8, 9, 13, and 32 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, pp. 5245, 5246, 5247, 5249, 5261. A local authority having acquired land for the purpose of erecting thereon works for generating electricity were restrained from using part of such land for the erection of a refuse destructor, although they proposed to use the surplus heat produced by the destruction of refuse in aid of their machinery for generating electricity (Att.-Gen. v. Pontypridd U. D. C., [1906] 2 Ch. 257; 70 J. P. 394; 20 Digest 200, 13). The case is an illustration of the general principle that it is ultra vires for a local authority having acquired land for particular purposes under the powers of one statute to use the land so acquired or any part of it for another purpose, although such other purpose may be within the powers given to them under some other statute. And see the similar case of Att.-Gen. v. Bradford Corporation (1911), 75 J. P. 553; 55 Sol. J. 715; 26 Digest 292, 243. See, however, s. 95, P. H. A., 1907, post, p. 5065.

(d) Land for a generating station may now be acquired compulsorily. See s. 1 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 5096. See also as to generating stations, ss. 9, 10, and 11 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5247, and ss. 5, 6 and 14, Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 796, 797, 804.

(e) Defined by s. 32, post, p. 4658. But as to restrictions on the construction of generating stations, see ss. 1 and 2 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 5096, and s. 11 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5247. And as to the power of the Central Electricity Board to close generating stations in certain events (s. 14, Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, Vol. V., post).

(f) See note (b) to s. 10, ante, p. 4648. By s. 6 of the Telegraph Act, 1892 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 285), the undertakers may agree with the Postmaster-General for placing telegraphs in the trenches, tubes, or pipes used for the purpose of laying their own electric line. In the case of In re St. Nicholas Cole Abbey, Re St. Benet Fink Churchyard, [1893] P. 58; 20 Digest 202, 25, an electric lighting company obtained a faculty for constructing chambers for the storage and transformation of electricity under two disused churchyards in the city of London, and it was held that the vesting of one of such churchyards by local Acts in the corporation to the intent that it might for ever remain unbuilt upon and unused for any purpose, except such ornamental purpose as the bishop should approve, did not preclude the court from granting the faculty. As to sale of lamps and fittings, see note (d) to s. 4, ante, p. 4646. As to liability for nuisance, see s. 17 and notes, post, p. 4653. As to liability of contractors to the local authority, being the undertakers, see Re Fulham Borough Council and National Electric Construction Co. (1905), 70 J. P. 55; 4 L. G. R. 115; 20 Digest 213, 83.

Section 11.

Power for local authority to contract in certain cases and restrictions on assignments of powers, etc. of undertakers.

11. Any local authority who have obtained a licence, Order, or special Act for the supply of electricity, may contract with any company or person for the execution and maintenance of any works needed for the purposes of such supply, or for the supply of electricity within any area mentioned in such licence, Order, or special Act, or in any part of such area; but no local authority, company, or person shall by any contract or assignment transfer to any other company or person or divest themselves of any legal powers given to them, or any legal liabilities imposed on them by this Act, or by any licence, Order, or special Act, without the consent of the Board of Trade (a).

(a) The first part of the section deals with cases where the local authority remains the party supplying electricity, though it may contract for the execution of works or buy electricity from some other person or company. The second part, now repealed and replaced by a different provision in s. 14 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 5101, as to which see now the provisions contained in the Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1919 and 1922, post, p. 5245 and Vol. V., post, dealt with cases of transfer by the local authority or some other company or person of the legal powers for supplying electricity. Where the effect of a contract between a local authority having statutory powers and a company was to place the company in the position of the authority as regards their statutory powers and duties without the consent of the Board of Trade, the contract was held void, notwithstanding a clause intended to prevent the contract from being as between the parties an assignment or transfer of the statutory powers of the authority (Sudbury Corporation v. Empire Electric Light and Power Co., [1905] 2 Ch. 104; 69 J. P. 321; 20 Digest 198, 4). A collateral agreement containing terms of transfer not approved by the Board of Trade, but made a condition of the execution of a transfer deed approved by that Board, was held not ultra vires and enforceable (Lambeth Borough Council v. South London Electric Supply Corporation, Ltd. (1907), 71 J. P. 233; 96 L. T. 440; 20 Digest 218, 111, followed in Southport Corporation v. Birkdale District Electric Supply Co., Ltd., [1925] Ch. 794; 89 J. P. 149; 20 Digest 208, 52, where, after an agreement had been made containing terms of transfer approved by the Board, a further agreement that the company to whom the transfer had been made would not charge higher prices than those charged in an adjoining borough was entered into without the approval of the Board. This latter agreement was held not ultra vires as being a business transaction into which the defendants might reasonably enter, 22 T. L. R. 78). See also London Electric Supply Corporation, Ltd. v. Westminster Electric Supply Corporation, Ltd. (1913), 11 L. G. R. 1046; 20 Digest 217, 110.

Incorporation of certain provisions of Clauses Consolidation Acts.

12. The provisions of the following Acts shall be incorporated with this Act; that is to say,

- (1) The Lands Clauses Acts (a), except the enactments with respect to the purchase and taking of lands otherwise than by agreement (b), and except the enactments with respect to the entry upon lands by the promoters of the undertaking; and
- (2) The provisions of the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847 (c), with respect to breaking up streets (d) for the purpose of laying pipes, and with respect to waste or misuse of the gas or injury to the pipes and other works, except so much thereof as relates to the use of any burner other than such as has been provided or approved of by the undertakers; and
- (3) Sections thirty-eight to forty-two inclusive, and sections forty-five and forty-six, of the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1871.

For the purposes of this Act, in the construction of all the enactments incorporated by this section, "the special Act" means this Act inclusive of any licence, Order, or special Act; and "the promoters" or "undertakers," and "the undertaking," as the case may be, mean the undertakers and the undertaking respectively under this Act.

In the construction of the said Lands Clauses Acts, "land" includes easements in or relating to lands.

In the construction of the said Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, and the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1871, the said Acts shall be construed as if "gas" meant "electricity," and as if "pipe" meant electric line, 10 & 11 Vict.

c. 15.

34 & 35 Vict.
c. 41.

and "works" meant "works" as defined by this Act, and as if "the limits of the special Act" meant the area within which the undertakers are authorised to supply electricity under any licence, Order, or special Act. Section 12.

All offences, forfeitures, penalties, and damages under the said incorporated provisions of the said Acts or any of them may be prosecuted and may be recovered in manner by the said Acts respectively enacted in relation thereto, provided that sums recoverable under the provisions of section forty of the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1871, shall not be recovered as penalties, but may be recovered summarily as civil debts (e).

The Act of 1869, which so far as still unrepealed relates only to lands in Westminster, is not included in this work.

(b) But see now s. 1 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 5096, as to compulsory acquisition of land for generating stations.

(c) Ante, p. 4163, and see Porter v. Ipswich Corporation, [1922] 2 K. B. 145; 20 L. G. R. 502; 20 Digest 201, 20. See also the provisions in the Electric Lighting Act, 1888, s. 4, post, p. 4702, as to the restrictions on placing electric lines in, over, etc., streets.

(d) As to breaking up streets, railways, or tramways, outside the area of supply in order to connect with a generating station, see s. 3 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 5097; cf. also ibid., ss. 4, 6.

(e) That is to say, in manner provided by the S. J. A., 1879, ss. 6, 35 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 325, 342). See the note to s. 293 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 610.

13. Nothing in this Act or in any Act incorporated therewith shall authorise or empower the undertakers to break up any street which is not repairable by such local authority, or any railway or tramway, without the consent of the authority, company, or person by whom such street, railway, or tramway is repairable, unless in pursuance of special powers in that behalf inserted in the licence, Order, or special Act, or with the written consent of the Board of Trade (a), and the Board of Trade (a) shall not in any case insert any such special powers in any licence or Provisional Order, or give any such consent until notice has been given to such authority, company, or person by advertisement or otherwise, as the Board of Trade (a) may direct, and an opportunity has been given to such authority, company, or person to state any objections they may have thereto (b).

Restriction on breaking up of private streets, railways and tramways.

(a) See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4643.

(b) See the Electricity Commissioners Rules, ante, p. 2696, and the Electric Lighting Clauses Act, 1889, Sched., clause 21 (3), post, p. 4963, as to obtaining the consent of the Ministry of Transport as successor of the Board of Trade. In the case of London Corporation v. County of London Electric Supply Co., [1910] 2 Ch. 208; 74 J. P. 268; 20 Digest 217, 108, the defendants proposed to connect up their areas of supply on the north and south sides of the Thames by laying electric mains along streets, including London Bridge, outside their areas of supply, in pursuance of the powers conferred upon them by the London Electric Supply Act, 1908. London Bridge is not a bridge repairable by the local authority, but is repairable by the corporation of the city of London as trustees of the Bridge House estates. The corporation sought an injunction to restrain the defendants from laying the proposed mains, and a declaration that the Act of 1908 did not entitle them to break up or carry the mains over London Bridge without the corporation's consent. It was held that the defendants had power, subject to the provisions of the Acts therein referred to, to lay electric mains over London Bridge, that is subject to the consent either of the corporation or, if that were refused, of the Board of Trade. In Andrews v. Abertillery U. D. C., [1911] 2 Ch. 398; 75 J. P. 449; 20 Digest 201, 19, it was held (KENNEDY, L.J., dissentiente) that where there was no person by whom the street was repairable the section operated as an absolute prohibition against the breaking up of the street by the undertakers, and that therefore where a strip of land adjoining a street repairable by the local authority had been dedicated to the public by the owner and had become part of the street, but was not repairable either by the local authority or by the owner or by any other person, the local authority, as undertakers for the supply of electric light in their district, had no power to break up that portion of the street. See also now s. 22 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5256, and s. 44, Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 818, as to wayleaves.

Restrictions as to above-ground works.

14. Notwithstanding anything in this Act or in any Act incorporated therewith, the undertakers shall not be authorised to place any electric line above ground, along, over, or across any street, without the express consent of the local authority (a), and the local authority may require the undertakers to forthwith remove any electric line placed by them contrary to the provisions of this section, or may themselves remove the same, and recover the expenses of such removal from the undertakers in a summary manner; and where any electric line has been placed above ground by the undertakers in any position, a court of summary jurisdiction, upon complaint made, if they are of opinion that such electric line is or is likely to become dangerous to the public safety, may, notwithstanding any such consent as aforesaid, make an order directing and authorising the removal of such electric line by such person and upon such terms as they may think fit.

(a) Therefore the case of Wandsworth Board of Works v. United Telephone Co. will not apply to such wires. See also National Telephone Co. v. Constables of St. Peter Port, Guernsey and Finchley Electric Light Co., Ltd. v. Finchley U. D. C., Times, October 17th, 1901. Further restrictions are contained in the Electric Lighting Act, 1888, s. 4, post, p. 4702, and the Electric Lighting Clauses Act, 1899, Sched., clauses 10 (b), post, p. 4954. However, by s. 21 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5255, as amended by s. 44, Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 818, the consent of the Ministry of Transport (as successor to the Board of Trade) now suffices for the placing of any electric line above ground. Wires to which this Act applies are not subject to the P. H. A., 1890, ss. 13, 14, post, p. 4807. See s. 15 of that Act, post, p. 4810. As to London, see London Overhead Wires Act, 1891.

Power to undertakers to alter position of pipes and wires.

15. Subject to the provisions of this Act and of the licence, Order, or special Act authorising them to supply electricity, and to any byelaws made under this Act (a), the undertakers may alter the position of any pipes or wires being under any street or place authorised to be broken up by them which may interfere with the exercise of their powers under this Act, on previously making or securing such compensation to the owners of such pipes or wires, and on complying with such conditions as to the mode of making such alterations as may before the commencement of such alterations be agreed upon between the undertakers and owners, or in case of difference as may be determined in manner prescribed by the licence or Provisional Order authorising the undertakers to supply electricity, or where no such manner is prescribed as may be determined by arbitration, and any local or other public authority, company, or person may in like manner alter the position of any electric lines or works of the undertakers, being under any such street or place as aforesaid, which may interfere with the lawful exercise of any powers vested in such local or other public authority, company, or person in relation to such street or place, subject to the like provisions, conditions, and restrictions as are in this section contained with reference to the alteration of the position of any pipes or wires by the undertakers (b).

(b) The provisions of this section are overridden by s. 35, Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 814, in so far as alterations of works crossing a county bridge are concerned.

Clause for protection of canals.

16. If at any time after the undertakers have placed any works under in, upon, over, along or across any canal (a), any person having power to construct docks, basins or other works upon any land adjoining to or near such canal, constructs any dock, basin or work on such land, but is prevented by the works of the undertakers from forming a communication for the convenient passage of vessels with or without masts between such dock, basin or other work, and such canal; or if the business of such dock, basin or other work is interfered with by reason or in consequence of any such works of the undertakers, then the undertakers at the request of such person, and on having reasonable facilities afforded them by him for placing works round such dock, basin or other work, under, in, upon, over, along or across land belonging to or under his control, shall remove and place their work accordingly. If any dispute arises between the undertakers and such person as to the facilities to be afforded to the undertakers, or as to the direction in which the works are to be placed, it shall be determined by arbitration.

Section 16.

(a) See also as to protection of railway and canal companies the Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899, Sched., clause 19, post, p. 4962, and s. 22 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5256.

17. In the exercise of the powers in relation to the execution of works given them under this Act, or any licence, Order, or special Act, the undertakers shall cause as little detriment and inconvenience and do as little damage (a) as may be, and shall make full compensation to all bodies and persons interested for all damage sustained by them by reason or in consequence of the exercise of such powers, the amount and application of such compensation in case of difference to be determined by arbitration (b).

Compensation for damage.

(a) See s. 26, post, p. 4656, for the protection of the Postmaster-General, and ss. 5 (3), 22 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, pp. 5098, 5102, for the protection of certain public buildings.

(b) See s. 28, post, p. 4657.

A company authorised by private Act to supply a certain district with electric light committed a nuisance and damage to a public-house near their lighting station, by the withdrawal of support caused in digging foundations, and by vibration in working their engines:—Held, that “works” in s. 17, as defined by s. 32 of this Act, post, p. 4658, included only what was required to supply electricity and not the actual supply, and therefore, the case did not fall within s. 17; but the company were liable in damages at common law, and to be restrained by injunction (Shelfer v. City of London Electric Lighting Co., Meux's Brewery, Ltd. v. City of London Electric Lighting Co., [1895] 1 Ch. 287; 20 Digest 209, 67). See also National Telephone Co. v. Baker, [1893] 2 Ch. 186; 57 J. P. 373; 20 Digest 211, 73; Att.-Gen. v. Pall Mall Electric Lighting Co., Times, March 13th 1895; Fowler v. Chelsea Electric Supply Co., Sandon v. Same, Times, May 25th, 1895; Holdsworth v. St. Pancras Vestry, Times, April 18th, 1896; Hawkes v. Leyton U. D. C., Times, November 30th, 1900; May 1st, 1901; Morrow v. Stepney Corporation (1921), 43 M. C. C. 33.

A serious annoyance to adjoining occupiers by vibration, noise, and smell, is not to be excused on the ground that it is temporary and occasional (Knight v. Isle of Wight Electric Light and Power Co. (1904), 68 J. P. 266; 73 L. J. Ch. 299; 20 Digest 210, 69). This is the case although the defendants are a local authority having under a Provisional Order a power to supply electricity (Colwell v. St. Pancras Borough Council, [1904] 1 Ch. 707; 68 J. P. 286; 20 Digest 210, 70). No special consideration is due to the fact that the complaint is made in respect of a place of worship, but the general character of the neighbourhood and all the surrounding circumstances must be considered, and an injunction will be refused unless there is a serious annoyance (Heath v. Brighton Corporation (1908), 72 J. P. 225; 20 Digest 209, 66). See also as to nuisance caused by fumes from a generating station (Manchester Corporation v. Farnworth, [1930] A. C. 171; 94 J. P. 62 (H.L.), upholding decision of C. A. at [1929] 1 K. B. 533; 93 J. P. 73; Digest Supp.).

18. The undertakers shall not be entitled to prescribe any special form of lamp or burner to be used by any company or person, or in any way to control or interfere with the manner in which electricity supplied by them under this Act, and any licence, Order, or special Act, is used: Provided always that no local authority, company, or person shall be at liberty to use any form of lamp or burner or to use the electricity supplied to them for any purposes, or to deal with it in any manner so as to unduly or improperly interfere with the supply (a) of electricity supplied to any other local authority, company, or person by the undertakers (b), and if any dispute or difference arises between the undertakers, and any local authority, company, or person

Undertakers not to prescribe special form of lamp or burner.

Section 18. entitled to be supplied with electricity under this Act, or any licence, Order, or special Act, as to the matters aforesaid, such dispute or difference shall be determined by arbitration.

(b) See also the Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899, Sched., clause 27 (4), post, p. 4967.

Obligation on undertakers to supply electricity.

19. Where a supply of electricity is provided in any part of an area for private purposes, then except in so far as is otherwise provided by the terms of the licence, Order, or special Act authorising such supply, every company or person within that part of the area shall, on application, be entitled to a supply on the same terms on which any other company or person in such part of the area is entitled under similar circumstances to a corresponding supply (a).

(a) No one is entitled to demand a supply of energy under this section unless and until he has made a contract with the undertakers for the supply. Thus a receiver for debenture-holders taking possession of a hotel for the lighting of which the company, who were proprietors, were in debt to an electric supply company, was held not to be entitled to a further supply, as he refused to pay the arrears which the electric supply company demanded payment of as a condition for continuing the light (Husey v. London Electric Supply Corporation, [1902] 1 Ch. 411; 20 Digest 205, 34).

See s. 23 (1) of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, Vol. V., post, as to standby supplies of electricity; and see s. 18 of Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 5102, as to their right to refuse a supply to a person who is in their debt for electricity previously supplied.

In Metropolitan Electric Supply Co., Ltd. v. Ginder, [1901] 2 Ch. 799, at p. 811; 65 J. P. 519; 20 Digest 207, 47, it was held by BUCKLEY, J., that the words "a supply on the same terms" used in this section bear their natural meaning, and include price. In Att.-Gen. for Victoria v. Melbourne Corporation, [1907] A. C. 469, at p. 475; 20 Digest 207, c, the Privy Council approved this construction with regard to the same words as used in s. 38 of the Victorian Electric Lighting and Power Act, 1896, that section being practically identical with this. But s. 39 of that Act dealing with preference differs in its wording from s. 20 of this Act, infra, relating to the same subject. The Privy Council held that on the true construction of ss. 38 and 39 of the Victorian Act the corporation were authorised to supply electricity under two different systems of charge—one at a fixed rate and the other at a rate varying with the amount consumed, the system adopted being at the choice of the customer and no preference being given within each system to one consumer over another.

Charges for electricity.

20. The undertakers shall not, in making any agreements for a supply of electricity, show any undue preference to any local authority, company, or person, but save as aforesaid, they may make such charges for the supply of electricity as may be agreed upon, not exceeding the limits of price imposed by or in pursuance of the licence, Order, or special Act authorising them to supply electricity (a).

(a) See also the Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899, Sched., clauses 31–34, post, p. 4968, and the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, s. 17, post, p. 5102. A form of agreement is given in Key and Elphinstone's Precedents in Conveyancing, 8th ed.; but from the consumer's point of view the agreement should always contain a provision that no charge should be made in the pressure of the supply. A contract containing a clause that the consumer agrees to take the whole of the electric energy required for his premises from the company for a period of not less than five years at a fixed charge not exceeding the limit under this section, does not contravene this or the preceding section, and may be enforced by injunction (Metropolitan Electric Supply Co., Ltd. v. Ginder, [1901] 2 Ch. 799; 65 J. P. 519; 20 Digest 207, 47). Where undertakers issued a circular with reference to the price proposed to be charged for electricity to power consumers, the effect of which was in certain cases to make a lower charge for power purposes to consumers who in addition to a supply for power took exclusively a supply of electricity for lighting purposes, and a higher charge to consumers of electricity for power only or for power and partial lighting, it was held that the differentiation proposed by the circular was a breach of both ss. 19 and 20 (Att.-Gen. v. Long Eaton U. D. C., [1915] 1 Ch. 124; 79 J. P. 129; 20 Digest 207, 48). The principle of the last-mentioned decision was applied in Att.-Gen. v. Ilford U. D. C. (1915), 13 L. G. R. 441; 20 Digest 199, 8, and in Att.-Gen. v. Hackney Corporation, [1918] 1 Ch. 372; 82 J. P. 116; 20 Digest 207, 50, which last-mentioned case was, however, distinguished from the Long Eaton case on facts. By a contract for electric lighting installation, it was provided that the work should be completed in all respects before November 26th, 1898, subject to a penalty of £15 a day, and the plant by December 10th, subject to a penalty of £3 per day for every day the work remained unfinished to the satisfaction of the authorities or engineers:—Held, that although the word “penalties” was used, the amounts incurred owing to the default of the contractors were, in fact, “liquidated damages” (Re White and Arthur (1901), 84 L. T. 594; 17 Digest 140, 440). For the construction of an agreement for the supply of electricity and as to the finality of meter readings, see Gravesend and Northfleet Electric Tramways, Ltd. v. Gravesend Corporation (1910), 74 J. P. 156; 8 L. G. R. 445; 20 Digest 208, 57.

Note to
Section 20.

21. If any local authority, company, or person neglect to pay any charge for electricity or any other sum due from them to the undertakers in respect of the supply of electricity to such local authority, company, or person, the undertakers may cut off such supply, and for that purpose may cut or disconnect any electric line or other work through which electricity may be supplied, and may, until such charge or other sum, together with any expenses incurred by the undertakers in cutting off such supply of electricity as aforesaid, are fully paid, but no longer, discontinue the supply of electricity to such local authority, company, or person (a).

Recovery of charges, etc.

(a) These charges are recoverable like gas rents, subject to the qualifications contained in the last clause of s. 12, ante, p. 4650. See also s. 18, Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 5102. Power is given by s. 45, Electricity (Supply) Act, 1928, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 818, to recover expenses of reconnecting after a supply has been cut off under this section.

22. Any person who unlawfully and maliciously cuts or injures any electric line or work with intent to cut off any supply of electricity shall be guilty of felony, and be liable to be kept in penal servitude for any term not exceeding five years, or to be imprisoned with or without hard labour for any term not exceeding two years; but nothing in this section shall exempt a person from any proceeding for any offence which is punishable under any other provision of this Act, or under any other Act, or at common law, so that no person be punished twice for the same offence.

Injuring works with intent to cut off supply of electricity.

23. Any person who maliciously or fraudulently abstracts, causes to be wasted or diverted, consumes, or uses any electricity shall be guilty of simple larceny and punishable accordingly.

Stealing
electricity.

24. Any officer appointed by the undertakers may at all reasonable times enter (a) any premises to which electricity is or has been supplied (b) by the undertakers, in order to inspect the electric lines, meters, accumulators, fittings, works, and apparatus for the supply of electricity belonging to the undertakers (c), and for the purpose of ascertaining the quantity of electricity consumed or supplied, or where a supply of electricity is no longer required, or where the undertakers are authorised to take away and cut off the supply of electricity from any premises, for the purpose of removing any electric lines, accumulators, fittings, works, or apparatus belonging to the undertakers (c), repairing all damage caused by such entry, inspection, or removal.

Power to enter

(a) No penalty is provided for obstructing the officer. Compare the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1871, s. 21, ante, p. 4312.

(b) See note (b) to s. 10, ante, p. 4648.

(c) As to lines, etc., let on hire, or sold on the instalment principle, see s. 16 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 5101. See also Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, s. 23, post, p. 5259.

25. Where any electric lines, meters, accumulators, fittings, works, or apparatus belonging to the undertakers (a) are placed in or upon any premises not being in the possession of the undertakers for the purpose of supplying electricity under this Act, or any licence, Order, or special Act, such electric Section 25. lines, meters, accumulators, fittings, works, or apparatus shall not be subject to distress or to the landlord's remedy for rent of the premises where the same may be, nor to be taken in execution under any process of a court of law or equity, or any proceedings in bankruptcy against the person in whose possession the same may be (b).

(a) See note (c) to s. 24, ante, p. 4655.

(b) A somewhat similar provision was contained in the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, s. 14, with reference to which see Gaslight and Coke Co. v. Hardy (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 619; 51 J. P. 6; 18 Digest 308, 438. A person who procures possession of a house under an agreement between him and the owner for a lease thereof, with the fraudulent intention of stealing the fixtures thereto belonging, and upon obtaining possession severs and steals the fixtures, was held to be guilty of larceny under the Larceny Act, 1861, s. 31 (R. v. Richards, [1911] 1 K. B. 260; 75 J. P. 144; 15 Digest 900, 9873). Section 31 of the Larceny Act, 1861, has now been repealed by the Larceny Act, 1916 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 814), which consolidated the law relating to larceny triable on indictment. See s. 8 of that Act (op. cit. 818).

Provision for protection of the Postmaster-General.

41 & 42 Vict.
c. 76.

26. (a) No alteration in any telegraph line of the Postmaster-General shall be made by the undertakers except subject to the provisions of the Telegraph Act, 1878.

The undertakers shall not in the exercise of the powers conferred by this Act, or by any licence, Order, or special Act, lay down any electric line or do any other work for the supply of electricity whereby any telegraphic line of the Postmaster-General is or may be injuriously affected, and before any such electric line is laid down or work is done within ten yards of any part of a telegraphic line of the Postmaster-General (other than repairs or the laying of connexions with mains where the direction of the electric lines so laid down crosses the line of the Postmaster-General at right angles at the point of shortest distance and continues the same for a distance of six feet on each side of such point) (b) the undertakers or their agents not more than twenty-eight nor less than seven clear days [one month, or, in the case of the laying of service lines to consumers' premises, seven clear days] (c) before commencing such work shall give written notice to the Postmaster-General specifying the course and nature of the work, including the gauge of any electric lines, and the undertakers and their agents shall conform with such reasonable requirements either general or special as may from time to time be made by the Postmaster-General for the purpose of preventing any telegraphs of the Postmaster-General from being injuriously affected by the said work.

Any difference which arises between the Postmaster-General and the undertakers or their agents with respect to any requirements so made, shall be determined by arbitration.

In the event of any contravention of or wilful non-compliance with this section by the undertakers or their agents the undertakers shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten pounds for every day during which such contravention or non-compliance continues, or, if the telegraphic communication is wilfully interrupted, not exceeding fifty pounds for every day on which such interruption continues.

Provided that nothing in this section shall subject the undertakers or their agents to a fine under this section, if they satisfy the court having cognizance of the case that the immediate execution of the work was required to avoid an accident, or otherwise was a work of emergency, and that they forthwith served on the postmaster or sub-postmaster of the postal telegraph office nearest to the place where the work was done a notice of the execution thereof, stating the reason for executing the same without previous notice.

For the purposes of this section a telegraphic line of the Postmaster-General shall be deemed to be injuriously affected by a work if telegraphic communication by means of such line is, whether through induction or otherwise, in any manner affected by such work, or by any use made of such work. Section 26.

For the purposes of this section, and subject as therein provided, sections two, seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, and twelve of the Telegraph Act, 1878, shall be deemed to be incorporated with this Act, as if the undertakers were undertakers within the meaning of those sections, without prejudice nevertheless to any operation which the other sections of the said Act would have had if this section had not been enacted (d).

(a) See also s. 4 of the Act of 1888, post, p. 4702. This section is extended by s. 24 (2) Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 808, to apply to all Government departments where the General Electricity Board are the undertakers. See also s. 46 (3), ibid., in relation to supplies by railway companies.

(b) These words were repealed by s. 25 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5260.

(c) The italicised words were repealed by s. 25 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, and by the same section the words in brackets were inserted.

(d) Section 2 of the Telegraph Act, 1878 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 261), contains certain definitions of expressions used in that Act, and is amended by the Light Railways Act, 1896, s. 25 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 262). Section 7 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 265) makes provision as to work done in pursuance of special Acts of Parliament which involves alteration in any telegraphic line. Section 8 (op. cit. 267) deals with compensation and fines for injury to any telegraphic line of the Postmaster-General, and for interruption of telegraphic communication. Section 9 (op. cit. 268) enacts a penalty for obstruction. Section 10 (op. cit. 268) provides for the prosecution of offences. See further, as to the protection of the Postmaster-General, note (b) to s. 4 of the 1888 Act, post, p. 4702, and the Electric Lighting Clauses Act, 1899, Sched., clauses 14, 79, post, pp. 4956, 4980, and Postmaster-General v. Liverpool Corporation, [1923] A. C. 587; 87 J. P. 157; 20 Digest 212, 79.

27. [Purchase of undertaking by local authority.] (a)

(a) This section was repealed by the Electric Lighting Act, 1888, s. 2, post, p. 4701, which contained substituted provisions as to purchase by the local authority, but see now also s. 7 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 5099, and s. 13 (2) and (3) of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, pp. 5249—50.

28. Where any matter is by this Act, or any licence, Order, or special Arbitration Act (a), directed to be determined by arbitration, such matter shall, except as otherwise expressly provided, be determined by an engineer or other fit person to be nominated as arbitrator by the Board of Trade (b), on the application of either party, and the expenses of the arbitration shall be borne and paid as the arbitrator directs.

Any licence or Provisional Order granted under this Act shall be deemed to be a special Act within the meaning of the Board of Trade Arbitrations, etc., Act, 1874.

(a) Or by the Electric Lighting Clauses Act, 1899, post, p. 5243, where it applies. See, for instance, clause 18 (4) of the Schedule to that Act, post, p. 5254, and Chepstow Electric Light and Power Co. v. Chepstow Gas and Coke Consumers' Co., [1905] 1 K. B. 198; 69 J. P. 72; 20 Digest 203, 26.

(b) See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4643.

29. Where a supply of electricity is authorised in any area by any licence, Order, or special Act, and a supply of gas by any gas undertakers is also authorised within such area or any part thereof by any Provisional Order or special Act under the provisions of which such gas undertakers are under any general or limited obligation to supply gas upon demand (a), the Board of Trade (b) may, upon the application of such gas undertakers, inquire into the circumstances of the case, and if they are satisfied that any specified part of such area is sufficiently supplied with electric light, and that the supply

Section 29. of gas in such specified part has ceased to be remunerative to the gas undertakers, and that it is just that such gas undertakers should be relieved from the obligation to supply gas upon demand as aforesaid, the Board of Trade (b) may in their discretion make an Order relieving the gas undertakers from such obligation, within such specified part of such area, either wholly or in part, and upon such terms and conditions as they may think proper; and from and after the date of such Order such gas undertakers shall be so relieved accordingly. All expenses of the Board of Trade (b) in connection with any such inquiry or Order shall be borne and paid by the gas undertakers upon whose application the inquiry or Order was made.

Annual report by Board of Trade (a).

30. Not later than the first day of July in each year the Board of Trade (a) shall lay before both Houses of Parliament a report respecting the applications to and proceedings of the Board of Trade (a) under this Act during the year then last past (b).

(a) See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4643.

(b) See also s. 13 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 5101, as to the Ministry of Transport making a return with regard to auditors' reports.

Definition of local authority,
etc.

31. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, the expressions "local authority" and "local rate" mean, as respects each district set forth in the first column of the Schedule to this Act annexed, the authority and rate mentioned opposite to that district in the second and third columns of that Schedule; and such Schedule, and the notes appended thereto, shall be of the same validity as if enacted in the body of the Act.

Interpretation.

32. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires—

The expression "electricity" means electricity, electric current, or any like agency (a):

The expression "electric line" means a wire or wires, conductor, or other means used for the purpose of conveying, transmitting, or distributing electricity with any casing, coating, covering, tube, pipe, or insulator enclosing, surrounding, or supporting the same, or any part thereof, or any apparatus connected therewith for the purpose of conveying transmitting, or distributing electricity or electric currents:

The expression "works" means and includes electric lines, also any buildings, machinery, engines, works, matters, or things of whatever description required to supply electricity and to carry into effect the object of the undertakers under this Act (b):

The expression "company" means any body of persons corporate or unincorporate:

8 & 9 Vict. c. 18.
23 & 24 Vict.
c. 106.
32 & 33 Vict.
c. 18.

The expression "Lands Clauses Acts" means the Lands Clauses Consolidation Acts, 1845, 1860, and 1869:

The expression "street" includes any square, court, or alley, highway, lane, road, thoroughfare, or public passage, or place, within the area in which the undertakers are authorised to supply electricity by this Act or any licence, Order, or special Act (c):

The expression "telegram" has the same meaning as in the Telegraph Act, 1869 (d). Section 32.

(a) See definition of "energy" in the Electric Lighting Clauses Act, 1899, Sched., clause 1, post, p. 4949. 32 & 33 Vict.
c. 73.

(b) See Meux's Brewery, Ltd. v. City of London Electric Lighting Co., ante, p. 4653, and note (b) to s. 10, ante, p. 4648.

(c) See a further definition of this expression for the purposes of the Electric Lighting Act, 1888, s. 4, in sub-s. (5) of that section, post, p. 4703.

(d) By s. 3 of the Telegraph Act, 1869 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 251), the term "telegram" shall mean any message or other communication transmitted or intended for transmission by telegraph. And the term "telegraph" shall, in addition to the meaning assigned to it in the Telegraph Act, 1863 (op. cit., 219), mean and include any apparatus for transmitting messages or other communications by means of electric signals. These definitions include the telephone and telephonic messages (Att.-Gen. v. Edison Telephone Co. of London (1880), 6 Q. B. D. 244; 42 Digest 885, 1).

33. Nothing in this Act shall limit or interfere with the rights of any owner, lessee, or occupier of any mines or minerals lying under or adjacent to any road along or across which any electric line shall be laid to work such mines and minerals. For the mines.

34. Nothing in this Act shall exempt the undertakers or their undertaking from the provisions of any general Act relating to the supply of electricity which may be passed in this or any future session of Parliament (a). Provision as to general Acts.

(a) Cf. the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, s. 49, ante, p. 4176.

35. Nothing in this Act or in any licence, Order, or special Act, shall affect the exclusive privileges conferred upon the Postmaster-General by the Telegraph Act, 1869, or authorise or enable any local authority, company, or person to transmit any telegram or to perform any of the incidental services of receiving, collecting, or delivering telegrams, or give to any local authority, company, or person, any power, authority, or facility of any kind whatever, in connection with the transmission of telegrams, or the performance of any of the incidental services of receiving, collecting, or delivering telegrams (a). Saving for privileges of Postmaster-
General.

(a) See also the Electric Lighting Act, 1888, s. 4 (5), post, p. 4703. The Postmaster-General may, by written licence, under the Telegraph Act, 1869, s. 5 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 252), authorise the transmission of telegrams otherwise than by the post office. As to payment of expenses of exercise of powers by an urban district council under a telephone licence from the Postmaster-General, see the Telegraph Act, 1899, s. 2, post, p. 4987.

Section 36 relates to Scotland, and s. 37 to Ireland. These sections and the parts of the Schedule relating to Scotland and Ireland are omitted.

AMENDMENT OF ACTS.

7. (a) . . .

Amendment of 24 & 25 Vict.
c. 45, as to provision for loans in Provisional Order respecting harbours.

- (1) Where a Provisional Order under the General Pier and Harbour Act, 1861, authorises any public body to raise a loan for the construction of any works as defined by that Act in any place, the same or any other order may authorise any rating authority as hereinafter defined in that place, under the circumstances and subject to the conditions specified in the order, to charge, if they think it expedient for the inhabitants at large of such place, any fund or rate under their control for the purpose of aiding the public body in raising the said loan, or any part thereof, from the Public Works Loan Commissioners, and to give such aid by guaranteeing the principal and interest of the loan or by borrowing the sum required and advancing it to the public body, or partly in one way and partly in the other, or otherwise in manner provided by the order.
- (2) The order shall provide that the resolution of the rating authority to give the guarantee shall be a special resolution, that is to say, a resolution passed at one meeting of such authority and published in manner directed by the order, so as to give notice to all persons interested, and confirmed at a second meeting of the rating authority held not less than fourteen days after the first of such public notices has been given, and not less than three months after the meeting at which the resolution was passed. Section 7.

- (3) The order shall provide for the time within which and the mode in which any money borrowed by the rating authority is to be repaid, and for the effectual recovery out of the said fund or rate of any sum payable under the guarantee, and of the principle and interest of any money borrowed by the said authority, and for the reimbursement of the fund or rate out of the income of the said works, or otherwise by the said public body, and shall contain such incidental provisions as seem necessary or proper for carrying this section into effect.
- (4) The promoters of an order proposing to confer power under this section on any rating authority shall, a reasonable time before they apply to the Board of Trade to settle the order, submit to the Local Government Board . . . a statement of such proposal, and if the Local Government Board . . . declare that in their opinion, having regard to the financial condition of the rating authority, or to the necessity for such rating authority to provide a water supply or drainage for the inhabitants of the said place, or otherwise to fulfil the original duties of such authority, it is inexpedient to burden such rating authority with any such charge as is mentioned in such proposal, the Board of Trade in settling the order shall omit any provision conferring power on the rating authority under this section (b).

In this section—

The expression “public body” means any rating authority, also any commissioners, or trustees, or other body or person who manage or undertake the works without any view to the payment of any dividend or profits out of the revenue from such works :

The expression “rating authority” means—

- (1) As regards England, any authority being an urban sanitary authority under the Public Health Act, 1875 (c), and the Acts amending the same; and (d) 38 & 39 Vict.
c. 55.

(a) The preamble to this section is repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1898 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1173).

(b) Words relating to Scotland only are omitted from this sub-section.

(c) See s. 6 of that Act (13 Halsbury's Statutes 628). This definition is extended by the Public Works Loans Act, 1887, s. 4, post, p. 4700, to rural sanitary authorities, quarter sessions, and county councils.

(d) The remainder of this section relates to Scotland and Ireland only, and is, therefore, omitted.

8. Where after the passing of this Act any money is advanced by the Public Works Loan Commissioners on the security of a rate as defined by the Public Works Loans Act, 1875, the borrowers shall cause their treasurer to keep a separate account under the title of the Public Works Loan Commissioners Loan Account, or such other title as may be approved by the Local Government Board, and shall cause all the said advances to be carried to the credit of that account, and all orders or other documents directing payments out of such account shall show on the face of them that the payment is to be made out of that account (a), and an order or other document for a payment out of the said account shall not be made or given except the payment is for a purpose for which the said advances were made (b). Account in case of loan on security of rate.
38 & 39 Vict.
c. 89.

(a) This prevents any such order from being a bill of exchange within the meaning of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882. See s. 3 (3) of that Act (2 Halsbury's Statutes 37).

Note to
Section 8.

(b) Section 9 repealed the Public Works Loans Act, 1875, s. 13, ante, p. 4549, and the Public Works Loans (Ireland) Act, 1877, s. 11, and is itself repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1898 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1173). Section 10 relates to Ireland only, and s. 11 makes provision with regard to certain local loans, and are therefore omitted.

THE LANDS CLAUSES (UMPIRE) ACT, 1883.

(46 & 47 VICT. c. 15.)

An Act to amend the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845.

[18th June, 1883.]

Amendment of
s. 28 of 8 Vict.
c. 18, extending the powers of appointment of umpire by
Board of Trade.

1. . . . section twenty-eight of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (a), shall be read and have effect as follows:

28. If in either of the cases aforesaid the said arbitrators shall refuse or shall for seven days after request of either party to such arbitration neglect to appoint an umpire, the Board of Trade shall, on the application of either party to such arbitration, appoint an umpire, and the decision of such umpire on the matters on which the arbitrators shall differ, or which shall be referred to him under this or the special Act, shall be final.

(a) See that section, ante, p. 4115. This Act is printed having regard to the repeals in s. 1 effected by the S. L. R. A., 1898 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1173).

Short title.

2. This Act may be cited as the Lands Clauses (Umpire) Act, 1883.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH ACT, 1875 (SUPPORT OF SEWERS), AMENDMENT ACT, 1883.

(46 & 47 Vict. c. 37.)

An Act to amend the Public Health Act, 1875, and to make provision with respect to the Support of Public Sewers and Sewage Works in Mining Districts.

[25th August 1883.]

Short title
and construction.

1. This Act may be cited as the Public Health Act, 1875 (Support of Sewers), Amendment Act, 1883, and shall be construed as one with the Public Health Act, 1875 (in this Act called the principal Act), as amended by the Acts for the time being in force amending the same.

This Act has been referred to in the notes to some of the sections of the P. H. A., 1875. It was passed apparently in consequence of Re Corporation of Dudley and Dudley's (Earl) Trustees (1881), 8 Q. B. D. 86; 46 J. P. 340; 36 Digest 182, 262, where the Court of Appeal held that the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4331, imposed upon land-owners through whose land a sewer was laid, an obligation to preserve to such sewer subjacent support, and gave them a right to immediate compensation for being deprived of the free power of working subjacent minerals. The court seemed to doubt whether any obligation was imposed as to lateral support, though from the remarks of JESSEL, M.R., in Roderick v. Aston L. B. (1877), 5 Ch. D. 328; 41 J. P. 516; 41 Digest 22, 174, it might be inferred that in his opinion there was a right also of lateral support for which the landowner was entitled to compensation. See also the decision of PARKER, J., on this point in Jary v. Barnsley Corporation, post, p. 4666.

The present Act deals with the subject of "support," but though the title would imply that it has reference only to "sewers," the definition in the next section shows that it has a much wider application. Its effect is briefly as follows: The local authority are not to be entitled to minerals under any sanitary works constructed by them unless such minerals have been expressly purchased. Such minerals must not be worked if under or near the works without giving notice to the authority, who may then require them to be left unworked, making compensation for them. The authority may, however, define the extent to which they desire support to be left. The amount of compensation is to be settled by arbitration. If the authority refuse to take the minerals, the owner is to be at liberty to work them, though he must not do so in any unusual manner so as to cause damage. Power is preserved to the owner, if he is prevented from working the mines under the sanitary works, of making mining communications so as to work the mines on either side. Except as aforesaid, a local authority are not hereafter to acquire any right of support, whether vertical or lateral; but the saving clause preserves all rights acquired before the passing of the Act. This Act materially affects the amount of compensation to be paid by a local authority in a mining district, for as by the mere execution of a sanitary work they acquire no right of support, they will not have to pay for it until the owner of the minerals is desirous of working them. It is to be noticed, however, that the Act is limited in its application to support from mining lands. The law as to support in other cases remains as it was before the Act passed; that is to say, as declared in the Dudley Case, supra.

By a Provisional Order, confirmed by Act of Parliament in 1875, the B. Corporation were authorised to put in force the powers of the Lands Clauses Acts with regard to certain lands, which they required for sewage purposes. In October, 1875, the corporation gave to the predecessor in title of the plaintiffs notice to treat under that Order for some of his land (excepting the mines and minerals) which they required to take, and the question of compensation was referred to arbitration. In 1876, the arbitrator made his award in respect of the lands (excepting all minerals lying within or under the same). The compensation having been paid, the lands, excepting all minerals lying within or under the same, were conveyed to the corporation by two conveyances, dated May, 1878, and April, 1883; the conveyances contained a power for the owner to work the minerals by underground workings only. In 1876, the corporation gave notice to the plaintiffs' predecessor in title, under the P. H. A., 1875, that they proposed to construct an outfall sewer on certain land in his possession, and in 1878, the umpire made his award (purporting to be under s. 308 of that Act, ante, p. 4515) reciting an agreement that the landowner should have rights of herbage, passage and building over the land, and awarding that the corporation should pay a perpetual ground rent of so much per lineal yard for the sewer. In 1904, the plaintiffs, the lessees of the mines, gave notice to the corporation that they intended to commence work within forty yards of the sewage works, and the corporation then gave notice that if the plaintiffs proceeded to work they would demand compensation in respect of any damage to their sanitary works, and that they claimed that they had acquired a right to support in respect of such works before the passing of the Public Health Act, 1875 (Support of Sewers), Amendment Act, 1883. The plaintiffs thereupon sued for a declaration that upon the true construction of the Act of 1883, the other Acts of Parliament, and the Provisional Order, awards and conveyances, the defendants were not entitled to have (1) the outfall sewer, or (2) the main sewage works, or either of them, supported by the underlying or adjacent minerals. It was held that the corporation acquired in respect of the lands conveyed for the purpose of the main sewage works a natural right of support by the subjacent minerals and the adjacent lands of the conveying parties for such land, and for any buildings or works reasonably in the contemplation of the parties when the land was conveyed; that with regard to the outfall sewer the corporation had, on the principle of In re Dudley Corporation, ante, p. 4664, a right to support from the subjacent land, if not also from the adjacent land in the same ownership, which right must be considered to have been covered by the award; and that the sewage works and outfall sewer were accordingly sanitary works in respect of which a right to support had been acquired before the passing of the Act of 1883, and in respect of which right no compensation was, at the passing of that Act, recoverable; and that the sewage works and outfall sewer were, therefore, excepted by s. 5, post, p. 4669, from the operation of the Act, and were entitled to the rights of support required in respect of them (Jary v. Barnsley Corporation, [1907] 2 Ch. 600; 71 J. P. 468; 41 Digest 36, 265).

Interpretation.

2. In this Act—

The expression “sanitary work” means any existing or future building or work constructed by or vested in or under the control of a local authority under the powers or for the purposes of so much of the principal Act or of any general or local Act or Provisional Order as relates to the construction or maintenance of any works of sewerage, drainage, sewage disposal, lighting, or water supply, and includes any fixtures, pipes, fittings, or apparatus connected with any such work, and belonging to or used by the local authority:

The expression “support” includes vertical and lateral support:

The expression “Sanitary Act” means the Act or Provisional Order under the authority of which a sanitary work has been or is constructed or is maintained, whether such Act or Order was passed and confirmed before or after the commencement of this act:

The expression “person” includes a body corporate.

It will be observed that the Act applies to the support of any “sanitary works,” though the title would imply that it was confined to sewers. Thus, it will apply to gas and water works, or pipes, and to sewage works other than sewers.

As to the right of a local authority to support for buildings and property not being sanitary works within the meaning of this Act, see Durham C. C. v. South Medomsley Colliery, Ltd. (1916), 80 J. P. 343. And as to the right of support for sanitary works under leases, see Westhoughton U. D. C. v. Wigan Coal and Iron Co., Ltd., [1919] 1 Ch. 159; 88 L. J. Ch. 60; 120 L. T. 242; 34 Digest 686, 800.

Application of provisions of Waterworks
Clauses Act, 1847, with respect to mines, to sanitary works over mines.

3. The provisions of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, sections eighteen to twenty-seven (both inclusive) (a), with respect to mines, shall, in relation to any sanitary work (b) of a local authority, be deemed to be incorporated with this Act and with the Sanitary Act (b) under the authority of which such sanitary work has been or is constructed or is maintained, with the following modifications (that is to say):

(1) For the purposes of such incorporation the said provisions of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, shall be construed as if the expression “the undertakers” referred to the local authority, and as if the expression “the special Act” referred to such Sanitary Act (b) and this Act, and as if expressions relating to pipes, conduits, or other works referred to the sanitary work (b):

(2) The local authority, by or with any notice under the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, of willingness to treat for or make compensation, or of intention to prevent or interfere with the working of any mines (c), may specify and define the nature and extent of support which they require to be left, and any such notice may extend to minerals beyond the distance of forty yards mentioned in the said Act or to such less distance as the local authority think fit (d) : Section 3.

- (3) As regards sanitary works existing at the passing of this Act the local authority shall cause the survey and map referred to in section nineteen of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, to be made within twelve months after the passing of this Act (e) :
- (4) The amount of any compensation in respect of support for a sanitary work (b) payable by a local authority under the provisions of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, as incorporated with this Act or the Sanitary Act (b), together with the costs of and incident to settling the same by arbitration or otherwise, shall be paid, charged, and borne in the same manner, and subject to the same powers and provisions as to borrowing and otherwise, as is provided with respect to the expenses of the construction or maintenance of the sanitary work by the Sanitary Act (f) :
- (5) A local authority may from time to time make agreements with the owners, lessees, or occupiers of or the persons working any mine for compromising any claim made or to be made in respect of anything done or omitted before the passing of this Act in relation to the matters in this Act mentioned or otherwise for carrying into effect the purposes of this Act in relation to the past or future working of mines.

The provisions of this Act shall apply to every sanitary work as defined in this Act, whether the land on, in, over, or under which such work is situate is or is not vested in or occupied by the local authority, and is or is not wholly or partially dedicated to the public as a street, highway, or public place (g).

(a) See these sections and notes thereto, ante, pp. 4179 et seq. These sections alter the common law where they are applicable. See Davies v. James Bay Rail. Co., [1914] 1 A. C. 1043 ; 83 L. J. P. C. 339 ; 111 L. T. 946 ; 30 T. L. R. 633. Common law right to lateral support.

The position of a local authority who have a common law right to lateral support of land owned by them was considered under the following circumstances : In 1875 the Manchester Corporation purchased by agreement under the powers of a special Act incorporating the Act of 1847, ante, p. 4176, (1) an estate from S., who reserved to himself the minerals thereunder, with full powers to work the same without making compensation ; (2) an adjoining estate from T., including the minerals. In 1875 the corporation obtained a further special Act, which incorporated the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, and under it they constructed a reservoir partly on the S. land and partly on the T. land. By s. 22 of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, ante, p. 4181, if the owner, lessee, or occupier of any mines lying under the reservoirs of the undertakers, or within forty yards therefrom, be desirous of working the same, he must give the undertakers notice in writing of his intention so to do thirty days before the commencement of working, and if it appear to the undertakers, after an inspection of the mines, that the working of the mines is likely to damage their works, and they be willing to pay compensation for the mines to the owner, lessee, or occupier thereof, then he shall not work the same ; and by s. 23, ante, p. 4182, if before the expiration of the thirty days the undertakers do not state their willingness to pay compensation to such owner, lessee, or occupier, he may work the mines as if that Act and the special Act had not been passed. The appellants, lessees of the mines under the S. land, gave notice to the corporation of their intention to work the mines under and adjacent to the reservoir, but the corporation gave no counter-notice of their willingness to pay compensation for the mines, and accordingly the appellants worked the mines and caused a subsidence of the T. land. In an action to restrain the appellants from so working their mines as to damage the T. land :—Held, that the mining sections (18—27) of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, ante, pp. 4179—4183, did not deprive the corporation of their common law right to lateral support of the surface of the T. land, and that they were entitled to an injunction in respect of the appellants' workings, both within and without the forty yards limit (New Moss Colliery, Ltd. v. Manchester Corporation, [1908] A. C. 117; 72 J. P. 169; 11 Digest 154, 356). See also Howley Park, etc. Co. v. L. & N. W. Rail. Co., [1913] A. C. 11; 11 Digest 152, 345, as to the common law right of support enjoyed by a railway company outside the forty yards limit referred to in the mining sections of the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ante, p. 4156. See also John Hargreaves, Ltd. (Exors.) v. Burnley Corporation, [1936] 3 All E. R. 959; 101 J. P. 87; Digest Supp.

(b) See the definition in the last section.

(c) The notice here referred to is the notice to the owner not to work the minerals, under the Act of 1847, ante, p. 4176.

(d) Forty yards is the distance prescribed by the Act of 1847. Under this Act the authority may require support to any extent, whether less or more than forty yards. This will to some extent, if not altogether, obviate the difficulty arising out of the decision in Metropolitan Board of Works v. Metropolitan Rail. Co., ante, p. 30.

(e) That is, on or before August 25th, 1884. See the section referred to, ante, p. 4180. Compliance with this requirement is a condition precedent to the right to recover damage for injury caused by subsidence (South Staffordshire, etc. Co. v. Mason (1886), 56 L. J. Q. B. 255; 11 Digest 153, 354).

(f) That is to say, such compensation shall be paid pursuant to the provisions of the principal Act, unless the work is done pursuant to a special Act or Provisional Order which makes special provision for these purposes.

(g) This clause was probably inserted to protect the rights of the owners of mines under roads vested in urban authorities under the P. H. A., 1875, s. 149, ante, p. 4375. It has been decided that that section does not vest the minerals in the urban authority (see cases in the notes thereto); and the Highway and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, s. 27, ante, p. 4611, contains an express provision with reference to the right to work mines under distumpiked roads which have become vested in an urban authority. See Att.-Gen. v. Conduit Colliery Co. there cited. The case of Normanton Gas Co. v. Pope (1883), 52 L. J. Q. B. 629; 49 L. T. 798; 11 Digest 154, 359, as to the right of subjacent support for gas pipes laid in a highway, may be referred to in illustration of this clause.

Limitation of right to support for sanitary works over
mines.

4. Except as in this Act provided, a local authority shall not by reason only of anything contained in the Sanitary Act (a) under the authority of which a sanitary work (b) has been or is constructed or maintained be deemed to have acquired or to be entitled to or to be bound to acquire or make compensation for any right of support for such sanitary work as against any person owning or working or being lessee or occupier of or entitled to work or otherwise interested in any mine; and nothing in such Sanitary Act shall be deemed to have subjected or to subject any such person to any liability to the local authority in respect of damage to a sanitary work caused in or consequent upon the working of any mines in a reasonable and proper manner.

(a) See the definition in s. 2, ante, p. 4666.

(b) This section gives the Act a retrospective operation, except in cases where a right of support has already been acquired, as to which see the next section, and Jary v. Barnsley Corporation, ante, p. 4664. Its effect is to prevent for the future the acquisition of any right of support otherwise than as provided by the Act. Therefore no such right can hereafter be acquired by prescription. But as to the common law right of support which may belong to a local authority, see New Moss Colliery, Ltd. v. Manchester Corporation, supra.

With reference to the operation of the Statute of Limitations upon the right of action arising out of subsidences caused by mining operations, see Darley Main Colliery Co. v. Mitchell (1886), 11 App. Cas. 127; 51 J. P. 148; 32 Digest 341, 238; Crumbie v. Wallsend L. B., [1891] 1 Q. B. 503; 55 J. P. 421; 17 Digest 91, 82; West Leigh Colliery Co., Ltd. v. Tunncliffe and Hampson, Ltd., [1908] A. C. 27; 17 Digest 91, 85.

Note to
Section 4.

5. Nothing in this Act shall be construed to repeal, invalidate, or Savings. affect any express enactment in a sanitary or other Act with respect to rights of support for sanitary works, or any agreement made before the passing of this Act with respect to such rights, or to affect any action, arbitration, or other legal proceeding concluded before or pending at the passing of this Act.

Where any right of support has been acquired (a) before the passing of this Act by a local authority in respect of any sanitary work, and no compensation is at the passing of this Act recoverable in respect of such right, nothing in this Act shall be construed to apply to the work in respect of which such right has been acquired, or operate to deprive the local authority of such right or to entitle any person to any compensation in respect thereof, to which such person would not have been entitled if this Act had not been passed.

(a) Note these words. This section was inserted to preserve to the local authority such rights of support as they had actually acquired by prescription or otherwise at the date of the Act. But such a right must have been actually acquired; in other words, if it is claimed to have been acquired by prescription, the prescriptive period must have been complete before the passing of the Act. If it was not complete the landowner will be entitled to the benefit of the Act.

As to such rights there is nothing in the previous sections which can apply so as to govern in any way the relative rights of the local authority and the landowner in respect of rights of support: see Jary v. Barnsley Corporation, ante, p. 4664.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH (CONFIRMATION OF BYELAWS) ACT, 1884.

(47 & 48 VICT. c. 12.)

An Act to amend the Public Health Act, 1875, so far as relates to the Confirmation of Byelaws. [19th May 1884.]

1. This Act may be cited as the Public Health (Confirmation of Short title Byelaws) Act, 1884, and shall be construed as one with the Public and Health Act, 1875. construction.

2. In this Act, if not inconsistent with the context, the following Definitions. expressions have the meanings hereinafter respectively assigned to them; (that is to say,)

“Incorporated enactments” means section one hundred and twenty-eight of the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847 (*), sections sixty-eight and sixty-nine of the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847 (†), and section forty-two of the Markets and Fairs Clauses Act, 1847 (‡), which Acts are hereinafter referred to as the Incorporated Acts (a):

(*) 10 &
11 Vict. c. 34,
s. 128: By-laws as to slaughterhouses.

Section 2.

(†) 10 &
11 Vict. c. 89.
ss. 68, 69 :
Byelaws as to hackney carriages and public bathing.

(‡) 10 &
11 Vict. c. 14,
s. 42 : Bye-laws as to markets.

“Confirming authority” means, as regards byelaws, rules, and regulations confirmed prior to the nineteenth day of August one thousand eight hundred and seventy-one, or made under any of the incorporated enactments by reason of the incorporation thereof with any local Act and confirmed prior to the tenth day of August one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two, one of her Majesty’s principal Secretaries of State ; and as regards other byelaws, rules, and regulations, the Local Government Board (b).

(a) The Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, s. 128 (13 Halsbury’s Statutes 573), provides that the commissioners, i.e., the urban authority, shall, from time to time, by byelaws to be made and confirmed in manner hereinafter provided, make regulations for the licensing, etc. of slaughter-houses, etc. The manner provided by that Act is set out in ss. 200—209 (13 Halsbury’s Statutes 593—595), which are not, however, incorporated with the Public Health Act, but it would seem, notwithstanding, that these provisions applied to byelaws made by a local authority pursuant to the P. H. A., 1875 (Wallasey Tramway Co. v. Wallasey L. B. (1883), 47 J. P. Jo. 821). However this may be, s. 202 required the byelaws to be confirmed in the prescribed manner, and if no manner of confirmation were prescribed, then by a judge of the superior courts or by the justices in quarter sessions. In order to remove all doubts with regard to the application of these provisions to byelaws made by a local authority under the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4468, this Act provides that no confirmation shall be necessary in future except that of the L. G. B. (now the Minister of Health). Provision is also made for the validity of past confirmation by the Secretaries of State under former Public Health Acts or local Acts. The foregoing remarks apply mutatis mutandis to the other incorporated enactments, all of which are set out, ante, pp. 4200, 4222.

(b) As to the provisions of the P. H. A., 1875, with regard to the confirmation of byelaws, see s. 184, ante, p. 4468. But see now s. 251 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1104, for the procedure in most cases.

Confirmation of byelaws.

3. Every byelaw made or to be made under any of the incorporated enactments by reason of the incorporation thereof with the Public Health Act, 1848, the Local Government Act, 1858, or the Public Health Act, 1875, or any local Act, or any provisional order or any Act confirming such provisional order, and every rule and regulation made or to be made by an urban authority under section forty-eight of the Tramways Act, 1870 (a), shall be deemed to have required or to require the confirmation of the confirming authority, and not to have required, or to require any other confirmation, allowance, or approval.

This section was repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346, Sched. III., Pt. V., ante, pp. 720, 730, so far as it relates to byelaws made under the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, s. 69 (13 Halsbury’s Statutes 604), by virtue of its incorporation with the P. H. A., 1848, the L. G. A., 1858, or the P. H. A., 1875. It is further repealed so far as it relates to byelaws made under s. 128 of the T. I. P. Act, 1847 (13 Halsbury’s Statutes 573), or s. 42 of the Markets and Fairs Clauses Act, 1847 (11 Halsbury’s Statutes 464), by virtue of their incorporation with the Acts of 1848, 1858 and 1875, by the Food and Drugs Act, 1938, s. 101, Sched. IV., Pt. I., ante, pp. 1451, 1456.

(a) See the section ante, p. 4998.

Saving clause.

4. This Act shall not invalidate the confirmation, allowance, or approval of any byelaw, rule, or regulation, confirmed, allowed, or approved prior to the passing of this Act, nor shall this Act apply to any byelaw made or to be made under any of the incorporated enactments by reason of the incorporation thereof with any local Act, if such byelaw has or will come into force without any confirmation, allowance, or approval, or if by the express provisions of the local Act and without reference to the provisions with respect to confirmation, allowance, or approval of byelaws in any of the incorporated Acts, such byelaw is required to be confirmed, allowed, or approved otherwise than by the confirming authority.

Section 4.

THE MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS (CORRUPT AND ILLEGAL PRACTICES) ACT, 1884.

(47 & 48 VICT. c. 70) (a).

An Act for the better Prevention of Corrupt and Illegal Practices at Municipal and other Elections.
[14th August, 1884.]

1. This Act may be cited as the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884.

(a) This statute applies to elections of urban district councillors and of rural district councillors under Rules made under s. 40 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 774. It is, therefore, set out here. It was made a permanent Act by s. 35 of the Representation of the People Act, 1918, post, p. 5175. The notes have reference only to the application of the Acts to elections of urban district councillors and of rural district councillors. For an amending Act of 1911, see post, p. 5118.

CORRUPT PRACTICES.

2.—(1) The expression “corrupt practice” in this Act means any of the following offences, namely, treating, undue influence, bribery, and personation as defined by the enactments set forth in Part One of the Third Schedule to this Act, and aiding, abetting, counselling, and procuring the commission of the offence of personation (a).

Definition and punishment of corrupt practices at municipal election.

(2) A person who commits any corrupt practice in reference to a municipal election shall be guilty of the like offence, and shall on conviction be liable to the like punishment, and subject to the like incapacities, as if the corrupt practice had been committed in reference to a parliamentary election (b).

(a) This provision takes the place of a repealed clause in s. 77 of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882. The offence of aiding, etc. the commission of the offence of personation is new. See further the East Kerry Case (1910), 6 O'M. & H. 58; 20 Digest 95, f.

(b) By the Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883, s. 6 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 467), corrupt practices other than personation, or aiding, etc. in the commission of personation, are declared to be misdemeanors, and any person convicted of any of them is liable to be imprisoned, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding two years, or to be fined any sum not exceeding £200. A person who commits the offence of personation or of aiding, etc. the commission of that offence, is guilty of felony, and liable on conviction to be imprisoned, with or without hard labour, for a period not exceeding two years. In addition to these punishments, a person who is convicted on indictment of any corrupt practices shall not be capable for a period of seven years from the date of his conviction (a) of being registered as an elector or voting at any election in the United Kingdom whether it be a parliamentary election or an election for any public office (see infra); or (b) of holding any public or judicial office (see infra), and if he holds any such office the office shall be vacated. Any person so convicted of a corrupt practice in reference to any election shall also be incapable of being elected to and of sitting in the House of Commons during the seven years next after the date of his conviction, and if at that date he has been elected to the House of Commons his election shall be vacated from the time of such conviction. By s. 64 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 500), the expression "public office" means any office under the Crown or under the charter of a city or a municipal borough, or under the Acts relating to municipal corporations, or to the poor law, or under the Elementary Education Act, 1870 (op. cit. 120), or under the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4331, or under any Acts amending the above-mentioned Acts, or under any other Acts for the time being in force (whether passed before or after the commencement of this Act) relating to local government, whether the office is that of mayor, chairman, alderman, councillor, guardian, member of a board, commission, or other local authority in any county, city, borough, union, sanitary district, or other area, or is the office of clerk of the peace, town clerk, clerk or other officer under a council, board, commission, or other authority, or is any other office to which a person is elected and appointed under any such charter or Act as above mentioned, and includes any other municipal or parochial office; and the expressions "election," "election petition," "election court," and "register of electors," shall, where expressed to refer to an election for any such public office, be construed accordingly. The expression "judicial office" includes the office of justice of the peace.

Note to

As to the form of indictment for corrupt practices, see R. v. Stroulger (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 327; 51 J. P. 278; 20 Digest 188, 1644.

Each act of bribery is a distinct offence for which separate penalties are incurred (Milnes v. Bale (1875), L. R. 10 C. P. 591; 39 J. P. 743).

Incapacity of candidate reported guilty of corrupt practice.
45 & 46 Vict.
c. 50.

3.—(1) Where upon the trial of an election petition (a) respecting a municipal election (b) for a borough or ward of a borough it is found by the report of an election court made in pursuance of section ninety-three of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882 (c), that any corrupt practice, other than treating and undue influence, has been proved to have been committed in reference to such election by or with the knowledge and consent of any candidate at such election, or that the offence of treating or undue influence has been proved to have been committed in reference to such election by any candidate at such election, that candidate shall not be capable of ever holding a corporate office (d) in the said borough, and if he has been elected his election shall be void; and he shall further be subject to the same incapacities as if at the date of the said report he had been convicted of a corrupt practice (e).

(2) Upon the trial of an election petition (a) respecting a municipal election (b) for a borough or ward of a borough in which a charge is made of any corrupt practice having been committed in reference to such election, the election court shall report in writing to the High Court whether any of the candidates at such election has been guilty by his agents of any corrupt practice in reference to such election, and if the report is that any candidate at such election has been guilty by his agents of a corrupt practice in reference to such election, that candidate shall not be capable of being elected to or holding any corporate office (d), in the said borough, during a period of three years from the date of the report, and if he has been elected, his election shall be void.

(a) As to election petitions in respect of corrupt practices, see the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, s. 87, ante, p. 4627; and in respect of illegal practices, see s. 25 of this Act, post, p. 4683. For the application of these sections to elections of urban district councillors and of rural district councillors, see Rules made under s. 40 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 774.

(b) This includes for the purposes of this Work, the election of urban district councillors and of rural district councillors. See the Election Rules reproduced, post, pp. 2538 et seq.

(c) Ante, p. 4631.

(d) This means the office of an urban or rural district councillor, as the case may be. See the Election Rules, ante, p. 2538. But where he is guilty of a corrupt practice by his agents only and not personally, he is not deprived of his right to vote at a parliamentary election (Morris v. Shrewsbury Town Clerk, [1909] 1 K. B. 342; 73 J. P. 28; 20 Digest 18, 105).

(e) These incapacities are set forth in note (b) to s. 2, ante, p. 4671. A single act of bribery by an agent will render an election void (Norwich Case, Birkbeck v. Bullard (1886), 54 L. T. 625; 4 O'M. & H. 84; 20 Digest 87, 671).

ILLEGAL PRACTICES (a).

Section 4.

4.—(1) No payment or contract for payment shall, for the purpose of promoting or procuring the election of a candidate at a municipal election, be made—

Certain expenditure to be illegal practice.

- (a) on account of the conveyance of electors to or from the poll, whether for the hiring of horses or carriages, or for railway fares, or otherwise; or
- (b) to an elector on account of the use of any house, land, building, or premises for the exhibition of an address, bill, or notice, or on account of the exhibition of any address, bill, or notice; or
- (c) on account of any committee room in excess of the number allowed by this Act (that is to say), if the election is for a borough one committee room for the borough, and if the election is for a ward one committee room for the ward (b), and if the number of electors in such borough or ward exceeds two thousand, one additional committee room for every two thousand electors and incomplete part of two thousand electors, over and above the said two thousand.

(2) Subject to such exception as may be allowed in pursuance of this Act, if any payment or contract for payment is knowingly made in contravention of this section either before, during, or after a municipal election (c), the person making such payment or contract shall be guilty of an illegal practice, and any person (d) receiving such payment or being a party to any such contract, knowing the same to be in contravention of this Act, shall also be guilty of an illegal practice.

(3) Provided that where it is the ordinary business of an elector as an advertising agent to exhibit for payment bills and advertisements, a payment to or contract with such elector if made in the ordinary course of business, shall not be deemed to be an illegal practice within the meaning of this section (e).

(a) The Act must be "taken to be amended as if the illegal practice defined by" the amending Act of 1911 "had been contained therein." The illegal practice referred to (see the Act, post, p. 5118) is the making or publishing of certain false statements with regard to a candidate.

(b) In applying this clause to elections of urban district councillors, the word borough or ward must be read to mean urban district or ward of such district, or parish or united parishes in the case of elections of rural district councillors.

(c) See note (b) to s. 3, ante, p. 4672.

(d) The word person here is presumed to mean elector in cases falling within clause (b), as it does not appear to be illegal to make payments such as those mentioned in that clause to any person other than an elector.

(e) This proviso qualifies the provisions of clause (b).

5. [Expense in excess of maximum to be illegal practice] (a).

(a) This section cannot apply to elections of urban district councillors for districts not being boroughs or of rural district councillors. See s. 37, post, p. 4689. So far as it was operative, it was amended by s. 1 of the Local Elections (Expenses) Act, 1919 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 645), which substituted "twopence for each elector" for "threepence for each elector."

6.—(1) If any person votes or induces or procures any person to vote at a municipal election, knowing that he or such person is prohibited, whether by this or any other Act, from voting at such election, he shall be guilty of an illegal practice (a).

Voting by prohibited persons and publishing of false statements of withdrawal to be illegal.

(2) Any person who before or during a municipal election knowingly publishes a false statement of the withdrawal of a candidate at such election for the purpose of promoting or procuring the election of another candidate shall be guilty of an illegal practice.

Section 6. (3) Provided that a candidate shall not be liable, nor shall his election be avoided, for any illegal practice under this section committed without his knowledge and consent (b).

(a) As to the persons prohibited from voting by this Act, see ss. 7, 8, 13, 18, 22, 23 and Sched. III., Part II. A convicted felon is disqualified to vote at any election until he has undergone his punishment or been pardoned (Forfeiture Act, 1870, s. 1 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 648)).

(b) But quære, if the illegal practice has been committed by his agents. It would appear from s. 8 (2), infra, that the election would be avoided in that event.

Punishment on conviction of illegal practice.

7. A person guilty of an illegal practice in reference to a municipal election shall on summary conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds and be incapable during a period of five years from the date of his conviction of being registered as an elector or voting at an election (whether it be a parliamentary election or an election for a public office (a) within the meaning of this Act) held for or within the borough (b) in which the illegal practice has been committed.

(a) As to what is a public office, see note (b) to s. 2, ante, p. 4671.

(b) See note (b) to s. 4, ante, p. 4673.

Incapacity of candidate reported guilty of illegal practice.
45 & 46 Vict. c. 50.

8.—(1) An illegal practice within the meaning of this Act shall be deemed to be an offence against Part Four of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882 (a), and a petition alleging such illegal practice may be presented and tried accordingly.

(2) Upon the trial of an election petition respecting a municipal election for a borough or ward of a borough (b) in which a charge is made of any illegal practice having been committed in reference to such election, the election court shall report in writing to the High Court whether any of the candidates at such election has been guilty by himself or his agents (c) of an illegal practice in reference to such election, and if the report is that a candidate at such election has been guilty by himself or his agents (c) of an illegal practice in reference to such election, the candidate shall not be capable of being elected to or of holding any corporate office (d) in the said borough during the period for which he was elected to serve, or for which if elected he might have served, and if he was elected, his election shall be void; and, if the report is that such candidate has himself been guilty of such illegal practice, he shall also be subject to the same incapacities as if at the date of the report he had been convicted of such illegal practice (e).

(a) This part of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, is set out, ante, p. 4626

(b) See note (b) to s. 4, ante, p. 4673.

(c) But in the case of the illegal practice defined by the amending Act of 1911, post, p. 5118, a candidate is not necessarily to be held responsible for the act of his agent: see s. 1 (4) ibid., post, p. 5118.

(d) See note (d) to s. 3, ante, p. 4672.

(e) These incapacities are stated in s. 7, supra.

ILLEGAL PAYMENT, EMPLOYMENT, AND HIRING.

Providing of money for illegal practice or payment to be illegal payment.

9. Where a person knowingly provides money for any payment which is contrary to the provisions of this Act, or for any expenses incurred in excess of any maximum amount allowed by this Act (a), or for replacing any money expended in any such payment, except where the same may have been previously allowed in pursuance of this Act to be an exception (b), such person shall be guilty of illegal payment (c).

(a) The provisions of this Act as to maximum expenses do not apply to elections of urban district councillors or of rural district councillors. See s. 37, post, p. 4689.

(b) See ss. 19, 20, post, p. 4678.

(c) Employment for payment of persons to keep order at meetings is an illegal employment (Ipswich Case, Packard v. Collings (1886), 54 L. T. 619; 20 Digest 78, 573). Gratuitous refreshments to workers render their employment illegal within this section (Barrow-in-Furness Case, Schneider v. Duncan (1886), 54 L. T. 618; 20 Digest 50, 326).

10.—(1) A person shall not let, lend, or employ for the purpose of the conveyance of electors to or from the poll at a municipal election, any public stage or hackney carriage, or any horse or other animal kept or used for drawing the same, or any carriage, horse, or other animal which he keeps or uses for the purpose of letting out for hire, and if he lets, lends, or employs such carriage, horse, or other animal, knowing that it is intended to be used for the purpose of the conveyance of electors to or from the poll, he shall be guilty of illegal hiring. Section 10.

Employment of hackney carriages, or of carriages and horses kept for hire (a).

(2) A person shall not hire, borrow, or use for the purpose of the conveyance of electors to or from the poll any carriage, horse, or other animal which he knows the owner thereof is prohibited by this section to let, lend, or employ for that purpose, and if he does do so he shall be guilty of illegal hiring.

(3) Nothing in this Act shall prevent a carriage, horse, or other animal being let to or hired, employed, or used by an elector, or several electors at their joint cost, for the purpose of conveying him or them to or from the poll.

(4) No person shall be liable to pay any duty or to take out a licence for any carriage by reason only of such carriage being used without payment or promise of payment for the conveyance of electors to or from the poll at an election.

(a) See the Hartlepool Case (1910), 6 O'M. & H. 1; 20 Digest 50, 329.

11. Any person who corruptly induces or procures any other person to withdraw from being a candidate at a municipal election (a), in consideration of any payment or promise of payment (b), shall be guilty of illegal payment, and any person withdrawing in pursuance of such inducement or procurement shall also be guilty of illegal payment. Corrupt withdrawal from a candidature.

(a) See note (b) to s. 2, ante, p. 4671.

(b) Note that the consideration must be payment or promise of payment. Withdrawal for other considerations is not within this section. By s. 34, post, p. 4688, and s. 64 of the Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 500), therein referred to, the expression "payment" includes any pecuniary or other reward, and the expressions "pecuniary reward" and "money" include any office, place or employment, and any valuable security or other equivalent for money, and any valuable consideration, and expressions referring to money must be construed accordingly.

12.—(1) No payment or contract for payment shall, for the purpose of promoting or procuring the election of a candidate at a municipal election, be made on account of bands of music, torches, flags, banners, cockades, ribbons, or other marks of distinction (a). Certain expenditure to be illegal payment.

(2) Subject to such exception as may be allowed in pursuance of this Act (b), if any payment or contract for payment is made in contravention of this section, either before, during, or after an election, the person making such payment shall be guilty of illegal payment, and any person being a party to any such contract or receiving such payment shall also be guilty of illegal payment, if he knew that the same was contrary to law (c).

(a) Cards to be worn in voters' hats bearing a likeness of the candidate and an invitation to vote for him, are marks of distinction within the meaning of this section (Walsall (Borough) Case, Hateley, Moss and Mason v. James (1892), 4 O'M. & H. 123; 20 Digest 48, 307).

(b) See ss. 19, 20, post, p. 4678.

(c) Note that ignorance of the law will not be an excuse for the party paying.

13.—(1) No person shall, for the purpose of promoting or procuring the election of a candidate at a municipal election, be engaged or employed for payment, or promise of payment for any purpose or in any capacity whatever (a), except as follows (that is to say), Certain employment to be illegal.

Section 13.

- (a) a number of persons may be employed, not exceeding two for a borough or ward (b), and if the number of electors in such borough or ward exceeds two thousand one additional person may be employed for every thousand electors and incomplete part of a thousand electors over and above the said two thousand, and such persons may be employed as clerks and messengers, or in either capacity; and
- (b) one polling agent may be employed in each polling station:

Provided that this section shall not apply to any engagement or employment for carrying into effect a contract bonâ fide made with any person in the ordinary course of business (c).

(2) Subject to such exception as may be allowed in pursuance of this Act (d), if any person is engaged or employed in contravention of this section, either before, during, or after an election, the person engaging or employing him shall be guilty of illegal employment (d), and the person so engaged or employed shall also be guilty of illegal employment if he knew that he was engaged or employed in contravention of this Act (e).

(3) A person legally employed for payment under this section may or may not be an elector, but may not vote (f).

(a) E.g., an election agent (Ex parte Walker (1889), 22 Q. B. D. 384; 53 J. P. 260; 20 Digest 145, 1199).

(b) See note (b) to s. 4, ante, p. 4673.

(c) This appears to be intended to meet the case of a person who contracts for the purposes of the election, e.g., for printing. The employees of such persons are not to be deemed to be employed within the meaning of this section.

(d) Note that ignorance of the law will not be an excuse for the party employing.

(e) See ss. 19, 20, post, p. 4678.

(f) This sub-section was repealed by s. 47 and the 8th Schedule to the Representation of the People Act, 1918, post, p. 5186, and by s. 9 (4) of that Act, post, p. 5170, it is provided that a person shall not be disqualified from voting by reason that he is employed for payment so long as the employment is legal.

Name and address of printer on placards.

14. Every bill, placard, or poster having reference to a municipal election (a) shall bear upon the face thereof the name and address of the printer and publisher thereof; and any person printing, publishing, or posting, or causing to be printed, published, or posted, any such bill, placard, or poster as aforesaid, which fails to bear upon the face thereof the name and address of the printer and publisher, shall, if he is a candidate, be guilty of an illegal practice, and if he is not the candidate, shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds (b).

(a) See note (b) to s. 2, ante, p. 4671.

(b) The appellant was a candidate for a seat on a local board. The respondent received from his own servant at his residence a printed address and letter having reference to the election, and purporting to be signed by the appellant, but having no printer's name thereon. This document was printed for publication by instructions conveyed to the printer in a letter from the appellant's brother, who resided with him. The printer debited the appellant with the cost of printing, but was not paid: — Held, on these facts, that there was no evidence that the appellant had "printed or caused to be printed" the document in question. Placards or posters also without the printer's name and address printed by the instructions of one E., who was advertised in a local newspaper as chairman of a committee for promoting the election of the appellant, and who sent the copy to the printer, were proved to have been posted about the district at E.'s expense. The court doubted whether this was evidence of the printing and posting by an agent of the appellant, but the justices having convicted the appellant in one penalty for both offences, and the conviction being bad as to the first: — Held, that it was bad altogether (Bettesworth v. Allingham (1886), 16 Q. B. D. 44; 50 J. P. 55; 20 Digest 130, 1036).

In the above case the court seemed to assume that a circular containing an election address was a bill, placard, or poster within the meaning of the section. In some cases which came before the courts subsequently, it was held that such a circular was not a bill, placard, or poster. See per Lord COLERIDGE, C.J. and MANISTY, J., in the cases reported in 5 T. L. R. 160; and per FRY, L.J., and MANISTY, J., ibid., 170. In other cases, however, the court granted relief under s. 20, post, p. 4678 (e.g., Ex parte Bartlett, Times, October 30th, 1900), so that the point is still in doubt.

In Alcott v. Emden (1904), 68 J. P. 434; 20 T. L. R. 487; 20 Digest 130, 1038, it was held that a circular sent out in August with reference to the possible candidature in November of a certain alderman for the office of mayor, such circular being headed "Shall he be our new mayor?" and six copies marked private being sent in sealed envelopes to certain persons interested in the election, was a bill with reference to a municipal election within the meaning of this section and should have borne the printer's name and address.

The name and address of the publisher must appear as well as those of the printer if they are different persons. It has not yet been expressly decided whether a candidate is liable to penalties under this section if he publishes a placard, etc. on which his name and address appear, but which does not explicitly describe him as the publisher; but in the year 1889 the High Court excused a number of candidates in respect of such omissions.

A person other than a candidate is not by this section declared to be guilty of an illegal practice, payment, employment, or hiring. He cannot, therefore, be excused under s. 20, post, p. 4678 (Re County Council Elections, Ex parte Lenanton, Ex parte Pierce (1889) 53 J. P. 263; 20 Digest 145, 1198).

Note to
Section 14.

15. The provisions of this Act prohibiting certain payments and contracts for payments, and the payment of any sum, and the incurring of any expense, in excess of a certain maximum, shall not affect the right of any creditor who, when the contract was made or the expense was incurred, was ignorant of the same being in contravention of this Act (a). Saving for creditors.

(a) Hence in the case of an expense incurred in contravention of the Act, the illegality of the expense will be no defence to an action by a creditor who, when the expense was incurred, was ignorant of its being in contravention of the Act. This provision is necessary for the protection of creditors who have no means of knowing what other expenses have been incurred by a candidate. The provisions of the Act as to maximum expenses do not, however, apply to elections of district councillors for urban districts not being boroughs or of rural district councillors. See s. 37, post, p. 4689. See ss. 19, 20, post, p. 4678.

16.—(1) (a) Any premises, which are licensed for the sale of any intoxicating liquor for consumption on or off the premises, or on which refreshment of any kind (whether food or drink) is ordinarily sold for consumption on the premises (a), or Use of certain premises for committee rooms or meetings to be illegal hiring.

(b) Any premises where any intoxicating liquor is supplied to members of a club, society or association, or any part of any such premises, shall not, for the purpose of promoting or procuring the election of a candidate at a municipal election, be used either as a committee room or for holding a meeting, and if any person hires or uses any such premises or any part thereof in contravention of this section he shall be guilty of illegal hiring, and the person letting or permitting the use of such premises or part thereof, if he knew it was intended to use the same in contravention of this section, shall also be guilty of illegal hiring.

(2) Provided that nothing in this section shall apply to any part of such premises which is ordinarily let for the purpose of chambers or offices or the holding of public meetings or of arbitrations, if such part has a separate entrance and no direct communication with any part of the premises on which any intoxicating liquor or refreshment is sold or supplied as aforesaid.

(a) It should be noticed that this section applies to any premises on which refreshment is sold for consumption on the premises, or on which liquor is sold, whether for consumption on or off the premises. It applies even where the door of communication between the part used for the election and the part used for the sale of intoxicating liquors is kept locked (Ex parte Payne, Times, November 2nd, 1894). Thus a place where sandwiches are sold for consumption at the counter was in one case which came before the court in 1839 held to be within this provision; but the section does not apply to a club unless liquor is supplied in it.

17.—(1) A person guilty of an offence of illegal payment, employment, or hiring shall, on summary conviction, be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds. Punishment of illegal payment, employment, or hiring.

Section 17. (2) Where an offence of illegal payment, employment, or hiring is committed by a candidate, or with his knowledge and consent, such candidate shall be guilty of an illegal practice (a).

(a) And punishable as provided by s. 7, ante, p. 4674.

Avoidance of election for extensive illegal practices, etc.

18. Where upon the trial of an election petition respecting a municipal election for a borough or ward of a borough it is found by the election court that illegal practices or offences of illegal payment, employment, or hiring, committed in reference to such election for the purpose of promoting the election of a candidate at that election, have so extensively prevailed (a) that they may be reasonably supposed to have affected the result of that election (b), the election court shall report such finding to the High Court, and the election of such candidate, if he has been elected, shall be void, and he shall not, during the period for which he was elected to serve, or for which, if elected, he might have served, be capable of being elected to or holding any corporate office (c) in the said borough.

(a) Note that this section may apply, although the practices in question have been committed by persons other than the candidate or his agents; but in such a case the candidate could protect himself under ss. 19, 20, infra.

(b) See also s. 1 (4) of the amending Act of 1911, post, p. 5118.

(c) See note (b) to s. 2, ante, p. 4671.

EXCUSE AND EXCEPTION FOR CORRUPT OR ILLEGAL PRACTICE OR ILLEGAL PAYMENT, EMPLOYMENT, OR HIRING.

Report exonerating candidate in certain cases of corrupt and illegal practice by agents.

19. Where, upon the trial of an election petition respecting a municipal election, the election court reports that a candidate at such election has been guilty by his agents of the offence of treating and undue influence, and illegal practice, or of any of such offences (a), in reference to such election, and the election court further report that the candidate has proved to the court—

- (a) that no corrupt or illegal practice was committed at such election by the candidate or with his knowledge or consent, and the offences mentioned in the said report were committed without the sanction or connivance of such candidate (b); and
 - (b) that all reasonable means for preventing the commission of corrupt and illegal practices at such election were taken by and on behalf of the candidate; and
 - (c) that the offences mentioned in the said report were of a trivial, unimportant, and limited character; and
 - (d) that in all other respects the election was free from any corrupt or illegal practice on the part of such candidate and of his agents;
- then the election of such candidate shall not, by reason of the offences mentioned in such report, be void, nor shall the candidate be subject to any incapacity under this Act.

(a) Note that the offences of bribery, personation, and aiding and abetting in the commission of personation are not included here.

(b) See also s. 1 (4) of the amending Act of 1911, post, p. 5118.

Power of High Court and election court to except innocent act from being illegal practice, etc.

20. Where, on application made, it is shown to the High Court or to a municipal election court by such evidence as seems to the court sufficient—

- (a) that any act or omission of a candidate at a municipal election for a borough or ward of a borough, or of any agent or other person, would, by reason of being in contravention of any of the provisions of this Act, be but for this section an illegal practice, payment, employment, or hiring (a); and

- (b) that such act or omission arose from inadvertence or from accidental miscalculation or from some other reasonable cause of a like nature, and in any case did not arise from any want of good faith; and
- (c) that such notice of the application has been given in the said borough as to the court seems fit;

Section 20.

and under the circumstances it seems to the court to be just that the said candidate, agent and person, or any of them, should not be subject to any of the consequences under this Act of the said act or omission, the court may make an order allowing such act or omission to be an exception from the provisions of this Act which would otherwise make the same an illegal practice, payment, employment, or hiring, and thereupon such candidate, agent, or person shall not be subject to any of the consequences under this Act of the said act or omission (b).

(a) Note that corrupt practices are not mentioned here.

(b) Relief may be given under this section by the High Court, on application for that purpose, or by an election court. As to the election court, see s. 92 of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, ante, p. 4680.

From the refusal of the High Court to grant relief under this section appeal lies to the Court of Appeal. See Ex parte Walker (1889), 22 Q. B. D. 384; 53 J. P. 260; 20 Digest 145, 1199. See also Ex parte Thomas (1889), 60 L. T. 728; 5 T. L. R. 234; 20 Digest 146, 1218; Ex parte Birtwhistle (1889), 5 T. L. R. 321.

In order to support an application under this section, it will not be sufficient that notice of intention to make the application has been advertised in the local papers, but such notice should be published in such a manner as will ensure a reasonable certainty that persons interested had notice; and it will also be insufficient if the affidavits upon which the application is made merely state that the act in respect of which the relief is sought arose from inadvertence, and not from any want of good faith, without showing some reasonable excuse for such inadvertence (Ex parte Perry (1884), 48 J. P. 824; 20 Digest 148, 1248). In the cases which came before the court in 1889 it was laid down that "inadvertence" meant negligence or carelessness where the circumstances showed an absence of bad faith. The court also required notice to be given to the opposing candidates and to the returning officer. The court also required that notices should be posted up throughout the district, and advertised in the local papers, that application would be made for relief. Notice need not, however, be given to the Attorney-General (Re County Council Elections, Ex parte Lenanton, Ex parte Pierce (1889), 53 J. P. 263; 5 T. L. R. 173; 20 Digest 145, 1198). Where an application for relief under similar circumstances is made by several candidates, a joint affidavit of the facts upon which the application is based ought to be made by all the applicants (Re Andrews, Re Streatham Vestry (1899), 68 L. J. Q. B. 683; 20 Digest 148, 1256).

There have been numerous applications to the High Court for excuse under this section especially in the beginning of the year 1889, with reference to the first elections of county councillors. These cases will be found reported in 5 T. L. R., pp. 178, 183, 195, 198, 208, 206, 220, and 272. They must not, however, be regarded as precedents, for the court granted relief almost as a matter of course where it was shown that the applicant had acted in ignorance of the law, but at the same time expressed an opinion that such an excuse would not afterwards be accepted. See the observations in Re Dunchurch Division Warwick County, Ex parte Darlington (1889), 53 J. P. 71; 20 Digest 146, 1217; Re County Council Elections, Ex parte Lenanton, supra. Since then see Ex parte Payne, Times, November 2nd, 1894; Ex parte Hughes, Times, November 24th, 1900. As to the ignorance of an agent reference may be made to Ex parte Polson (1923), 39 T. L. R. 231.

Among the cases reported before 1889 may be mentioned the following: Re Huntingdon (Borough) Municipal Election, Ex parte Clark (1885), 52 L. T. 260; 20 Digest 146, 1203, where placards had been issued without the printer's name; Ex parte Perry (1884), 48 J. P. 824; 20 Digest 148, 1248, where a room in a club had been used contrary to s. 16; Re South Shropshire Election (1886), 2 T. L. R. 347; 20 Digest 144, 1186, where payments were made after the proper time (and see Re Ipswich Case (1887), 3 T. L. R. 397); Ex parte Robson (1886), 18 Q. B. D. 336; 51 J. P. 199; 20 Digest 133, 1075, where a candidate who had incurred no expenses was allowed to make a return and declaration under s. 21 after the prescribed time; Ex parte Matthews (1886), 2 T. L. R. 548; 20 Digest 147, 1231, where a candidate had acted as his own agent, and had omitted to make a declaration of expenses. See also Ex parte Groom (1920), 42 M. C. C. 175. In Ex parte Touche (1915), 37 M. C. C. 219, relief was granted where the statutory maximum of expenses allowed in a case where there was no poll was exceeded in the expectation that there would be a poll for election of sheriffs. In the case of Re Essex, South West Division Case (1886), 2 T. L. R. 388; 20 Digest 51, 330, where a person voted, and afterwards accepted payment for services rendered as an agent, the court refused to relieve him. Ex parte Robson, (1886), 18 Q. B. D. 336; 51 J. P. 199; 20 Digest 133, 1075, was followed in Ex parte Pennington (1898), 46 W. R. 415; 20 Digest 133, 1076.

Section 20.

In Ex parte Gale (1905), 69 J. P. 281; 20 Digest 147, 1225, the candidate had postcards printed and issued, asking for the support of the electors, in ignorance that this was an illegal expense under s. 5 of this Act. He was relieved under this section.

Where a person had obtained an excuse for a late return of expenses, and subsequently on the same day, but after the order had been drawn up, a voter appeared to oppose the application, it was held that the application of the voter must be dismissed in the absence of any sufficient explanation of the delay (Re Wigan Case (1885), 2 T. L. R. 159; 20 Digest 148, 1252).

If the application is made by a person against whom a petition is pending, the court will order the application to stand over till after the trial of the petition (Ex parte Wilks (1885), 16 Q. B. D. 114; 50 J. P. 487; 20 Digest 147, 1238; Re County Councils' Elections, Evans Case (1889), 5 T. L. R. 206). But this course will not be followed merely because a petition is threatened (Re County Councillors' Elections, Stephen's Case (1889), ibid., 203). Even where a petition is pending, if the facts are not in dispute and the subject-matter of the application for relief was the sole ground of the petition, the application will be dealt with immediately (Ex parte Forster (1903), 67 J. P. 322; 89 L. T. 18; 20 Digest 147, 1240).

Relief will not be granted to a successful candidate unless he satisfies the court that the illegal practice cannot have affected the result of the election (Re Droitwich Elective Auditors' Case, Ex parte Tolley, Ex parte Slater (1907), 71 J. P. 236; 23 T. L. R. 372; 20 Digest 138, 1130).

Sending in claims and making payments for election expenses.

21. (a)—(1) Every claim against any person in respect of any expenses incurred by or on behalf of a candidate at an election of a councillor on account of or in respect of the conduct or management of such election (b) shall be sent in within fourteen days after the day of election, and if not so sent in shall be barred and not paid, and all expenses incurred as aforesaid shall be paid within twenty-one days after the day of election, and not otherwise, and any person who makes a payment in contravention of this section, except where such payment is allowed as provided by this section, shall be guilty of an illegal practice (c), but if such payment was made without the sanction or connivance of the candidate, the election of such candidate shall not be void, nor shall he be subject to any incapacity under this Act by reason only of such payment having been made in contravention of this section.

(2) Every agent of a candidate at an election of a councillor shall, within twenty-three days after the day of election, make a return to the candidate in writing of all expenses incurred by such agent on account of or in respect of the conduct or management of such election, and if he fails to do so shall be liable, on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds.

(3) Within twenty-eight days after the day of election of a councillor every candidate at such election shall send to the town clerk (d) a return of all expenses incurred by such candidate or his agents on account of or in respect of the conduct or management of such election, vouched (except in the case of sums under twenty shillings) by bills stating the particulars and receipts, and accompanied by a declaration by the candidate made before a justice in the form set forth in the Fourth Schedule to this Act, or to the like effect.

(4) After the expiration of the time for making such return and declaration the candidate, if elected, shall not, until he has made the return and declaration (in this Act referred to as the return and declaration respecting election expenses), or until the date of the allowance of such authorised excuse, as is mentioned in this Act, sit or vote in the council, and if he does so shall forfeit fifty pounds for every day on which he so sits or votes to any person who sues for the same (e).

(5) If the candidate without such authorised excuse as is mentioned in this Act fails to make the said return and declaration he shall be guilty of an illegal practice (c), and if he knowingly makes the said declaration falsely he shall be guilty of an offence, (g) . . . and such offence shall also be deemed to be a corrupt practice within the meaning of this Act. Section 21.

(6) The county court for the district in which the election was held, or the High Court, or an election court, may, on application either of the candidate or a creditor, allow any claim to be sent in and any expense to be paid after the time limited by this section, and a return of any sum so paid shall forthwith after payment be sent to the town clerk (h).

(7) If the candidate applies to the High Court or an election court, and shows that the failure to make the said return and declaration, or either of them, or any error or false statement therein, has arisen by reason of his illness or absence, or of the absence, death, illness, or misconduct of any agent, clerk, or officer, or by reason of inadvertence, or of any reasonable cause of a like nature and not by reason of any want of good faith on the part of the applicant, the court may, after such notice of the application and on production of such evidence of the grounds stated in the application, and of the good faith of the applicant, and otherwise as the court seems fit, make such order for allowing the authorised excuse for the failure to make such return and declaration, or for an error or false statement in such return or declaration, as the court seems just (i).

(8) The order may make the allowance conditional upon compliance with such terms as to the court seems calculated for carrying into effect the objects of this Act, and the order shall relieve the applicant from any liability or consequences under this Act in respect of the matters excused by the order.

(9) The date of the order, or if conditions and terms are to be complied with, the date at which the applicant fully complies with them, is referred to in this Act as the date of the allowance of the excuse.

(10) The return and declaration sent in pursuance of this Act to the town clerk shall be kept at his office, and shall at all reasonable times during the twelve months next after they are received by him be open to inspection by any person (k) on payment of the fee of one shilling, and the town clerk shall, on demand, furnish copies thereof or of any part thereof at the price of twopence for every seventy-two words.

(11) After the expiration of the said twelve months the town clerk may cause the return and declaration to be destroyed, or if the candidate so require shall return the same to him.

(a) This section does not apply to elections of urban district councillors for districts not being boroughs or of rural district councillors. See s. 37, post, p. 4689.

(b) Money paid by an agent of a candidate for the employment of persons to keep order at meetings connected with the election is within this provision (Ipswich Case, Packard v. Collings (1886), 54 L. T. 619; 20 Digest 78, 573).

(c) And therefore punishable as provided by s. 7, ante, p. 4674.

(d) This return and declaration must be made even in the case of an unopposed election, when the candidate has incurred no expenses. In such a case, however, the court granted relief under s. 20, ante, p. 4678 (Ex parte Robson, ante, p. 4679; Ex parte Pennington, ante, p. 4680). If the return is posted to the town clerk within the twenty-eight days, it is sufficient, although it does not reach him until after the expiration of that time (Mackinnon v. Clark, [1898] 2 Q. B. 251; 20 Digest 118, 963).

(e) Note that any person may sue. See Nichol v. Fearby, Nichol v. Robinson, [1923] 1 K. B. 480; 86 J. P. 204; 20 Digest 134, 1077. The Crown cannot remit the penalties. See Todd v. Robinson, ante, p. 829.

(g) Some words were repealed by the Perjury Act, 1911 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 772).

(h) Notice of application to the court must probably be given to the other candidates, to the returning officer, and to the public by advertisements (Salop Southern or Ludlow Division Case (1886), 54 L. T. 129; 34 W. R. 352; 20 Digest 144, 1186). An application for leave to pay the hire of a brougham used without authority by the clerk of a candidate was refused in Chelsea Parliamentary Election (1886), 2 T. L. R. 374; 20 Digest 102, 815.

For procedure in the county court, see County Court Rules, Order L., r. 16. Note that the county court is not mentioned in sub-ss. (7), (8), but it would probably be guided by them.

Note to
Section 21.

(i) The illness of an agent was accepted as an excuse in Re Ipswich Case (1887), 3 T. L. R. 397. See also Nichol v. Fearby, Nichol v. Robinson, [1923] 1 K. B. 480; 87 J. P. 70; 20 Digest 147, 1234, when relief was granted although application for same was not made until after the issue of the writ claiming penalties.

(k) Any person, not any person interested.

22. Every person guilty of a corrupt or illegal practice or of illegal employment, payment, or hiring at a municipal election (a) is prohibited from voting at such election, and if any such person votes his vote shall be void, and shall be struck off on a scrutiny.

corrupt or illegal practices

24.—(1) The town clerk in every municipal borough shall annually in July make out a list containing the names and description of all persons who, though otherwise qualified to be enrolled as burgesses of such borough, have under this Act, or under the Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883, or under any other Act for the time being in force relating to a parliamentary election or an election to any public office, become after the commencement of this Act, by reason of conviction of a corrupt or illegal practice, or of the report of any election court or election commissioners, incapable of voting at a municipal election in such borough or any ward thereof, and the town clerk shall state in the list (in this Act referred to as the corrupt and illegal practices list), the offence of which each person has been found guilty.

(2) For the purpose of making out such list he shall examine the report of any election court or election commissioners who have respectively tried an election petition or inquired into an election where the election (whether a parliamentary election or an election to any public office) was held in the said borough or in the county in which the said borough is situate.

(3) The town clerk of any municipal borough shall, not less than fourteen days before the first day appointed by law for the publication of the parish burgess lists in such borough, send the corrupt and illegal practices list to the overseers (a) of every parish wholly or partly within the borough, and the overseers shall publish that list together with the parish burgess lists, and shall also, in the case of every person in the corrupt and illegal practices list, omit his name from the list of persons entitled to be enrolled as burgesses or to be elected councillors, or, as circumstances require, add "objected" before his name in the list of claimants published by them, in like manner as is required by law in any other cases of disqualification.

(4) Any person named in the corrupt and illegal practices list may claim to have his name omitted therefrom, and any person entitled to object to any parish burgess list may object to the omission of the name of any person from such first-mentioned list. Such claims and objections shall be sent in within the same time and be dealt with in like manner, and any such objection shall be served on the person referred to therein in like manner, as nearly as circumstances admit, as other claims and objections under the enactments relating to the enrolment of burgesses.

(5) The revising authority shall determine such claims and objections and shall revise such list in like manner, as nearly as circumstances admit, as in the case of other claims and objections and of any parish burgess list and list of persons entitled to be elected councillors.

(6) Where it appears to the revising authority that a person not named in the list is subject to have his name inserted in the corrupt and illegal practices list, he shall (whether an objection to the omission of such name from the list has or has not been made, but) after giving such person an opportunity of making a statement to show cause to the contrary, insert his name in that list and expunge his name from any list of burgesses or of persons entitled to be elected councillors. Section 24.

(7) A revising authority in acting under this section shall determine only whether a person is incapacitated by conviction or by the report of any election court or election commissioners, and shall not determine whether a person has or has not been guilty of any corrupt or illegal practice.

(8) The corrupt and illegal practices list shall be appended to the burgess roll, and shall be printed and published therewith wherever the same is printed or published.

(9) Any town clerk or overseer who fails to comply with the provisions of this section shall be liable to the like fine as he is liable to under section seventy-five of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, for any neglect or refusal in relation to a parish burgess list as therein mentioned. 45 & 46 Vict. c. 50.

(a) Now to the rating authority (Overseers Order, 1927, Art. 3, ante, p. 3596).

PROCEEDINGS ON ELECTION PETITIONS.

25.—(1) A municipal election petition complaining of the election on the ground of an illegal practice (a) may be presented at any time before the expiration of fourteen days after the day on which the town clerk receives the return and declaration respecting election expenses by the candidate to whose election the petition relates, or where there is an authorised excuse for failing to make the return and declaration then within the like time after the date of the allowance of the excuse (b). Petition for illegal practice.

(2) A municipal election petition, complaining of the election on the ground of an illegal practice, and specifically alleging a payment of money or other act made or done since the election by the candidate elected at such election, or by an agent of the candidate, or with the privity of the candidate, in pursuance or in furtherance of such illegal practice, may be presented at any time within twenty-eight days after the date of such payment or act, whether or not any other petition against that person has been previously presented or tried. Time for presentation of petition alleging illegal practices.

(3) Any election petition presented within the time limited by the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, may, for the purpose of complaining of the election upon an allegation of an illegal practice, be amended with the leave of the High Court within the time within which a petition complaining of the election on the ground of that illegal practice can, under this section, be presented (c). 45 & 46 Vict. c. 50.

(4) This section shall apply notwithstanding the illegal practice is also a corrupt practice.

(a) A petition may be presented for a corrupt practice under the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, s. 87, ante, p. 4627.

(b) Under the Urban District Councillors Election Rules, 1934, and Rural District Councillors Election Rules, 1934, ante, pp. 2538, 2558, an election petition complaining of the election of an urban or rural district councillor on the ground of an illegal practice, may be presented at any time within six weeks after the day of election.

(c) A judge who is not on the rota for the trial of parliamentary election petitions cannot make an order giving leave to amend under this section. Such an order ought not to be made ex parte (Pontefract Case, Shaw v. Reckitt, [1893] 1 Q. B. 779). That question being a question of law, no appeal lies to the Court of Appeal from a decision of a Divisional Court thereon without leave to the Divisional Court (Pontefract Case, Shaw v. Reckitt, [1893] 2 Q. B. 59; 57 J. P. 805; 20 Digest 157, 1294).

Section 26.

Withdrawal of election petition.

26. (a)—(1) Before leave for the withdrawal of a municipal election petition is granted, there shall be produced affidavits by all the parties to the petition and their solicitors, but the High Court may on cause shown dispense with the affidavit of any particular person if it seems to the court on special grounds to be just so to do.

(2) Each affidavit shall state that, to the best of the deponent's knowledge and belief, no agreement or terms of any kind whatsoever has or have been made, and no undertaking has been entered into, in relation to the withdrawal of the petition; but if any lawful agreement has been made with respect to the withdrawal of the petition, the affidavit shall set forth that agreement, and shall make the foregoing statement subject to what appears from the affidavit.

(3) The affidavits of the applicant and his solicitor shall further state the ground on which the petition is sought to be withdrawn.

(4) If any person makes any agreement or terms, or enters into any undertaking, in relation to the withdrawal of an election petition, and such agreement, terms, or undertaking is or are for the withdrawal of the election petition in consideration of any payment, or in consideration that the seat shall at any time be vacated, or in consideration of the withdrawal of any other election petition, or is or are (whether lawful or unlawful) not mentioned in the aforesaid affidavits, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding twelve months, and to a fine not exceeding two hundred pounds.

(5) Copies of the said affidavits shall be delivered to the Director of Public Prosecutions a reasonable time before the application for the withdrawal is heard, and the court may hear the Director of Public Prosecutions or his assistant or other representative (appointed with the approval of the Attorney-General) in opposition to the allowance of the withdrawal of the petition, and shall have power to receive the evidence on oath of any person or persons whose evidence the Director of Public Prosecutions or his assistant, or other representative may consider material.

(6) Where in the opinion of the court the proposed withdrawal of a petition is the result of any agreement, terms, or undertaking prohibited by this section, the court shall have the same power with respect to the security as under section ninety-five of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, where the withdrawal is induced by a corrupt consideration (b).

(7) In every case of the withdrawal of an election petition, by leave of the election court such court shall report in writing to the High Court whether, in the opinion of such election court, the withdrawal of such petition was the result of any agreement, terms, or undertaking, or was in consideration of any payment, or in consideration that the seat should at any time be vacated, or in consideration of the withdrawal of any other election petition, or for any other consideration, and if so, shall state the circumstances attending the withdrawal.

(8) Where more than one solicitor is concerned for the petitioner or respondent, whether as agent for another solicitor or otherwise, the affidavit to be made by all such solicitors.

(a) See also the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, s. 95, ante, p. 4633.

(b) See this section, ante, p. 4633.

Continuation of trial of election
petition.

27. The trial of every municipal election petition shall, so far as is practicable consistently with the interests of justice in respect of such trial, be continued de die in diem on every lawful day until its conclusion.

28.—(1) On every trial of a municipal election petition the Director of Public Prosecutions shall by himself or by his assistant, or by such representative as hereinafter mentioned, attend at the trial, and it shall be the duty of such Director to obey any directions given to him by the election court with respect to the summoning and examination of any witness to give evidence on such trial, and with respect to the prosecution by him of offenders, and with respect to any person to whom notice is given to attend with a view to report him as guilty of any corrupt or illegal practice.

Attendance of Director of Public Prosecutions on trial of election petition, and prosecution by him of offenders.

(2) It shall also be the duty of such Director, without any direction from the election court, if it appears to him that any person is able to give material evidence as to the subject of the trial, to cause such person to attend the trial, and with the leave of the court to examine such person as a witness.

(3) It shall also be the duty of the said Director, without any direction from the election court, if he thinks it expedient in the interests of justice so to do, to prosecute, either before the said court or before any other competent court, any person who has not received a certificate of indemnity (a) and who appears to him to have been guilty of a corrupt or illegal practice at a municipal election.

(4) Where a person is prosecuted before an election court for any corrupt or illegal practice, and such person appears before the court, the court shall proceed to try him summarily for the said offence, and such person, if convicted thereof upon such trial, shall be subject to the same incapacities as he is subject to under this or any other Act, upon conviction, whether on indictment or in any other proceeding for the said offence; and further, may be adjudged by the court, if the offence is a corrupt practice, to be imprisoned, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding six months or to pay a fine not exceeding two hundred pounds, and if the offence is an illegal practice, to pay such fine as is fixed by this Act for the offence:

Provided that in case of a corrupt practice, the court, before proceeding to try summarily any person, shall give such person the option of being tried by a jury.

(5) Where a person is so prosecuted for any such offence, and either he elects to be tried by a jury or he does not appear before the court, or the court thinks it in the interests of justice expedient that he should be tried before some other court, the court, if of opinion that the evidence is sufficient to put the said person upon his trial for the offence, shall order such person to be prosecuted on indictment or before a court of summary jurisdiction, as the case may require, for the said offence (b); and in either case may order him to be prosecuted before such court as may be named in the order; and for all purposes preliminary and of and incidental to such prosecution the offence shall be deemed to have been committed within the jurisdiction of the court so named.

(6) Upon such order being made,

- (a) If the accused person is present before the court, and the offence is an indictable offence, the court shall commit him to take his trial, or cause him to give bail to appear, and take his trial for the said offence; and
- (b) If the accused person is present before the court, and the offence is not an indictable offence, the court shall order him to be brought before the court of summary jurisdiction before whom he is to be prosecuted, or cause him to give bail to appear before that court; and
- (c) If the accused person is not present before the court, the court shall as circumstances require issue a summons for his attendance, or a warrant to apprehend him and bring him before a court of summary jurisdiction, and that court, if the offence is an indictable offence, shall, on proof only of the summons or warrant and the identity of the accused, commit him to take his trial, or cause him to give bail to appear and take his trial for the said offence, or if the offence is punishable on summary conviction, shall proceed to hear the case, or if such court be not the court before whom he is directed to be prosecuted shall order him to be brought before that court.

Section 28.

(7) Any order or act of an election court under this section shall not be subject to be discharged or varied under sub-section six of section ninety-two of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882 (c).

45 & 46 Vict.
c. 50.

(8) The Director of Public Prosecutions may nominate, with the approval of the Attorney-General, any barristers or solicitors of not less than ten years standing, one of whom shall, when required, act as the representative for the purposes of this section of such Director, and when so acting shall receive such remuneration as the Treasury may approve. There shall be allowed to the Director and his assistant or representative, for the purposes of this section, such allowance for expenses as the Treasury may approve.

45 & 46 Vict.
c. 50.

(9) The costs incurred in defraying the expenses of the Director of Public Prosecutions under this section (including the remuneration of his representatives) shall, in the first instance, be paid by the Treasury, and so far as they are not in the case of any prosecution paid by the defendant, shall be deemed to be expenses of the election court, and shall be paid as the expenses of that court are directed by section one hundred and one of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, to be paid; but if for any reasonable cause it seems just to the court so to do, the court shall order all or part of the said costs to be repaid to the Treasury by the parties to the petition, or such of them as the court may direct (d).

(a) See the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, s. 92, ante, p. 4631.

(b) The evidence which is to satisfy the court before it makes the order means the evidence given during the trial of the petition, and, therefore, a commissioner for the trial of municipal election petitions acted within his jurisdiction in ordering the prosecution of a person to whom he had refused a certificate of indemnity, and who did not appear, without re-hearing the evidence affecting him, and also acted within his jurisdiction in issuing a summons under sub-s. (6), post, for his attendance before a court of summary jurisdiction, for the purpose of being formally committed for trial (R. v. Shellard (1889), 23 Q. B. D. 273; 53 J. P. 821; 20 Digest 192, 1684). The commissioner for the trial of municipal election petitions ordered certain persons, prosecuted before him for a corrupt practice committed at a municipal election in Nottingham, to be prosecuted on indictment for the offence at the ensuing assizes at Derby:—Held, that the commissioner had jurisdiction to order the trial at Derby; that his order was sufficient without describing the corrupt practice; that the Derbyshire grand jury could find, and the judge of assize had jurisdiction to try, the indictment; that “Derbyshire, to wit” in the margin of the indictment was sufficient, although the body of it disclosed offences in Nottingham only; that the words “a corrupt practice,” in the commissioner’s order, were reasonably interpreted “some corrupt practice,” and that the prosecution were not precluded from preferring a number of charges of bribery in the indictment (R. v. Riley, R. v. Campion (1890), 55 J. P. 21; 59 L. J. M. C. 122; 20 Digest 192, 1685).

(c) Ante, p. 4631.

(d) If a petition is utterly unfounded the petitioner may be ordered to pay the costs of the Director of Public Prosecutions (Lambeth, Kennington Division Case, Crossman v. Davis (1886), 54 L. T. 628; 20 Digest 117, 944). This section applies only to the trial of a petition. The costs of the Public Prosecutor cannot be ordered where the petition is withdrawn (Devonport Case, Pascoe v. Puleston (1886), 50 J. P. 134; 54 L. T. 733; 20 Digest 174, 1492).

Power to election court to order payment by borough or individual of costs of election
petition.

29.—(1) Where upon the trial of a municipal election petition it appears to the election court that a corrupt practice has not been proved to have been committed in reference to the election by or with the knowledge and consent of the respondent to the petition, and that such respondent took all reasonable means to prevent corrupt practices being committed on his behalf, the court may make one or more orders with respect to the payment either of the whole or such part of the costs of the petition as the court may think right as follows: Section 29.

- (a) If it appears to the court that corrupt practices extensively prevailed in reference to the said election, the court may order the whole or part of the costs to be paid by the borough (a); and
- (b) If it appears to the court that any person or persons is or are proved, whether by providing money or otherwise, to have been extensively engaged in corrupt practices, or to have encouraged or promoted extensive corrupt practices in reference to such election, the court may, after giving such person or persons an opportunity of being heard by counsel or solicitor and of examining and cross-examining witnesses to show cause why the order should not be made, order the whole or part of the costs to be paid by that person, or those persons or any of them (b), and may order that if the costs cannot be recovered from one or more of such persons they shall be paid by some other of such persons or by either of the parties to the petition.

(2) Where any person appears to the court to have been guilty of the offence of a corrupt or illegal practice, the court may, after giving such person an opportunity of making a statement to show why the order should not be made, order the whole or any part of the costs of or incidental to any proceeding before the court in relation to the said offence or to the said person to be paid by the said person to such person or persons as the court may direct (b).

(3) The rules and regulations of the Supreme Court of Judicature with respect to costs to be allowed in actions, causes, and matters in the High Court shall in principle and so far as practicable apply to the costs of petition and other proceedings under Part Four of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, and this Act, and the taxing officer shall not allow any costs, charges, or expenses on a higher scale than would be allowed in any action, cause or matter in the High Court on the higher scale, as between solicitor and client. 45 & 46 Vict. c. 50.

(a) Or urban district council or rural district council.

(b) As to the recovery of these costs, see s. 32, post, p. 4688.

MISCELLANEOUS.

30. Subject to the other provisions of this Act, the procedure for the prosecution of a corrupt or illegal practice or any illegal payment, employment, or hiring committed in reference to a municipal election, and the removal of any incapacity incurred by reason of a conviction or report relating to any such offence, and the duties of the Director of Public Prosecutions in relation to any such offence, and all other proceedings in relation thereto (including the grant to a witness of a certificate of indemnity), shall be the same as if such offence had been committed in reference to a parliamentary election; and sections forty-five and forty-six and sections fifty to fifty-seven (both inclusive), and sections fifty-nine and sixty of the Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883, shall apply accordingly (a) as if they were re-enacted in this Act with the necessary modifications, and with the following additions: General provisions as to prosecution of offences under this Act. 46 & 47 Vict. c. 51.

- (a) Where the Director of Public Prosecutions considers that the circumstances of any case require him to institute a prosecution before any court other than an election court for any offence other than a corrupt practice committed in reference to a municipal election in any borough (b), he may, by himself or his assistant, institute such prosecution before any court of summary jurisdiction in the county in which the said borough is situate or to which it adjoins, and the offence shall be deemed for all purposes to have been committed within the jurisdiction of such court; and

45 & 46 Vict.
c. 50.

- (b) General rules for the purposes of Part Four of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, shall be made by the same authority as rules of court under the said sections (c); and

Section 94 (7).

- (c) The giving or refusal to give a certificate of indemnity to a witness by the election court shall be final and conclusive.

(a) Therefore, where a private prosecutor prefers an indictment charging the commission of a corrupt practice the defendant, if acquitted, is entitled to recover from the prosecutor the costs sustained by reason of the indictment (R. v. Lau, [1900] 1 Q. B. 605; 20 Digest 189, 1647).

(b) See s. 36, post, p. 4689.

(c) That is, by the same authority by whom rules of court for procedure and practice in the Supreme Court of Judicature can be made. See the Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883, s. 56 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 497).

Person incapacitated by conviction or report to vacate seat or office.

31. If a person in consequence of conviction or of the report of an election court under this Act becomes not capable of being elected to or sitting in the House of Commons, or of being elected to or holding any public or judicial office (a), and such person, at the date of the said conviction or report, has been so elected or holds any such office, then his seat or office, as the case may be, shall be vacated as from that date.

(a) See s. 2, note (b), ante, p. 4671.

Payment and recovery of costs.

32.—(1) Where any costs of a petition are, under an order of a municipal election court, to be paid by a borough, such costs shall be paid out of the borough fund or borough rate (a).

(2) Where any costs or other sums are, under the order of an election court or otherwise under this Act, to be paid by any person, those costs shall be a simple contract debt due from such person to the person or persons to whom they are to be paid, and if payable to the Treasury shall be a debt to her Majesty, and in either case may be recovered accordingly.

(a) The general rate fund and general rate are substituted for the borough fund and borough rate by the R. and V. Act, 1925, ante, p. 2113. The expenses of the urban district council or of the rural district council, are now payable out of the general rate (L. G. A., 1933, ss. 188, 191, ante, pp. 1015, 1019).

Service of notices.

33. Where any summons, notice, or document is required to be served on any person with reference to any proceeding respecting a municipal election in any borough or ward of a borough (a), whether for the purpose of causing him to appear before the High Court or any election court, or otherwise, or for the purpose of giving him an opportunity of making a statement, or showing cause, or being heard by himself, before any such court for any purpose of this Act, such summons, notice, or document may be served either by delivering the same to such person, or by leaving the same at, or sending the same by post by a registered letter to, his last known place of abode in the said borough, or, if the proceeding is before any court, in such other manner as the court may direct, and in proving such service by post it shall be sufficient to prove that the letter was prepaid, properly addressed and registered with the post office.

(a) See s. 4, note (b), ante, p. 4673.

Definitions.

45 & 46 Vict.
c. 50.

34. In this Act expressions have the same meaning as in the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, and in the Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883; except that the words "borough," "election petition," "election court," and "candidate," shall, unless the context otherwise requires, have the meaning given by the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882; and not the meaning given by the Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883; and except that "election" shall, unless the context otherwise requires, mean a municipal election. Section 34.

46 & 47 Vict.
c. 51.

For the purposes of this Act the number of electors shall be taken according to the enumeration of the electors in the burgess roll (a).

APPLICATION OF ACT TO OTHER ELECTIONS.

(2) The judges for the time being on the rota for the trial of parliamentary election petitions, or any two of those judges, may annually appoint as many barristers, not exceeding five, as they may think necessary to be commissioners for the trial of election petitions under Part Four of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, and this Act, and shall from time to time assign the petitions (whether relating to a municipal election or to any other election to which this Act extends) to be tried by each commissioner.

37. The provisions of this Act which prohibit the payment of any sum, and the incurring of any expense by or on behalf of a candidate at an election, on account of, or in respect of, the conduct or management of the election, and those which relate to the time for sending in and paying claims, and those which relate to the maximum amount of election expenses, or the return or declaration respecting election expenses, shall not apply to any of the elections mentioned in the First Schedule to this Act (a). Exemption from provisions as to maximum expenses.

(a) The First Schedule has been repealed (see infra). By s. 48 (3) of the L. G. A., 1894, since repealed, this section was applied to every election regulated by rules framed under that Act as if the election were an election mentioned in the First Schedule to this Act. And by the Election Orders made under that Act, this section was to be read as if a reference to an election of urban or rural district councillors respectively was substituted for a reference to any of the elections mentioned in the First Schedule to the Act. The result was that this exemption from provisions as to maximum expenses, etc., applied to elections of rural district councillors and of urban district councillors for districts not being boroughs. In view of the provisions of s. 38 of the Interpretation Act, 1889, ante, p. 724, this position continues.

THIRD SCHEDULE.

PART I.

Enactments defining Corrupt Practices—Enactments defining the Offence of Bribery.

The Corrupt Practices Prevention Act, 1854, ss. 2, 3.

Bribery defined. S. 2. The following persons shall be deemed guilty of bribery, and shall be punishable accordingly (a):

- (1) Every person who shall, directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person on his behalf, give, lend, or agree to give or lend, or shall offer, promise, or promise to procure or endeavour to procure, any money or valuable consideration to or for any voter, or to or for any person on behalf of any voter, or to or for any other person, in order to induce any voter to vote or refrain from voting, or shall corruptly do any such act as aforesaid on account of such voter having voted or refrained from voting at any election.
- (2) Every person who shall, directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person on his behalf, give or procure, or agree to give or procure, or offer, promise, or promise to procure or endeavour to procure, any office, place, or employment to or for any voter, or to or for any person on behalf of any voter, or to or for any other person, in order to induce such voter to vote or refrain from voting, or shall corruptly do any such act as aforesaid on account of any voter having voted or refrained from voting at any election.
- (3) Every person who shall, directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person on his behalf, make any such gift, loan, offer, promise, procurement, or agreement as aforesaid, to or for any person, in order to induce such person to procure or endeavour to procure the return of any person to serve in Parliament, or the vote of any voter at any election.
- (4) Every person who shall, upon or in consequence of any such gift, loan, offer, promise, procurement, or agreement, procure, or engage, promise, or endeavour to procure the return of any person to serve in Parliament, or the vote of any voter at any election.
- (5) Every person who shall advance or pay, or cause to be paid, any money to or to the use of any other person with the intent that such money, or any part thereof, shall be expended in bribery at any election, or who shall knowingly pay or cause to be paid any money to any person in discharge or repayment of any money wholly or in part expended in bribery at any election: Provided always, that the aforesaid enactment shall not extend or be construed to extend to any money paid or agreed to be paid for on account of any legal expenses bona fide incurred at or concerning any election.

(a) It is beyond the scope of the present Work to enter into a detailed discussion of the law relating to bribery and other corrupt practices. For information on this subject the reader is referred to works on the law of elections. One or two decisions may, however, be mentioned.

As to corrupt employment, see Harding v. Stokes (1836), 1 M. & W. 354; (1837), 2 M. & W. 233; 20 Digest 129, 1030; giving money after election, R. v. Thwaites (1853), 1 El. & Bl. 704; 22 L. J. Q. B. 238; 20 Digest 129, 1031.

Y. canvassed M., a voter at a municipal election, for his party, and on M. expressing an intention not to vote, told M. he would be remunerated for loss of time:—Held, that this was bribery (Simpson v. Yeend (1869), L. R. 4 Q. B. 626; 33 J. P. 677; 20 Digest 129, 1032).

“In order to make the payment of a rate for the purpose of enabling voters to be registered affect the election, you must prove that it was done corruptly; that it was done thereby to influence their votes, which in my judgment means to induce them to vote for the person on whose behalf the payment was made": per MARTIN, B., in Cheltenham Case, Gardner v. Samuelson (1869), 1 O'M. & H. 62; 20 Digest 164, 1364. In order to make a third party responsible for the payment of a rate, it must be proved that he gave authority to the person to do the act. The common law rules of agency, therefore, and not those of election law, apply to this case (Wigan Case (1869), 1 O'M. & H. 188; Ward's Practice at Elections, p. 158; 20 Digest 63, 418).

A single case of bribery by an agent avoids an election (Norwich Case, Birkbeck v. Bullard (1886), 54 L. T. 625; 20 Digest 87, 671).

To offer a voter his travelling expenses if he will come and vote for a particular candidate is bribery (Ipswich Case, Packard v. Collings (1886), 54 L. T. 619; 20 Digest 78, 573).

In an indictment for bribery where the date of the offence, that is of the offer of the bribe, is given in the indictment, the date of the election need not also be alleged, and even if necessary might be inserted by way of amendment (R. v. Yeoman (1905), 20 T. L. R. 266).

S. 3. The following persons shall also be deemed guilty of bribery, and shall be punishable accordingly:

- (1) Every voter who shall, before or during any election, directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person on his behalf, receive, agree, or contract for any money, gift, loan, or valuable consideration, office, place, or employment, for himself or for any other person, for voting or agreeing to vote, or from refraining or agreeing to refrain from voting at any election.
- (2) Every person who shall, after any election, directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person on his behalf, receive any money or valuable consideration on account of any person having voted or refrained from voting, or having induced any other person to vote or refrain from voting at any election.

Bribery further defined.

The Representation of the People Act, 1867, s. 49 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 405).

S. 49. Any person, either directly or indirectly, corruptly paying any rate on behalf of any ratepayer for the purpose of enabling him to be registered as a voter, thereby to influence his vote at the future election, and any candidate or other person, either directly or indirectly, paying any rate on behalf of any voter for the purpose of inducing him to vote or refrain from voting, shall be guilty of bribery, and be punishable accordingly; and any person on whose behalf and with whose privity any such payment as in this section is mentioned is made, shall also be guilty of bribery, and punishable accordingly (a).

ment of rates to Enactment defining the Offence of Personation.

The Ballot Act, 1872, s. 24.

S. 24. A person shall, for all purposes of the laws relating to parliamentary and municipal elections, be deemed to be guilty of the offence of personation who, at an election for a county or borough, or at a municipal election, applies for a ballot paper in the name of some other person, whether that name be that of a person living or dead, or of a fictitious person, or who, having voted once at any such election, applies at the same election for a ballot paper in his own name (a).

Personation
defined.

(a) H. obtained a voting paper signed by B., who was entitled to vote in an election of councillors, and gave it to F., requesting F. to go with it to the poll and vote for two candidates, and stating that F. would run no risk in doing so. F. went and handed in the paper, but on being questioned admitted that he was not B., and the vote was not received:—Held, that H. was properly convicted under Municipal Corporations Act, 1859, s. 9, of inducing F. to personate a voter. Held, further, that it was sufficient for the conviction to state that H. induced F. to personate B., and that it need not set out the details of the process by which F. carried out the personation (R. v. Hague (1864), 4 B. & S. 715; sub nom. Hague v. Brown, 28 J. P. 231; 20 Digest 188, 1642).

If a man applies to the presiding officer for a ballot paper in a name other than his name of origin, or in the name by which he is generally known, but in a name which appears on the register, and which was inserted by the overseers in the belief that it was the name of the applicant, and for the purpose of putting him on the register, he is entitled to vote, and is not a person who "applies for a ballot paper in the name of some other person, whether that name be that of a person living or dead, or of a fictitious person" (R. v. Fox (1887), 16 Cox, C. C. 166; 20 Digest 98, 773).

Sched. III.

In order to sustain a conviction for personation it is not necessary to state in the indictment, or to prove at the trial, that the presiding officer at the booth where the offence was committed was duly appointed. Seemle, the appointment of a presiding officer need not be in writing (R. v. Garvey (1887), 16 Cox, C. C. 252 (C. C. R. Ir. ; 20 Digest 188, d)).

Enactments defining the Offences of Treating and Undue Influence.

The Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883, ss. 1, 2.

What is treating.

S. 1. Any person who corruptly by himself or by any other person, either before, during, or after an election, directly or indirectly gives or provides, or pays wholly or in part the expense of giving or providing any meat, drink, entertainment, or provision to or for any person for the purpose of corruptly influencing that person or any other person to give or refrain from giving his vote at the election, or on account of such person or any other person having voted or refrained from voting, or being about to vote or refrain from voting at such election, shall be guilty of treating.

And every elector who corruptly accepts or takes any such meat, drink, entertainment or provision, shall also be guilty of treating (a).

(a) Treating is not the entertainment of equals by equals, but of an inferior by a superior, with the object of securing the goodwill of the inferior (Norwich Case, Birkbeck v. Bullard (1886), 54 L. T. 625 ; 20 Digest 87, 671). Giving a school feast was held not to be treating in the Aylesbury Case (1886), 4 O'M. & H. 59 ; 20 Digest 52, 344. It must be proved that the voter got his refreshment on account of his having polled or being about to poll (per MANISTY, J., in Hargreaves v. Simpson (1879), 4 Q. B. D. 403 ; 43 J. P. 767 ; 20 Digest 129, 1034).

What is undue influence.

S. 2. Every person who shall directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person on his behalf, make use of or threaten to make use of any force, violence, or restraint, or inflict or threaten to inflict, by himself or by any other person, any temporal or spiritual injury, damage, harm, or loss upon or against any person in order to induce or compel such person to vote or refrain from voting, or on account of such person having voted or refrained from voting at any election, or who shall by abduction, duress, or any fraudulent device or contrivance impede or prevent the free exercise of the franchise of any elector, or shall thereby compel, induce, or prevail upon any elector either to give or to refrain from giving his vote at any election, shall be guilty of undue influence.

Enactment defining the Offences of Bribery, Treating, Undue Influence, and Personation.

The Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, s. 77.

Definitions.

S. 77. "Bribery," "treating," "undue influence," and "personation" include respectively anything done before, at, after, or with respect to a municipal election, which, if done before, at, after, or with respect to a parliamentary election, would make the person doing the same liable to any penalty, punishment, or disqualification for bribery, treating, undue influence, or personation, as the case may be, under any Act for the time being in force with respect to parliamentary elections.

Section 23.

PART II.Enactments relating to Disqualification of Electors.

The Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883, ss. 37, 38.

Prohibition of disqualified persons from voting.

35 & 36 Vict.
c. 60.
45 & 46 Vict.
c. 50.

S. 37. Every person who, in consequence of conviction or of the report of any election court or election commissioners under this Act, or under the Corrupt Practices (Municipal Elections) Act, 1872, or under Part IV. of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, or under any other Act for the time being in force relating to corrupt practices at any election for any public office, has become incapable of voting at any election, whether a parliamentary election or an election to any public office, is prohibited from voting at any such election, and his vote shall be void.

Hearing of person before he is reported guilty of corrupt or illegal practice, and incapacity of person reported guilty.

S. 38.—(1) Before a person, not being a party to an election petition nor a candidate on behalf of whom the seat is claimed by an election petition, is reported by an election court . . . to have been guilty, at an election, of any corrupt or illegal practice, the court . . . shall cause notice to be given to such person, and if he appears in pursuance of the notice, shall give him an opportunity of being heard by himself and of calling evidence in his defence to show why he should not be so reported (d).

(5) Every person who, after the commencement of this Act, is reported by any election court . . . to have been guilty of any corrupt or illegal practice at an election, shall, whether he obtained a certificate of indemnity or not, be subject to the same incapacity as he would be subject to if he had at the date of such election been convicted of the offence of which he is reported to have been guilty. . . .

(6) Where a person who is a justice of the peace is reported by any election court . . . to have been guilty of any corrupt practice in reference to any election, whether he has obtained a certificate of indemnity or not, it shall be the duty of the Director of Public Prosecutions to report the case to the Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain, with such evidence as may have been given of such corrupt practice, and where any such person acts as a justice of the peace by virtue of his being or having been mayor of a borough, the Lord High Chancellor shall have the same power to remove such person from being a justice of the peace as if he was named in a commission of the peace.

(7) Where a person who is a barrister or a solicitor, or who belongs to any profession the admission to which is regulated by law, is reported by any election court . . . to have been guilty of any corrupt practice in reference to an election, whether such person has obtained a certificate of indemnity or not, it shall be the duty of the Director of Public Prosecutions to bring the matter before the Inn of Court, High Court, or tribunal having power to take cognizance of any misconduct of such person in his profession, and such Inn of Court, High Court, or tribunal may deal with such person in like manner as if such corrupt practice were misconduct by such person in his profession.

(8) With respect to a person holding a licence or certificate under the Licensing Acts (in this section referred to as a licensed person) the following provisions shall have effect:

- (a) If it appears to the court by which any licensed person is convicted of the offence of bribery or treating that such offence was committed on his licensed premises, the court shall direct such conviction to be entered in the proper register of licences:
- (b) If it appears to an election court . . . that a licensed person has knowingly suffered any bribery or treating in reference to any election to take place upon his licensed premises, such court . . . (subject to the provisions of this Act as to a person having an opportunity of being heard by himself and producing evidence before being reported) shall report the same: and, whether such person obtained a certificate of indemnity or not, it shall be the duty of the Director of Public Prosecutions to bring such report before the licensing justices from whom or on whose certificate the licensed person obtained his licence, and such licensing justices shall cause such report to be entered in the proper register of licences:
- (c) Where an entry is made in the register of licences of any such conviction or report respecting any licensed person as above in this section mentioned, it shall be taken into consideration by the licensing justices in determining whether they will or will not grant to such person the renewal of his licence or certificate, and may be a ground, if the justices think fit, for refusing such renewal.

(a) This section excludes the right of a person charged with any corrupt or illegal practice at a municipal election to be heard by his counsel or solicitor (R. v. Mansel Jones (1889), 23 Q. B. D. 29; 53 J. P. 739; 20 Digest 187, 1626). But such a person must have an opportunity of being heard at least by himself (R. v. Mansel Jones (1894), 10 T. L. R. 515). Where after the trial of a municipal election petition the commissioner has reported persons as having been guilty of corrupt practices, the High Court has no jurisdiction to set aside or amend his report on the ground that the notice prescribed by this section was not given to the persons reported (Preece v. Harding (1889), 24 Q. B. D. 110; 20 Digest 187, 1624; Re Wigan Municipal Case, Ex parte Johnson (1894), 38 Sol. J. 386).

Justice of the Peace for _____

THE DISUSED BURIAL GROUNDS ACT, 1884.

(47 & 48 VICT. c. 72) (a).

An Act for preventing the erection of Buildings on Disused Burial Grounds.

[14th August, 1884.]

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited as the Disused Burial Grounds Act, 1884.

(a) The preamble to this Act, reciting Burial Act, 1852, and Burial Act, 1853 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 190, 210), and a few words in s. 3, are repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1898 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1173).

Interpretation clause.

2. In this Act a "disused burial ground" shall mean a burial ground in respect of which an Order in Council has been made for the discontinuance of burials therein in pursuance of the provisions of the said recited Acts (a).

(a) For the definition of a burial ground as used in this Act, see the Open Spaces Act, 1887, s. 4, post, p. 4699, which section is to that extent not repealed by the Open Spaces Act, 1906, post, p. 5016. That definition includes land "set apart for the purposes of interment," even though it has been so set apart in contravention of an Order in Council made under s. 1 of the Burial Act, 1853 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 210), and consequently can never be lawfully used for the purposes of interment (Re Bosworth and Gravesend Corporation, [1905] 2 K. B. 426; 69 J. P. 337; 7 Digest 540, 204; following Ward v. Portsmouth Corporation, [1898] 2 Ch. 191; 62 J. P. 820; 7 Digest 540, 203). These cases were discussed in Nicholl v. Llantwit Major Parish Council, [1924] 2 Ch. 214; 131 L. T. 634; Digest Supp., and doubt was expressed by TOMLIN, J., as to the correctness of the decisions. In the last-mentioned case it was held that land acquired for use as a burial ground but found unsuitable for the purpose and never used for interment was not a "disused burial ground." The case of Nicholl v. Llantwit Major Parish Council was distinguished and the earlier cases followed in London C. C. v. Greenwich Corporation, [1929] 1 Ch. 305; 93 J. P. 123; Digest Supp. See note (b), post, p. 4699, s. 143 (4) of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1742, and Sched. III., Pt. II., para. 4 (iv) of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932, ante, p. 1997.

3. It shall not be lawful to erect any buildings upon any disused burial ground, except for the purpose of enlarging a church, chapel, meeting-house, or other places of worship (a). Section 3.

No buildings to be erected upon disused burial grounds, except for enlargement, etc.

(a) A. agreed to sell to B. a chapel and adjoining ground, in which human remains were interred. Both A. and B. knew of the interments, and also that B. intended to use the ground for building. After the contract was entered into, and before completion, the above Act was passed, rendering building on "disused burial grounds" illegal. It was admitted that the land sold was a disused burial ground within the meaning of the Act:—Held, that B. was, nevertheless, bound to complete his contract (Bolesworth v. Davis (1886), 3 T. L. R. 214; 7 Digest 555, 318). A perpetual injunction was granted against a vestry for erecting a band stand on a disused burial ground which had been thrown open to the public as an open space (Att.-Gen. v. St. Pancras Vestry (1893), 58 J. P. 22; 7 Digest 555, 316). And see In re Ecclesiastical Commissioners and New City of London Brewery Co.'s Contract, [1895] 1 Ch. 702; 7 Digest 552, 293. The erection of a screen by a local authority for the purpose of preventing an adjoining landowner, who had built on his land houses overlooking a disused churchyard, from acquiring any right of light, is not a building under this section and cannot be restrained by injunction (Paddington Corporation v. Att.-Gen., [1906] A. C. 1; 70 J. P. 41; 7 Digest 553, 300).

A faculty was refused for the construction of an underground electricity transformer in a "disused burial ground" on the ground that it was within the prohibition in s. 3 in the text (St. Nicholas Acons (Rector and Churchwardens) v. L. C. C., [1928] A. C. 469; 92 J. P. 185; Digest Supp.). Where an application was made for a faculty to authorise, under the Open Spaces Act, 1906, post, p. 5016, the conversion of a disused burial ground into an open space and its laying out for such purpose including the erection of urinals and a toolshed, the urinals were excluded from the grant of the faculty as "buildings," but the toolshed was held not to be a "building" within the Acts (Bermondsey B. C. v. Mortimer, [1926] P. 87; Digest Supp.).

So far as this section relates to churches it only permits buildings to be erected which are in physical communication with the church and enlarge it for the main and primary purpose of religious worship. It would not therefore permit the erection of a separate building to be used as a vestry hall and for Sunday schools and other parochial purposes (London C. C. v. Dundas, [1904] P. 1; 7 Digest 554, 315).

4. Nothing in this Act shall prevent the erection of any building on a disused burial ground for which a faculty has been obtained before the passing of this Act. Savings for buildings already sanctioned.

5. Nothing in this Act contained shall apply to any burial ground which has been sold or disposed of under the authority of any Act of Parliament (a). Savings of burial ground sold by Act of Parliament

(a) This section applies to dispositions made after the Act (In re Ecclesiastical Commissioners and New City of London Brewery Co.'s Contract, [1895] 1 Ch. 702; 7 Digest 552, 293; Att.-Gen. v. London Parochial Charities Trustees, [1896] 1 Ch. 541; 7 Digest 552, 298). Under s. 24 of the Burial Act, 1857 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 235), power to let and sell the unconsecrated parts of disused burial grounds was given to the trustees thereof, the proceeds to be applied in discharge of incumbrances and the balance for the benefit of the parish as the vestry should direct. For a decision as to the present right to direct the application of the proceeds in such a case, see St. George's, Hanover Square (Rector and Churchwardens) v. Westminster Corporation, [1910] A. C. 225; 74 J. P. 153; 7 Digest 551, 287. The trustees of a disused chapel and burial ground had applied to the Charity Commissioners for their sanction to the sale of the premises as a building site. It was held that such a sale by order of the Commissioners would not be a "sale or disposition under the authority of any Act of Parliament" within the meaning of this section (In re Howard Street Congregational Chapel, Sheffield, [1913] 2 Ch. 690; 7 Digest 552, 296). A sale of a disused burial ground by the Admiralty under their general powers of sale of surplus lands under the Admiralty Lands and Works Act, 1864 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 370), is not a sale under the authority of an Act of Parliament within this section (London C. C. v. Greenwich Corporation, [1929] 1 Ch. 305; 93 J. P. 123; Digest Supp.).

THE QUARRY (FENCING) ACT, 1887.

Section 1.

THE LOCAL LOANS SINKING FUNDS ACT, 1885.

(48 & 49 VICT. 30) (a).

An Act to amend the Local Loans Act, 1875, as regards the Establishment of a Sinking Fund. [22nd July, 1885.]

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited for all purposes as the Local Loans Sinking Funds Act, 1885.

(a) This Act amends the Local Loans Act, 1875, ante, p. 4530. Section 13 of that Act, ante, p. 4535, which provides for the discharge of loans, enacts that such discharge shall be secured by one or more of certain prescribed methods. Of these methods one relates to a sinking fund, and is in these words: "Where a sinking fund is prescribed, but not otherwise [such discharge shall be secured], by the establishment of a sinking fund, and the application thereof in manner in this Act mentioned." The amending Act in effect repeals the words printed in italics, and enables a loan to be discharged by means of a sinking fund, although it has not been prescribed by the special Act authorising the loan. The preamble to this Act and s. 3 are repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1898 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1173). Reference should be made to s. 198 (2) of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1034, for the power given to suspend sinking-fund payments in case of money borrowed for revenue producing works.

Limits of Act.

2. This Act shall not extend to Scotland or Ireland.

3. [Commencement of Act, September 1st, 1885.]

Discharge of loans by sinking funds.

38 & 39 Vict. c. 83.

4. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Local Loans Act, 1875, every loan borrowed in manner provided by that Act may be discharged by the establishment of a sinking fund as therein mentioned, notwithstanding that a sinking fund may not have been prescribed by the special Act authorising the loan.

THE QUARRY (FENCING) ACT, 1887.

(50 & 51 VICT. c. 19.)

An Act to provide for the Fencing of Quarries.

[19th July, 1887.]

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited as the Quarry (Fencing) Act, 1887.

2. [Commencement of Act, January 1st, 1888.]

Fencing of quarries.

3. Where any quarry dangerous to the public is in open or uninclosed land, within fifty yards of a highway or place of public resort dedicated to the public, and is not separated therefrom by a secure and sufficient fence, it shall be kept reasonably fenced for the prevention of accidents, and unless so kept shall be deemed to be a nuisance liable to be dealt with summarily in manner provided by the Public Health Act, 1875 (a).

(a) An unfenced quarry which is within this section is, therefore, a nuisance within the meaning of the former s. 91 of the P. H. A., 1875 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 661), now s. 92 of the Act of 1936, ante, p. 293. Proceedings may consequently be taken against the owner or occupier under that and the succeeding sections. Notice must be given to the owner or occupier under s. 93, ante, p. 300, requiring the nuisance to be abated by the erection of a proper fence. If the notice is disregarded complaint may be made to justices under s. 94, ante, p. 307, and the local authority may themselves abate the nuisance and recover the expenses under ss. 95 (2), 96, ante, pp. 314, 315. But members of a district council are not liable to a charge of manslaughter in case anyone is killed by falling into an unfenced quarry merely because that council have omitted to exercise their powers under the above-mentioned enactments (R. v. Clerk of Assize of Oxford Circuit, [1897] 1 Q. B. 370; 61 J. P. 197; 13 Digest 249, 228). See also as to the common law obligation on the possessor of a dangerous excavation by the side of the highway to keep it fenced off (Att.-Gen. v. Roe, [1915] 1 Ch. 235; 79 J. P. 263; 7 Digest 285, 148).

Note to
Section 3.

It should be noticed that this Act applies to quarries which are being worked as well as to those which have ceased to be worked. In this respect it differs from the somewhat similar provisions of the Coal Mines Act, 1911, post, p. 5120, and the Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act, 1872 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 19).

As to the repair and enclosing of dangerous places, and the fencing of lands adjoining streets, see ss. 30 and 31 of the P. H. A. Amendment A., 1907, post, pp. 5050—52.

The plaintiff was in the occupation of the surface of a field, and the defendants were in the occupation of a quarry in the same field, which they had enlarged. Both held under the same landlord. The quarry was entirely unfenced. One of the plaintiff's bullocks fell into the quarry and was killed:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover damages from the defendants for the loss of the bullock (Hawken v. Shearer and Another, W. N. (1887) 89; 56 L. J. Q. B. 284; 7 Digest 288, 166).

A proprietor is under no obligation to fence a disused quarry on his property which is at a distance of upwards 150 yards from the nearest point of the public road. A person on a dark night left the public road, and was found in the morning in a dying state at the bottom of the face of a disused quarry, eighteen feet in height. The quarry was more than 150 yards from the nearest point of the public road. A path, which had served as an access to the quarry when it was in use eight years before, left the public road about 200 yards from the quarry, and continued towards the quarry, which was overgrown with long grass and willows. The path was occasionally used by inhabitants of the district, but, against the remonstrances of the proprietor and his tenant, passed within six yards of the edge of the quarry face. The person who had fallen in was a stranger in the district, and was unable to give any account of how he had reached the spot where he fell. In an action for damages against the proprietor by the representatives of the deceased, a jury found for pursuers. A new trial was granted on the ground that the evidence disclosed no fault on the part of the defender (Prentices v. Assets Co., Ltd. (1890), 17 Ct. of Sess. Cas. (4th ser.) 484; 7 Digest 286, 157 ii).

4. In this Act—

Interpretation.

The term “quarry” includes every pit or opening made for the purpose of getting stone, slates, lime, chalk, clay, gravel, or sand, but not any natural opening.

5. This Act shall not extend to Scotland and Ireland.

THE WATER COMPANIES (REGULATION OF POWERS)
ACT, 1887.

(50 & 51 VICT. c. 21.)

An Act to limit the Powers of the Water Companies to cut off the Tenant's Water Supply where the Rate is paid by the Landlord. [8th August, 1887].

1. This Act may be cited as “The Water Companies (Regulation of Powers) Act, 1887.” Short title.

2. This Act shall not extend to Scotland or Ireland.

Extent of Act.

3. This Act shall apply to every water company which is a trading company supplying water for profit (a), and to which any of the provisions of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, have been or shall be made applicable by any special Act or Provisional Order confirmed by Parliament, and every such special Act or Provisional Order shall be deemed to be amended by this Act, and shall be construed accordingly (b). Application of Act.

(a) See Metropolitan Water Board v. Berton, [1921] 1 Ch. 299.

(b) From this section it appears that it does not apply to a local authority supplying water by virtue of the powers contained in the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 4, as such an authority is not a trading company supplying water for profit. The Provisional Order here referred to is an Order obtained under the Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870, ante, p. 4264, and the Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870, Amendment Act, 1873, ante, p. 4328.

Section 4.

Water not to be cut off where the water rate is payable by the owner.

4. Where the owner and not the occupier is liable by law (a) or by agreement with the water company to the payment of the water rate in respect of any dwelling-house or part of a dwelling-house occupied as a separate tenement no water company shall cut off the water supply for non-payment of the water rate (b), but such water rate, without prejudice to the other remedies of the company for enforcing payment thereof from such owner (c), shall, together with interest thereon at the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, computed from the expiration of one month from the time when the same has been claimed by the company until receipt thereof by the company, be a charge on such dwelling-house in priority to all other charges affecting the premises (d); and (without prejudice to such charge) the amount may be recovered, with the costs incurred, from the owner or from the occupier for the time being in the same manner as water rates may by law be recovered (e): Provided always, that proceedings shall not be taken against the occupier until notice shall have been given to him or left at his dwelling-house to pay the amount due for water rate out of the rent then due or that may thereafter become due from him, and he shall have omitted so to pay such water rate; and provided also, that no greater sum shall be recovered at any one time from any such occupier than the amount of rent owing by him, or which shall have accrued due from him since such notice shall have been given or left as aforesaid, and that every such occupier shall be entitled to deduct from the rent payable by him the sum so recovered from him or which he shall have paid on demand (e).

(a) The owner of a house not exceeding £10 rent is liable to pay water rates by virtue of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, s. 72, ante, p. 4199, but it should be noted that that section is not incorporated with the P. H. A., 1936 (see ante, pp. 368-9). The words "is liable" refer to a liability at the date when the water rate became due, and if there was at that date an occupier other than the owner, and the owner and not the occupier was liable for the payment of that rate, the section prohibits the water company from cutting off the supply for non-payment of the rate, even after the occupier has given up possession and the premises have become vacant (Metropolitan Water Board v. Bibbey, [1911] 2 K. B. 74; 75 J. P. 322; 43 Digest 1095, 254).

(b) The power to cut off the supply of water for non-payment of water rate is given by Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, s. 74, ante, p. 4200.

(c) These remedies are given by the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, s. 74, ante, p. 4200, and the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1863, s. 16, ante, p. 4259. The owner of a block of flats which were respectively of an annual value not exceeding £20 entered into an agreement with a water company for the supply of water to the flats by meter. The owner subsequently mortgaged the premises, and upon his getting into financial difficulties, the mortgagees appointed the defendant to act as receiver of the rents on their behalf. At the date of the defendant's appointment there were arrears owing to the plaintiffs (successors to the company) for water supplied to the flats under the agreement. CHANNELL, J., held that the defendant was not the owner of the premises within the meaning of this section and was not liable as such for the arrears existing at the time of his appointment (Metropolitan Water Board v. Brooks, [1910] 2 K. B. 184; 74 J. P. 233). The Court of Appeal reversed the decision of CHANNELL, J., but not on this ground ([1911] 1 K. B. 289; 75 J. P. 41; 43 Digest 1087, 207).

(d) See the notes to the corresponding provisions of s. 291 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 588. This charge will not, however, be a "local land charge" to be registered under s. 15 of the Land Charges Act, 1925, Vol. V., post. The words "in priority to all other charges" appear to be superfluous, as the charge under the Act would affect the property in the hands of a mortgagee. See Birmingham Corporation v. Baker (1881), 17 Ch. D. 782; 46 J. P. 52; 26 Digest 536, 2357.

(e) A landlord gave a tenant notice to quit, and on the tenant continuing to remain in possession gave notice to a water company to cut off the supply, which they did:—Held, that, as the cutting off had not been for non-payment of the water rate, the above Act did not apply (Chelsea Waterworks Co. v. Paulet (1888), 52 J. P. 724; 4 T. L. R. 239; 43 Digest 1095, 253).

The effect of the above section is, that a purchaser of the freehold of a dwelling-house is liable to a personal action at the suit of the waterworks company to recover arrears of water rate which accrued due before the date of the purchase (East London Waterworks Co. v. Kellerman, [1892] 2 Q. B. 72; 56 J. P. 773; 43 Digest 1093, 242).

5. In the event of any such supply being cut off in contravention of this Act, the company cutting off the same shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds for each day during which the water shall remain cut off, which penalty shall be recoverable summarily from the company by, and shall be paid to, the person aggrieved (a). Section 5.
Penalty on cutting off of supply in contravention of the Act.

(a) Although prima facie the tenant would be the person aggrieved, the landlord may also be "aggrieved" (Metropolitan Water Board v. Libbey, [1911] 2 K. B. 74; 75 J. P. 322; 43 Digest 1095, 254). And see South West Suburban Water Co. v. Hardy (1913), 77 J. P. 283; 109 L. T. 169; 43 Digest 1084, 184.

THE OPEN SPACES ACT, 1887.

(50 & 51 VICT. c. 32) (a).

An Act for extending certain Provisions of the Metropolitan Open Spaces Acts, 1877 and 1881, with Amendments, to Sanitary Districts throughout England, Wales, and Ireland; and for other purposes.

[23rd August, 1887.]

* * * * *

4. In the Disused Burial Grounds Act, 1884 (b), and in this Act, the expression "burial ground" shall have the same meaning as in the Metropolitan Open Spaces Act, 1881, as amended by this Act, and the expression "disused burial ground" shall mean any burial ground which is no longer used for interments, whether or not such ground shall have been partially or wholly closed for burials under the provisions of any statute or Order in Council, and the expression "building" shall include any temporary or movable building (c). Amendment of 47 & 48 Vict. c. 72.

(a) This Act extended to urban and rural districts, the provisions of the Acts in force in the metropolis relating to open spaces, viz., Metropolitan Open Spaces Act, 1877, and Metropolitan Open Spaces Act, 1881, and this Act was extended by Open Spaces Act, 1890. It is now, however, repealed, except so much of s. 4 as amends the Disused Burial Grounds Act, 1884, ante, p. 4694, by s. 23, and Schedule of the Open Spaces Act, 1906, post, p. 5025, which also wholly repeals Metropolitan Open Spaces Act, 1877, and Metropolitan Open Spaces Act, 1881, and Open Spaces Act, 1890.

(b) Ante, p. 4694. See In re Ecclesiastical Commissioners and New City of London Brewery Co.'s Contract, [1895] 1 Ch. 702; 7 Digest 552, 293. The Metropolitan Open Spaces Act, 1881, as amended by this Act (now consolidated in the Open Spaces Act, 1906, post, p. 5016), defined "burial ground" as any ground whether consecrated or not which has been at any time set apart for the purposes of interment. As to the meaning of the words "set apart," see Re Ponsford and Newport District School Board, [1894] 1 Ch. 454; 7 Digest 551, 291. If at the time land was so set apart there was in force an Order in Council prohibiting the opening of any new burial ground in the district so that it could never lawfully be used for the purposes for which it was set apart, such land was, nevertheless, a "disused burial ground" within the definition (Re Bosworth and Gravesend Corporation, [1905] 2 K. B. 426; 69 J. P. 337; 7 Digest 540, 204). Doubt was, however, expressed as to the correctness of these two decisions in Nicholl v. Llantwit Major Parish Council, [1924] 2 Ch. 214; 131 L. T. 634; Digest Supp. In that case it was held that land purchased for use as a burial ground but found unfit and so never fenced off, or consecrated or used for interment had not been "set apart" for the purposes of interment. This last named case was, however, distinguished and the earlier case followed in London C. C. v. Greenwich Corporation, [1929] 1 Ch. 305; 93 J. P. 123; Digest Supp.

(c) Urinals were held to be buildings, but a tool shed for use in connection with the maintenance of the disused burial ground as an open space was held not to be a building within this definition (Bermondsey B. C. v. Mortimer, [1926] P. 87; Digest Supp. An underground transformer chamber was held to be a building so as to infringe s. 4 of the 1884 Act (St. Nicholas Acons (Rector and Churchwardens) v. London C. C., [1928] A. C. 469; 92 J. P. 185; Digest Supp.). See also the cases cited in note (a) to s. 3 of the Act of 1884, ante, p. 4695.

Section 1.

THE PUBLIC WORKS LOANS ACT, 1887.

(50 & 51 VICT. c. 37) (a).

An Act to grant money for the purpose of certain Local Loans; and for other purposes relating to Local Loans. [16th September, 1887.]

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited as "The Public Works Loans Act, 1887."

(a) A list of the other Public Works Loans Acts will be found, ante, p. 4544. The rest of this Act relates to the grant of moneys by Parliament for the year and to purely local matters. Italicised words repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175).

* * * * *

Power for certain local authorities to guarantee harbour loans. 45 & 46 Vict. c. 62.

4. Whereas under section seven of the Public Works Loans Act, 1882 (a), provision may be made for enabling any rating authority as therein defined to charge any fund or rate under their control for the purpose of aiding a public body in raising a loan for the construction of a harbour, pier, or other similar works, and it is expedient to extend the provisions of that section to certain other rating authorities: Be it therefore enacted that the expression "rating authority" as defined in that section shall include:

(1) As regards England—

38 & 39 Vict. c. 55.

(a) Any authority being a rural sanitary authority under the Public Health Act, 1875, and the Acts amending the same; and

(b) any justices in quarter sessions assembled and any representative county body which may be hereafter created by Act of Parliament.

THE ELECTRIC LIGHTING ACT, 1888.

(51 & 52 VICT. c. 12) (a).

An Act to amend the Electric Lighting Act, 1882. [28th June, 1888.]

Consent of local authority generally required to Provisional Order for supply of electricity.

1. Notwithstanding anything in the Electric Lighting Act, 1882, no Provisional Order (b) authorising the supply of electricity by any undertakers within the district of any local authority shall be granted by the Board of Trade (c) except with the consent of such local authority, unless the Board of Trade (c), in any case in which the consent of such local authority is refused, are of opinion that, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, such consent ought to be dispensed with, and in such case they shall make a special report, stating the grounds upon which they have dispensed with such consent. The grant of authority to any undertakers to supply electricity within any area, whether granted by licence or by means of a Provisional Order, shall not in any way hinder or restrict the granting of a licence or Provisional Order to the local authority, or to any other company or person within the same area (d).

(a) This Act amends the Electric Lighting Act, 1882, ante, p. 4642. See also the Electric Lighting Clauses Act, 1899, post, p. 4949, the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 5096, and the Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1919, 1922, post, p. 5245 and Vol. V., post; 1926, 1928, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 792, 826; 1933, 1935 and 1936, 26, 28, 29 Halsbury's Statutes 137, 51, 133. All these Acts with the exception of the Electric Lighting Clauses Act, 1899, are to be read as one and may be referred to as the Electricity Supply Acts, 1882–1936. As to the omission of the clause of enactment, see s. 4 of the S. L. R. A., 1894 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1020).

(b) Anything which could be effected by a Provisional Order may now be effected by a special Order or (in the case of a joint electricity authority) by an Order, and references in this Act to Provisional Orders now include references to such a special Order or Order except as regards paragraphs (1) to (4) of s. 4 of the Act of 1882, ante, p. 4645 (see s. 26 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5260).

(c) Now the Ministry of Transport (see note (a) to s. 1 of the 1882 Act, ante, p. 4643).

(d) The first part of this section amended s. 4 of the Act of 1882, ante, p. 4645, which enabled the Board of Trade (now Minister of Transport) to authorise any local authority, company, or person to supply electricity within any area without requiring such consents as are required to the granting of a licence. These consents are enumerated in s. 3 of the Act of 1882, ante, p. 4643, and included the consent of the local authority; but save as is provided by the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, q.v. post, p. 5243, the consent of the local authority will now be necessary in every case, unless dispensed with by the Minister of Transport for special reasons. As to the "local authority," see the Schedule to the Act of 1882, ante, p. 4660, and s. 4 (5), post, p. 4703. The latter part of the section provides, in effect, that a licence or Provisional Order shall not confer a monopoly to supply electricity. Cf. Hull Electric Co. v. Ottawa Electric Co., [1902] A. C. 237; 20 Digest 199, a, but see s. 23 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 5103, prohibiting competition by unauthorised undertakers; and see now the provisions of the Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1919, 1922, post, p. 5245 and Vol. V., post, and 1926, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 792.

Note to Section 1.

2. Section twenty-seven of the Electric Lighting Act, 1882, is hereby repealed, and in lieu thereof the following provisions shall have effect; that is to say, (a)

Repeal of
45 & 46 Vict.
c. 56, s. 27.

Where any undertakers are authorised by a Provisional Order or a special Act to supply electricity within any area, any local authority within whose jurisdiction such area or any part thereof is situated may, within six months after the expiration of a period of forty-two years (b), or such shorter period as is specified in that behalf in the Provisional Order or in the special Act, from the date of the passing of the Act confirming such Provisional Order, or of such special Act, and within six months after the expiration of every subsequent period of ten years (c), or such shorter period as is specified in that behalf in the Provisional Order or in the special Act, by notice in writing require such undertakers to sell, and thereupon such undertakers shall sell to them their undertaking, or so much of the same as is within such jurisdiction, upon terms of paying the then value of all lands, buildings, works, materials, and plant of such undertakers suitable to and used by them for the purposes of their undertaking within such jurisdiction, such value to be in case of difference determined by arbitration: Provided that the value of such lands, buildings, works, materials, and plant shall be deemed to be their fair market value at the time of the purchase, due regard being had to the nature and then condition of such buildings, works, materials, and plant, and to the state of repair thereof, and to the circumstance that they are in such a position as to be ready for immediate working (d), and to the suitability of the same to the purposes of the undertaking, and, where a part only of the undertaking is purchased, to any loss occasioned by severance; but without any addition in respect of compulsory purchase, or of goodwill, or of any profits which may or might have been or be made from the undertaking, or of any similar considerations (e). The Board of Trade (f) may determine any other questions which may arise in relation to such purchase, and may fix the date from which such purchase is to take effect, and from and after the date so fixed, or such other date as may be agreed upon between the parties, all lands, buildings, works, materials, and plant so purchased as aforesaid shall vest in the local authority which has made the purchase, freed from any debts, mortgages, or similar obligations of such undertakers or attaching to the undertaking, and the powers of such undertakers in relation to the supply of electricity under this Act or such Provisional Order or special Act as aforesaid within such area or part thereof as aforesaid shall absolutely cease and determine, and shall vest in the local authority aforesaid (g).

Purchase of undertaking by local authority.

Note to
Section 2.

- (a) Italicised words repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175).
 (b) In the repealed section, this period was twenty-one years.
 (c) In the repealed section, this period was seven years.
 (d) These words from "and to the circumstance" are an addition to the words of the repealed section. See as to the principle of this addition the judgment of Lord HERSHELL in the analogous case of the purchase of a water supply undertaking in Stockton and Middlesbrough Water Board v. Kirkleatham L. B., [1895] A. C. 444, at pp. 449, 450; 57 J. P. 772; 43 Digest 1060, 26. This case was distinguished in a colonial case, Perth Gas Co., Ltd. v. Perth Corporation, [1911] A. C. 506, at p. 514; 25 Digest 493, a.
 (e) As to capital expenditure subsequent to the notice to treat, see Metropolitan Electric Supply v. Marylebone Corporation (1903), 67 J. P. 382; 1 L. G. R. 673; Digest Supp.
 (f) Now the Minister of Transport, see note (a) on p. 4643, ante.
 (g) The undertakers' powers vest in the purchasers by virtue of this provision and not as a result of any transfer from the undertakers (Edinburgh Street Tramways Co. v. Edinburgh Corporation, [1894] A. C. 456; 43 Digest 354, 113). Section 30, Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 815, makes provision for the purchase of companies with large areas of supply and excludes this and the following section. See also ss. 40 and 41, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 816, 817, of that Act which alter the terms of purchase in respect of a company taking a bulk supply under the Act and in all cases authorises an alteration of the statutory terms of purchase by agreement. See s. 7 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, post, p. 5099, as to the purchase of generating stations, works and mains situated outside the district or districts supplied by the undertakers. See the same section as to one authority transferring its powers of purchase to another authority supplied by the undertakers. See now also ss. 12(2) and 13 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5248, and s. 14 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1922, Vol. V., post. A Provisional Order gave a corporation power to purchase compulsorily the undertaking of an electric lighting company, upon the terms of issuing to the company such an amount of corporation stock as would produce in dividends an annuity of 5 per cent. upon the capital properly expended by the company. By another Provisional Order the power of the corporation to issue irredeemable stock was taken away. The Acts confirming these Orders received the Royal Assent on the same day:—Held, that the stock to be issued to the company was irredeemable stock; that the corporation had no longer, even by implication, power to issue such stock; and that consequently their power of compulsory purchase could not be enforced (Sheffield Corporation v. Sheffield Electric Light Co., [1898] 1 Ch. 203; 62 J. P. 87; 20 Digest 216, 104). As to stamp duty on a purchase of an electric light undertaking, see Eastbourne Corporation v. Att.-Gen., [1904] A. C. 155; 68 J. P. 393; 20 Digest 216, 105. As to the assessment of the price to be paid, see Oxford Corporation v. Oxford Electric Co., Ltd. (1930), 94 J. P. 229; Digest Supp.

Power to vary terms of sale contained in last section.

3. Notwithstanding anything in the last preceding section contained, the Board of Trade (a) may by any Provisional Order to be made by them under the Electric Lighting Act, 1882, if they think fit, vary the terms upon which any local authority may require the undertakers to sell, and upon which the undertakers shall be required to sell to such local authority their undertaking or so much of the same as is within the jurisdiction of such local authority under the said section, in such manner as may have been agreed upon between such local authority and the undertakers (b).

(a) Now the Minister of Transport, see note (a) on p. 4643, ante.

(b) See also s. 6 of Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5245; s. 14 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1922, Vol. V., post; and ss. 39 and 41 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 815, 817, and note (g) to s. 2, supra.

Restriction as to placing of electric lines, etc

4.—(1) Where in any case any electric line or other work may have been laid down or erected in, over, along, across, or under any street, for the purpose of supplying electricity, or may have been laid down or erected in any other position for such purpose in such a manner as not to be entirely enclosed within any building or buildings, or where any electric line or work so laid down or erected may be used for such purpose otherwise than under and subject to the provisions of a licence, order, or special Act, the Board of Trade (a), if they think fit, may, by notice in writing under the hand of one of the secretaries or assistant secretaries of the Board of Trade (a), to be served upon the body or person owning or using or entitled to use such electric line or work, require that such electric line or work shall be continued and used only in accordance with such conditions and subject to such regulations for the protection of the public safety and of the electric lines and works of the

Section 4.

Postmaster-General (b), and of other electric lines and works lawfully placed in any position and used for telegraphic communication (c), as the Board of Trade (a) may by or in pursuance of such notice prescribe, and in case of non-compliance with the said regulations, then the Board of Trade (a) may require such body or person to remove such electric line or work: Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall apply to any electric line or work laid down or erected by any body or person for the supply of electricity generated upon any premises occupied by such body or person to any other part of such premises (d).

(2) Where in any case any electric line or work is used for the supply of electricity in such a manner as to injuriously affect any telegraphic line of the Postmaster-General (b), or to affect the telegraphic communication through any such line, the Postmaster-General may, by notice to be served upon the body or person owning or using or entitled to use such electric line or work, require that such supply be continued only in accordance with such conditions and regulations for the protection of the telegraphic lines of the Postmaster-General and the telegraphic communication through the same as he may by or in pursuance of such notice prescribe, and in default of compliance with such conditions and regulations the Postmaster-General may require that the supply of electricity through such electric line or work shall be forthwith discontinued: Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall apply to the supply of electricity through any electric line or work laid down or erected under and subject to the provisions of any licence, order, or special Act, or which may be used in accordance with any conditions or regulations prescribed by the Board of Trade (a) by or in pursuance of any notice given by them under this section.

(3) If any body or person fails to comply with the requirements of any notice which may be served upon them or him under this section, such body or person shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds for every such offence, to be recovered summarily, and any court of summary jurisdiction, on complaint made, may make an order directing and authorising the removal of any electric line or work specified in such notice by such person and upon such terms as they may think fit.

(4) Any notice authorised to be served under this section upon any body or person may be served by the same being addressed to such body or person, and being left at or transmitted through the post to any office of such body or the usual or last known place of abode of such person; and any notice so served by post shall be deemed to have been served at the time when the letter containing the notice would be delivered in the usual course of post, and in proving such service it shall be sufficient to prove that the letter containing the notice was properly addressed and put into the post.

(5) In this section terms and expressions to which by the Electric Lighting Act, 1882, meanings are assigned shall have the same respective meanings, provided that the term "street" shall include any square, court, or alley, highway, lane, road, thoroughfare, or public passage or place whatever, and the expression "telegraphic line" shall have the meaning assigned to it by the Telegraph Act, 1878 (e). 45 & 46 Vict.
c. 56.

(6) Nothing in this section shall apply to any electric line or work of the Postmaster-General, or to any other electric line or work used or to be used solely for telegraphic purposes, except by way of protection, as in this section provided. 41 & 42 Vict.
c. 76.

(a) Now the Minister of Transport, see note (a) on p. 4643, ante.

(b) As to the protection of the Postmaster-General, see also s. 26 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1882, ante, p. 4656, as amended by s. 25 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, post, p. 5260, and Sched. (14) (79) of the Electric Lighting Clauses Act, 1899, post, pp. 4956, 4980.

(c) As to electric trams, see National Telephone Co. v. Baker, ante, p. 4658.

(d) This sub-section is limited in its application to wires laid down by any company or person without statutory authority. The Electricity Commission have made regulations under it, and these regulations will be found ante, p. 2621. The wires to which this sub-section relates would, apparently, be subject to Part II. of the P. H. A. Amendment A., 1890, post, p. 4807, or s. 25 of the P. H. A., 1925; 13 Halsbury's Statutes 1123.

Note to
Section 4.

(e) See the interpretation clauses in the Act of 1882, ss. 31, 32, ante, p. 4658.

The Telegraph Act, 1878, s. 2 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 261), defines a telegraphic line to mean telegraph posts, and any work (within the meaning of the Telegraph Act, 1863; op. cit., 219), and also any cables, apparatus, pneumatic or other tube, pipe, or thing whatsoever, used for the purpose of transmitting telegraphic messages or maintaining telegraphic communication, and includes any portion of a telegraphic line as defined by that Act. By s. 3 of the Telegraph Act, 1863 (op. cit.), the term "work" includes telegraphs and posts.

Short title.

5. This Act may be cited as the Electric Lighting Act, 1888; and the Electric Lighting Act, 1882, and this Act shall be read and construed together as one Act, and may be cited together for all purposes as the Electric Lighting Acts, 1882 and 1888.

THE GLEBE LANDS ACT, 1888.

(51 & 52 VICT. c. 20) (a).

An Act to facilitate the sale of Glebe Lands.

[7th August, 1888.]

Short title and extent.

1. This Act may be cited as the Glebe Lands Act, 1888.
This Act shall not extend to Scotland or Ireland.

* * * * *

Supplemental provisions as to sale.

8.—(1) For the purpose of facilitating the acquisition of land by cottagers, labourers, and others, it shall be the duty of the Land Commissioners (b) in giving their approval of a sale under this Act (c), either to require as a condition thereof that the land or some part thereof shall be offered for sale in small parcels, or to the sanitary authority of a sanitary district for the purposes of the Allotments Act, 1887, or to satisfy themselves that such offer is not practicable without diminishing the price which can be obtained for the glebe land on a sale (d).

(2) Before approving of a sale under this Act of glebe land of any benefice, the Land Commissioners (b) shall require such notice of the proposed sale to be given as they think sufficient to give information thereof to the parishioners (e).

(3) The approval of the Land Commissioners (b) of a sale under this Act may be signified in the prescribed manner, and shall be conclusive evidence that the requirements of this Act with respect to the sale have been complied with.

45 & 46 Vict.
c. 38.

(4) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the provisions of the Settled Land Act, 1882, with respect to the sale of land by a tenant for life shall, so far as circumstances admit, apply to a sale under this Act by an incumbent in like manner as if he were the tenant for life of the land, and accordingly he shall have the like power with respect to contracts as a tenant for life under that Act, and may do all things necessary and proper for carrying into effect a sale under this Act (f).

(a) This Act is included in the present Work only by reason of the provision in s. 8 relating to the sale of some of the land to which it applies to sanitary authorities for the purpose of allotments.

(b) Now the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. See note (a), ante, p. 4568.

(c) This refers to a sale of glebe land under the Act.

Section 1.

THE RAILWAY AND CANAL TRAFFIC ACT, 1888.

(51 & 52 Vict. c. 25) (a).

An Act for the better regulation of Railway and Canal Traffic, and for other purposes.
[10th August, 1888.]

1. This Act may be cited as the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1888.

Short title and
construction.
36 & 37 Vict.
c. 48.

This Act shall be construed as one with the Regulation of Railways Act, 1873, and the Acts amending it; and those Acts and this Act may be cited together as the Railway and Canal Traffic Acts, 1873 and 1888

(a) This Act confers certain powers of making complaints upon sanitary authorities. See ss. 7, infra, 16, 29, 31, 45 (1), (7), post, pp. 4707, 4714, 4715, 4718-9. Only such parts of the Act as bear directly upon such complaints have been here inserted. The Act has been extended by the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1894 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 251). And see also the powers given to local authorities by the Railways Act, 1921 (op. cit. 316). By that Act the jurisdiction of the Railway and Canal Commissioners in respect of certain matters connected with railway rates has been transferred to the Railway Rates Tribunal. See s. 78 of the Act of 1921 (op. cit. 368), which makes provision for application by public authorities in certain cases, and Southend Corporation v. L. M. & S. Rail. (1927), 19 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 216; Digest Supp., decided under that Act.

PART I.

COURT AND PROCEDURE OF RAILWAY AND CANAL COMMISSIONERS.

Establishment of Railway and Canal Commission.

* * * * *

7.—(1) Any of the following authorities, that is to say—

Provision for complaints by public authority in certain cases.

(a) any of the following local authorities, namely, any harbour board, or conservancy authority, the Common Council of the City of London, any council of a city or borough, any representative county body which may be created by an Act passed in the present or any future session of Parliament, any justices in quarter sessions assembled, the Commissioners of Supply of any county in Scotland, the Metropolitan Board of Works (b) or any urban sanitary authority not being a council as aforesaid, or any rural sanitary authority (b); or may make to the Commissioners any complaint which the Commissioners have jurisdiction to determine (c), and may do so without proof that such authority is aggrieved by the matter complained of, and any of such authorities may appear in opposition to any complaint which the Commissioners have jurisdiction to determine in any case where such authority, or the persons represented by them, appear to the Commissioners to be likely to be affected by any determination of the Commissioners upon such complaint.

(a) Italicised words repealed by S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175).

(b) For an example of a complaint by a local authority, see Maidstone Town Council v. S. E. Rail. Co. and L. C. & D. Rail. Co. (1891), 7 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 99. See also West Sussex C. C. v. L. B. & S. C. Rail. Co., Times, February 24th, 1892.

(c) As to the complaints which the Commissioners have power to determine, see s. 8 and succeeding sections, especially s. 9, and ss. 1 and 4 of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1894. See also Darlaston L. B. v. L. & N. W. Rail Co., [1894] 2 Q. B. 694; 38 Digest 296, 263; overruling Wingsford L. B. v. Cheshire Lines Committee (1890), 24 Q. B. D. 456; 38 Digest 361, 641. See also s. 54, post, p. 4720, as to the costs of local authorities.

Section 8.

Jurisdiction.

Jurisdiction of railway commissioners transferred to the commission.

8. There shall be transferred to and vested in the Commissioners all the jurisdiction and powers which at the commencement of this Act were vested in, or capable of being exercised by the Railway Commissioners, whether under the Regulation of Railways Act, 1873, or any other Act, or otherwise, and any reference to the Railway Commissioners in the Regulation of Railways Act, 1873, or in any other Act (a), or in any document, shall, from and after the commencement of this Act (b), be construed to refer to the Railway and Canal Commission established by this Act.

- (a) Especially the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 107).
(b) Italicised words repealed by S. L. R. A., 1908.

Jurisdiction of Commissioners under special
Acts.
17 & 18 Vict.
c 81.

9. Where any enactment in a special Act—

- (a) contains provisions relating to traffic facilities, undue preference, or other matters mentioned in section two of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854 (a), or (b) requires a company to which this Part of this Act applies to provide any station, road, or other similar work for public accommodation, or (c) otherwise imposes on a company to which this Part of this Act applies any obligation in favour of the public or any individual, or where any Act contains provisions relating to private branch railways or private sidings, the Commissioners shall have the like jurisdiction to hear and determine a complaint of a contravention of the enactment as the Commissioners have to hear and determine a complaint of a contravention of section two of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854, as amended by subsequent Acts.

- (a) See this section recited at length in s. 25, post, p. 4711.

Jurisdiction over tolls and
rates.

10. Where any question or dispute arises, involving the legality of any toll, rate, or charge, or portion of a toll, rate, or charge, charged or sought to be charged for merchandise traffic by a company to which this Part of this Act applies, the Commissioners shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine the same, and to enforce payment of such toll, rate, or charge, or so much thereof as the Commissioners decide to be legal (a).

- (a) See as to the jurisdiction of the commissioners under this section, Ward v. Midland Rail. Co. (1916), 33 T. L. R. 4, affirmed, [1917] 2 K. B. 278; 33 T. L. R. 283; 38 Digest 374, 755.

Jurisdiction to order traffic facilities, notwithstanding agreements.

11. Nothing in any agreement, whether made before or after the passing of this Act, which has not been confirmed by Act or by the Board of Trade, or by the Commissioners under the Regulation of Railways Acts, 1873, or this Act, shall render a company to which this Part of this Act applies unable to afford, or shall authorise such company to refuse, such reasonable facilities for traffic as may in the opinion of the Commissioners be required in the interests of the public, or shall prevent the Commissioners from making or enforcing any order with respect to such facilities.

Power to award damages.

12. Where the Commissioners have jurisdiction to hear and determine any matter, they may, in addition to or in substitution for any other relief, award to any complaining party who is aggrieved such damages as they find him to have sustained; and such award of damages shall be in complete satisfaction of any claim for damages, including repayment of overcharges, which, but for this Act, such party would have had by reason of the matter of complaint:

Provided that such damages shall not be awarded unless complaint has been made to the Commissioners within one year from the discovery by the party aggrieved of the matter complained of.

The Commissioners may ascertain the amount of such damages either by Section 12. trial before themselves, or by directing an inquiry to be taken before one or more of themselves or before some officer of their court.

13. In cases of complaint of undue preference no damages shall be awarded if the Commissioners shall find that the rates complained of have, for the period during which such rates have been in operation, been duly published in the rate books of the railway company kept at their stations in accordance with section fourteen of the Regulation of Railways Act, 1873, as amended by this Act (a), unless and until the party complaining shall have given written notice to the railway company requiring them to abstain from or remedy the matter of complaint, and the railway company shall have failed, within a reasonable time, to comply with such requirements in such a manner as the Commissioners shall think reasonable.

No damages where rates published under certain conditions.

(a) Section 34 of this Act amends s. 14 of the Act of 1873 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 203) as to the place of publication of rates in respect of traffic at places other than stations. Section 14 of the Regulation of Railways Act, 1873, is extended by s. 3 of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act of 1894 (op. cit. 252).

* * * * *

16.—(1) Where the Board of Trade (a) or the Commissioners, in the exercise of any power given by any general or special Act, on application order a company to which this Part of this Act applies, to provide a bridge, subway, or approach, or any work of a similar character, the Board of Trade (a) or the Commissioners, as the case may be, may require as a condition of making the order that an agreement to pay the whole or a portion of the expenses of complying with the order shall be entered into by the applicants or some of them, or such other persons as the Board of Trade (a) or Commissioners think fit, and any of the following local authorities, namely, any sanitary authority (b), highway board, surveyor of highways acting with the consent of the vestry of his parish, or any other authority having power to levy rates, shall have power, if such authority think fit, to enter into any such agreement as is sanctioned by the Board of Trade (a) or Commissioners for the purpose of the order.

Power to apportion expenses between railway company and applicants for works.

(2) In such case any question respecting the persons by whom or the proportions in which the expenses of complying with the order are to be defrayed may, on the application of any party to the application, or on a certificate of the Board of Trade (a), be determined by the Commissioners.

(3) In this section the expression "parish" shall have the same meaning as the same expression has in the Acts relating to highways; and the expression "the consent of the vestry of his parish" shall, in any place where there is no vestry meeting, mean the consent of a meeting of inhabitants contributing to the highway rates, provided that the same notice shall have been given of such a meeting as would be required by law for the assembling of a meeting in vestry.

(a) The powers of the Board of Trade are now vested in the Ministry of Transport (Ministry of Transport Act, 1919, post, p. 5195).

(b) See also powers conferred on urban sanitary authorities under s. 147 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4368. Reference should also be made to the Bridges Act, 1929, Vol. V. and 9 Halsbury's Statutes 268.

Appeals.

17.—(1) No appeal shall lie from the Commissioners upon a question of fact (a), or upon any question regarding the locus standi of a complainant.

Appeals on certain questions to superior court of appeal.

(2) Save as otherwise provided by this Act, an appeal shall lie from the Commissioners to a superior court of appeal.

(3) An appeal shall not be brought except in conformity with such rules of court as may from time to time be made in relation to such appeals by Section 16. the authority having power to make rules of court for the superior court of appeal (b).

(4) On the hearing of an appeal the court of appeal may draw all such inferences as are not inconsistent with the facts expressly found, and are necessary for determining the question of law, and shall have all such powers for that purpose as if the appeal were an appeal from a judgment of a superior court, and may make any order which the Commissioners could have made, and also any such further or other order as may be just, and the costs of and incidental to an appeal shall be in the discretion of the court of appeal, but no Commissioner shall be liable to any costs by reason or in respect of any appeal.

(5) The decision of the superior court of appeal shall be final: Provided that where there has been a difference of opinion between any two of such superior courts of appeal, and superior court of appeal in which a matter affected by such difference of opinion is pending may give leave to appeal to the House of Lords, on such terms as to costs as such court shall determine.

(6) Save as provided by this Act, an order or proceeding of the Commissioners shall not be questioned or reviewed, and shall not be restrained or removed by prohibition, injunction, certiorari, or otherwise, either at the instance of the Crown or otherwise.

(a) See Vickers, Sons and Maxim, Ltd. v. Midland Rail. Co. (1902), 18 T. L. R. 769; 38 Digest 368, 702; National Telegraph Co., Ltd. v. Postmaster-General, [1913] A. C. 546; 38 Digest 370, 721.

(b) See R. S. C., Order LVIII., r. 19A, applying R. S. C., Order LVIII.

Supplemental.

General powers and enforcement of orders.

18.—(1) For the purposes of this Act the Commissioners shall have full jurisdiction to hear and determine all matters whether of law or of fact, and shall as respects the attendance and examination of witnesses, the production and inspection of documents, the enforcement of their orders, the entry on and inspection of property, and other matters necessary or proper for the due exercise of their jurisdiction under this Act, or otherwise for carrying this Act into effect, have all such powers, rights, and privileges as are vested in a superior court: Provided that no person shall be punished for contempt of court, except with the consent of an ex-officio Commissioner.

(2) The Commissioners may review and rescind or vary any order made by them; but, save as is by this Act provided, every decision or order of the Commissioners shall be final.

Costs.

19. The costs of and incidental to every proceeding before the Commissioners shall be in the discretion of the Commissioners, who may order by whom and to whom the same are to be paid, and by whom the same are to be taxed and allowed (a).

(a) But see the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1894, s. 2 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 251); and see Cheshire Lines Committee v. Butler & Co., Ltd. (1917), 33 T. L. R. 565; 38 Digest 371, 727.

Power to make rules.

20.—(1) The Commissioners may from time to time, with the approval of the Lord Chancellor and the President of the Board of Trade, make, rescind, and vary general rules for their procedure and practice under this Act, and generally for carrying into effect this Part of this Act.

(2) All rules made under this section shall be laid before Parliament within three weeks after they are made, if Parliament is then sitting, and if Parliament is not then sitting within three weeks after the beginning of the then next session of Parliament, and shall be judicially noticed, and shall have effect as if they were enacted by this Act (a).

(a) See the Railway and Canal Commission Rules, 1924 (S. R. & O., 1924, No. 1400).

23. This Part of this Act shall apply to any railway company, and to any canal company, and to any railway and canal company. Section 23.

Company to which Part applies.

PART II.

TRAFFIC (a).

24.—(1) Notwithstanding any provision in any general or special Act, every railway company shall submit to the Board of Trade a revised classification of merchandise traffic, and a revised schedule of maximum rates and charges applicable thereto, proposed to be charged by such railway company, and shall fully state in such classification and schedule the nature and amounts of all terminal charges proposed to be authorised in respect of each class of traffic, and the circumstances under which such terminal charges are proposed to be made. In the determination of the terminal charges of any railway company regard shall be had only to the expenditure reasonably necessary to provide the accommodation in respect of which such charges are made, irrespective of the outlay which may have been actually incurred by the railway company in providing that accommodation. Revised classification of traffic and schedule of rates.

(2) The classification and schedule shall be submitted within six months from the passing of this Act, or such further time as the Board of Trade may, in any particular case, permit, and shall be published in such manner as the Board of Trade may direct (b).

(3) The Board of Trade shall consider the classification and schedule, and any objections thereto, which may be lodged with them on or before the prescribed time, and in the prescribed manner, and shall communicate with the railway company and the persons (if any) who have lodged objections, for the purpose of arranging the differences which may have arisen.

(4) If, after hearing all parties whom the Board of Trade consider to be entitled to be heard before them respecting the classification and schedule, the Board of Trade come to an agreement with the railway company as to the classification and schedule, they shall embody the agreed classification and schedule in a Provisional Order, and shall make a report thereon, to be submitted to Parliament, containing such observations as they think fit in relation to the agreed classification and schedule.

(5) When any agreed classification and schedule have been embodied in a Provisional Order, the Board of Trade, as soon as they conveniently can after the making of the Provisional Order (of which the railway company shall be deemed to be the promoters), shall procure a Bill to be introduced into either House of Parliament for an Act to confirm the Provisional Order, which shall be set out at length in the schedule to the Bill.

(6) In any case in which a railway company fails within the time mentioned in this section to submit a classification and schedule to the Board of Trade, and also in every case in which a railway company has submitted to the Board of Trade a classification and schedule, and after hearing all parties whom the Board of Trade consider to be entitled to be heard before them, the Board of Trade are unable to come to an agreement with the railway company as to the railway company's classification and schedule, the Board of Trade shall determine the classification of traffic which, in the opinion of the Board of Trade, ought to be adopted by the railway company, and the schedule of maximum rates and charges, including all terminal charges proposed to be authorised applicable to such classification which would, in the opinion of the Board of Trade, be just and reasonable, and shall make a report, to be submitted to Parliament, containing such observations as they may think fit in relation to the said classification and schedule, and calling Section 24. attention to the points therein on which differences which have arisen have not been arranged.

(7) After the commencement of the session of Parliament next after that in which the said report of the Board of Trade (b) has been submitted to Parliament, the railway company may apply to the Board of Trade (b) to submit to Parliament the question of the classification and schedule which ought to be adopted by the railway company, and the Board of Trade (b) shall on such application, and in any case may embody in a Provisional Order such classification and schedule as in the opinion of the Board of Trade (b) ought to be adopted by the railway company, and procure a Bill to be introduced into either House of Parliament for an Act to confirm the Provisional Order, which shall be set out at length in the schedule to the Bill.

(8) If, while any Bill to confirm a Provisional Order made by the Board of Trade (b) under this section is pending in either House of Parliament, a petition is presented against the Bill or any classification and schedule comprised therein, the Bill, so far as it relates to the matter petitioned against, shall be referred to a select committee, or if the two Houses of Parliament think fit so to order, to a joint committee of such Houses, and the petitioner shall be allowed to appear and oppose as in the case of a private Bill (c).

(9) In preparing, revising, and settling the classifications and schedules of rates and charges, the Board of Trade (b) may consult and employ such skilled persons as they may deem necessary or desirable; and they may pay to such persons such remuneration as they may think fit and as the Treasury may approve.

(10) The Act of Parliament confirming any Provisional Order made under this section shall be a public general Act, and the rates and charges mentioned in a Provisional Order as confirmed by such Act shall, from and after the Act coming into operation, be the rates and charges which the railway company shall be entitled to charge and make.

(11) At any time after the confirmation of any Provisional Order under this section any railway company may, and any person, upon giving not less than twenty-one days notice to the railway company may, apply in the prescribed manner to the Board of Trade (b) to amend any classification and schedule by adding thereto any articles, matters, or things, and the Board of Trade (b) may hear and determine such application, and classify and deal with the articles, matters, or things referred to therein in such manner as the Board of Trade (b) shall think right (d). Every determination of the Board of Trade (b) under this sub-section shall forthwith be published in the London Gazette, and shall take effect as from the date of the publication thereof.

(12) Nothing in this section shall apply to any remuneration payable by the Postmaster-General to any railway company for the conveyance of mails, letter bags, or parcels under any general or special Act relating to the conveyance of mails, or under the Post Office (Parcels) Act, 1882.

(13) Nothing in this section shall apply to any remuneration payable by the Secretary of State for War to any railway company for the conveyance of War Office stores under the powers conferred by the Cheap Trains Act, 1883.

c. 74.

46 & 47 Vict.
c. 34.

(a) The jurisdiction over questions of classification of merchandise is now vested in the Railway Rates Tribunal, see ss. 27 and 28 of the Railways Act, 1921 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 336). See also s. 136 and Sched. XI. of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 974, 1001, as to the obligation upon railway companies to pass on the relief obtained by them in respect of rates under Pt. V., ibid., Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 927, by means of rebates to selected traffic.

(b) Under s. 35 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 237) the Board of Trade had power to make rules as to the submission and publication of such classification and schedule, and made rules accordingly. See Parl. Papers, 1888 (402), as to railways, and (436) as to canals. The Board of Trade has now as regards railways, been superseded by the Minister of Transport.

(c) The Railway and Canal Traffic (Provisional Orders) Amendment Act, 1891, post, p. 4827, provides that every governing body within the meaning of the Borough Funds Act, 1872 (now repealed) (10 Halsbury's Statutes 559), and every county council shall be entitled to be a petitioner, and to appear and oppose any Provisional Order made under this section, and to provide or contribute towards providing the expenses of the appearance out of rates under their control, as if the Bill were a local or personal Bill within the meaning of the Borough Funds Act, 1872. The Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1892, post, p. 4840, provides that a Provisional Order may be made, and a Bill to confirm it may be introduced at any time after hearing the parties as provided in sub-s. (4).

(d) For an example of the exercise of this power by the Board of Trade, see Ex parte L. & N. W. Rail. Co. (1909), 100 L. T. 998.

25. (a) Whereas by section two of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854, it is enacted that every railway company and canal company, and railway and canal company shall, according to their respective powers, afford all reasonable facilities (b) for the receiving and forwarding and delivering of traffic upon and from the several railways and canals belonging to or worked by such companies respectively, and for the return of carriages, trucks, boats, and other vehicles; and that no such company shall make or give any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to or in favour of any particular person or company, or any particular description of traffic, in any respect whatsoever, or shall subject any particular person or company, or any particular description of traffic, to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever; and that every railway company and canal company and railway and canal company having or working railways or canals which form part of a continuous line of railway, or canal or railway, and canal communication (c), or which have the terminus station or wharf of the one near the terminus station or wharf of the other, shall afford all due and reasonable facilities for receiving and forwarding by one of such railways or canals all the traffic arriving by the other, without any unreasonable delay, and without any such preference or advantage or prejudice or disadvantage as aforesaid, and so that no obstruction may be offered to the public desirous of using such railways or canals or railways and canals as a continuous line of communication, and so that all reasonable accommodation may by means of the railways and canals of the several companies be at all times afforded to the public in that behalf: Provisions as in through traffic.

And whereas it is expedient to explain and amend the said enactment:

Be it therefore enacted, that—

Subject as hereinafter mentioned, the said facilities to be so afforded are hereby declared to and shall include the due and reasonable receiving, forwarding, and delivering by every railway company and canal company and railway and canal company, at the request of any other such company, of through traffic to and from the railway or canal of any other such company at through rates, tolls, or fares (in this Act referred to as through rates) (d); and also the due and reasonable receiving, forwarding, and delivering by every railway company and canal company and railway and canal company, at the request of any person interested in through traffic, of such traffic at through rates (dd): Provided that no application shall be made to the Commissioners by such person until he has made a complaint to the Board of Trade (e) under the provisions of this Act as to complaints to the Board of Trade (e) of unreasonable charges, and the Board of Trade (e) have heard the complaint in the manner herein provided.

Provided as follows:

- (1) The company or person requiring the traffic to be forwarded shall give written notice of the proposed through rate to each forwarding company, stating both its amount and the route by which the traffic is proposed to be forwarded; and when a company gives such notice it shall also state the apportionment of the through rate. The proposed through rate may be per truck or per ton:

- (2) Each forwarding company shall, within ten days, or such longer period as the Commissioners may from time to time by general order prescribe, after the receipt of such notice, by written notice inform the company or persons requiring the traffic to be forwarded, whether they agree to the rate and route; and if they object to either, the grounds of the objection:
- (3) If at the expiration of the prescribed period no such objection has been sent by any forwarding company, the rate shall come into operation at such expiration:
- (4) If an objection to the rate or route has been sent within the prescribed period, the matter shall be referred to the Commissioners for their decision:
- (5) If an objection be made to the granting of the rate or to the route, the Commissioners shall consider whether the granting of a rate is a due and reasonable facility in the interest of the public, and whether, having regard to the circumstances, the route proposed is a reasonable route, and shall allow or refuse the rate accordingly, or fix such other rate as may seem to the Commissioners just and reasonable (f):
- (6) Where, upon the application of a person requiring traffic to be forwarded, a through rate is agreed to by the forwarding companies, or is made by order of the Commissioners, the apportionment of such through rate, if not agreed upon between the forwarding companies, shall be determined by the Commissioners (g):
- (7) If the objection be only to the apportionment of the rate, the rate shall come into operation at the expiration of the prescribed period, but the decision of the Commissioners, as to its apportionment, shall be retrospective; in any other case the operation of the rate shall be suspended until the decision is given:
- (8) The Commissioners, in apportioning the through rate, shall take into consideration all the circumstances of the case, including any special expense incurred in respect of the construction, maintenance, or working of the route, or any part of the route, as well as any special charges which any company may have been entitled to make in respect thereof:
- (9) It shall not be lawful for the Commissioners in any case to compel any company to accept lower mileage rates than the mileage rates which such company may for the time being legally be charging for like traffic carried by a like mode of transit on any other line of communication between the same points, being the points of departure and arrival of the through route (h).

Where a railway company or canal company use, maintain, or work, or are party to an arrangement for using, maintaining, or working steam vessels for the purpose of carrying on a communication between any towns or ports, the provisions of this section shall extend to such steam vessels, and to the traffic carried thereby.

When any company, upon written notice being given as aforesaid, refuses or neglects without reason to agree to the proposed through rates, or to the route, or to the apportionment, the Commissioners, if an order is made by them upon an application for through rates, may order the respondent company or companies to pay such costs to the applicants as they think fit.

T. 395; 8 Digest 146, 965, it was held (Sir F. PEEL dissenting) that the provision of water-closets at railway stations for the use of passengers, free of charge, was not a reasonable facility for forwarding traffic which could be ordered by the Railway and Canal Commissioners under s. 2 of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 108). But cloak-rooms are reasonable facilities (Singer Manufacturing Co. v. L. & S. W. Rail. Co., [1894] 1 Q. B. 833; 8 Digest 220, 1398).

- (dd) This section from this point to the end is now applicable only to canals (Railways Act, 1921, s. 86 (2), and Sched. IX., Pt. II.; 14 Halsbury's Statutes 370, 386).
- (e) See now s. 28 of the Railways Act, 1921 (op. cit. 336), for the jurisdiction now vested in the Railway Rates Tribunal in connection with through rates.
- (f) The applicants asked the court to allow a through rate of 1s. 2d. per ton for slack from certain collieries to their works to be forwarded in quantities of not less than 600 tons per week. The mean distance from the collieries to the works by the route proposed was twenty-four miles, while the route by which the traffic was in fact sent was thirty-four miles, and the rate charged by either route was the same, namely, 1s. 11d. per ton. It was held that in the absence of evidence to show that the proposed rate would afford any benefit to the public, the application must be refused (Brunner, Mond & Co., Ltd. v. Cheshire Lines Committee and L. & N. W. Rail. Co. (1909), 25 T. L. R. 618; 8 Digest 163, 1055). See also on this sub-section L. & Y. Rail. Co. and Dearne Valley Rail. Co. v. Hull and Barnsley Rail. Co. (1912), 15 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 59; 8 Digest 161, 1043.
- (g) Where there is an agreed through rate for through traffic over the lines of two railway companies and an agreed apportionment between the two companies which has not been cancelled, the Commissioners have no jurisdiction to make a fresh apportionment of that agreed rate, or of one of the same amount at the instance of one of the companies; the duty and power of apportionment being incidental only to the fixing of reasonable facilities for the conveyance of through traffic from one point to another (Manchester Ship Canal Co. v. L. & N. W. Rail. Co., [1911] 1 K. B. 657; 8 Digest 164, 1060). As to through land and sea rates, see Great Southern & Western Ry. v. City of Cork Steam Packet Co. (1912), 15 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 67.

26. Subject to the provisions in the last preceding section contained, the Commissioners shall have full power to decide that any proposed through rate is just and reasonable, notwithstanding that a less amount may be allotted to any forwarding company out of such through rate than the maximum rate such company is entitled to charge, and to allow and apportion such through rate accordingly (a). Powers of Commissioners as to through rates.

(a) See as to through rates, s. 28 of the Railways Act, 1921. This section is now applicable only to canals (s. 86 (2) and Sched. IX., Pt. II., ibid.).

27.—(1) Whenever it is shown that any railway company charge one trader or class of traders, or the traders in any district, lower tolls, rates, or charges for the same or similar merchandise, or lower tolls, rates, or charges for the same or similar services, than they charge to other traders, or classes of traders, or to the traders in another district, or make any difference in treatment in respect of any such trader or traders, the burden of proving that such lower charge or difference in treatment does not amount to an undue preference shall lie on the railway company (a). Undue preference in case of unequal tolls, rates, and charges, and unequal services performed.

(2) In deciding whether a lower charge or difference in treatment does or does not amount to an undue preference, the court having jurisdiction in the matter, or the Commissioners, as the case may be, may, so far as they think reasonable, in addition to any other considerations affecting the case, take into consideration whether such lower charge or difference in treatment is necessary for the purpose of securing in the interests of the public the traffic

Section 27. in respect of which it is made, and whether the inequality cannot be removed without unduly reducing the rates charged to the complainant: Provided that no railway company shall make, nor shall the court, or the Commissioners, sanction any difference in the tolls, rates or charges made for, or any difference in the treatment of, home and foreign merchandise, in respect of the same or similar services (b).

(3) The court or the Commissioners shall have power to direct that no higher charge shall be made to any person for services in respect of merchandise carried over a less distance than is made to any other person for similar services in respect of the like description and quantity of merchandise carried over a greater distance on the same line of railway.

(a) The effect of this section is not to limit the court in dealing with questions of alleged undue preference to the consideration whether or not the lower charge is necessary in the interests of the public (Liverpool Corn Trade Association v. L. & N. W. Rail. Co., [1891] 1 Q. B. 120; 8 Digest 186, 1178. And see Lever Brothers, Ltd. v. Midland Rail. Co. (1909), 25 T. L. R. 491, 768; 8 Digest 184, 1171; *Holwell Iron Co., Ltd. v. Extension of enactments as to undue preference to goods carried by sea.

28. The provisions of section two of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854, and of section fourteen of the Regulation of Railways Act, 1873, and any enactments amending and extending those enactments, shall apply to traffic by sea in any vessels belonging to or chartered or worked by any railway company, or in which any railway company procures merchandise to be carried, in the same manner and to the like extent as they apply to the land traffic of a railway company.

Group rates to be chargeable by railway companies.

29.—(1) (a) Notwithstanding any provision in any general or special Act (b), it shall be lawful for any railway company, for the purpose of fixing the rates to be charged for the carriage of merchandise to and from any place on their railway, to group together any number of places in the same district, situated at various distances from any point of destination or departure of merchandise, and to charge a uniform rate or uniform rates of carriage for merchandise to and from all places comprised in the group from and to any point of destination or departure.

(2) Provided that the distances shall not be unreasonable, and that the group rates charged and the places grouped together shall not be such as to create an undue preference (c).

(3) Where any group rate exists or is proposed, and in any case where there is a doubt whether any rates charged or proposed to be charged by a railway company may not be a contravention of section two of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854, and any Acts amending the same, the railway company may, upon giving notice in the prescribed manner, apply to the Commissioners, and the Commissioners may, after hearing the parties interested and any of the authorities mentioned in section seven of this Act, determine whether such group rate or any rate charged or proposed to be charged as aforesaid does or does not create an undue preference. Any persons aggrieved, and any of the authorities mentioned in section seven of this Act (d), may, at any time after the making of any order under this section, apply to the Commissioners to vary or rescind the order, and the Commissioners, after hearing all parties who are interested, may make an order accordingly.

Section 29.

30. Any port or harbour authority or dock company which shall have reason to believe that any railway company is by its rates or otherwise placing their port, harbour, or dock, at an undue disadvantage as compared with any other port, harbour, or dock to or from which traffic is or may be carried by means of the lines of the said railway company, either alone or in conjunction with those of other railway companies, may make complaint thereof to the commissioners, who shall have the like jurisdiction to hear and determine the subject-matter of such complaint as they have to hear and determine a complaint of a contravention of section two of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854, as amended by subsequent Acts.

Power to dock companies and harbour boards to complain of undue preference.

31 (a).—(1) Whenever any person receiving or sending or desiring to send goods by any railway is of opinion that the railway company is charging him an unfair or an unreasonable rate of charge, or is in any other respect treating him in an oppressive or unreasonable manner, such person may complain to the Board of Trade.

Complaints to Board of Trade of unreasonable charges by railway companies.

(2) The Board of Trade, if they think there is reasonable ground for the complaint, may thereupon call upon the railway company for an explanation, and endeavour to settle amicably the differences between the complainant and the railway company.

(3) For the purpose aforesaid, the Board of Trade may appoint either one of their own officers or any other competent person to communicate with the complainant and the railway company, and to receive and consider such explanations and communications as may be made in reference to the complaint; and the Board of Trade may pay to such last-mentioned person such remuneration as they may think fit, and as may be approved by the Treasury.

(4) The Board of Trade shall from time to time submit to Parliament reports of the complaints made to them under the provisions of this section, and the results of the proceedings taken in relation to such complaints, together with such observations thereon as the Board of Trade shall think fit.

(5) A complaint under this section may be made to the Board of Trade by any of the authorities mentioned in section seven of the Act (b), in any case in which, in the opinion of any of such authorities, they or any traders or persons in their district are being charged unfair or unreasonable rates by a railway company; and all the provisions of this section shall apply to a complaint so made as if the same had been made by a person entitled to make a complaint under this section.

(a) This section is now applicable only to canals (Railways Act, 1921, s. 86 (2), and Sched. IX., Pt. II.; 14 Halsbury's Statutes 370, 386).

Section 36.

PART III.

CANALS.

Part II. to extend to canal companies.

36. All the provisions of Part II. of this Act relating to any railway company shall, so far as applicable, apply to every canal company, and to every railway and canal company; and in Part II. of this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, the expression "railway company" shall include a canal company and a railway and canal company, and the expression "railway" shall include a canal, and the expression "rate" shall include tolls and dues of every description chargeable for the use of any canal or by any canal company.

Application of
36 & 37 Vict.
c. 48, to canals.

37.—(1) Section fifteen of the Regulation of Railways Act, 1873, shall apply to the terminal charges of a canal company.

(2) The Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854, as amended by the Regulation of Railways Act, 1873, shall extend to any person whose consent is required to any variation of the rates, tolls, or dues charged for the use of any canal, or by any canal company, in like manner as if such person were a canal company, and the expressions "canal company" and "railway and canal company" in the said Acts and this Act shall be construed accordingly to include such person.

(3) The provisions of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854, and the Regulation of Railways Act, 1873, with respect to rates, shall apply to tolls and dues of every description chargeable for the use of any canal or by any canal company. And nothing in any agreement, whether made before or after the passing of this Act, and whether confirmed by Act of Parliament or not, and nothing in this Act shall prevent the Commissioners from making or enforcing any order for a through rate or toll which may in their opinion be required in the interest of the public.

(4) Any company allowing traffic to pass from a canal on to any other canal or any railway, or from a railway on to a canal, shall be deemed to be a forwarding company, and the allowing of traffic so to pass shall be deemed to be the forwarding of traffic within the meaning of the above-mentioned Acts.

(5) The provisions of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854, and of the Regulation of Railways Act, 1873, and of this Act, with respect to through rates, shall extend to any canals which, in connection with any river or other waterway, form part of a continuous line of water communication, notwithstanding that tolls may not be leviable by authority of Parliament upon such river or other waterway.

Powers of Commissioners over canals, tolls, rates, and charges where a railway company or its officers own or control the traffic of a canal.

38. Where a railway company, or the directors or officers of a railway company, or any of them or any persons on their behalf, have the control over, or the right to interfere in or concerning the traffic conveyed, or the tolls, rates, or charges levied on the traffic of or for the conveyance of merchandise on a canal, or any part of a canal, and it is proved to the satisfaction of the Commissioners that the tolls, rates, or charges levied on the traffic of or for the conveyance of merchandise on the canal are such as are calculated to divert the traffic from the canal to the railway, to the detriment of the canal or person sending traffic over the canal or other canals adjacent to it—

(1) The Commissioners may, on the application of any person interested in the traffic of the canal, make an order requiring the tolls, rates, and charges levied on the traffic of or for the conveyance of merchandise on the canal, to be altered and adjusted in such a manner that the same shall be reasonable as compared with the rates and charges for the conveyance of merchandise on the railway : Section 38.

- (2) If within such time as may be prescribed by the order of the Commissioners, the tolls, rates, and charges levied on the traffic of or for the conveyance of merchandise on the canal are not altered and adjusted as required by such order, the Commissioners may themselves by an order make such alterations in and adjustment of the tolls, rates, and charges levied on the traffic of or for the conveyance of merchandise on the canal as they shall think just and reasonable, and the tolls, rates, and charges as altered and adjusted by the order of the Commissioners shall be binding on the company or persons owning or having the control over the traffic of, or the tolls, rates, and charges levied on the traffic of, or for the conveyance of merchandise on the canal.
- (3) No application shall be made to the Commissioners under this section until the Board of Trade (a) have certified that the applicant is a fit person to make the application, and that the application is a proper one to be submitted for the adjudication of the Commissioners ; and no order shall be made by the Commissioners under this section unless notice of the application has been served upon such company and persons, and in such manner as the Board of Trade (b) may direct :
- (4) The Commissioners may at any time, upon the application of any company or person affected by any order made under this section, and after notice to and hearing such companies and persons as the Commissioners may by any general rules or special order prescribe, rescind or vary any order made under this section.

(a) Now the Ministry of Transport.

* * * * *

(2) A byelaw or regulation of any canal company hereafter to be made under any power which has before or at the time of the passing of this Act (b) been, or which may hereafter be, conferred on any canal company, shall not have any force or effect until two months after a true copy of such byelaw or regulation, certified in such manner as the Board of Trade direct, has been forwarded to the Board of Trade, unless the Board of Trade before the expiration of such period have signified their approbation thereof.

(3) The Board of Trade may, at any time after any existing or future byelaws or regulations of a canal company have been forwarded to them, notify to the company their disallowance thereof, or of any of them, and in case such byelaws or regulations are in force at the time of the disallowance, the time at which the said byelaws or regulations shall cease to be in force. A byelaw or regulation disallowed by the Board of Trade shall not after such disallowance have any force or effect whatever, save (as regards any byelaw or regulation which may be in force at the time of the disallowance thereof) in so far as any penalty may have been then already incurred under the same.

(4) The Board of Trade may from time to time make, rescind, and vary

Section 40. such regulations as they think fit with respect to the publication by canal companies of their byelaws and regulations, and with respect to the publication by canal companies of their intention to apply to the Board of Trade for the allowance of any intended byelaws and regulations. Any regulations so made which are for the time being in force, shall have effect as if they had been enacted in this Act.

(a) For "Board of Trade" throughout this section read "Minister of Transport" (Ministry of Transport Act, 1919, post, p. 5195).

(b) Italicised words repealed by S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175).

Canal companies may agree for through tolls, etc.

43.—(1) Any canal company may make and enter into contracts and arrangements with any other canal company or canal companies for the passage over and along their respective canals, or any of them, of boats, barges, vessels, and other through traffic, and, for the use by such traffic, of the wharves, landing places, and other works of any such canal, upon payment of such through tolls, rates, and charges, and subject to such conditions and restrictions as may be agreed upon between such companies; and for the collection and recovery by any one of the companies on behalf of themselves and the other companies interested of the tolls, rates, and charges payable in respect of such through traffic; and for the division and apportionment of the tolls, rates, and charges; and any such contract may contain provisions for the erection and maintenance of or otherwise for providing warehouses, offices, and other buildings and conveniences, and any other provisions for the purpose of carrying into effect any such arrangement, and any company may apply their funds or moneys for the same purpose.

(2) Notwithstanding any enactments providing for the charge of equal tolls, rates, and charges, such through tolls, rates, and charges as above mentioned may respectively be computed at a lower toll or rate per mile than the tolls, rates, or charges charged for the passage over land along the same canals of like traffic, not being through traffic, without necessitating on occasioning any reduction of the last-mentioned tolls, rates, or charges.

(3) Any like contracts and arrangements existing at the passing of this Act shall be, and from the respective dates of the making thereof shall be deemed to have been, as valid as if the same had been made after the commencement of this Act.

Abandonment of canal.

45.—(1) Where, on the application of a canal company, it appears to the Board of Trade (a) that any canal or part of a canal belonging to the applicants (hereinafter referred to as an unnecessary canal) is at the time of making the application unnecessary for the purposes of public navigation, or where, on the application of any local authority (b), or of three or more owners of lands adjoining or near to any canal or part of a canal, it appears to the Board of Trade that that canal or part of a canal (hereinafter referred to as a derelict canal) has for at least three years previously to the making of the application been disused for navigation, or, by reason of the default of the proprietors thereof, has become unfit for navigation, or that the lands adjoining or near thereto have suffered injury by water that has escaped from the derelict canal, and that the proprietors of the derelict canal decline or are unable to effect the repairs necessary to prevent further injury, the Board of Trade may by warrant signed by their secretary authorise the abandonment by the existing proprietors of such unnecessary canal or such derelict canal, and after the granting of the warrant, and the due publication as required by the Board of Trade of a notice of the granting thereof, the Board of Trade may make an order releasing the canal company or other the proprietors of the unnecessary or derelict canal from all liability to maintain the same canal, and from all statutory and other obligations in respect thereof, or of or consequent on the abandonment thereof. Section 45.

(2) In the case of an unnecessary canal no warrant of abandonment shall be granted unless the Board of Trade are satisfied—

- (a) That it is unnecessary for the purposes of public navigation ;
- (b) That the application has been expressly authorised by a resolution of a majority of the shareholders of the canal company owning the canal present and voting at an extraordinary or special general meeting of that company ;
- (c) That such public and other notices of the application have been given as the Board of Trade may require ;
- (d) That compensation (the amount thereof to be determined in case of difference as the Board of Trade may prescribe) has been made to all persons entitled to compensation by reason of the proposed abandonment of the canal.

(3) In the case of a derelict canal the warrant may be granted on the condition that the canal or any part thereof, with all or any of the powers relating thereto, be transferred to any person, body of persons, or local authority, and where any such condition is imposed the Board of Trade may, if they think fit, frame and embody in a Provisional Order a scheme for the management of the canal or any part thereof.

(4) The Provisional Order may provide for the constitution of a body to manage the canal or any part thereof, for the transfer to that body or any local authority of the canal or any part thereof, and of all or any of the powers relating thereto, for the limitation or discharge of any liabilities affecting the canal or the owners thereof for the time being, and for any other matters which may appear to the Board of Trade to be necessary or proper for carrying this section into effect.

(5) The Board of Trade may submit to Parliament for confirmation any Provisional Order made by it in pursuance of this section, but any such Order shall be of no force unless and until it is confirmed by Act of Parliament.

(6) If while the Bill confirming any such Order is pending in either House of Parliament, a petition is presented against any Order comprised therein, the Bill, so far as it relates to the Order, may be referred to a select committee, and the petitioner shall be allowed to appear and oppose as in the case of private Bills.

(7) In this section the expression "local authority" means any one of the local authorities mentioned in section seven of this Act (c).

(8) For the purpose of giving effect to the provisions of this section, the Board of Trade may require the applicants to furnish any evidence in their possession or under their control relative to the application, and may at the expense of the applicants appoint and send an officer to inspect the canal referred to in the application, and to obtain information and evidence in the neighbourhood thereof relative to the proposed abandonment, and may from time to time make regulations as to the mode of making applications, and the nature and mode of publication of notices, and generally as to the conduct of proceedings.

(a) For "Board of Trade" here and throughout this section read "Minister of Transport" (Ministry of Transport Act, 1919, post, p. 5195).

(b) See sub-s. (7), supra.

(c) See the section, ante, p. 4705. The expression "local authority" includes an urban or rural district council.

46. In this Part of this Act the expression "canal company" shall include a "railway and canal company," so far as relating to any canal of any such last-mentioned company. Definition of "canal company."

Evidence on rating appeals.

48. On any rating appeal (a), and before any court, where it may be material to show the receipts or profits of a railway company or canal company, or railway and canal company, it shall be lawful for the company to prove the same by written statements or returns verified by the affidavit or statutory declaration of the manager or other responsible officer, and any such statements or returns shall be prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated with respect to such receipts or profits : Provided that the person by whom any such affidavit or statutory declaration is made shall in every case, if required, attend to be cross-examined thereon.

(a) See the definition of this expression in s. 55, post, p. 4721.

Parties may appear in person or by counsel,
etc.

50. In any proceedings under this Act any party may appear before the Commissioners either by himself in person or by counsel or solicitor.

Saving of powers conferred on Commissioners and
Board of Trade.

52. The powers and jurisdiction conferred by this Act on the Commissioners or Board of Trade shall be in addition to and not in substitution for any powers and jurisdiction vested in the Commissioners or Board of Trade by any statute.

Proceedings of
Board of Trade.

53.—(1) All documents purporting to be rules, orders, or certificates made or issued by the Board of Trade (a), and to be sealed with the seal of the Board, or to be signed by a secretary or assistant secretary of the Board, or any person authorised in that behalf by the President of the Board, shall be received in evidence, and deemed to be such orders, rules, or certificates without further proof, unless the contrary is shown.

(2) A certificate signed by the President of the Board of Trade that any order made, certificate issued, or act done, is the order, certificate, or act of, the Board of Trade, shall be conclusive evidence of the fact so certified.

(a) The Board of Trade has now been superseded by the Minister of Transport (Ministry of Transport Act, 1919, post, p. 5195).

Expenses of local authorities.

54.—(1) Where any local authority having power under this Act to make or oppose any complaint to the Commissioners, or the Board of Trade, or to enter into any agreement to pay the whole or a portion of the expenses of complying with an order of the Commissioners or the Board of Trade, or to make any application for the abandonment or acquisition of a canal under this Act, incur any expenses in or incidental to such complaint, opposition, agreement, or application, such expenses may be defrayed out of the rates or funds out of which the expenses incurred by such authority in the execution of their ordinary duties are defrayed, and if such authority is a rural sanitary authority in England, shall be defrayed as general expenses, unless the Local Government Board direct that they shall be defrayed as special expenses (a).

(2) A local authority may enter into any contract involving the payment by themselves and their successors of any expenses authorised by this section to be defrayed.

(3) Where any such local authority have no power to borrow money for the purpose of defraying any expenses authorised by this section, such authority, if other than a surveyor of highways, may, with the consent of the Board of Trade in the case of any harbour board or conservancy authority, and with the consent of the Local Government Board in the case of any other authority, borrow money in manner provided by the Local Loans Act, 1875 (b), on the security of the rates or funds out of which the expenses are authorised to be defrayed, and the prescribed period for the loan shall be such period as the board giving such consent may approve.

(4) On the request of any board whose consent is required for such loan, the Board of Trade or Commissioners shall certify such particulars respecting the amount of the said expenses and the propriety of incurring the same and of borrowing for the payment thereof as may be requested by such board (c).

(a) The expenses in the case of an urban authority will, in general, be paid out of the general rate fund. See L. G. A., 1933, ss. 185 (1), 188, ante, pp. 1013, 1015. As to special expenses, see s. 190 of the same Act, ante, p. 1016, and the R. and V. Act, 1925, ante, p. 2113.

(b) The text of this Act is set out, ante, p. 4530.

(c) The remainder of this section relates only to Ireland.

Definitions;

Terms defined by the Regulation of Railways Act, 1873, have the meanings thereby assigned to them:

The term “conservancy authority” means any persons who are otherwise than for private profit intrusted with the duty or invested with the power of conserving, maintaining, or improving the navigation of any tidal or inland water or navigation:

The term “harbour board” means any persons who are otherwise than for private profit intrusted with the duty or invested with the power of constructing, improving, managing, regulating, and maintaining a harbour, whether natural or artificial, or any dock:

The term “undue preference” includes an undue preference, or an undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage, in any respect, in favour of or against any person or particular class of persons or any particular description of traffic:

The term “terminal charges” includes charges in respect of stations, sidings, wharves, depôts, warehouses, cranes, and other similar matters, and of any services rendered thereat:

The term “merchandise” includes goods, cattle, live-stock, and animals of all descriptions:

The term “trader” includes any person sending, receiving, or desiring to send merchandise by railway or canal:

The term “home” in relation to merchandise, includes the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands, and the Isle of Man:

The term “rating appeal” means an appeal against any valuation list or against any poor rate or any other local rate (a).

The term “superior court” means, as regards England, the High Court . . .

The term “superior court of appeal” means, as regards England, her Majesty’s Court of Appeal . . .

(a) The expression “local rate” would include a general rate. Parts of the remainder of this section relating to Scotland and Ireland only are here omitted.

Section 1.

THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1888.

(51 & 52 VICT. c. 41.)

An Act to amend the Laws relating to Local Government in England and Wales, and for other purposes connected therewith.

[13th August 1888.]

This Act established county councils throughout England and Wales, and transferred to them most of the administrative powers and duties formerly exercised and performed by justices in quarter sessions. In so far as it relates only to county councils, their election, powers, duties and liabilities, it was formerly beyond the scope of the present Work, and on these subjects the reader was referred to the "Local Government Act, 1888," 3rd ed., by Macmorran and Dill; but there seems no longer to be any logical reason for omitting such provisions, and the Act, so far as unrepealed, is accordingly set out.

PART I.

COUNTY COUNCILS.

Constitution of County Councils.

1, 2. [Repealed (except as to London) by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.]

Powers of County Councils.

Transfer to county council of administrative business of quarter
sessions.

3. There shall be transferred to the council of each county . . .

(a) the administrative business of the justices of the county in quarter sessions assembled, that is to say, all business done by the quarter sessions or any committee appointed by the quarter sessions, in respect of the several matters following, namely,

(i) The making, assessing, and levying of county, police, hundred, and all rates, and the application and expenditure thereof (b),
... (c);

(ii) . . . (c);

(iii) . . . (c);

(iv) . . . (c), assize courts, judges' lodgings, lock-up houses, court houses, justices' rooms, police stations, . . . (c), subject as to the use of buildings by the quarter sessions and the justices to the provisions of this Act respecting the joint committee of quarter sessions and the county council (d);

(v) The licensing under any general Act of houses and other places for music or for dancing, and the granting of licences under the Racecourses Licensing Act, 1879 (e);

(vi) . . . (c);

(vii) The establishment and maintenance of and the contribution to reformatory and industrial schools (f);

(viii) Bridges and roads repairable with bridges, and any powers vested by the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, in the county authority (g);

- (ix) The tables of fees to be taken by and the costs to be allowed any inspector, . . . (c) or person holding any office in the county other than the clerk of the peace and the clerks of the justices (h) ;
- (x) The appointment, removal, and determination of salaries, of . . . (c) any officer under the Explosives Act, 1875, and any officers whose remuneration is paid out of the county rate other than the clerk of the peace and the clerks of the justices (i) ;
- (xi) The salary of any coroner whose salary is payable out of the county rate, the fees, allowances, and disbursements allowed to be paid by any such coroner, and the division of the county into coroners' districts, and the assignment of such districts (k) ;
- (xii) . . . (l) ;
- (xiii) The execution as local authority of the Acts relating . . . (m) to destructive insects, to fish conservancy, to wild birds, to weights and measures, and to gas meters, and of the Local Stamp Act, 1869 (n) ;
- (xiv) Any matters arising under the Riot (Damages) Act, 1886 (o) ;
- (xv) The registration of rules of scientific societies under the Scientific Societies Act, 1843 ; the registration of charitable gifts under the Charitable Donations Registration Act, 1812 ; the certifying and recording of places of religious worship under the Places of Religious Worship Act, 1812 ; the confirmation and record of the rules of loan societies under the Loan Societies Act, 1840 (n) ; and
- (xvi) Any other business transferred by this Act.

Section 3.

Poor law functions were transferred to county councils by the L. G. A., 1929, Pt. I, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 883, registration functions by ibid., Pt. II., and certain highway functions by ibid., Pt. III. Most other powers of county councils have been conferred direct by statute and not transferred.

(a) The words "on and after the appointed day" which were formerly inserted here were repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175).

(b) Rates are no longer made by the county council. Instead they precept on local authorities (see R. & V. A., 1925, s. 9, and notes thereto, ante, pp. 2134-2140). In effect, therefore, no powers really continue to exist under this head.

(c) Certain words here were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.

(d) Most of these powers were conferred by the County Buildings Act, 1826, which was repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. IV., ante, pp. 1194, 1276, except so far as relates to assize courts, sessions houses and judges' lodgings. See now s. 125 of that Act, ante, p. 915, as to halls, offices, etc.

(e) The question of licences for these purposes is outside the scope of this work.

(f) The powers in existence for this purpose in 1888 are now superseded by later statutes, notably the Children and Young Persons Act, 1933. The powers are set out in detail in the article on "Approved Schools" in The Encyclopædia of Local Government Law and Administration.

(g) See ante, p. 4602.

(h) The excepted fees were, in 1888, fixed under the S. J. A., 1848, s. 30 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 288).

(i) This subject is dealt with in detail in Halsbury's Laws of England (Hailsham edn.), Vol. XIV., pp. 467 et seq.

(k) See Coroners (Amendment) Act, 1926, s. 5 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 782).

Note to
Section 3.

(l) This paragraph was repealed by the Representation of the People Act, 1918, s. 47, post, p. 5177.

(m) The words "to contagious diseases of animals" which were formerly contained in this paragraph were repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175).

(n) None of these Acts are within the scope of this work. Each subject is dealt with under the specific heading in the Encyclopædia of Local Government Law and Administration.

(o) For this Act, see 12 Halsbury's Statutes 844.

4. [Repealed (except as to London) by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.]

Appointment of coroners by county council.

5.—(1) . . . (a) a coroner for a county shall not be elected by the freeholders of the county, and on any vacancy occurring in the office of coroner for a county, who is elected to that office in pursuance of a writ de coronatore eligendo, a like writ for the election of a successor shall be directed to the county council of the county instead of to the sheriff, and the county council shall thereupon appoint a fit person, not being a county alderman or county councillor, to fill such office, and in the case of a county divided into coroners' districts shall assign him a district; and any person so appointed shall have like powers and duties, and be entitled to like remuneration, as if he had been elected coroner for the county by the freeholders thereof.

(2) Where the district of any such coroner is situate wholly within any administrative county, the council of that county shall, subject as herein-after mentioned, appoint the coroner.

(3) Where the district of any such coroner is situate partly in one and partly in another administrative county forming part of an entire county, the joint committee for the entire county may arrange for the alteration in manner provided by law of the district, so that, on the next avoidance of the office of coroner of that district, or at any earlier time fixed by the joint committee when the alteration is made, the coroner's district shall not be situate in more than one administrative county.

(4) Until such arrangement is made, the joint committee for the entire county shall appoint the coroner for the said district, and the amount payable in respect of the salary, fees, and expenses of such coroner shall be defrayed in like manner as costs of the joint committee are directed by this Act to be defrayed.

(5) Nothing in this Act respecting the appointment of a coroner shall alter the jurisdiction of a coroner for the entire county, or any power of removing such coroner, whether by writ de coronatore exonerando or otherwise, and all writs for the election or removal of a coroner shall be altered so as to give effect to this election.

(6) . . . (a) any . . . (a) enactment relating to the election of a coroner for a county by the freeholders of such county or any district thereof, are hereby repealed . . . (a).

(7) . . . (b).

(a) Certain words here were repealed by S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175).

Note to
Section 5.

(b) This paragraph was repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 735.

6. The county council shall have power to purchase, or take over on terms to be agreed on, existing bridges not being at present county bridges, and to erect new bridges, and to maintain, repair, and improve any bridges so purchased, taken over, or erected.

Power of council as to bridges.

7. There shall be transferred to the county council . . . (a) the business of the justices of the county out of session—

Transfer to county council of certain powers of justices out of session.

(a) in respect of the licensing of houses or places for the public performance of stage plays, and

(b) in respect of the execution as local authority of the Explosives Act, 1875.

(a) Certain words here were repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175).

8.—(1) Nothing in this Act shall transfer to a county council any business of the quarter sessions or justices in relation to appeals by any overseers or persons against the basis or standard for the county rate or against that or any other rate.

Reservation of business to quarter
sessions.

(2) All business of the quarter sessions or any committee thereof not transferred by or in pursuance of this Act to the county council shall be reserved to and transacted by the quarter sessions or committee thereof in the same manner, as far as circumstances admit, as if this Act had not passed.

9.—(1) The powers, duties, and liabilities of quarter sessions and of justices out of session with respect to the county police shall . . . (a) vest in and attach to the quarter sessions and the county council jointly, and be exercised and discharged through the standing joint committee of the quarter sessions and county council appointed as herein-after mentioned.

Powers as to police

(2) Provided that the powers conferred by section seven of the County and Borough Police Act, 1856, which requires constables to perform, in addition to their ordinary duties, such duties connected with the police as the quarter sessions may direct or require, shall continue to be exercised by the quarter sessions as well as by the said standing joint committee, and may also be exercised by the county council; and the said section shall be construed as if the county council and the said standing joint committee were therein mentioned as well as the quarter sessions.

(3) Nothing in this Act shall affect the powers, duties and liabilities of justices of the peace as conservators of the peace, or the obligation of the chief constable or other constables to obey their lawful orders given in that behalf.

(a) Certain words here were repealed by S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175).

10. [Repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.]

Section 11.

Entire maintenance of [county] roads by county council (a).

11.—(1) Every road in a county (b) which is for the time being a [county] road (c) within the meaning of the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878 (d), inclusive of every bridge carrying such road if repairable by the highway authority (e), shall, after the appointed day (f), be wholly (g) maintained and repaired by the council of the county in which the road is situate, and such council, for the purpose of the maintenance, repair, improvement, and enlargement of, and other dealing with such road (h), shall have the same powers and be subject to the same duties as a highway board, and may further exercise any powers vested in the council for the purpose of the maintenance and repair of bridges (i), and the enactments relating to highways and bridges shall apply accordingly; and the county council shall have the same powers as a highway board for preventing and removing obstructions (k), and for asserting the right of the public to the use and enjoyment of the roadside wastes (l); and the execution of this section shall be a general county purpose . . . (m).

(a) Considerable amendments have been effected in this section by Part III. of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903, under which as from April 1st, 1930, county councils become the highway authorities in respect of all "county roads" (i.e., roads which were formerly "main roads," "classified roads" in urban districts and all roads in rural districts) other than county roads claimed, under s. 32, ibid., by the councils of urban districts of more than 20,000 population.

References in any enactment to "main roads" are to be construed as references to "county roads" (s. 29 (1)).

In relation to county roads (other than those claimed under s. 32, ibid.) county councils have the same functions as they possess in relation to main roads under sub-s. (1) of the section in the text. Further functions in relation to "county roads" and all highways in rural districts are also conferred upon them by the L. G. A., 1929, to the provisions of which reference should be made.

(b) The expression "county" practically includes every place within an administrative county, i.e., a county for which a county council is elected. It includes all quarter sessions boroughs other than county boroughs. See ss. 35 (3) and 38 (3), post, pp. 4747, 4751.

(c) "County road" is substituted for "main road" by s. 29 (1), L. G. A., 1929. Reference should be made to the definition of "road" in s. 134 of that Act, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 971.

(d) The Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, ante, p. 4602, so far as material and unrepealed, and as amended by the L. G. A., 1929, is set out: see especially ss. 13—17, ante, pp. 4605—8, and the notes thereto. The administrative business formerly done by quarter sessions under that Act in respect of all powers vested by it in the "county authority" is transferred to the county councils by s. 3 (viii.) of this Act.

Bridges.

(e) "County bridges" (see the definition in s. 134, L. G. A., 1929) over which a county road is carried are not affected by this provision. Apart from it they are repairable by the county council, the powers and duties of the justices in quarter sessions having been transferred to them by s. 3 (viii.) of this Act, ante, p. 4722. The liability to repair a bridge ratione tenuræ is not transferred to a county council by virtue of this provision, and this non-liability is preserved by s. 38, L. G. A., 1929. But all bridges carrying county roads, if repairable by the highway authority, are within the expression "county roads" (see s. 134, L. G. A., 1929).

By s. 6 of the 1888 Act, ante, p. 4725, a county council may take over, on terms to be agreed on, existing bridges not being county bridges, and may maintain, repair, and improve such bridges. See also the Bridges Act, 1929, Vol. V. and 9 Halsbury's Statutes 268.

(f) Italicised words repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175). The appointed day was April 1st, 1889.

(g) Under Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, s. 13 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 172), the county authority contributed only a moiety of the cost of maintenance. Now they are liable for the entire cost. This provision, however, does not affect their right to receive the income of charitable trusts created for the repair of the road or bridge (Att.-Gen. v. Day, [1900] 1 Ch. 31; 64 J. P. 88; 26 Digest 372, 980; Re Hall's Charity, Severn Comrs. v. Charity Trustees and Worcestershire County Council (1911), 76 J. P. 9; 28 T. L. R. 32; 26 Digest 578, 2693).

Note to Section 11.

A local Act of 1871 gave power to the corporation of a borough to order that in any street (whether or not a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large) footways should be made by the frontagers of such form, size, and materials as the corporation should direct; and provided that if the frontagers made default in execution of the work, the corporation might cause the work to be executed and recover the cost from the frontagers. It was held that when the borough had by virtue of this Act become a county borough, the provisions of s. 11, supra, had not the effect of repealing the provisions of the local Act as regards streets which were main roads (Lodge v. Huddersfield Corporation, [1898] 1 Q. B. 847; 62 J. P. 387; 26 Digest 549, 2459; see also Re Staffordshire and Derbyshire County Councils (1890), 54 J. P. 566; 26 Digest 582, 2724).

(h) Under Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, s. 13 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 172), the county authority contributed only towards the cost of maintenance. It was held that the cost of removing snow, so as to render a main road passable, was an expense within the meaning of this term (Amesbury Guardians v. Wiltshire J.J. (1883), 10 Q. B. D. 480; 47 J. P. 184; 26 Digest 395, 1213). Cf. Acton D. C. v. London United Tramways, [1909] 1 K. B. 68; 73 J. P. 6; 26 Digest 439, 1563, as to a tramway company's liability to remove snow from a street under the Tramways Act, 1870, ante, p. 4272. The cost of scavenging and watering was also held to be within the term so far as these were necessary for keeping the road in repair, as distinguished from scavenging and watering for purposes of public health and comfort (R. v. Essex J.J. (1888), 4 T. L. R. 676; Burnley Corporation v. Lancaster C. C. (1889), 54 J. P. 279; 26 Digest 395, 1215; Re Warminster L. B. and Wiltshire C. C. (1890), 25 Q. B. D. 450; 54 J. P. 375; 26 Digest 395, 1217). The House of Lords held that lighting was not "maintaining or repairing," in Lanarkshire Road Trustees v. Fleming (1886), 14 R. (Ct. of Sess.) (H. L.) 18; and in Warminster L. B. v. Wiltshire C. C., supra, the court held that the cost of lighting main roads was not cast upon county councils by the wider language of the text. The words "improvement and enlargement of and other dealing" were inserted to meet the decision in Leek Improvement Commissioners v. Staffordshire J.J. (1888), 20 Q. B. D. 794; 52 J. P. 403; 26 Digest 395, 1216, where it was held that converting a macadamised road into a paved road did not come within the term "maintenance," but it would no doubt be an improvement or other dealing with the road within the meaning of the text. See also London (Lord Mayor, etc. of) v. Barnes (1896), 12 T. L. R. 135. The Highway Act, 1864, ss. 47, 48 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 158, 160), enumerates certain acts which are to be deemed improvements which a highway board may make, and the county council will have the same powers. These improvements include the conversion of any road that has not been stoned into a stoned road, the widening of any road, the cutting off the corners in any road where land is required to be purchased for that purpose, the levelling roads, the making any new road, and the building or enlarging bridges, and the doing of any work in respect of highways beyond ordinary repairs essential to placing any existing highway in a proper state of repair. See also as to improvements the Development and Road Improvement Funds Act, 1909, post, p. 5105, amended by the Roads Act, 1920, Vol. V., post, and the Roads Improvement Act, 1925, Vol. V., post. For the purposes of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 883, the expression "improvement" in relation to a road includes the fixing of a building line or improvement line under any enactment (s. 134, ibid.). The county council is liable to repair footpaths by the side of main roads, paved or pitched crossings, etc. (see Re Warminster L. B. and Wiltshire C. C. (1890), 25 Q. B. D. 450; 54 J. P. 375; 26 Digest 395, 1217; In re Burslem Corporation and Staffordshire C. C., [1896] 1 Q. B. 24; 59 J. P. 772; 26 Digest 395, 1218; Derby C. C. v. Matlock Bath and Scarthin Nick U. D., [1896] A. C. 315; 60 J. P. 676; 26 Digest 395, 1219).

The owner of land, through which a main road ran, brought an action against the county council claiming a declaration that the council were liable to repair the

Note to Section 11.

retaining walls on either side of such road; he also asked for a mandatory injunction ordering the council to do any necessary repairs to such walls. It was held that the court could not consider whether the repair of those walls (or any other particular work) was necessary for the proper maintenance of the road, and that it would be contrary to practice to grant a mandatory injunction to do repairs even if the council were liable to repair the walls (Att.-Gen. v. Staffordshire C. C., [1905] 1 Ch. 336, 69 J. P. 97; 26 Digest 353, 797; but cf. R. v. Wilts and Berks Canal Co., [1912] 3 K. B. 623; 77 J. P. 24; 16 Digest 295, 1082). The liability of a highway authority is general, i.e., merely to repair and maintain the highway; they must select and adopt proper methods of performing their duty; the court will not prescribe methods, but merely consider the result (Att.-Gen. v. Staffordshire C. C., supra). Whether the only liability as distinct from duty is on the inhabitants of the parish, quære (ibid.). See further as to the discretion of a highway authority as to the mode of repairing, Lodge Holes Colliery Co., Ltd. v. Wednesbury Corporation, [1908] A. C. 323; 72 J. P. 417; 26 Digest 331, 630; R. v. Brighton Corporation, Ex parte Shoemith (1907), 71 J. P. 265; 96 L. T. 762; 26 Digest 386, 1148.

Repair of bridges.

(i) The county council have now all the powers formerly exercised by justices in quarter sessions as to the repair of county bridges. See s. 3 (viii.) of this Act, ante, p. 4722. As to the general liability of the county council (as representing the "inhabitants") to repair a county bridge, see Att.-Gen. v. West Riding C. C. (1903), 67 J. P. 173; 26 Digest 572, 2638, and cases cited therewith on p. 4374, ante. A bridge was partly in Staffordshire and partly in Derbyshire, and by a local Act the expenses of repairing it were to be borne equally by the two county rates. Although by s. 50 of this Act (repealed) the whole of the bridge became included in Staffordshire, it was held that the local Act remained in force, and both counties were still liable equally (Re Staffordshire and Derbyshire County Councils (1890), 54 J. P. 566; 26 Digest 582, 2724). If the county council make any alteration in the road so as to cause a nuisance, they will be liable in damages to any person injured thereby: see Shill v. Gloucestershire C. C. (1893), Times, October 30th. But where the approach to a county bridge had subsided, and the county council proposed to raise it to its original level, it was held that they could not be restrained from doing so at the suit of a frontager, who alleged injury to his property (Aitherton v. Cheshire C. C. (1895), 60 J. P. 6; 26 Digest 334, 655). As to the liability of councils, railway and canal companies and others to repair bridges and "approaches" thereto and fences thereof, and in some cases to raise bridges when a subsidence occurs, see cases cited in note (d) to the P. H. A., 1875, s. 148, ante, p. 4369.

For the purpose of repairing county roads the county council have the same right under this section of taking gravel from a pit as a surveyor of highways has (Norfolk C. C. v. Bittering Highway Surveyor (1894), 58 J. P. 497; 26 Digest 354, 805). See also as to the power of a county council to take materials for repairs under the Highway Act, 1835, ss. 51, 53 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 72, 74), Allinson v. Cumberland C. C. (1907), 71 J. P. 398; 97 L. T. 187; 26 Digest 355, 813.

See also note (c), supra.

Removing obstructions to highways.

(k) The costs of prosecuting by indictment for obstructing a highway are properly chargeable as part of the cost of maintaining a highway (R. v. Heath (1865), 29 J. P. 452). JESSER, M.R., expressed an opinion that the Crown or the conservators of a road had by their agents a right to remove an obstruction, though a private person has no such right if he could pass without doing so, and that in any case a body or person who represented the public would have such a right after judicial determination that there was an obstruction (Bagshaw v. Buxton L. B. (1875), 1 Ch. D. 220; 40 J. P. 197; 26 Digest 449, 1652). But in Reynolds v. Presteign U. D. C., [1896] 1 Q. B. 604; 60 J. P. 296; 26 Digest 449, 1654, it was held that an urban district council has power to remove encroachments upon any highway within the district vested in them by the P. H. A., 1875, s. 149, ante, p. 4375, without first taking proceedings, either summarily or by way of indictment, against the person responsible. And according to the dicta in Louth U. D. C. v. West (1896), 60 J. P. 600; 65 L. J. Q. B. 535; 26 Digest 391, 1176, it would appear that this power is exercisable by rural district councils also. Moreover, in Harris v. Northamptonshire C. C. (1897), 61 J. P. 599; 13 T. L. R. 440; 26 Digest 449, 1656, it was held that a county council has the like power of removing obstructions without first taking proceedings, apart from any vesting in them of the soil of the road. But the practice of acting without first obtaining a judicial decision in cases where there is a doubt as to whether the obstruction is lawful or not was strongly condemned in Reynolds v. Presteign U. D. C., [1896] 1 Q. B. 604; 60 J. P. 296; 26 Digest 449, 1654, and in Urban Housing Co. v. Oxford Corporation, [1940] 1 Ch. 70; [1940] 4 All E. R. 211; 104 J. P. 15; Digest Supp. In Louth U. D. C. v. West (1896), 60 J. P. 600; 65 L. J. Q. B. 535; 26 Digest 391, 1176, it was held that the local authority might recover the expenses of removal by action from the person responsible.

Note to

It has been held in Ireland that traction engine traffic which breaks up a road reasonably fit for the ordinary traffic thereof is a public nuisance, and that (apart from statutory provision) a council liable to repair such road can recover the extra cost of repairs as special or particular damage (Cavan C. C. and Bailieborough R. D. C. v. Kane, [1910] 2 I. R. 644; [1913] 2 I. R. 250; 26 Digest 470, t). The same law applies in Scotland (Glasgow Corporation v. Barclay, Curle & Co., Ltd. (1923), 87 J. P. 160; 130 L. T. 33; 26 Digest 462, s). See also cases on p. 4364, ante.

(I) The highway is prima facie the entire space between the fences which is capable of being used for passage. See and compare the following cases as to the presumption and the conditions to which it is subject: R. v. United Kingdom Telegraph Co. (1862), 2 B. & S. 647 n.; 26 J. It would not ordinarily include an open and unenclosed ditch by the side of it (Thorne v. Field (1869), 33 J. P. 727; 20 L. T. 563; 26 Digest 435, 1531; Hanscombe v. Bedfordshire C. C., [1938] Ch. 944; [1938] 3 All E. R. 647; Digest Supp.), although there is no rule of law that a ditch running alongside a highway cannot be dedicated as part of the highway, merely because it is not part of the roadway and cannot be used by the public for purposes of passage (Chorley Corporation v. Nightingale, [1907] 2 K. B. 637; 71 J. P. 441; 26 Digest 315, 472); with the last case compare Walmsley v. Featherstone U. D. C. (1909), 73 J. P. 322; 26 Digest 310, 430. Nor would it include any part of the unenclosed land adjoining a highway which had never been dedicated as part of the highway though within fifteen feet of the centre of the road (Easton v. Richmond Highway Board (1871), L. R. 7 Q. B. 69; 36 J. P. 485; 26 Digest 435, 1536). And see Robinson v. Coupen Local Board (1893), 63 L. J. Q. B. 235; 9 R. 858; 26 Digest 300, 309. As to whether the whole width of a projected road has been dedicated, or only that portion of it as yet reasonably fit for traffic, see Rowley v. Tottenham U. D. C., [1914] A. C. 95; 78 J. P. 97; 26 Digest 308, 407. As to the liability of a local authority for the interference by a third party with the right of access to a highway, see Porter v. Tottenham U. D. C., [1915] 1 K. B. 776; 79 J. P. 169; 7 Digest 337, 26.

The provision in the text appears to imply that the county council will have the same powers over and in respect of roadside wastes between the fences as they have wastes.

Note to Section 11.

with respect to the rest of the highway; but it is submitted that they have no powers or rights over roadside wastes which do not form part of the highway and which remain private property as before (Belmore (Countess of) v. Kent C. C., [1901] 1 Ch. 873; 65 J. P. 456; 26 Digest 314, 466). In Curtis v. Kesteven C. C. (1890), 45 Ch. D. 504; 26 Digest 391, 1174, unmetalled strips adjoining a main road were held by NORTH, J., to be "roadside wastes" within the meaning of the subsection in the text but not to be vested in the county council by sub-s. (6) (which is in relation to "county roads" re-enacted by s. 29 (2) and (3), L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903). By the L. G. A., 1894, s. 26 (6), post, p. 4911, nothing in that section shall affect the powers of the county council in relation to roadside wastes. The powers of a rural district council in relation to rights of way and roadside wastes under that section are preserved by s. 30, L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904.

(m) Certain words here were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.

(2) Provided that any urban authority may, within twelve months after the appointed day, or in case of a road in the district of such authority becoming a main road at any subsequent date then within twelve months after that date, claim to retain the powers and duties of maintaining and repairing a main road within the district of such authority, and thereupon they shall be entitled to retain the same, and, for the purpose of the maintenance, repair, improvement, and enlargement of, and other dealing with such road, shall have the same powers and be subject to the same duties as if such road were an ordinary road vested in them, and the council shall make to such authority an annual payment towards the costs of the maintenance and repair, and reasonable improvement connected with the maintenance and repair of such road.

This subsection is repealed by L. G. A., 1929, Sched. XII., Pt. III.; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 1016. The right to "claim" county roads can now be exercised only by the councils of urban districts with a population of more than 20,000 (s. 32, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 906). Where such authorities had "retained" main roads under this subsection they are to be deemed to have claimed such roads under s. 32 (5), Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 908. The contributions to be made by county councils towards the maintenance, repair, and improvement of claimed county roads is provided for in s. 33.

(3) The amount of such payment shall be such annual sum as may be from time to time agreed on, or in the absence of agreement may be determined by arbitration of the Local Government Board.

This subsection is repealed by L. G. A., 1929, Sched. XII., Pt. III., see note to sub-s. (2), supra.

(4) The county council and any district council may from time to time contract for the undertaking by the district council of the maintenance, repair, improvement, and enlargement of, and other dealing with any main road, and, if the county council so require, the district council shall undertake the same, and such undertaking shall be in consideration of such annual payment by the county council for the costs of the undertaking as may from time to time be agreed upon, or, in case of difference, be determined by arbitration of the Local Government Board; and for the purposes of such undertaking the district council shall have the same powers and be subject to the same duties and liabilities as if the road were an ordinary road vested in them.

This subsection is repealed by Sched. XII., Pt. III., L. G. A., 1929. Under that Act county councils may delegate their functions in respect of county roads to district councils, see ss. 35 and 36, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 910, 911.

(5) Provided that in no case shall a county council make any payment to a district council towards the costs of such undertaking as respects any road, or towards the costs of the maintenance, repair, or improvement of any road by an urban authority, until the county council are satisfied by the report of their surveyor, or such other person as the county council may appoint for the purpose, that the road has been properly maintained and repaired, or that the improvement or enlargement of or other dealing with the road, as the case may be, has been properly executed. Section 11.

This subsection is repealed by Sched. XII., Pt. III., L. G. A., 1929.

A similar provision is contained in ss. 33 and 36, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 908, 911.

(6) A main road and the materials thereof, and all drains belonging thereto, shall, except where the urban authority retain the powers and duties of maintaining and repairing such road, vest in the county council, and where any sewer or other drain is used for any purpose in connexion with the drainage of any main road, the county council shall continue to have the right of using such sewer or drain for such purpose, and if any difference arises between a county council and any highway or sanitary authority as respects the authority in whom the drain is vested, or as to the use of any sewer or other drain, the council or the highway or sanitary authority may require such difference to be referred to arbitration, and the same shall be referred to arbitration in manner provided by this Act.

This sub-section is repealed by Sched. XII., Pt. III., L. G. A., 1929.

A similar provision in relation to "county roads" is contained in s. 29 (2) and (3), Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903.

(7) Where a county council declare a road to be a [county] road, such declaration shall not take effect until the road has been placed in proper repair and condition to the satisfaction of the county council. Declaration as a main road.

This provision is in effect an amendment or proviso to the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, s. 15 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 172). That Act is amended by the L. G. A., 1929, s. 37, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 912, and for references in the Act as so amended as well as in the provision in the text to "main roads," the words "county roads" are now substituted (s. 29 (1), L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903). As to the determination of any dispute arising as to the condition of the road, see sub-s. (9), infra.

(8) If at any time the county council are satisfied, on the report of their surveyor or other person appointed by them for the purpose, that any portion of a main road, the maintenance and repair of which are undertaken by any district council, is not in proper repair and condition, the county council may cause notice to be given to such district council, requiring them to place the road in proper repair and condition; and, if such notice is not complied with within a reasonable time, the county council may do everything that seems to them necessary to place the road in proper repair and condition, and the expenses of so doing shall be a debt of the said district council to the county council.

This sub-section is repealed by Sched. XII., Pt. III., L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903.

A similar provision enabling a county council to act in place of a district council to whom functions are delegated under s. 35 of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 910, is contained in s. 36 (1), ibid. No provision as to Determination of

expenses is, of course, contained in s. 36 (1) since the cost of maintaining county roads, even when functions in relation thereto have been delegated, is borne by the county council.

(9) If any difference arises under this section between a county council and a district council as to the refusal of the county council to make a payment under this section to the district council in respect of any undertaking or road, or as to a road having been placed in proper repair and condition previously to its becoming a [county] road, or as to any notice given to the district council by the county council to place a road in proper repair and condition, such difference shall, if either council so require, [be determined by the Local Government Board as arbitrators or otherwise at the option of the Board].

Words in italics repealed by L. G. A., 1929, Sched. XII., Pt. III.

"County road" is substituted for "main road" in consequence of s. 29 (1), L. G. A., 1929.

In this sub-section, the words in square brackets were substituted by the Local Government (Determination of Differences) Act, 1896, post, p. 4938, for the words "be referred to the arbitration of the Local Government Board." The powers of the L. G. B. in relation to roads are now transferred to the Minister of Transport by the Ministry of Transport Act, 1919, post, p. 5195, and orders made thereunder, ante, p. 3438. It is only where the Minister determines any difference as arbitrator that he is obliged to appoint under s. 63, post, p. 4754, an arbitrator who may be compelled under the Arbitration Act, 1889, s. 24, post, p. 4793, to state a case for the opinion of the court. Where the Minister determines otherwise than as arbitrator he proceeds under s. 87, post, p. 4763, and this, in fact, is the course usually adopted. As to the finality of his decision where he so decides, see R. v. L. G. B. (1908), 72 J. P. 211; 26 Digest 396, 1227.

The differences referred to are those which may arise under sub-s. (7).

Contribution
by county council to other highways.

(10) The county council may, if they think fit, contribute towards the costs of the maintenance, repair, enlargement, and improvement of any highway or public footpath in the county, although the same is not a [county] road.

The words "county road" are substituted for "main road" in consequence of s. 29 (1), L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903.

As to the meaning of the words "maintenance, repair, enlargement, and improvement," see note (h) to sub-s. (1), ante, p. 4727.

The text uses the words "highway or public footpath," but a public footpath is to all intents and purposes a highway, and is repairable like any other highway: see per LORD ELLENBOROUGH, C.J., in R. v. Salop Inhabitants (1810), 13 East, at p. 97; 26 Digest 262, 32.

The contribution under this sub-section may be made subject to any such conditions for the proper maintenance and repair of such highway as may be agreed on between the county council and the highway authority: see the L. G. A., 1894, s. 25 (3), post, p. 4906.

See further as to agreements between county councils and highway authorities in relation to the construction, improvement, etc., of highways, s. 3 of the Highways and Bridges Act, 1891, post, p. 4833.

Lighting of [county]
roads.

(11) Every authority having any power or duty to light the roads in their district shall have the same power and duty to light any [county] road in their district.

The words "county road" are substituted for "main road" in consequence of s. 29 (1), L. G. A., 1929.

The result of this provision is that the county council are not liable to light county roads in any case; they have, however, power to do so under s. 23, Road Traffic Act, 1934, Vol. V., post. In urban districts the power devolves on the urban authority under the P. H. A., 1875, ss. 161, 162, ante, pp. 4445, 4449. They may under these sections contract for the supply of gas or other means of lighting the street, and if there is no company having statutory powers in their district they may themselves provide a supply of gas for public or private purposes. In the latter case they may obtain a special order under the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, s. 10, Vol. V., post. They may also purchase the undertaking of any gas company in their district. See the notes to the sections referred to.

Note to
Section 11.

In rural districts also there is no statutory obligation upon the local authority to light roads. The rural district council may do so in pursuance of an order under s. 276, P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4502, giving them the powers of an urban authority under s. 161 of the Act, ante, p. 4445, or the parish council may act under the Lighting and Watching Act, 1833 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1186), where the lighting provisions of that Act have been adopted by the parish meeting. See the L. G. A., 1894, ss. 7, 53, post, pp. 4895, 4913, in this connection.

Under the Electric Lighting Acts, 1882 to 1909, which are set out ante and post, an urban or rural district council might obtain power to supply electricity for public or private purposes. But see now the provisions of the Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1919, 1922, post, p. 5245 and Vol. V., post, and 1926, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 792, which are also set out, post.

(12) Anything authorised or required by law to be done by or to a highway or road authority shall, as respects a [county] road maintained by a county council, be authorised or required to be done by or to that council (a); and every authority having any power to break up any road in their district for the purpose of sewerage or otherwise shall have the like power of breaking up any [county] road in their district (b), but if the road is broken up the authority shall repair it to the satisfaction of the county council maintaining such road, and if it is not repaired to the satisfaction of the county council, that council may cause the necessary repairs to be done and may charge the costs against the authority, and the same shall be a debt due from the authority to the council (c).

Breaking up [county]
roads.

References in this sub-section to "main roads" have been altered to "county roads" (s. 29 (1), L. G. A., 1929).

(a) This provision apparently confers upon a county council all the powers and liabilities of a highway surveyor or a highway board for the purposes of county roads.

Moreover, in the case of highways in rural districts the county council are by s. 30 (1), L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904, empowered to exercise all such functions under the Highway Acts, 1835-1885 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 50, 122, 141, 142, 166, 188, 191), as were exercisable by rural district councils who succeeded highway boards under the L. G. A., 1894, post, p. 4892.

(b) A sanitary authority may lay sewers and water mains in any road, and may break up roads for that purpose (P. H. A., 1936, ss. 15, 36, 119, 121, 227, 279, ante, pp. 26, 119, 367, 371, 493, 568). Among other authorities who may break up roads may be mentioned water companies under the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, ss. 28-34, ante, pp. 4183-4186; gas companies under the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, ss. 6-12, ante, pp. 4165-4168; tramway companies under the Tramways Act, 1870, ss. 26, 27, 30, ante, pp. 4280, 4281, 4283; electric lighting companies under the Electric Lighting Act, 1882, ss. 12, 13, ante, p. 4650. All these Acts are set out in this Volume. The provisions of the text as to the reinstating of the roads are in addition to those contained in those Acts.

(c) The expenses incurred being made a debt, will be recoverable by action in the High Court or in the County Court if less than £100.

(13) Section twenty of the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, shall apply as if it were herein re-enacted and in terms made applicable to this section.

Repair of [county] roads out of hundred
rates.

The Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, s. 20 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 174), which was repealed by the L. G. A., 1929, provided as follows:—

Note to
Section 11.

"Notwithstanding the provisions of this Act, in the case of any county in which certain of the bridges within the county are repairable by the county at large, and others are repairable by the several hundreds within the county in which they are situate, it shall be lawful for the county authority from time to time, by order, to declare any [county] road or part of a [county] road within their district to be repairable to the extent only and in manner provided by section thirteen of this Act, either by the county or by the hundred in which such [county] road or part is situate, as they think fit; and where a [county] road or part thereof is declared to be repairable by a hundred, the expense of repairing the same shall, to the extent to which but for this section the expense or any contribution towards the expense of repairing the same would be repayable out of the county rate, be repayable out of a separate rate which shall be raised and charged in the like manner as the expenses of repairing the hundred bridges in the same hundred would have been raised and charged."

The repeal of the section above referred to does not affect this sub-section since the effect of the sub-section is to insert the words set out above into this sub-section which is not affected by the L. G. A., 1929, except that for the words "main road" where they occur in this section are substituted the words "county road" (s. 29 (1), L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903).

The following is an extract from a letter, dated September 18th, 1878, from the L. G. B. with reference to this section: "The wording of this section, which was introduced at a very late stage of the Bill, and is limited in its application to the county of Lancaster chiefly, is somewhat obscure; but it may be assumed that the effect of declaring a main road repairable by the hundred is simply intended to be that the hundred rate shall be substituted for the county rate as the fund from which a moiety of the cost is to be repaid to the highway authorities. The justices will not fail to observe that where the alternative given by the section is adopted, it is desirable that all the main roads in the county should be declared to be repairable by the several hundreds through which they pass, otherwise the ratepayers of those hundreds will not only have to contribute towards the roads within their own hundreds, but also towards any roads within the county in respect of which a contribution is payable from the county rate."

By virtue of this provision as applied by the text the expenses of maintaining county roads may be made payable out of the hundred rate instead of the county rate, wherever the sub-section is applicable. The hundred rate was made and levied by the county council under s. 3 (i), ante, p. 4722. The powers of the county council to levy a rate are taken away by s. 1, R. and V. A., 1925, ante, p. 2113. The "hundred rate" will apparently be raised as an "additional item" of the general rate (s. 2 (5), ibid.). It appears, however, that the expense of county roads in counties to which this section applies is a "general county purpose" (R. v. Dolby, [1892] 2 Q. B. 736; 26 Digest 396, 1226).

Roads and tolls in Isle of Wight.

12.—(1) After the appointed day, tolls shall cease to be taken on any road maintained and repaired by the Isle of Wight Highway Commissioners, under the Isle of Wight Highway Acts, 1813 and 1883, and after such day the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, as amended by this Act, shall apply to the Isle of Wight, and to every such road above mentioned, in like manner as if it were ceasing within the meaning of the said Act to be a turnpike road, and the Act of the session of the forty-fourth and forty-fifth years of the reign of her present Majesty, chapter seventy-two, shall be repealed.

Italicised words repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175).

By the Isle of Wight Highways Act, 1925, all the roads in the island repairable by the inhabitants at large became main roads, subject to the proviso that roads in urban districts which were not formerly main roads are first to be put in repair to the satisfaction of the county council. The Act contains several amendments of s. 11 of this Act, ante, p. 4726, and should be referred to.

The county council is that of the Isle of Wight which was made an administrative county of itself by Provisional Order (Local Government Board's Provisional Order Confirmation (No. 2) Act, 1889) in 1889. The provisions of Pt. III. of the L. G. A.,

1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903, did not apply to the Isle of Wight, but the Minister of Health by the L. G. A. (Application to Isle of Wight) Order, 1930, S. R. & O., 1930, No. 757, directed that that part of the Act and the consequential provisions as to the transfer of officers, property and liabilities apply to the Isle of Wight subject to exception, adaptations, and modifications, and by such order amended the provisions of the Isle of Wight (Highways) Act, 1925 (see s. 138 (4), L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 975).

(2) Until provision is otherwise made by Parliament, or by a Provisional Order confirmed by Parliament, the repair and maintenance of the said roads shall continue to be undertaken by the said commissioners, and the county council for the county of Southampton shall pay such commissioners, in respect of the said repairs and maintenance, and of the expenses of the commissioners, such sums as may be agreed upon, or, in case of difference, be settled by arbitration under this Act, and the provisions of this Act with respect to main roads shall apply as if the commissioners were a district council who had undertaken the maintenance and repair of such road.

This sub-section was repealed by s. 20 of the Isle of Wight Highways Act, 1925, as from April 1st, 1925.

13.—(1) After the appointed day no county road rate shall be levied and tolls shall cease to be taken on any road maintained and repaired by a county roads board in South Wales, in pursuance of the South Wales Turnpike Trusts Act, 1844, and the Acts amending the same, and after such day the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, as amended by this Act shall apply to every county in South Wales as if the Highway districts in that county had been constituted under the Highway Act, 1862, and the Highway Act, 1864, or one of those Acts, and shall apply to every such road as above mentioned, in like manner as if it were ceasing, within the meaning of the said Act, to be a turnpike road.

Adaptation of Act to South Wales
roads.

Italicised words in both sub-sections repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175).

By South Wales Turnpike Trusts Act, 1844, in each of the six counties of South Wales—namely, Glamorgan, Brecknock, Radnor, Carmarthen, Pembroke, and Cardigan—a “county roads board” was appointed, consisting of from six to twelve justices appointed by quarter sessions and certain ex-officio members, to have the superintendence, control, and management of all turnpike roads in the county. They had power to continue existing toll gates and to erect others and to take tolls. They might discontinue tolls on any road, and thereupon such road became an ordinary highway. By the same Act the commissioners who were appointed by the Act “for consolidating and adjusting the turnpike trusts of South Wales” might mark out and define in each county, districts which, subject to the superintendence and authority of the county roads board, should be placed under the care and management of “district roads boards.” The members of these district boards were originally nominated by the commissioners out of persons possessing a prescribed qualification, all justices residing within the district being ex-officio members; vacancies were from time to time filled up by the board, the elected members retiring by rotation. The officers of the district boards were appointed by the county roads board. The duties of a district board were to direct and superintend all matters and things relating to the maintaining, repairing, and draining of the turnpike roads in the district, and the execution of any work or improvement placed under their direction and superintendence by the county roads board. Each district board annually elected two members to serve on the county roads board. The tolls received were paid into the county roads fund, and if that were insufficient for the expenses payable out of it, the quarter sessions had to make a county road rate to supply the deficiency.

Note to

By South Wales Highways Act, 1851, the county roads board of each county was required to divide the county into highway districts for the separate management of the ordinary highways therein. For each district a highway board was to be appointed, consisting of the guardians elected for each parish in the district and the resident justices. The Act was repealed by South Wales Highway Act, 1860 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 283), but the repeal did not affect existing districts. The county roads board were empowered to alter districts and appoint surveyors for each district. All land or property which would otherwise have become vested in the surveyor of any parish under Highway Act, 1835 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 50), was transferred to the highway board, which took over the care and management of the ordinary highways. The expenses of maintenance, etc. were chargeable to each parish and levied by a highway rate. Subject to the provisions of the Act and later amending Acts, the Highway Act, 1835, applies to ordinary highways in South Wales.

This section abolished county roads boards, and makes the roads formerly repairable by them county roads. Consequently they are now repairable by the county council under the provisions of s. 11, ante, p. 4726, and that section applies in all respects as if these roads had been main roads under the Highway Act of 1878, ante, p. 4602.

The effect of s. 25 of the L. G. A., 1894, post, p. 4905, was that highway boards in South Wales were superseded by rural district councils. But the powers of rural district councils in relation to highways are now transferred to county councils by s. 30 (1), L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904.

(2) On the appointed day every county roads board and district roads board (a) in each county shall cease to exist, and the property, debts, and liabilities of any such board shall be transferred to the county council, and that council shall be the successors of the county and district roads boards, and the provisions of this Act, with respect to the transfer of the property, debts, and liabilities of quarter sessions to county councils, and with respect to the officers and servants of quarter sessions, shall apply as if they were herein re-enacted and made applicable to the property, debts, liabilities, and officers of the said county and district roads boards.

(a) See the note to the preceding sub-section.

(3) For the following purposes (that is to say) :

(a) For giving effect to the said transfer of the property, debts, and liabilities, and for controlling the officers and servants transferred by this section to the county council, and otherwise winding up the affairs of the county and district roads boards ; and

(b) For the purpose of the appointment of the surveyor of a highway board, the alteration of a highway district, and other purposes relating to highway boards ;

the county council of every county in South Wales shall have all the powers of a county roads board in a county under the South Wales Turnpike Trusts Act, 1844, and the Acts amending the same, so, however, that nothing shall confer on the county council any power to levy any toll or county road rate.

See generally the notes to sub-s. (1) of this section.

Power to county

14.—(1) On and after the appointed day (a) a county council shall have power, in addition to any other authority, to enforce the provisions of the Rivers Pollution Prevention Act, 1876 (subject to the restrictions in that Act contained) (b), in relation to so much of any stream as is situate within, or passes through or by, any part of their county, and for that purpose they shall have the same powers and duties as if they were a sanitary authority within the meaning of that Act, or any other authority having power to enforce the provisions of that Act, and the county were their district (c). Section 14.

enforce provisions of Rivers Pollution
Prevention
Act, 1876.

(a) Repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175). The appointed day was April 1st, 1890 (s. 109, post, p. 4769). A county borough council is a county council for this purpose.

(b) The full text of this Act is set out, ante, p. 4581.

(c) Parts I. and II. of the Rivers Pollution Prevention Act, 1876, ante, p. 4581, relate to pollution of streams by solid matters and sewage. Part III. deals with manufacturing and mining pollution. By s. 6 proceedings shall not be taken under Part III. save by a sanitary authority and with the consent of the L. G. B. If the sanitary authority, on the application of a person interested, refuse to take proceedings, such person may apply to the L. G. B., who, after inquiry, may direct the sanitary authority to take proceedings. The Board are not to give their consent to proceedings by the sanitary authority of any district which is the seat of any manufacturing industry, unless they are satisfied, after due inquiry, that means for rendering harmless the poisonous, noxious, or polluting liquids proceeding from the processes of such manufactures, are reasonably practicable and available under all the circumstances of the case, and that no material injury will be inflicted by such proceedings on the interests of such industry. Any person against whom proceedings are proposed to be taken under Part III. of the Act, notwithstanding any consent of the L. G. B., may object before the sanitary authority to such proceedings being taken, and the authority must if required in writing by such person afford him an opportunity of being heard against such proceedings being taken, so far as the same relate to his works or manufacturing processes. The authority must thereupon allow such person to be heard by himself, agents, and witnesses, and after inquiry such authority must determine, having regard to all the considerations to which the L. G. B. are by the section directed to have regard, whether such proceedings shall be taken or not. When any authority has taken proceedings under the Act, no other sanitary authority may take proceedings under the Act, until the party against whom the proceedings are intended has failed in reasonable time to carry out the order of any competent court under the Act. By s. 8, every sanitary authority, subject to the restrictions in the Act, have power to enforce the provisions of the Act in relation to any stream being within or passing through or by any part of their district, and for that purpose to institute proceedings in respect of any offence against the Act which causes interference with the due flow within their district of any stream or the pollution within their district of any stream, against any other sanitary authority or person, whether such offence is committed within or without the district of the first-named sanitary authority. By s. 13, two months' notice of proceedings under the Act must be given. In the sections above quoted the Minister of Health must now be substituted for the L. G. B.

Effect of the Rivers Pollution Prevention
Act.

The text enables a county council to institute proceedings under the Act, in all cases in which a sanitary authority could do so, and, of course, they can institute proceedings against any sanitary authority in respect of sewage pollution.

Proceedings against a sanitary authority are facilitated by the Rivers Pollution Prevention Act, 1893, post, p. 4872, which provides that where any sewage matter falls or flows or is carried into any stream after passing through or along a channel which is vested in a sanitary authority, the sanitary authority shall for the purposes of the Act of 1876 be deemed knowingly to permit the sewage matter so to fall, flow or be carried. See also the P. H. A., 1936, s. 30, ante, p. 87, and notes.

(2) Any county council shall have power to contribute towards the costs of any prosecution under the said Act instituted by any other county council or by any urban or rural authority.

Note to Section 14.

Proceedings under the
Act.

Proceedings under the Rivers Pollution Prevention Act, 1876, are instituted in the county court, subject to power to remove them into the High Court in certain cases (s. 11, ante, p. 4593). Though the powers given by the Act are cumulative, and do not affect other remedies, e.g., by way of indictment or injunction (s. 16, ante, p. 4595), yet the action in the county court seems to be the only proceeding which can be called "a prosecution under the said Act." It should be added that if default is made in complying with any order of the county court, a penalty not exceeding £50 a day may be imposed, and such penalty is recoverable as a judgment debt (s. 10).

Although the sub-section speaks of a prosecution, proceedings in the county court for an order under the Act of 1876 are not of a criminal or penal nature, and interrogatories may be allowed (Derby Corporation v. Derbyshire C. C., [1897] A. C. 550; 13 Digest 499, 492).

(3) The Local Government Board, by Provisional Order (a) made on the application of the council of any of the counties concerned, may constitute a joint committee or other body representing all the administrative counties through or by which a river, or any specified portion of a river, or any tributary thereof, passes, and may confer on such committee or body all of the powers of a sanitary authority under the Rivers Pollution Prevention Act, 1876, or such of them as may be specified in the Order (b); and the Order may contain such provisions respecting the constitution and proceedings of the said committee or body as may seem proper, and may provide for the payment of the expenses of such committee or body by the administrative counties represented by it, and for the audit of the accounts of such committee or body, and their officers.

(a) A Provisional Order is made under s. 87 of this Act, post, p. 4763.

Joint committees and rivers boards.

(b) The powers of a county council under sub-s. (1) are limited to their county. The text enables a joint authority to be appointed for several counties, so as to constitute one authority for an entire river and its tributaries, and that body may, therefore, prevent the pollution of a river at any point of its course.

By a Provisional Order made under this sub-section and duly confirmed by Act of Parliament, the L. G. B. created a joint committee with power to prevent the pollution of the rivers Mersey and Irwell or the tributaries thereof. At the date of this Order the Manchester Ship Canal was in course of construction, and it was held that after the canal was completed it was included under the words "the rivers Mersey and Irwell or the tributaries thereof" (Mersey and Irwell Watershed Joint Committee v. Salford Corporation (1895), Times, May 17th).

Other joint rivers committees are—the Ribble Joint Committee and the West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Board.

Proposed "central authority."

The powers of the latter board and of the Mersey and Irwell Joint Committee were somewhat modified and enlarged by the West Riding of Yorkshire Rivers Act, 1894, and the Mersey and Irwell Joint Committee Act, 1892, respectively.

In the third report of the Royal Commission on Sewage Disposal, the commissioners, after recommending the creation of a central authority to determine differences between local authorities and manufacturers in the matter of the disposal of trade refuse and to secure the protection of rivers and other sources of water supply from pollution, advocate the formation of rivers boards throughout the country. The following is an extract from the report:

"Although the rivers boards are merely joint committees of county councils, and therefore only possess for the combined areas the same powers which the individual councils might have exercised in their respective districts, we are satisfied that such combinations are of much greater value for the protection of rivers and streams than the separate councils acting independently.

"In the first place, they are bodies expressly created for enforcing the provisions of the Rivers Pollution Prevention Act, whereas the separate county council is under no obligation to enforce these provisions. And we find as a fact that in many counties outside the areas represented by the existing rivers boards, little or nothing is done by the county council to exercise its powers of checking river pollution. Note to Section 14.

"Then, too, a rivers board has jurisdiction over practically the whole of a watershed. This is a point of considerable importance.

"It has been again and again pointed out by previous Commissions that to obtain effective action there should be some one authority with power to deal in each instance with the whole watershed, and we entirely concur in this view.

"Another advantage of combination is that the area under the jurisdiction of a rivers board is sufficiently large to secure the appointment of skilled officers.

"We have not sufficient information to enable us to say what precise combinations should be made. Each rivers board district should however include, as far as practicable, the whole of one or more watersheds, and it should be sufficiently large to justify the permanent appointment of a skilled chief inspector at an adequate salary.

"One of the first duties of the central authority will be to ascertain what grouping of counties would be most effective, and then to take steps to constitute rivers boards for these areas."

Financial Relations between Exchequer and County, and Contributions by County for Costs of Union Officers.

20.—(1)—(2) [Repealed by the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 883. Payment to county council of proceeds of duties on local taxation licences.

(3) It shall be lawful for Her Majesty the Queen from time to time by Order in Council made on the recommendation of the Treasury to transfer to county councils as from the date specified in the Order the power to levy the duties on all or any of the local taxation licences, and after such date every county council and their officers shall (subject nevertheless to any exceptions and modifications contained in the Order) have within their county, for the purpose of levying the duties transferred, the same powers, duties, and liabilities as the Commissioners of Inland Revenue and their officers have with respect to the duties transferred, and to the issue and cancellation of licences on which the duties are imposed, and other matters under the Acts relating to those duties and licences, and all enactments relating to those duties and licences, and to punishments and penalties connected therewith, shall apply accordingly.

(4) Provided as follows:—

- (i) All penalties and forfeitures recovered by a county council in pursuance of this section shall, instead of being paid to the Exchequer, be paid to the county fund, and carried to the same account as the duties.
- (ii) The county council shall have, as respects the said duties and licences, the power given by the said Acts to the Treasury for the restoration of any forfeiture, and the mitigation or remission of any penalty or any part thereof.
- (iii) Nothing in this section shall confer on the county council any special privileges of the Crown as regards legal proceedings.

Section 20. (5) On a transfer under this section of the power to levy the duties on any licence—

- (a) the county council shall provide for issuing, in different parts of their county, their licence for the same purpose, so as to enable persons to obtain it near their residences; and
- (b) if such licence has operation in any place in the United Kingdom outside the county in which it is issued, the licence of a county council for the same purpose shall continue to have the like operation outside the county in such place.

[Ss. 21—27, repealed by the L. G. A., 1929.]

General Provisions as to Transfer.

General provisions as to powers transferred to county council.

28.—(1) The county council shall, as respects the business by this Act transferred to them from quarter sessions or the justices out of sessions, be subject to the provisions and limitations in this Act specified, but, save as aforesaid, shall have and be subject to all the powers, duties, and liabilities, which the quarter sessions, or any committee thereof, or any justice or justices had or were subject to in respect of the business so transferred.

(2) . . . (a); the county council may also, without prejudice to any other power whether to appoint committees or otherwise, delegate to the justices of the county sitting in petty sessions any power or duty transferred by this Act to the county council in respect of the licensing of houses or places for the public performance of stage plays (b), and in respect of the execution as local authority of the Explosives Act, 1875, or of the Act relating to contagious diseases of animals.

(a) Certain words here were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XL, Pt. III., ante, pp. 1195, 1274.

(b) Similarly they made delegate to justices their licensing powers under the Cinematograph Act, 1909 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 352). Petty sessions when exercising such delegated licensing powers cannot state a special case (Huish v. Liverpool JJ., [1914] 1 K. B. 109; 78 J. P. 45; 42 Digest 920, 156).

(3) Provided that the county council shall not under this section delegate any power of raising money by rate or loan.

Summary proceeding for determination of questions as to transfer of powers.

29. If any question arises, or is about to arise, as to whether any business, power, duty, or liability is or is not transferred to any county council or joint committee under this Act, that question, without prejudice to any other mode of trying it, may, on the application of a chairman of quarter sessions, or of the county council, committee, or other local authority concerned, be submitted for decision to the High Court of Justice in such summary manner as subject to any rules of court may be directed by the court; and the court, after hearing such parties and taking such evidence (if any) as it thinks just, shall decide the question.

This provision has been put in operation in a number of cases where questions have arisen as to the respective liabilities of sanitary authorities and county councils. The practice formerly was to prepare a special case signed by the chairmen of the disputing bodies, and then to apply for leave to set down the case in the Crown Paper: see Ex parte Staffordshire Quarter Sessions, W. N. (1889), p. 183. Now, however, by a rule of the High Court dated August 10th, 1892, the procedure is to be by special case to be agreed on by the parties, or in default of such agreement to be settled by an arbitrator agreed upon by the parties or (if necessary) appointed by a judge at chambers, or to be settled by a judge at chambers. The special case when settled is to be filed at the Crown Office Department at the central office of the Supreme Court, by the chairman of quarter sessions, the county council, or the local authority concerned, within eight days from the settlement thereof, and is to be put into the Crown Paper for argument as if it were a case stated by justices under Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1857 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 299). Without attempting to give an exhaustive list of the reported cases decided under this section, the following may be mentioned: Re Somerset C. C. (1889), 54 J. P. 182; 58 L. J. Q. The court will not under the above section answer abstract questions on the construction of the Act (Re Cardigan C. C., supra).

30.—(1) For the purposes of the police, and the clerk of the peace, and of clerks of the justices, and joint officers, and of matters required to be determined jointly by the quarter sessions and the council of a county, there shall be a standing joint committee of the quarter sessions and the county council, consisting of such equal number of justices appointed by the quarter sessions and of members of the county council appointed by that council as may from time to time be arranged between the quarter sessions and the council, and in default of agreement such number taken equally from the quarter sessions and the council as may be directed by a Secretary of State.

Standing joint committee of quarter sessions and county council for the purpose of police, clerk of the peace, officers, etc.

(2) The joint committee shall elect a chairman, and, in the case of an equality of votes for two or more persons as chairman, one of those persons shall be elected by lot.

(3) Any matter arising under this Act with respect to the police, or to the clerk of the peace, or to clerks of the justices, or to officers who serve both the quarter sessions or justices and the county council, or to the provision of accommodation for the quarter sessions or justices out of session or to the use by them or the police or the said clerks of any buildings, rooms, or premises, or to the application of the Local Stamp Act, 1869, to any sums received by clerks to justices, or with respect to anything incidental to the above-mentioned matters, and any other

Section 30. matter requiring to be determined jointly by the quarter sessions and county council, shall be referred to and determined by the joint committee under this section; and all such expenditure as the said joint committee determine to be required for the purposes of the matters above in this section mentioned, shall be paid out of the county fund, and the council of the county shall provide for such payment accordingly.

PART II.

APPLICATION OF ACT TO BOROUGHES, THE METROPOLIS, AND CERTAIN SPECIAL COUNTIES.

Application of Act to Boroughs.

Certain large boroughs named in the Schedule to be county boroughs.

31. Each of the boroughs named in the Third Schedule to this Act being a borough which on the first day of June one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight, either had a population of not less than fifty thousand, or was a county of itself shall, from and after the appointed day, be for the purposes of this Act an administrative county of itself, and is in this Act referred to as a county borough.

Provided that for all other purposes a county borough shall continue to be part of the county (if any) in which it is situate at the passing of this Act, and if a separate commission of assize, oyer and terminer, or gaol delivery is not directed to be executed within the borough, the borough shall, for the purposes of any such commission, and of the service of jurors, and the making of jury lists, be part of the county in which it is specified in the said Schedule to be deemed for the purposes of this Act to be situate.

Italicised words repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175).

In addition to the boroughs named in the Third Schedule, post, p. 4770, many new county boroughs were created under s. 54 (1) (d) (now repealed), and the present county boroughs are those named in the L. G. A., 1933, Sched. I., Pt. II., ante, p. 1197.

The council of a county borough have all or nearly all the powers of a county council, but this only affects their position as an urban authority to the extent hereinafter noticed.

Adjustment of financial relations between counties and county boroughs.

32.—(1) An equitable adjustment respecting the distribution of the proceeds of the local taxation licences, and probate duty grant, and respecting all other financial relations, if any, between each county, and each county borough specified in the said schedule as being deemed for the purposes of this Act to be situate in that county, shall be made by agreement, within twelve months after the appointed day, between the councils of each county and each borough, and in default of any such agreement, by the Commissioners appointed under this Act; and such adjustment shall provide, in the case of any expenses which may in future be incurred by the county wholly or partly on behalf of the borough for the liability of such borough to contribute, and save as provided by this Act, any existing liability to contribute or to incur expense shall, after the appointed day, cease, and an equitable provision for such cessation shall be made in the adjustment. Section 32.

(2) Where a county borough is specified in the said schedule as being deemed for the purposes of this Act to be situate in more than one county, the necessary adjustment shall be made between the counties.

(3) In such adjustment regard shall be had to the existing property, debts, and liabilities (if any) connected with the financial relations of the county and borough, and to the consideration that the county is not to be placed in any worse financial position by reason of the boroughs therein being constituted county boroughs, and that a county borough is not to be placed in a worse financial position than it would have been in if it had remained part of the county and had shared in the division of the sums received by a county in respect of the licence duties and the probate duty grant, as provided by this Act, and to the amount of benefit and value of the services which the borough receives in return for existing contributions, if any, and to all the circumstances of each case which it appears equitable to consider, subject nevertheless to the following provisions :—

(a) Where separate commissions of assize, oyer and terminer, and gaol delivery are not directed to be executed in a county borough, the borough council shall contribute a proper share of the costs of and incidental to the assizes of the county ;

(b) If the borough is not at the passing of this Act a quarter sessions borough, the borough council shall contribute a proper share of the costs of and incidental to the quarter sessions and petty sessions of the county, and of and incidental to the coroners of the county or any franchise therein, and if a grant of a court of quarter sessions is hereafter made to the borough, the borough shall redeem the liability to such contribution, on such terms as may be agreed upon, or, in default of agreement, may be determined by arbitration under this Act ;

(c) . . . (a) ;

(d) Each county borough shall be liable for the maintenance of pauper lunatics in like manner as any other county.

(4) In the adjustment of any financial relations other than the distribution of the proceeds of the licences and probate duty grant, no borough wholly or partially exempt from contributing to any object shall be rendered liable so to contribute or to contribute in greater proportion than at present.

(5) The provisions of Part III. of this Act with respect to the adjustment of property, income, debts, liabilities, and expenses, and to borrowing for the purpose shall apply as if the Commissioners under this Act were the arbitrator in that Part mentioned.

(6) Provided that at any time after the end of five years from the date of an agreement or award adjusting the financial relations of any county and borough, if the council of either the county or borough satisfy the Local Government Board that the adjustment has become inequitable, and that the councils are unable to agree on a new adjustment, the board shall appoint an arbitrator ; and such arbitrator shall

Section 32. proceed to make a new equitable adjustment as if he were the Commissioners under this Act, and the provisions of this Act shall apply accordingly. Any new adjustment made by agreement, or by the award of an arbitrator under this section, may, after the expiration of five years from the date of such agreement or award, be altered either by agreement or by arbitration as above mentioned.

(7) Until any adjustment in pursuance of this section has come into operation, the county or borough council shall pay out of the county or borough fund to the borough or county council, as the case may be, the average annual amount which during the three years next before the appointed day has been expended by the county for the benefit of the borough, or contributed by the borough to the county, as the case may be, but any sum so paid shall be taken into account in the making of the adjustment, and the adjustment shall be made so as to take effect as from the appointed day.

(8) Any contribution by a county borough to the county in pursuance of this section shall be required and made in accordance with section one hundred and fifty-three of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, and that section, except so far as relates to the appointment of an arbitrator, shall apply in like manner as if every such borough were a quarter sessions borough situate in the county.

(9) Expressions in this section relating to contributions by a borough to a county shall be construed to include any sum raised by the assessment of the parishes or hereditaments in the borough to the county rate.

This section, of course, only related to the first adjustment rendered necessary by the establishment of county councils and county borough councils by the Act. Its principles have, however, subsequently been applied in later adjustments. The section was repealed by the L. G. A., 1929, s. 137, Sched. XII., Vol. V., post, so far as it relates to the discontinued grants.

As to financial adjustments generally, see notes to L. G. A., 1933, ss. 151, 152, Sched. V., ante, pp. 962-973, 1259.

(a) Paragraph repealed by the Lunacy Act, 1890, s. 342, Sched. V. (11 Halsbury's Statutes 133).

Provisions
as to police and rateable value in county boroughs.

33.—(1) Nothing in this Act with respect to county boroughs shall prevent the continuance of one police force for any county borough and any county, or the consolidation of the police forces of any county borough and any county in like manner as heretofore, but where the provisions of this Act affect the arrangement with respect to the consolidated police force for a county and borough, an adjustment shall be made between the council of the borough and county in accordance with the provisions of this Act. The foregoing provisions of this section shall apply to boroughs which are not county boroughs in like manner as if they were re-enacted and in terms made applicable to those boroughs.

(2) . . . (a).

(a) Sub-s. (2) was repealed (except as to London) by the R. and V. A., 1925, s. 69, Sched. VIII., ante, pp. 2233, 2266.

Application of Act with

34.—(1) The mayor, aldermen, and burgesses of each county borough acting by the council shall, subject as in this Act mentioned, have and be subject to all the powers, duties, and liabilities of a county council under this Act (in so far as they are not already in possession of or subject to the same), and . . . all the provisions of this Act . . . shall accordingly, so far as circumstances admit, apply in the case of every such borough, with the necessary modifications, and in particular with the following modifications :—

Section 34.

modifications to county
boroughs.

- (a) The county borough shall be substituted for the county, and borough fund shall be substituted for county fund and town clerk shall be substituted for clerk of the peace and clerk of the council ;
- (b) A reference to two or more counties shall include a reference to county boroughs as well as counties ;
- (c) Such powers, duties and liabilities of the court of quarter sessions or justices as in the case of a county are transferred to the county council shall be transferred to the council of the county borough, whether the same are vested in or attached to the court of quarter sessions or justices of the borough or of the county in which the borough is situate.
- (d) . . .
- (e) . . .

Certain words in this sub-section were repealed by the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 883.

(2) On the appointed day there shall be transferred to the mayor, aldermen, and burgesses of each county borough all such bridges and approaches thereto, or parts thereof, situate within the borough as were previously repairable by the county or any hundred therein, and the costs of the council in repairing such bridges and approaches, or parts thereof, and in repairing any roads in the borough which by virtue of this Act or any Act applied by this Act are main roads, shall be payable out of the borough fund.

It is not clear whether the council of a county borough, who have the powers of a county council for most purposes, possess the power of declaring roads to be main roads under the Highway Act of 1878. It is the general opinion that they do not, and the editors have not, in practice, come across any road which has been " mained " in purported exercise of such a power. If the power exists, any roads so declared to be main roads, and roads which prior to the passing of this Act were already main roads, whether under s. 13 or s. 15 of the Highway Act, 1878, had to be repaired at the expense of the borough fund, though the other highways in the borough might have been repairable out of the general district rate under the P. H. A., 1875, s. 210, by the council in their capacity of urban authority. This distinction is now, however, abolished since both the borough rate and borough fund and the general district rate have been consolidated into the general rate and general rate fund under the R. and V. A., 1925, ante. p. 2113.

It should be observed that some bridges in the borough may already have been repairable by the council under s. 119 of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, ante, p. 4638 : see R. v. Dorset (Inhabitants) (1881), 45 L. T. 308 ; 26 Digest 574, 2660 ; R. v. Southampton (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 424 ; 50 J. P. 773 ; 26 Digest 586, 2766 ; R. v. Southampton (No. 2) (1887), 19 Q. B. (3) The provisions of this Act with respect to—

Section 34.

- (b) . . .
- (c) the standing joint committee of the justices and the council, or
- (d) coroners, or
- (e) gas meters, or
- (f) the transfer to the council of powers relating to county and other rates, and the preparation or revision of the basis or standard for the county rate ;

shall not apply to county boroughs, nor shall Part IV. of this Act relating to finance apply, save as far as is expressly provided in that Part.

Paras. (a) and (b) were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.

(4) Provided that where the district of any county coroner is wholly situate within a county borough, the coroner for that district shall be appointed by the council of that borough, and the writ for his election may be issued to that council instead of to the county council, and where the district of any county coroner is situate partly within and partly without a county borough, the writ for the election of such coroner shall be issued to the county council, but if there is a joint committee of the county and borough councils for the purpose, the question of the person to be elected shall be referred to that joint committee, and the county council shall appoint the person recommended by the majority of such committee.

(5) If the council of a county borough so require, a joint committee shall from time to time be appointed for the purposes of coroners, consisting of such number of members of the county and borough councils as may be agreed upon, or in default of agreement may be determined by a Secretary of State.

(6) [Repealed by the Representation of the People Act, 1918, s. 47, post, p. 5177.]

(7) [Repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.]

(8) This Act and the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, shall be construed so as to give effect to the provisions of this section.

Application of Act to larger quarter sessions
boroughs not county boroughs.

35. In the case of a quarter sessions borough, not being one of the boroughs named in the Third Schedule to this Act, but containing, according to the census of one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, a population of ten thousand or upwards, the following provisions shall, on and after the appointed day, apply :

- (1) Nothing in this Act shall transfer to the county council any power of the council of the borough as local authority under any Act, or (save as in this Act expressly mentioned) alter the powers, duties, and liabilities of the council of the borough under the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, but subject to the above provisions and to the savings hereinafter contained, the borough shall form part of the county for the purposes of this Act, and the parishes in the borough shall, subject to the exemptions hereinafter mentioned, be liable to be assessed to county contributions in like manner as the rest of the county. Section 35.

In many cases, where the local authorities for the execution of Acts were in counties the quarter sessions, in boroughs the local authorities under the same Acts were the borough councils. In these cases, while the administrative powers of the quarter sessions are transferred to the county councils by this Act, the councils of the larger boroughs to which this section relates, under the provisions in the text, retain their powers as local authorities.

(2) Where such borough is at the passing of this Act exempt, in whole or in part, from contributing towards costs incurred for any purpose for which the quarter sessions of the county in which the borough is situate are authorised to incur costs the parishes in the borough shall not, save as in this Act expressly mentioned, be assessed by the county council to county contributions in respect of costs incurred for any such purpose, nor in the case of a partial exemption, be so assessed for any larger sum than such as will give effect to that exemption, but this exemption shall not extend to any costs incurred for the purpose of any powers, duties, or liabilities of the justices of the borough, which will by virtue of this Act be exercised or discharged by the county council nor to any costs of or incidental to the assizes of the county.

(3) Notwithstanding the last enactment (a) the borough shall, for the purposes of the provisions of the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, respecting [county] roads (b), form part of the county, and the costs of maintaining, repairing, improving, enlarging, or otherwise dealing with any [county] road in the borough shall be paid out of the county fund, and the payment of the costs incurred in the execution of the provisions of this Act with respect to [county] roads shall be a general county purpose for which the parishes of the borough may be assessed to county contributions :

(a) This has reference to sub-s. (2), which provides that the borough shall not be liable to be assessed to county contributions for purposes to which it was not liable to be so assessed at the time of the passing of the Act. The exemption extends to the costs of new county bridges taken over by a county council under s. 6, ante, p. 4725 (Bury St. Edmunds (Mayor, etc. of) v. West Suffolk C. C., [1898] 2 Q. B. 246 ; 62 J. P. 486 ; 26 Digest 576, 2678).

(b) These provisions are set out, ante, p. 4602. Formerly a quarter sessions borough was not a highway area, not being included in the definition of an "urban authority" in the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, ante, p. 4602. Consequently, the provisions of that Act as to [county] roads did not apply to a quarter sessions borough. This is no longer the case. [County] roads in such a borough vest in and are under the control of the county council under s. 11 (1), ante, p. 4726, and ss. 29 and 31 of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903, 905, unless the borough council have claimed or are to be deemed to have claimed their maintenance under s. 32 of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 906. These boroughs not being county boroughs are within the definition of "district" in s. 134, ibid., Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 971, and consequently the provisions of Part III. of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903, as to the transfer of certain highway powers from urban district councils to county councils are applicable to such boroughs.

The word "county" is substituted for "main" in the text by reason of s. 29 (1) of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903.

Section 35. (4) Provided that—

- (a) The borough shall be deemed to be an urban sanitary district, within the meaning of the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878 (a); and the council of the borough shall have the power under the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, of making byelaws respecting locomotives, and authorising locomotives to be used on any road within the borough (b); save that if any difference is made by such byelaws or authority between any [county] road maintained by the county council and the other roads in the borough, such authority and byelaws shall require the approval of the county council; and

(a) See the notes to the preceding sub-section.

(b) The Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, s. 28 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 182), provides that the council of every borough having a separate court of quarter sessions may, on the application of the owner of any locomotive exceeding nine feet in width or fourteen tons in weight, authorise such locomotive to be used in any highway within the borough, or part of any such highway under such conditions (if any) as to them may appear desirable. By s. 31, it was formerly provided that a council of a quarter sessions borough might make byelaws as to the hours during which locomotives are not to pass over the turnpike roads or highways within the borough, the hours being in all cases consecutive hours, and no more than eight out of the twenty-four, and for regulating the use of locomotives upon any highway, or preventing such use upon every bridge when they are satisfied that such use would be attended with danger to the public. Section 35, ante, p. 4612, required these byelaws to be confirmed by the Local Government Board. But s. 31 was repealed by s. 18 of the Locomotives Act, 1898, subject, however, to certain savings for existing byelaws. And by ss. 5, 6, 9, and 17 of that Act (now repealed) other provision was made for the regulating of locomotives on highways, for the restriction of locomotive traffic by byelaws, and for licensing locomotives.

Light locomotives were exempted from the provisions of the Act of 1878, supra, by the Locomotives on Highways Act, 1896 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 64), and other provisions made by that Act for regulating the use of them on highways. See now also the Motor Car Act, 1903, and the Roads Act, 1920, Vol. V., post.

- (b) The council of the borough shall have power as an urban authority to claim, in accordance with this Act, to retain the powers and duties of maintaining and repairing any [county] roads in the borough; and

This provision had reference to the claim which an urban authority might make under s. 11 (2), ante, p. 4730, which is now repealed by the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 883. The boroughs not being county boroughs are within the definition of "district" in s. 134 of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 971, and are consequently entitled to claim the maintenance of "county roads" in their district under s. 32, ibid., Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 906, if the population exceeds 20,000.

The word "county" is substituted for "main" in the text by reason of s. 29 (1) of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903.

- (c) The council of the borough may within two years after the passing of this Act apply to the county council to declare such roads in the borough as are mentioned in the application to be [county] roads within the meaning of the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, and the county council shall consider such application and inquire whether such roads are or ought to be main roads within the meaning of the said Act, and shall make or refuse the declaration accordingly, and if the county council refuse to make the declaration, the council of the borough may within a reasonable time after such refusal apply to the Local Government Board, and that Board shall have power, if after a local inquiry they think it just so to do, to make the said declaration, which shall have the same effect as if made by the county council.

Section 35.

Immediately after this Act came into operation all roads which had been dis-turnpiked since December 31st, 1870, became main roads. No declaration was necessary in the case of such roads. By the text the council of the borough had until August 13th, 1890, power to apply to the county council to declare certain other roads to be main roads, i.e., such roads as might be declared main roads under the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, s. 15, ante, p. 4606.

By reason of the L. G. A., 1929, s. 29 (1), Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903, the word "county" is now substituted for "main" in all references to "main roads."

- (5) The payment of the costs of assizes and sessions shall be a general county purpose for which the parishes in the borough may be assessed to county contributions. . . .

Certain words in this sub-section were repealed by the Costs in Criminal Cases Act, 1908, ss. 4 (4), 10 (1), Sched. (4 Halsbury's Statutes 742, 745).

- (6) . . .

This sub-section was repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.

- (7) The county council and the council of any such borough may agree for the cessation in whole or in part of any exemption under this section of the parishes in the borough from assessment to county contributions, in consideration either of payment by the county council of a capital sum, or of an annual payment, or of a transfer of property or liabilities, or of the county council undertaking in substitution for the council of the borough any powers or duties, or partly for one consideration and partly for another, or in any other manner, according as may be determined.
- (8) A borough which is a county of a city or a county of a town shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be situate in and form part of the county which it adjoins, or if it adjoins more than one county, then in and of the county of which it forms part for the purposes of parliamentary elections.

36.—(1) Where a borough has a separate commission of the peace, whether a quarter sessions borough or not (and is not a borough named in the Third Schedule to this Act), then, subject to the provisions of this Act, all such powers, duties, and liabilities of the court of quarter sessions or justices of the borough, as in the case of the county are by this Act transferred to the county council, shall cease, and the county

The grant after the passing of this Act of a court of quarter sessions to any borough, not being a county borough, shall not affect the powers, duties, or liabilities of the county council as respects the area of that borough, nor exempt the parishes in the borough from being assessed to county contributions for any purpose to which such parishes were previously liable to be assessed, and shall not confer or impose on the mayor, aldermen, and burgesses, or the council of such borough, any powers, duties, or liabilities further than such as are necessary for establishing and maintaining the court of quarter sessions in the borough.

38. Where a borough having a separate court of quarter sessions contained according to the census of one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one a population of less than ten thousand, the following provisions shall after the appointed day apply :

(1) [Repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.]

(2) There shall be transferred to the county council the powers, duties, and liabilities of the council of the borough—

(a) As regards coroners ; and

(b) As regards the appointment of analysts under the Acts relating to the sale of foods and drugs (a) ; and

(c) Under the Acts relating to—

(i) Reformatory and industrial schools ; and

(ii) Fish conservancy ; and

(iii) Explosives ; and

(d) Under the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878 (b) :

Provided that the transfer by this section—

(a) Shall be subject to the provisions in this Act for the protection of existing officers and the continuance of existing contracts (c) ; and

(b) Shall not, save as respects the coroners, affect the powers, duties, and liabilities of the council of the borough under the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882 :

The words in italics were repealed (except as to London) by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.

(a) By the Sale of Food and Drugs Act, 1875, s. 10, analysts were to be appointed by the town council of every borough having a separate court of quarter sessions. That Act is now repealed, and by ss. 64 and 66 of the Food and Drugs Act, 1933, ante, pp. 1402, 1404, such appointments are made by the councils of county boroughs and non-county boroughs or urban districts which have according to the last published census for the time being a population of 40,000 or upwards ; in all other cases the appointments are made by the county council. As to enforcing appointments, see s. 65, ibid., ante, p. 1403.

(b) These powers include those of authorising or licensing locomotives under ss. 28 and 31 of the Act of 1878 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 182).

Note to
Section 38.

(c) The provisions of this Act as to existing officers and the continuance of existing contracts were contained in ss. 118—120, 122, 125. The only officers affected by them whom it is here necessary to refer to are analysts of the boroughs, who by s. 119 became officers of the county council and continued to hold office by the same tenure, on the same terms and conditions and with the like remuneration as formerly. If their office was abolished they were entitled to compensation under s. 120; so also, if their fees or salary were diminished.

- (3) The borough shall be an urban sanitary district within the meaning of the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878 :
- (4) The council of the borough may within two years after the passing of this Act, apply to the county council to declare such roads in the borough as are mentioned in the application to be [county] roads within the meaning of the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, and the county council shall consider such application, and inquire whether such roads are, or ought to be, [county] roads within the meaning of the said Act, and shall make or refuse the declaration accordingly, and if the county council refuse the declaration, the council of the borough may, within a reasonable time after such refusal, apply to the Local Government Board, and that Board, after a local inquiry, shall have power, if they think it just so to do, to make the said declaration, which shall have the same effect as if it had been made by the county council :

The foregoing sub-sections correspond to s. 35 (3) and (4). See those sub-sections and notes thereto, ante, pp. 4747—8.

- (5) The area of the borough shall for the purposes of the above-mentioned Acts and all other administrative purposes of the county council be included in the county, as if the borough had not a separate court of quarter sessions, and accordingly shall be subject to the authority of the county council and the county coroners, and may be annexed by the county council to a coroner's district of the county, and the parishes in the borough shall be liable to be assessed to all county contributions :

This provision does not in any way affect the powers and duties of the borough council in their capacity of urban sanitary authority.

- (6) Any property, debts, or liabilities of the county or of any borough affected by this or the next succeeding section (including the charge to be made for lunatics which but for this Act would have been maintainable by the borough) may be adjusted in manner provided by Part Three of this Act :
- (7) It shall be lawful for her Majesty the Queen, on petition from the council of any borough to which this or the next succeeding section applies, by Order in Council, to revoke the grant of a court of quarter sessions to the borough, and by letters patent to revoke the grant of a commission of the peace for the borough, and to make such provision as to her Majesty seems proper for the protection of interests existing at the date of the revocation, and after the date of the revocation all enactments and laws relating to courts of quarter sessions and justices and their jurisdiction shall apply, as if such court of quarter sessions or commission of the peace, as the case may be, did not exist :

In the event of the revocation of a grant of quarter sessions, any appeal which would otherwise lie to the borough sessions, e.g., under the P. H. A., 1875, s. 269, ante, p. 4499, would thereafter lie to the quarter sessions of the county. Another result would be that the county justices would acquire concurrent jurisdiction with the borough justices in the borough in those cases in which such jurisdiction had hitherto been excluded. See the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, s. 154 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 626).

Concurrent jurisdiction of county and borough justices.

It is generally considered that county justices have concurrent jurisdiction out of quarter sessions with the borough justices—(a) in all boroughs having separate commissions of the peace but not separate courts of quarter sessions [except the boroughs of Coventry, Ramsgate, and Stratford-upon-Avon, where their jurisdiction is excluded by special statutes] ; and (b) in all quarter sessions boroughs from which their jurisdiction is not excluded by the provisions of ancient charters. See a Paper issued from the Home Office in 1904, entitled “Courts of Summary Jurisdiction in England and Wales” ; but see as to grants of quarter sessions since 1835, R. v. Warwickshire J.J., [1902] 2 K. B. 101 ; 33 Digest 381, 905. If the commission of the peace is revoked, the county justices alone will have jurisdiction within the borough. In neither case, however, will the council as urban authority be affected.

- (8) A borough which is a county of a city or a county of a town shall, for the purposes of this and the next succeeding section, and if her Majesty revokes the grant of a court of quarter sessions or a commission of the peace to such borough, then also for all purposes of quarter sessions and justices, be deemed to be situate in and form part of the county of which it forms part for the purpose of parliamentary elections :
- (9) Where this section applies to a cinque port it shall apply also to all the members thereof, and those members when not situate in a quarter sessions borough shall form part of the county for all purposes.

Application of Act to all boroughs with population under 10,000.

39.—(1) Where a borough, whether with or without a separate court of quarter sessions, contained according to the census of one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one a population of less than ten thousand, then after the appointed day all powers, duties, and liabilities of the mayor, aldermen, and burgesses, or council of the borough, or the watch committee of the borough in relation—

- (a) To the police force of the borough, or
- (b) . . . (a), or
- (c) To the execution of the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Acts, 1878 to 1886 (b), or the Destructive Insects Act, 1877 (c), or
- (d) To gas meters, or
- (e) To weights and measures, if the council exercise any jurisdiction in relation thereto, shall cease, and, subject to the provisions of this Act as to the members of the police force holding office on the said day, the area of the borough shall for all purposes of the Acts relating to the county police force, or other matters above in this section mentioned, form part of the county in like manner as if it were not a borough :

(a) This sub-paragraph was repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.

Note to
Section 39.

(b) Italicised words repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175), because these Acts were repealed and consolidated by the Diseases of Animals Act, 1894 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 389); the Diseases of Animals Act, 1894, has itself been in turn amended by the Diseases of Animals Acts, 1896, 1903, 1909, 1910, 1922, 1925, 1927, and the Poultry Act, 1911 (op. cit. 424, 425, 426, 429, 436, 438, 439, 428).

(c) This Act has been extended to all pests destructive to crops, trees or bushes: see the Destructive Insects and Pests Act, 1907 (op. cit. 69).

(2) [Repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.]

(3) The urban authority for any borough or town with such population as above in this section mentioned shall cease to be the local authority under the Acts relating to explosives, and the county council shall have the like authority under the said Acts in the said borough or town as they have in the rest of their county.

[Ss. 40—45 (so far as unrepealed) relate solely to London. Ss. 46—49 (so far as unrepealed) relate solely to the application of the Act to Special Counties and to Liberties. Accordingly these sections are omitted.]

(a) Notwithstanding this enactment, each of the entire counties of York, Lincoln, Sussex, Suffolk, Northampton, and Cambridge shall continue to be one county for the said purposes so far as it is one county at the passing of this Act; and

(b) This enactment shall not affect the existing powers or privileges of any city or borough as respects the sheriff, lieutenant, militia, justices, or coroner; but, if any county borough is, at the passing of this Act, a part of any county for any of the above purposes, nothing in this Act shall prevent the same from continuing to be part of that county for that purpose; and

(c) This enactment shall not affect parliamentary elections nor the right to vote at the election of a member to serve in Parliament, nor land tax, tithes, or tithe rent-charge, nor the area within which any bishop, parson, or other ecclesiastical person has any cure of souls or jurisdiction.

(a) One result of this provision is to transfer an urban district previously situated in two counties to that county which contained the largest portion of the population according to the census of 1881. The case of Re Staffordshire and Derbyshire County Councils (1890), 54 J. P. 566 ; 26 Digest 582, 2724, may be mentioned as illustrating the effect of such a transfer.

The words "for all purposes" merely mean that a place shall form part of such county for the exercise therein of their respective offices by the officers named : see Re Local Government Act, 1888, Ex parte London C. C., [1892] 1 Q. B. 33 ; 56 J. P. 279 ; 13 Digest 233, 16.

Arbitration
by Local Government
Board.

63. Where the Local Government Board are required in pursuance of this Act to decide any difference or other matter referred to arbitration in pursuance of this Act, the provisions of the Regulation of Railways Act, 1868, respecting arbitrations by the Board of Trade, and the enactments amending those provisions, shall apply as if they were herein re-enacted, and in terms made applicable to the Local Government Board and the decision of differences and matters under this Act.

For the Local Government Board must now be read the Ministry of Health.

For the words in italics there must now, under the Local Government (Determination of Differences) Act, 1896, post, p. 4938, be substituted the words "determine as arbitrators."

It is therefore only where the Ministry "determines as arbitrators" that this section applies. Where the Ministry determine otherwise than as arbitrators they proceed under s. 87, post, p. 4763.

The provisions of the Regulation of Railways Act, 1868 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 176), above referred to, are contained in ss. 30—32 of that Act (op. cit. 184), which are set out in full, ante, p. 4264. Under these, as applied by the above section, the L. G. B. (now the M. of H.) may appoint an arbitrator whose award or decision may be that of the Board. The Board may fix the remuneration of the arbitrator. Section 32 incorporates the Railway Companies Arbitration Act, 1859, ss. 18—29 (op. cit. 115—117), the effect of which is shortly as follows : Section 18 empowers the arbitrator to call for books and documents and to administer oaths. Section 19 gives him discretion as to the manner of proceeding with the arbitration. Section 20 enables him to proceed in the absence of parties. Section 21 enables him to make several awards each on part of the matters referred. Section 22 makes the award conclusive. Section 23 gives the arbitrator power to extend the time for making an award. Section 24 prevents the setting aside of an award for irregularity. Section 25 provides that parties shall obey award. Section 26, that all courts shall give effect to awards. Section 27, that costs shall be in the discretion of the arbitrator. Section 28, that in the absence of any order, costs are to be borne by parties equally. Section 29, that submission may be made a rule of court.

PART IV.

FINANCE.

Property Funds and Costs of County Council.

Transfer of county property and liabilities.

64.—(1) . . . all property of the quarter sessions of a county, or held by the clerk of the peace, or any justice or justices of a county, or treasurer, or commissioners, or otherwise for any public uses and purposes of a county, or any division thereof, shall pass to and vest in and be held in trust for the council of the county, subject to all debts and liabilities affecting it, and shall be held by the county council for the same estate, interest, and purposes, and subject to the same covenants, conditions, and restrictions, for and subject to which that property is or would have been held if this Act had not passed, so far as those purposes are not modified by this Act: Provided that—

- (a) the existing records of or in the custody of the court of quarter sessions shall, subject to any order of that court, remain in the same custody in which they would have been if this Act had not passed; and
- (b) where any property belongs to a charity, nothing in this Act shall affect the trust of such charity, and until otherwise directed by the Charity Commissioners . . . , the trustees or managers of the charity shall be appointed in like manner as if this Act had not passed; and
- (c) the justices of any county may retain any pictures, chattels, or property on the ground that the same have been presented to them or purchased out of their own funds or otherwise belong to them, and are not held for public purposes of the county. . . .

Certain words in this sub-section were repealed by S. L. R. A., 1908.

(2) . . . all debts and liabilities of the quarter sessions, or of the clerk of the peace, or any justice or justices, or treasurer, or commissioners, incurred for county purposes, shall become debts and liabilities of the county council, and shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be defrayed by them out of the like property and funds out of which they would have been defrayed if this Act had not passed.

Certain words in this sub-section were repealed by S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175).

(3) The county council . . . shall provide such accommodation and rooms, and such furniture, books, and other things as may from time to time be determined by the standing joint committee of quarter sessions and the county council, to be necessary or proper for the due transaction of the business, and convenient keeping of the records and documents, of the quarter sessions and justices out of sessions, or of any committee of such quarter sessions or justices.

Certain words in this sub-section were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.

(4) This section shall apply, with the necessary modifications, to the administrative counties of Sussex and Suffolk.

(5) This section shall apply in the case of the property, debts, and liabilities of the justices of all the ridings and divisions of the counties of York or Lincoln at their gaol sessions, or of commissioners appointed by the justices, in like manner as if it were herein re-enacted with the substitution of gaol sessions or commissioners for quarter sessions, and of clerk of gaol sessions for clerk of the peace, and as if the joint committee of the councils of the three ridings or divisions were the council of the county; and the said joint committee shall, for the purposes of the said property, debts and liabilities, and for the transaction of the Section 64. administrative business and execution of their duties under this Act, be a body corporate, with perpetual succession and a common seal, by the name of the county committee, with the prefix of the name of the county, and with power to acquire and hold land for the purposes of their constitution without licence in mortmain.

(6) The county council of the soke of Peterborough shall be liable to repair the county bridges in the soke, and if any costs are incurred by the county council of the county of Northampton for the benefit of the soke, an adjustment thereof shall be made by agreement, or by arbitration in manner provided by this Act.

[S. 65 was repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.]

Costs of justices to be payable out of county fund.

66. All costs incurred by the quarter sessions or the justices out of session of a county, and all costs incurred by any justice, police officer, or constable, in defending any legal proceedings taken against him in respect of any order made, or act done, in the execution of his duty as such justice, police officer, or constable shall, to such amount as may be sanctioned by the standing joint committee of the county council and quarter sessions, and, so far as they are not otherwise provided for, be paid out of the county fund of the county, and the council of the county shall provide for such payment accordingly.

Adjustment of law as respects costs ordered by quarter sessions or justices to be paid.

67. Any order of a court of quarter sessions, or of any justices or justice out of session, for the payment by the county treasurer of costs in criminal proceedings or of costs under the Burial of Drowned Persons Act, 1808, shall be obeyed by the county treasurer in like manner as heretofore. . . .

Certain words in this section were repealed by the Costs in Criminal Cases Act, 1908 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 739).

[S. 68 was repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.]

Borrowing by county council.

69.—(1) The county council may from time to time, with the consent of the Local Government Board, borrow . . .

(d) for making advances (which they are hereby authorised to make) to any persons or bodies of persons, corporate or unincorporate, in aid of the emigration or colonisation of inhabitants of the county, with a guarantee for repayment of such advances from any local authority in the county, or the Government of any colony. . . .

PART V.

SUPPLEMENTAL.

Application of Acts.

75. For the purpose of the provisions of this Act with respect to county councils, and to the chairmen, members, committees, and officers of such councils, and otherwise for the purpose of carrying this Act into effect, the following portions of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, namely, . . . (a) Part Four (as amended by the Municipal Elections (Corrupt Practices) Act, 1884), section one hundred and twenty-four in Part Five, Part Twelve, Part Thirteen, . . . (a) shall, so far as the same are unrepealed and are consistent with the provisions of this Act, apply as if they were herein re-enacted with the enactments amending the same in such terms and with such modifications as are necessary to make them applicable to the said councils and their chairmen, members, committees, and officers, and to the other provisions of this Act.

Provided as follows:—

(1) . . . (b).

(2)—(4) . . . (c).

Section 75.

- (5) A reference in the said enactments to the town clerk . . . (a) shall be construed to refer to the clerk of the county council.
- (6) . . . (b).
- (7)—(8) . . . (c).
- (9) . . . (b).
- (10)—(11) . . . (c).
- (12) . . . (d).
- (13) . . . (b).
- (14)—(15) . . . (c).
- (16) Nothing in the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, as applied by this section—
- (a) shall alter the application of any fine, penalty, or forfeiture recoverable in a summary manner; or,
- (b) shall apply . . . (a) any of the following provisions, namely, . . . (a) section two hundred and fifty-one, or section two hundred and fifty-seven; or
- (c) . . . (c); or
- (d) . . . (b); or
- (e) . . . (c); or
- (f) shall require the acts and proceedings of the standing joint committee of the county council and quarter sessions to be submitted to the county council for their approval; or
- (g) . . . (c).
- (17)—(21) . . . (c).

(a) Certain words here were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI, Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.

(b) Paragraph repealed by the County Councils (Elections) Act, 1891, s. 7.

(c) Paragraph repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI, Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.

(d) Paragraph repealed by the Representation of the People Act, 1918, s. 47, post, p. 5177.

[Ss. 76, 77, repealed by the Representation of the People Act, 1918, s. 47, post, p. 5177.]

Construction of Acts referring to business transferred.

78.—(1) All enactments in any Act, whether general or local and personal, relating to any business, powers, duties or liabilities transferred by or in pursuance of this Act from any authority to a county council, either alone or jointly with the quarter sessions, or to any joint committee, shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, and so far as circumstances admit, be construed as if—

- (a) any reference therein to the said authority or to any committee or member thereof or to any meeting thereof (so far as it relates to the business, powers, duties or liabilities transferred) referred to the county council or to a committee or member thereof or to a meeting thereof, as the case requires, and as if—
- (b) a reference to any clerk or officer of such authority referred to the clerk or officer of a county council or committee thereof, as the case requires, and all the said enactments shall be construed with such modifications as may be necessary for carrying this Act into effect. Section 78.

(2) Provided that the transfer of powers and duties enacted by this Act shall not authorise any county council or any committee or member thereof—

- (a) to exercise any of the powers of a court of record ; or
- (b) to administer an oath ; or
- (c) to exercise any jurisdiction under the Summary Jurisdiction Acts, or perform any judicial business, or otherwise act as justices or a justice of the peace but this enactment shall be without prejudice to the position of the chairman of the county council as justice of the peace during his term of office.

(3) Where under any such enactment as in this section mentioned, any powers, duties, or liabilities are to be exercised or discharged after any presentment or in any particular manner, or at any particular meeting, or subject to any other conditions, the county council may, by the standing orders for the regulation of their proceedings, provide for the exercise and discharge of those powers, duties, and liabilities without any such prior presentment or in a different manner, or at any meeting of the council fixed by the standing orders, or without such other conditions ; and until such standing orders take effect shall exercise and discharge them in the like manner, and at the like time, and subject to the like conditions, so nearly as circumstances admit ; and a presentment by a grand jury in relation to any such powers, duties, or liabilities, shall cease to be made otherwise than by way of indictment.

(4) For the purposes of this section the expression “ authority ” means a Secretary of State, the Board of Trade, the Local Government Board, and any Government Department, also any commissioners, conservators, or public body, corporate or unincorporate, specified in a Provisional Order transferring any powers, duties, or liabilities to the county council, also any quarter sessions and any justices, also the Metropolitan Board of Works, or other local authority mentioned in this Act ; and the expression “ member of an authority ” includes, where the authority are quarter sessions or justices, any justice, and the expression “ meeting of an authority ” includes a court of quarter sessions and the assembly of justices in special or petty sessions ; and the expression “ clerk of an authority ” includes in relation to any quarter sessions or justices, the clerk of the peace or the clerk to a justice as the case requires.

This section shall apply as if a joint committee were a committee of the county council.

Proceedings of Councils and Committees.

79.—(1) [Repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.] Incorporation of county council.

(2) All duties and liabilities of the inhabitants of a county shall become and be duties and liabilities of the council of such county.

Section 79.

(3) Where any enactment (whether relating to lunatic asylums or bridges, or other county purposes, or to quarter sessions) requires or authorises land to be conveyed or granted to, or any contract or agreement to be made in the name of, the clerk of the peace, or any justice or justices or other person, on behalf of the county or quarter sessions, or justices of the county, such land shall be conveyed or granted to, and such contract and agreement shall be made with, the council of the administrative county concerned.

The words in italics in sub-s. (3) were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.

[S. 80 repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.]

Appointment of joint committees.

81.—(1) Any . . . (a) court or courts of quarter sessions, may from time to time join in appointing out of their respective bodies a joint committee for any purpose in respect of which they are jointly interested.

(2) Any . . . (a) court taking part in the appointment of any joint committee under this section, may from time to time delegate to the committee any power which such . . . (a) court might exercise for the purpose for which the committee is appointed.

(3) . . . (b).

(4) Subject to the terms of delegation, any such joint committee shall, in respect of any matter delegated to it, have the same power in all respects as the . . . (a) courts appointing it, or any of them, as the case may be.

(5) The members of a joint committee appointed under this Act shall be appointed at such times and in such manner as may be from time to time fixed by the . . . (a) court who appointed them, and shall hold office for such time as may be fixed by the . . . (a) court who appointed them, so that where any members of the committee were appointed by the county council, such committee do not continue for more than three months after any triennial election of councillors of such county council.

(6) . . . (b).

(7) . . . (a) a standing joint committee may be appointed for two or more administrative counties, inclusive of county boroughs, and the members of such joint committee shall be appointed by the several quarter sessions and councils in such proportion and manner as they respectively may arrange, and in default of arrangement as may be directed by a Secretary of State.

(8) This section shall apply to the standing joint committees.

(a) Words repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.

(b) Paragraph repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.

Proceedings of committees.

82.—(1) A county council appointing under this Act any committee may from time to time make, vary, and revoke regulations respecting the quorum and proceedings of such committee, and as to the area (if any) within which it is to exercise its authority; and subject to such regulations the proceedings and quorum and the place of meeting whether within or without the county, shall be such as the committee may from time to time direct, and the chairman at any meeting of the committee shall have a second or casting vote. Section 82.

(2) Every committee shall report its proceedings to the council by whom it was appointed, but to the extent to which the council so direct, the acts and proceedings of the committee shall not be required by the provisions of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, to be submitted to the council for their approval.

(3) In the case of a joint committee the councils and courts appointing the joint committee shall jointly have the powers given by this section, and the provisions of this section shall apply accordingly.

This section has been repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s.307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275, except so far as it applies to joint committees appointed under s. 81.

Officers.

83. Subject to the provisions of this Act for the protection of clerks of the peace holding office at the passing of this Act, the following provisions shall have effect :— Clerk of the peace and of county council.

(1)—(3) . . . (a).

(4) The joint committee may appoint a deputy clerk to hold office during their pleasure, and to act in lieu of such clerk in case of his death, illness, or absence, or in such other cases as may be determined by the joint committee, and wherever the deputy so acts, all things authorised or required to be done by, to, or before the clerk of the peace, or clerk of the county council, may be done by, to, or before any such deputy ; without prejudice to the appointment of a deputy clerk for the purpose of a second court on the division of the court of quarter sessions for judicial business (b).

(5) . . . (a).

(6) . . . (c).

(7) The office of clerk of the peace of each of the administrative counties of Sussex and Suffolk shall be a separate office ; but nothing in this Act shall prevent the same person from being appointed to both such offices ; and the justices in general sessions assembled for the entire county of Sussex or Suffolk may from time to time appoint the person who is clerk of the peace for either administrative county to be clerk of the peace of such general sessions, and may remove such clerk, and the remuneration to be paid to such clerk shall be determined jointly by the standing joint committees for the administrative counties.

(8) The existing records of the county of Sussex and of the county of Suffolk shall, subject to the order of quarter sessions, continue to be kept by the clerk of the peace of East Sussex and by the clerk of the peace for East Suffolk respectively.

(9) . . . (a).

- Section 83. (10) The joint committee of the councils of the three ridings or divisions of Yorkshire and Lincolnshire may from time to time appoint a clerk of such joint committee, and may from time to time remove such clerk.
- (11) [Relates only to London.]
- (12) . . . (c).
- (13) Provided always, that no paid clerk or other paid official in the permanent employment of a county council who is required to devote his whole time to such employment shall be eligible to serve in Parliament.
- (a) Paragraph repealed by the L. G. (Clerks) Act, 1931, s. 17 (3), Sched. IV. (24 Halsbury's Statutes 253, 261).
- (b) This paragraph has been repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275, so far as it relates to the office of deputy clerk of a county council.
- (c) Paragraph repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.

Appointment of the justices' clerks and clerks of committees.

84.—(1) The salaried clerk of every petty sessional division shall be from time to time appointed, and removed, as heretofore.

(2) The county council shall pay to the salaried clerks of petty sessional divisions such salaries as may be fixed under the enactments relating to those clerks, and all fees and costs payable to such clerks which are not excluded in the fixing of their salaries shall be paid into the county fund, and in the enactments relating to such salaries and fees the standing joint committee shall be substituted for the quarter sessions justices and the local authority respectively.

Regulations for Bicycles, etc.

Regulations
for bicycles,
etc.

85.—(1) . . . (a) bicycles, tricycles, velocipedes, and other similar machines (b) are hereby declared to be carriages within the meaning of the Highway Acts (c) ;

(a) Certain words in this section have been repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175), the Road Transport Lighting Act, 1927, Vol. V., post, the Road Traffic Act, 1930 (23 Halsbury's Statutes 607), and the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 735. The Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, s. 26 (5), enabled a county authority to make byelaws regulating the use of bicycles. The Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, s. 23 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 584), enables the council of a borough to make byelaws for the good rule and government of the borough, and for the prevention and suppression of nuisances not otherwise summarily punishable in the borough ; and under this section byelaws regulating the use of bicycles and tricycles were made in many boroughs. These byelaws varied greatly ; not only were they different in different counties, but county byelaws were in many cases different from those in force in the various boroughs within the county, and these again from one another. The text repeals the above sections so far as regards the power to make byelaws for bicycles, tricycles, etc., and substitutes a general enactment for the byelaws previously in force. And it is to be observed that when a byelaw is made under an Act the repeal of the Act abrogates the byelaw unless it is preserved by means of a saving clause or otherwise. Thus a byelaw relating to bicycles made under a local Act was held to be repealed by the provision in the text (Watson v. Winch, [1916] 1 K. B. 688 ; 80 J. P. 149 ; 42 Digest 773, 2015).

By the Lights on Vehicles Act, 1907, existing byelaws with regard to the lighting of vehicles (other than, inter alia, bicycles, tricycles, or velocipedes), which varied considerably in different districts, were replaced by a statutory requirement applying uniformly throughout the country. This Act and para. (a) of the sub-section in the text were, however, repealed by the Road Transport Lighting Act, 1927, s. 11, and Schedule, Vol. V., post. The last-named Act now prescribes a statutory code for the lighting of all types of vehicles which is uniform throughout the country.

Note to
Section 85.

(b) The Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, s. 26 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 181), referred only to bicycles, and it was generally understood that the county byelaws did not extend to tricycles. The text avoids possibility of doubt on the subject.

(c) It had already been held that a bicycle was a carriage within the meaning of the Highway Act, 1835, s. 78 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 91), and that its rider might be convicted under that section of furious "driving" of it (Taylor v. Goodwin (1879), 4 Q. B. D. 228; 43 J. P. 653; 26 Digest 438, 1553). But in a later case it was held that a bicycle was not a carriage liable to toll under a Turnpike Act (Williams v. Ellis (1880), 5 Q. B. D. 175; 44 J. P. 394; 26 Digest 348, 754). Cf. Parkyn v. Preist (1881), 7 Q. B. D. 313; 45 J. P. 751; 42 Digest 863, 147. The text now expressly declares that they shall be deemed to be carriages within the meaning of the Highway Acts. As such they are subject to various provisions which impose penalties for such offences as negligently, or by wilful misbehaviour, causing hurt to any person, horse, cattle, or goods; not keeping the left or near side of the road on meeting any other carriage; negligently, or by wilful misbehaviour, preventing the free passage of any person, carriage, etc.; driving furiously so as to endanger the life or limb of any passenger. See McKee v. McGrath (1892), 30 L. R. Ir. 41; Yeldham v. Carpenter (1913), 47 I. L. T. 186; and Chatterton v. Parker, [1914] W. N. 206; 78 J. P. 339; 26 Digest 438, 1558, as to furious driving; and cf. the Locomotives on Highways Act, 1896, s. 1 (1) (b) (19 Halsbury's Statutes 64), as to light locomotives; Smith v. Boon (1901), 65 J. P. 486; 84 L. T. 593; 42 Digest 872, 208; and Mayhew v. Sutton (1901), 71 L. J. K. B. 46; 86 L. T. 18; 42 Digest 872, 210.

The provision in the text does not, however, remove difficulties which arise in the construction of private Acts. See Cannan v. Abingdon (Earl of), [1900] 2 Q. B. 66; 64 J. P. 504; 26 Digest 348, 755; Simpson v. Teignmouth and Shaldon Bridge Co., [1903] 1 K. B. 405; 67 J. P. 65; 26 Digest 348, 756; Smith v. Kynnersley, [1903] 1 K. B. 788; 67 J. P. 125; 26 Digest 348, 757.

A bicycle has been held to be a "vehicle" within the meaning of a local Act against the use of vehicles for the display of advertisements without the consent of the local authority (Ellis v. Nott-Bower (1896), 60 J. P. 760; 13 T. L. R. 35; 42 Digest 846, 36); and within the meaning of the Offences against the Person Act, 1861, s. 35 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 610) (R. v. Parker (1895), 59 J. P. 793; 15 Digest 863, 9475).

It has been held that a motor bicycle is a carriage within the meaning of the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1888, s. 4 (3) (16 Halsbury's Statutes 577) (O'Donoghue v. Moon (1904), 68 J. P. 349; 90 L. T. 843; 39 Digest 238, 126).

Adaptation of Acts.

86. For the purpose of adapting the Acts relating to pauper lunatic asylums to the provisions of this Act, the following provisions shall have effect:—

(1)—(4) [Repealed by the Lunacy Act, 1890, s. 342 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 133).]

(5) Any asylum provided in whole or in part at the cost of a county shall for the purposes of this Act be included in the expression "county lunatic asylum."

(6)—(8) [Repealed by the Lunacy Act, 1890, s. 342 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 133).]

87.—(1) Where the Local Government Board are authorised by this Act to make any inquiry, to determine any difference, to make or confirm any order, to frame any scheme, or to give any consent, sanction, Application of provisions of ss & 39 Vict. c. 55,

Meaning of Provisional

Orders.

This sub-section and sub-s. (5) (now repealed) were applied by the Education Act, 1921, s. 157 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 208), to any order, consent, sanction, or approval which the Minister of Health is authorised to make or give under that Act. The same sub-sections are made applicable by the Local Authorities (Treasury Powers) Act, 1906, s. 1 (4), post, p. 5026, with a view of enabling the L. G. B. (now the M. of H.) to carry out the powers transferred to them by that Act.

(a) The residue of this sub-section was repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.

(2) Sections two hundred and ninety-seven and two hundred and ninety-eight of the Public Health Act, 1875 (which relate to the making of Provisional Orders by the Local Government Board), shall apply for the purposes of this Act as if they were herein re-enacted, and in terms made applicable thereto.

See the sections above referred to, ante, pp. 4507—8.

It was held that the above sub-section had the effect of bringing the costs incurred in opposing a Provisional Order Bill within the saving enacted by the Borough Funds Act, 1872, s. 8 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 561) (Brooks, Jenkins & Co. v. Torquay Corporation, ante, p. 1135).

Most Provisional Orders to which this sub-section relates are made under s. 54 for the extension of boroughs. The M. of H. closely scrutinize the expenses before sanctioning them as "reasonable," and first require the Bills to be submitted to the parliamentary taxing officers.

The provision applies to Provisional Orders refused as well as those issued.

The costs of parish councils as well as those of urban and rural district councils in opposing Provisional Orders under the Act must now be sanctioned.

(3) [Repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.]

(4) Where any matter is authorised or required by this Act to be prescribed, and no other provision is made declaring how the same is to be prescribed, the same shall be prescribed from time to time by the Local Government Board.

(5) [Repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.]

[Ss. 88—91 relate only to London and Middlesex.]

92.—(1) [Repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. III., ante, pp. 1194, 1275.]

(2) Where by virtue of the provisions of this Act with respect to the county of London, or to urban sanitary districts situate partly within and partly without the boundary of a county, a place situate in a parliamentary county becomes part of the county of a council other than the council having authority over the largest part of the parliamentary county, that is to say, the part which contains the largest number of . . . (a) voters, then, for the purpose . . . (a) of polling districts, and assigning polling places, and for all purposes of and incidental to such matters, including the payment of expenses, such place shall be deemed to be part of the same county as the said largest part of the said parliamentary county, and the sheriff, council, clerk of the peace, authorities, and officers of that county shall have authority accordingly in the said place, and the provisions of the Registration Act, 1885, with respect to parliamentary counties extending into more county quarter sessional areas than one, shall apply with the necessary modifications. Section 92.

(3) [Repealed by the Representation of the People Act, 1918, s. 47, post, p. 5177.]

[Ss. 93, 94, so far as unrepealed, relate only to London. S. 95, only to Middlesex, Surrey and Kent. And s. 96 only to the Middlesex Land Registry.]

97. Nothing in his Act with respect to [county] roads shall alter the liability of any person or body of persons, corporate or unincorporate, not being a highway authority, to maintain and repair any road or part of a road. Saving as to liability for [county] roads.

This section was inserted to preserve the liability of persons or corporations to repair roads which have or may become county roads under the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 166), when such roads were previously repairable by them ratione tenuræ or by prescription, or under an Act of Parliament, such as the Railway Clauses Acts, which impose on railway companies the duty of repairing roads in some cases.

The word "county" is substituted for "main" by reason of s. 29 (1) of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V., post. A similar provision under the L. G. A., 1929, is contained in s. 38 (1), Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 913.

98. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections of this Act, the Commissioners of Inland Revenue and the Commissioners of Customs, and the officers of those Commissioners respectively, shall have the same powers in relation to any articles subject to any duty of customs or excise, manufactured, imported, kept for sale, or sold, and any premises where the same may be, and to any machinery, apparatus, vessels, utensils, or conveyances used in connexion therewith or the removal thereof, and in relation to the person manufacturing, importing, keeping for sale, or having the custody of the same, as they would have had if this Act had not passed, and any licences transferred in pursuance of this Act had continued to be granted by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue. Saving for powers of Commissioners of Inland Revenue and Customs.

Definitions.

100. In this Act, if not inconsistent with the context, the following terms have the meanings hereinafter respectively assigned to them; that is to say: Interpretation of certain terms in the Act.

The expression "county" does not include a county of a city or county of a town:

The expression "entire county" means, in the case of a county divided into administrative counties, the whole of the county formed by those administrative counties:

- Section 100. The expression "division of a county," in the provisions of this Act respecting the property of quarter sessions, includes any hundred, lathe, wapentake, or other like division :
- The expression "administrative county" means the area for which a county council is elected in pursuance of this Act, but does not (except where expressly mentioned) include a county borough :
- The expression "metropolis" means the city of London and the parishes and places mentioned in Schedules A., B., and C. to the Metropolis Management Act, 1855, as amended by subsequent Acts :
- The expression "borough" means any place for the time being subject to the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, and any reference to the mayor, aldermen, and burgesses of a borough shall include a reference to the mayor, aldermen, and citizens of a city :
- The expression "quarter sessions borough" means a borough having a separate court of quarter sessions and includes a county of a city and a county of a town, subject to the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882 :
- The expression "quarter sessions" as respects any county, riding, division, or liberty, means the justices in quarter or general sessions assembled, and includes justices assembled in gaol sessions, annual general sessions, and adjourned sessions, and as respects any borough, means any court of quarter or general sessions held for the borough or for any county of a city or town consisting of the borough, whether held by the recorder or by justices, and as respects the city of London, means the court of the mayor and aldermen in the inner chamber :
- The expression "parish" means a place for which a separate overseer is or can be appointed, and where part of a parish is situate within, and part of it without, any county, borough, urban sanitary district, or other area, means each such part (a) :*
- The expressions "parliamentary county," and "parliamentary election," and "parliamentary voters," have the same meaning as in Registration Act, 1885, and the Acts therein referred to :
- The expression "Secretary of State" means one of her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State :*
- The expression "Treasury" means the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury :*
- The expression "Bank of England" means the Governor and Company of the Bank of England :*
- The expression "existing" means existing at the time specified in the enactment in which the expression is used, and if no such time is expressed, then at the day appointed to be for the purpose of such enactment the appointed day (b) :
- The expression "guardians" means guardians elected under the Poor Law Amendment Act, 1834, and the Acts amending the same, and includes guardians or other bodies of persons performing under any local Act the like functions to guardians under the Poor Law Amendment Act, 1834 (c) :

The expression "poor law union" means any parish or union of parishes for which there is a separate board of guardians (d) : Section 100.

The expressions "district council" (e) and "county district" (e) mean respectively any district council established for purposes of local government under an Act of any future session of Parliament, and the district under the management of such council, and until such council is established, mean respectively :

(a) as regards the provisions of this Act relating to highways and main roads, a highway authority and highway area ; and

(b) save as aforesaid, an urban or rural sanitary authority within the meaning of the Public Health Act, 1875, and the district of such authority :

The expression "highway area" means, as the case may require, an urban sanitary district (f), a highway district, or a highway parish not included within any highway or urban sanitary district :

The expression "highway authority" means, as respects an urban sanitary district, the urban sanitary authority, and as respects a highway district, the highway board (g), or authority having the powers of a highway board, and as respects a highway parish, the surveyor or surveyors of highways or other officers performing similar duties :

The expression "urban authority" means, until the establishment of district councils as aforesaid, an urban sanitary authority ; and after their establishment, the district council of an urban county district :

The expression "rural authority" means, until the establishment of district councils as aforesaid, a rural sanitary authority ; and, after their establishment, the district council of a rural county district :

The expression "person" includes any body of persons, whether corporate or unincorporate :

Any expression referring to the value of any parish, borough, or area as ascertained by the standard or basis for the county rate or contributions shall, where any rateable value has been fixed by agreement between the councils of any county and county boroughs, be that value, and subject thereto shall, in the case of any parish, borough, or area for which there is no such standard or basis, refer to the total rateable value as determined by the last valuation lists, or if there is no valuation list, by the last poor rates for such parish or the parishes comprised in such borough or area ; and where an area is authorised or directed by this Act to be assessed to any contributions or rates, the same shall, unless otherwise provided by law, be assessed according to the standard or basis for the county rate :

The expression "property" includes all property, real and personal, and all estates, interests, easements, and rights, whether equitable or legal, in, to, and out of property real and personal, including things in action, and registers, books, and documents ; and when used in relation to any quarter sessions, clerk of the peace, justices, board, sanitary authority, or other authority, includes any property which on the appointed day belongs to, or is vested in, or held in trust for, or would but for this Act have, on or after that day, belonged to, or been vested in, or held in trust for, such quarter sessions, clerk of the peace, justices, board, sanitary authority, or other authority; and the expression "property" shall further include, in the case of the county of Chester, any surplus revenue of the River Weaver Trust, which is or would but for this Act be payable to the quarter sessions (h) :

The expression "powers" includes rights, jurisdiction, capacities, privileges, and immunities :

The expression "duties" includes responsibilities and obligations :

The expression "liabilities" includes liability to any proceeding for enforcing any duty or for punishing the breach of any duty, and includes all debts and liabilities to which any authority are or would but for this Act be liable or subject to, whether accrued due at the date of the transfer or subsequently accruing, and includes any obligation to carry or apply any money to any sinking fund or to any particular purpose (h) :

The expression "powers, duties, and liabilities," includes all powers, duties, and liabilities conferred or imposed by or arising under any local and personal Act :

The expression "expenses" includes cost and charges :

The expression "costs" includes charges and expenses :

The costs of assizes and of quarter and petty sessions includes such of the following costs as are applicable, that is to say, the costs of maintaining and providing the courts and offices and the judges' lodgings, the salaries and remuneration of a chairman of quarter sessions, clerks of assize, clerks of the peace, clerks of the justices, and other officers, the costs of the jury list, the costs of rewards ordered to be paid by the court, the costs of prosecutions including the costs of the defendant's witnesses, and all other costs incidental to the assizes, quarter sessions, petty sessions, or the judges, but nothing shall require a quarter sessions borough to contribute towards the costs of prosecutions at assizes except in the case of prisoners committed for trial from the borough :

The expression "assizes" includes the Central Criminal Court :

The expression "pension" includes any superannuation allowance, gratuity, or other payment made on the retirement of any officer :

The expression "office" includes any place, situation, or employment, and the expression "officer" shall be construed accordingly (j) :

The expression "the divisions of Lincolnshire" means the parts of Holland, the parts of Kesteven, and the parts of Lindsey :

The expression "County and Borough Police Act, 1856," means the Act of the session of the nineteenth and twentieth years of the reign of her present Majesty, chapter sixty-nine, intituled "An Act to render more effectual the police in counties and boroughs in England and Wales," and the expression "County and Borough Police Acts" means the County and Borough Police Act, 1856, and the Acts therein recited :

The expression "[county] road," when used in relation to the district of any highway or road authority, means so much of the [county] road as is situate within the district of such authority (k). Section 100.

In relation to the election of county councillors, the day of nomination shall be deemed to be the day on which the names of the persons nominated are fixed on the town hall or other conspicuous place.

No attempt has been made to eliminate definitions which may not be strictly applicable for the purposes of this Work. Italicised portions have been repealed by either the S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175), the Costs in Criminal Cases Act, 1908 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 739), or the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 735.

(a) Definition repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 735.

(b) As to the appointed day, see s. 109, infra.

(c) Guardians have been abolished and their functions in the main transferred to county and county borough councils by the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V., post.

(d) Poor Law areas are now co-extensive with counties and county boroughs (see L. G. A., 1929).

(e) See definitions of "district council" and "county district" in the L. G. A., 1894, s. 21 (3), post, p. 4904.

(f) It will be remembered that quarter sessions boroughs are now urban sanitary areas within the meaning of the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878. See ss. 35 (3) and 38 (3), ante, pp. 4747, 4751.

(g) Highway Boards ceased to exist in 1894 (L. G. A., 1894, s. 25, post, p. 4905).

(h) See the cases collected in the note to L. G. A., 1933, s. 151, ante, p. 962. It was held that this definition did not extend to a case in which it was sought to make a local authority responsible for a negligent act of their predecessors. See Nash v. Rochford R. C., [1917] 1 K. B. 384; 81 J. P. 57; 26 Digest 405, 1272.

(j) In Legg v. Stoke Newington Vestry (1895), 59 J. P. 696; 38 Digest 139, 1035, in actions for compensation for pecuniary loss by abolition of office under a local Act, DAV, J., held that a sanitary inspector, clerk to the sanitary committee, messenger, hall porter, and office boy, appointed by a vestry, were "officers" within the meaning of the provisions for compensation and not merely servants. See also R. v. Bridgewater Corporation (1837), 6 Ad. & El. 339; 1 J. P. 213; 33 Digest 379, 890; R. v. Armagh U. D. C., [1901] 2 I. R. 28, and other cases cited in the note to the L. G. A., 1894, s. 81 (7), post, p. 4923.

(k) The provisions of the Act as to county roads, so far as they are within the scope of this Work, are contained in ss. 11, 34, 35 and 38, ante, pp. 4726, 4744, 4746, 4750. The word "county" is substituted for "main" by reason of the L. G. A., 1929, s. 29 (1), Vol. V., post.

COUNTY BOROUGHs.

The list of county boroughs included in this Schedule is the same as that in the L. G. A., 1933, Sched. I., Pt. II., ante, p. 1197, except that it does not include Barnsley, Blackpool, Bournemouth, Burton-upon-Trent, Carlisle, Darlington, Dewsbury, Doncaster, Eastbourne, East Ham, Grimsby, Merthyr Tydfil, Newport, Oxford, Rotherham, Smethwick, Southend-on-Sea, Southport, Stoke-on-Trent, Tynemouth, Wakefield, Wallasey and West Hartlepool, all of which have become county boroughs since 1888; and that it does include Devonport and Hanley which have ceased to be separate county boroughs since that date.

THE MORTMAIN AND CHARITABLE USES ACT, 1888.

(51 & 52 VICT. c. 42) (a).

An Act to consolidate and amend the Law relating to Mortmain and to the disposition of Land for Charitable Uses. [13th August, 1888.]

(a) The P. H. A., 1875, s. 7 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 629), provided that local boards and improvement commissioners might hold lands without licence in mortmain for the purposes of that Act. And by s. 31 (2) of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 766, and by ibid., s. 32 (2), ante, p. 766, urban and rural district councils respectively have power to hold land for the purposes of their constitution without licence in mortmain. By s. 7 of the Commons Act, 1899, post, p. 4983, any district council may acquire and hold property in a common regulated by scheme under that Act, without such licence. By s. 150 of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1745, a local authority may accept a donation of land or other property for any of the purposes of the Act without the necessity of enrolling any assurance as to such property under this Act. As to the powers of the corporation of a borough, see the L. G. A., 1933, ss. 17 (3), 171, 172, ante, pp. 752, 1000, and Truro Corporation v. Rowe, [1902] 2 K. B. 709; 66 J. P. 821; 13 Digest 371, 1027. The powers of a sanitary authority to hold lands for purposes other than those mentioned in these statutes depend upon this statute as amended by the Working Classes Dwellings Act, 1890, the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1891, and the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act Amendment Act, 1892, post, pp. 4800, 4834, 4836. A "trust corporation" which includes "in relation to charitable . . . and public trusts . . . any local or public authority" prescribed by the Lord Chancellor (Law of Property (Amendment) Act, 1926, s. 3 in Vol. V. and 15 Halsbury's Statutes 546) may now hold land as a sole trustee under ss. 30 and 94 of the Settled Land Act, 1925 (17 Halsbury's Statutes 869, 929), and may act as a personal representative under s. 14 of the Administration of Estates Act, 1925.

PART I.

MORTMAIN.

1.—(1) Land shall not be assured to or for the benefit of, or acquired by or on behalf of, any corporation in mortmain, otherwise than under the authority of a licence from her Majesty the Queen, or of a statute for the time being in force (a), and if any land is so assured otherwise than as aforesaid the land shall be forfeited to her Majesty from the date of the assurance, and her Majesty may enter on and hold the land accordingly:

Forfeiture on unlawful assurance or acquisition in mortmain.

(2) Provided as follows:

- (i) If the land is held directly of a mesne lord under her Majesty, that mesne lord may enter on and hold the land at any time within twelve months from the date of the assurance:
- (ii) If the land is held of more than one mesne lord in gradation under her Majesty, the superior of those mesne lords may enter on and hold the land at any time within six months after the time at which the right of the inferior lord to enter on the land expires:
- (iii) If a mesne lord is at the time when his right of entry accrues under this Act a lunatic or otherwise under incapacity, his right of entry may be exercised by his guardian or the committee of his estate, or by such person as her Majesty's High Court of Justice may appoint in that behalf:
- (iv) If the right of entry under this Act is exercised by or on behalf of a mesne lord, the land shall be forfeited to that lord from the date of the assurance instead of to her Majesty.

(a) See note (a), supra.

2. It shall be lawful for her Majesty the Queen, if and when and in such form as she thinks fit, to grant to any person or corporation a licence to assure in mortmain land in perpetuity or otherwise, and to grant to any Power to her Majesty to grant licences in mortmain.

Section 2. corporation a licence to acquire land in mortmain and to hold the land in perpetuity or otherwise.

Saving for rents and services. 3. No entry or holding by or forfeiture to her Majesty under this Part of this Act, shall merge or extinguish, or otherwise affect, any rent or service which may be due in respect of any land to her Majesty or any other lord thereof.

PART II.

CHARITABLE USES.

Conditions under which assurances may be made to charitable uses. 4.—(1) Subject to the savings and exceptions contained in this Act, every assurance of land, to or for the benefit of any charitable uses and every assurance of personal estate to be laid out in the purchase of land, to or for the benefit of any charitable uses, shall be made in accordance with the requirements of this Act, and unless so made shall be void (a).

(2) The assurance must be made to take effect in possession for the charitable uses to or for the benefit of which it is made immediately from the making thereof.

(3) The assurance must, except as provided by this section, be without any power of revocation, reservation, condition, or provision for the benefit of the assurator or of any person claiming under him.

(4) Provided that the assurance, or any instrument forming part of the same transaction, may contain all or any of the following provisions, so, however, that they reserve the same benefits to persons claiming under the assurator as to the assurator himself; namely,

(i) The grant or reservation of a peppercorn or other nominal rent;

(ii) The grant or reservation of mines or minerals;

(iii) The grant or reservation of any easement;

(iv) Covenants or provisions as to the erection, repair, position, or description of buildings, the formation or repair of streets or roads, drainage or nuisances, and covenants or provisions of the like nature for the use and enjoyment as well of the land comprised in the assurance as of any other adjacent or neighbouring land;

(v) A right of entry on non-payment of any such rent or on breach of any such covenant or provision;

(vi) Any stipulations of the like nature for the benefit of the assurator or of any person claiming under him.

(5) If the assurance is made in good faith on a sale for full and valuable consideration, that consideration may consist wholly or partly of a rent, rent-charge, or other annual payment reserved or made payable to the vendor, or any other person, with or without a right of re-entry for non-payment thereof.

(6) If the assurance is of land, not being land of copyhold or customary tenure, or is of personal estate, not being stock in the public funds, it must be made by deed executed in the presence of at least two witnesses (b).

(7) If the assurance is of land, or of personal estate, not being stock in the public funds, then, unless it is made in good faith for full and valuable consideration, it must be made at least twelve months before the death of the assurator, including in those twelve months the day of the making of the assurance and of the death.

(8) If the assurance is of stock in the public funds, then, unless it is made in good faith for full and valuable consideration, it must be made by transfer thereof in the public books kept for the transfer of stock at least six months before the death of the assurator, including in those six months the days of the transfer and of the death.

(9) If the assurance is of land, or of personal estate other than stock in the public funds, it must, within six months after the execution thereof, be enrolled in the central office of the Supreme Court of Judicature, unless in the case of an assurance of land to or for the benefit of charitable uses those uses are declared by a separate instrument, in which case that separate instrument must be so enrolled within six months after the making of the assurance of the land (c).

Section 4.

(a) A domiciled Victorian, who died in June, 1891, bequeathed £10,000 to the mayor and corporation of the city of Canterbury, in England, for the purpose of their buying a suitable piece of land and erecting thereon a free library. Under the law of Victoria the corporation were able lawfully to expend the money as directed by the testator:—Held, that the English Mortmain Act, 1888, only applied in so far as that the assurance of the land must be in accordance with the provisions of the Act, and that the bequest was valid (Canterbury Corporation v. Wyburn, [1895] A. C. 89; 8 Digest 287, 640).

(b) This sub-section is repealed so far as it relates to assurances executed after January 1st, 1926, by s. 119, and Sched. V. of the Settled Land Act, 1925 (17 Halsbury's Statutes 955, 974). Such attestation is no longer necessary. See note (c), infra.

(c) This provision is repealed so far as it relates to assurances executed after January 1st, 1926, by s. 119 and Sched. V. of the Settled Land Act, 1925. See now s. 29 (4), ibid. (op. cit. 869), which provides as follows:—

“(4) Every assurance of land or of personal estate, within the meaning of section four of the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888, or if the charitable uses are declared by a separate instrument, then that instrument, shall, in place of the requirements respecting attestation and enrolment prescribed by sub-sections (6) and (9) of that section, be sent to the offices of the Charity Commissioners within six months after the execution thereof or within such extended period as the said Commissioners may, either before or after the expiration of the six months, in any particular case allow, for the purpose of being recorded in the books of the said Commissioners.

“Where the original cannot be produced, an attested or office copy may be sent instead of the original.

“This sub-section does not apply to registered dispositions of registered land, or to assurances or instruments required by section one hundred and seventeen of the Education Act, 1921, to be sent to the Board of Education, and only applies to instruments executed after the commencement of this Act.”

For a case where a claim was made without success for a declaration that an assurance of land need not be enrolled because of a private Act, see In re Verrall, National Trust for Places of Historic Interest or National Beauty v. Att.-Gen., [1916] 1 Ch. 100; 80 J. P. 89; 8 Digest 260, 217.

5.—(1) Where an instrument, the enrolment whereof is required under this part of this Act for the validation of an assurance, is not duly enrolled within the requisite time, her Majesty's High Court of Justice, or the officer having control over the enrolment of deeds in the central office, may, on application in such manner and on payment of such fee as may be prescribed by rules of the Supreme Court, and on being satisfied that the omission to enrol the instrument in proper time has arisen from ignorance or inadvertence, or through the destruction or loss of the instrument by time or accident, and that the assurance was of a nature to be validated under this section, order or cause the instrument to be enrolled.

Power to remedy omission to enrol within requisite time.

(2) Thereupon, if the assurance to be validated was made in good faith and for full and valuable consideration, and was made to take effect in possession immediately from the making thereof without any power of revocation, reservation, condition, or provision, except such as is authorised by this Act, and if at the time of the application possession or enjoyment was held under the assurance, then enrolment in pursuance of this section shall have the same effect as if it had been made within the requisite time.

(3) Provided that if at the time of the application any proceeding for setting aside the assurance, or for asserting any right founded on the invalidity of the assurance, is pending, or any decree or judgment founded on such invalidity has been then obtained, the enrolment under this section shall not give any validity to the assurance.

(4) Where the instrument omitted to be enrolled in proper time has been destroyed or lost by time or accident and the trusts thereof sufficiently appear by a copy or abstract thereof or some subsequent instrument, such copy, abstract, or subsequent

Section 5. instrument may be enrolled under this section in like manner and with the like effect as if it were the instrument so destroyed or lost.

(5) An application under this section may be made by any trustee, governor, director, or manager of, or other person entitled to act in the management of or otherwise interested in, any charity or charitable trust intended to be benefited by the uses declared by the instrument to be enrolled (a).

(a) See note (c) to s. 4, ante, p. 4773.

PART III.

EXEMPTIONS.

Assurances for a public park, elementary school, or public museum.

6.—(1) Parts One and Two of this Act shall not apply (a) to an assurance by deed of land of any quantity or to an assurance by will of land of the quantity hereinafter mentioned for the purposes only of a public park, a schoolhouse for an elementary school (b), a public museum, or an assurance by will of personal estate to be applied in or towards the purchase of land for all or any of the same purposes only.

(2) Provided that a will containing such an assurance, and a deed containing such an assurance and made otherwise than in good faith for full and valuable consideration, must be executed not less than twelve months before the death of the assurator, or be a reproduction in substance of a devise made in a previous will in force at the time of such reproduction, and which was executed not less than twelve months before the death of the assurator, and must be enrolled in the books of the Charity Commissioners within six months after the death of the testator, or in case of a deed the execution of the deed.

(3) The quantity of land which may be assured by will under this section shall be any quantity not exceeding twenty acres for any one public park, and not exceeding two acres for any one public museum, and not exceeding one acre for any one schoolhouse.

(4) In this section,

- (i) "Public Park" includes any park, garden, or other land dedicated or to be dedicated to the recreation of the public ;
- (ii) "Elementary school" means a school or department of a school at which elementary education is the principal part of the education there given, and does not include any school or department of a school at which the ordinary payments in respect of the instruction from each scholar exceed ninepence a week ;
- (iii) "Schoolhouse" includes the teacher's dwelling-house, the playground (if any), and the offices and premises belonging to or required for a school ;
- (iv) "Public museum" includes buildings used or to be used for the preservation of a collection of paintings or other works of art, or of objects of natural history, or of mechanical or philosophical inventions, instruments, models, or designs, and dedicated or to be dedicated to the recreation of the public, together with any libraries, reading rooms, laboratories, and other offices and premises used or to be used in connection therewith.

(a) It is provided by the Working Classes Dwellings Act, 1890, post, p. 4800, that Parts I. and II. of this Act shall not apply to gifts of land for dwellings for the working classes.

It is further provided by the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act Amendment Act, 1892, post, p. 4836, that the above section, except as therein mentioned, shall apply to any assurance by deed of land to any local authority, for any purposes for which such authority is empowered by any Act of Parliament to acquire land. See s. 164 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4451. By s. 150 of the Housing Act, 1936, and Sched. II., para. 16 of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932, ante, pp. 1745, 1993, a local authority may accept donations of land or money or other property for any purpose of those Acts, and assurances with respect thereto need not be enrolled under this Act.

As to the enforcement of secret trusts for the benefit of the public, see In re Pitt Rivers, Scott v. Pitt Rivers, [1902] 1 Ch. 403; 66 J. P. 275; 8 Digest 290, 673.

(b) Section 117 of the Education Act, 1921 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 193), exempts assurances (as defined by s. 10 of the Mortmain Act in the text) of land or personal estate to be laid out in the purchase of land for educational purposes from any restrictions of the law relating to mortmain and charitable uses, and enacts that the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Acts, 1888 and 1891, and the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act Amendment Act, 1892, shall not apply with respect to any such assurance.

Note to
Section 6.

7. Part Two of this Act shall not apply to the following assurances :

- (i) An assurance of land, or personal estate to be laid out in the purchase of land, to or in trust for any of the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, London, Durham, and the Victoria University, or any of the colleges or houses of learning within any of those universities, or to or in trust for any of the colleges of Eton, Winchester, and Westminster, for the better support and maintenance of the scholars only upon the foundations of those last-mentioned colleges, or to or in trust for the warden, council, and scholars of Keble College (a) :

Assurances for certain universities, colleges, and societies.

- (ii) An assurance, otherwise than by will, to trustees on behalf of any society or body of persons associated together for religious purposes or for the promotion of education, art, literature, science, or other like purposes of land not exceeding two acres for the erection thereon of a building for such purposes, or any of them, or whereon a building used or intended to be used for such purposes, or any of them, has been erected so that the assurance be made in good faith for full and valuable consideration :

Provided that the trustees of the instrument containing any assurance to which this section applies or declaring the trusts thereof, may, if they think fit, at any time cause the instrument to be enrolled in the central office of the Supreme Court of Judicature.

(a) See also the Universities and College Estates Act, 1925, Vol. V., post.

8. Where by any statute now in force any provision of the enactments hereby repealed is excluded either wholly or partially from application, or is applied with modification, in every such case the corresponding provision of this Act shall be excluded or applied in like extent and manner.

Substitution of provisions of Act for enactments.

PART IV.

SUPPLEMENTAL.

9. Any assurance of land which is by this Act required to be made by deed may be made by a registered disposition under the provisions of the Land Transfer Act, 1875, or of any Act amending the same, and any assurance so made shall be exempt from the provisions of this Act as to execution in the presence of witnesses, and as to enrolment in the central office of the Supreme Court (a).

c. 87.

(a) See note (c) to s. 4, ante, p. 4773.

10. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires,—

- (i) "Assurance" includes a gift, conveyance, appointment, lease, transfer, settlement, mortgage, charge, incumbrance, devise, bequest, and every other assurance by deed, will, or other instrument; and "assure" and "assuror" have meanings corresponding with assurance.

(ii) "Will" includes codicil (a).

(iv) "Full and valuable consideration" includes such a consideration either actually paid upon or before the making of the assurance, or reserved or made payable to the vendor or any other person by way of rent, rent-charge, or other annual payment in perpetuity, or for any term of years or other period, with or without a right of re-entry for non-payment thereof, or partly paid and partly reserved as aforesaid.

(a) Sub-s. (iii) was repealed by the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1891, post, p. 4834. It contained the definition of "land." See now s. 3 of that Act, post, p. 4834.

Extent of Act.

11. This Act shall not extend to Scotland or Ireland.

Savings for existing customs, etc.

12. Nothing in this Act shall affect the operation or validity of any charter, licence, or custom in force at the passing of this Act enabling land to be assured or held in mortmain.

Repeal.

13(a).—(1) The Acts specified in the Schedule to this Act are hereby repealed from and after the passing of this Act, to the extent specified in the third column of that Schedule:

Provided that this repeal shall not affect—

- (a) Any enactment not hereby repealed referring to any enactment hereby repealed, except that in lieu of that reference the unrepealed enactment shall be construed as if it referred to the corresponding provisions of this Act; or
- (b) The past operation of any enactment hereby repealed, or any instrument or thing executed, done, or suffered before the passing of this Act; or
- (c) Any right, obligation, or liability acquired, accrued, or incurred under any enactment hereby repealed; or
- (d) Any action, proceeding, or thing pending or uncompleted at the time of the passing of this Act.

(2) Whereas by the preamble to the Act of the forty-third year of Elizabeth chapter four (being one of the enactments hereby repealed), it is recited as follows:

"Whereas landes tenementes rentes annuities p'fittes hereditamentes, goodes chattels money and stockes of money, have bene heretofore given limitedt appointed and assigned, as well by the Queenes moste excellent Majestie and her moste noble progenitors, as by sondrie other well disposed p'sons, some for releife of aged impotent and poore people, some for maintenance of sicke and maymed souldiers and marriners, schooles of learninge, free schooles and schollers in univ'sities, some for repaire of bridges portes havens causwaies, churches sea bankes and highewaies, some for educacon and p'fermente of orphans, some for or towards reliefe stocke or maintenance for howses of correcon, some for mariages of poore maides, some for supportacon ayde and helpe of younge tradesmen, handiecraftesmen and p'sons decayed, and others for releife or redemption of prisoners or captives, and for aide or ease of any poore inhabitantes conc'ninge paymente of fifteenes, settinge out of souldiers and other taxes; whiche landes tenements rents annuities p'fitts hereditaments goodes chattels money and stockes of money nev'theles have not byn employed accordinge to the charitable intente of the givers and founders thereof, by reason of fraudes breaches of truste and negligence in those that shoulde pay delwyer and employ the same:" and whereas in divers enactments and documents reference is made to charities within the meaning, purview, and interpretation of Section 13. the said Act :

Be it therefore enacted that references to such charities shall be construed as references to charities within the meaning, purview, and interpretation of the said preamble.

(a) The italicised words in s. 13 were repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175).

14. This Act may be cited as the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, Short title. 1888.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH (BUILDINGS IN STREETS) ACT, 1888.

(51 & 52 VICT. c. 52.)

An Act to amend the Public Health Acts in relation to Buildings in Streets. [24th December 1888.]

Reference should also be made to the Roads Improvement Act, 1925, s. 5, Vol. V., post, which enables highway authorities to prescribe building lines, and to the P. H. A., 1925, ss. 33 and 34, Vol. V., post, as to improvement lines, and to ss. 30, 31 and 32, ibid., Vol. V., post, which give further powers respecting the development of land adjoining streets and other highways. Control of development may also be obtained by a Town Planning Scheme made under one of the Town Planning Acts.

Whereas the provisions of the Public Health Act, 1875, with respect to bringing forward houses or buildings in streets are defective, and it is expedient to make further provisions in relation thereto :

1. This Act may be cited as the Public Health (Buildings in Streets) Act, 1888, and this Act and the Public Health Act, 1875, and the Public Health (Water) Act, 1878, and the Public Health (Interments) Act, 1879, and the Public Health (Fruit Pickers' Lodgings) Act, 1882, and the Public Health Act, 1875 (Support of Sewers), Amendment Act, 1883, and the Public Health (Confirmation of Byelaws) Act, 1884, and the Public Health (Officers) Act, 1884, and the Public Health (Ships, etc.) Act, 1885, and the Public Health (Members and Officers) Act, 1885, may be cited together as the Public Health Acts, and this Act shall be construed as one with the Public Health Act, 1875. Short titles
construction.

The Act is simply a single enactment to replace s. 156 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4432, which, as the preamble states, had been found to be defective. Most of the Acts cited have been repealed and replaced, but it is still their provisions so far as unrepealed which are to be construed with this Act. The effect of the provision that the Act is to be construed as one with the P. H. A., 1875, would appear to be to keep alive the exemption contained in s. 157 of the last-mentioned Act, ante, p. 4432, in favour of "buildings belonging to any railway company and used for the purposes of such railway under any Act of Parliament."

If a rural district council desire to have the powers of this Act they must apply to the Minister of Health for an order under s. 276 of the Act of 1875, ante, p. 4502, but it appears that the Minister has shown reluctance to extend the sphere of operation of the Act, by reason of the difficulty in applying it which is illustrated by the cases noted under s. 3, post, pp. 4778—83, and of complications introduced by later legislation : cf. the general note, ante, p. 2001.

Section 2.
Interpretation.

2. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, words and expressions to which meanings are assigned by the Public Health Act, 1875, have in this Act the same respective meanings.

The effect of this provision is to give words used in this Act the meanings assigned to them by the P. H. A., 1875, s. 4, ante, p. 4381. See, however, note (c) to the next section.

Buildings not to be brought forward.

3. Section one hundred and fifty-six of the Public Health Act, 1875, is, save as hereinafter mentioned, hereby repealed (a), and in lieu thereof it is hereby enacted that it shall not be lawful in any urban district, without the written consent of the urban authority, to erect or bring forward any house or building (b) in any street (c), or any part of such house or building, beyond the front main wall of the house or building on either side thereof in the same street (d), nor to build any addition to any house or building beyond the front main wall of the house or building on either side of the same.

Provided that the repeal by this Act enacted shall not affect anything duly done or suffered, or any right or liability acquired, accrued, or incurred, or any security given under the section hereby repealed, or any penalty, forfeiture, or punishment incurred in respect of any offence committed against such section, or any investigation, legal proceeding, or remedy in respect of any such right, liability, security, penalty, forfeiture, or punishment as aforesaid; and any such investigation, legal proceeding, and remedy may be carried on as if this Act had not been passed.

(a) Section 156 of the P. H. A., 1875, provided as follows: It shall not be lawful in any urban district, without the written consent of the urban authority, to bring forward any house or building forming part of any street or any part thereof, beyond the front wall of the house or building on either side thereof, nor to build any addition thereto beyond the front of the house or building on either side of the same. Any person offending against this enactment shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings for every day during which the offence is continued after written notice in this behalf from the urban authority. It was held, with reference to this section, that the expression "house or building" did not include new buildings in course of erection upon land never before built upon (Williams v. Wallasey L. B. (1886), 16 Q. B. D. 718; 50 J. P. 582; 26 Digest 560, 2545); and in consequence of this decision the enactment in the text was passed. It may be taken that this enactment has no application to cases coming within s. 155 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4428 (see Lord Auckland v. Westminster District Board of Works (1872), 7 Ch. App. 597; 26 Digest 501, 2087); but, semble, that section does not apply where after buildings have been taken down the site has been so long left vacant that it appears that the intention of rebuilding has been abandoned (Worley v. St. Mary Abbots, Kensington, Vestry, [1892] 2 Ch. 404; 26 Digest 502, 2095).

Consent.

(b) A local authority could not justify making a charge for giving their consent (Southwark Corporation v. Partington Advertising Co. (1905), 69 J. P. 183; 3 L. G. R. 505; 38 Digest 178, 203; Liverpool Corporation v. Arthur Maiden, Ltd., [1938] 4 All E. R. 200; Digest Supp. In R. v. Newcastle-on-Tyne Corporation (1912), 76 J. P. N. 176, 251, mandamus was issued to a local authority to consider plans for the bringing forward of a building beyond the front main wall of the building on either side thereof without imposing a condition that a strip of land should be given up for widening the street.

It should be observed that mere acquiescence does not amount to a written consent

Note to
Section 3.

for purposes of this section. See per JESSEL, M.R., in Kerr v. Corporation of Preston (1876), 6 Ch. D. at p. 468; 26 Digest 559, 2541. The written consent need not be under seal. Where plans showing that the building line was infringed were passed, and stamped as approved, by a committee whose proceedings were subsequently ratified by the council, it was held that this was a sufficient consent for the purposes of the section (Mullis v. Hubbard, [1903] 2 Ch. 431; 67 J. P. 281; 26 Digest 559, 2542). And if projections beyond the line are shown on the plans approved by the council, the approval may be considered a written consent within the section, although the attention of the council was not specifically called to the projections (Merrett v. Charlton Kings U. D. C. (1903), 67 J. P. 419; 26 Digest 559, 2543). On December 10th, 1923, a plan was submitted and passed by a committee of the council whose attention was not specifically called to the fact that the building would infringe this Act, and the building was commenced on December 16th, on the faith of that approval. On May 12th, 1924, when the building was in course of erection the attention of the council was drawn to the fact that the building contravened this section and a written consent was given. In subsequent proceedings by the Att.-Gen. for a mandatory injunction to pull down the building because it had been "commenced" without the consent of the council it was held that there was a sufficient written consent within the section (Att.-Gen. v. Denby, [1925] 1 Ch. 596; 89 J. P. 145; 26 Digest 560, 2544). Seem, the last three cases are no longer good law, so far as concerns this point, if sub-s. (2) (ii) of s. 64 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 224, is complied with by the local authority which passes building plans (quære if by oversight plans are passed without compliance with that subsection): cf. note (h), ante, p. 255. The fact that an official of the council has led a builder to think that his building will be consented to will not avail the builder if the council disregard the advice of their official and refuse consent: see Att.-Gen. v. Wimbledon House Estate Co., post, p. 4783.

By the P. H. A., 1875, s. 4, ante, p. 4331, which must be read into this Act (see "House or s. 2, ante, p. 4778), the expression "house" includes schools, also factories and other buildings in which persons are employed. There is no definition of the word "building." See decisions as to what is a house or a building, ante, p. 689. Whether a structure is a building within the meaning of the present section or not is a question of fact to be determined by the justices, provided the thing erected is of such a nature that it is capable of being a building. A wooden structure used for advertising purposes was 9 feet 6 inches long, 3 feet wide, and 7 feet high; was roofed over, and had a glass front, and a door by which to enter; and was fastened to the ground by four posts, sunk to the depth of 9 to 12 inches; it was held to be of such a nature that it was capable of being a building within the meaning of this section (Brown v. Leicester (Mayor, etc. of) (1892), 57 J. P. 70; 62 L. J. M. C. 22; 26 Digest 560, 2547); see also R. v. Gregory on p. 689, ante. As to hoardings, see Paddington Corporation v. Att.-Gen., [1906] A. C. 1; 70 J. P. 41, referred to at p. 690, ante; in the judgment of BUCKLEY, J., in this case the previous authorities are cited and discussed (see Boyce v. Paddington Borough Council, [1903] 1 Ch. 109; 67 J. P. 23; 28 Digest 495, 2581).

The owner of a house, which was situate in a street in an urban district, and had a small garden in front, erected, without consent, in front of the door a porch of wood and glass and roofed with felt, projecting 6 feet 6 inches beyond the front main wall of the house. The porch was not attached to the house, and stood on wheels. The owner was summoned under this section for building an "addition to the house" without consent, etc., but the magistrates dismissed the summons on the ground that the porch did not constitute an addition to the house. It was held, that the court could not say that in so deciding the magistrates had gone wrong in law, and that therefore their decision must stand (Sunderland Corporation v. Charlton (1912), 77 J. P. 127; 11 L. G. R. 484; 26 Digest 562, 2566).

There have been many cases as to whether particular erections were "buildings or structures" within the meaning of the London Building Act, 1894, s. 22. A glass and iron portico or shelter which projected beyond the general line of the street, and was dovetailed into the main structure of the building, was held to be such a building or structure (Coburg Hotel Co. v. London C. C. (1899), 63 J. P. 805; 81 L. T. 450; 26 Digest 503, 2103). An advertising company affixed upon the front wall of a building advertisement cases, constructed of iron and supported by iron supports pinned through the wall. The outer sides were covered with wooden frames carrying canvas lined with advertisements, and provision was made for illuminating the interiors with electric light. The cases, which varied in width and height, projected ten inches in front of the front wall of the building beyond the building line, but less than the existing cornice over the shop, which was two feet beyond the building line: it was held (WILLS, J., dissentiente), that the cases were not structures within the meaning of s. 22, supra (London C. C. v. Illuminated Advertisements Co., [1904] 2 K. B. 886; 68 J. P. 445; 26 Digest 503, 2106). The last-mentioned case was followed where the erection complained of was a shelter hung from the front wall of a building by two stay rods, and secured to the wall at the bottom by six bolts. The shelter consisted of an iron framework filled in on the front and sides with leaded glass, and covered on the top with zinc. There were letters on the glass made visible by night by lights arranged within the shelter (London C. C. v. Scheuzik, [1905] 2 K. B. 695; 69 J. P. 409; 26 Digest 503, 2104); and it was again followed where a firm of milliners erected on the steps and landing leading to the front door in the front main wall of their premises a show case which took the place of a shop front and projected beyond the general line of buildings. The houses in this part of the street had bay windows in front of the general line of buildings and the show case was slightly in front of the bays (London C. C. v. Hancock and James, [1907] 2 K. B. 45; 71 J. P. 268; 26 Digest 502, 2099). See also Tunmer v. Partington Advertising Co. (1904), 68 J. P. 318; 26 Digest 504, 2109; and see Hull v. London C. C., [1901] 1 K. B. 580; 65 J. P. 309; 26 Digest 503, 2105, to the effect, that advertisement cases are not "projections" within the meaning of the London Building Act, 1894, s. 73 (8) (11 Halsbury's Statutes 1162). As to the section of the street which may be taken into account in defining the general line of buildings in a block forming part of the street, see L. C. C. v. Galsworthy, [1918] A. C. 851; 82 J. P. 297; 26 Digest 506, 2121.

It was decided that a petrol pump consisting of a standard with the usual appurtenances was an "erection" and also an "obstruction" within the meaning of those words as used in a town planning scheme (Mackenzie v. Abbott (1926), 24 L. G. R. 444; 38 Digest 216, 506); it should, however, be observed that the section in the text refers to "house or building."

"Street."

(c) The word "street," as defined by the P. H. A., 1875, s. 4, ante, p. 4336, includes any highway (not being a turnpike road), and any public bridge (not being a county bridge), and any road, lane, footway, square, court, alley, or passage, whether a thoroughfare or not. This definition is incorporated by s. 2, ante, p. 4778, and consequently the Act might be construed as applying to any road, public or private, whether it has acquired the character of a street in the ordinary acceptance of the term or not. Indeed, it was the very object of the Act to enable an urban authority to exercise some control over the line of buildings in new streets. It has, however, apparently been decided that the question whether a road is a street within the meaning of the section is one of fact and also of degree as it may be a street at one end, though at the other still a country road (Att.-Gen. v. Siddall (1898), Times, June 24th); and in the repealed s. 156, ante, p. 4432, the word street had its ordinary signification, not the wider meaning (see R. v. Fullford (1864), 28 J. P. 357; 33 L. J. M. C. 122; 26 Digest 275, 130). In Att.-Gen. v. Laird, [1925] 1 Ch. 318; 89 J. P. 95; 26 Digest 272, 112, it was held that in order to be a street within this section there must be a succession of houses and buildings at least on one side of it with some degree of continuity and proximity such as would enable the court as a question of fact to hold that what was originally a mere highway had become a street in the ordinary acceptance of the term. The Act is defective to this extent, that there will be no control over the earliest buildings in the street, and these may really fix the line for the rest of the street. See now, however, the power to prescribe building lines given by s. 5 of the Roads Improvement Act, 1925, Vol. V., post, the powers in respect to the development of land adjoining streets and other highways under ss. 30—32, P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, and the extensive powers of regulating development by a scheme under the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932, ante, p. 1879. The other provisions are set out, post. In R. v. Middlesbrough Corporation (1890), Times, July 7th, Lord COLERIDGE, C.J., and WILLS, J., granted a mandamus to the corporation to approve plans for a house to be erected in a new street where there were no other houses on either side thereof in the same street except one at a distance of 800 feet. See, however, as to the granting of a mandamus, R. v. Eastbourne Corporation and R. v. Chiswick U. D. C., Ex parte Bricknell, post, p. 4782, and note (a), ante, p. 226.

Note to
Section 3.

A house at the corner of two streets may be in both streets for the purposes of this enactment (Gilbart v. Wandsworth District Board of Works (1888), 53 J. P. 229; 60 L. T. 149; 26 Digest 506, 2117; see also London C. C. v. Laurance, [1893] 2 Q. B. 228; 57 J. P. 617; 26 Digest 514, 2184).

(d) The respondent began to erect the front main wall of a new house in a street. At that time B. had raised the front main wall of a new house, which he was erecting on the same side of the street to the height of five inches above the ground. It did not appear to what extent the other walls of B.'s house had been built, or that they were connected with the front main wall. There was a distance of about 300 or 400 feet between the two houses, and there was no other house between them. The front main wall of the respondent's house was six feet nearer the roadway than that of B.'s house. It was held that the respondent had not committed an offence against this enactment (Ravensthorpe L. B. v. Hinchcliffe (1889), 24 Q. B. D. 168; 54 J. P. 421; 26 Digest 561, 2550). The grounds of this decision were: (1) that there was not, when the respondent began to build, any front main wall of a house or building on B.'s land; and (2) that the words "house on either side thereof" mean "a house within some near distance, within some degree of proximity, and not one standing some considerable distance away": per FRY, L.J. See, as to the second point, Barlow v. St. Mary Abbots, Kensington, Vestry (1886), 11 App. Cas. 257; 50 J. P. 691; 26 Digest 505, 2116. And see R. v. Middlesbrough Corporation (1890), Times, July 17; Ellis and Ruislip-Northwood U. C., In re, [1920] 1 K. B. 343; 83 J. P. 273; 38 Digest 218, 524. These cases were followed in Att.-Gen. v. Laird, [1925] 1 Ch. 318; 89 J. P. 95; 26 Digest 272, 112, in which the court held that a building 700 feet distant was not a house on either side. In that case POLLOCK, M.R., at p. 333, said, "If you find that the house relied upon is so far distant that no person in ordinary parlance would say that it was the next house in the same street, you cannot hold that the section has been transgressed. There must be some reasonable measure of contiguity and proximity in order to find that there is a house on either side to which the house in question must conform."

At the junction of the O. and C. roads a house was erected abutting on the footpath of C. road. The main entrance of the house was in O. road. At a distance of sixty-four feet from the back wall of the premises attached to the house in C. road was situated a row of eleven small cottages set back eight feet from C. road. The justices on an information against the owner of the house, under this Act, held that the house in question was in both C. and O. roads, that the cottages were buildings on one side of the house within the meaning of the section, and convicted the owner. It was held that it was a question of fact for the justices whether the house in question was or was not in both roads, and also whether the cottages were sufficiently near to the house to be on one side thereof within the meaning of the Act, and that the conviction must be affirmed (Warren v. Mustard (1891), 56 J. P. 502; 61 L. J. M. C. 18; 26 Digest 561, 2555).

In considering what is the front main wall of a house or building for the purposes of this section, and whether such house or building is on either side of, or in the same street as, a house or building in course of erection, all the circumstances of the case must be taken into consideration. The building must be looked at as a whole: its character, its position, its distance from the house or building which is being erected or brought forward in alleged contravention of the section must be considered; a particular wing or other projection must not be selected, the front of which is to be treated as the front main wall which is to give the governing line; nor are two buildings necessarily in the same street because one faces the same road or street, or a continuation of the same road or street, as the other (Att.-Gen. v. Edwards, [1891] 1 Ch. 194; 26 Digest 560, 2549).

As the section prohibits a house or building being brought forward beyond the front main wall of the house or building "on either side thereof," this includes a case where there are buildings only on one side of the proposed new house or building (Leyton L. B. v. Causton (1893), 57 J. P. 135; 26 Digest 561, 2559). The occupier of a corner house put up a shop front (in front of his own main wall) which projected beyond the front main wall of the house on one side of it, but did not project beyond the front main wall of the house on the other side, which was separated from the corner house in question by a cross street. It was held that the provisions of this section had been contravened (Anderson v. Richards (1906), 70 J. P. 231; 4 L. G. R. 404; 26 Digest 561, 2560). See also London C. C. v. Laurance, ante. Every case under the section must be determined with regard to its own particular circumstances. In 1856, a road was laid out on a building estate and from time to time houses were built on the east side of the road so as to form a continuous line of buildings close up to that side of the road. In 1893, T. built a house on the west side of the road, set back more than ten feet from the roadway, and in 1894 he bought a strip of land along the west side of the road to the north of his house, with the object of erecting cottages on it. The building plans showed that the cottages would be ninety feet distant from T.'s house and would be set back ten feet from the roadway, but nearer thereto than his house. The local board refused to approve of the plans for that reason. It was held that a rule nisi for a mandamus to the board to approve the plans must be made absolute, as there was no necessity that the cottages should under the circumstances be in a line with T.'s house (R. v. Ormesby L. B. (1894), 43 W. R. 96; 26 Digest 561, 2557). It is immaterial that adjoining property may be injured by the erection of the proposed buildings if the section is inapplicable upon the facts as to the buildings. Thus, where houses on one side of a proposed new building were set back sixty-two feet from the roadway, and it was proposed to erect a new house at a distance of twenty-one feet only from the roadway so as to project in front of the other houses, which would considerably diminish their value, the court, holding that they were not on the facts houses in the same street on the side of the proposed new house, made absolute a rule directing the local board to approve of the plans for the proposed new house (R. v. Fulwood L. B., Ex parte Livesey (1895), 59 J. P. 311; 72 L. T. 592; 26 Digest 561, 2563). It has now, however, been decided that a mandamus will not be granted as a means for trying disputed issues of fact, which can be otherwise tried, where a local authority has in good faith refused to approve on the ground that the building would contravene the provisions of this Act (R. v. Eastbourne Corporation (1900), 64 J. P. 724; 83 L. T. 338; 26 Digest 559, 2539; followed in R. v. Chiswick U. D. C., Ex parte Brickell (1908), 72 J. P. 165; 26 Digest 559, 2540). Cf. R. v. Newcastle-on-Tyne Corporation, ante, p. 4778. This is an application of a general rule of practice, that mandamus is not appropriate as a procedure by way of appeal in matters of discretion. A person who considers that a local authority's discretion under this Act has been wrongly exercised, in refusing consent to his bringing his building forward, has his remedy by appeal to Quarter Sessions: vide s. 7 of the P. H. A. A. Act, 1890, post, p. 4804, and R. v. Esser JJ., Ex parte Barking U. D. C., ibid.

Front main wall of house on either side thereof in the same street.

Note to
Section 3.

Special Acts.

Where a railway company acting under a special Act erected a station beyond the general line of buildings in a street in the metropolis, and the station was necessary for the railway and was within the limits of deviation, it was held that the provisions of the Metropolis Management Acts as to the building line did not apply (City and S. L. Rail. Co. v. London C. C., [1891] 2 Q. B. 513; 56 J. P. 6; 26 Digest 508, 2133). This decision has been followed in London C. C. v. London School Board, [1892] 2 Q. B. 606; 56 J. P. 791; 26 Digest 508, 2134. See also Surrey Commercial Dock Co. v. Bermondsey Corporation, [1904] 1 K. B. 474; 68 J. P. 155; 34 Digest 585, 70; Stretford U. D. C. v. Manchester South Junction and Altrincham Rail. Co. (1903), 68 J. P. 59; 1 L. G. R. 683; 26 Digest 523, 2237; Lewis and Solome v. Charing Cross, etc. Rail. Co., [1906] 1 Ch. 508; 70 J. P. 221; 7 Digest 307, 286; Met. Rail. Co. v. London C. C., [1913] 2 K. B. 249; 77 J. P. 190; 34 Digest 586, 73.

This Act is an Act for improving the sanitary condition of towns and populous districts within the meaning of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, s. 93 (20 Halsbury's Statutes 214). Therefore, if the Act of 1847 (20 Halsbury's Statutes 186) is incorporated by the special Act of a water company, the company is liable for erecting a building in a street beyond the front main wall of the house, or building, on either side thereof in the same street (Grand Junction Waterworks v. Hampton U. D. C. (No. 2), (1898), 67 L. J. Q. B. 903; 79 L. T. 176; 26 Digest 560, 2548; cf. Uckfield R. D. C. v. Crowborough Water Co., and London C. C. v. Wandsworth and Putney Gas Co., ante, p. 195).

Penalty for contravention of
section.

(e) Want of notice is fatal, but if a summons is dismissed for want of notice, notice may be afterwards given, and a fresh summons taken out, and the defendant convicted thereon (Jenkins v. Merthyr Tydvil U. D. C. (1899), 80 L. T. 600; 26 Digest 562, 2570).

For the procedure to be adopted when the justices at the hearing are equally divided, see the cases collected in the note under P. H. A., 1875, s. 251, ante, p. 4481.

It will be observed that the urban authority are not empowered to demolish a building erected contrary to this section, nor has a justice power to make an order to that effect, unless, perhaps, if the highway is obstructed: see Bagshaw v. Buxton

L. B. (1875), 1 Ch. D. 220; 40 J. P. 197; 26 Digest 449, 1652, and Reynolds v. Presteign U. D. C., ante, p. 4728.

The plaintiffs, owners of a house and area situate in and fronting a street, altered the front of the house by throwing out bay windows projecting beyond the street line of frontage, but not beyond the limits of the area. After the completion of the work the defendants, the local authority, threatened the plaintiffs with summary proceedings under the repealed s. 156, ante, p. 4432. The plaintiffs then moved ex parte for an injunction to restrain the defendants from taking these proceedings, alleging—(1) that as the alteration had been made over their own property, the defendants in threatening proceedings were acting ultra vires; (2) that the defendants, having had notice of the plaintiffs' intention to make the alterations, were bound by acquiescence; and (3) that the justices had no jurisdiction, as the defendants had not made their complaint within six months. The motion was refused on the ground that the court could not restrain criminal proceedings, and that the grounds suggested for interference were matters of defence to be used before the magistrates (Kerr v. Preston Corporation (1876), 6 Ch. D. 463; 26 Digest 559, 2541).

The legislature having provided by the text a particular mode of proceeding in case of offence, the court will be very slow to exercise its jurisdiction (if it has any) to restrain the local authority from pursuing the statutory remedy, or to make a declaration inconsistent with the right to pursue such remedy, unless it is proved that any trespass is threatened or intended by the local authority (Grand Junction Waterworks v. Hampton U. D. C., [1898] 2 Ch. 331; 62 J. P. 566; 26 Digest 562, 2568; followed in Williams v. Weston-super-Mare U. D. C. (No. 2) (1910), 74 J. P. 370; 103 L. T. 9; and Merrick v. Liverpool Corporation, [1910] 2 Ch. 449; 74 J. P. 445; 38 Digest 218, 522; and cf. Dyson v. Att.-Gen., [1912] 1 Ch. 158).

The words of this paragraph are similar to those of the repealed s. 156. It was held, with reference to that section, that an offence to which the penalty was applicable continued as long as the addition to the house was maintained after written notice from the urban authority, notwithstanding that the addition was completed before the notice was given (Rumball v. Schmidt (1882), 8 Q. B. D. 603; 46 J. P. 567; 26 Digest 562, 2572). It has also been held that under s. 3, supra, a penalty may be imposed time after time if the offence is continued (see Att.-Gen. v. Wimbledon House Estate Co., infra).

The penalty will be recoverable summarily under the P.H.A., 1875, s. 251, ante, p. 4481. The notice will be given and authenticated as provided by ss. 266 and 267 of the last-mentioned Act, ante, pp. 4494—51.

A person purchased a house from a builder who had in building it committed an offence under s. 3. It was held that the purchaser did not commit an offence against the section by maintaining the house after notice from the urban authority in the same state as it was in at the time he bought it (Blackpool Corporation v. Johnson, [1902] 1 K. B. 646; 26 Digest 562, 2573).

The offence prohibited by the section is one compound offence, consisting of building without consent, and continuing after notice, for which a penalty is imposed to be exacted by the urban authority. Therefore, a private individual has no cause of action against a neighbour who erects a building in advance of the building line (Mullis v. Hubbard, ante, p. 4779). Nor will an indictment lie (ibid.). A summary remedy is not, however, the only remedy available. Defendants commenced to erect a building contrary to the provisions of s. 3, and, after due notice, were summoned by the urban authority and fined. The defendants paid the fine and continued, and threatened to complete, the erection of the building. The Attorney-General, at the relation of the urban authority, moved for a mandatory injunction to compel the pulling down of so much of the building as infringed the statute. The defendants objected to the action on the double ground that the only remedy was the one given by statute, that if there was a double remedy by proceedings before the justices and an injunction, only one could be adopted, and further, that there had been laches. It was held that it was lawful for the Attorney-General to take action, although there was also a statutory remedy; that as the offence was a continuing one, the Attorney-General could sue for an injunction, although proceedings had been taken before the justices; that, in fact, there had been no laches, and, there having been a breach of the statute, a mandatory injunction must be granted (Att.-Gen. v. Wimbledon House Estate Co., [1904] 2 Ch. 34; 68 J. P. 341; 42 Digest 753, 1779). In Att.-Gen. v. Denby, ante, p. 4779, the relator failed upon the question whether consent has been given by the local authority, but it does not seem to have been doubted by the court that an action by the Attorney-General would be ex. rel. a person aggrieved by the bringing forward of the building, if the local authority's consent had not been given or was (e.g., because the plans could not lawfully be passed) ineffective.

Section 1.

THE TOWN POLICE CLAUSES ACT, 1889.

(52 & 53 VICT. c. 14.)

An Act to amend the provisions relating to Hackney Carriages of the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847. [24th June, 1889.]

Whereas it is expedient to amend the provisions with respect to hackney carriages of the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, in this Act called the principal Act (a) :

10 & 11 Vict.
c. 89.
Short title.

10 & 11 Vict.
c. 89.

1. This Act may be cited as the Town Police Clauses Act, 1889, and this Act and the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, may be cited together as the Town Police Clauses Acts, 1847 and 1889 (a).

(a) Italicised words repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175). The Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, in so far as it was incorporated with the P. H. A., 1875, is set out, ante, p. 4222. The Act was repealed by the Road Traffic Act, 1930, s. 122, Sched. V. (23 Halsbury's Statutes 687, 695), and S. R. & O., 1931, No. 165 (24 Halsbury's Statutes 467), so far as it relates to public service vehicles; the expression "public service vehicle" is, however, in the Act of 1930 (23 Halsbury's Statutes 686) limited to motor vehicles (and not all motor vehicles, but the exceptions are not here material). The present Act is thus left standing so far as it relates to omnibuses drawn by animals or birds.

Construction of
Act.

2.—(1) This Act shall be construed as one with the principal Act, and the expression "this Act" in the principal Act shall be construed to mean the principal Act as amended by this Act.

38 & 39 Vict.
c. 55.

(2) This Act shall be deemed to be incorporated with the Public Health Act, 1875, by section one hundred and seventy-one of that Act (a).

(a) See this section, ante, p. 4458.

Defining "omnibus."

3. The term "omnibus" where used in this Act, shall include—

Every omnibus, char-à-banc, wagonette, brake, stage coach, and other carriage plying or standing for hire (a) by or used to carry passengers at separate fares to, from, or in any part of the prescribed distance (b); but shall not include—

33 & 34 Vict.
c. 78.

Any tramcar or tram carriage duly licensed under the provisions of the Tramways Act, 1870, or of any Provisional Order made thereunder and confirmed by Parliament, or under the provisions of any local Act of Parliament :

Any carriage starting from and previously hired for the particular passengers thereby carried at any livery stable yard (within the prescribed distance) whereat horses are stabled and carriages let for hire, the said carriage starting from the said stable yard and being bona fide the property of the occupier thereof, and not standing or plying for hire (c) within the prescribed distance :

Any omnibus belonging to or hired or used by any railway company for conveying passengers and their luggage to or from any railway station of that company, and not standing or plying for hire within the prescribed distance (d) :

Any omnibus starting from outside the prescribed distance, and bringing passengers within the prescribed distance, and not standing or plying for hire within the prescribed distance (e).

(a) The "standing for hire" may be on private ground (Birmingham & Midland Motor Omnibus Co. v. Thompson, [1918] 2 K. B. 105; 82 J. P. 213; 42 Digest 853, 76; Crack v. Holt (1927), 91 J. P. 36; 25 L. G. R. 114; 42 Digest 854, 82.

(b) The prescribed distance means within the urban district (see s. 171 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, 4458), or rural parish in which the urban powers have been declared to be in force by an order under s. 276 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4502, or s. 13 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 19.

(c) As to what amounts to standing or plying for hire, reference may be made to the cases cited in the notes to Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, c. 89, s. 38, ante, p. 4237. It is important to observe that the words are not, as in the older Act, "standing or plying for hire in a street." An omnibus may, therefore, be standing or plying for hire while it is on private property, such as a railway station. See Clarke v. Stanford (1871), L. R. 6 Q. B. 357; 35 J. P. 662; 42 Digest 853, 77; Allen v. Tunbridge (Trowbridge) (1871), L. R. 6 C. P. 481; 35 J. P. 695; 42 Digest 853, 78; Foinett v. Clark (1877), 41 J. P. 359; 42 Digest 854, 80; Skinner v. Usher (1872), L. R. 7 Q. B. 423; 36 J. P. 693; 42 Digest 861, 139; Curtis v. Embery (1872), L. R. 7 Exch. 369; 42 Digest 856, 93.

(d) It seems to follow from these words that to be within this exception the omnibus must not be allowed to stand about for hire by any one who may desire to use it, for it would then be standing or plying for hire; and that unless the Act is to apply the omnibus must be hired before it is brought out.

(e) An omnibus coming from one district will not be required to be licensed in another, though used for bringing passengers into the latter, unless it stands or plies for hire in the latter. An omnibus starting from outside the district and going to a point within the district where it waited from fifteen to twenty minutes for the purpose of taking up passengers, parcels, etc., for the return journey, was held not to come within the exception on the ground that it plied for hire within the district (Dewhurst v. Eddles (1893), 57 J. P. N. 373; 9 T. L. R. 494. And an omnibus which sometimes waited on the highway and sometimes commenced the return journey at once was held on the facts to be plying for hire and therefore not within the exception (R. v. Fletcher, Ex parte Ansonia (1908), 72 J. P. 249; 98 L. T. 749; 42 Digest 854, 84). See also Sales v. Lake, [1922] 1 K. B. 553; 86 J. P. 80; 42 Digest 855, 90; Armstrong v. Ogle, [1926] 2 K. R. 628; Digest Supp. The facts of these cases are set out at p. 4238, ante.

4.—(1) The several terms "hackney carriages," "hackney coach," "carriages," and "carriage," whenever used in sections thirty-seven, forty to fifty-two (both inclusive), fifty-four, fifty-eight, and sixty to sixty-seven (both inclusive) of the principal Act shall, notwithstanding anything contained in section thirty-eight of that Act, be deemed to include every omnibus (a).

Extending certain provisions of principal Act to omnibuses.

(2) The word "driver" or "drivers" when used in any of the said sections of the principal Act shall be deemed to include every conductor of any omnibus.

(3) For the purposes of sections fifty-four, fifty-eight, and sixty-six of the principal Act, the fare, according to the statement of fares exhibited on any omnibus, shall be deemed to be the fare allowed by the principal Act or authorised by any byelaw under that Act.

(a) See these sections, ante, pp. 4236 et seq. and, as regards "motor omnibuses" note (a) to s. 1 of the present Act, ante, p. 4784. Section 68 of the Act of 1847, ante, p. 4246, is not incorporated, and this is the section giving power to make byelaws for the purpose (inter alia) of fixing the fares to be paid for hackney carriages. It has been held that there is no power to fix fares with reference to omnibuses and that therefore a local authority is not entitled to refuse the renewal of a licence on the ground that the fares charged are excessive (R. v. Farnborough U. C., Ex parte Aldershot District Traction Co., Ltd., [1920] 1 K. B. 234; 83 J. P. 290; 42 Digest 857, 100). See, however, the comments on this case in R. v. Minister of Transport, Ex parte H. C. Motor Works, Ltd., [1927] 2 K. B. 401; 91 J. P. 83; 42 Digest 857, 101.

5. Any licence may be granted under the principal Act to continue in force for such less period than one year as the Commissioners may think fit, and shall specify in the licence (a).

Licences may be granted for short periods.

(a) See the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, s. 43, ante, p. 4239. The appeal against a local authority's refusal to grant a licence, where still appropriate under this Act (vide, note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4784), is to the Minister of Transport under sub-s. (3) of s. 14 of the Roads Act, 1920; 19 Halsbury's Statutes 98. (The marginal note to that section, given in the King's Printer's copy and therefore printed as a section heading in Halsbury's Statutes, is misleading). For public service vehicles the appeal as well as the licence now depends upon Part IV. of the Road Traffic Act, 1930; 23 Halsbury's Statutes 654.

6. The Commissioners may from time to time make byelaws (a) for all or Byelaws. any of the following purposes, that is to say :

For regulating the conduct (b) of the proprietors, drivers, and conductors of omnibuses plying within the prescribed distance in their several employments, and determining whether such drivers and conductors shall wear any and what badges :

Section 6.

For regulating the manner in which the number of each omnibus corresponding with the number of its licence shall be displayed :

For regulating the number of persons to be carried by such omnibus, and in what manner such number is to be shown thereon (c) :

For regulating the number and securing the fitness of the animals to be allowed to draw an omnibus, and for the removal therefrom of unfit animals :

For securing the fitness of the omnibus and the harness of the animals drawing the same :

For fixing the stands for omnibuses and the points at which they may stop a longer time than is necessary for the taking up and setting down of passengers desirous of entering or leaving the same :

For securing the safe custody and re-delivery of any property accidentally left in any omnibus, and fixing the charge to be made in respect thereof (d).

To provide for the carrying and the lighting of proper lamps for denoting the direction in which the omnibus is proceeding, and promoting the safety and convenience of the passengers carried thereby :

To provide for the exhibition on some conspicuous part of every omnibus of a statement in legible letters and figures of the fares to be demanded, and received from the persons using or carried for hire in such omnibus (e) :

To prevent within the prescribed distance—

- (a) the owner, driver, or conductor of any omnibus, or any other person on their or his behalf, by touting, calling out, or otherwise, from importuning any person to use or to be carried for hire in such omnibus, to the annoyance of such person or of any other person ;
- (b) the blowing of or playing upon horns or other musical instruments, or the ringing of bells, by the driver or conductor of any omnibus, or by any person travelling on or using any such omnibus.

Provided that nothing in this Act contained shall empower the Commissioners to fix the site of the stand of any omnibus in any railway station or in any yard adjoining or connected therewith, except with the consent of the railway company owning such site.

(a) Neither the L. G. B. nor the M. of H. ever issued model byelaws for purposes of this section, and for practical purposes the section is now otiose. The L. G. B. once expressed the view that byelaws could not be made for controlling the routes of omnibuses, and the Home Office were of opinion that this object could not be attained by a town council under the Municipal Corporation Acts. See, however, s. 14 (3) of the Roads Act, 1920, Vol. V., post, and R. v. Bradford Corporation, Ex parte Minister of Transport (1926), 90 J. P. 140; 135 L. T. 227 ; 42 Digest 856, 99, decided thereunder, which in spite of the alteration of the law by the Roads Act, 1930 (vide note (a) on s. 1, ante, p. 4784), may still apply to vehicles which are not public service vehicles, and also the London Traffic Act, 1924, Vol. V., post.

(b) The respondent was summoned for touting for a hackney carriage in a public thoroughfare contrary to a byelaw which provided : " A person shall not in any public thoroughfare in the district tout for a hackney carriage." He stood on a triangular piece of land at a street corner touting for hackney carriages, having received permission from the freeholders of the piece of land to stand on it for the purpose of his business. The piece of land was always open to the public, and the street (including the piece of land) had been declared a public highway. It was held that the fact that the piece of land on which the respondent stood belonged to private persons did not prevent his act from being an offence against the byelaw (Dereham v. Strickland (1911), 75 J. P. 300 ; 104 L. T. 820 ; 42 Digest 862, 144).

(c) Where byelaws made under this provision contained a byelaw that no greater number of passengers should be conveyed in " any omnibus " than the number specified and in the same and other byelaws contained provisions applicable only to horse-drawn omnibuses, it was held that the respondent was liable for a contravention of the byelaw in respect of a motor omnibus (Neal v. Guy, [1928] 2 K. B. 451; 92 J. P. 119; 42 Digest 858, 116). This case is, however, no longer good law: vide note (a) upon s. 1, ante, p. 4784. See also as to proceedings under the Railway Passenger Duty Act, 1842, for overcrowding omnibuses as stage carriages (Dennis v. Miles, [1924] 2 K. B. 399; 88 J. P. 105; 42 Digest 858, 115; Kirkby v. Minty, [1929] 2 K. B. 165; 93 J. P. 176; Digest Supp.; M'Kee v. Weir, [1929] S. C. (J.) 14; Digest Supp.).

(d) Up to this point there is little difference between the provisions of this section and those of the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, s. 68, ante, p. 4246. The byelaws under this section do not regulate the hours of employment, but, on the other hand, they may regulate the fitness of the horses and harness. The rest of the section is an addition to the previous law as to hackney carriages.

(e) This provision contemplates that the omnibus proprietors will themselves fix the fares, because, so far as fares are concerned, the power to make byelaws is limited to byelaws requiring the exhibition on the omnibus of a statement of the fares to be demanded (R. v. Farnborough U. C., Ex parte Aldershot District Traction Co., Ltd., ante, p. 4785).

Section 6.

THE ARBITRATION ACT, 1889.

(52 & 53 VICT. C. 49) (r).

An Act for amending and consolidating the Enactments relating to Arbitration.
[26th August 1889.]

This Act, by s. 24, post, p. 4793, applies to arbitrations under the P. H. A., save in so far as its provisions are inconsistent with those of s. 180 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4462, or s. 303 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 635. It also applies to arbitrations with regard to adjustments under the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 968. The notes are limited to an indication of the sections which do not apply to such arbitrations and to references to the chief decisions upon the Act. For full notes on the Act, see Yearly Supreme Court Practice, Vol. II. Arbitration as to compensation for the compulsory acquisition of land by a public authority is not subject to this Act but to the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, post, p. 5213.

REFERENCES BY CONSENT OUT OF COURT.

1. A submission, unless a contrary intention is expressed therein, shall be irrevocable, except by leave of the court or a judge, and shall have the same effect in all respects as if it had been made an order of court.

Submission to be irrevocable, and to have effect as an order of court.

Where there is an agreement to refer to three arbitrators, one to be appointed by each party and one by the two arbitrators so appointed, see the Arbitration Act, 1934, s. 4, Vol. V., post. As to revocation on account of bias, see In re Baring Bros. & Co. and Doulton & Co. (1892), 61 L. J. Q. B. 704; 2 Digest 392, 516; Eckersley v. Mersey Docks and Harbour Board, [1894] 2 Q. B. 667; 2 Digest 370, 362; In re Haigh and L. & N. W. Rail. Cos., [1896] 1 Q. B. 649; 2 Digest 550, 1818; or of misconduct, In re Brien, [1910] 2 I. R. 84; 2 Digest 447, 958 ii. An appeal from a judge at chambers giving leave to revoke a submission to arbitration lies to the Court of Appeal and not to a Divisional Court (In re Portland U. D. C. and Tilley & Co., [1896] 2 Q. B. 98; 2 Digest 393, 523); but see In re Frere and Staveley Taylor & Co. and North Shore Mill Co., Ltd., [1905] 1 K. B. 366; 2 Digest 459, 1052. The last-mentioned case was not followed in Simbro Trading Co., Ltd. v. Posograph (Parent) Corporation, Ltd., [1929] 2 K. B. 266; Digest Supp.

2. A submission, unless a contrary intention is expressed therein, shall be deemed to include the provisions set forth in the First Schedule to this Act, so far as they are applicable to the reference under the submission.

Provisions implied in submission.

See the notes to the First Schedule, post, p. 4794. This section was held to apply to all submissions, whether made before or after the passing of this Act (In re Williams and Stepney, [1891] 2 Q. B. 257; 2 Digest 585, 2185). See French Government v. Owners of S.S. Tsushima Maru (1921), 37 T. L. R. 961; Digest Supp., where a practice adopted in commercial arbitrations was upheld.

3. Where a submission provides that the reference shall be to an official referee, any official referee to whom application is made shall, subject to any order of the court or a judge as to transfer or otherwise, hear and determine the matters agreed to be referred.

Reference to official referee.

This section cannot apply to arbitrations under the P. H. Acts.

Section 4.

Powers to stay proceedings where there is a submission.

4. If any party to a submission, or any person claiming through or under him, commences any legal proceedings in any court against any other party to the submission, or any person claiming through or under him, in respect of any matter agreed to be referred, any party to such legal proceedings may at any time after appearance, and before delivering any pleadings or taking any other steps in the proceedings, apply to that court to stay the proceedings, and that court or a judge thereof if satisfied that there is no sufficient reason why the matter should not be referred in accordance with the submission, and that the applicant was, at the time when the proceedings were commenced, and still remains, ready and willing to do all things necessary to the proper conduct of the arbitration, may make an order staying the proceedings.

A county court judge has jurisdiction under this section to stay any legal proceedings in his court (Morrison Timplat Co. v. Brooker, Dore & Co., [1908] 1 K. B. 403; 2 Digest 361, 311). The court has a discretion to stay under this section (In re Carlisle, Clegg v. Clegg (1890), 44 Ch. D. 200; 2 Digest 371, 371; Barnes v. Youngs, [1898] 1 Ch. 414; 2 Digest 368, 356; Hodson v. Railway Passengers' Assurance, [1904] 2 K. B. 833; 29 Digest 402, 3186; Bonnin v. Neame, [1910] 1 Ch. 732; 2 Digest 365, 336; Aspell v. Seymour, [1929] W. N. 152 (assignees of contract)). Poverty of a plaintiff is not, by itself, a sufficient ground for refusing to order a stay (Smith v. Pearl Assurance Co., Ltd., [1939] 1 All E. R. 95; Digest Supp.). Where arbitration proceedings have proved abortive, the provisions of the section in the text would not be available. In an action brought upon a contract whereby the parties have provided for arbitration as a means of ascertaining the amount due under the contract, if arbitration proceedings have proved abortive it is the duty of the Court to supply the defect by itself ascertaining the amount due (Cameron v. Cuddy, [1914] A. C. 651; 2 Digest 382, 441). In Jureidini v. National Millers, etc. Co., Ltd., [1915] A. C. 499; 2 Digest 333, 146, it was held that the repudiation of a claim under a policy going to the root of the contract precluded the company from pleading the arbitration clause as a bar to an action to enforce the claim. Cf. Woodall v. Pearl Assurance Co., Ltd., [1919] 1 K. B. 593; Digest Supp., when Jureidini's case, supra, was distinguished. Where a question arises as to whether a contract containing an arbitration clause is alive or dead, it is in the Judge's discretion to say that it is not a proper question to be submitted to arbitration (Edward Grey & Co. v. Tolme (1914), 31 T. L. R. 137; 2 Digest 366, 343). The fact that an important question of law will have to be considered is not a sufficient reason for refusing a stay (Lock v. Army, etc. Assurance Association, Ltd. (1915), 31 T. L. R. 297; 2 Digest 371, 373). But see Clough v. County, etc. Association, Ltd. (1946), 32 T. L. R. 526; 2 Digest 367, 345. As to what amounts to a step in the proceedings, see Chappell v. North, [1891] 2 Q. B. 252; 2 Digest 362, 316; Brighton Marine Palace and Pier, Ltd. v. Woodhouse, [1893] 2 Ch. 486; 2 Digest 367, 347; Ives v. Willans, [1894] 2 Ch. 478; 2 Digest 370, 363; Adams v. Cailey (1892), 66 L. T. 687; 40 W. R. 570; 2 Digest 375, 396; Ford's Hotel Co. v. Bartlett, [1896] A. C. 1; 2 Digest 376, 406; Zalimoff v. Hammond, [1898] 2 Ch. 92; 2 Digest 376, 407; County Theatres and Hotels, Ltd. v. Knowles, [1902] 1 K. B. 480; 2 Digest 376, 399; Richardson v. Le Maître, [1903] 2 Ch. 222; 2 Digest 376, 400; Anglo-Newfoundland Development Co. v. The King, [1920] 2 K. B. 214; Digest Supp. Where a receiver is appointed, an order may be made staying all proceedings, except for the purpose of carrying out the order for a receiver (Pini v. Roncoroni, [1892] 1 Ch. 633; 2 Digest 367, 349), or the motion for a receiver may be ordered to stand over till the completion of the arbitration (Zalimoff v. Hammond, supra). Where there is an agreement to refer to three arbitrators, one to be appointed by each party and one by the two arbitrators so appointed, a judge at chambers has jurisdiction to stay under this section (Manchester Ship Canal Co. v. Pearson & Sons, Ltd., [1900] 2 Q. B. 606; 2 Digest 363, 326). Where works are constructed for a local authority under a contract which provides for the reference of disputes thereunder to an officer of the local authority, and the contractor sues the local authority on the contract, the court will not order the action to be stayed on the submission to arbitration, when the contractor charges the arbitrator with unreasonable conduct in relation to the works, and it appears that there is a substantial dispute between the parties as to the conduct of the arbitrator (Blackwell & Co., Ltd. v. Derby Corporation (1909), 75 J. P. 129; 2 Digest 370, 365). And see Freeman & Sons v. Chester R. D. C., [1911] 1 K. B. 783; 75 J. P. 132; 2 Digest 370, 366; Bristol Corporation v. Aird & Co., [1913] A. C. 241; 77 J. P. 209; 2 Digest 370, 367; Doleman & Sons v. Ossett Corporation, [1912] 3 K. B. 257; 76 J. P. 457; 2 Digest 353, 278; Metropolitan Tunnel and Public Works v. London Electric Railway Co., [1926] Ch. 371; 135 L. T. 35; Digest Supp. See also Monro v. Bognor U. D. C., [1915] 3 K. B. 187; 79 J. P. 286; 2 Digest 347, 237, where an action was brought for fraudulently inducing plaintiff to enter into a contract containing an arbitration clause. The Court held that the dispute was not one "upon or in relation to or in connection with the contract" within the meaning of the arbitration clause, and that the defendants were not entitled to have the proceedings stayed.

Note to

A sewerage contract provided that no claim for extras should be allowed unless submitted to the engineers within a given time; that the engineers should be sole judges as to the method of carrying out the works, and the materials to be used in their construction; and that in case of any dispute arising at any time whether during the progress of the works or after completion, as to certain specified matters not including extras, and as to all other matters therein left to the decision of the engineers, their decision should be final and binding on all parties. It was held that a claim for extras was not within the scope of the arbitration clause, and consequently that an action by the contractor for the amount of the claim ought to be allowed to proceed (Taylor v. Western Valleys (Monmouthshire) Sewerage Board (1911), 75 J. P. 409; 2 Digest 373, 384). See also Beattie v. Beattie, Ltd., post, p. 4794.

This section has no application to arbitrations under the P. H. A., 1875, s. 180, ante, p. 4462, but it will apply to arbitration clauses in contracts with sanitary authorities. See Nuttall v. Manchester Corporation (1892), 8 T. L. R. 513; 2 Digest 369, 361.

5. In any of the following cases :

- (a) Where a submission provides that the reference shall be to a single arbitrator, and all the parties do not after differences have arisen concur in the appointment of an arbitrator (a) :
- (b) If an appointed arbitrator refuses to act, or is incapable of acting, or dies, and the submission does not show that it was intended that the vacancy should not be supplied, and the parties do not supply the vacancy (b) :
- (c) Where the parties or two arbitrators are at liberty to appoint an umpire or third arbitrator [or where two arbitrators are required to appoint an umpire (c)] and do not appoint him (d) :
- (d) Where an appointed umpire or third arbitrator refuses to act, or is incapable of acting, or dies, and the submission does not show that it was intended that the vacancy should not be supplied, and the parties or arbitrators do not supply the vacancy (d) :

Power for the court in certain cases to appoint an arbitrator, umpire, or third arbitrator.

any party may serve the other parties or the arbitrators, as the case may be, with a written notice to appoint an arbitrator, umpire, or third arbitrator.

If the appointment is not made within seven clear days after the service of the notice, the court or a judge may (e), on application by the party who gave the notice, appoint an arbitrator, umpire, or third arbitrator, who shall have the like powers to act in the reference and make an award as if he had been appointed by consent of all parties.

(a) This cannot apply to arbitrations under s. 180 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4462. It seems, however, to be applicable to arbitrations in respect of adjustments under s. 151 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 962, or s. 303 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 635.

(b) This cannot apply in cases under the P. H. A., 1875, s. 180, ante, p. 4462. See as to the effect of the clause, In re Wilson & Son and Eastern Counties Navigation and Transport Co., [1892] 1 Q. B. 81; 2 Digest 331, 137.

(c) These words were added by the Arbitration Act, 1934, s. 5 (1) (27 Halsbury's Statutes 30).

(d) This cannot apply to arbitrations under the P. H. A., 1875. See s. 180 (7), ante, p. 4463.

(e) In ordinary cases this is equivalent to must (In re Eyre and the Corporation of Leicester, [1892] 1 Q. B. 136; 56 J. P. 228; 2 Digest 409, 629). The court has a discretion, however, and may in a proper case refuse to make an appointment except upon terms (In re Bjornstad and The Ouse Shipping Co., [1924] 2 K. B. 673; 131 L. T. 663; Digest Supp.). See as to procedure under this section, Taylor v. Denny, Mott and Dickson, Ltd., [1912] A. C. 666; 76 J. P. 417; 2 Digest 408, 631, and as to appeals from the master and the judge, Miller, Gibb & Co. v. Smith and Tyrer, Ltd., [1916] 1 K. B. 419; 2 Digest 408, 630.

6. Where a submission provides that the reference shall be to two arbitrators, one to be appointed by each party, then, unless the submission expresses a contrary contention—

- (a) If either of the appointed arbitrators refuses to act, or is incapable of acting, or dies, the party who appointed him may appoint a new arbitrator in his place (7) ;

Section 6.

- (b) If, on such a reference, one party fails to appoint an arbitrator, either originally or by way of substitution as aforesaid, for seven clear days after the other party, having appointed his arbitrator, has served the party making default with notice to make the appointment, the party who has appointed an arbitrator may appoint that arbitrator to act as sole arbitrator in the reference, and his award shall be binding on both parties as if he had been appointed by consent.

Provided that the court or a judge may set aside any appointment made in pursuance of this section (b).

(a) A similar provision is contained in P. H. A., 1875, s. 180 (5), ante, p. 4463.

(b) An appointment under s. 180 (5) will not, apparently, be made in pursuance of this section, though the effect of the two provisions is similar.

Powers of arbitrator.

7. The arbitrators or umpire acting under a submission shall, unless the submission expresses a contrary intention, have power—

- (a) To administer oaths to or take the affirmations of the parties and witnesses appearing (a) ; and
 (b) To state an award as to the whole or part thereof in the form of a special case for the opinion of the court (b) ; and
 (c) To correct in an award any clerical mistake or error arising from any accidental slip or omission (c).

(a) See P. H. A., 1875, s. 180 (12), ante, p. 4464.

(b) This paragraph is repealed by the Arbitration Act, 1934, s. 21 (6), Sched. III. (27 Halsbury's Statutes 37, 38) ; and see ibid., s. 9 (1) (27 Halsbury's Statutes 32). The paragraph had previously been excluded by the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932, s. 40 (4), ante, p. 1969.

(c) As to what is an "accidental slip or omission," see Sutherland & Co. v. Hanmerig Bros., Ltd., [1921] 1 K. B. 336 ; 37 T. L. R. 102 ; Digest Supp.

Witnesses may be summoned by subpoena.

8. Any party to a submission may sue out a writ of subpoena ad testificandum, or a writ of subpoena duces tecum, but no person shall be compelled under any such writ to produce any document which he could not be compelled to produce on the trial of an action.

This section will apply to an arbitration under P. H. A., 1875, s. 180, ante, p. 4462.

Power to enlarge time for making award.

9. The time for making an award may from time to time be enlarged by order of the court or a judge, whether the time for making the award has expired or not.

This section enables the court to enlarge the time beyond the two months limited by s. 180 (9) of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4463 (Knowles & Sons, Ltd. v. Bolton Corporation, [1900] 2 Q. B. 253 ; 2 Digest 420, 722).

Power to remit award.

10.—(1) In all cases of reference to arbitration the court or a judge may from time to time remit the matters referred, or any of them, to the reconsideration of the arbitrators or umpire.

(2) Where an award is remitted, the arbitrators or umpire shall, unless the order otherwise directs, make their award within three months after the date of the order.

This section will, apparently, apply to an arbitration under s. 180 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4462. The court may, under this section, remit an award upon the ground that fresh evidence has been discovered since the award was made, although the arbitrator does not join in asking the court to remit it. Such evidence need not be strictly legal evidence, though it must be such as may affect the arbitrator's decision (In re Keighley, Maxsted & Co. and Durant & Co., [1893] 1 Q. B. 405 ; 2 Digest 563, 1949). Under this section matters may be remitted for reconsideration, although the arbitrator, having made his award, is functus officio (In re Stringer and Riley Brothers, [1901] 1 K. B. 105 ; 2 Digest 562, 1947).

11.—(1) Where an arbitrator or umpire has misconducted himself [or Section 11. the proceedings], the court may remove him.

(2) Where an arbitrator or umpire has misconducted himself [or the proceedings], or an arbitration or award has been improperly procured, the court may set the award aside. Power to set aside award.

The words in square brackets were added by the Arbitration Act, 1934, s. 15 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 34). See also ibid., s. 3, as to the court's powers.

As to misconduct, see In re Kenworthy and Queen Insurance Co. (1893), 9 T. L. R. 181; In re Gregson and Armstrong (1894), 70 L. T. 106; 10 R. 408; 2 Digest 447, 956; In re Palmer & Co. and Hosken & Co., [1898] 1 Q. B. 131; 2 Digest 456, 1037; Schofield v. Allen (1904), 116 L. T. N. 239; 48 Sol. Jo. 176; 2 Digest 412, 647; In re Enoch and Zaretsky, Bock & Co., [1910] 1 K. B. 327; 2 Digest 434, 840; Buerger & Co. v. Barnett (1919), 35 T. L. R. 260; Digest Supp. The order setting aside the award is an interlocutory and not a final order (Re Croasdel and Cammell, Laird & Co., [1906] 2 K. B. 569; 2 Digest 462, 1083). Leave to appeal from an order of the Divisional Court setting aside an award is not necessary (Ruf v. Pauwels, [1919] 1 K. B. 660; 83 J. P. 150; Digest Supp.). An application to set aside an award may be made to a single judge and need not be made to the Divisional Court (Produce Brokers, Ltd. v. Blyth, Greene, Jourdain & Co., Ltd. (1918), 34 T. L. R. 419; 16 Digest 180, 851).

12. An award on a submission may, by leave of the court or a judge, be enforced in the same manner as a judgment or order to the same effect. Enforcing award.

In some cases this section may also apply, as it affords another remedy in addition to that given by s. 180 (14) of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4464. But an award under s. 150 of that Act, ante, p. 4388, cannot be enforced under this section (In re Willesden L. B. and Wright, [1896] 2 Q. B. 412; 60 J. P. 708; 2 Digest 567, 1933). Summons to enforce an award under s. 12 cannot be served upon a foreigner resident out of the jurisdiction (Rasch & Co. v. Wulfert, [1904] 1 K. B. 118; 2 Digest 567, 1935). An appeal from an order of a judge at chambers under this section lies direct to the Court of Appeal, and not to a Divisional Court (Re Colman and Watson, [1908] 1 K. B. 47; 2 Digest 568, 1986). An award against the Crown in an arbitration under this Act will not be enforced by the court under this section (Grech v. Board of Trade (1923), 92 L. J. K. B. 956; 130 L. T. 15; Digest Supp.).

REFERENCES UNDER ORDER OF COURT.

The sections in this part which were repealed by and re-enacted in the Supreme Court of Judicature (Consolidation) Act, 1925 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 146), apply only to references by the court, and not to arbitrations under s. 180 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4462. They will, however, apply to actions by or against sanitary authorities. The sections here set out are the corresponding provisions of the 1925 Act. Section 97 of that Act (13 Halsbury's Statutes 234) provides that in these sections "court" means the High Court and "reference" means a reference under an order made by the court or a judge under ss. 88—97 (op. cit. 230—234).

13 [S. 88, 1925].—(1) Subject to Rules of Court and to any right to have particular cases tried by a jury, the court or a judge may refer to an official or special referee for inquiry or report any question arising in any cause or matter (other than a criminal proceeding by the Crown). Reference for report.

(2) The report of an official or special referee may be adopted wholly or partially by the court or a judge, and if so adopted may be enforced as a judgment or order to the same effect.

14 [S. 89, 1925]. In any cause or matter, other than a criminal proceeding by the Crown,— Power to refer in certain cases.

- (a) If all the parties interested who are not under disability consent: or,
- (b) If the cause or matter requires any prolonged examination of documents or any scientific or local investigation which cannot in the opinion of the court or a judge conveniently be made before a jury, or conducted by the court through its other ordinary officers: or
- (c) If the question in dispute consists wholly or in part of matters of account (a);

Section 14. the court or a judge may at any time order the whole cause or matter, or any question or issue of fact arising therein, to be tried before a special referee or arbitrator respectively agreed on by the parties, or before an official referee or officer of the court (b).

(a) This applies where the main, although not the only, question in dispute is a matter of account (Hurlbutt v. Barnett, [1893] 1 Q. B. 77; 2 Digest 623, 2522).

(b) Where an action has been referred for trial under this section, the court or a judge still retains the power, and the referee or arbitrator has also jurisdiction, to order inspection of property. As a general rule, the most convenient course is to apply to the referee or arbitrator in the first instance (Macalpine v. Calder, [1893] 1 Q. B. 545; 2 Digest 629, 2559). An appeal lies to the Court of Appeal (without leave) from an order of the High Court refusing to order a new trial (Munday v. Norton, [1892] 1 Q. B. 403; 2 Digest 633, 2601).

Powers and remuneration of referees and arbitrators.

15 [S. 90, 1925].—(1) In all cases of reference to an official or special referee or arbitrator, the official or special referee or arbitrator shall be deemed to be an officer of the court, and, subject to Rules of Court (a), shall have such authority, and conduct the reference in such manner, as the court or a judge may direct.

(2) The report or award of an official or special referee or arbitrator on any reference shall, unless set aside by the court or a judge, be equivalent to the verdict of a jury (b).

(3) The remuneration to be paid to any special referee or arbitrator to whom any matter is referred under an order of the court or a judge shall be determined by the court or a judge (c).

(a) See R. S. C., Order XXXVI., rr. 45 et seq.

(b) As to the power of the court under this sub-section, see Darlington Wagon Co. v. Harding and Trouville Pier and Steamboat Co., [1891] 1 Q. B. 245; 2 Digest 631, 2580. As to its effect on costs, see Carr Brothers v. Dougherty (1898), 67 L. J. Q. B. 371; 14 T. L. R. 237; 2 Digest 604, 2353. The sub-section does not apply where an action is stayed and arbitration directed under a submission by the parties (Warburg v. McKerrow (1904), 90 L. T. 644; 2 Digest 604, 2352).

(c) As to the right of the arbitrator to recover fees, see Willis v. Wakeley Brothers (1891), 7 T. L. R. 604; 2 Digest 427, 779.

Court to have powers as in references by consent.

16 [S. 91, 1925]. The court or a judge shall, in relation to references, have all such powers as are conferred by the Arbitration Act, 1889, on the court or a judge as to references by consent out of court.

Court of Appeal to have powers of court.

17 [S. 92, 1925]. The Court of Appeal shall have all such powers as are conferred by the provisions of this Part of this Act on the court or a judge in relation to references.

GENERAL.

Power to compel attendance of witness in any part of the United Kingdom and to order habeas corpus to issue.

18.—(1) The court or a judge may order that a writ of subpoena ad testificandum or of subpoena duces tecum shall issue to compel the attendance before an official or special referee, or before any arbitrator or umpire, of a witness wherever he may be within the United Kingdom.

(2) The court or a judge may also order that a writ of habeas corpus ad testificandum shall issue to bring up a prisoner for examination before an official or special referee, or before any arbitrator or umpire.

This section and ss. 19, 20, and 23 are repealed by the Act of 1925 in so far as they relate to references under an Order of the High Court. Corresponding provisions in relation to such references are contained in ss. 93, 94, 95, and 96 of the 1925 Act (13 Halsbury's Statutes 233).

This section will apply to arbitrations under the P. H. A., 1875, s. 180, ante, p. 4462.

19. [Statement of case pending arbitration.]

Repealed by the Arbitration Act, 1934, s. 21 (6), Sched. III.; 27 Halsbury's Statutes 37, 38. See now ibid., s. 9 (2); 27 Halsbury's Statutes 32.

20. Any order made under this Act may be made on such terms as to costs Section 20 or otherwise, as the authority making the order thinks just.

See note to s. 18, ante, p. 4792.

Costs.

See Re Knight and Tabernacle Permanent Building Society, [1892] 2 Q. B. 613; 57 J. P. 229; 2 Digest 459, 1056, and R. S. C., Order LXV. And see also Gray v. Lord Ashburton, [1917] A. C. 26; 81 J. P. 17; 2 Digest 585, 2187.

21. Provision may from time to time be made by Rules of Court for conferring on any master, or other officer of the Supreme Court, all or any of the jurisdiction conferred by this Act on the court or a judge. Exercise of powers by masters and other officers.

This section was repealed by s. 29 and Sched. V. of the Administration of Justice Act, 1925 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 142, 144). See now Supreme Court of Judicature (Consolidation) Act, 1925, s. 99 (1) (d) (13 Halsbury's Statutes 234). The existing rules are continued in force by s. 226 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 201). See R. S. C., Order LIV., r. 12A, the effect of which is that any application under this Act can be dealt with by a Master, except applications under s. 11, ante, p. 4791, to remove an arbitrator or to set aside the award.

22. [Penalty for perjury.]

Repealed: see now the Perjury Act, 1911 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 772). If the evidence be merely prepared though not used, it is an indictable misdemeanor (R. v. Vreones, [1891] 1 Q. B. 360; 55 J. P. 536; 15 Digest 695, 7487).

23. This Act shall, except as in this Act expressly mentioned, apply to any arbitration to which her Majesty the Queen, either in right of the Crown, or of the Duchy of Lancaster or otherwise, or the Duke of Cornwall, is a party, but nothing in this Act shall empower the court or a judge to order any proceedings to which her Majesty or the Duke of Cornwall is a party, or any question or issue in any such proceedings, to be tried before any referee, arbitrator, or officer without the consent of her Majesty or the Duke of Cornwall, as the case may be, or shall affect the law as to costs payable by the Crown. Crown to be bound.

See note to s. 18, ante, p. 4792.

See Anglo-Newfoundland Development Co. v. The King, [1920] 2 K. B. 214; Digest Supp.; Grech v. Board of Trade (1923), 92 L. J. K. B. 956; Digest Supp.; and R. v. Minister of Labour, [1924] 2 K. B. at p. 219; 88 J. P. at p. 133.

The words in italics were repealed by the Administration of Justice (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1933, s. 10 (3) (26 Halsbury's Statutes 92). As to costs in Crown proceedings, see now ibid., s. 7 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 91).

24. This Act shall apply to every arbitration under any Act passed before or after the commencement of this Act, as if the arbitration were pursuant to a submission, except in so far as this Act is inconsistent with the Act regulating the arbitration or with any rules or procedure authorised or recognised by that Act. Application of Act to references under statutory powers.

For the effect of this section, see the headnote to this Act, ante, p. 4787, and In re Willesden L. B. and Wright, ante, p. 4791; and see Murray v. Dalton (1920), 37 T. L. R. 234; Digest Supp.

This section is excluded in a number of arbitrations directed by statute, most of which are not within the scope of this work. See, however, s. 40 (4) of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932, ante, p. 1969.

25. [Saving for pending arbitrations.]

26.—(1) [Repeal of enactments in Second Schedule.]

(2) Any enactment or instrument referring to any enactment repealed by this Act shall be construed as referring to this Act.

27. In this Act, unless the contrary intention appears,— “Submission” means a written agreement to submit present or future differences to arbitration, whether an arbitrator is named therein or not (a).

Definitions.

Section 27.

“Court” means her Majesty’s High Court of Justice.

“Judge” means a judge of her Majesty’s High Court of Justice.

“Rules of Court” means the rules of the Supreme Court made by the proper authority under the Judicature Acts.

(a) The appointment of the arbitrators under s. 180 of the P. H. A., 1875, is to be deemed a submission. See sub-s. (2) of that section, ante, p. 4463. The fact that a person is appointed a director of a company whose articles provide that disputes between members and the company shall be referred to arbitration, is not a written agreement for submission (Beattie v. Beattie, Ltd., [1938] Ch. 708; [1938] 3 All E. R. 214; Digest Supp.).

For the construction of this definition, see Caerleon Tinplate Co. v. Hughes (1891), 60 L. J. Q. B. 640; 65 L. T. 118; 2 Digest 315, 23; Baker v. Yorkshire Fire and Life Assurance Co., [1892] 1 Q. B. 144; 2 Digest 315, 24; Aitken v. Bachelor (Batchelor) (1893), 62 L. J. Q. B. 193; 68 L. T. 530; 2 Digest 315, 25; Austrian Lloyd Steamship Co. v. Gresham Life Assurance Society, [1903] 1 K. B. 249; 2 Digest 364, 329; Hickman v. Kent, etc. Association, [1915] 1 Ch. 881; 2 Digest 315, 26; Anglo-Newfoundland Development Co. v. The King, [1920] 2 K. B. 214; 84 J. P. 121; Digest Supp.; Clements v. County of Devon Insurance Committee, [1918] 1 K. B. 94; 82 J. P. 71; Lobitos Oilfields, Ltd. v. Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty (1917), 33 T. L. R. 472; 2 Digest 458, 1050. “Future” differences do not include differences arising after the order for arbitration is made; per Lord HALSBURY, C., in London and N. W. and G. W. Joint Rail. Cos. v. Billington, [1899] A. C. 79, at p. 81. But all matters material and incidental to the differences within the submission are within the scope of the arbitration (Midland Rail. Co. v. Loseby and Carnley, [1899] A. C. 133; 8 Digest 206, 1319).

Extent.

28. This Act shall not extend to Scotland or Ireland.

29. [Commencement of Act, January 1, 1890.]

Short title.

30. This Act may be cited as the Arbitration Act, 1889.

SCHEDULES.

THE FIRST SCHEDULE.

PROVISIONS TO BE IMPLIED IN SUBMISSIONS.

a. If no other mode of reference is provided, the reference shall be to a single arbitrator (a).

b. [If the reference is to two arbitrators, the two arbitrators shall appoint an umpire immediately after they are themselves appointed (b).]

c. [Repealed by the Arbitration Act, 1934, s. 21 (6), Sched. III.; 27 Halsbury’s Statutes 37, 38.]

d. If the arbitrators have allowed their time or extended time to expire without making an award, or have delivered to any party to the submission, or to the umpire a notice in writing, stating that they cannot agree, the umpire may forthwith enter on the reference in lieu of the arbitrators (c).

e. [Repealed by the Arbitration Act, 1934, s. 21 (6), Sched. III.; 27 Halsbury’s Statutes 37, 38.]

f. The parties to the reference, and all persons claiming through them respectively, shall, subject to any legal objection, submit to be examined by the arbitrators or umpire, on oath or affirmation, in relation to the matters in dispute, and shall, subject as aforesaid, produce before the arbitrators or umpire, all books, deeds, papers, accounts, writings, and documents within their possession or power respectively which may be required or called for, and do all other things which during the proceedings on the reference the arbitrators or umpire may require (d).

g. The witnesses on the reference shall, if the arbitrators or umpire thinks fit, be examined on oath or affirmation (d).

h. The award to be made by the arbitrators or umpire shall be final and binding on the parties and the persons claiming under them respectively (e).

i. The costs of the reference and award shall be in the discretion of the arbitrators or umpire, who may direct to and by whom and in what manner those costs or any part thereof shall be paid, and may tax or settle the amount of costs to be so paid or any part thereof, and may award costs to be paid as between solicitor and client (f).

j. [The arbitrators or umpire shall have the same power as the court to order specific performance of any contract other than a contract relating to land or any interest in land (g).]

Schedules.

k. [The arbitrators or umpire may, if they think fit, make an interim award (g).]

THE SECOND SCHEDULE (h).

* * * * *

(a) This clause does not apply to arbitrations under the P. H. A., 1875, having regard to s. 180 (7), ante, p. 4463. It seems, however, applicable to arbitrations as to adjustments under s. 151 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 962, or the P. H. A., 1936, s. 303, ante, p. 635.

(b) This clause was substituted for the original by the Arbitration Act, 1934, s. 5 (1) (27 Halsbury's Statutes 30).

(c) The words in italics were repealed by the Arbitration Act, 1934, s. 21 (4), Sched. III. (27 Halsbury's Statutes 37, 38). See ibid., s. 6 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 31). See also P. H. A., 1875, s. 180 (8), and the note thereto, ante, p. 4463.

(d) These clauses slightly extend the powers conferred by P. H. A., 1875, s. 180 (12). This clause empowers the arbitrator to require discovery of documents and answers to interrogatories (Kursell v. Timber Operators and Contractors, [1923] 2 K. B. 202; 87 J. P. 79; Digest Supp.). As to the application of Schedule I. (f) to an arbitration to which a minister of the Crown is a party, see Re La Societe les Affreteurs Reunis & The Shipping Controller, [1921] 3 K. B. 1; Digest Supp. As to the competence of an arbitrator as a witness before the umpire, see Bourgeois v. Weddell & Co., [1924] 1 K. B. 539; 130 L. T. 635; Digest Supp.

(e) See similar provisions in P. H. A., 1875, s. 180 (15), ante, p. 4464.

(f) This extends the powers given to the arbitrators by P. H. A., 1875, s. 180 (13), ante, p. 4464. Where an arbitrator in making his award deals with the costs of the award and his own personal costs, but does not mention the costs of the parties to the reference, the court will not presume that he has exercised his discretion to make no order as to costs, or to leave each side to pay their own costs, but will remit the award to the arbitrator to exercise his discretion in express terms (Re Becker, Shillan & Co. & Barry Brothers, [1921] 1 K. B. 391; Digest Supp.). By Arbitration Act, 1934, s. 12 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 33), the arbitrator or umpire must direct by whom the costs are to be paid.

The amount of the costs must be stated in the award, otherwise the costs of the reference and award, including the arbitrator's fees, are liable to taxation in the ordinary course (In re Prebble and Robinson, [1892] 2 Q. B. 602; 57 J. P. 54; 2 Digest 424, 752). Where taxation is necessary the Taxing Master may reduce the fee charged for the award (Re Frank James & Sons, [1903] W. N. 99; 2 Digest 425, 769). The award must not be so stated as to exclude the right of the parties to challenge the amount of the fees charged by the arbitrator for his services, as by including them in a lump sum for costs (Re Gilbert and Wright (1904), 68 J. P. 143; 20 T. L. R. 164; 2 Digest 424, 753). If the arbitrators are not to have power over the costs of the award they must be expressly excluded from the submission (Re Walker and Brown (1882), 9 Q. B. D. 434; 2 Digest 599, 2306), so also as to the costs of negotiating and preparing the submission (Re Autothreptic Steam Boiler Co. (1888), 21 Q. B. D. 182; 2 Digest 599, 2307). Where the parties have agreed that costs on the High Court scale shall be paid by the unsuccessful party to an arbitration and such agreement is not communicated to the arbitrator who in his award directs that each party shall pay his own costs an action to enforce the agreement will lie (Mansfield v. Robinson, [1928] 2 K. B. 353; 92 J. P. 126; Digest Supp.). Costs of a special case under s. 19, ante, p. 4792, fall under the provisions of this Schedule unless the court deals with them when the order for a special case is made (Re Knight and Tabernacle Permanent Building Society, [1892] 2 Q. B. 613; 57 J. P. 229; 2 Digest 459, 1056). The bill of a solicitor employed by the arbitrator in preparing the award may be taxed under s. 38 of the Solicitors Act, 1843 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 858), where the amount has been paid on taking up the award (Re Collyer-Bristow & Co., [1901] 2 K. B. 839; 2 Digest 426, 770). See also generally as to taxation the judgment of FARWELL, L.J., in Re Cannings, Ltd., and Middlesex C. C., [1907] 1 K. B., at p. 57; 71 J. P. 46. Where a whole cause is referred to a special referee for trial, and the referee awards that one of the parties recover against the other the costs of the action, such costs include the costs of the reference (Patten v. West of England Iron, Timber, and Charcoal Co., [1894] 2 Q. B. 159; 58 J. P. 400; 2 Digest 597, 2290). As to reviewing taxation, see Malvern U. D. C. v. Malvern Link Gas Co. (1900), 83 L. T. 326; 2 Digest 608, 2388. As to the recovery of arbitrators' fees by action, see Llandrindod Wells Water Co. v. Hawksley (1904), 68 J. P. 242; 20 T. L. R. 241; 2 Digest 428, 787; Brown v. Llandoverly Terra Cotta Co., Ltd. (1909), 25 T. L. R. 625; 2 Digest 427, 778.

(g) This paragraph was added by the Arbitration Act, 1934, s. 7 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 31).

(h) This schedule of enactments repealed (itself repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175), included Arbitration, 1698; Civil Procedure Act, 1833, ss. 30—41; the Common Law Procedure Act, 1854, ss. 3—17 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 176—179); the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1873, ss. 56 (part), 57, 58, 59; the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1884, ss. 9—11.

Section 1.

THE PUBLIC BODIES CORRUPT PRACTICES
ACT, 1889.

(52 & 53 VICT. c. 69 (a).)

An Act for the more effectual Prevention and Punishment of Bribery and Corruption of and by Members, Officers, or Servants of Corporations, Councils, Boards, Commissions, or other Public Bodies.

[30th August 1889.]

Whereas it is expedient more effectually to provide for the prevention and punishment of bribery and corruption of and by members, officers, or servants of corporations, councils, boards, commissions, and other public bodies :

(a) This Act with the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1906, post, p. 5027, and the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1916, post, p. 5164, are to be cited together as the Prevention of Corruption Acts, 1889 to 1916.

Corruption in office a misdemeanor.

1.—(1) Every person who shall by himself or by or in conjunction with any other person, corruptly solicit or receive, or agree to receive (a), for himself, or for any other person, any gift, loan, fee, reward, or advantage (b) whatever as an inducement to, or reward for, or otherwise on account of any member, officer, or servant of a public body as in this Act defined (b), doing or forbearing to do anything in respect of any matter or transaction whatsoever, actual or proposed, in which the said public body is concerned, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor (c).

(a) This sub-section applies to the person bribed or corrupted; the next deals with the person bribing. It was held not necessary on an indictment under this sub-section to prove that the accused was himself a member, officer, or servant of a public body as defined by the Act, the alleged offence being an attempt to obtain a sum of money for abstaining, or inducing other persons to abstain, from giving evidence on an application to the London County Council for a music and dancing licence (R. v. Edwards (1895), 59 J. P. 88).

(b) For the definition of advantage, public body, etc., see s. 7, post, p. 4799.

(c) This misdemeanour may be tried on indictment at quarter sessions (s. 6, post, p. 4799). The penalty is prescribed by s. 2.

Reference should also be made to the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1906, post, p. 5027, which provides for the punishment of corrupt transactions with "agents," a term which includes persons serving under any corporation or any borough, county, or district council or any board of guardians.

It should be mentioned that it is a misdemeanor at common law for a public officer, whether judicial or ministerial, to accept a bribe as an inducement to him to show favour or forbear to show disfavour to any person towards whom the impartial discharge of the officer's duty demands that he should show no favour or that he should show disfavour. It is also a misdemeanor at common law for such an officer to conspire with others that he shall receive such a bribe (R. v. Whitaker, [1914] 3 K. B. 1283; 79 J. P. 28; 32 Digest 136, 1002).

(2) Every person (a) who shall by himself or by or in conjunction with any other person corruptly give, promise, or offer any gift, loan, fee, reward, or advantage (b) whatsoever to any person, whether for the benefit of that person or of another person, as an inducement to or reward for or otherwise on account of any member, officer, or servant of any public body as in this Act defined (b), doing or forbearing to do anything in respect of any matter or transaction whatsoever, actual or proposed, in which such public body as aforesaid is concerned, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor (c). Section 1.

(a) The word "person" includes a body of persons, such as a firm or joint stock company. See s. 7, post, p. 4799.

(b) See the definition of advantage, public body, etc., in s. 7.

(c) See note (c) to the preceding sub-section.

2. Any person on conviction for offending as aforesaid shall, at the discretion of the court before which he is convicted (a)— Penalty for offences.

- (a) be liable to be imprisoned for any period not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour, or to pay a fine not exceeding five hundred pounds, or to both such imprisonment and such fine (b); and
- (b) in addition, be liable to be ordered to pay to such body (c), and in such manner as the court directs, the amount or value of any gift, loan, fee, or reward received by him or any part thereof; and
- (c) be liable to be adjudged incapable of being elected or appointed to any public office (d) for seven years from the date of his conviction, and to forfeit any such office held by him at the time of his conviction; and
- (d) in the event of a second conviction for a like offence he shall, in addition to the foregoing penalties, be liable to be adjudged to be for ever incapable of holding any public office (d), and to be incapable for seven years of being registered as an elector, or voting at an election either of members to serve in Parliament or of members of any public body, and the enactments for preventing the voting and registration of persons declared by reason of corrupt practices to be incapable of voting shall apply to a person adjudged in pursuance of this section to be incapable of voting (e); and
- (e) if such person is an officer or servant in the employ of any public body upon such conviction (f) he shall, at the discretion of the court, be liable to forfeit his right and claim to any compensation or pension to which he would otherwise have been entitled.

(a) The court will be either the court of quarter sessions (see s. 6, post, p. 4799), or the assizes, or Central Criminal Court. The offence is not punishable summarily.

(b) A person convicted on indictment for a misdemeanor under this Act shall, where the matter or transaction in relation to which the offence was committed was a contract or proposal for a contract with His Majesty or any government department or any public body, or a sub-contract to execute any work comprised in such a contract, be liable to penal servitude for a term not exceeding three years: provided that nothing in the section in recital shall prevent the infliction in addition to penal servitude of such punishment as under the above section may be inflicted in addition to imprisonment, or prevent the infliction in lieu of penal servitude of any punishment which may be inflicted under the section or under the Act of 1906, post, p. 5027, already mentioned in the note to the preamble. See the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1916, s. 1, post, p. 5164.

(c) That is, the public body, as defined by s. 7, post, p. 4799, of which he is a member, an officer, or a servant.

Note to
Section 2.

(d) As to what is a public office, see s. 7, post, p. 4799. Reference might be made to the case of the West Ham Guardians and Officials, where orders were made under clauses (c) and (d) of this section (71 J. P. N. 245).

(e) By the Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883, s. 37, ante, p. 4692, every person who, in consequence of conviction, or of the report of an election court under that Act, or the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, Part IV., ante, p. 4626, or under any other Act for the time being in force, relating to corrupt practices at an election for any public office, has become incapable of voting at any election, whether a parliamentary election or an election to any public office, is prohibited from voting at any such election, and his vote shall be void. By s. 39 of the Act the registration officer (i.e., the clerk of the county council or town clerk) in every county and borough is required annually to make out a list of persons disqualified to vote by reason of corrupt practices. By the Representation of the People Act, 1918, Sched. I., r. 8, post, p. 5179, he is required to publish such list. By the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884, s. 24, ante, p. 4682, the town clerk of every municipal borough is required annually, in July, to make out a list of persons disqualified by corrupt practices to vote at a municipal election in the borough, and to send a copy to the overseers of every parish in the borough, and the overseers must omit the names of the persons named therein from the Burgess list. Overseers were abolished by the R. and V. A., 1925, s. 62, ante, p. 2222. Their duties in regard to the Electors' Register are now transferred to the rating authority, who may be called upon by the registration officer to designate officers for the purpose of performing these duties (Overseers Order, 1927, S. R. and O., 1927, No. 55, Art. 3). It seems to follow from the text that the lists prepared by clerks of the peace and town clerks under these enactments must include the names of all persons convicted under this Act.

(f) This consequence will apparently follow, whether the conviction is for a first or a subsequent conviction.

Savings.

3.—(1) Where an offence under this Act is also punishable under any other enactment, or at common law, such offence may be prosecuted and punished either under this Act, or under the other enactment, or at common law, but so that no person shall be punished twice for the same offence.

Repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175). See the Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 33; 18 Halsbury's Statutes 1004.

It appears from Com. Dig. "Officer (N.)," that all officers, whether such by the common law, or made pursuant to statute, are punishable for corruption or oppressive proceedings, according to the nature and heinousness of the offence, either by indictment, attachment, action at the suit of the party injured, loss of their offices, etc. It is also stated that bribery of an officer is punishable at common law by fine and imprisonment. It is unlikely, however, that any offence within the terms of this Act will be dealt with otherwise than as herein provided.

See also the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1906, referred to in note (c) to s. 1, ante, p. 4796.

(2) A person shall not be exempt from punishment under this Act by reason of the invalidity of the appointment or election of a person to a public office.

In other words, the Act applies to the corrupt acts of members, officers, or servants who are such de facto, though the validity of their election or appointment may be open to question.

Restriction on prosecution.

4.—(1) A prosecution for an offence under this Act shall not be instituted except by or with the consent of the Attorney-General.

It is entirely in the discretion of the Attorney-General to grant or refuse his consent (see Ex parte Hurter (1883), 47 J. P. 724; 15 Cox, C. C. 166; 32 Digest 202, 2520).

(2) In this section the expression "Attorney-General" means the Attorney or Solicitor General for England, and as respects Scotland means the Lord Advocate, and as respects Ireland, means the Attorney or Solicitor General for Ireland. Section 4.

5. The expenses of the prosecution of an offence against this Act shall be defrayed in like manner as in the case of a felony. Expenses of prosecution.

See now the Costs in Criminal Cases Act, 1908 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 739), which repealed this section.

6. A court of general or quarter sessions shall in England have jurisdiction to inquire of, hear, and determine an offence under this Act. Jurisdiction of quarter sessions.

It seems doubtful whether any such provision was necessary to give jurisdiction to quarter sessions. The general rule with regard to indictable offences newly created by statute, is that quarter sessions have jurisdiction unless it is otherwise expressly provided (Archbold's Quarter Sessions, 6th ed., p. 462; Com. Dig. Justices of Peace, B. (3); and see R. v. Cock (1815), 4 M. & S. 71; 15 Digest 724, 7837). It should be observed, however, that quarter sessions have no jurisdiction with regard to offences under the Act of 1906. See s. 2 (5) of that Act, post, p. 5028.

7. In this Act—

The expression "public body" means any council of a county or county of a city or town, any council of a municipal borough, also any board, commissioners, select vestry, or other body which has power to act under and for the purposes of any Act relating to local government, or the public health, or to poor law or otherwise to administer money raised by rates in pursuance of any public general Act, but does not include any public body as above defined existing elsewhere than in the United Kingdom (a): Interpretation.

The expression "public office" means any office or employment of a person as a member, officer, or servant of such public body:

The expression "person" includes a body of persons, corporate or unincorporate:

The expression "advantage" includes any office or dignity, and any forbearance to demand any money or money's worth or valuable thing, and includes any aid, vote, consent, or influence, or pretended aid, vote, consent, or influence, and also includes any promise or procurement of or agreement or endeavour to procure, or the holding out of any expectation of any gift, loan, fee, reward, or advantage, as before defined.

(a) This definition includes all sanitary authorities, urban and rural. The Act of 1916, s. 4 (2), post, p. 5165, provides that the expression "public body" shall include, in addition to the bodies mentioned in the above section, local and public authorities of all descriptions.

Section 1.

THE WORKING CLASSES DWELLINGS ACT, 1890.

(53 & 54 VICT. c. 16.)

An Act to facilitate Gifts of Land for Dwellings for the Working Classes in Populous Places.
[25th July, 1890.]

Exemption
from 51 & 52
Vict. c. 42,
Parts I., II.,
and 7 & 8 Vict.
c. 97, s. 16, of gifts for working classes dwellings.

1. Parts I. and II. of the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888, . . . shall not apply to any assurance, by deed, or will, of land, or of personal estate to be laid out in land, for the purpose of providing dwellings for the working classes in any populous place (a).

Provided as follows :

- (i) The quantity of land which may be assured by will under this section shall not exceed five acres ; and
- (ii) The deed or will containing the assurance must, within six months, in the case of a deed after the execution thereof, or in the case of a will after the probate thereof, be enrolled in the books of the Charity Commissioners, if the land is situate in England or Wales . . .

For the purposes of this Act, the expression "populous place" means the administrative county of London, any municipal borough, any urban sanitary district, and any other place having a dense population of an urban character (b).

(a) Words relating to Ireland only are omitted from this section. But for this provision land could not have been conveyed, nor could money to be laid out in land have been assured by deed or will for the purpose of working classes dwellings. The above Act creates an exception similar to those created under Part III. of the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888, ante, p. 4774; cf. also the Housing Act, 1936, s. 150, and the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932, ante, pp. 1745, 1879. But apparently this is not an Act with charity matters (Re Sutton, Lewis v. Sutton, [1901] 2 Ch. 640 ; 66 J. P. 39 ; 8 Digest 274, 420).

(b) The expression "populous place" may include a part of a rural district which is thickly populated.

Application of
Act.

2. This Act shall extend to any assurance by deed made within twelve months before the passing of this Act by a person alive at that passing as if it had been made after the passing, except that the assurance shall be enrolled or registered as aforesaid within six months after the passing of this Act.

Short title and
construction.

3.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Working Classes Dwellings Act, 1890.

(2) Expressions used in this Act shall have the same meaning as in the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888 (a).

51 & 52 Vict.
c. 42.

(a) See s. 10 of that Act, ante, p. 4775, which contains definitions of the terms "assurance," "will," and "land."

THE PUBLIC HEALTH ACTS AMENDMENT ACT, 1890.

(53 & 54 VICT. c. 59.)

An Act to amend the Public Health Acts.

[18th August 1890.]

PART I.

GENERAL.

1. This Act is divided into Parts as follows :

Part I.—General.

Part II.—Telegraph, etc. wires.

Part III.—Sanitary and other provisions.

Part IV.—Music and dancing.

Part V.—Stock.

Division of Act into Parts.

2.—(1) This Act shall be construed as one with the Public Health Acts (a).

Short title,
construction
and extent of Act.

(2) Part One of this Act shall extend to England and Wales and Ireland, exclusive of the administrative county of London. Parts Two, Three, Four, and Five shall extend to any district in which they are respectively adopted under the provisions of this Act (b).

(3) This Act may be cited as the Public Health Acts Amendment Act, 1890, and this Act and the Public Health Acts may be cited together as the Public Health Acts (a).

(a) There is no definition in this Act of the expression "Public Health Acts" so far as it relates to England and Wales. There is, however, a definition in the Short Titles Act, 1896 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1021), and see the list in the P. H. (Buildings in Streets) Act, 1888, s. 1, ante, p. 4777.

As to the effect of the provision that the Act shall be construed as one with earlier Acts, see Read v. Joannon (1890), 25 Q. B. D., per COLERIDGE, C.J., at p. 304; Charing Cross Electricity Supply Co. v. Hydraulic Power Co., [1914] 3 K. B. per Lord SUMNER, at p. 782; 78 J. P. at p. 308; 42 Digest 666, 769; R. v. Essex J.J., Ex parte Barking Town U. D. C., [1916] 2 K. B. 406; 80 J. P. 345; Hart v. Hudson Brothers, Ltd., [1928] 2 K. B. 629; 92 J. P. 170.

(b) The adoption of these parts of the Act is provided for by the next section. Sections 39, 40 and 43, post, pp. 4814, 4815, 4817, are applied to county councils by the L. G. A., 1929, Sched. I., Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 975, and functions under those sections can only be exercised in relation to "county roads" by the councils of districts, in which they are in force, with the consent of the county council.

3. The following provisions shall have effect with regard to the adoption of the Parts of this Act, which are adoptive, by local authorities :

Adoption of Act by local authorities.

(1) An urban authority may adopt all or any of such Parts (a).

(2) . . . (b).

(a) Notice that the whole of a Part must be adopted so far as it is applicable. Particular sections cannot be adopted to the exclusion of the others. If, however, a rural council desire to obtain the powers of one or more sections of Part III, without putting into operation other provisions contained in that Part, or require the additional powers for part of their district only, they can apply to the Minister of Health for an order under s. 5, post, p. 4803. By such an order a rural council may also obtain powers under sections comprised in other parts of the Act, but all powers ordinarily appropriate to rural districts have now been generally applied (see post).

Note to
Section 3.

Where at the time of the formation of part of a rural district into an urban district certain of the adoptive Acts were in force in the rural district, a question arose as to whether the Acts would continue to be in operation in the newly formed district. The L. G. B. disclaimed authority to determine the question, but stated that it appeared to them to be desirable that fresh proceedings for the adoption of the Acts should be taken in each case. This is now generally provided for in the order for the formation of the district.

(b) Sub-s. (2) was repealed by the Food and Drugs Act, 1938, Sched. IV., ante, p. 1455.

(3) The adoption shall be by a resolution passed at a meeting (a) of the local authority; and one calendar month at least before such meeting special notice of the meeting and of the intention to propose such resolution shall be given to every member of the authority, and the notice shall be deemed to have been duly given to a member of it, if it is either—

(a) Given in the mode in which notices to attend meetings of the authority are usually given; or

(b) Where there is no such mode, then signed by the clerk of the authority, and delivered to the member or left at his usual or last known place of abode in England, or forwarded by post in a prepaid letter, addressed to the member at his usual or last known place of abode in England (b).

(a) The meeting need not be a special meeting; the resolution may be passed at an ordinary meeting so long as the special notice is given as provided by the text. See form of resolution in the Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XII., p. 313.

(b) Cf. L. G. A., 1933, s. 286, and notes thereto, ante, p. 1168. For a form of notice, see the Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XII., at p. 313.

(4) Such resolution shall be published by advertisement in some one or more newspapers circulating within the district of the authority and by causing notice thereof to be affixed to the principal doors of every church and chapel in the place to which notices are usually fixed (a), and otherwise in such manner as the authority think sufficient for giving notice thereof to all persons interested, and shall come into operation at such time not less than one month (b) after the first publication of the advertisement of the resolution as the authority may by the resolution fix (b), and upon its coming into operation such Parts of the Act as are adopted shall extend to that district.

(a) For a form of notice see the Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XII., p. 314. As to the fixing of the notices on the church and chapel doors, see infra.

It is not quite clear that the notices need to be fixed to the doors of Nonconformist chapels. The L. G. B. has expressed the view that only Church of England chapels are referred to in this section, and it has been held under Parish Notices Act, 1837, s. 2 (6 Halsbury's Statutes 122), which requires notices of vestry meetings to be affixed "on or near the door of all the churches and chapels within such parish or place," that such notices need not be affixed to churches or chapels other than those of the Church of England (Ormerod v. Chadwick (1847), 16 M. & W. 367; 11 J. P. 138; 19 Digest 252, 362; R. v. Warblington Overseers (1854), 18 J. P. 647; 18 Jur. 494; 38 Digest 578, 1137; R. v. Whipp (1843), 4 Q. B. 141; 7 J. P. 656; 38 Digest 584, 1173; Edwards and Mann v. Hatton (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 21; 30 J. P. 211; R. v. Wolferstan, [1893] 2 Q. B. 451; 58 J. P. 133; 38 Digest 593, 1233). Compare

Note to
Section 3.

the provisions in Parliamentary Voters' Registration Act, 1843, s. 23, where there is express mention of chapels not belonging to the Established Church.

(b) The L. G. B. expressed the view that where the resolution does not fix a definite date on which it shall come into operation the validity of the resolution is very doubtful, and in such cases they have suggested that proceedings for adoption shall be begun afresh. The Board did not consider that the date when the resolution for the adoption is to come into force can be fixed by a resolution of the council passed at a later meeting.

The expression "one month" means "one calendar month" (see the Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 3; 18 Halsbury's Statutes 993). In a case where a resolution was fixed to come into operation at a time equivalent to four weeks from its first advertisement, the L. G. B. expressed the opinion that proceedings should be commenced afresh.

(5) A copy of the resolution shall be sent—

- (a) Where any Part of the Act is adopted, to the Local Government Board;
- (b) Where Part Two is adopted, to the Board of Trade;
- (c) Where Part Four is adopted, to a Secretary of State.

In any case a copy must be sent to the L. G. B., now the Minister of Health. When Part II. is adopted a copy must also be sent to the Minister of Transport, who has succeeded the Bd. of T. under Part II. (Telegraph, etc., wires). And for a similar reason, when Part IV. is adopted, a copy must also be sent to the Secretary of State.

(6) A copy of the advertisement shall be conclusive evidence of the resolution having been passed, unless the contrary be shown; and no objection to the effect of the resolution, on the ground that notice of the intention to propose the same was not duly given, or on the ground that the resolution was not sufficiently published, shall be made after three months from the date of the first publication of the advertisement.

4. [Expenses of local authority.] [Repealed by the L. G. A. 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. IV., ante, pp. 1194, 1284.]

5. The Local Government Board may declare that any of the provisions contained in any Part of this Act which are not in force in any rural sanitary district (a) shall be in force in that district, or any part thereof, and may invest a rural sanitary authority with any of the powers, rights, duties, capacities, liabilities, and obligations which an urban authority may acquire by adoption of any Part of this Act, in like manner, and subject to the same provisions as they are enabled to invest rural sanitary authorities with the powers of urban sanitary authorities under the provisions of section two hundred and seventy-six of the Public Health Act, 1875, and in such case the date of the declaration of the Local Government Board under this section shall be substituted for the date of the adoption of this Act or any Part thereof (b).

Power to Local Government Board to extend particular provisions to rural districts.

(a) The provisions of this Act, which are not in force in, and which cannot be adopted in, a rural district, are those contained in Parts II., IV., and V., and those sections and parts of sections in Part III. which were not mentioned in the former s. 50 (now repealed; 13 Halsbury's Statutes 842).

(b) See s. 276 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4502, and notes thereto.

The effect of this section, as incorporated by the text, is to enable a rural sanitary authority (now rural district council), or ratepayers whose assessments are equal to one-tenth of the rateable value of the district or contributory place, to apply to the L. G. B., now the Minister of Health, for an Order investing the rural authority with powers under the Act. The Order must be published in the London Gazette.

Note to
Section 5.

Under the L. G. A., 1894, s. 25, post, p. 4905, application may also be made by a parish council or county council (for urban powers to be conferred upon a rural district council).

The practice of the Minister of Health in regard to applications for powers under the present Act for rural parishes is explained in many cases in the notes to the various sections.

A difficulty occurs in many cases in the matter of the incidence of expenses. The M. of H. has frequently inserted a provision in Orders under s. 276 of the Act of 1875, ante, p. 4502, declaring the expenses to be incurred thereunder to be chargeable as special expenses. Such a provision cannot, however, be made in the case of Orders under s. 5 of the present Act, having in view the provisions of the latter part of s. 4 of the Act, except where an order is in force under s. 190 (3) of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1017.

See also note (a) to s. 3, ante, p. 4801.

Legal proceedings, etc.

6. Offences under this Act may be prosecuted, and penalties, forfeitures, costs, and expenses recovered in like manner and subject to the same provisions as offences which may be prosecuted and penalties, forfeitures, costs, and expenses which may be recovered in a summary manner under the Public Health Acts.

Offences under byelaws made under this Act may also be similarly prosecuted. See the P. H. A. Amendment A., 1907, s. 6, post, p. 5038.

The provisions of the P. H. A., 1875, as to the prosecution of offences and the recovery of penalties, etc., are contained in Part VII. of that Act, ante, p. 4481. The procedure is that prescribed by the Summary Jurisdiction Acts before a court of summary jurisdiction being a petty sessional court (s. 251). Proceedings must be taken within the period of six months after the matter of information or complaint arose (Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1884; 11 Halsbury's Statutes 355, repealing and substituting for s. 252 the corresponding provisions of the Summary Jurisdiction Acts). The proceedings can be taken only by the local authority, or a party aggrieved, or a person having the written consent of the Attorney-General (s. 253). The penalties are to be paid to the local authority, but if there is an informer he is to receive one-half (s. 254). A justice may act though he is a member of the local authority (s. 258). The local authority may appear by their clerk or any member or officer generally or specially authorised (s. 259). Demands below £50 may be recovered in the county court (s. 261). The proceedings are not to be quashed on certiorari (s. 262).

sessions.

7.—(1) Any person aggrieved—

- (a) By any order, judgment, determination, or requirement of a local authority under this Act;
- (b) By the withholding of any order, certificate, licence, consent, or approval, which may be made, granted, or given by a local authority under this Act;
- (c) By any conviction or order of a court of summary jurisdiction under any provision of this Act;

may appeal in manner provided by the Summary Jurisdiction Acts to a court of quarter sessions.

The expression "this Act" means not merely this Act, but includes the Public Health Acts, with which this Act is to be read as one. See s. 2, ante, p. 4801 (R. v. Essex J.J., Ex parte Barking U. D. C., [1916] 2 K. B. 406; 80 J. P. 345; 38 Digest 224, 557. It is arguable that an appeal would therefore lie to quarter sessions against a requirement, etc., of a local authority under the P. H. A., 1875 (e.g., under s. 150, ante, p. 4388); cf. Pearce v. Maidenhead Corporation, [1907] 2 K. B. 96; 71 J. P. 230; 26 Digest 545, 2432; see also Hart v. Hudson Bros., Ltd., [1928] 2 K. B. 629; 92 J. P. 170; 44 Digest 133, 26. In view of the proviso contained in sub-s. (2) of this section, however, it would appear to be more appropriate to base such a right of appeal upon s. 7 of the P. H. A. Amendment A., 1907, post, p. 5039, and R. v. Recorder of Belfast, cited in the notes thereto.

Note to
Section 7.

This general provision is subject to the qualification contained in the next sub-section. The cases in which an appeal will lie under this provision are indicated in the notes to the several sections. The existence of a right of appeal against the order, etc., of a local authority will not affect the duty of that authority to hear judicially the application for such order. As to this duty, see R. v. London C. C., [1918] 1 K. B. 68; 36 Digest 250, 32.

The provisions of the Summary Jurisdiction Acts as to appeals to quarter sessions are contained in Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879, s. 31, set out in the notes to s. 301 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 627. In cases where a right of appeal to quarter sessions already existed under earlier Acts, a question may arise whether the procedure prescribed under those Acts is repealed by the substitution of the procedure under the Summary Jurisdiction Acts. See Edelsten v. London C. C., [1918] 1 K. B. 81; 81 J. P. 294; 33 Digest 315, 326.

A regulation was made under s. 4 of the London Hackney Carriages Act, 1850 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 143), which does not provide any penalty for breach of a regulation so made. The London Hackney Carriage Act, 1853, provides by s. 19 (op. cit. 149) that for every offence against the provisions of that Act, for which no special penalty is appointed, the offender shall be liable to a penalty of 40s., and by s. 21 (op. cit. 150) that the Act is to be construed as one with the London Hackney Carriages Acts, 1843, 1850 (op. cit. 125, 142). It was held, that the effect of ss. 19 and 21 was to create one code of law for the regulation of hackney carriages; that s. 21 was a general penalty section which would apply to a breach of any provision of the three Acts which was not specifically provided for elsewhere; and that a breach of a regulation made under an Act was a breach of the Act itself (Willingale v. Norris, [1909] 1 K. B. 57; 72 J. P. 495; 42 Digest 780, 2105).

In Hornsey Corporation v. Kershaw (1909), 73 J. P. 335; 41 Digest 39, 283, a court of quarter sessions held that a local authority could appeal where justices refused an order for payment of expenses incurred by the authority in repairing an alleged "single private drain" (under the former s. 19, now repealed; 13 Halsbury's Statutes 831).

(2) This section shall not apply in cases where there is an appeal to the Local Government Board under section two hundred and sixty-eight of the Public Health Act, 1875.

See s. 268 of the P. H. A., 1875, and the notes thereto, ante, p. 4495. For the L. G. B. must now be read the Minister of Health.

It is not clear whether this sub-section bars an appeal to quarter sessions against an order of justices by a defendant who might at an earlier stage have appealed under s. 268 to the L. G. B. against the "decision" of the authority; but semble it does. If so, it is still less clear whether in such a case it bars an appeal by the authority. The point does not seem to have been raised in Hornsey Corporation v. Kershaw, supra.

8. Any information, complaint, warrant, or summons made or issued for the purposes of this Act, or of the Public Health Acts, may contain in the body thereof or in a schedule thereto several sums. More than one sum in one summons, etc.

It is difficult to suggest what is the object of this provision, or what its effect is. The general rule is that an information or complaint must be confined to one offence or matter of complaint (see Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1848, s. 10; 11 Halsbury's Statutes 277). Under the above provision one complaint and summons may be used for the recovery of several sums. It would appear to have no application to the case of penalties.

9. All the provisions with respect to byelaws contained in sections one hundred and eighty-two to one hundred and eighty-six of the Public Health Act, 1875, and any enactment amending or extending those sections, shall apply to all byelaws from time to time made by a local authority under the powers of this Act, except byelaws made under Part Two of this Act. Byelaws.

Note to
Section 9.

Of the sections mentioned, only ss. 183 and 184, ante, pp. 4467—8, have not been repealed, and they also have been repealed except so far as may be material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment of the P. H. A.'s or Acts directed to be construed therewith. Reference generally should be made to Pt. XII. of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1093.

Byelaws made under ss. 40 and 44 of this Act, post, pp. 4815, 4818, must be confirmed by the L. G. B., now the Minister of Health, under s. 184 of the P. H. A., 1875; byelaws under Part II. must be confirmed by the Minister of Transport, as successor to the Board of Trade (see s. 13, post, p. 4807).

Powers of Act cumulative.

10.—(1) All powers given to a local authority under this Act shall be deemed to be in addition to and not in derogation of any other powers conferred upon such local authority by any Act of Parliament, law, or custom, and such other powers may be exercised in the same manner as if this Act had not been passed.

See the P. H. A., 1875, s. 341, ante, p. 4522, and cf. P. H. A., 1936, s. 328, ante, p. 673. Notwithstanding this provision, the Act itself creates certain exceptions to it. Thus, where s. 34, post, p. 4811, is in force, the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, s. 80, ante, p. 4209, is repealed. But the Act does not repeal or supersede local Acts.

(2) Nothing in this Act shall exempt any person from any penalty to which he would have been liable if this Act had not been passed, provided that no person shall be liable to pay, except in the case of a daily penalty, more than one penalty in respect of the same offence.

The expression "daily penalty" is defined in s. 11 (3), post, p. 4807.

Interpretation.

11.—(1) [Repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, Sched. III., Pt. II., ante, p. 729].

(2) A street or part of a street which has been asphalted or paved with wood, tar paving, or artificial stone, or other improved paving of any kind shall be deemed to have been paved within the meaning of any provision of the Public Health Acts.

Provided that a street shall not be deemed to be paved to the satisfaction of an urban authority unless it is paved with such kind as well as with such quality of paving as the local authority shall consider suitable for the street.

The first part of this sub-section appears to have been intended to meet a dictum of JESSEL, M.R., who, in Att.-Gen. v. Bidder (1881), 47 J. P. 263; 26 Digest 374, 996, said that a road paved with wood was not "paved" within the meaning of s. 152 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4423. See further as to this case the notes to s. 41, post, p. 4815.

The second part of the sub-section is an amendment of ss. 150, 152 of the P. H. A., 1875. Section 150 of that Act, ante, p. 4388, provides that when a street, not being a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large, is not (inter alia) paved to the satisfaction of the urban authority, notice may be served on the owners of property fronting the street to pave it, and in their default the urban authority may pave the street, and recover the expenses from the owners. The effect of this sub-section is that an authority may require the road to be asphalted or paved with wood, etc., and that though properly paved in one way, it shall not be deemed to be paved to the satisfaction of the authority unless they also consider the kind of paving suitable for the street. Section 152, ante, p. 4428, provides that when a street is (inter alia) paved to the satisfaction of an urban authority, they may declare it to be a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large, and by s. 82 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, they may be compelled to make such a declaration. Having regard to the text, they have now a discretion as to the kind of paving which they deem suitable for the street. See the notes to s. 41, post, p. 4815.

See further on this subject the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4848.

Note to Section 11.

(3) In this Act, if not inconsistent with the context (a)—

The expression “local authority” means an urban sanitary authority or a rural sanitary authority, as the case may be, under the Public Health Acts, and the expressions “urban authority” and “rural authority” mean respectively an urban sanitary authority and a rural sanitary authority under those Acts (b).

The expressions “urban sanitary district” and “rural sanitary district” mean respectively an urban sanitary district and a rural sanitary district under the Public Health Acts (b).

The expression “sanitary convenience” includes urinals, water-closets, earth-closets, privies, ashpits, and any similar convenience (c).

The expression “daily penalty” means a penalty for each day on which any offence is continued after conviction therefor (d).

The expressions “surveyor,” “lands,” “premises,” “owner,” “street,” “house,” “drain,” “sewer” have respectively the same meaning as in the Public Health Acts (e).

(a) See as to these words the cases mentioned in notes to the P. H. A., 1936, s. 343, ante, p. 686. In a case in the House of Lords, Lord SELBORNE said: “An interpretation clause of this kind is not meant to prevent the word receiving its ordinary, popular, and natural sense, whenever that would be properly applicable; but to enable the word, as used in the Act, when there is nothing in the context or the subject-matter to the contrary, to be applied to some things to which it would not ordinarily be applicable” (Robinson v. Barton-Eccles L. B. (1883), 8 App. Cas. 798; 48 J. P. 276; 26 Digest 269, 86).

(b) These expressions are defined in the P. H. A., 1875, s. 6 (13 Halsbury’s Statutes 628). See, however, the notes, ante, pp. 736, 765, and Part II. of the L. G. A., 1894, post, p. 4904.

(c) The expression “sanitary convenience” is a convenient one, including as it does a number of things which are generally grouped together in the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4331. See, for example, ss. 43 et seq. of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, pp. 137 et seq. The word “ashpit” has now an extended meaning.

(d) This definition obviates a difficulty which was often felt where a daily penalty is imposed for every day an offence continued, the question being in such cases whether the daily penalty is incurred before as well as after conviction; the matter is, of course, academic so far as regards the modern P. H. A.

(e) In the P. H. A., 1875, s. 4, all these expressions are defined: see the notes to that section, ante, p. 4381. It is not clear that the definitions were necessary regard being had to the provision in s. 2 (1), ante, p. 4801, that this Act is to be read as one with the Public Health Acts.

12. [Application to Ireland.]

PART II.

TELEGRAPH, ETC. WIRES (a).

13.—(1) An urban authority may from time to time make, alter, and repeal byelaws (b) for prevention of danger or obstruction to the public from posts, wires, tubes, or any other apparatus stretched or placed above, over, along, or across any street (c) (whether before or after the adoption of this Part of this Act) (d) for the purpose of any telegraph, telephone, lighting, railway signalling, or other purpose (e). Byelaws for prevention of danger from telegraph wires, etc.

Note to
Section 13.

(a) This Part of the Act may be adopted by an urban authority. It cannot be adopted by a rural council, but it is open to such a council to apply to the Minister of Health for an order under s. 5, ante, p. 4803, declaring it to be operative in their district or in some part thereof. Instances will presumably be rare in which the powers are required in rural districts and the views of the Minister of Transport will probably be required in such a case. See also notes to ss. 3 and 5, ante, pp. 4801, 4803. When this Part is adopted by an urban authority in manner provided by s. 3, the resolution must be forwarded to the Ministry of Health, and to the Ministry of Transport, as provided by s. 3 (5), ante, p. 4803.

Where s. 25 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, applies, this Part of this Act will cease to have effect in the district. But any byelaws made under this Part will remain in force until revoked by a resolution of the local authority (s. 25 (4)).

Power to make byelaws for the regulation of certain wireless aërials is given by s. 26 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, in districts where that section has been adopted, and those byelaws require confirmation by the M. of H.

(b) The provisions of the Public Health Acts do not apply to these byelaws (see s. 9, ante, p. 4805).

The byelaws made under this section are only for the prevention of danger or obstruction to the public. The observance of them will not necessarily make it lawful to erect wires for the purposes above mentioned. The byelaws will not in any way enable the promoters of any undertaking to erect wires upon or over private property where that cannot otherwise be legally done.

(c) For the definition of "street," see s. 11 (3), and notes thereto, ante, p. 4807. Apart from this section or s. 25 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, a local authority have no power to prevent the suspension of overhead wires above a street unless the wires interfere with its ordinary user as a street: see cases on pp. 4378—9, ante, and Lery v. National Telephone Co. (1897), Times, Dec. 18th (wires above private house).

For disputes as to the laying or erection of telephone wires by the Postmaster-General or his licensees (mainly as to whether the lines should be overhead or underground), see Wandsworth District Board v. P. M. G. (1884), 4 Ry. and Can. Tr. Cas. 301; 42 Digest 892, 39; P. M. G. v. Corporation of London (1898), 62 J. P. 390; 78 L. T. 120; 42 Digest 892, 35; P. M. G. v. Corporation of Glasgow (1900), 10 Ry. and Can. Tr. Cas. 238; 42 Digest 892, 36; P. M. G. v. Corporation of Edinburgh (1897), 10 Ry. and Can. Tr. Cas. 247; Tunbridge Wells Corporation v. National Telephone Co. (1900), 64 J. P. 756; 83 L. T. 525; 42 Digest 893, 43; In re P. M. G. and Watford U. D. C. (1908), 72 J. P. 184; 52 Sol. Jo. 302; 42 Digest 892, 41; In re P. M. G. and Woolwich Borough Council (1908), 72 J. P. 186; 6 L. G. R. 509; 42 Digest 893, 42; Re P. M. G. and Tottenham U. D. C. (1910), 74 J. P. 434; 8 L. G. R. 791; 42 Digest 893, 46; Croydon Corporation v. P. M. G. (1910), 74 J. P. 424; 8 L. G. R. 1005; 42 Digest 893, 45; P. M. G. v. Hendon U. D. C., [1914] 1 K. B. 564; 78 J. P. 145; 42 Digest 888, 19; Dublin C. C. v. P. M. G., [1914] 2 I. R. 208; P. M. G. v. Hutchings, [1916] 1 K. B. 774; 80 J. P. 246; 42 Digest 892, 38, and county court cases at 77 J. P. N. 412, 605. Cf. the Telegraph (Arbitration) Act, 1909 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 295).

As to wires above recreation grounds, see the Telegraph (Construction) Act, 1908, s. 3 (op. cit. 293).

(d) The byelaws will apply to wires already erected as well as to those erected after the adoption of this Part of the Act; see, however, sub-s. (6), post, p. 4809.

(e) See the partial exemption of apparatus belonging to a railway or canal company in sub-s. (7), post, p. 4809.

The byelaws will not apply to post office wires, or electric lighting wires erected under the Electric Lighting Acts (see s. 15, post, p. 4810, and the notes thereto).

(2) By such byelaws provisions may be made for the inspection and examination by the urban authority of any such posts, wires, tubes, or other apparatus, and for the prohibition of any such posts, wires, tubes, or other apparatus being or continuing to be stretched or placed as aforesaid in such manner as to be dangerous or to cause obstruction to the public.

(3) Offenders against such byelaws shall be liable to such penalties as may be thereby prescribed not exceeding five pounds for each offence, and a daily penalty not exceeding forty shillings, and the court in addition to awarding any penalty may order the removal of any post, wire, tube, or other apparatus stretched or placed in contravention of any such byelaw made under this section. Section 13.

The byelaws must themselves prescribe the penalties. For the definition of a daily penalty, see s. 11 (3), ante, p. 4807. The proceedings will be under the Summary Jurisdiction Acts, and an appeal against a conviction or order will lie to quarter sessions under s. 7 (1), ante, p. 4804.

(4) Byelaws made under this section and any alteration or repeal of any such byelaw shall not take effect unless and until they have been submitted to and confirmed by the Board of Trade, which Board is hereby empowered to allow or disallow or to modify or amend the same as it may think proper.

The powers of the Board of Trade have been transferred to the Minister of Transport. The form of byelaws generally approved by the Minister under this section will be found in Shiers Will's Law relating to Electric Lighting and Energy. One of the chief causes of danger is the liability of the wires to be blown down or broken by snow; these byelaws provide for such a cause of danger.

(5) Reasonable notice of the intended submission for confirmation of any such byelaw, alteration, or repeal shall be given by the urban authority by advertisement in one or more local newspapers circulating in the district to which such byelaws relate, and by circular letter to any company or person owning or leasing any post, wire, tube, or other apparatus to which any byelaw is intended to apply, and such company or person shall be entitled to appear before the Board of Trade and object to the confirmation, alteration, or repeal of any byelaw, and all costs incurred by any parties in reference to the application for or objection to the confirmation, alteration, or repeal of any such byelaw shall be in the discretion of the Board of Trade.

See note to sub-s. (4), supra.

The circular letter must be sent to all owners or lessees of existing posts, wires, etc., other than those mentioned in s. 15, post, p. 4810. Such owners and lessees will send in their objections, if any, and may appear before the Minister of Transport in support of them.

(6) The Board of Trade may exempt from the operation of any such byelaw, alteration, or repeal, for such period as they think proper, not exceeding five years from the confirmation thereof, any post, wire, tube, or other apparatus which shall have been stretched or placed, in the case of a new byelaw, before the confirmation thereof, and in the case of the alteration or repeal of a byelaw, in accordance with such byelaw.

See note to sub-s. (4), supra.

Unless such exemption is made, the byelaws will extend to existing wires as well as to those to be erected after the adoption of this Part of the Act.

(7) Nothing in such byelaws shall extend to or include any apparatus belonging to any railway or canal company, or used by them in connection with their business, and which now is or hereafter shall be fixed or placed by any such company across, over, or along any railway or the towing-path of any canal, provided such apparatus do

Section 13. not project or be not stretched or placed beyond such railway or towing-path over any street, or be not stretched or placed over any street crossing over such railway other than streets crossing any railway on the level.

When a railway crosses above a street, the byelaws will not apply to wires on such railway so long as these do not project beyond the property of the company. Where the street is carried over the railway, the byelaws will not apply to railway wires unless these are carried above the street. When a street crosses a railway on the level, the byelaws will not apply to the railway wires even if they do cross the street.

Danger from exempted telegraph
wires.

14.—(1) If any post, wire, tube, or other apparatus so exempted as aforesaid (a) is during the period of such exemption in the opinion of the surveyor of the urban authority in such a state or position that immediate danger to any person is to be apprehended (b), he may give information to any justice, who may thereupon summon the owner or lessee thereof or other person interested therein forthwith to appear before a court of summary jurisdiction.

(a) The exemptions here referred to are those mentioned in sub-ss. (6), (7), of the preceding section.

(b) This does not necessarily mean when danger is apprehended to a particular person. This section will apply if immediate danger is apprehended to any person passing along a street.

(2) The court may thereupon—

(a) Make an order requiring such owner, lessee, or other person, or all or any of them, to remove or remedy the source of danger; or

(b) Make an order authorising the surveyor to do so at the expense of such owner, lessee, or other person, or of all or any of them; or

(c) Make such other order as may appear to the court under all the circumstances of the case to be necessary and proper.

An appeal against such an order will lie to quarter sessions under s. 7, ante, p. 4804. The expense incurred under clause (b) will apparently be recoverable summarily (see s. 6, ante, p. 4804).

Savings.

15.—(1) Nothing contained in this Part of this Act shall—

(a) Extend to any post, wire, tube, or other apparatus or property of the Postmaster-General:

(b) Extend to any works of any undertakers within the meaning of the Electric Lighting Acts, 1882 to 1888, to which the provisions of those Acts apply.

The Electric Lighting Acts, 1882–1919, which are set out in this Volume, contain important restrictions with regard to the erection of overhead wires: see s. 14 of the Act of 1882, ante, p. 4652, s. 4 of the Act of 1888, ante, p. 4702, and ss. 21 and 22 of the Act of 1919, post, pp. 5255–6, and the regulations made under these Acts.

The Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, s. 21, provides that where the consent of the Minister of Transport is obtained to the placing of any electrical line above ground in any case, the consent of the local authority shall not be required, but the Minister of Transport before giving his consent shall give the local authority an opportunity of being heard. See the section in extenso, post, p. 5256. See also ss. 18 and 44 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, Vol. V. and 7 Halsbury's Statutes 806, 818.

(2) Nothing contained in this Part of this Act shall limit or interfere with the working of any mines or minerals lying under or adjacent to any street along or across which any posts, wires, tubes, or other apparatus shall be stretched or placed, nor shall the owner, lessee, or occupier of those mines or minerals be liable for any damage which may be occasioned by the working thereof in the ordinary course to such posts, wires, tubes, or apparatus. Section 15.

As to the right of an owner to work minerals under a street vested in the urban authority, see s. 27 of the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, ante, p. 4611. The object of the above provision appears to be to prevent the owners of posts, wires, etc., erected in compliance with the byelaws from acquiring any right thereby against the owner of mines or minerals under the street in or over which the posts, wires, etc., are placed. It may be doubted whether the provision was required.

PART III.

SANITARY AND OTHER PROVISIONS (a).

Ss. 16—33, 36, 47—50 and 52 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 830—837, 838, 842, 845) have been repealed; and all the remaining sections in this Part of the Act, except ss. 37, 41 and 51, post, pp. 4813, 4815, 4819, have been applied to rural councils by Order of the M. of H. (R. D. C.'s (Urban Powers) Order, 1931, ante, p. 3267).

(a) This part of the Act may be adopted in its entirety by an urban authority. It could only be adopted by a rural authority to the extent mentioned in the former s. 50 (now repealed), but so far as unrepealed it has now been generally applied to them by Order (see supra). See also note (a) to s. 3, ante, p. 4801.

* * * * *

34.—(1) Every person intending to build or take down any building or to alter or repair the outward part of any building in any street or court (a), shall—

- (a) before beginning the same, unless the urban authority otherwise consent in writing, cause close-boarded hoards or fences to the satisfaction of the urban authority to be put up in order to separate the building from the street or court; Hoards to be set up during progress of buildings, etc.
- (b) if the urban authority so require, make a convenient covered platform and handrail to serve as a footway for passengers outside of such hoard or fence;
- (c) continue such hoard or fence with such platform and handrail as aforesaid standing and in good condition to the satisfaction of the urban authority during such time as they may require;
- (d) if required by the urban authority, cause the same to be sufficiently lighted during the night;
- (e) remove the same when required by the urban authority (b).

This section was applied to rural districts by the R. D. C.'s (Urban Powers) Order, 1931, see ante, p. 3267, made under s. 5, ante, p. 4803.

(a) For the definition of "street," see ante, p. 4836. The term "street" includes "court" if it has the meaning assigned to it in the interpretation clause. The use of the latter expression seems to imply that the word "street" is here used in its ordinary popular sense of a road with houses on one or both sides.

(b) When the provisions of this section are adopted they are to be in substitution (see sub-s. (3), infra) for those of the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, s. 80, ante, p. 4209, which is incorporated with the P. H. A., 1875, by ibid., s. 160, ante, p. 4443. The Act of 1847, s. 80, is set out, ante, p. 4209. See cases in notes thereto.

Note to Section 34.

See also the P. H. A. Amendment A., 1907, s. 32, post, p. 5052, as to the erection of hoards.

As to the applicability of this section to schools, cf. Higgs and Hill, Ltd. v. Stepney Borough Council, p. 194, ante.

(2) Every person who fails to comply with any of the provisions of this section shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds and to a daily penalty not exceeding forty shillings.

As to the recovery of these penalties, see s. 6, ante, p. 4804. Appeal against conviction lies to quarter sessions under s. 7, ante, p. 4804. For the definition of a "daily penalty," see s. 11 (3), ante, p. 4807.

(3) Where this Part of this Act is adopted the eightieth section of the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, shall be repealed, and this section shall be deemed to be substituted therefor.

The Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, s. 80, is set out, ante, p. 4209.

As to repair of cellars
under streets.

35.—(1) All vaults, arches, and cellars under any street (a), and all openings into such vaults, arches, or cellars in the surface of any street, and all cellar-heads, gratings, lights, and coal-holes in the surface of any street, and all landings, flags, or stones of the path or street supporting the same respectively, shall be kept in good condition and repair by the owners or occupiers of the same, or of the houses or buildings to which the same respectively belong (b).

This section has been put in force in rural districts by the R. D. C.'s (Urban Powers) Order, 1931 (S. R. & O., 1931, No. 580), but the exercise of powers thereunder is subject to the consent of the county council.

(a) For the definition of "street," see ante, p. 4336.

(b) This provision was entirely new. By s. 73 of the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, ante, p. 4206, as amended by the P. H. A., 1875, s. 160, ante, p. 4443, when any opening is made in any pavement or footpath within the limits of the special Act, as an entrance into any vault or cellar, a door or covering shall be made by the occupier or owner of such vault or cellar, of iron or such other materials and in such manner as the commissioners direct, and such door or covering shall from time to time be kept in good repair by the occupier of such vault or cellar; and if such occupier do not within a reasonable time make such door or covering, or if he make any such door or covering contrary to the directions of the commissioners, or if he do not keep the same when properly made in good repair, he shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

In the metropolis, though owners are required by the Metropolis Management Act, 1855, s. 102 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 909), to keep in repair arches, vaults, and cellars under any street, it was held that the vestry, as highway surveyors, were bound to repair the pavement over vaults or cellars (Hamilton v. St. George, Hanover Square (1873), L. R. 9 Q. B. 42; 38 J. P. 405; 26 Digest 375, 1004; and cf. Laing v. Paull and Williamsons, [1912] S. C. 196). Under the provision in the text the owners or occupiers will be liable to repair not only the vaults or cellars and the cellar-heads, gratings, etc., but also the landings, flags, or stones supporting such cellar-heads, etc.

As to the liability of an owner of premises for the negligence of a contractor in regard to the use of a cellar flap, see Wilson v. Hodgson's Kingston Brewery Co., Ltd. (1915), 80 J. P. 39; 26 Digest 418, 1368.

(2) Where any default is made in complying with the provisions of this section, the urban authority may, after twenty-four hours' notice in that behalf (a), cause anything in respect of which such default is made to be repaired or put into good condition, and the expenses of so doing shall be paid to the urban authority by such owner or occupier respectively, or in default may be recovered in a summary manner (b).

(a) This notice should be authenticated by the signature of the clerk or surveyor (see the P. H. A., 1875, s. 266, ante, p. 4494).

(b) As to the recovery of these expenses, see s. 6, ante, p. 4804. As to appeal, see s. 7, ante, p. 4804.

Note to Section 35.

* * * * *

37.—(1) Whenever large numbers of persons are likely to assemble on the occasion of any show, entertainment, public procession, open-air meeting, or other like occasion, every roof of a building, and every platform, balcony, or other structure or part thereof let or used or intended to be let or used for the purpose of affording sitting or standing accommodation for a number of persons, shall be safely constructed or secured to the satisfaction of the surveyor of the urban authority.

Safety of platforms, etc., erected or used on public occasions.

This section, not being mentioned in s. 50 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 842), can only be put in force in a rural district by an Order of the Minister of Health under s. 5, ante, p. 4803. It is one of the two unrepealed sections in this part of the Act which have not been generally so applied.

The section applies to permanent as well as to temporary structures let or used for the accommodation of persons witnessing the show, etc. It will apply apparently to stands on racecourses.

It seems to be implied that a previous expression of satisfaction by the surveyor is not necessary, but it will be prudent in every case to obtain it.

A man who causes a building to be erected for viewing a public exhibition, and admits persons on payment of money to a seat in the building, impliedly undertakes that due care has been exercised in the erection, and that the building is reasonably fit for the purpose; and it is immaterial whether the money is to be appropriated to his own use or not (Francis v. Cockrell (1870), L. R. 5 Q. B. 501; 34 Digest 166, 1296). The principle of this decision was explained and applied in Maclean v. Segar, [1917] 2 K. B. 325; 36 Digest 123, 817, and in Brannigen v. Harrington (1921), 37 T. L. R. 349; 36 Digest 43, 260.

(2) Any person who uses or allows to be used, in contravention of this section, any roof of a building, platform, balcony, or structure not so safely constructed or secured, or who neglects to comply with the provisions of this section in respect thereof, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty pounds.

It does not appear what are "the provisions of this section in respect thereof." This clause seems to be unnecessary, as the mere user of a roof, etc., which is not safely constructed or secured to the satisfaction of the surveyor, renders the person using it liable to the penalty.

As to the recovery of the penalty, see s. 6, ante, p. 4804. Appeal against conviction lies to quarter sessions under s. 7, ante, p. 4804.

38. An urban authority may make byelaws for the prevention of danger from whirligigs and swings when such whirligigs and swings are driven by steam power, and from the use of firearms in shooting ranges and galleries.

Byelaws for prevention of danger from whirligigs, shooting galleries, etc.

This section was applied generally to rural districts by the Rural District Councils (Urban Powers) Order, 1931 of the Minister of Health under s. 5, ante, p. 4803. In rural districts it may also be possible to deal with steam roundabouts under s. 70 of the Highway Act, 1835 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 85); see 41 Sol. J. 754.

As to the making, etc., of these byelaws, see s. 9, ante, p. 4805. A town council could also formerly deal with these same matters by byelaws under the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, s. 23 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 584): see Teale v. Harris (1896), 60 J. P. 744; 38 Digest 159, 67. See also as to byelaws under local Acts, Southend-on-Sea Corporation v. Davis (1900), 16 T. L. R. 167.

The byelaws as to buildings will not apply to erections of the kind mentioned in the section: see Hall v. Smallpiece, and other cases cited therewith on pp. 198, 690, ante, but see now the P. H. A., 1936, s. 344, ante, p. 717, also there referred to.

Note to Section 38.

A local authority made under the Public Health (Ireland) Act, a byelaw that no person should cause or suffer any whirlingig or swing to be set in motion or driven on any land immediately adjoining or abutting upon any street or road within the district unless such whirlingig or swing was placed at a distance of not less than twenty yards from any road or street, and separated from any street or road by a wall not less than fourteen inches in thickness and carried up to a height of not less than four feet above the level of the street or road. It was held that the byelaw was unreasonable and void, inasmuch as it required a structure of a permanent character involving large expense to provide against a temporary danger, which could as effectively be provided against by a temporary structure (Enniscorthy U. D. C. v. Field, [1904] 2 I. R. 518).

Refuges, etc.
in streets.

39. An urban authority may from time to time place, maintain, alter, and remove in any street (a), being a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large (b), such raised paving or places of refuge, with such pillars, rails, or other fences, either permanent or temporary, as they may think fit. for the purpose of protecting passengers and traffic, either along the street or on the footways, from injury, danger, or annoyance, or for the purpose of making the crossing of any street less dangerous to passengers (c).

This section was applied generally to rural districts by the R. D. C.'s (Urban Powers) Order, 1931, ante, p. 3267, made by the Ministry of Health under s. 5, ante, p. 4803. The exercise of powers thereunder is, however, in the case of rural districts made subject to the consent of the county council.

The section and ss. 40 and 42, post, are by Sched. I. of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 975, applied to county councils in respect of all streets in rural districts and in respect of "county roads" (as defined by L. G. A., 1929, s. 29 (1), Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903) in urban districts. Rural district councils, if the sections have been put in force in their district by an Order, can function under the sections only with the consent of the county council (s. 30 (3), Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904), and this consent will also be necessary before the council of an urban district which has adopted the sections can function under the sections in relation to a "county road" (s. 31 (5), Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 906).

Further powers as to refuges and subways are conferred by the Road Traffic Act, 1930, s. 55 (Vol. V. and 23 Halsbury's Statutes 652).

Functions under this section are not exercisable by a district council by reason of any delegation under L. G. A., 1929, s. 35, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 910, since the section is not included in either Pt. I. or Pt. III. of Sched. I., Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 975, 977. See note to s. 36, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 911. The functions may, however, be delegated under s. 274 of L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1154.

(a) See the definition of "street," ante, p. 4336.

(b) On these words, see note (c) under the T. & C. P. A., 1932, s. 25, ante, p. 1947, and note (c) under P. H. A., 1875, s. 150, ante, p. 4393. In determining whether a place is a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large, regard should first be had to the time when dedication took place. Where there was dedication and user before 1836, when the Highway Act, 1835 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 50), came into operation, the road or place became ipso facto repairable by the parish, i.e., the inhabitants at large. Where, on the other hand, the dedication took place after 1836, no such liability is imposed on the parish unless the formalities prescribed by Highway Act, 1835, s. 23 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 59), have been observed, or unless the road has come into existence in one or other of the modes mentioned at p. 1948, ante. See per BLACKBURN, J., in R. v. Dukinfield (Inhabitants) (1863), 4 B. & S. 168; 27 J. P. 805; 26 Digest 362, 873; Eyre v. New Forest Highway Board (1892), 56 J. P. 517; 26 Digest 260, 5; Leigh U. C. v. King, [1901] 1 K. B. 747; 65 J. P. 243; 26 Digest 363, 882; Att.-Gen. v. Watford R. D. C., [1912] 1 Ch. 417; 76 J. P. 74; 26 Digest 285, 192, and the other cases and statutes referred to at p. 1947, ante. Where there has been a dedication since 1836 without such formalities there is, except as to a highway which has come into existence in one of the modes mentioned at p. 1948, ante, no one liable to repair: see R. v. Wilson (1852), 18 Q. B. 348; 16

J. P. 567 ; 26 Digest 363, 880 ; Roberts v. Hunt (1850), 15 Q. B. 17 ; 14 J. P. 226 ; 26 Digest 362, 879 ; Fawcett v. York and North Midland Rail. Co. (1851), 16 Q. B. 610 ; 38 Digest 310, 331 ; Cubitt v. Maxse (1873), L. R. 8 C. P. 704 ; sub nom. Maxse v. Cubitt, 37 J. P. 808 ; 26 Digest 282, 181.

Note to
Section 39.

(c) The P. H. A., 1875, s. 149, ante, p. 4375, enables an urban authority to place and keep in repair fences and posts for the safety of foot passengers, but does not contemplate the appropriation of part of the street for a refuge. The Road Traffic Act, 1930, s. 55 (Vol. V. and 23 Halsbury's Statutes 652), contains more specific provisions as to refuges and shelters.

As to the liability of a local authority for negligence in omitting to maintain a danger lamp on a refuge, see Baldock v. Westminster City Council (1918), 83 J. P. 98 ; 88 L. J. K. B. 502 ; 26 Digest 392, 1190. It should be observed, however, that this case was decided with reference to the Metropolis, where the obligation of a local authority to light the street differs from that arising under the P. H. A., 1875, s. 161, ante, p. 4445. The decision may, however, be of general application on the ground that if a local authority choose to provide a refuge they must take care that it does not create a danger if left without light. Cf. Sheppard v. Glossop Corporation, [1921] 3 K. B. 132 ; 85 J. P. 205 ; 26 Digest 393, 1197, where it was held that the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4445, conferred on authorities a discretion but imposed on them no duty to light streets ; that having begun they are not bound to continue to light a street ; and that if they do nothing to make the street dangerous, they are under no obligation, by lighting or otherwise, to give warning of danger.

40.—(1) An urban authority may from time to time provide, maintain, and remove in or near any street in their district suitable erections for the use, convenience, and shelter of drivers of hackney carriages, and such other persons as the urban authority may permit to use the same.

shelters.

This section has been applied generally to rural districts by the R. D. C.'s (Urban Powers) Order, 1931, ante, p. 3267, made by the Minister of Health under s. 5, ante, p. 4803, but the exercise of powers thereunder is made subject to the consent of the county council. It is applied to county councils by Sched. I., L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V., and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 975, in relation to all streets in a rural district and to "county roads" as defined by s. 29 (1), L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903, in urban districts.

As to the effect of that Act upon the exercise of functions under the section in the text by urban district councils in relation to "county roads" and by rural district councils, see the note to s. 39, ante, p. 4814.

For the definition of a "street," see ante, p. 4386.

There is nothing in the older Public Health Acts on this subject. Except under the power hereby conferred, a cabmen's shelter placed in a highway would be a nuisance, as being an obstruction of the public way.

For the definition of a "hackney carriage," see Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, s. 38, and Town Police Clauses Act, 1889, s. 4, ante, pp. 4237, 4785 ; Hickman v. Birch (1889), 24 Q. B. D. 172 ; 54 J. P. 406 ; 39 Digest 240, 146 ; Hawkins v. Edwards, [1901] 2 K. B. 169 ; 65 J. P. 423 ; 42 Digest 862, 143.

(2) The urban authority may from time to time make regulations for prescribing the terms and conditions and the fees (if any) to be charged for the use of such places of shelter, and may make byelaws for regulating the conduct of persons using the same.

Regulations are made under the P. H. A., 1875, s. 188, ante, p. 4468 ; they require no confirmation. As to the making, etc., of byelaws, see s. 9, ante, p. 4805.

41. Where this Part of this Act is adopted, section one hundred and fifty-two of the Public Health Act, 1875, shall be repealed, and the following provisions shall be substituted in lieu thereof :

Adoption of private streets.

(1) Whenever all or any of the works mentioned in section one hundred and fifty of the Public Health Act, 1875, have been executed in a street or part of a street under that section by an urban authority, and the urban authority are of opinion that such street or part of a street ought to become a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large, they may by notice to be fixed up in such street or part of a street declare the whole of such street or part of a street to be a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large, and thereupon such street or part of a street as defined in the notice shall become a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large.

See form of notice in the Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XII., p. 583. In districts where the Private Street Works Act, 1892, has been adopted, the section will not be in force: see ibid., ss. 19, 25, post, pp. 4866, 4869.

In Att.-Gen. v. Bidder (1881), 47 J. P. 263; 26 Digest 374, 996, it was held that s. 152, ante, p. 4423, was not a complement to s. 150, ante, p. 4388; that in order that an urban authority might declare a street not repairable by the inhabitants at large to be a highway, so that it might become so repairable, it was necessary that all the works specified in s. 152 should, at the time of declaration, have been executed upon the street to the satisfaction of the authority; that the authority had not under s. 152 any discretion as to which of the works therein mentioned they should require to be executed; that their discretion was limited to their being satisfied with the efficiency of each description of work when done; semble, also kerbing a road did not answer the requirement of the section that the road must be flagged, this term meaning paved with flagged stones; and wooden paving did not come within the meaning of any of the requirements of this section. See now as to this last dictum, s. 11 (2), ante, p. 4806.

This decision frequently prevented an authority from adopting a street, and the provision in the text was intended to obviate such difficulty. If this Part of the Act is adopted, and any of the works mentioned in s. 150 (i.e., sewerage, levelling, paving, metalling, flagging, channelling, making good, and lighting) have been done by the authority under that section, they may declare the street a highway, though some of these works may not have been done. The section does not, however, seem to deal with the case of owners voluntarily or upon notice from the authority carrying out the works required.

Where the P. H. A. Amendment A., 1907, s. 19, post, p. 5045, has been applied to a district, and the local authority have in pursuance of the provisions of sub-s. (4) been required to proceed under s. 150, they must declare a street to be a highway repairable, etc., as soon as the necessary works have been completed.

Section 82 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, enables the majority of the frontagers upon a street which has been made up under s. 150 of the P. H. A., 1875, since September 8th, 1925, to compel the urban authority to take over the street.

The Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4848, is now applied to all rural districts by its application to county councils as the highway authority in such districts by Sched. I. of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 975. Any powers formerly exercisable by rural district councils under s. 150 of the P. H. A., 1875, have been determined by L. G. A., 1929, s. 30 (3), Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904.

- (2) Provided that no such street shall become a highway so repairable if within one month after such notice has been put up the owner or the majority in number or value of owners of such street by notice in writing to the urban authority object thereto, and in ascertaining such majority joint owners shall be reckoned as one owner.

This sub-section corresponds with the concluding paragraph of the P. H. A., 1875, s. 152, ante, p. 4423, with the substitution of owners for proprietors. In Steward v. Metropolitan Electric Tramways, Ltd. (Oct. 23rd, 24th, 25th, 1907), WARRINGTON, J., held that the "owners" referred to are the owners of the soil of the street and not the frontagers (in a case where the latter do not also own the street itself). See form of notice of objection in the Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XII., p. 584.

42. Any urban authority may from time to time authorise the erection in any street or public place within their district of any statue or monument, and may maintain the same, and any statue or monument erected within their district before the adoption of this Part of this Act, and may remove any statue or monument the erection of which has been authorised by them. Section 42.
Statues and monuments.

This section is not applied to county councils by the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 883, but since they became the highway authority in respect of all streets in rural districts and of "county roads" in urban districts, their consent must be obtained to the erection of a statue or monument in a "county road" vested in them in addition to the authorisation by the district council required by this section.

This section has been applied generally to rural districts by the R. D. C.'s (Urban Powers) Order, 1931, ante, p. 3267, made by the Minister of Health under s. 5, ante, p. 4803, but powers thereunder may only be exercised with the consent of the county council. It has been found to be particularly useful for the purpose of enabling rural district councils to authorise the erection of war memorials on highways.

Hitherto it had been more than doubtful whether any statue or monument could lawfully be set up in a public highway. The urban authority are surveyors of highways under the P. H. A., 1875, s. 144, ante, p. 4350, but neither that section nor s. 149, ante, p. 4375, empowered them to put any permanent structure in a highway, thereby obstructing the public right of passage. In Hildreth v. Adamson (1860), 8 C. B. (N. S.) 587; 25 J. P. 645; 26 Digest 306, 375, the question was raised, but not decided, whether a public fountain might lawfully be erected in a highway.

Power to erect or consent to the erection of public drinking fountains in streets is given by s. 14 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, which may be adopted by any local authority.

As to the maintenance, etc., of war memorials, see the War Memorials (Local Authorities' Powers) Act, 1923, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 875.

43. Any urban authority may, if they see fit, cause trees to be planted in any highway repairable by the inhabitants at large within their district, and may erect guards or fences for the protection of the same, provided that this power shall not be exercised nor shall any trees so planted be continued so as to hinder the reasonable use of the highway by the public or any person entitled to use the same, or so as to become a nuisance or injurious to any adjacent owner or occupier. Trees in roads.

This section has been applied generally to rural districts by the R. D. C.'s (Urban Powers) Order, 1931, ante, p. 3267, made by the Minister of Health under s. 5, ante, p. 4803, but powers thereunder may only be exercised with the consent of the county council. It is applied to county councils by Sched. I., L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 975, in relation to "county roads" as defined by s. 29 (1), L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903, in urban and rural districts. As to the effect of that Act upon the exercise of functions under the section in the text by urban and rural district councils in relation to "county roads," see the note to s. 39, ante, p. 4814.

Apart from the provisions of this section an urban authority had no power to erect trees in a public highway. But now by the Roads Improvement Act, 1925, s. 1, Vol. V., post, the Minister of Transport, county councils, and highway authorities are empowered to plant trees or shrubs in and lay out grass margins to highways maintainable by him or them and to do anything expedient for the maintenance or protection of such trees, shrubs, and grass margins. The corporation of Lewes were convicted at the Sussex Assizes of causing a nuisance to the highway by planting trees therein ((1886), Times, March 9th). Even now under the above provisions the power to plant trees is not absolute; regard must be had to the public right of passage, and to the comfort and convenience of owners and occupiers. If these matters are not duly regarded it is probable that an indictment would lie as formerly. It has been held that an urban authority who under this section causes trees to be planted in a highway and erects guards for the protection of the same, has a duty to take reasonable steps to protect the public from accidents arising therefrom in any abnormal or exceptional circumstances that may occur (Morrison v. Sheffield Corporation, [1917] 2 K. B. 866; 81 J. P. 277; 26 Digest 445, 1623).

Section 43.

The adjacent owner may, if the branches overhang his land, cut them off, without notice to the authority, so far as they overhang his land, provided he does not go off his own land to do so (Lemmon v. Webb, [1895] A. C. 1; 59 J. P. 564; 36 Digest 205, 472). See also Smith v. Giddy, [1904] 2 K. B. 448, and Simmons v. Saunders (1914), 137 L. T. Jo. 39 (county court). As to roots undermining a neighbour's wall, see Middleton v. Humphries (1913), 47 L. L. T. 160; 2 Digest 65, h, and Butler v. Standard Telephones and Cables, Ltd., McCarthy v. Same, [1940] 1 K. B. 399; [1940] 1 All E. R. 121; Digest Supp.

The urban authority are not liable as highway authority to an action for damages at the suit of a person injured by a branch overhanging a highway which the authority have neglected to cause to be lopped so as to prevent injury and danger to persons lawfully using the highway, for such neglect is a mere non-feasance (Tregellas v. London C. C. (1897), 14 T. L. R. 55; 26 Digest 403, 1264). And where the route of an omnibus lies along a road lined by trees, which by permission of the owner the omnibus company have taken reasonable care to cut, an accident caused to an outside passenger by an overhanging branch does not render the company liable, if there is no evidence that the driver was driving too near the trees, or that he had any reason to suspect that they were overhanging (Trinder v. G. W. Ry. (1919), 35 T. L. R. 291; Digest Supp.), but see Radley v. London Passenger Transport Board, [1942] 1 All E. R. 433; 106 J. P. 164.

The Minister of Health is willing to entertain applications from urban authorities for sanction to loans for the provision of trees and the necessary guards. The usual term for repayment is ten years.

Parks and pleasure
grounds.

44.—(1) An urban authority may on such days as they think fit (not exceeding twelve days in any one year, nor four consecutive days on any one occasion) close to the public any park or pleasure ground provided by them or any part thereof, and may grant the use of the same, either gratuitously or for payment, to any public charity or institution, or for any agricultural, horticultural, or other show, or any other public purpose, or may use the same for any such show or purpose; and the admission to the said park or pleasure ground, or such part thereof, on the days when the same shall be so closed to the public may be either with or without payment, as directed by the urban authority, or, with the consent of the urban authority, by the society or persons to whom the use of the park or pleasure ground, or such part thereof, may be granted: Provided that no such park or pleasure ground shall be closed on any Sunday or public holiday.

See s. 164 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4451, and the notes thereto, and ss. 76 and 77 of the P. H. A. Amendment A., 1907, post, p. 5055. The last-mentioned sections will, however, only apply to districts where they have been put in force by Order of the L. G. B. or the Minister of Health, though the first has now been generally applied to rural districts. See also s. 56 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, which applies to all districts in which ss. 76 and 77 of the P. H. A. Amendment A., 1907, are in force, and may be applied to any other district by an order of the Minister.

This section has now been generally applied to rural districts by the R. D. C.'s (Urban Powers) Order, 1931, ante, p. 3267, made by the Minister of Health under s. 5, ante, p. 4803. The powers must, of course, be combined with those of s. 164 of the P. H. A., 1875, which are now also generally applied to rural districts (see ante, p. 4451). In rural districts, however, the parish councils have similar powers for the provision and maintenance of recreation grounds, so that it is not often necessary for the rural district council to act. See s. 8 (1) (b) and (d) of the L. G. A., 1894, post, p. 4896.

The fact that charges may be made for the use of the park or pleasure ground under this section does not apparently make it rateable (Manchester Corporation v. Chorlton Union (1899), 15 T. L. R. 327; 36 Digest 247, 13; Liverpool Corporation

v. West Derby Assessment Committee, [1908] 2 K. B. 647; 72 J. P. 397; 36 Digest 248, 20; but see North Riding of Yorkshire County Valuation Committee v. Redcar Corporation, [1942] 2 All E. R. 589.

Note to
Section 44.

(2) An urban authority may either themselves provide and let for hire, or may license any person to let for hire, any pleasure boats on any lake or piece of water in any such park or pleasure ground, and may make byelaws for regulating the numbering and naming of such boats, the number of persons to be carried therein, the boathouses and mooring places for the same, and for fixing rates of hire and the qualifications of boatmen, and for securing their good and orderly conduct while in charge of any boat.

This provision applies only when there is a lake or water in a public park or pleasure ground provided by the authority. They cannot provide boats, etc. for use on the sea or a river, though they may license the owners and boatmen of boats and vessels under the P. H. A., 1875, s. 172, ante, p. 4460. Boats provided under this section need not apparently be registered under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 162): see Southport (Mayor, etc. of) v. Morriss, [1893] 1 Q. B. 359; 57 J. P. 231; 41 Digest 672, 5035.

As to the making, etc. of the byelaws, see s. 9, ante, p. 4805.

45. The powers of an urban authority under section one hundred and sixty-four of the Public Health Act, 1875, to contribute to the support of public walks or pleasure grounds, shall include a power to contribute towards the cost of the laying out, planting, or improvement of any lands provided by any person which have been permanently set apart as public walks or pleasure grounds, and which, whether in the district of the urban authority or not, are so situated as to be conveniently used by the inhabitants of the district, and shall also include a power to contribute towards the purchase by any person of lands so situate and to be so set apart as aforesaid.

Extension of
88 & 89 Vict.
c. 55, s. 164.

This section has been applied generally in rural districts by the R. D. C.'s (Urban Powers) Order, 1931, ante, p. 3267, made by the Minister of Health under s. 5, ante, p. 4803.

See the P. H. A., 1875, s. 164, ante, p. 4451, and the notes thereto, and the last section.

The word "person" includes a body corporate (P. H. A., 1875, s. 4, ante, p. 4384), and the text, therefore, enables an authority to contribute towards the purchase, laying out, and support of public walks, etc., provided by an adjoining authority.

46. Section one hundred and sixty-five of the Public Health Act, 1875, shall be extended so as to enable any urban authority to pay the reasonable cost of the repairing, maintaining, winding up, and lighting any public clock within their district although the same be not vested in them.

Extension of
88 & 89 Vict.
c. 55, s. 165.

The P. H. A., 1875, s. 165, ante, p. 4457, enables an urban authority to provide public clocks, and to cause them to be lighted at night. The text enables them to maintain public clocks, such as those on churches, etc., though they did not provide them, and though such clocks are not their property. Both s. 165 of the Act of 1875 and the section in the text have been applied generally to rural districts by the R. D. C.'s (Urban Powers) Order, 1931, ante, p. 3267, made by the Ministry of Health.

PART IV.

MUSIC AND DANCING.

51. For the regulation of places ordinarily used for public dancing or music, or other public entertainment of the like kind, the following provisions shall have effect (namely):

Music and dancing licences.

Note to Section 51.

A rural authority can only obtain these powers by means of an Order of the Minister of Health under s. 5, ante, p. 4808. Any application for such an Order should be made by resolution of the council, a copy of which should be forwarded with a statement of the grounds upon which the application is based. The Minister will probably require to know the names and situation of the establishments which will come under the section if it is made operative, and whether complaints have been made respecting them. A local inquiry has been directed in some cases. An application may also be made by a county council, a parish council, or by ratepayers: see the P. H. A., 1875, s. 276, ante, p. 4502, s. 5 of this Act, ante, p. 4808, and the L. G. A., 1894, s. 25 (7), post, p. 4907.

When this Part of the Act is adopted by an urban authority, the resolution of the authority must be sent to the Ministry of Health and to a Secretary of State: see s. 3 (5), ante, p. 4808.

In many towns local Acts in pari materia are in force.

Other statutory provisions

As to Army and Navy recreation rooms, see the Army (Annual) Act, 1889, s. 7.

The section does not apply (see sub-s. (12), post, p. 4826) in or within 20 miles of the cities of London or Westminster, in which area the provisions on the point are— (i) in the administrative county of Middlesex, the Music and Dancing Licenses (Middlesex) Act, 1894 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 349); (ii) in Buckinghamshire, Essex, Hertfordshire and Kent, and the county boroughs of Croydon, East Ham and West Ham, the Home Counties (Music and Dancing) Licensing Act, 1926 (op. cit. 363); and (iii) in other parts of the area the Disorderly Houses Act, 1751 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 359), as amended by the Public Entertainments Act, 1875 (op. cit. 681).

The provisions of both the Middlesex Act, supra, and the Home Counties Act, supra, are almost the same as those of this section except that the respective county councils and county borough councils and not the justices are the licensing authority.

Decisions under Disorderly Houses Act,
1751, etc.

The Disorderly Houses Act, 1751, s. 2 (op. cit. 360), provides that any house, room, garden, or other place kept for public dancing, music, or other public entertainment of the like kind, in the cities of London and Westminster, or within twenty miles thereof (repealed by the Middlesex Act, supra, as regards the administrative county of Middlesex, and by the Home Counties Act, supra, as regards the area scheduled thereto), without a licence had for that purpose from the preceding Michaelmas quarter sessions of the peace (now the London County Council) (L. G. A., 1888, s. 3, ante, p. 4722) shall be deemed a disorderly house or place. See also L. G. A., 1888, s. 4, and the amending Public Entertainments Act, 1875 (as to hours of opening), both also repealed as to Middlesex, and the area scheduled to the Home Counties Act, supra.

The following cases have been decided with reference to the Act of 1751: It extends to houses kept for the purpose of comparatively private dancing, not only to perfectly public places (Clarke v. Searle (1793), 1 Esp. 25); but a room kept by a dancing master for the instruction of his scholars and subscribers, and to which persons are not indiscriminately admitted, is not within it (Bellis v. Burghall (1799), 2 Esp. 722; 15 Digest 757, 8148).

A room in which musical performances are regularly given, though it is not kept or used solely for that purpose, is within the statute, and requires a licence (Bellis v. Beal (1797), 2 Esp. 591; 42 Digest 919, 144).

The statute extends to licensed taverns and hotels, and it is no defence that the company frequenting the performance was respectable or that the admission money was not received for the benefit of the keeper of the house (Green v. Botheroyd (1828), 3 C. & P. 471; 15 Digest 757, 8150). But a temporary use of a room in a public-house for the purpose of dancing on a particular festival or occasion does not subject the owner to a penalty (Shutt v. Lewis (1804), 5 Esp. 128; 8 R. R. 840; 15 Digest 758, 8163).

To subject a party to penalties for keeping a house for illegal dancing and music, it is not necessary that he should take money for admission (Archer v. Willingrice (1802), 4 Esp. 186; 15 Digest 757, 8149). Where a room above the bar of a public-house was used for music and dancing, the keeper of the house was held liable for not having a licence, though the persons using the room paid nothing to him for it (Frailing v. Messenger (1867), 31 J. P. 423; 16 L. T. 494; 15 Digest 758, 8152). A room used for public music or dancing is within the statute, although it is not exclusively used for those purposes, and although no money is taken for admission; but the mere accidental or occasional use of a room for either or both of these purposes will not be within the statute (Gregory v. Tuffs (1833), 6 C. & P. 271; 1 Mood & R. 313; 15 Digest 758, 8162; Gregory v. Tavernor (1833), 6 C. & P. 280; 15 Digest 758, 8164).

In an action to recover the penalty for keeping an unlicensed house for public dancing, it appeared that music, dancing, etc., had occasionally taken place at the defendant's publichouse, and that no money was taken by him for admission, but the rooms were let to persons who sold tickets and received money for admission at the door; but there was no direct evidence that the defendant knew of this practice:—Held, that there was evidence to go to the jury of a keeping of the house by the defendant for the purposes mentioned, and that the judge was wrong in directing a non-suit (Marks v. Benjamin (1839), 5 M. & W. 565; 4 J. P. 44; 15 Digest 758, 8151).

No action can be maintained on an agreement to exhibit entertainment for gain in a place where, by the statute, a licence cannot be obtained (Levy v. Yates (1838), 8 Ad. & El. 129; 3 Nev. & P. K. B. 249; 42 Digest 904, 7).

A room kept for public dancing or music without a licence is a disorderly house under this Act, though no disorderly or improper conduct is allowed. The preamble does not confine the section to "places of entertainment for the lower sort of people," where robberies are likely to ensue. A defendant indicted for keeping such house must prove his licence (R. v. Wolfe (1849), 13 J. P. 428; 15 Digest 758, 8158).

A. kept a room which was used as a supper-room and place of general refreshment, there being at the end of it a raised platform, on which stood a piano, and where songs were constantly sung. Programmes of the performance were laid about in different parts of the room. The company was respectable, and no money was paid for admission, nor any extra charge made for the articles consumed there. An action having been brought for a penalty under the Act, the judge asked the jury whether the room was used for the purpose of supplying refreshments in the manner of an hotel, the music and singing being incidental merely, or whether it was used principally for musical performances; and ultimately he directed them to consider whether the room was used for both purposes, in which latter case the informer would be entitled to the verdict. The jury said that the room was used for the purpose of an hotel, and found a verdict for A.:—Held, that although the verdict might be against the evidence, there was no misdirection (Hall v. Green (1853), 9 Exch. 247; 17 J. P. 777; 15 Digest 758, 8165).

Under similar words in a local Act it was held that to bring a case within the statute the music and dancing must be an essential part of the entertainment, and not merely accessories to it. It is not necessary that the dancing should be by the public (Quaglieni v. Matthews (1865), 6 B. & S. 474; 29 J. P. 439; 15 Digest 758, 8154). See also 73 J. P. N. 458 (a gramophone and cinematograph entertainment combined).

A common informer having recovered in an action from the defendant the penalty of £100 for keeping a house without a licence, it was held that only one penalty was recoverable, and that a second action by another common informer to recover a like penalty was not maintainable (Garrett v. Messenger (1867), L. R. 2 C. P. 583; 31 J. P. 423; 15 Digest 759, 8171); but see also Girdlestone v. Brighton Aquarium Co. (1879), 4 Ex. D. 107; 43 J. P. 428; 15 Digest 760, 8178; Barrett v. Johnson (1836), 2 Jo. Ex. Ir. Rep. 197; Apothecaries Co. v. Jones, [1893] 1 Q. B. 89; 57 J. P. 56; 34 Digest 558, 170.

Under the statute the justices have a discretion to grant a licence for music only; and the keeper of a house with a music licence only is liable to a penalty for keeping a house without a licence if he permits public dancing in the house (Brown v. Nugent (1871), L. R. 6 Q. B. 693; 36 J. P. 22; on appeal (1872), L. R. 7 Q. B. 588; 42 Digest 919, 151).

Under similar provisions in a local Act it was held that the justices had an implied right to grant the licence for one year, though no period was mentioned in the statute, and that they were entitled to refuse to renew it (Hoffmann v. Bond (1875), 40 J. P. 5; 32 L. T. 775; 42 Digest 920, 152). See hereon sub-s. (2), post, p. 4823.

The defendant kept a skating rink, enclosed by a wall, partly roofed with canvas and partly open to the air. It was open for skating in the daytime and in the evening. In the daytime there was no music. In the evening a band played operatic and dance music while the skaters skated. The defendant had no licence. It was held that he might be properly convicted of keeping a place of public entertainment of a like kind to music and dancing without a licence, and, semble, that he might also be convicted Note to Section 51. of keeping a place for public music without a licence (R. v. Tucker (1877), 2 Q. B. D. 417; 41 J. P. 405; 15 Digest 759, 8167).

C. was lessee of a theatre duly licensed under Theatres Act, 1843 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 335); he also held a justices' licence under the Act of 1751 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 359), and on Ash Wednesday he gave a concert in the theatre, to which the public were admitted for money. Both his licences contained a regulation that no entertainment should be given on Ash Wednesday. It was held that he did not commit an offence against the Act of 1751, as the concert was not a public entertainment ejusdem generis with public dancing, and, at all events, the room was not habitually kept for such entertainment (Syers v. Conquest (1873), 37 J. P. 342; 28 L. T. 402; 15 Digest 758, 8156).

D. was convicted under the Theatres Act, 1843, for keeping a place for the public performance of stage plays, and for causing to be acted there certain parts in a stage play without the licence required by that Act. It was proved that he was the occupier of a hall, which, though licensed for public dancing and music, was not licensed as a theatre, and that one end of that hall was fitted up with a stage, where, with lights and scenery and the other accessories of a stage, he caused to be presented for the amusement of the public, for which they paid, a performance sustained by living persons with a dialogue between them and a regular plot, distinguished only from an ordinary stage play by all the actors except two (the dialogue between whom was wholly subordinate to the plot of the piece) being not bodily on the stage, but represented merely by a reflection of their figures on a mirror at the back of the stage, so ingeniously contrived that to the spectators the appearance was that of persons actually upon the stage:—Held, that there had been a violation of the statute, and that the conviction was right (Day v. Simpson (1865), 18 C. B. (N.S.) 680; 34 L. J. M. C. 149; 42 Digest 918, 138).

A performance in a place duly registered as a place of public worship, in which no music but sacred music is performed or sung, where nothing dramatic is introduced, where the discourses delivered are intended to be instructive and contain nothing hostile to religion, is not an entertainment within the meaning of the Sunday Observance Act, 1780 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 379). Therefore, where services were held on a Sunday evening in a registered place, and at such services sacred music was performed by amateur and professional performers, and addresses given, and a small sum charged for reserved seats, it was held that an action could not be maintained against the president of such association under the above Act (Baxter v. Langley (1868), L. R. 4 C. P. 21; 32 J. P. 805; 15 Digest 759, 8173). See for other cases under this Act, Reid v. Wilson, [1895] 1 Q. B. 315; 59 J. P. 516; 15 Digest 759, 8177; Terry v. Brighton Aquarium Co. (1875), L. R. 10 Q. B. 306; 39 J. P. 519; 15 Digest 759, 8174; Warner v. Brighton Aquarium Co. (1875), L. R. 10 Exch. 291; 15 Digest 759, 8175; Girdlestone v. Brighton Aquarium Co. (1879), 4 Ex. D. 107; 43 J. P. 428; 15 Digest 760, 8178; Orpen v. Haymarket Capitol, Ltd. (1931), 95 J. P. 199; Digest Supp.; Kelly v. Allen (1936), 80 Sol. Jo. 148; Green v. Berliner, [1936] 2 K. B. 477; [1936] 1 All E. R. 199; Digest Supp.; Kitchener v. Evening Standard Co., Ltd., [1936] 1 K. B. 576; [1936] 1 All E. R. 48; Digest Supp.; Green v. Kursaal (Southend-on-Sea) Estates, Ltd., [1937] 1 All E. R. 732; Digest Supp. As to remission of penalties, see Remission of Penalties Act, 1875, s. 1 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 687).

1. After the expiration of six months from the adoption of this Part of this Act, a house, room, garden, or other place (a), whether licensed or not for the sale of wine, spirits, beer, or other fermented or distilled liquors, shall not be kept or used for public dancing, singing, music, or other public entertainment of the like kind (b) without a licence for the purpose or purposes (c) for which the same respectively is to be used first obtained from the licensing justices of the licensing district (d) in which the house, room, garden, or place is situate, and for the registration thereof a fee of five shillings shall be paid by the person applying therefor (e);

"Place."

(a) By the proviso to s. 5 of the Baths and Washhouses Act, 1878, no covered or open swimming bath provided under the Baths and Washhouses Acts when closed during the winter months might be used for music or dancing. But this proviso was repealed as to the county of London by the Baths and Washhouses Act, 1896 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 873), and as to places outside that county by the Baths and Washhouses Act, 1899 (op. cit. 880): Att.-Gen. v. Walthamstow U. C., [1910] 1 Ch. 347; 74 J. P. 147; 38 Digest 207, 426; Att.-Gen. v. Shoreditch Corporation, [1915] 2 Ch. 154; 79 J. P. 369; 38 Digest 207, 427.

As to naval and military recreation rooms, see the Army (Annual) Act, 1889, s. 7.

As to what is "a place" within the meaning of the Act, reference may be made to cases under the Betting Act, 1853 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1156). B. hired a piece of ground on the cliff near the end of the esplanade at Margate, and permitted certain persons to use a portion of the land for public entertainments, comprising music and dancing. This portion was enclosed partly by ropes and stakes, and partly by chains, no charge for admission being made, but a hat being passed round for donations after each turn, and the performers being accommodated with a tent for dressing purposes. It was held that B. ought to have a licence under this Act (Farndale v. Bainbridge (1898), Times, January 14th). See also as to occasional user of wireless in a hotel Badger v. James (1934), 78 Sol. Jo. 768.

(b) The landlord of an hotel, by merely permitting his customers on many occasions "Keep or to sing in one of the public rooms of the hotel, and to use a pianoforte kept there by use," him, does not thereby keep or use such room for public singing, music, or other public entertainment of the like kind within the meaning of the section (Brearley v. Morley, [1899] 2 Q. B. 121; 63 J. P. 582; 15 Digest 759, 8172). See also Hall v. Green, Quaglieni v. Matthews, R. v. Tucker, on p. 4821—2, ante. See also as to what amounts to "keeping or using," Marks v. Benjamin, ante, p. 4821; Martin v. Benjamin, [1907] 1 K. B. 64; 71 J. P. 30; 25 Digest 458, 465; R. v. Belfast J.J., [1914] 2 I. R. 181; Vecsey v. Smith (1916), 81 J. P. 1; 86 L. J. K. B. 249; 2 Digest 197, 558, and also Orpen v. Haymarket Capitol, Ltd., and other cases cited supra. See also as to gramophone music, 72 J. P. N. 160. Whether the dancing, etc. is public or not is a question of fact for the justices. The trustees of a burial society owned a room which, when not required for the purposes of the society, was let by them for balls, etc. It was so let on several occasions to a committee of gentlemen who got up subscription dances, for which they issued invitations to subscribers of one guinea or more, each subscriber of one guinea securing thereby admission for himself and one lady. It was held that a decision of quarter sessions quashing a conviction of the trustees for not having a licence, on the ground that the balls were not public, could not be reversed, it being a question of fact whether the balls were public or not (Maloney v. Lingard (1898), Times, January 14th).

The "user" or "keeping" must be more or less regular (Marks v. Benjamin, Syers v. Conquest, and other cases on pp. 4821 et seq.).

(c) They may grant a licence for one purpose only: see Brown v. Nugent, ante, p. 4821. A music and dancing licence does not cover stage plays (Levy v. Yates, Day v. Simpson, pp. 4821—2, ante), nor does a theatre licence cover music and dancing (Syers v. Conquest, p. 4822, ante). But the same room may have both licences.

(d) For definitions of "licensing justices," "licensing district," see sub-s. (13), post, p. 4826.

(e) This fee is presumably payable to the clerk of the justices. Under the Middlesex Act, ante, p. 4820, no fee is payable for a charitable entertainment. Under the Home Counties Act, ante, p. 4820, a reduced fee is payable for a charitable entertainment.

2. Such justices may, under the hands of a majority of them assembled at their general annual licensing meeting or at any adjournment thereof or at any special session convened with fourteen days' previous notice, grant licences to such persons as they think fit to keep or use houses, rooms, gardens, or places for all or any of the purposes aforesaid upon such terms and conditions, and subject to such restrictions as they by the respective licences determine, and every licence shall be in force for one year or for such shorter period as the justices on the grant of the licence

Note to
Section 51.

shall determine, unless the same shall have been previously revoked as hereinafter provided :

The general annual licensing meeting, at which new licences and renewals of licence for the sale of intoxicating liquor are granted, is held within the first fourteen days of February in every year. The justices must hold at least one adjournment of the meeting, not less than six days and not more than a month after the original meeting : see the Licensing (Consolidation) Act, 1910, s. 10 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 991).

The "special session" here mentioned is not a "transfer session" for the transfer of liquor licences. It is an ordinary special session of the justices of the division convened in the usual way. See R. v. Oldham JJ., Ex parte Mellor (1909), 73 J. P. 390 ; 101 L. T. 430 ; 42 Digest 920, 155, as to a slightly different clause in a local Act. As to the notice of the intention to apply for a licence, see sub-s. (4), post, p. 4825.

A licence may be granted for music only, or for dancing only, or as the case may be : see Broun v. Nugent, ante, p. 4821. Applications for these licences must be determined judicially. See R. v. London C. C., Ex parte Akkersdyk, Ex parte Fermentia, [1892] 1 Q. B. 190 ; 56 J. P. 8 ; 33 Digest 103, 698 ; Royal Aquarium and Summer and Winter Garden Society v. Parkinson, [1892] 1 Q. B. 431 ; 56 J. P. 404 ; 33 Digest 104, 699.

As to the duration of the licence, see also Hoffman v. Bond, ante, p. 4821.

Temporary licences may also be granted by petty sessions under sub-s. (11), post, p. 4826.

Justices have full discretion in granting or transferring these licences, and the Act gives no appeal against a refusal, for the justices are not a Court of Summary Jurisdiction within the meaning of s. 7, ante, p. 4804. See Huish v. Liverpool JJ., [1914] 1 K. B. 109 ; 78 J. P. 45 ; 42 Digest 920, 156. Cf. R. v. Ashton, Ex parte Walker (1916), 79 J. P. 444 ; Digest Supp., where a right of appeal was given under a local Act.

The terms, conditions, and restrictions annexed to a licence may be conveniently indorsed on the licence, and may be printed or written. Apparently a condition that the licensee should not apply for a licence to sell intoxicating liquors would, if imposed under the special circumstances of the case and not in pursuance of any general rule to that effect, be held good : see R. v. West Riding of Yorkshire C. C., [1896] 2 Q. B. 386 ; 60 J. P. 550 ; 42 Digest 904, 10 ; Manchester Palace of Varieties, Ltd. v. Manchester Corporation (1898), 62 J. P. 425 ; 42 Digest 904, 11 ; R. v. Sheerness U. D. C. (1898), 62 J. P. 563 ; 14 T. L. R. 533 ; 42 Digest 904, 12. The holder of a music and dancing licence (as opposed to a theatre licence) cannot obtain a liquor licence without a justices' licence therefore (R. v. Inland Revenue Commissioners (1888), 21 Q. B. D. 569 ; 52 J. P. 390 ; 42 Digest 765, 1914).

In granting a music and dancing licence for a hall in connection with licensed premises, the justices imposed a condition that a sum of 3d. (at least) should be charged to each person for admission, and should not be refunded in the form of refreshment. It was held that the imposition of such a condition was justified (Ex parte Richards (1904), 68 J. P. 536 ; 20 T. L. R. 669 ; 42 Digest 920, 153).

London C. C.*, [1925] 1 K. B. 213 ; 89 J. P. 6 ; 42 Digest 922, 171. Provisional licences for buildings projected but not yet erected, may not be granted (R. v. Barnstaple JJ., Ex parte Carlier, [1938] 1 K. B. 385 ; [1937] 4 All E. R. 263 ; 101 J. P. 547 ; Digest Supp.). A licence permitting public dancing on Sundays is illegal (R. v. Hereford Licensing JJ., Ex parte Newton, [1940] 4 All E. R. 479 ; 104 J. P. 441 ; Digest Supp.).

As to the revocation of a licence, see sub-s. 9, post, p. 4826.

Conditions attached to licences.

3. Such justices may from time to time at any such special session aforesaid transfer any such licence to such person as they think fit : Section 51.

As to the "special session," see the note to the preceding sub-section.

As to the notice of intention to transfer, see the next sub-section.

A transfer will be necessary upon each change of occupier, as the licence is a personal one, as well as in respect of the particular premises.

4. Each person shall in each case give fourteen days' notice to the clerk of the licensing justices and to the chief officer of police of the police district in which the house, room, garden, or place is situated, of his intention to apply for any such licence or for the transfer of any such licence :

As to the clerk of the licensing justices and the chief officer of police, see sub-s. 13, post, p. 4826. In the case of renewals notice is not necessary (sub-s. 10, post, p. 4826); see also sub-s. 11, post, p. 4826, as to licences for short periods.

5. Any house, room, garden, or place kept or used for any of the purposes aforesaid without such licence first obtained shall be deemed a disorderly house, and the person occupying or rated as occupier of the same shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds for every day on which the same is kept or used for any of the purposes last aforesaid :

Though the house is to be deemed a disorderly house, it does not appear that the occupier will be liable to indictment for keeping a disorderly house, as a penalty is here provided which will be recoverable as provided by s. 6, ante, p. 4804, with appeal to quarter sessions under s. 7, ante, p. 4804. In this respect the present enactment differs from the Disorderly Houses Act, 1751, s. 2 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 360), under which the occupier is liable to a penalty, and to be otherwise punishable as the law directs in cases of disorderly houses. The Middlesex Act (ante, p. 4820) provides for entry and arrest by constables. The Home Counties Act (ante, p. 4820) provides for entry by a constable authorised by a warrant from a justice.

Note, that it is the occupier, and not the person using, who is liable: cf. R. v. Belfast JJ., [1914] 2 I. R. 181; and see Bruce v. McMannus, [1915] 3 K. B. 1; 79 J. P. 294; 42 Digest 924, 188.

6. There shall be affixed and kept up in some conspicuous place on the door or entrance of every house, room, garden, or place so kept or used and so licensed as aforesaid, an inscription in large capital letters in the words following: "Licensed in pursuance of Act of Parliament for _____," with the addition of words showing the purpose or purposes for which the same is licensed :

The fixing and keeping up of this inscription must be inserted in and made a condition of every licence (sub-s. 8, infra), and a penalty for breach of the condition is imposed by sub-s. 9, infra.

7. Any house, room, garden, or place so kept or used, although so licensed as aforesaid, shall not be opened for any of the said purposes except on the days and between the hours stated in the licence :

The Middlesex Act and the Home Counties Act (p. 4820, ante) are in different terms. As to a condition not to open on Ash Wednesday, see Syers v. Conquest, ante, p. 4822. And as to Sundays, see the Sunday Observance Act, 1780 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 379), and Baxter v. Langley and cases cited therewith on p. 4822, ante.

Section 51.

8. The affixing and keeping up of such inscription as aforesaid, and the observance of the days and hours of opening and closing, shall be inserted in and made a condition of every such licence :

As to the penalties for breach of this condition, see the next sub-section.

9. In case of any breach or disregard of any of the terms or conditions upon or subject to which the licence was granted, the holder thereof shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds, and to a daily penalty not exceeding five pounds, and such licence shall be liable to be revoked by the order of a court of summary jurisdiction :

As to the recovery of this penalty, see s. 6, ante, p. 4804. For the definition of a daily penalty, see s. 11 (3), ante, p. 4807. Appeal against conviction lies to quarter sessions under s. 7, ante, p. 4804.

10. No notice need be given under sub-section four of this section when the application is for a renewal of any existing licence held by the applicant for the same premises :

In other words, notice under sub-s. 4, ante, p. 4825, is necessary only on an application for a new licence or for a transfer, and not on application for a mere renewal.

11. The justices in any petty sessions may, if and as they think fit, grant to any person applying for the same a licence to keep or use any house, room, garden, or place for any purpose within the meaning of this section for any period not exceeding fourteen days which they shall specify in such licence, notwithstanding that no notices shall have been given under sub-section four of this section :

No notice is necessary before such an application is made. The application is to petty sessions for the grant of a licence for a period not exceeding fourteen days.

12. This section shall not apply within twenty miles of the cities of London or Westminster :

Within this area either the Disorderly Houses Act, 1751 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 359), or the Music and Dancing Licenses (Middlesex) Act, 1894 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 349), or the Home Counties (Music and Dancing) Licensing Act, 1926 (op. cit. 363), are in force.

13. In this section the expressions "licensing justice," "licensing district," and "clerk of the licensing justices" have respectively the same meanings as in the Licensing Acts, 1872—1874 (a) ; the expression "police district" means any area for which a separate police force is maintained ; and the expression "chief officer of police" means the chief constable, head constable, or other officer, by whatever name called, having the chief command of such separate police force (b).

(a) See now the Licensing (Consolidation) Act, 1910, ss. 2, 48 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 986, 1015), for definitions of these terms.

(b) A police district may be a county or a borough which has a separate police force.

[S. 52 was repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI., Pt. IV., ante, pp. 1194, 1284.]

Section 1.

THE RAILWAY AND CANAL TRAFFIC (PROVISIONAL ORDERS) AMENDMENT ACT, 1891.

(54 & 55 VICT. c. 12) (a).

An Act to remove doubts as to the Powers of Public Bodies in reference to Provisional Order Bills under the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1888.

[11th May, 1891.]

Whereas (b)

1. Every governing body within the meaning of the Borough Funds Act (c) . . . and every county council shall be entitled to be a petitioner and to appear and oppose any Bill to confirm any provisional order made under section twenty-four of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1888 (d), and to provide or contribute towards providing the expenses of the appearance or opposition of a petitioner out of the funds or rates under their respective control, as if the Bill for confirming such provisional order were a local or personal Bill within the meaning of section two of the Borough Funds Act, . . . and the provisions of the said last-mentioned Act . . . shall apply to any such appearance or opposition, and to any expenses incurred or to be incurred in relation thereto: Provided that in the case of a county council no consent of owners and ratepayers shall be required.

Powers of governing bodies and county councils with reference to Bills for confirming provisional orders made under 51 & 52 Vict. c. 25, s. 24.

(a) This Act amends the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1888, s. 24, ante, p. 4709. Its effect so far as regards sanitary authorities is to enable them to petition against and oppose any Bill confirming any provisional order under that section, subject only to compliance with the requirements of Part XIII. of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1116. Words relating to Scotland or Ireland only have been omitted throughout the Act. As to the omission of the clause of enactment, see s. 4 of the S. L. R. A., 1894 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1020).

(b) The preamble (repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1908 (op. cit. 1175)), after referring to the Borough Funds Act, 1872 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 559), the L. G. A., 1888, ante, p. 4722, and s. 24 of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1888, recited that doubt had been felt whether governing bodies as defined by the Act of 1872 and county councils had power to apply funds or rates under their control in opposing, or subscribing towards the opposition of, any Bill to confirm a Provisional Order under s. 24 of the Act of 1888, and that it was expedient to remove such doubts.

(c) The Borough Funds Acts were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, but ample powers for this purpose are contained in ibid., Part XIII., ante, p. 1116.

(d) See that section, ante, p. 4709.

2. This Act may be cited as "The Railway and Canal Traffic (Provisional Short title. Orders) Amendment Act, 1891."

THE MUSEUMS AND GYMNASIUMS ACT, 1891.

(54 & 55 VICT. c. 22.)

An Act to enable Urban Authorities to provide and maintain Museums and Gymnasiums (a).

[3rd July, 1891.]

(a) This Act in so far as it relates to gymnasiums was repealed by the Physical Training and Recreation Act, 1937, ante, p. 1570, and now has effect only in respect of certain museums saved by the Public Libraries Act, 1919, post, p. 5238. The Act had previously been amended by the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 735, and the sections are printed as so amended.

1. This Act may be cited as "The Museums and Gymnasiums Act, 1891." Short title.

Section 2.

Extent of Act.

2.—(1) This Act shall extend to any district where the same is adopted as hereinafter provided, but only so far as the adoption extends.

(2) This Act shall not extend to Scotland or the administrative county of London.

Application of Act.

3.—(1) This Act may be adopted by any urban authority (a) for their district either wholly or so far as it relates to museums only or to gymnasiums only.

(2) The adoption shall be by a resolution passed at a meeting of the urban authority, and one month at least before such meeting special notice of the meeting and of the intention to propose such resolution shall be given to every member of the authority, and the notice shall be deemed to have been duly given to a member of it, if it is either—

(a) Given in the mode in which notices to attend meetings of the authority are usually given ; or

(b) Where there is no such mode, then signed by the clerk of the authority, and delivered to the member or left at his usual or last known place of abode in England, or forwarded by post in a prepaid letter, addressed to the member at his usual or last known place of abode in England.

(3) Such resolution shall be published by advertisement in some one or more newspapers circulating within the district of the authority, and by causing notice thereof to be affixed to the principal doors of every church and chapel in the place to which notices are usually fixed, and otherwise in such manner as the authority think sufficient for giving notice thereof to all persons interested, and shall come into operation at a time not less than one month after the first publication of the advertisement of the resolution as the authority may by the resolution fix, and upon its coming into operation the Act shall extend to that district.

(4) A copy of the resolution shall be sent to the Local Government Board (b).

(5) A copy of the advertisement shall be conclusive evidence of the resolution having been passed, unless the contrary be shown ; and no objection to the effect of the resolution, on the ground that notice of the intention to propose the same was not duly given, or on the ground that the resolution was not sufficiently published, shall be made after three months from the date of the first advertisement.

(a) See the definition of an urban authority in s. 14, post, p. 4831.

(b) The L. G. B. has now been superseded by the Minister of Health. (See Ministry of Health Act, 1919, post, p. 5189).

Power to provide museum and gymnasium.

4 (a). An urban authority may provide and maintain museums for the reception of local antiquities or other objects of interest, and gymnasiums with all the apparatus ordinarily used therewith, and may erect any buildings, and generally do all things necessary for the provision and maintenance of such museums and gymnasiums (b).

(a) So much of this section as relates to the provision of museums is now of no effect (s. 9, Public Libraries Act, 1919, post, p. 5241). Museums provided under the section before the passing of the 1919 Act may still be maintained, and if provided for a district which was or later becomes a library district within the Public Libraries Act are to be transferred to the library authority and maintained by them (ibid.). As to gymnasiums, see note (a), ante, p. 4827.

(b) The L. G. B. informed an urban district council that they were disposed to think that under this Act the council could only provide and maintain a museum to receive such things as are given them from time to time or they are able to collect without expenditure of money. "It appears to the Board, however, that the wider powers of the Public Libraries Act, would enable the council to purchase such objects as can reasonably be regarded as specimens of art and science, including archaeological specimens." See also the British Museum Act, 1924 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 503), which enables the trustees to make loans of objects for public exhibition in any gallery or museum under the control of a public authority.

Note to
Section 4.

5. A museum provided under this Act shall be open to the public not less than three days in every week free of charge, but subject thereto an urban authority may admit any person or class of persons thereto as they think fit, and may charge fees for such admission, or may grant the use of the same or of any room therein, either gratuitously or for payment, to any person for any lecture or exhibition, or for any purpose of education or instruction, and the admission to the museum or room the use of which is so granted may be either with or without payment as directed by the urban authority, or with the consent of the urban authority by the person to whom the use of the museum or room is granted (a).

Admission to museum.

(a) As to the use of museums on Sundays, see Sunday Entertainments Act, 1932, s. 4, Vol. V. and 25 Halsbury's Statutes 924.

6.—(1) A gymnasium provided under this Act shall be open to the public free of charge for not less than two hours a day during five days in every week.

Admission to gymnasium.

(2) Subject thereto the urban authority—

(a) may regulate the admission of the public to such gymnasium, either by classes or otherwise as they think fit, and may charge fees for such admission ; and

(b) may, for not more than two hours in each day, grant the exclusive use thereof to any person or body of persons for the purpose of gymnastic exercises, for such payment and on such terms and conditions as they think fit.

(3) An urban authority may (for not more than twenty-four days in one year nor more than six consecutive days) close the gymnasium for use as a gymnasium, and grant the use of the same gratuitously or for payment to any person for the purpose of any lecture, exhibition, public meeting, entertainment, or other public purpose, and the admission on such days shall be either with or without payment as directed by the urban authority, or with the consent of the urban authority by the person to whom the use of the same is granted.

7.—(1) An urban authority may make regulations for all or any of the following matters, namely,—

Regulations and byelaws.

(a) For fixing the days of the week or hours of the day, as the case may be, during which the museum or gymnasium is to be open to the public free of charge :

(b) For giving special facilities to students for the use of the museum :

(c) For fixing the fees to be paid for the admission of persons to the museum and for the use thereof either by students or in any other special manner :

(d) For regulating the use of the gymnasium either by classes or otherwise, and fixing the scale of fees to be paid for such use :

(e) For prescribing conditions on which the exclusive use of the museum, or any room therein, or of the gymnasium is granted in any case :

(f) For determining the duties of the instructor, officers, and servants of the urban authority in connection with a museum or gymnasium :

(g) Generally for regulating and managing the museum or gymnasium.

(2) The urban authorities may make byelaws for regulating the conduct of persons admitted to the museum or gymnasium, and may by any such byelaw provide for the removal from the museum or gymnasium of any Section 7. person infringing any such byelaw by any officer of the urban authority or by any constable.

38 & 39 Vict.
c. 55.

All the provisions with respect to byelaws contained in sections one hundred and eighty-two to one hundred and eighty-six of the Public Health Act, 1875 (a), and any enactment amending or extending those sections, shall apply to all byelaws from time to time made by an urban authority under the powers of this Act.

(a) See now L. G. A., 1933, Pt. XII., ante, p. 1093.

Closing of museum or gymnasium for repairs.

8. An urban authority may at such time as they think fit close a museum or gymnasium provided by them for repairs, and shall give a fortnight's notice of their intention to close the same by affixing a notice to that effect on the door of the museum or gymnasium, as the case may be, or otherwise as they think fit.

Appointment of officers and servants for museum or gymnasium.

9. An urban authority may . . . (a) employ and pay instructors in connection with a gymnasium.

(a) Certain words repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 735.

Expenses and borrowing.

10.—(1) The fees and other money received by an urban authority under this Act shall be applied in defraying the expenses of the museum or gymnasium in respect of which they are received.

(2). . . (a).

(3) An urban authority may borrow for the purposes of this Act . . . (b) and for that purpose . . . (b) sections two hundred and forty-two and two hundred and forty-three of the same Act (relating to loans by the Public Works Loan Commissioners) (c), as amended by section two of the Public Works Loans Act, 1879 (d), shall apply.

42 & 43 Vict.
c. 77.

(4) Separate accounts shall be kept of the receipts and expenditure of an urban authority in connection with any museum or gymnasium established under this Act . . . (b).

(5) The amount expended by an urban authority under this Act shall not in any year exceed the amount produced by the rate of a halfpenny (e) in the pound for a museum, and the like amount (e) for a gymnasium established under this Act.

(a) Subsection repealed by L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 735.

(b) Certain words repealed by L. G. A., 1933.

(c) See these sections, ante, pp. 4479—80.

(d) See this section, ante, p. 4619.

(e) These limits are increased by 33 $\frac{1}{4}$ per cent. by L. G. A., 1929, s. 75, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 932, and in special cases may be increased by a further percentage by an order of the Minister.

11.—Repealed by L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 735.

Power to sell museum or gymnasium in certain cases.

12.—(1) Where it appears to an urban authority that a museum or gymnasium which has been established under this Act for seven years or upwards is unnecessary or too expensive, they may, with the consent of the Local Government Board (a), sell the same for the best price that can reasonably be obtained for the same, and shall convey the same accordingly.

(2) Any moneys arising from such sale shall be applied toward the repayment of any money borrowed for the purpose of the museum or gymnasium sold, and, so far as not required for that purpose, shall be applied to any purpose to which capital moneys are properly applicable, and which may be approved by the Local Government Board (a).

(a) Now the Board of Education (see M. of H. (Public Libraries, etc.) Order, 1920, ante, p. 3186).

13. All powers given to an urban authority under this Act shall be deemed to be in addition to and not in derogation of any other powers conferred by Act of Parliament, law, or custom, and such other powers may be exercised in the same manner as if this Act had not been passed. Section 13.
Powers of Act cumulative.

14. In this Act the expression "urban authority" means an urban sanitary authority under the Public Health Acts, and the expression "district" means an urban sanitary district under those Acts (a). Interpretation.

(a) See the P. H. A., 1875, s. 6 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 628).

THE FORGED TRANSFERS ACT, 1891.

(54 & 55 VICT. C. 43) (a).

An Act for preserving Purchasers of Stock from Losses by Forged Transfers.

[5th August, 1891.]

1.—(1) Where a company or local authority (b) issue or have issued shares, stock, or securities transferable by an instrument in writing or by an entry in any books or register (c) kept by or on behalf of the company or local authority, they shall have power to make compensation by a cash payment out of their funds for any loss arising from a transfer of any such shares, stock, or securities, in pursuance of a forged transfer or of a transfer under a forged power of attorney (d). Power to make compensation for losses from forged transfer.

(2) Any company or local authority (b) may, if they think fit, provide, either by fees not exceeding the rate of one shilling on every one hundred pounds transferred (e), to be paid by the transferee upon the entry of the transfer in the books of the company or local authority, or by insurance, reservation of capital, accumulation of income, or in any other manner which they may resolve upon, a fund to meet claims for such compensation.

(3) For the purpose of providing such compensation any company may borrow on the security of their property, and any local authority (b) may borrow with the like consent and on the like security and subject to the like conditions as to repayment by means of instalments or the provision of a sinking fund and otherwise as in the case of the securities in respect of which compensation is to be provided, but any money so borrowed by a local authority shall be repaid within a term not longer than five years. Any expenses incurred by a local authority in making compensation, or in the repayment of, or the payment of interest on, or otherwise in connexion with, any loan raised as aforesaid, shall, except so far as they may be met by such fees as aforesaid, be paid out of the fund or rate on which the security in respect of which compensation is to be made is charged.

(4) Any such company or local authority may impose such reasonable restrictions on the transfer of their shares, stock, or securities, or with respect to powers of attorney for the transfer thereof, as they may consider requisite for guarding against losses arising from forgery.

(5) Where a company or local authority compensate a person under this Act for any loss arising from forgery, the company or local authority shall, without prejudice to any other rights or remedies, have the same rights and remedies against the person liable for the loss as the person compensated would have had.

(a) This Act has been amended by the Forged Transfers Act, 1892, post, p. 4839. As to the omission of the clause of enactment, see s. 4 of the S. L. R. A., 1894 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1020).

Note to
Section 1.

This Act was occasioned by the decision in Barton v. L. and N. W. Rail. Co. (1889), 24 Q. B. D. 77; 10 Digest 1141, 8063, where it was held that a company having registered a forged transfer of stock was bound to replace on their register as holder of the stock the name of the stockholder whose signature to the transfer had been forged, leaving the innocent transferee to bear the loss. The Act is merely enabling and not obligatory. At common law there is no liability towards an innocent transferee, but where such transferee again transfers to a third person for value, there may be a liability by estoppel towards such third person. As to estoppel, see In re Bahia and San Francisco Rail. Co. (1868), L. R. 3 Q. B. 584; 9 Digest 389, 2466; Balkis Consolidated Co. v. Tomkinson, [1893] A. C. 396; 9 Digest 288, 1786; Dixon v. Kennerly & Co., [1900] 1 Ch. 833; 9 Digest 288, 1788.

The company or local authority held liable for a loss by a forged transfer may in certain cases have a remedy over against the broker or other person at whose request the forged transfer has been registered. Thus when a broker had innocently induced the Bank of England to transfer consols to a purchaser upon a power of attorney the stockholder's signature to which turned out to have been forged, it was held that he had impliedly warranted that he had the stockholder's authority, and that he was consequently liable to indemnify the bank against the claim of the stockholder for restoration (Starkey v. Bank of England, [1903] A. C. 114; 26 Digest 228, 1784). So also where bankers in good faith sent to a corporation a forged transfer of corporation stock with a request to register the stock in the name of the transferees, it was held that the bankers were bound to indemnify the corporation against the liability to the stockholder, whose name had been forged (Sheffield Corporation v. Barclay, [1905] A. C. 392; 69 J. P. 385; 26 Digest 228, 1782; see also Bank of England v. Culler, [1908] 2 K. B. 208; 26 Digest 228, 1785).

(b) The expression "local authority" is defined by s. 2, infra.

(c) Local authorities keep registers of mortgages under s. 207 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1041. They may keep a register of nominal securities under s. 23 of the Local Loans Act, 1875, ante, p. 4538. But this Act will apply also to shares, stock, or securities transferable by an instrument in writing or by an entry in the books of the local authority.

(d) "Whether such loss arises, and whether the transfer or power of attorney was forged before or after the passing of this Act, and whether the person receiving such compensation, or any person through whom he claims, has or has not paid any fee or otherwise contributed to any fund out of which the compensation is paid" (see the Forged Transfers Act, 1892, s. 2, post, p. 4839).

(e) "With a minimum charge equal to that for twenty-five pounds" (see the Forged Transfers Act, 1892, s. 3, post, p. 4839).

Definitions.

"Company."

2. For the purposes of this Act—

The expression "company" shall mean any company incorporated by or in pursuance of any Act of Parliament, or by royal charter.

"Local
authority."

The expression "local authority" shall mean the council of any county or municipal borough, and any authority having power to levy or require the levy of a rate, the proceeds of which are applicable to public local purposes (a).

(a) This definition will include all sanitary authorities, urban and rural.

Application to industrial societies, etc.

3. This Act shall apply to any industrial, provident, friendly, benefit, building, or loan society incorporated by or in pursuance of any Act of Parliament as if the society were a company.

Application to harbour and conservancy
authorities.

4—(1) This Act shall apply to any harbour authority or conservancy authority as if the authority were a company.

(2) For the purposes of this Act the expression "harbour authority" includes all persons, being proprietors of, or entrusted with the duty or invested with the power of constructing, improving, managing, regulating, maintaining, or lighting any harbour otherwise than for profit, and not being a joint stock company.

(3) For the purposes of this Act the expression "conservancy authority" includes all persons entrusted with the duty or invested with the power of conserving, maintaining or improving the navigation of any tidal water otherwise than for profit, and not being a joint stock company.

5. [Application to colonial stock.]

Short title.

6. This Act may be cited as "The Forged Transfers Act, 1891."

THE HIGHWAYS AND BRIDGES ACT, 1891.

Section 1.

(54 & 55 VICT. C. 63.)

An Act to confer further powers on County Councils and other Authorities with respect to [County] Roads and other Highways and Bridges.

[5th August 1891.]

By the L. G. A., 1929, Pt. III., Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903, county councils become the highway authority in all rural districts in substitution for the rural district councils and also in respect of classified roads in urban districts. By L. G. A., 1929, s. 29, the words "county roads," an expression which includes not only what were formerly "main roads" but also roads which are transferred by the Act, are to be substituted for "main roads" in all Acts, and consequently "county road" has throughout this Act been substituted for "main road" and must be read in the extended meaning given by s. 29.

See also the Bridges Act, 1929, Vol. V. and 9 Halsbury's Statutes 268.

1. This Act may be cited as "The Highways and Bridges Act, 1891."

Short title.

2. This Act shall not apply to Scotland or Ireland or the county of London.

Extent of Act.

3. The council of any administrative county (a), and any highway authority or authorities (b), and the council of any adjoining county, may from time to time make and carry into effect agreements with each other for or in relation to the construction, reconstruction, alteration or improvement (c), or the freeing from tolls, of any [county] road or other highway, or of any bridge (including the approaches thereto), wholly or partly situate within the jurisdiction of any one or more of the party or parties to the agreement (d).

Agreement between highway authorities for improvement of roads and bridges.

All expenses incurred by any such county council or highway authority, in pursuance of this section, shall be defrayed as part of the expenses incurred in relation to the maintenance, repair, improvement, or enlargement of bridges, main roads, or other highways by such council or highway authority (e), in such proportions as shall be determined by any such agreement as aforesaid, and any powers of borrowing, applicable to the raising of any fund for the payment of any such expenses as aforesaid, shall be applicable accordingly:

Provided that if a highway board (f) think it just that any parish or parishes specially benefited by any construction, reconstruction, alteration, or improvement under this section should bear the expense thereof, or any part of such expense, they may, with the approval of the county council of the county within which their highway district is situate, and with the assent of the inhabitants of such parish or parishes in vestry assembled, charge such expense, or such part thereof as they may think just, exclusively on such parish or parishes.

(a) See the definition, ante, p. 4766.

(b) The expression "highway authority" includes an urban sanitary authority (see ante, p. 4350).

All agreements under this section should be under seal. See generally as to contracts by local authorities the notes to s. 266 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1123.

Where a surveyor of highways for a parish acting under this section entered into an agreement with a county council by which he contracted for himself and his successors as highway authority of the parish to contribute towards the building of a bridge a certain sum payable by two instalments, the second of which was to be payable after the expiration of his year of office, it was held that he had power to make such a contract under this section (Hertfordshire C. C. v. Barnet R. D. C., [1902] 2 K. B. 48; 66 J. P. 531; 26 Digest 589, 2790).

(c) It will be observed that the Act does not refer to maintenance. An agreement for a new road or for an improvement of an existing road, may, however, contain provisions for maintenance as a matter incidental to the main object of the agreement.

(d) This provision will enable an urban authority to make an agreement for the making or improvement of a road outside their district if they think fit. Apart from an agreement under the Act, s. 145 of the P. H. Act, 1875, ante, p. 4366, is an obstacle.

Note to
Section 3.

(e) In urban districts the expenses will be defrayed out of the general rate.

(f) The effect of the L. G. A., 1929, Pt. III., Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903, transferring to county councils the functions of highway authorities in rural districts is to render this proviso obsolete. County councils are by s. 30 (1), Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904, invested with the powers of "highway boards" under the Highway Acts, 1835 to 1885 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 50, 191), which were exercisable by many rural district councils, but they are not vested with the powers of a highway board under this proviso.

Power to reduce [county] road to status of ordinary highway.
41 & 42 Vict.
c. 77.

4. Section sixteen of the Highways and Locomotives Amendment Act, 1878, shall apply to any part of a [county] road in any county, and so much of such section as requires that any order made thereunder shall be provisional, and shall be confirmed as in the said Act mentioned, is hereby repealed, but no such order shall be made in respect of any main road within a municipal borough without the assent of the council of the said borough having been first obtained.

See this section, 9 Halsbury's Statutes 173. The order must be made by the Minister of Transport. Words in italics were repealed by Sched. XII., Pt. III., of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 1016, and again by the Road Traffic Act, 1930, s. 122, Sched. V. (23 Halsbury's Statutes 687, 696), and accordingly a borough council no longer has an absolute power of veto, but no order is to be made under s. 16 in relation to a road within a municipal borough unless, if the borough council so require, a local inquiry has been first held (s. 31 (4), L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 905). By s. 134, ibid., Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 971, "district" includes non-county borough, urban and rural district, and "classified roads" in non-county boroughs become "county roads" by virtue of ss. 29 and 31, ibid., Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903, 905.

5. [Contracts for supply of road material not to disqualify for election to county council.]

Construction of
Act.
51 & 52 Vict.
c. 41.

6. Words and expressions to which meanings are assigned by the Local Government Act, 1888, have in this Act the same respective meanings, and in this Act the word "highway" includes any public bridle path or footway.

See the interpretation section, ante, p. 4765. The latter part of this section was quite unnecessary, for a public bridle path or footway is as much a highway as a carriage road. See R. v. Salop County (Inhabitants) (1810), 13 East, 95; 26 Digest 572, 2633.

THE MORTMAIN AND CHARITABLE USES ACT, 1891.

(54 & 55 VICT. c. 73) (a).

An Act to amend the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888, and the Law relating to Mortmain and Charitable Uses. [5th August, 1891.]

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited as "The Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1891."

(a) This Act amends the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888, ante, p. 4771. As to the omission of the clause of enactment, see s. 4 of the S. L. R. A., 1894 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1020).

Extent of Act.

2. This Act shall not extend to Scotland or Ireland.

Definition of
"land."

3. "Land" in the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888, and in this Act, shall include tenements and hereditaments, corporeal or incorporeal, of any tenure, but not money secured on land or other personal estate arising from or connected with land; and the definition of land contained in the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888, is hereby repealed (a).

51 & 52 Vict.
c. 42.

(a) This supersedes the definition of "land" in s. 10 of the principal Act, ante, p. 4775. Italicised words repealed as spent by S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175). With regard to money secured on land, it may be noted that corporation debenture stock charged on the revenue of all landed and other property of the corporation was held not to be an interest in land under Charitable Uses Act, 1735, s. 3 (In re Pickard, Elmsley v. Mitchell, [1894] 2 Ch. 88). See also In re Crossley, Birrell v. Greenhough, [1897] 1 Ch. 928; 61 J. P. 390.

Note to
Section 8.

Where real estate has been devised to trustees on trust for sale, and the proceeds directed to be paid to a charity, the charity takes no benefit in anything but personal estate arising from land (Re Sidebottom, Beeley v. Waterhouse, [1902] 2 Ch. 389; 8 Digest 267, 291). See also Re Wilkinson Esam v. Att.-Gen., [1902] 1 Ch. 841; 8 Digest 267, 290; and Re Ryland, Roper v. Ryland, [1903] 1 Ch. 467; 8 Digest 267, 292.

4. In this Act the word "assurance" shall have the same meaning as in the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888. Meaning of "assurance."

5. Land may be assured by will to or for the benefit of any charitable use (a), but, except as hereinafter provided, such land shall, notwithstanding anything in the will contained to the contrary, be sold within one year from the death of the testator, or such extended period as may be determined by the High Court, or any judge thereof sitting at chambers, or by the Charity Commissioners. Land assured by will for a charitable purpose to be sold.

(a) A testator, who died after the passing of this Act, by his will made before the passing of this Act, gave to a charity such part of the residue as may by law be given for charitable purposes, with a separate gift of the remainder to A.:—Held, that the Act applied, and in the absence of a contrary intention the whole of the residue, realty as well as personalty, went to the charity (In re Bridger, Brompton Hospital for Consumption v. Lewis, [1894] 1 Ch. 297; 8 Digest 283, 584). As to the effect of a special Act on the provision of this section and section 8, infra, see In re Verrall, National Trust for Places of Historic Interest or Natural Beauty v. Att.-Gen., [1916] 1 Ch. 100; 80 J. P. 89; 8 Digest 260, 217.

6. So soon as the time limited for the sale of any lands under any such assurance shall have expired without completion of the sale of the land, the land unsold shall vest forthwith in the official trustee of charity lands, and the Charity Commissioners shall take all necessary steps for the sale or completion of the sale of such land to be effected with all reasonable speed by the administering trustees for the time being thereof, and for this purpose the said Commissioners may make any order under their seal directing such trustees to proceed with the sale or completion of the sale of the said land or removing such trustees and appointing others, and may provide by any such order for the payment of the proceeds of sale to the official trustees of charitable funds in trust for the charity, and for the payment of the costs and expenses incurred by the said administering trustees in or connected with such sale, and every such order shall be enforceable by the same means and be subject to the same provisions as are applicable under the Charitable Trusts Act, 1853, and the Acts amending the same, respectively, to any orders of the said Commissioners made thereunder. Land after expiration of time limited for sale to be sold by order of Charity Commissioners.

7. Any personal estate by will directed to be laid out in the purchase of and to or for the benefit of any charitable uses shall, except as hereinafter provided, be held to or for the benefit of the charitable uses as though there had been no such direction to lay it out in the purchase of land (a). 16 & 17 Vict. c. 137.
Personal estate by will directed to be laid out in land not to be so laid out.

(a) Where a testator devised and bequeathed residuary estate to purchase land for the erection of model dwellings for the poor, it was held that the effect of striking out the direction to purchase land was not to put an end to the whole charitable trust, and that the residuary gift was valid (Re Sutton, Lewis v. Sutton, [1901] 2 Ch. 640; 66 J. P. 39; 8 Digest 274, 420).

A gift by a testatrix of "any little money left" for the repair of a churchyard is a valid bequest, and is not limited to the sum of £500 by the Gifts for Churches Act, 1803 (6 Halsbury's Statutes 681) (Re Douglas, Douglas v. Simpson, [1905] 1 Ch. 279; 8 Digest 285, 615).

Section 8.

Power to retain land in certain cases.

8. It shall be lawful for the High Court, or any judge thereof sitting at chambers, or for the Charity Commissioners, if satisfied that land assured by will to or for the benefit of any charitable use, or proposed to be purchased out of personal estate by will directed to be laid out in the purchase of land, is required for actual occupation for the purposes of the charity and not as an investment, by order to sanction the retention or acquisition, as the case may be, of such land (a).

(a) On a summons under this section to sanction retention of land for the purposes of a charity after the expiration of a year from the testator's death, the official trustee and not the commissioners should be made a defendant (Re Church Patronage Trust, Laurie v. Att.-Gen., [1904] 1 Ch. 41; 68 J. P. 64). Affirmed on other points, [1904] 2 Ch. 643; 8 Digest 254, 158.

Application of
Act.

9. This Act shall only apply to the will of a testator dying after the passing of this Act.

Saving.

10. Nothing in this Act contained shall limit or affect the exemptions contained in Part III. of the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888, or apply to any land or personal estate to be laid out in the purchase of land acquired under any assurance to which such exemptions or any of them apply, or shall exclude or impair any jurisdiction or authority which might otherwise be exercised by a court or judge of competent jurisdiction or by the Charity Commissioners.

THE MORTMAIN AND CHARITABLE USES ACT AMENDMENT ACT, 1892.

(55 & 56 VICT. c. 11) (a).

An Act to amend the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888.

[20th June, 1892.]

Extension of
51 & 52 Vict.
c. 42, s. 6.

1. Section six of the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888, except so much of sub-section (2) thereof as provides that an assurance by deed, made otherwise than in good faith for full and valuable consideration, must be executed not less than twelve months before the death of the assurator, shall apply to any assurance by deed of land to any local authority for any purpose or purposes for which such authority is empowered by any Act of Parliament to acquire land (b).

(a) This Act amends Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888, ante, p. 4771. As to the omission of the clause of enactment, see s. 4 of the S. L. R. A., 1894 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1020).

(b) See the section here referred to, ante, p. 4774.

Definitions.

2. For the purpose of this Act "local authority" means any county council, council of a municipal borough, sanitary authority, or any body having power to make a rate for public purposes or by the issue of any precept, certificate or other document to acquire payment from some authority or officer of money which may render necessary the making of any such rate; and "assurance" has the same meaning as in the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888.

Extent of Act.

3. This Act shall not apply to Scotland or Ireland.

Short title.

4. This Act may be cited as "The Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act Amendment Act, 1892."

Section 1.

THE TECHNICAL AND INDUSTRIAL INSTITUTIONS
ACT, 1892.

(55 & 56 VICT. c. 29) (a).

An Act to facilitate the Acquisition and Holding of Land by Institutions for Promoting Technical and Industrial Instruction and Training.

[27th June, 1892.]

1. This Act may be cited as “The Technical and Industrial Institutions Act, 1892.” Short title.

(a) As to the omission of the clause of enactment, see s. 4 of S. L. R. A., 1894 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1020).

2. This Act applies to every institution established, whether before or after the passing of this Act, for effecting all or any of the following purposes, that is to say : Definition of institution.
52 & 53 Vict.
c. 76.

- (i) To give technical instruction within the meaning of the Technical Instruction Act, 1889 (a) ;
- (ii) To provide the training, mental or physical, necessary for the above purpose ;
- (iii) In connection with the purposes before mentioned, to provide workshops, tools, scientific apparatus and plant of all kinds, libraries, reading rooms, halls for lectures, exhibitions, and meetings, gymnasiums, and swimming baths, and also general facilities for mental and physical training, recreation, and amusement, and also all necessary and proper accommodation for persons frequenting the institutions ; and every such institution is in this Act referred to as the institution.

(a) This must now be construed as a reference to Part VI. of the Education Act, 1921 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 168). See s. 171 (2) of that Act (op. cit. 215).

3.—(1) The governing body of the institution may be any body corporate, council, public authority, local authority, commissioners, directors, committee, trustees, or other body of persons, corporate or unincorporate, willing to undertake, or elected or appointed for the purpose of undertaking, or having, the government and management of the institution (a). Governing body.

(2) The governing body may make byelaws and rules for the management and conduct of the institution (b).

(a) Any sanitary authority may be a governing body within the meaning of this definition.

(b) Such byelaws and rules if made by virtue of this Act will not require confirmation by any central authority.

4. The Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (a), and the Lands Clauses Consolidation Acts Amendment Act, 1860 (b) (except the provisions of those Acts relating to the purchase and taking of lands otherwise than by agreement, and with respect to the entry upon lands by promoters of the undertaking, and with respect to determining the amount of purchase money by valuation of surveyors), are hereby incorporated in this Act. Incorporation of
8 & 9 Vict. c. 18.
23 & 24 Vict.
c. 106.

(a) Ante, p. 4104.

(b) Ante, p. 4252.

5. The governing body of the institution may by agreement enter on, take, and use any land required by them for the purposes of the institution, and such land may be conveyed either to the governing body or to trustees for the governing body. Power to take land by agreement.

Section 6.

Conveyance may be by way of sale, exchange, or gift.

6—(1) A conveyance of land may be made to the governing body of the institution or to trustees for the governing body either for valuable consideration in money, or in consideration of a rentcharge, or by way of exchange for other land, or, subject as in this Act provided, by way of free gift, and without any consideration (a).

(2) A conveyance under this Act by a person having an equitable estate shall operate to pass any bare outstanding legal estate vested in a trustee.

(a) See In re Stanley's Trust Deed, Stanley v. Att.-Gen. (1910), 26 T. L. R. 365; 19 Digest 597, 260.

Conveyances by limited owners.

7.—(1) A conveyance under this Act by a person not entitled to dispose absolutely for his own benefit of the land proposed to be conveyed (other than a conveyance on a sale or exchange for the best consideration in money, or by way of rentcharge, or in land to be reasonably obtained) shall be subject to the following restrictions and provisions :

(a) It shall not in itself, or in addition to any land conveyed under this Act by the same person, comprise more than two acres in the whole in any one county, city, or borough :

(b) It shall be made either with the consent of the person, if any, entitled to the next estate of freehold in remainder for the time being, or with the approval of the High Court of Justice.

(2) Every application to the court for an order approving a conveyance under this Act shall be by summons in chambers, and shall, subject to the Acts regulating the court, be assigned to the Chancery Division.

(3) On any such application the court may direct notice to be served on such persons, if any, as it thinks fit.

(4) On any such application the court shall have regard to the circumstances of the settled estate, the wants of the neighbourhood and the interests of the persons entitled in remainder, and the court, if it thinks fit under all the circumstances of the case, may make an order approving the proposed conveyance. Such order, if the court thinks fit, may be made on such terms and conditions, if any, as the court thinks proper ; but no such order shall be made if the application is opposed by any person entitled in remainder, unless the court is of opinion that the opposition is unreasonable, or the interest of the person opposing so remote that it may properly be disregarded.

Institution to be public.

8. Every institution for which land has been acquired under an exercise of the powers conferred by this Act shall be open generally either to all persons or to all persons within specified limits as to age, qualification, or otherwise, and either without payment or on specified terms as to times of attendance and payment of subscriptions or fees, or otherwise, but so that no preference be given to any person or class of persons within the specified limits.

Site may be sold or exchanged.

9.—(1) Land acquired under the powers of this Act shall not be used otherwise than for the purposes of an institution within the meaning of this Act, but, with the consent of the Charity Commissioners, may be sold or may be exchanged for other land.

(2) The governing body or their trustees may execute conveyances and do all acts necessary to effectuate the sale or exchange.

(3) On a sale, the receipt of the governing body or of the trustees for the governing body shall be sufficient discharge for the purchase money, and such money shall, as soon as convenient, be invested in the purchase of other land.

(4) Land purchased or taken in exchange under this section shall be devoted to the same purposes and be liable to the same incidents as originally were applicable to or affected the land sold or given in exchange.

(5) Money arising by sale may, until reinvested in the purchase of land be invested in the names of the governing body or of trustees for the governing body in any manner in which trust money is for the time being by law authorised to be invested; and all dividends and income on investments so made and all the resulting income shall be invested in like manner so as to accumulate in the way of compound interest, and be added to capital until the capital is reinvested in the purchase of land.

Section 9.

10.—(1) Parts I. and II. of the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888, and so much of the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1891 (a), as requires that land assured by will shall be sold within one year from the death of the testator, shall not apply to conveyances or to assurances by will made under or for the purposes of this Act, . . . (b).

(2) Any corporate body may acquire and shall be entitled to hold and retain land for the purposes of this Act without any licence in mortmain.

(a) Ante, pp. 4771, 4772, 4834.

(b) Words omitted here were repealed by the Education Act, 1918 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 128), but see now generally as to assurances for educational purposes s. 117 of the Education Act, 1921 (op. cit. 193).

11. This Act shall not extend to Scotland.

Extent of Act.

THE FORGED TRANSFERS ACT, 1892.

(55 & 56 VICT. c. 36) (a).

An Act to remove doubts as to the meaning of the Forged Transfers Act, 1891
[27th June, 1892].

1. This Act may be cited as "The Forged Transfers Act, 1892," and this Act and the Forged Transfers Act, 1891, may be cited together as the Forged Transfers Acts, 1891 and 1892.

Short title.

(a) This Act amends the Forged Transfers Act, 1891, ante, p. 4831. As to the omission of the clause of enactment, see s. 4 of the S. L. R. A., 1894 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1020).

54 & 55 Vict.
c. 43.

2. Whereas (a) . . .

The Forged Transfers Act, 1891, shall have effect as if at the end of sub-section one of section one of that Act, there were added the words "whether such loss arises, and whether the transfer or power of attorney was forged before or after the passing of this Act, and whether the person receiving such compensation, or any person through whom he claims, has or has not paid any fee or otherwise contributed to any fund out of which the compensation is paid."

Removal of doubt as to the operation of 54 & 55 Vict.
c. 43.

(a) The preamble to this section (repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1908 (op. cit. 1175), after referring to s. 1 (1) of the Forged Transfers Act, 1891, ante, p. 4831, recited that it was expedient to remove doubts as to the application of that Act to losses and forgeries before its passing.

3. Sub-section two of section one of the said Act shall be read as if, after the words "on any one hundred pounds transferred," were inserted the words "with a minimum charge equal to that for twenty-five pounds."

Amendment of
54 & 55 Vict.
c. 43, s. 1 (2).

4. Where the shares, stock, or securities of a company or local authority have by amalgamation or otherwise become the shares, stock, or securities of another company or local authority, the last-mentioned company and authority shall have the same power under the Forged Transfers Act, 1891, and this Act, as the original company or authority would have had if it had continued.

Provision where one company takes over shares, etc., of another company.

Section 1

THE RAILWAY AND CANAL TRAFFIC ACT, 1892.

(55 & 56 VICT. c. 44) (a).

An Act to amend the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1888.

[27th June, 1892.]

51 & 52 Vict.
c. 25.

Whereas by section twenty-four of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1888, it is provided that after the commencement of the session of Parliament next after that in which the report of the Board of Trade with respect to a classification of traffic and schedule of rates and charges has been submitted to Parliament, the Board of Trade may embody in a provisional order such classification and schedule as in the opinion of the Board of Trade ought to be adopted, and procure a Bill to be introduced to confirm the order, and it is expedient to amend this provision :

Time for application for provisional order.

1. A provisional order in pursuance of sub-section seven of section twenty-four of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1888, may be made, and a Bill to confirm the same may be introduced at any time after hearing the parties as provided in sub-section four of the said section.

(a) This Act amends the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1888, s. 24 (7). See the note to that section, ante, p. 4710, where the effect of the amendment is stated. As to the omission of the clause of enactment, see s. 4 of S. L. R. A., 1894 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1020). Preamble repealed by S. L. R. A., 1908 (op. cit. 1175).

Short title.

2. This Act may be cited as "The Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1892."

THE PUBLIC LIBRARIES ACT, 1892.

(55 & 56 VICT. c. 53) (a).

An Act to consolidate and amend the Law relating to Public Libraries.

[27th June, 1892.]

ADOPTION OF ACT AND CONSTITUTION OF LIBRARY AUTHORITY.

Extent and application of
Act.

1.—(1) This Act shall extend to every library district for which it is adopted.

(2) For the purposes of this Act and subject to the provisions thereof every urban district (b) and every parish in England and Wales which is not within an urban district shall be a library district (c).

(a) This Act repeals and consolidates all the previous Acts relating to public libraries, a list of which will be found in the Second Schedule. As to the omission of the clause of enactment, see preceding note. This Act has been amended by the Public Libraries (Amendment) Act, 1893, the Public Libraries Act, 1901, and the Public Libraries Act, 1919, post, pp. 4871, 4995 and 5238. See also the Libraries Offences Act, 1898, post, p. 4948.

(b) See the definition of an urban district in s. 27, post, p. 4847.

(c) The next sub-section is repealed by s. 89 of the L. G. A., 1894 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 827). See s. 7 of that Act, post, p. 4895.

Limitations on expenditure for purposes of Act.

2.—(1) A rate or addition to a rate shall not be levied for the purposes of this Act for any one financial year (a) in any library district to an amount exceeding one penny in the pound (b).

(2) This Act may be adopted for any library district subject to a condition that the maximum rate or addition to a rate to be levied for the purposes of this Act in the district or in any defined portion of the district in any one financial year shall not exceed one halfpenny or shall not exceed three farthings in the pound, but such limitation if fixed at one halfpenny may be subsequently raised to three farthings, or altogether removed, or where it is for the time being fixed at three farthings may be removed.

Section 2.

(a) This means the period of twelve months for which the accounts of the authority are made up. See s. 27, post, p. 4847.

(b) This section has now ceased to have effect, see s. 4 of the Act of 1919, post, p. 5240.

3 (a). [Proceedings for adoption of Act.]

(a) This section was repealed so far as it relates to urban districts by s. 2 (2) of the Act of 1893, post, p. 4871. Section 3 of that Act which prescribed the procedure to be adopted in urban districts was in turn repealed by s. 7 of the 1919 Act, post, p. 5241, which provides that any resolution passed in accordance with the ordinary procedure of the council concerned shall have full effect for purposes of the Act of 1893, post, p. 4871.

4. This Act when adopted for any library district shall be carried into execution, if the library district is an urban district, by the urban authority and, if it is a parish, by the commissioners appointed under this Act (a); and any such authority or commissioners executing this Act are hereinafter referred to as a "library authority" (b).

Act when adopted to be executed by library authority.

(a) If there is a parish council for the parish, the authority for the execution of the Act is now that council (see the L. G. A., 1894, s. 7 (5), (7), post, p. 4895; see also s. 53, post, p. 4913). If there is no parish council, it is still commissioners appointed under this Act, but appointed by the parish meeting under L. G. A., 1894, s. 19 (4), instead of by the vestry. The first thing the library authority has to do is to send notice of the adoption of the Act to the Ministry of Health and Board of Education. See the Public Libraries Act, 1901, s. 8, post, p. 4997, and M. of H. (Public Libraries, etc.) Order, 1920, ante, p. 3186.

(b) In every rural parish the parish meeting have had since 1894, exclusively, the power of adopting this Act. See s. 7 (1) of the L. G. A., 1894, post, p. 4895. But see now the Act of 1919, post, p. 5238, under which the County Council may adopt the Libraries Acts for the areas within the county not included in any existing library area.

5.—(1) Where this Act is adopted for any parish the vestry shall forthwith appoint not less than three nor more than nine voters in the parish to be commissioners for carrying this Act into execution (a).

Constitution of commissioners for executing Act in parish.

(2) The commissioners shall be a body corporate by the name of "The Commissioners for Public Libraries and Museums for the parish of _____, in the county of _____," and shall have perpetual succession and a common seal, with power to acquire and hold lands for the purposes of this Act, without any licence in mortmain (b).

(a) This sub-section only applies in parishes not having a parish council. As to the qualification of commissioners, see now s. 2 of the L. G. A., 1894 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 774), as amended by the Representation of the People Acts.

(b) The parish council will be a body corporate, with power to hold lands for the purposes of this Act without a licence in mortmain (see the L. G. A., 1933, s. 48 (2), ante, p. 782). As to parishes without a parish council, see ibid., s. 47 (3), ante, p. 781.

6.—(1) The commissioners shall, as soon as conveniently may be after their appointment, divide themselves by agreement, or in default of agreement by ballot, into three classes, one-third or as nearly as may be one-third of them being in each class.

Rotation of commissioners

(2) The offices of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of one year, the offices of the second class at the expiration of two years, and the offices of the third class at the expiration of three years from the time of appointment.

(3) The offices of vacating commissioners shall be filled by an equal number of new commissioners to be appointed by the vestry from among the voters in the parish; and every newly elected commissioner shall hold his office for the term of three years from the date when the office became vacant, and

Section 6. no longer, unless re-elected ; but a person, on ceasing to be a commissioner, shall, unless disqualified, be re-eligible.

(4) Any casual vacancy among the commissioners, whether arising by death, resignation, incapacity, or otherwise, shall as soon as may be after the occurrence thereof be filled up by the vestry ; but the term of office of a commissioner appointed to fill up a casual vacancy shall expire at the date at which the term of office of the commissioner in whose place he is appointed would have expired (a).

(a) This section is now applicable only in parishes not having a parish council.

Meetings of
commissioners.

7. The commissioners shall meet at least once in every month, and at such other times as they shall think fit, at some convenient place ; and any one commissioner may summon a special meeting by giving three clear days' notice in writing to each commissioner, specifying therein the purpose for which the meeting is called. Business shall not be transacted at any meeting of the commissioners unless at least two of them are present (a).

(a) Ss. 7, 8, have been repealed, except as to London and except as to commissioners appointed under the Act, by the L. G. A., 1933 ; see now ibid., Sched. III., ante, p. 1231.

Proceedings of commissioners
to be recorded.

8. All orders and proceedings of the commissioners shall be entered in books to be kept for that purpose, and shall be signed by the commissioners or any two of them ; and all such orders and proceedings so entered, and purporting to be so signed, shall be deemed to be original orders and proceedings, and such books may be produced and read as evidence of all such orders and proceedings upon any judicial proceeding (a).

(a) See note (a) to s. 7, supra.

Power to vestries of neighbouring parishes to combine (a)

9.—(1) Where this Act is adopted for any two or more neighbouring parishes, the vestries of those parishes may by agreement (b) combine for any period in carrying this Act into execution, and the expenses of carrying this Act into execution shall be defrayed by the parishes in such proportions as may be agreed on by the vestries.

(2) The vestry of each of the said parishes shall appoint not more than six commissioners in accordance with the provisions of this Act and the commissioners so appointed for the several parishes shall form one body of commissioners, and shall act accordingly in the execution of this Act (c).

(a) As to the combination of urban districts, see the Public Libraries (Amendment) Act, 1893, s. 4, post, p. 4872.

(b) The vestries were not corporate bodies, and the only evidence of an agreement between them would be the resolutions appearing on the minutes, but parish councils are corporate bodies and can enter into formal agreements.

(c) See now the L. G. A., 1894, s. 53 (2), post, p. 4913, as to the compulsory transfer of the powers and duties of any commissioners appointed under this sub-section.

Power to annex parish to adjoining district.

10. Where the voters in a parish adjoining or near any library district for which either this Act has been adopted, or the adoption thereof is contemplated, consent to such parish being annexed to the said district, such parish, subject to the consent of the library authority of the said district being also given, shall be annexed to and form part of that district for the purposes of this Act ; the vestry of such parish shall appoint not more than six commissioners in accordance with the provisions of this Act, and the commissioners so from time to time appointed shall during their respective terms of office be deemed for all the purposes of this Act to be members of the library authority of the said district.

Provision of libraries, museums, and schools of science and art.

EXECUTION OF ACT.

11.—(1) The library authority of any library district for which this Act has been adopted may, subject to the provisions of this Act, provide all or any of the following institutions, namely, public libraries, public museums, schools for science, art galleries, and schools for art, and for that purpose may purchase and hire land, and erect, take down, rebuild, alter, repair, and extend buildings, and fit up, furnish, and supply the same with all requisite furniture, fittings, and conveniences (a). Section 11.

(2) Where any of the institutions mentioned in this section has been established either before or after the passing of this Act by any library authority under this Act or the Acts hereby repealed, that authority may establish in connexion therewith any other of the said institutions without further proceedings being taken with respect to the adoption of this Act.

(3) No charge shall be made for admission to a library or museum provided under this Act for any library district, or, in the case of a lending library, for the use thereof by the inhabitants of the district; but the library authority, if they think fit, may grant the use of a lending library to persons not being inhabitants of the district, either gratuitously or for payment.

(a) It is now provided by the Act of 1919, s. 8, post, p. 5241, that the powers of providing schools for science and schools of art conferred by this section shall cease, without prejudice, however, to the power of maintaining any such school established under this section before the passing of the Act of 1919, post, p. 5238. A free library, established by a library authority under this Act, is a building which is the property of a literary or scientific institution within r. VI. of Sched. (G) of Income Tax Act, 1842, and is, therefore, exempt from assessment to income tax under Sched. A. (9 Halsbury's Statutes 532) (Manchester Corporation v. McAdam, [1896] A. C. 500; 61 J. P. 100; 28 Digest 14, 66, practically overruling Andrews v. Bristol Corporation (1892), 56 J. P. 615; 61 L. J. Q. B. 715; 28 Digest 13, 65).

A museum provided under this Act in an urban district may be appropriated under Public Libraries Act, 1901, s. 7, post, p. 4997, for the purposes of the Museums and Gymnasiums Act, 1891, ante, p. 4827, thus relieving the library rate from the expense of maintaining it.

The council of a metropolitan borough in which this Act was in force in the course of demolishing some old premises, for the purpose of erecting a free library, made a hole in the wall of an adjoining owner's premises and did damage. In an action for damages brought by the adjoining owner it was held that the Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893, did not apply (Walsh v. Southwark Borough Council (1908), 72 J. P. 71; 38 Digest 108, 776).

12.—(1) For the purpose of the purchase of land under this Act by a library authority the Lands Clauses Acts (a), with the exception of the provisions relating to the purchase of land otherwise than by agreement, shall be incorporated with this Act. Provision as to acquisition and disposal of land.

(2) The library authority of any library district which is an urban district may with the sanction of the Local Government Board (b) appropriate for the purposes of this Act any land which is vested in that authority (c).

(3) A library authority may with the sanction of the Local Government Board (d) sell any land vested in them for the purposes of this Act, or exchange any such land for other land better adapted for those purposes, and the money arising from the sale or received by way of equality of exchange shall be applied in or towards the purchase of other land better adapted for the said purposes, or may be applied for any purpose for which capital money may be applied, and which is approved by the Local Government Board (d).

(4) A library authority may let a house or building, or any part thereof, or any land vested in them for the purposes of the Act, which is not at the time of such letting required for those purposes, and shall apply the rents and profits thereof for the purposes of this Act (e).

(a) Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ante, p. 4104; Lands Clauses Consolidation Acts Amendment Act, 1860, ante, p. 4252; Lands Clauses (Umpire) Act, 1883, ante, p. 4664. The exception of the provisions relating to the purchase of land otherwise than by agreement, leaves the authority without power to give compensation for injuriously affecting lands. See Ferrar v. London Commissioners of Sewers (1869), L. R. 4 Exch. 227;

Note to
Section 12.

11 Digest 134, 211. As to disregard of restrictive covenants, see Kirby v. Harrogate School Board, [1896] 1 Ch. 437; 60 J. P. 182; 11 Digest 145, 297.

(b) The powers of the L. G. B. were transferred to the Minister of Health, and are now vested in the Board of Education by the Order in Council of the 17th May, 1920, ante, p. 3186. The O. in C. itself should be consulted, in connection with this and the following notes.

(c) And see Att.-Gen. v. Corporation of Sunderland, ante, p. 4453.

(d) The powers of the L. G. B. under this sub-section were transferred to the Board of Education by Order in Council of 17 May, 1920, ante, p. 3186.

(e) The powers granted by this sub-section are ancillary to and not in contradiction of the powers conferred by the preceding sub-section. The object of the sub-section is to confer on a library authority the right to let for temporary purposes land which is not at the time of the letting required for library purposes.

Where a local authority appropriated premises provided for library purposes for administrative purposes without the consent of the Board of Education an injunction was granted at the suit of the Attorney-General (Att.-Gen. v. Westminster City Council, [1924] 2 Ch. 416; 88 J. P. 145; 38 Digest 227, 586).

Power to grant charity land for purposes of this Act.

13.—(1) Any person holding land for ecclesiastical, parochial, or charitable purposes may, subject as hereinafter provided, grant, or convey, by way of gift, sale, or exchange, for any of the purposes of this Act any quantity of such land, not exceeding in any one case one acre, in any manner vested in such person.

(2) Provided that—

- (a) ecclesiastical property shall not be granted or conveyed for those purposes without the consent of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners; and
- (b) parochial property shall not be so granted or conveyed save by the board of guardians of the poor law union comprising the parish to which the property belongs, or without the consent of the Local Government Board (a); and
- (c) other charitable property shall not be so granted or conveyed without the consent of the Charity Commissioners; and
- (d) the land taken in exchange or the money received for such sale shall be held on the same trusts as the land exchanged or sold; and
- (e) land situated in the administrative county of London, or in any urban district containing according to the last published census for the time being over twenty thousand inhabitants, which is held on trusts to be preserved as an open space, or on trusts which prohibit building thereon, shall not be granted or conveyed for the purposes of this Act.

(3) Any land granted or conveyed to any library authority under this section may be held by that authority without any licence in mortmain.

(a) Words in italics repealed by Sched. XII., Pt. VII., L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 1019. As to the transfer of parish property vested in boards of guardians at April 1st, 1930, see L. G. A., 1929, s. 115, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 956, and as to dealing with such property after that date, see Sched. VII., Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 987. The consent of the M. of H. must still be obtained under the provision in the text.

Vesting of property in library
authority.

14.—All land appropriated, purchased, or rented, and all other real and personal property presented to or purchased or acquired for any library, museum, art gallery, or school under this Act shall be vested in the library authority.

Management of libraries, etc.
by library authority or committee.

15.—(1) The general management, regulation, and control (a) of every library, museum, art gallery, and school provided under this Act shall be vested in and exercised by the library authority, and that authority may provide therein books, newspapers, maps, and specimens of art and science, and cause the same to be bound and repaired when necessary.

(2) The library authority may also appoint salaried officers and servants, and dismiss them, and (b) make regulations for the safety and use of every library, museum, gallery, and school under their control, and for the admission of the public thereto.

(3) Provided that a library authority being an urban authority may if they think fit appoint a committee and delegate to it all or any of their powers and duties under this section, and the said committee shall to the extent of such delegation be deemed to be the library authority. Persons appointed to be members of the committee need not be members of the urban authority (c). Section 15.

(a) As to offences, see the Libraries Offences Act, 1898, post, p. 4948. As to making byelaws, see the Public Libraries Act, 1901, s. 3, post, p. 4996.

(b) Words in italics repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 735, except so far as relates to parish councils and to commissioners appointed under the Act.

(c) No qualification is prescribed for these persons. Delegation does not relieve the urban authority from their liability for negligence on the part of those having control of the library (Bungary v. Wellingborough U. C. (1903), 67 J. P. N. 304).

16.—(1) (a).

(2) The library authority of any library district may with the consent of the voters (b) in the district and of the Charity Commissioners make the like agreement with the governing body of any library established or maintained out of the funds subject to the jurisdiction of the Charity Commissioners, and situate in or near the library district, and, in case of inability, objection, or failure on the part of the governing body to enter into such agreement, the Charity Commissioners may, if they think fit, become party to the agreement on behalf of the governing body.

(3) This section shall apply, with the necessary modifications, to a museum, school for science, art gallery, or school for art in like manner as to a library.

(a) This sub-section is repealed by Public Libraries Act, 1901, s. 14, and Sched., post, p. 4998, and s. 5 of that Act, post, p. 4996, now makes other provision for library authorities to share the cost of a library by agreement.

(b) In an urban district no consent of the voters is now required (Public Libraries Amendment) Act, 1893, s. 2, post, p. 4871).

Power to library authorities to make agreement for use of library.

17. Where a library authority accept a grant out of money provided by Parliament from the Department of Science and Art towards the purchase of the site, or the erection, enlargement, or repair, of any school for science and art, or school for science, or school for art, or of the residence of a teacher in any such school, or towards the furnishing of any such school, that authority may accept the grant upon the conditions prescribed by the Department of Science and Art, and may execute any instruments required by that Department for carrying into effect those conditions, and upon payment of the grant shall be bound by such conditions and instruments, and have power and be bound to fulfil and observe the same (a).

Power to library authority to accept parliamentary grant.

(a) See note (a) to s. 11, ante, p. 4843.

FINANCIAL PROVISIONS.

18.—(1) . . . (a).

Expenses of library authority, how defrayed.

(3) Where a parish or a part of a parish is annexed in pursuance of this Act to any library district, so much of the said expenses as is chargeable to such parish or part shall be defrayed in like manner as if such parish or part were a separate library district (b).

(a) Sub-s. (1) was repealed, except as to London, by the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 735.

(b) The remainder of this sub-section is repealed by Public Libraries Act, 1901, s. 14, and Sched., post, p. 4998.

Section 19.

Borrowing by library
authority.

38 & 39 Vict.
c. 55.

38 & 39 Vict.
c. 89.

19.—(1) Every library authority, with the sanction of the Local Government Board (a), and in the case of a library authority being commissioners appointed for a parish, with the sanction also of the vestry (b) of such parish, may borrow money for the purposes of this Act on the security of any fund or rate applicable for those purposes (c).

(2) . . . (d).

(3) The Public Works Loan Commissioners may in manner provided by the Public Works Loans Act, 1875 (e), lend any money which may be borrowed by a library authority for the purposes of this Act.

(a) Now the M. of H.

(b) See s. 6 and note (a) thereto, ante, p. 4841, as to substituting the consent of the parish meeting. As to borrowing by a parish council, see L. G. A., 1933, s. 195, ante, p. 1023, and note (k) on p. 1030, ante. As to borrowing by a County Council, see ibid.

(c) Words in italics repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 735, except so far as relates to commissioners appointed under the Act or as to London.

(d) Sub-section repealed by L. G. A., 1933, except as in last note.

(e) See that Act, ante, p. 4530.

Accounts and audit.

20.—(1) Separate accounts shall be kept of the receipts and expenditure under this Act of every library authority and their officers, and those accounts shall be audited in like manner and with the like incidents and consequences, in the case of a library authority being an urban authority, and of their officers, as the accounts of the receipts and expenditure of that authority and their officers under the Public Health Acts (a).

(2) The accounts of the receipts and expenditure of a library authority being commissioners appointed under this Act, and of their officers, shall be audited yearly by a district auditor in like manner and with the like incidents and consequences as in the case of an audit under the Acts relating to the relief of the poor, and those commissioners shall be a local authority within the meaning of the District Auditors Act, 1879 (a).

(3) The accounts of the receipts and expenditure under this Act of any library authority other than the council of a municipal borough shall be open at all reasonable times to the inspection, free of charge, of any ratepayer in the library district, and any such ratepayer may without charge make copies of and extracts from those accounts; and if any library authority or any person being a member thereof or employed by them and having the custody of the accounts fails to allow the accounts to be inspected, or copies or extracts to be made, as required by this section, such authority or person shall for each offence be liable on summary conviction in manner provided by the Summary Jurisdiction Acts to a fine not exceeding five pounds.

(a) Words in italics repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 735, except so far as relates to commissioners appointed under the Act or as to London.

PROVISIONS AFFECTING LONDON ONLY.

Application of Act to city of London.

21.—(1) The city of London shall be a library district, and on this Act being adopted for the city, the common council shall be the library authority.

(2) The opinion of the voters in the city of London with respect to any question under this Act shall be ascertained by the mayor on the requisition of the common council.

(3) The expenses incurred in the city of London in and incidental to the execution of this Act, including all expenses in connexion with ascertaining the opinion of the voters, shall be defrayed out of the consolidated rate levied by the commissioners of sewers, or a separate rate to be made, assessed, and levied by those commissioners in like manner as the consolidated rate.

(4) So much of this Act as limits the rate or addition to a rate to be levied in any library district for any one financial year to one penny in the pound shall not extend to the city of London (a). Section 21.

(a) This sub-section was repealed by the Act of 1919, post, p. 5238.

22. [Power for district in London to adopt Act] (a).

(a) This section was repealed by the London G. A., 1899, s. 35 (2), and Third Schedule. See now ss. 4 and 34 of that Act (11 Halsbury's Statutes 1227, 1241) as to the adoption of this Act in a metropolitan borough.

23. The vestry or district board constituted under the Metropolis Management Act, 1855, for any parish mentioned in Schedule A. or district mentioned in Schedule B. to that Act, as amended by any subsequent Acts, may, if this Act is in force in such parish or district, appropriate with the sanction of the Local Government Board (a) for the purposes of this Act any land which is vested in such vestry or board.

Power to vestry or district board in London to appropriate land for library, etc.

(a) Now the M. of H.

SUPPLEMENTAL PROVISIONS.

24. Any agreement under this Act between two or more vestries or library authorities, or between a library authority and any other body, may provide that on the termination of the agreement an adjustment shall be made of the interests of the several parties thereto in any property to the provision of which they have contributed, and as to the mode in which the adjustment shall be arrived at, and in the event of any dispute the adjustment shall on the application of any of the parties be made by an arbitrator appointed by the Local Government Board (a).

Adjustment of interest on termination of agreement.

(a) Now the M. of H.

25. Nothing in this Act shall interfere with the operation of the Act of the session of the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth years of the reign of her present Majesty, chapter one hundred and eight, so far as it relates to the collection of a rate for a public library in Oxford.

Saving for Oxford.

26. For the purposes of this Act the vestry of a parish shall be any body of persons acting by virtue of any Act of Parliament as or instead of a vestry, and, where there is no such body, shall be the inhabitants of the parish in vestry assembled, but in the latter case the persons registered as county electors in respect of the occupation of property situate in the parish, and no other persons, shall be members of the vestry.

Constitution and proceedings of vestry for purposes of Act.

27. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, —

The expression "urban district" means a municipal borough, Improvement Act district, or local government district; and "urban authority" means, as regards each such district, the council improvement commissioners, or local board:

Definitions

The expression "financial year" means the period of twelve months for which the accounts of a library authority are made up (a):

The expression "overseers" includes any persons authorised and required to make and levy poor rates in a parish, and acting instead of overseers (b):

The expression "common council" means in relation to the city of London the mayor, commonalty, and citizens, acting by the mayor, aldermen, and commons in common council assembled.

(a) The definition of a voter here following was repealed by the Public Libraries Act, 1901, s. 14, and Sched., post, p. 4998, and is now supplied by s. 9 of that Act, post, p. 4997.

(b) Overseers were abolished by the R. and V. Act, 1925, s. 62, ante, p. 2222. All rates are now levied by the rating authority.

Section 28. 28.—(1) (a) The Acts mentioned in the Second Schedule to this Act shall be repealed as from the commencement of this Act, save so far as any of them extend beyond England and Wales ; and where those Acts have been adopted for any library district, that adoption shall be deemed to have been an adoption of this Act, and this Act shall apply accordingly.

Repeal.

(2) (a) For the purpose of this section the said Acts shall be deemed to have been adopted for any district in which they were in force immediately before the commencement of this Act.

(a) Repealed by S. L. R. A., 1908 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175).

Saving as any local Act.

29. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to limit, or to reduce or alter the limit of any rate which any library authority is authorised to levy under or by virtue of any local Act.

30. [Commencement of Act, October 1, 1892.] (a)

(a) Repealed by S. L. R. A., 1908.

Short title.

31. This Act may be cited as "The Public Libraries Act, 1892."

SCHEDULES.

Section 3.

FIRST SCHEDULE (a).

(a) This schedule ("Regulations for ascertaining the opinion of the voters in a library district") was repealed, so far as it applied to rural parishes, by the L. G. A., 1894, s. 89. So far as it applied to urban parishes, it became practically obsolete in 1893, for the Public Libraries (Amendment) Act, 1893, s. 2, post, p. 4871, substituted the consent of the urban authority for the consent of the voters. It remained, however, in force in the Metropolis until it was finally repealed by the Public Libraries Act, 1901, post, p. 4995. And see now the Act of 1919, s. 7, post, p. 5241.

Section 28.

SECOND SCHEDULE (a).

(a) This Schedule of Acts repealed (itself repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1908 ; 18 Halsbury's Statutes 1175) included the following Public Libraries Acts and Amendment Acts, —1855, 1866, 1871, 1884, 1887, 1889, and 1890.

THE PRIVATE STREET WORKS ACT, 1892.

(55 & 56 VICT. c. 57.)

An Act to amend the Public Health Acts in relation to Private Street Improvement Expenses. [28th June 1892.]

Short title, construction and extent.

1. This Act may be cited as the Private Street Works Act, 1892, and shall be construed as one with the Public Health Acts, and shall extend only to England ; and this Act and the Public Health Acts may be cited together as the Public Health Acts.

Rural districts.

The Act is now applied to all rural districts by the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 883, which provides that the county council shall have the functions of an urban authority under this Act with respect to such parts of the county as are for the time being comprised in any rural district (ibid., s. 30 (2) and Sched. I., Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904, 975).

In the application of the Act to county councils, the county surveyor when preparing the specification under s. 6 (2), post, p. 4852, must, if and so far as the works include sewers, consult the rural district council who remain the sanitary authority.

Any rural district council to which this Act or s. 150 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4388, has been applied by an order of the L. G. B. or M. of H. can no longer function under either of those enactments (s. 30 (3), L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904).

Under s. 35, ibid., Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 910, a county council has power to delegate its functions with respect to county roads to a district council, and where any such functions have been delegated under s. 35, then so long as the delegation is in force, the district council is to discharge, as agents for the county council, the functions of that council within the district under the enactments (including this Act) mentioned in Sched. I., Pts. I. and III., ibid., Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 975, 977, except so far as they relate to "roads" in respect of which functions are not delegated (s. 36 (2), ibid., Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 912). Functions under this Act cannot be exercised in relation to a "road" which as defined by the Act (s. 134, ibid., Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 971) means a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large. Where, therefore, any functions are delegated to a rural district council, the council will, subject to the terms of the delegation, be entitled to function under this Act within their district without the necessity for an Order under s. 4, post, p. 4850, since the council will be acting as agents for the county council and will be exercising the functions of that authority. The surveyor of the district council to whom functions are delegated is to be the surveyor for the purposes of this Act (s. 36 (2) (a), L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 912), and the district council may themselves contribute to the expenses and for that purpose raise money (s. 36 (2) (b), ibid.).

When this Act is adopted by an urban authority it takes the place of ss. 150—152 of the P. H. A., 1875, ante, pp. 4388—4425, and s. 41 of the P. H. A. Amendment A., 1890, ante, p. 4815 (see s. 25, post, p. 4869). The position of urban districts is not affected by the L. G. A., 1929, so far as this Act is concerned.

As to the Acts comprised under the title "Public Health Acts," see the Short Titles Act, 1896 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1021), and the P. H. A., 1925, s. 1 (2), Vol. V. and 13 Halsbury's Statutes 1115.

"England" includes Wales and Berwick-on-Tweed (Wales and Berwick Act, 1746, s. 3; 18 Halsbury's Statutes 969).

2. This Act shall extend and apply to any urban sanitary district in which it is respectively adopted under the provisions of this Act. Adoption of Act.

An adoption of the Act would seem to be irrevocable: see also s. 25 and note thereto, post, p. 4869. As to the mode of adoption, see the next section.

3. The following provisions shall have effect with regard to the adoption of this Act by urban authorities: Adoption of Act by urban authorities.

(1) The adoption shall be by a resolution passed at a meeting of the urban authority; and one calendar month at least before such meeting special notice of the meeting, and of the intention to propose such resolution, shall be given to every member of the authority, and the notice shall be deemed to have been duly given to a member of it if it is either—

- (a) Given in the mode in which notices to attend meetings of the authority are usually given (a); or
- (b) Where there is no such mode, then signed by the clerk of the authority, and delivered to the member or left at his usual or last known place of abode in England, or forwarded by post in a prepaid registered letter, addressed to the member at his usual or last known place of abode in England.

(a) See P. H. A. Amendment A., 1890, s. 3, ante, p. 4801. For a form of notice of intention to move the adoption of the Act, see the Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XII., p. 561. See also forms of notice of meeting and of resolution of adoption, ibid., pp. 562, 563.

Section 3.

(2) Such resolution shall be published by advertisement in some one or more newspapers circulating within the district of the authority, and by causing notice thereof to be affixed to the principal doors of every church and chapel (a) in the place to which notices are usually fixed, and otherwise in such manner as the authority think sufficient for giving notice thereof to all persons interested, and shall come into operation at such time not less than one month (b) after the first publication of the advertisement of the resolution as the authority may by the resolution fix, and upon its coming into operation this Act shall extend to that district.

Compare the similar provisions in P. H. A. Amendment A., 1890, s. 3, ante, p. 4801. A form of notice of the resolution for publication will be found in Vol. XII. of the Encyclopedia of Forms and Precedents, at p. 563.

(a) The churches and chapels above referred to are those of the Established Church only. See cases in note to the P. H. A. Amendment A., 1890, s. 3 (4), ante, p. 4802.

(b) "Month" means "calendar month" (Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 3; 18 Halsbury's Statutes 993). If, therefore, the date, fixed by a resolution of adoption for the Act to take effect, is less than one calendar month from the date of the resolution, it will be necessary for proceedings to be begun afresh.

(3) A copy of the resolution shall be sent to the Local Government Board.

For L. G. B. read now the Ministry of Health.

(4) A copy of the advertisement shall be conclusive evidence of the resolution having been passed, unless the contrary be shown; and no objection to the effect of the resolution on the ground that notice of the intention to propose the same was not duly given, or on the ground that the resolution was not sufficiently published, shall be made after three months from the date of the first publication of the advertisement.

Local Government Board may extend Act to rural districts.

4. The Local Government Board may declare that the provisions contained in this Act shall be in force in any rural sanitary district, or any part thereof, and may invest a rural sanitary authority with the powers, rights, duties, capacities, liabilities, and obligations which an urban authority may acquire by adoption of this Act, in like manner and subject to the same provisions as they are enabled to invest rural sanitary authorities with the powers of urban sanitary authorities under the provisions of section two hundred and seventy-six of the Public Health Act, 1875.

The Act is now in force in all rural districts by reason of its application to county councils in such districts by s. 30 (2) and Sched. I. of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904, 975. Any orders made under the section in the text are now inoperative (s. 30 (3), ibid.).

As to the operation of the Act in rural districts, see the note to s. 1, ante, p. 4848.

Interpretation.

5. In this Act, if not inconsistent with the context—

The expression "urban authority" means an urban sanitary authority under the Public Health Acts (a).

The expressions "urban sanitary district" and "rural sanitary district" mean respectively an urban sanitary district and a rural sanitary district under the Public Health Acts (b), and "district" means the district of an urban sanitary authority or of a rural sanitary authority, as the case may require.

The expressions "surveyor" (c), "lands" (d), "premises" (d), "owner" (e), "drain" (f), "sewer" (g), have respectively the same meaning as in the Public Health Acts.

The expression "street" means (unless the context otherwise requires) a street as defined by the Public Health Acts, and not being a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large (h).

Words referring to "paving, metalling, and flagging" shall be construed as including macadamising, asphaltting, gravelling, kerbing, and every method of making a carriageway or footway (i).

(a) See as to what was an urban sanitary authority, ante, pp. 736 et seq.

(b) See ante, pp. 736 et seq.

(c) "Surveyor" is defined, ante, p. 4334.

(d) "Lands" and "premises" are defined, ante, p. 4335.

(e) "Owner" is defined, ante, p. 4335.

(f) "Drain" is defined, ante, p. 4343.

(g) "Sewer" is defined, ante, p. 4343.

(h) See the definition of a street in the P. H. A., 1875, s. 4, ante, p. 4336. As to the additional words "not being a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large," see Rishton v. Mayor, etc. of Haslingden, [1898] 1 Q. B. 294; 62 J. P. 85; 26 Digest 543, 2416; Leigh U. D. C. v. King, [1901] 1 K. B. 747; 65 J. P. 243; 26 Digest 363, 882; Cabab v. Walton-on-Thames U. D. C., p. 1948, ante; Folkestone Corporation v. Brockman, p. 1948, ante; and notes on pp. 1947 et seq., ante.

See Vyner v. Wirral R. D. C. (1909), 73 J. P. 242; 7 L. G. R. 628; 26 Digest 303, 351, as to the admissibility of old maps upon the question of age and (consequently) "repairability": Mercer v. Denne, [1905] 2 Ch. 538; 70 J. P. 65; 22 Digest 382, 3907; Trafford v. St. Faith's R. D. C. (1910), 74 J. P. 297; 22 Digest 381, 3901; Moser v. Ambleside U. D. C. (1925), 89 J. P. 118; 23 L. G. R. 533; 26 Digest 294, 256; Att.-Gen. v. Stokesby R. D. C. (1928), 26 L. G. R. 440; Digest Supp.; see also Att.-Gen. v. Horner, [1913] 2 Ch. 140; 77 J. P. 257; 26 Digest 304, 356; Fowke v. Berington, [1914] 2 Ch. 308.

The street, or that part of it which is to be dealt with, must be within the authority's district. Where the premises on one side of a street are in another district, no expenses can be apportioned upon them (Hornsey Corporation v. Birkbeck Freehold Land Society, [1906] 1 K. B. 521; 70 J. P. 140; 26 Digest 522, 2229; Bishop Auckland Urban Council v. Alderson, [1913] 2 K. B. 324; 76 J. P. 347; 10 L. G. R. 722; 26 Digest 542, 2404; Shoreditch Borough Council v. Wakeham (1905), 69 J. P. 239. See also note (b) to the P. H. A., 1875, s. 150, ante, p. 4390). Similarly, if in a rural district part of a street was in an adjoining contributory place in which the Act had not been put into force, no apportionment could be made on premises in that contributory place (R. v. Cheshire J.J., Ex parte Vyner (1909), 73 J. P. 499; 26 Digest 542, 2403; but see now note on p. 4849, ante). When part of a street is within the area of a local authority, and part outside it, and an order made by the authority refers to the whole street, the order is ultra vires and cannot be severed and treated as valid so far as it applies to the portion of street in the authority's area (Newton v. Lambton, Hetton and Joicey Collieries, Ltd., [1937] 2 All E. R. 150; Digest Supp.).

The street to be made up must be the street as it physically exists (Urban Housing Co., Ltd. v. Oxford Corporation, post, p. 4867).

(i) This provision meets the decision in Att.-Gen. v. Bidder (1881), 47 J. P. 263; 26 Digest 374, 996, ante, p. 4806. The text resembles the P. H. A. Amendment A., 1890, s. 11 (2), ante, p. 4806.

6.—(1) Where any street (a) or part of a street (b) is not sewered, levelled, paved, metalled, flagged, channelled, made good, and lighted to the satisfaction of the urban authority (c), the urban authority may from time to time resolve with respect to such street or part of a street to do any one or more of the following works (in this Act called private street works); that is to say, to sewer, level, pave, metal, flag, channel, or make good, or to provide proper means for lighting such street or

Section 6. part of a street ; and the expenses incurred by the urban authority in executing private street works shall be apportioned (subject as in this Act mentioned) on the premises fronting, adjoining, or abutting on such street or part of a street (d). Any such resolution may include several streets or parts of streets, or may be limited to any part or parts of a street (e).

A procedure, appropriate in the case of streets which are not ripe for complete making up, is available under the P. H. A. Amendment A., 1907, s. 19, where that section has been declared to be in force in the district. See the terms of that section and notes thereto, post, p. 5045. It will be seen that, unless a majority of the owners in a street act under sub-s. (4) of the section in question, it will be open to an authority to do urgent repairs to a private street from time to time without proceeding under either s. 150 of the Act of 1875, ante, p. 4388, or this Act ; and, so long as such repairs only are executed, the authority cannot be called upon to take over the street.

(a) See the definition in the preceding section.

(b) See note to the similar words in the P. H. A., 1875, s. 150, ante, p. 4388 : see Standring v. Bexhill Corporation (1909), 73 J. P. 241 ; 26 Digest 539, 2385, for an instance of a street the centre of which was repairable by a tramway company.

(c) As to what is included in the terms "paved, metalled, flagged," see s. 5, ante, p. 4850). As to what is included in the term "channelled," and as to the liability of a local authority in respect of a plate or cover placed over the channel in the course of work done under the Act, see Jones v. Rew (1910), 74 J. P. 321 ; 79 L. J. K. B. 1030 ; 26 Digest 412, 1323. See also Horridge v. Makinson (1915), 79 J. P. 484, ante, p. 4361.

As to when a street has been sewered, etc. to the satisfaction of the urban authority, see Bonella v. Twickenham L. B., and later cases cited therewith at pp. 4395—4398, ante. Gullies and drains from part of the sewage system (East Barnet U. D. C. v. Stacey, [1939] 2 K. B. 861 ; [1939] 2 All E. R. 621 ; 103 J. P. 237 ; Digest Supp.

In urban districts, where s. 35 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, has been adopted, and in all rural districts (s. 30 (2) and Sched. I., L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904, 975), a local authority in issuing notices under this section may require a variation of the relative widths of the carriageway and footway, or footways, of the street, provided that any additional cost occasioned thereby is borne by the local authority. If that section has not been adopted in an urban district, no such variation can be made (Robertson v. Bristol Corporation, [1900] 2 Q. B. 198 ; 64 J. P. 389 ; 26 Digest 527, 2259).

(d) As to what are premises "fronting, adjoining, or abutting on a street," see the notes on p. 4400, ante. The words "subject as in this Act mentioned," refer to s. 10 post, p. 4859, which enables the authority to resolve that in settling the apportionment, certain matters other than mere frontage shall be taken into consideration.

It has been held that all premises in the street must be included in the provisional apportionment, although some of such premises are extra commercium, and therefore have no "owners" within the meaning of the statute (Herne Bay U. D. C. v. Payne, [1907] 2 K. B. 130 ; 71 J. P. 282 ; 26 Digest 544, 2425). But there is a discretion under s. 10, post, p. 4859, in the local authority to include in the apportionment premises which do not front, adjoin or abut on the street ; this, however, is a discretion vested solely in the authority, and justices cannot include such premises if the authority have excluded them (Hornchurch U. D. C. v. Webber, [1938] 1 K. B. 698 ; [1938] 1 All E. R. 309 ; 102 J. P. 167 ; Digest Supp.).

(e) This was a new provision.

A form of resolution for use under this section will be found in the Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XII., at p. 564.

(2) The surveyor shall prepare, as respects each street or part of a street (a)—

(a) A specification of the private street works referred to in the resolution, with plans and sections (if applicable) (b) ;

(b) An estimate (c) of the probable expenses of the works ;

(c) A provisional apportionment of the estimated expenses among the premises liable to be charged therewith under this Act (d).

Section 6.

Such specification, plans, sections, estimate, and provisional apportionment shall comprise the particulars prescribed in Part I. of the Schedule to this Act, and shall be submitted to the urban authority, who may by resolution approve the same respectively with or without modification or addition as they think fit (e).

(a) The original resolution may include several streets or parts of streets, but the surveyor must deal with each separately in making his specification, etc.

(b) Where the county surveyor is preparing a specification under this sub-section in respect of a street in a rural district he must consult the district council as to any works of sewerage to be included (s. 30 (2) and Sched. I., Pt. I., of the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904, 975).

(c) The estimate may include a percentage allowance for "contingencies" (Standing v. Beachill Corporation, ante, p. 4852).

(d) As to the manner in which the provisional apportionment is to be made, see s. 10, post, p. 4859. See form of provisional apportionment in the Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XII., p. 567.

(e) This is a second resolution, quite different from that mentioned in sub-s. (1). See form in the Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XII., p. 568. It must be published in the manner provided by the next sub-section. The specifications, etc. are not required to be published, but only the resolution, which should, therefore, clearly identify the specifications, etc. to which it refers.

(8) The resolution approving the specifications, plans, and sections (if any), estimates, and provisional apportionments, shall be published in the manner prescribed in Part II. of the Schedule to this Act (a), and copies thereof shall be served on the owners of the premises shown as liable to be charged in the provisional apportionment within seven days after the date of the first publication (b). During one month (c) from the date of the first publication the approved specifications, plans, and sections (if any), estimates, and provisional apportionments (or copies thereof certified by the surveyor), shall be kept deposited at the urban authority offices, and shall be open to inspection at all reasonable times (d).

(a) I.e., by advertisement in a local paper once in each of two successive weeks, and by posting copies in or near the street once at least in each of three successive weeks. See the Schedule and notes thereto, post, p. 4870. See form of notice of resolution in the Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XII., p. 569.

(b) As the Act does not provide for the service of the notices, they may be served in manner provided by the P. H. A., 1875, s. 267, ante, p. 4495, and may be authenticated in manner provided by ibid., s. 266, ante, p. 4494. The sub-section requires service on the "owner," not "reputed owner"; therefore, service on a person shown in the apportionment as "owner or reputed owner" is not sufficient if he be not in fact owner (Wirral R. D. C. v. Carter, [1903] 1 K. B. 646; 67 J. P. 31; 26 Digest 543, 2409). The expression owner is defined, ante, p. 4851.

(c) "Month" means calendar month (Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 3; 18 Halsbury's Statutes 993).

(d) Reasonable times would probably be held equivalent to usual office hours.

From the fact that the urban authority has resolved under this section to approve a provisional apportionment including premises which do not abut on the street but access to which is obtained from the street through a court, passage, etc. (as to which see s. 10, post), it must be presumed that they think fit to do so, but strictly speaking the resolution of approval should say so expressly (Oakley v. Merthyr Tydfil Corporation, [1922] 1 K. B. 409; 86 J. P. 1; 26 Digest 541, 2396).

7. During the said month any owner of any premises (a) shown in a provisional apportionment as liable to be charged with any part of the expenses of executing the works may, by written notice served on the Objections to proposed works.

Section 7. urban authority (b), object to the proposals of the urban authority on any of the following grounds : (that is to say,)

- (a) That an alleged street or part of a street is not or does not form part of a street within the meaning of this Act (c) ;
- (b) That a street or part of a street is (in whole or in part) a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large (d) ;
- (c) That there has been some material informality, defect, or error in or in respect of the resolution, notice, plans, sections, or estimate ;
- (d) That the proposed works are insufficient or unreasonable, or that the estimated expenses are excessive (e) ;
- (e) That any premises ought to be excluded from or inserted in the provisional apportionment (f) ;
